tion. Our losses were stated at the same, seventeen.)

Viru Harbor Seized

Headquarters announced that ground forces had captured "the enemy barge base at Viru harbor" on New Georgia island after hard fighting.

(In Washington, announcement previously had been made of the capture of Viru harbor, only 30 nautical miles from Munda).

While there was no further mention of the unopposed occupation of the Woodlark island and the Trobriand group off the southeastern tip of New Guinea it was assumed that operations there also were proceeding according to long arranged plans.

MacArthur in Command

The entire operations were for the first time in the war combined under the supreme command of General MacArthur.

His air forces roared out in far reaching sweeps aimed at pinning down as much of the enemy air force to the ground as possible.

In addition to the strikes at Rabaul and Salamaua, Allied long range fighters went after the airdrome on Selary island in the Tanibar group some 300 miles above Darwin. Japanese in the villages were attacked and a boat sunk offshore.

Over Buka passage in the northern Solomons above the scene of the Rendova-New Georgia actions, an Allied plane damaged two out of three Japanese float planes which attempted to intercept it.

In the St. Matthias group of islands northwest of New Britain, a four-engined bomber attacked nine Japanese sampans, sinking one and leaving another burning.

In the fighting around Salamaua, Australian patrols worked their way toward the beach which American forces took after undergoing a heavy battering in the reef-studded surf off shore of Nassau bay at 1 a. m. June 30.

Other Australian patrols out of the Mubo area, 12 miles south of Salamaua, attacked enemy forces at Malolo and Orodubi.

The southwest and south Pacific have seldom seen such concentrated aerial, ground and sea action as reported yesterday from many points.

Jap Islands Bombarded

While the Rendova garrison of Japanese was being destroyed, ships and planes shelled and bombed the Japanese bases at Vila and Munda while other surface craft went further to bombard Japanese installations in the Balance-Faisi area.

Liberators made the raid on Rabaul, seeking to pin enemy bombers and fighters to the ground which otherwise might oppose our new Georgia and Rendova forces. Although inclement weather prevented complete observation of the results at Rabaul, the numerous fires noted were proof our bombs had struck telling blows.

The big four-engined bombers brushed off Japanese night fighters attempting interception and all came home. One bomber had been lost from the mixed force of Liberators and Flying Fortresses which struck on Wednesday.

Airdromes Blasted

The air attacks in the Lae, New Guinea, area were focussed on the big airdrome there. Planes in the Salamaua sector probed for Japanese troops.

No war correspondents accompanied the American forces in the Nassau bay landing and information from that embattled area was meager. Word still was to be received from correspondents with forces on the Trobriands and Woodlark.

Consolidation work on those islands probably would include the construction of airdromes as the Trobriands are only about 150 miles from the Japanese airdrome of Gasmata on New Britain's south shore. Our fighters based on the Trobriands could afford bombers fighter cover in raids over most New Britain points.

Twin-pronged Offensive.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 1 (A. P.).—Twin prongs of a momentous offensive against the Japanese in the South and Southwest Pacific were thrust today by land, sea and air, with Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the first time in supreme command of operations.

They were as the tines of a fork pointed west and north toward New Britain Island, whose volcano-studded harbor of Rabaul can accommodate a good-sized navy and whose airdromes make it a mighty air fortress. The upper prong was at Rendova and New Georgia islands in the central Solomons where Allied landings were made Wednesday.

The lower prong was formed out of unopposed landings on Trobriand and Woodlark islands, off the southeastern tip of New Guinea, and other landings on New Guinea itself at Nassau Bay just south of Salamaua, where fighting is in progress.

The perfectly coordinated blows, with progress indicated at all points, comprised the first big push against the Japanese since Allied landings in the southern Solomons last year.

The beachheads which troops are battling to expand on New Georgia place Japan's comparatively new and well developed air base at Munda within artillery range. Above Munda, only the Jap held northern Solomon Islands stand between it and Rabaul itself.

Even closer to New Britain Island is Salamaua, on a one-mile isthmus, extending into New Guinea's Huon Gulf and looking across Dampier Strait. The landing forces at Nassau Bay were reported to have moved swiftly inland "and are in contact with the enemy."

The shores of Nassau Bay were not held strongly by the enemy. The American soldiers fought their way to a foothold after clambering out of surf-battered landing craft guarded by speedy motor torpedo boats. The scene of the action is only twelve miles south of Salamaua and eight miles from Mubo, the outlying buttress of the enemy's long-held Lae-Salamaua base.

The mighty air arm of Lieut.-Gen. George C. Kenney struck co-ordinated blows in this new offensive. His big four-engined Liberator and Flying Fortress bombers rained nearly twenty-three tons of explosives down on two airdromes at Rabaul, one of the main bases from which Japan might parry the Allied thrusts with its own air force. One fire started by the bombs could be seen for 100 miles away. Meanwhile Mitchell bombers bombed and strafed the Salamaua sector in support of operations there.

Jap Version of Landings.

"The fighting for the thorough annihilation of the enemies—America and Britain—is from now on," a Tokio broadcast to Japanese areas recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said today. It said the new Allied offensive had been expected.

Domei, Japanese news agency, however, transmitted an English-language dispatch to Asiatic areas describing the Allied landing on Rendova Island as a "typical United States guerrilla operation," and saying that it would prove costly "as our defense is impregnable throughout the Southwestern Pacific."

Describing the Allied attack, the Tokio radio said: "On June 30 the enemy suddenly appeared in the vicinity south of Munda on New Georgia with a convoy composed of more than ten transports supported by cruisers and destroyers and a strong air force to protect the sky, as well as more than 100 landing barges.

"They boldly carried out a landing on the northern coast of Rendova Island. The broadcaster said Jap fighter planes broke through "and carried out furious attacks on the enemy convoy." He did not refer to claims of sinkings made in a Jap war bulletin.

The Trobriands Natives Known For Immorality

Residents of Pacific Isles Where U.S. Troops Landed Find Adultery a Virtue

JUL - 2 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 1 (AP).—The Trobriand Islands, where American troops landed in the Southwest Pacific's newest action, are rich in legends based primarily upon the natives' widespread reputation as the most immoral of all the South Sea Islanders.

The islands, of coral structure, are in appearance much like the Buna area of Papua. But rather than for its physical characteristics this territory has been studied most widely in the past for its moral concepts, based upon the dictum that immorality, even to the extent of adultery, is a virtue.

Americans who landed on Woodlark Island in an accompanying action found a small group of islands with rolling hills and valleys covered by dense tropical jungles. The natives call their land Murua.

The Trobriands, with twenty-eight-mile-long and thirteen-mile-wide Kiriwana as the principal island, consist of four large and four small islands. Some rise abruptly to form coral cliffs 300 feet high. Others lie just above the surface of the water.

Treacherous Reefs off Coast

Like Papua the vegetation is dense, with the jungle sweltering under the tropical sun and often deluged by rains totaling 140 inches yearly. The landing was a difficult task because of the treacherous coral reefs which dot approaches not only to the Trobriands but to Woodlark.

The soil is rich and some of our troops will get their first taste of native vegetables, such as taro root yams, which the natives grow abundantly to earn for themselves the reputation of being the best gardeners in the territory of Papua, of which they are an administrative unit under the Australian government.

But their tribal customs set Trobriand Islanders apart from the other South Sea natives. They are of fine physique, more like Polynesians than Melanesians in appearance and disposition. They are friendly, adept in the art of carving. On the other hand, they don't condemn lying; abortion is a common practice; marriage ties are very silght and divorces result from trivial causes.

Gold on Woodlarks

The Woodlark Islands are vastly different. There is one large island forty miles long and fifteen miles wide and six small islands, all with only a small native population. One of the few gold-bearing islands known, it has yielded more than $2,275,000 of that metal. There are good anchorages on the south coast at Guasopa and Suloga harbors. Woodlark natives are of the Melanesian type, but there is a mixture of Papuan.

There has been no indication that the Japanese have used either group of islands. They are flat enough to permit the Allies to use them for airfields pointed at Rabaul.

New Georgia Island in the Solomons chain—deceptively beautiful in its tropical luxuriance—has a heritage of war and blood-letting that goes back much further than the present conflict. A land of dense, tropical jungle protected by treacherous, uncharted coral reefs, its beauty is offset by malaria and other diseases prevalent in the South Sea islands.

Its dark, Melanesian-type natives come from a race described as the most daring and most savage of all in the Solomons group. Their ferocity, however, has been tempered considerably since the arrival of missionaries in 1902 and since the British took over the territory as a protectorate.

New Georgia, one of the principal islands of the Solomons, is fifty-two miles long and thirty-three miles wide. About a year ago the Japanese began infiltration tactics throughout the island chain, an undertaking which ended abruptly when American forces threw them out of Guadalcanal.

Dozen Smaller Islands

While New Georgia is the principal island in this group, there are nearly a dozen smaller islands clustered tightly about it. These include Rendova, where the Americans made a landing yesterday, and Gizo, which was headquarters for the British protectorate.

The Japanese built an airfield at Munda on New Georgia near the entrance to Wana Wana and Robiana Lagoons, which lie only about six miles across a strip of water from the northern tip of Rendova.

The New Georgia island group is a difficult area in which to wage war because of the jungle and mountains which rise sharply from sea level to almost 4,000 feet. The central island has the largest land-inclosed lagoon in the world. It is called Marovo and is entered through a narrow opening between steep cliffs.

Until comparatively recent times the natives lived up to their reputation for savagery. In their war canoes they sailed hundreds of miles on head-hunting raids, going even as far as Florida Island in the Guadalcanal area, 250 miles to the east.

also been employed as a place for landing supplies. Its loss by the enemy marks the first specific American territorial triumph in the currently developing offensive of which the drive in the central Solomons is only one part.

The other part is being conducted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces striking northward in the New Guinea area toward the great Japanese base at Rabaul, toward which the offensive in the Solomons also is pointed.

The first Jap reaction, the Navy communique disclosed, came Wednesday morning a few hours after American troops landed from naval transports on Rendova Island, five miles south of Munda.

Only Seventeen U. S. Aircraft Missing ---Foe Hurls Air Armada of 110 Against Landing Force.

Washington, July 1 (A. P.).—American invaders of the central Solomons have captured Viru Harbor, near Japan's Munda airbase, the Navy announced today, after a fierce sea and air battle off Rendova Island in which at least sixty-five enemy aircraft, seventeen United States planes and a 7,712-ton United States transport were lost.

Viru, a port village, had been used by the Japanese as an outpost for Munda, which lies about thirty nautical miles to the northwest on New Georgia Island, and had

The Japanese, at that time, counter-attacked with a force estimated at 110 planes of many types—fighters, Mitsubishi medium bombers, Aichi dive bombers and various others, including torpedo planes.

The attacks continued from the morning until late afternoon against United States naval forces putting troops and supplies ashore. Under the fierce hail of enemy fire, anti-aircraft fragments and shell bursts, the landing units continued their operations while American ships and planes battled the Jap sky forces. Sixty-five of the enemy planes were shot down, "according to an incomplete report," and seventeen United States planes were reported missing.

Torpedo planes of the Japanese squadrons caught the 7,712-ton transport, McCawley, formerly the Grace Line's Santa Barbara, and disabled her after she had put her troops ashore. Subsequently the crippled vessel was assaulted and sunk by a Japanese submarine.

"Reports indicate that all personnel was removed before the vessel sank and that there was no loss of life," the communique said.

American air forces, the communique brought out, also played a major role in the starting of the offensive in the Solomons area. On Tuesday night (Solomons time) Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive bombers heavily attacked the Jap airfield, stores and camp areas at Vila, on Kolombangara Island, in the Munda area.

Staten Island Man Skipper.

On Wednesday morning Mitchell medium bombers, Dauntless and Avenger bombers attacked Japanese defensive positions and the camp area at Munda itself and the communique said "a large fire was started." There was no mention of attacks on Japanese ships or shipping.

Viru Harbor is the only shelter or anchorage of any sort along the whole of the southern coast of New Georgia Island. The harbor, thirty miles from the Japanese air base at Munda, is described at the Navy Department as about one and a half miles in length and with depths of seven to twelve fathoms.

The entrance, flanked by vertical cliffs on each side, is a half mile in length and 300 yards wide. The navigable channel, however, is reduced to something less than 200 yards by the fringing reefs. The harbor is landlocked so that the ocean swell never comes in. Anchorage can be found in nine to twelve fathoms, but the maneuvering room for a vessel longer than 120 feet is limited, owing to the sudden shallowing of the harbor's mud bank and western reef.

Natives Are Friendly.

The land on each side of Viru Harbor is flat and about 130 feet high. The flatness continues to the foot of Karu Mahimba range, which is visible from the sea.

The Navy said the captain of the American ship lost was Commander Robert Henry Rodgers, 41 years old, of 212 Major avenue, Arrochar, Staten Island, N. Y.

The transport McCawley, the Navy said, was completed in 1928 at a British shipyard and was acquired by the Navy in July, 1940 at a cost of $1,314,223. Converted to a transport, she was renamed in honor of the late Col. Charles G. McCawley, seventh commandant of the Marine Corps.

The McCawley, according to Jane's Fighting Ships, standard reference work, carried a five-inch gun, three three-inch guns and various smaller weapons and had a normal complement of 197 crew members with a transport capacity of about 1,800 persons.

HEADS ONE THRUST

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 1 (A. P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today that Lieut.-Gen. Walter Krueger is in charge of certain phases of the new Allied thrust in the southwest Pacific.

Gen. Krueger has been in this area since the early part of the year. His arrival in Australia to command the United States Sixth Army was first reported February 19.

The announcement said that Gen. Krueger would command "certain phases of operations" in the joint land, sea and air operation against Nassau Bay in eastern New Guinea and the Trobriand and Woodlark Islands [illegible] the north coast of Papua. [illegible] exact position, however, was not disclosed.

The Sixth Army was created particularly for service in this area.

Tokio Declares Landings Cost Allies 10 Ships

Japan Says 6 Transports, Destroyer and 3 Cruisers Were 'Sunk or Damaged'

JUL - 2 1943

Radio broadcasts from enemy countries are published with the warning that they frequently contain misleading statements intended for propaganda purposes.

"The fighting for the thorough annihilation of the enemies—America and Britain—is from now on," a Tokio broadcast to Japanese areas recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said Thursday, as reported by The Associated Press.

It said the new Allied offensive in the South Pacific had been expected.

Domei, Japanese news agency, however, transmitted an English-language dispatch to Asiatic areas describing the Allied landing on Rendova Island in the Solomons as a "typical United States guerrilla operation, "and saying that it would prove costly, . . . as our defense is impregnable throughout the southwestern Pacific.

Describing the Allied attack, the Tokio radio said:

"On June 30, the enemy suddenly appeared in the vicinity south of Munda on New Georgia with a convoy composed of more than ten transports supported by cruisers and destroyers and a strong air force to protect the sky, as well as more than 100 landing barges.

"They boldly carried out a landing on the northern coast of Rendova Island, about ten kilometers (six and one-quarter miles) from the southern coast of the western part of New Georgia Island."

The Tokio broadcaster said Japanese fighter planes broke through and "carried out furious attacks on the enemy convoy." He did not refer to assertions of sinkings made in a communique from Japanese imperial headquarters, which acknowledged that American troops had landed on Rendova Island, but said Japanese navy planes had sunk or damaged heavily six American transports, three cruisers and a destroyer.

These Japanese reports, similar to extravagant assertions made in the past by imperial headquarters, were contained in a communique broadcast by the Tokio radio and recorded by The Associated Press. The reports with regard to American losses were wholly without confirmation.

The communique, which reported also the destruction of thirty-one American planes, ignored the landings on New Georgia, Trobriand and Woodlark Islands and at Nassau Bay in New Guinea, announced earlier by Allied headquarters in Australia.

The Tokio broadcast added that Japanese planes, in close co-operation with land forces, were continuing violent attacks on the American landing parties on Rendova Island.

BRITISH INTEREST

TURNS TO PACIFIC AS ATTACK OPENS

Press Sees Drive Aimed at Pushing Japs Back to Truk.

JUL - 2 1943

LONDON, July 1—(AP) Promised that this summer would see fighting on a European front, the British turned eager attention today to the Pacific, where General MacArthur's thrust toward Rabaul was regarded here as emphasizing Allied ability to carry the offensive to the Axis on both sides of the world.

The Axis, alone in the matter, kept up a clamor of invasion speculation. The Paris radio reported heavy British troop movements to southern England and stuck to the Nazi prediction that an Allied blow was set for Saturday, July 3.

Turn Attention to Pacific

Focussing attention upon the Pacific, London newspapers gave heavy headlines to "a great pincer offensive" and "a four-pronged Pacific thrust."

The Star said the drive was one which "the Japanese must resist with all their available sea, air and land forces if they are to prevent a breach in the southeastern bastion of the fortress of Asia."

Both The Star and The News regarded the attack as a fully prepared general offensive intended to hurl the Japanese back to their Truk naval base.

German military commentators finally reached a decision as to what to say of Prime Minister Churchill's speech of yesterday. A military spokesman for the German agency DNB, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, agreed with the prime minister that before autumn heavy fighting will rage on more than one front.

He suggested, however, that this fighting might include "other operations over which Mr. Churchill has no control"—an effort to suggest that Germany might somehow regain the initiative somewhere.

Sure Invasion Will Come

At the same time he seemed to take Allied invasion for granted, arguing that the Germans would have the advantage because they would be fighting on their own ground.

Allied air and sea operations in the Mediterranean seemed to be nearing a point of crisis, with night and day bombings centered upon the ferry linking Sicily with Italy across the Messina strait. An Admiralty announcement of the sinking of more than a score of Italian ships in the past week emphasized the tightness of the Allied blockade.

The Axis struggled meanwhile against the ever-growing problem of keeping the conquered countries in hand, as new outbreaks sabotaged German war efforts in Belgium and Yugoslav patriot troops smashed at communications essential to Axis defense of the Balkans.

From Switzerland it was reported that the Fascist press continued its attempt through fear to arouse the Italians to the will to strong resistance, Mussolini's paper saying:

"Italy is fighting for life or death, but it is more exact to say that if we are unable to win we must submit to the fate Brannus imposed on the conquered."

Brannus, leader of the Gauls, crushed the Romans in the battle of Allia in 390 B.C., destroyed Rome and with the shout "woe to the vanquished" thrust his sword against the balance in which the defeated were weighing gold intended for their deliverance.

Daring Attack on New Georgia Island Finds Japs Unprepared to Hold War Gains

Troops, Equipment Ashore Before Enemy Rallies for Air Attack.

WITH THE U. S. FLAGSHIP OF A DESTROYER DIVISION BETWEEN RENDOVA ISLAND AND MUNDA POINT, June 30.—(Delayed) This eye-witness story is a world beat and should remain so for a couple of days. It was hitchhiked a thousand miles by sea, land and air to reach the nearest radio.

An all-out American assault on the Japanese stronghold of New Georgia Island got away to a flying start at dawn this morning.

Japs Taken by Surprise

The brilliantly conceived and daringly executed plan caught the Japs flat-footed; the landing of men and materials had actually begun before the enemy shore batteries opened fire at this destroyer screen.

It was late in the afternoon before the Japs hit us but by then we were on the way back to base, having landed every man and all supplies.

A savage, persistent and brilliantly carried out Japanese mass torpedo bomber attack came in the late afternoon and a most extraordinary incident occurred. One torpedo crashed into the bow of the destroyer on which I was observing the operation and which in future I shall call "the can."

Torpedo Fails to Explode

The torpedo failed to explode or damage the destroyer in any way, although the small vessel shuddered and reeled at the moment of impact and as the torpedo bumped alongside before falling harmlessly away.

Now that it is over and we have gotten away with one of the most brazen attacks against the Japanese it is almost impossible to believe we have accomplished the objective. It was conceded that to succeed in its entirety the blow should take the Japanese by surprise.

We were confident it would, even though we recognized the Japanese must be fully aware that something was in the wind soon. Indeed, it was not until yesterday morning that the plan went into effect and orders, compiled in painstaking detail over many months, were distributed. From that moment the beach was the busiest scene.

Loading immediately was begun of transports, smaller converted destroyer transports and new type invasion ships. For most of the day the beach was black with men and trucks and the channel in which the ships stood was pimpled with dozens of small landing boats which frequently were hidden in showers of spray as they plowed through the choppy sea.

30.24—5563

By lunchtime, when I returned to the beach to board the destroyer which I was accompanying on the operation, the beach was more or less deserted, however.

Machinegun Breaks Loose

I was nearly out of the war before I got into it. I was crouching in the shelter of a machinegun mounting on a landing boat to escape the drenching seas breaking over me when suddenly the machinegun broke loose and hurtled down.

A quick-witted Army boy grabbed and pulled at it as it fell, dragging it to one side. It only caught me a glancing blow, merely scratching and bruising my shoulder. I'm afraid I must admit that I felt somewhat scarey yesterday and looking out for a good omen.

Aboard "the can" I quickly met her captain and commander of the destroyer division. Quiet, confident men they were and they imparted sufficient of their sureness to make me glad I had accepted advice to accompany the destroyers.

We took off in mid-afternoon feeling a curious mixture of excitement and, perhaps excusably, apprehension. So far the Jap hadn't attempted a major raid similar to that of a couple of weeks ago and that meant he didn't know we were on the move or that he was saving himself to strike at sunset.

But he wasn't. The Jap was being taken by surprise. Over in the wardroom of "the can" last night the gunnery and navigation officers were clustered over maps and charts, committing to memory in infinite detail the treacherous reefs and sand keys which choke this westernmost neck of the Blanche channel and plotting the range for guns.

On the accuracy of those charts and the knowledge of our guides depended the initial success. There were navigational hazards aplenty last night merely because of the smaller ships, whose navigational facilities were limited.

Rain Shields Ships

In the welcome rain of the pitch-

black night some of these were unavoidably kept nosing in among the main body of ships. Some smaller ones at night time have the appearance of submarines, and this required all hands to keep a sharp look-out.

The boiling wakes and downwaves of these phosphorescent waters gleamed with a dull fire, and through binoculars and in spite of the intense darkness, black masses of ships could be seen as they rounded Hele hook in order to run up Blanche channel to the landing place.

Tiny Island, Cleared

Away ahead of the main convoy, destroyers landed troops on the tiny islands of Bau, Ane and Kokirana which guard the 100-yard-wide entrance to equally small Rendova harbor. The purpose was to knock out likely Japanese parties, enabling the main landing to go ahead immediately the transports arrived.

The dawn's early light was just beginning to filter through low-hanging clouds and misty rain which continued to fall as the transports swung into anchorages outside the entrance.

The land on either side of us was still a black mass largely obscured by the mist. Four destroyers dropped astern and another four, including the Can, proceeded west heading into Munda point with the object of drawing Japanese fire.

Clouds wreathed the peak of the 3,000-feet high Rendova mountain and hugged the slopes of mountains behind Munda's jungle-fringed shoreline, which was forbidding in the half-light.

"The Can" was second in line as we swept in toward the reefs, waiting for the Jap to show he was still around after the terrific aerial battering he received in the last few days prior to the landing.

A quarter of an hour later a loudspeaker connected to the battle circuit of ships participating in the operation crackled with the calm voice of a destroyer captain. He announced:

"They're shooting at us. They're shooting at us."

The quiet drawl didn't seem to give the warning its due significance, but all looked toward the beach and saw flashes from two shore batteries.

Eager eyes scanned the rain-swept waters of the channel in order to observe shell splashes. Several shells fell around the leading destroyer. Then the commodore spoke over the battle circuit:

"We can outrange them. Move over."

Guns Open Up

Immediately our guns opened fire. The blast and concussion of the salvo shook the ship and I bent at the knees. Within ten minutes the first shore battery to open up had been silenced completely, while the second kept quiet in order not to give away its position.

As we circled back on Rendova splashes like those made by machine-gun bullets striking the water took the eye. We were at that time closing in to the machine-gun range. The bullet splashes, however, were distinguishable within a few minutes as the light strengthened and as leaping fish were scared out of the water by the concussion of the guns.

The cease-fire order came at 7:16 a.m. as we observed anti-aircraft fire from Munda. Six planes were then over the field. Two destroyers thereupon began laying smoke-screens around the transports, but as later events proved, there was little necessity or this precaution, the Japanese short batteries having far too short a range.

Draw Enemy Fire

Again the destroyers on the stern flank edged up to Munda, again attempting to get the enemy to fire. The move was successful. The Jap flet he couldn't resist, and resumed fire, and that battery, too, was silenced. For good. We could easily see the shells tearing up the beach, causing clouds of dust, grass and trees to fly high into the air.

The bad weather, which for us was wonderful good fortune, still held. It seemed like a second invasion of Guadalcanal and Tulagi. It certainly was a striking coincidence.

As the destroyers in the west under command of "the can" dealt with the Munda batteries, others in the east also patrolled between Rendova island and the New Georgia mainland, screening against possible submarine or air attack.

There were small landing boats, dozens upon dozens of which plied between ship and shore, weaving their way through the channel of Rendova harbor, itself so small that one expected to measure it in feet rather than in yards.

It was an inspiring sight. Through glasses I could see the smooth efficiency and planning playing its part, with not a moment lost in loading and landing the boats.

Jap Batteries Knocked Out

Three times more, in the course of the morning, we on the destroyers were under fire from Munda beach but the Japanese had no more luck and each of these batteries was knocked out. From one destroyer came the radio call: "I got a good bead on that bird". This to the commander of the destroyer division.

"Good, go ahead," went back the permission to open fire. Ten minutes later that particular battery was knocked out. In the course of the morning two air raid alerts were sounded and the transports, screened by destroyers, weighed anchors and grouped into formation in preparation to beat off an air attack. This delayed the unloading a couple of hours but although few enemy planes came overhead they were downed by our magnificent day - long fighter screens before they could make the attack.

Out of the clouds came what appeared to be flares. This roused our curiosity but the explanation was forthcoming several minutes later when one of our fighters shot through over the coast in flames with the pilot struggling to jump clear. He did and landed safely in the sea where he was subsequently picked up.

It was beginning to look as if I was going to get very little news other than an enthusiastic report on the success of the operation but trouble was heading our way. By 3:15 the job was done. Every man, every piece of equipment was on the beach and we were off on the return voyage to base.

We crossed our fingers as someone soberly said, "It's too good to be true." Within the shortest while thereafter came the third air raid alarm of the day.

Twenty-five torpedo planes, flying low, were reported to have been seen at 3:30. Fighters swooped down in hot pursuit of the Japanese machines as they roared over the mainland of New Georgia from the direction of Munda and dropped below the hills fronting the shoreline. Within seconds there were sharp, short dogfights which were barely discernible at this low altitude. The next moment I saw no more than 20 enemy planes roaring out over the water.

Anti-aircraft from the ships which closed formation to repel air attack opened fire. From that moment on the din was terrific. The racket from the machine-guns and the roar of the big guns almost burst my eardrums as the violent concussions from the blazing muzzles drew the cotton out of my ears.

Two Planes Shot Down

Two Japanese torpedo planes were hit and were downed. Within a few seconds they crashed into the sea above which they had been flying at little more than 200 feet, which is the normal altitude for torpedo attack. I looked around at those gathered on the bridge. Every face was calm without any sign of fear. Every lip was firm. Every eye steady.

These were men under fire facing possible early and rapid extinction. It was impressive to see courage although I've found courage commonplace where the bullets and shells are flying.

The guns now might have been firing over open sights trained almost parallel with the water as the Japs came on. The mournful sky, which at one moment was pitted with myriads of ack-ack bursts, was quickly obscured by spreading smoke from a shell burst on the deck. Shell cases, still hot, were being tossed out of the gun turrets at lightning speed and smoke was still drifting out of them.

The battle reached its full fury as the planes closed into effective ranges for dropping their deadly torpedoes. In this half-light of a foul weather afternoon they looked monstrous in the ugliness of their dun-colored whorled camouflage and red broach of the rising sun of Japan on the fuselage.

Fire from the guns of our force now reached an ear-splitting crescendo and it seemed as if there was nothing else in the world and had never been anything else but noise. The majority of the planes shied from pressing their attack on the empty transports. Instead they came at the destroyers which were spewing flames from turret guns and thousands of tracers from automatic weapons.

The first plane charged the destroyer I was on. As it rushed toward us, the sound of its motors beyond hearing because of the thunder of the guns, I could see two heads in the pilot's cockpit. It seemed incredible that men could keep on rushing into such a wall of flame and flying shrapnel which was bursting and scattering in neatly ruled lines along the water, tearing the sea apart in ugly splashes.

Ship Unable to Escape

Four planes were coming our way strung out behind one another. Tracer bullets were pouring in and shrapnel now seemed to burst right in the faces of the men in the planes. The first machine was within 150 or 200 yards when it dropped a torpedo. Orders to turn the vessel were shouted and a sweating helmsman who had been working like a dozen men spun the wheel but the range was too short —too short for us to worm our way out and too short for the torpedo to arm itself to the point where it would explode on contact. It crashed into the port bows of the sturdy little vessel.

Again I reeled, just managing to regain my balance. Then came a series of dull thuds and jars as the torpedo deflected in its course and bumped and bounced against the side of the ship to the beam where it started to slip under the do, which received as rough handling as any I have ever heard about, dropped harmlessly to the bottom.

But there was still wickedness in the air. One plane continued its course and I was sure it was crashing into the bridge, but the pilot banked as he reached us, just lifting the starboard wing over the wheelhouse as he barely cleared the forecastle.

He went down in flames.

Two more tried the same trick on the bows but their torpedoes missed and they, too, roared over the forecastle into the black shadows.

Streaking over the narrow deck in an instant, tracers were poured into them. They were so close the gunners could not miss, and yet they would not come down. But as they rushed away the gunners kept after them. Another one of them burst into flames.

Torpedo Passes Under Ship

A fourth plane came on the starboard beam. His torpedo rushed underneath the ship. These were hectic moments. It was impossible for any one of the men to tell who was doing effective shooting or see anything like all that was happening.

But I did see another destroyer smash right into the flaming wreck of a Japanese plane which hurtled into the water directly in its path. There was a big explosion and some one who had seen only that yelled:

"Destroyer hit!"

But it was a false alarm. The little ship passed through the flaming, exploding wreckage unscathed.

Just how long the attack lasted I don't know. I forgot to look at the time, but it was not more than 10 minutes, possibly less. But in that time the ships' anti-aircraft downed 12 Japs. The can ran past one of these, still floating, at a 20-yard distance.

In it I could see one of the pilots still alive but obviously wounded. Another four of the crew, their shaven heads black with oil, were swimming away from it.

The convoy steamed on into a slowly gathering rain squall as our fighter screen was pursued by other Japanese aircraft. But for us on the ships the day was over, although there were plenty of enemy planes still trying to get in.

They were beaten off by fighters

After which black night again fell as we steamed back to base, battle-scarred and battle-weary, a few holes in the bridge from strafing just to show we had seen something, anyway.

HEAVY BOMBERS SMASH PALERMO, RAID 4 AIRFIELDS

JUL — 2 1943

Storage Depots, Barracks Blasted at Sicily's Capital City.

NO ENEMY OPPOSITION

Axis Makes No Effort to Defend Island Near Italian Mainland.

MORGARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 1—(AP) American Flying Fortresses, encountering little opposition, smashed the main Sicilian port of Palermo yesterday in an unrelenting aerial prelude to trans-Mediterranean amphibious operations that must be the greatest in history.

Escorted by P-38 Lightnings, the American heavy bombers spread new debris amid the island capital's storage depots and barracks, and raked four airfields, a communique said today.

Invasion Thrust Expected

Prime Minister Churchill's forecast of heavy fighting in this area before fall did not surprise anyone here—soldier or civilian. Both Allied and Axis leaders know that invasion thrusts across the Mediterranean—when they come—will be and must be the greatest ever undertaken.

The Axis leaders also must know that the Allies hold these advantages—the initiative to choose the points for invasion, domination of the air, and complete rule of the sea.

French newspapers here gave great prominence today to reports of Axis alarm over the vulnerability of the long Mediterranean coast line opposite Africa, including neutral dispatches of the mobilization of able-bodied Italian manpower in Sicily.

The Axis-controlled Paris radio also exhibited the jitters, criticizing metropolitan Frenchmen who admittedly look forward to Allied landings, and warning them that an invasion of their homeland would only make France a battlefield once more.

Enemy Fighters Missing

The swarms of enemy fighters usually met over Italy's big doorstep island of Sicily were missing yesterday when the Americans struck Palermo in the west after R.A.F. Wellingtons again had dealt punishing blows to Messina, eastern rail ferry terminal upon which the Axis garrisons must depend for the routing of supplies from the Italian mainland. Palermo itself was described as "about finished."

Allied leaders obviously were confronted with immense difficulties in attempting a delicate coordination of land, sea, and air forces on a scale never seen before, and against a European coast where the defenders have had an opportunity to prepare fortifications.

The recent capitulation of little Pantelleria, when a great fleet of landing craft and warships appeared after the island had been subjected to a fierce concentration of air bombing, prevented the employment of that island as a testing ground for new Allied techniques or equipment.

Bombers Make Landing Easy

When Pantelleria had fallen air and ground force experts pointed out that the technique of bombing invasion points into complete submission, thus relieving sea-borne troops of the necessity of fighting their way onto the beaches, was ideally suited to such a target.

But, they said, it could hardly be expected that such an operation would be duplicated when larger and more resistant landing spots are chosen.

The fact, however, remained that British troops who occupied Pantelleria were transported across the Sicilian strait without losing a single man or boat, and enemy aircraft attempting to interfere were beaten off with almost ridiculous ease.

Few German and Italian fighters or bombers have been in action recently, leading to the supposition that the enemy has learned a lesson from the failure of Axis aircraft to gain ascendency at any stage of the last few months in Tunisia, or over Pantelleria, and thus was saving his available planes for a really big splurge when the Allies attempt bigger landings.

If such is the case, the Allies already know the answer: Devastation raids to destroy essential enemy airbases before the enemy is able to mass a great number of planes on them to defend danger points.

Four Airfields Raided

Four Sicilian airfields—Boca di Falco, Sciacci, Borizzo and Milo—were covered with bursting bombs thrown down by Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders. In all the day's operations American losses were two planes against two Axis aircraft shot down and three destroyed over the previous night. Many other enemy planes were smashed or damaged on the ground.

The Italian communique, broadcast over the Rome radio, spoke of Allied air attacks not only upon Sicily but upon Sardinia and added: "Great damage and many casualties resulted in Palermo x x x.

Also in Cagliari (Sardinia) fires were started and several buildings collapsed in the central area of the town."

(In the Mediterranean, the Allied campaign of attrition went on against Axis supply lines. The British Admiralty announced in London that British submarines had destroyed a fast transport and three supply ships and probably had sunk a fifth ship in Italian waters. This brought to more than 20 the number of enemy ships sunk or damaged in those waters during the last week).

American airmen returning to their bomber base from the Palermo attack reported that where previously scores of Axis ships had been tied up, the city's harbor was now choked with wreckage and that only three small boats were to be found there yesterday.

Anti-aircraft fire was very light where it had formerly been very heavy, as had the fighter defense.

Fortresses Hit Palermo Base And Airfield

JUL -2 1943

Storage Depot and Barracks in North Sicily Are Blasted

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 1.—American Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lightning fighters, scored hits on the storage depot and barracks at the en[illegible] North Sicilian base of Palermo, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Fortresses also attacked the Boca di Falco airfield, a short distance southwest of Palermo, and the communique said much damage was done.

Italian Airfields Attacked.

During the previous night, Allied bombers returned again to the Sicilian ferry port of Messina, across from the toe of Italy. The war bulletin said the marshalling yards and ferry terminal were "well covered with bombs."

In other dayight raids yesterday B-25 Mitchell and B-26 Marauder bombers, accompanied by fighters, attacked the airfields at Milo, on the western tip of Sicily; at Borizzo, directly south, and at Sciacca, on the southwest coast. Bomb bursts were observed in the target areas.

Two Allied planes were reported missing and five enemy craft shot down. There was virtually no enemy fighter opposition.

Messina Much-Bombed Spot.

Messina, target of the Tuesday night attack, is rapidly becoming the most bombed spot in all Italian territory. Wellington bombers from the Northwest Africa Air Force poured explosives on its ferry terminus and railway yards the night before, simultaneously with attacks on similar installations by the Middle East bombers at Reggio Calabria, 6 miles across the Messina Strait on the mainland.

(The Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, admitted "great damage and casualties" at Palermo. Several public buildings were reported hit.

(Rome also reported an attack on Cagliari, near the southern tip of Sardinia, a raid not immediately announced by Allied headquarters. Fires were reported to have been set there and several buildings in the center of the city were said to have collapsed.

GIRAUD KEPT IN COMMAND AT BRITISH WISH

Churchill Tells Commons Request Was Made 'On Military Grounds'

JUL -2 1943

Denies Eisenhower Is Invested With African Political Control

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 1.—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed in the House of Commons today that the United States and British governments had asked the French National Committee of Liberation on June 19 that Gen. Henri Giraud be retained "on military grounds" as commander of French armed forces in North Africa for the present time.

A request for assurances "that there should be no important change in the French command in North Africa at the present time" was made to the committee, he said, on behalf of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief.

The representation "was made on military grounds and implied no decision to invest Eisenhower with full control over the political organization in North Africa," the Prime Minister said in response to a question by Laborite Emanuel Shinwell.

Reaction To AP Dispatch

Churchill's unequivocal words came amid the stormy reaction of the press and some political circles here to what was described by some newspapers as slighting treatment of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader.

Following so closely on Churchill's statement yesterday that heavy fighting would occur before fall in the Mediterranean, the statement served to confirm last Sunday's authoritative analysis by Kirke Simpson, Associated Press staff writer in Washington, of the view that the de Gaulle-Giraud differences would not be permitted to threaten the success of any Allied military operations in the Mediterranean area.

Simpson's story has been a subject to widespread comment in Britain this week, and apparently it prompted Shinwell's questioning of Churchill on Allied policy in Africa.

Committee Met Allies' Wishes

North African dispatches reported on June 22 that the French committee had decided that Giraud and de Gaulle each would retain command of his own forces. In other words, Giraud retained his post in line with the British-American request on June 19.

Churchill said this request was made "in view of the prolonged discussions between the French leaders in Algiers on questions involving the character and control of the French armed forces and the serious effect which this might have on the furtherance of the war effort and the safety of Allied forces."

Unity Is Britain's Hope

The Prime Minister, deprecating "any undue attention to the personality aspect of the new French organization," said:

"The committee is working on the basis of collective responsibility and it is our hope that all its members will merge their personal and individual interests for the common good of France.

"The British Government have consistently encouraged the union of Frenchmen in the fight against the Axis and for the liberation of France."

Shinwell had asked for a statement on a reported "decision to invest full control in General Eisenhower over the French political organization in North Africa and whether the British Government is a party to this decision."

Not To Impose Political Rule

"It has never been the British Government's policy to support any one member of the Committee of National Liberation rather than another," Churchill replied.

"Taking a longer view, I would say it is not the policy of the United States and British governments that their armies, upon whom the burden must rest, or the French forces equipped by them, shall be used to impose on France, directly or indirectly, any particular military leader, but rather to make sure that the broad and settled will of the masses of the French people, expressed under conditions of freedom, shall decide upon the future government of their country."

Giraud Considered Necessary

Another Laborite, Capt. Frederick John Bellenger, asked:

"Is the House of Commons to understand from the Prime Minister's statement that, in order to assure the safety of Allied troops and their communications, that it is necessary General Giraud shall remain in supreme command of the French military forces?"

To this Churchill said emphatically: "I certainly consider it necessary at the present time."

Churchill Says Allies Asked French to Keep Present Command

Also Sought Assurances Giraud Had Effective Control of Forces

JUL -2 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed to the House of Commons today that both the American and British governments had asked Gens. Charles de Gaulle and Henri Giraud on June 19 for assurances that there would be no important change in the French command in North Africa at present.

The Prime Minister also declared the two French leaders had been asked to satisfy Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief in North Africa, that the present French military commander in that area, Gen. Giraud, had effective control of the French forces there.

The assurance was requested, Mr. Churchill added, "in view of the prolonged discussions between the French leaders in Algiers on questions involving the character and control of the French armed forces and the serious effect which this might have on the furtherance of the war effort and the safety of Allied forces."

Decided on Military Grounds.

The representation to the French Committee of National Liberation, the Prime Minister said, "was made on military grounds and implied no decision to invest Eisenhower with full control over the political organization in North Africa."

(In a June 27 Washington dispatch, based on information from authorities who could not be quoted by name, Kirke Simpson of the Washington staff of the Associated Press wrote:

("The Washington Government was revealed tonight as ready to back up Gen. Eisenhower, Allied supreme commander in French Africa, to the limit in whatever steps he may find necessary to eliminate any threat to success created by the political controversy between Gens. de Gaulle and Giraud, heading rival French factions."

(Mr. Simpson added that "the Washington Government expects Gen. Eisenhower to tolerate in North Africa no De Gaulist or other French activities" which would delay execution of Allied military projects in that area, jeopardize Allied supply lines or undermine the morale of the forces commanded by Gen. Giraud.)

No Attention to Personalities.

Mr. Churchill, who was cheered when he entered Commons, said he deprecated "giving any undue attention to the personality aspect of the new French organization."

"The committee is working on the basis of collective responsibility and it is our hope that all its members will merge their personal and individual interests for the common good of France," the Prime Minister declared.

"The British Government have consistently encouraged the union of Frenchmen in the fight against the Axis and for the liberation of France."

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell asked whether Mr. Churchill would make a statement on a reported "decision to invest full control in Gen. Eisenhower over the French political organization in North Africa and whether the British government is a party to this decision."

"It has never been the British government's policy to support any one member of the Committee of National Liberation rather than another," the Prime Minister replied.

Future Up to French People.

"Taking a longer view, I would say it is not the policy of the United States and British governments that their armies, upon whom the burden must rest, or the French forces equipped by them, shall be used to impose on France, directly or indirectly, any particular military leader, but rather to make sure that the broad and settled will of the masses of the French people, expressed under conditions of freedom, shall decide upon the future government of their country."

Capt. Frederick John Bellenger, Laborite, asked:

"Is the House to understand from the Prime Minister's statement that, in order to assure the safety of Allied troops and their communications, that it is necessary Gen. Giraud shall remain in supreme command of the French military forces?"

Mr. Churchill replied emphatically: "I certainly consider it necessary at the present time."

The Prime Minister reiterated that the main direction of the North African campaign was under Amer-

Churchill Sees Two Shows

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, who usually works nights as well as days, has been stepping out these last few days. Tonight he went to the theater for the second time this week, seeing Noel Coward's "Present Laughter." Last night he took in Coward's "This Happy Breed."

Algiers Cabinet Begins Fusing Of French Army

Advisory War Body Starts Study; Giraud U. S. Trip Is Reported Postponed

ALGIERS, July 1 (AP).—The new seven-member French advisory war cabinet, named by the Committee of National Liberation, held its first meeting today and began the task of fusing all French land, sea and air forces.

A communique issued by the cabinet said that it "particularly undertook to study the order in which all units of the French military forces were constituted, organized and armed." The reason for this study was not given.

The meeting was held after a stormy four-hour session of the National Committee which completed the organization of the war cabinet. Members now include Generals Charles de Gaulle and Henri Honore Giraud who agreed on General Rene Bouscat, an aviation officer, as their joint representative. Bouscat had been Giraud's emissary to the Fighting French Committee in London. Other members are General Alphonse Juin, General Edouard Rene Marie de Larminat, Vice-Admiral Philippe-Marie Auboyneau and Admiral Collinet, commander of the French West and North African naval forces.

Earlier, the committee had named Pierre Charles Cournarie to succeed Pierre Boisson as governor-general of French West Africa, which includes the strategic Dakar naval base. Cournarie had been appointed Governor of the Cameroons by General De Gaulle in 1940 and is a career man in the French colonial service.

The committee also settled the question of authority in Algeria by confirming the supreme powers of General Georges Catroux as governor-general. The action followed a raid on an Oran newspaper by armed guards under orders of the French admiral in charge of Oran armed forces. The newspaper was charged with "De Gaullist activity." Catroux answered with strong protest against interference by the military in civilian administration.

Dr. Georges Giraud, brother of General Giraud, in his first published interview since he arrived in North Africa a few weeks ago in escape from occupied France, said Frenchmen on the continent were united in their hate for the Germans. "They are neither Giraudist nor De Gaullist," he said.

BROTHER OF GIRAUD FINDS FRANCE UNITED

Recently Escaped, He Says Hatred of Nazis Chief Factor

JUL -2 1943

ALGIERS, July 1 (AP)—Dr. Georges Giraud, brother of Gen. Henri Honoré Giraud, French Commander in Chief in North Africa, declared today as one newly escaped from occupied France that "the people of France are neither Giraudist nor de Gaullist—they are against the Boche."

In his first published interview since he arrived here a few weeks ago, the veteran physician said:

"I am sadly surprised to find here the questions of personalities. In France the unity against the enemy is absolute."

Dr. Giraud said he had hidden for five months in France after agents of the Gestapo had been sent to arrest him following the Allied landings in North Africa. Finally he and a friend whom he did not identify made their escape via the "underground."

He said disaffection with the Vichy regime was general throughout France and its decrees were constantly being disobeyed.

Malnutrition, he added, has "terribly ravaged" the children and aged in France and the mortality rate has "continually increased."

He said that before reaching North Africa he was interviewed by German journalists, who asked his opinion of an eventual Allied landing in Europe. "I replied that Italy always has been a traitor to her friends and that one day she would betray Germany, for that is according to her traditions," he related.

Dr. Giraud said he had asked his brother for permission to resume his service as an army doctor but that the general requested him to act as his adviser.

COURNARIE NAMED TO BOISSON POST

Algiers, July 1 (A. P.).—The French Committee of National Liberation today named Pierre Charles Cournarie to succeed Pierre Boisson as Governor-General of French West Africa, where the Dakar naval base is situated.

Pierre Cournarie had been Governor of the Cameroons under an appointment made in November, 1940, by Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

General Brereton Issues Fourth of July Statement

Salutes All Allied Peoples as Well as the United States

CAIRO, July 1 (AP).—Major General Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the American forces in the Middle East, in a statement in connection with Independence Day celebrations in this theater of operations, said today: "As we honor our own founding fathers on this Fourth of July in 1943, let us salute also the people of the United Nations who fight at our side.

"Even as we cherish the memory of those who have gone before us, so will the generations to come pay homage to these our allies, who by their courage and sacrifice have caused freedom's holy light to shine upon their lands for all time. Out of this great common effort will come a brotherhood of nations of free men which will endure when our struggle of today is but an incident in our history."

POLES READY

CAIRO, July 1—(AP) ...mpletely motorized Polish army, equipped by Britain and standing ready in the Middle East and the British isles, will "soon be fighting on the battlefields of Europe," Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski said today. "All the roads to Poland lie through these battlefields and we Poles are on our way back to the fatherland," he said.

Axis Europe Battered From 3 Directions, Worst Still to Come

JUL -2 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—Striking from three directions, the mighty air arms of the American and British Allies subjected Axis Europe to a design of destruction unparelleled in all history during June, and for the enemy the worst was still to come.

During the month, Allied aerial power reached out in rising fury from bases in Britain, in Northwest Africa and in the Middle East—with American and British flyers cooperating smoothly to keep the offensive going virtually around the clock.

These accomplishments stood out:

1. The unconditional surrender of the Italian fortress island of Pantelleria on June 11, first island ever conquered by air power alone; the subseqquent capitulation of Lampedusa, Linosa and Lampione, and the pattern of destruction spread over Italy, Sicily and Sardinia.

2. The great destruction wrought by the RAF in its city-by-city bombing of the Ruhr Valley, to whose concentrated industries Hitler looks for replenishment of his war machine.

Greek Raids Significant.

Also significant were the two American Liberator raids last week on Axis airfields near Athens and Salonika, an aerial pointer toward a possible Balkan invasion route, and inauguration by the RAF of a bombing shuttle service between Britain and Africa with an important raid on both the outbound and homeward trips.

Available figures did not reveal the total weight of explosives dumped on the European enemy during the month, but Capt. Sir Harold H. Balfour, Undersecretary of State for Air, told the House of Commons yesterday that the RAF alone now is dropping bombs on Germany at three times the 1942 rate.

Reliable estimates placed the RAF's June bomb deluge delivered from homeland bases at a record 13,500 tons, topping by some 1,000 tons the May record of 12,500 tons. A great proportion of this June destruction was spread on the Ruhr in nine major attacks, including the assault on Duesseldorf on June 11 by the war's greatest heavy bomber force.

The United States 8th Air Force, while carrying out only seven bombing missions embracing a dozen targets, as compared with nine raids and 19 targets in May, was reliably understood to have greatly increased its bomb tonnage per raid by turning out in double the strength of only a few weeks before. More than 200 planes, for instance, were sent on the Wilhelmshaven-Cuxhaven raid June 11.

Ruhr Penetration Is High Light.

A high light of the month for the Britain-based American flyers was their first penetration of the Ruhr. Their raid on the large synthetic rubber factory at Huls on June 22 was rated as probably one of the best bombing jobs of the war.

In addition, June brought an official statement that the numbers of heavy bombers in the 8th Air Force had been doubled since March and would be redoubled by October.

The Americans lost 82 bombers in June, against 62 in May, but because of the expanded operations the increase was not considered excessive. In their 13 nights of operation the RAF flyers lost 269 planes, the highest monthly total of the war.

From Middle East bases, American heavy and medium bombers carried more than 2,155 tons of explosives across the Mediterranean to Axis objectives in 2,314 sorties during the month with the negligible loss of three big planes.

Middle East assaults against the Italian mainland and island possessions were carried out in close co-ordination with the forays by the Northwest African Air Forces. The combined Middle East Air Command completed 213 missions throughout the month.

Italian Objectives Hammered.

Aircraft from the Middle East and Northwest African Commands took turns at hammering, by both day and night, key ports, rail centers, airfields and other objectives in Southern Italy and Eastern Sicily, with Malta-based planes lending a helping hand.

Sardinia and Western Sicily were largely the exclusive territory of the Northwest African bombers and fighters, while Aegean shipping and Balkan targets were kept on a fairly constant alert by the Middle East.

United States Flying Fortresses from Northwest African bases also ranged up the Italian mainland for attacks on the La Spezia naval base June 5, and Naples and nearby targets also were bombed several times.

Axis shipping among the Greek islands of the Aegean was the particular target of long-range RAF fighters from desert bases, and during the month 15 vessels—tankers, schooners and fishing vessels—were sunk by cannon fire and bombs. Thirty-six others were damaged.

Allied Planes Attack Axis Targets Along French Coast

JUL -2 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—Enemy targets along the French coastal area were reported under attack by Allied planes last night as Britain itself passed the seventh consecutive night without a raid.

There was no immediate official announcement concerning last night's Allied operations, but observers along the British southeast coast reported a formation of fighters swept back at a height of 20,000 feet after a number of heavy explosions had been heard across the strait.

British Mustangs, Typhoons and Spitfires had a field day yesterday with Axis transportation in France and Belgium by shooting up more than 20 locomotives to boost the bag to well over 30 in a 24-hur period. Two planes failed to return.

These attacks wound up a record month of aerial assaults on Germany and occupied Europe in which the RAF alone loosed bombs with a total weight of approximately 13,500 tons, a great part of them on the now-devastated Ruhr Valley.

A German radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Red Cross trains, each carrying 400 persons, were being used to remove mothers, children and old persons from that bomb-ruined district. The evacuees are being carried, the broadcast said, to "remote safe districts of the Reich."

Dispatches from Bern, Switzerland, reported that the great Allied air offensive has produced a serious housing shortage in the frequently-bombed districts. Das Schwarze Korps, newspaper of the German Elite Guard, was quoted as calling for a policy of housing rationing on the same basis as food.

ONE U-BOAT SUNK FOR EACH VESSEL LOST BY ALLIES

JUL -2 1943

Nazi Claims of Sea Victories Fall Off Sharply for June.

LONDON, July 1.—(AP) The Germans are now losing at least one precision-built submarine for every mass-produced Allied freighter sunk, British naval observers said today.

Sharply reduced Nazi claims of British and American shipping destroyed during June were weighed by these observers against record Allied sinkings of U-Boats in the last two monts.

20 Ships Sunk

Berlin broadcasts, recorded by the Associated Press, asserted that 31 merchantmen aggregating 149,000 tons were sunk by all German agencies in June, of which 20 ships of 107,000 tons were knocked out by U-Boats.

An estimate of 20 U-Boats destroyed during the month probably would be conservative, for Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada, announced Tuesday that 14 of these raiders were killed in the previous 14 days.

Prime Minister Churchill disclosed in his Guildhall speech yesterday that the Allies' average in May was at least one U-Boat sunk a day.

The failure of the U-Boats in June probably is even greater than the Germans acknowledged, for Mr. Churchill indicated in his month-end address that less than 100,000 tons had been sunk.

June Best Month of War

"We have had in June the best month, from every point of view, that we have ever known in the whole 46 months of the war," he said.

This was interpreted as meaning that shipping losses were at a new low. The lowest previous total disclosed was 97,000 tons in March, 1940. The British were announcing monthly shipping losses at that time, a policy later discontinued.

Naval observers advanced four

main reasons for the decline of German claims from the total of 926,600 tons declared sunk by all services in March to the 149,000 tons in June:

1—New Allied aircraft carriers and long-range aircraft which give convoys overhead cover across the entire Atlantic.

2—Scores of new light escort ships coming into production along with new and powerful secret weapons.

3—Convoys "are not being seriously attacked at the present time"—this on the authority of the Prime Minister.

4—Withdrawal of a great number of submarines from the main Atlantic sea lanes.

Has 400 U-Boats

Despite her losses, Germany is estimated still to have around 400 U-Boats and the full strength of this underwater fleet is expected to reappear soon in a new bid to cut the supply line to Britain.

Mr. Churchill said yesterday it was wrong to assume that "bad patches do not lie ahead." The theory having widest acceptance is that the U-Boats, possibly more heavily gunned and with increased armor to mitigate the effect of depth charges, will change tactics and hunt singly, in pairs or in threes instead of by packs of eight or more.

Qualified United States and British naval officers discounted a German explanation that the submersibles were withdrawn for use against an Allied invasion. They said that a heavy concentration of U-Boats against the north African landing forces accomplished little and lost heavily.

BRITISH SUBS SINK FOUR AXIS SHIPS

London, July 1 (A. P.).—British submarines operating in Italian waters have sunk a large Axis transport and three supply ships, the Admiralty announced today. The transport, a fast modern vessel, was hit with three torpedoes and sank within an hour, a communique said.

One of the supply ships, described as of medium size, probably was laden with ammunition, the announcement declared, for she blew up with an explosion so terrific that the attacking submarine was severely shaken.

In addition to the vessels reported destroyed another supply ship of medium size was reported attacked and the Admiralty said that she was believed to have been sunk.

The exact locale of the operations and the dates on which the sinkings occurred were not disclosed.

Four Axis Ships Sunk By British Submarines

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—The Admiralty announced today that British submarines had destroyed four Axis ships and probably had sunk a fifth in Italian waters, bringing to more than a score the number of enemy vessels sunk or damaged by Allied undersea craft in the Mediterranean during the last week.

Their prey ranged from an armed merchant cruiser and two large transports to small supply ships.

A fast modern transport was one of the four most recently sunk. She went down, it was said, within an hour after three torpedoes had smashed into her.

The three others were supply boats, one apparently loaded with ammunition, because she blew up when hit and the explosion shook the attacking submarine.

The dates of the latest sinkings were not disclosed.

On June 24 the Admiralty announced British submarines had destroyed an armed merchant cruiser of about 7,000 tons, two naval auxiliaries, two medium-sized ships and eight small ones.

Listed then as torpedoed but not certainly destroyed were three large tankers, two large supply ships and a small tanker.

The Polish submarine Dzik was credited Tuesday with sinking a passenger ship and a supply ship of about 4,000 tons.

The Allied submarines have been operating under a heavy air umbrella and with strong sea cover in the Mediterranean invasion lanes.

Three Nazi Freighters Damaged By Bombers

London, July 1 (AP)—The British Fighter Command aircraft damaged three medium-sized freighters and four mine sweepers in an attack on a German convoy off Holland today, the Air Ministry news service announced.

Typhoon bombers made the attack at masthead height, executing their runs in the face of intense fire from ship and shore batteries and weaving in and out of the cables of the convoy's balloon barrage.

Typhoon fighters acted as cover and damaged some of the convoy's escort of Focke Wulf-190s.

15 British Warships Reported at Gibraltar

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—The British battleships Nelson and Rodney and the aircraft carrier Formidable as well as 12 British and two French destroyers were reported at Gibraltar yesterday in a German overseas broadcast recorded by Reuters.

The report added that three British destroyers and one submarine left the harbor for the Mediterranean in the afternoon.

FIVE ALLIED WARSHIPS ENTER MEDITERRANEAN

MADRID, July 1 — (AP) Dispatches from La Linea said tonight that the British battleship Nelson and four destroyers left Gibraltar for the Mediterranean.

Shortly afterward, 20 merchantmen were reported to have left for the Atlantic while 26 more freighters remained in anchor at the port.

Thirty American bi-motored planes landed on the Gibraltar field during the morning and left later for North Africa, it was said.

SATURDAY INVASION STRESSED BY NAZIS

London, July 1 (A. P.).—The German-controlled Paris radio said today that British troops stationed in Northern England and in Northern Ireland had been transferred to southern England "in anticipation, it is believed, of events scheduled for July 3."

Axis broadcasts since Monday have been alternately suggesting and discounting this coming Saturday as the possible date of an Allied invasion attempt. The Paris broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

THUNDERBOLTS DESTROY FOUR GERMAN FIGHTERS

LONDON, Friday, July 2 — (AP) Heavily gunned American Thunderbolts destroyed four enemy fighters with the loss of one plane in a daylight sweep yesterday over northern France, the Air ministry announced today.

In another attack, typhoon bombers turned on an enemy convoy of the Dutch coast and damaged three merchant vessels and four mine sweepers.

Thunderbolts of the U. S. Army Eighth airforce destroyed four German fighters in a sweep over northern France and the low countries, the communique said. One of the United States planes is missing and four of the British planes have not returned.

Paris Radio Version.

London, July 1 (A. P.).—The Paris radio asserted today that Admiral Georges Robert, French High Commissioner on Martinique, had been forced to accept the "intervention of an American delegate" for a "tragic solution" of that island's difficulties.

"This Washington envoy will shortly arrive at Martinique to discuss with Robert points on which the latter intends to stand firm," the broadcast said. "Roberts defense of national interests up to the last second greatly honors him."

WAR'S REPORTERS DRAW HIGH PRAISE

JUL -2 1943

London, July 1 (A. P.).—J. H. Brebner, director of the news division of the British Ministry of Information, paid tribute to war correspondents in an address at a luncheon of the overseas league today.

"We are all proud of our free press," he said, "and we should also be proud that it inspires men voluntarily to hazard their lives in the maintenance of those principles which form the foundations of a free press."

Mr. Brebner, who recently returned from the Middle East and North Africa, said "the fighting forces admire the war coresponsdents who share their risks and who, in reporting their deeds of valor, inspire our men to still greater heights."

At least twenty-three American and British correspondents and news broadcasters have been killed and more than sixty wounded in the war, Mr. Brebner said. Seven are missing and more than thirty-six are listed as prisoners in the enemy's hands.

GUERRILLAS FIGHT NAZIS IN BALKANS

Eight German Divisions Repulsed in Yugoslavia, Elite Unit Smashed.

LONDON, July 1—(AP) Ever-active Yugoslav guerrillas have smashed an effort by eight Nazi divisions to clear the way for a stand against a possible Allied invasion of the Balkans and have stripped to half its might the Prinz Eugene division of the German elite guards, Yugoslav sources said today.

The sources here, telling of the pierce action today, reported that the Germans launched the offensive May 15, meaning to wipe out ceaseless guerrilla attacks, but only ran into patriot bands which plagued them from ambush from Bosnia to Montenegro, and soon the guerrillas had taken the offensive.

The Germans, it was said, struck desperately at 50,000 patriots, trying to take them from the throats of Italian occupation troops along the Adriatic coast, and trying to put up supply and communication lines.

But the guerrillas, established in the mountains behind the coast, were able to make swift stabs at Italian garrisons and also smash into the Germans from different directions.

It was reported that an important railway line between Zagreb and Split was cut 13 times in the last two weeks.

Severest fighting in the action was on the Drina river near Foca, where the guerrillas established a front and held off the enemy. The Nazis circled behind the Yugoslavs, but last week, the sources said, the guerrillas smashed through the enemy lines at Piva and forced them back near Gacko.

The patriots have made repeated attacks on the Belgrade-Saragjevo railroad from the mountains around Foca and now are winning back territory the Germans have held for some time, it was said. New fighting also was reported from north-west Yugoslavia in the German puppet state of Croatia.

Gen. Draja Mihailovic and part of his forces were said to be concentrated in southeastern Yugoslavia where they could make early contact with any invasion forces in Greece.

Yugoslavs Rout Nazi Division

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—Yugoslav sources in London asserted today that Yugoslav Guerrillas had cut the crack Prinz Eugen Division of German S. S. (Elite Guards) to pieces and had frustrated an offensive by eight German divisions aimed at clearing Axis lines for defense against possible Allied invasion of the Balkans.

JUL -2 1943

London, July 1 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Cairo today quoted reliable Balkan sources as saying that Sofia, Bulgaria, had been made supreme operational headquarters for the Axis in the Balkans. The dispatch said Axis commands in Greece and Yugoslavia had been withdrawn, leaving only regional headquarters in those countries.

Axis officials apparently realized, the dispatch said, that it would be difficult to direct operations from Greece and Yugoslavia in the event of an Allied invasion of the Balkans.

Reports Syphilis Increase

Archbishop of York Says Cases Are 120% Higher Than in Last War

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—The Most Rev. Cyril Forster Garbett, Archbishop of York, asserted today that syphilis cases had increased 120 per cent in Great Britain since the beginning of the war although, he said, authorities had advised him that the proportion of all forms of venereal disease is smaller in this war than the last.

In an address delivered to the York Diocesan conference, the Archbishop urged more clinics for the treatment of venereal diseases and declared that "church and state must co-operate as far as possible both in the prevention and cure."

Bomber Gas Needs Cited

LONDON, July 2 (Friday) (AP).—The Lancaster heavy bomber uses about 2,000 gallons of gasoline in flying about 500 miles to the Ruhr and back—enough to take the average British small car about 60,000 miles—Geoffrey Lloyd, oil control board chairman, said today. A big raid costs about $800,000 for gasoline alone, he said.

U. S., CANADIAN TROOPS CROSS SEA TO BRITAIN

LONDON, Friday, July 2—(AP) A large number of American and Canadian troops have crossed the Atlantic during May and June without loss, it was reliably reported.

The fighters cannot be given, but one unofficial British military observer said they came in strength which "has exceeded the highest hopes."

Virtually no ships carrying this cargo which receives the highest priority have been lost in the north Atlantic during the two months, according to the best reports.

Report Danish City Bombed

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—A Morocco radio broadcast recorded by Reuters today said that Aarhus, Denmark's second largest city and an importnat railway junction, was bombed last night. There was no indication of such activity by British or American plans, and British sources said they assumed that if the bombing occurred it was carried out by long-range Russian aircraft.

BRITISH WAR WORKERS PAID $22.78 WEEKLY

LONDON, Friday, July 2 — (AP) The average weekly wage for the British factory worker is $22.78 for men and $11.72 for women, a Ministry of Labor survey showed today.

The survey was made among 6,250,000 workers in 50,000 manufacturing firms of all types.

Men's wages have risen 74.9 per cent and women's 80 per cent since October, 1938, according to the survey.

The average increase for the same numbers of hours worked as five years ago was only 27 per cent, one offical said, while the cost of living for the same period jumped 28 per cent.

The men in aircraft plants average $29.94 and are the best paid workers.

Coal miners were excluded from the survey, but a note in the Ministry of Labor gazette showed that their average for six shifts was $22.18.

POPE REMAINS IN VATICAN

BERN, July 1—(AP) A dispatch from Rome today said Pope Pius XII had decided to remain in the Vatican again this summer despite the advice of his physicians that he spend the hot months at his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo on the shores of Lake Albano.

The Pontiff has not gone to his summer home since the war began.

DE VALERA REELECTED

DUBLIN, July 1.—(AP) Eamon De Valera was reelected prime minister of Eire today by the new Dail and he immediately proposed the names of all his former ministers as a "team" for the government.

The Dail, named in elections June 22, chose De Valera by a vote of 67 to 37 for his opponent, William Cosgrave, leader of the opposition Fine Gael party.

De Valera's proposed cabinet included only one new member, Sean Moylan, former party secretary, in a reorganization of portfolios.

Paves Way For Biggest Feminine A.E.F.

JUL -2 1943

LONDON,—(AP) One of the busiest women in all Britain right now is the commanding officer of the forthcoming second feminine American Expeditionary Force which will be the largest group of Uncle Sam's nieces ever sent abroad.

Capt. Wilson

To quote the exact number, of course, would invite the Army censor's blue pencil, but the force is big enough to give Capt. Anna W. Wilson of Studio City, Calif., plenty to do in arranging living quarters at the various places where the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps will be stationed.

In addition, this attractive, prematurely gray-haired head of the WAACs in the European Theater of Operations is holding numerous conferences with high ranking officers in Great Britain who are hopeful that WAAC telephone operators, stenographers, clerks, motor car drivers or airplane mechanics will be assigned to their units.

Captain Wilson is 33 years old. Her hair, which she wears waved up and back from her face, accents her dark expressive eyes. She has the figure to set off a uniform. She is friendly, approachable and very serious about her responsibilities.

She was born in Tulare, Calif., of pioneer parents who settled in the Comstock region. Educated at Pomona college and at Claremont College, she took her master's degree at the latter institution and she also did post-graduate work at the University of California in Los Angeles. In 1935 she married Jack L. Wilson, who died three years later.

At the time she joined the WAAC, Captain Wilson was head of the health and physical education department in the Beverly Hills high school. Like her sister overseas commanding officer, Captain Frances K. Marquis of New York, who led the first feminine A.E.F. to Africa last January, Captain Wilson was a member of the first WAAC officer candidate class at Fort Des Moines, Ia., last July.

Wilhelmshaven Unusable

STOCKHOLM, July 1 (AP).—Reports from Germany said today that shattering daylight attacks by American Flying Fortresses combined with the Royal Air Force's night bombing had virtually eliminated Wilhelmshaven as a naval base. Installations were said to have been battered to pieces and the arsenal blown up, making the port unusuable.

As a result, the reports said, U-boats which formerly berthed at Wilhelmshaven have now been shifted to the mouth of the Weser River, where they are kept widely scattered as a protection against air raids.

Other reports said the German battleship Gneisenau, badly damaged by bomb attacks in 1942, was now berthed at Gdynia and was being used as a training ship for German marines learning anti-aircraft gunnery. Sixty-five to 100 feet were said to have been torn from the bow of the warship, and experts said the ship was crippled so badly that they could build a new one in the time it would take to repair the warship.

Strategic Height Captured On Northern Front by Reds

Russians Hold Gains in Face of 23 Nazi Counter-attacks

JUL -2 1943

LONDON, Friday, July 2—(AP) Russian troops have captured a "German height of great strategic importance" on the front northwest of Moscow and held it against 23 counterattacks in which the enemy lost 600 dead, Moscow announced early today.

The area of the successful Russian thrust was not specifically identified in the midnight bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor, but presumably it was either in the Staraya Russo sector near Lake Ilmen, or southwest of Velikie Luki, 110 miles below the lake.

Capture Fortified Height

An elite Russian guard unit carried out the entire operation a week or more ago, attacking the height which "had been converted by the enemy into a strongly fortified defense position with a wide system of trenches, communication lines, and blockhouses," the communique said.

The guards dug themselves in on the height after fighting their way to the summit through dense minefields, barbed-wire entanglements, and a series of German trenches, and then repulsed "23 attacks during the following six days."

Besides killing 600 Germans and taking prisoners, the Soviet unit captured 13 machineguns, 11 mortars, 110 rifles, 18 automatic rifles, two radio stations, and other booty.

200 Nazi Casualties

Two hundred casualties were inflicted on the Germans on the Smolensk front west of Moscow during yesterday's operations in which there were no essential changes, the bulletin said. Three enemy artillery batteries, several machineguns and 19 dugouts were destroyed by Russian gunners in the same sector.

In the Lisichansk sector southeast of Kharkov, the bulletin said, Soviet artillerymen knocked out a German tank, demolished five dugouts and blockhouses, exploded an enemy ammunition dump, and routed an infantry company.

Scattered fighting also was reported in other areas, and yesterday's noon communique announced the destruction of nine German planes in the Rostov and Leningrad sectors.

The general lull on the Russian front now has entered its fourth month, but the Germans indicate they expect Russian action soon.

Berlin broadcast one report recorded by the Associated Press today that the Red army was massing landing barges northeast of Temryuk, on the north side of the Taman peninsula in the Caucasus opposite the Crimea.

A Soviet military spokesman also said stepped-up aerial activity "heralds big engagements on land for which both sides are preparing."

Clearing the Germans out of their bridgehead in the Caucasus probably would be the first task of the Russians in any offensive, British observers said.

This opinion was not based entirely on German reports of renewed activity there, for the Russians themselves have told of three successive night attacks on the port of Taman, the peninsula port on the Kerch strait opposite the Crimea. Taman is a communications link in the German supply line.

Soviet Scouting Pa... Kills 100 in Foray

Into Nazi Trenches

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 1.—A strong Red Army scouting party, storming across a river into German trenches after laying a barrage on the positions, blew up two German blockhouses and other enemy installations in a sector of the Western front, the Soviet noon communique announced today.

More than 100 Germans were killed in the foray and German guns in the area were put out of commission, the war bulletin said. It was recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here from a Moscow broadcast.

The communique said a German reconnaissance in force was thrust back on the Volkhov front, south of Leningrad, and the Germans also lost a plane shot down by a Russian crew employing an antitank rifle.

Five German bombers and two fighter planes were shot down out of a formation of nine bombers and three fighters which attempted to raid a town west of Rostov, and two more German bombers were brought down in the Leningrad area by gunners on a Soviet armored train which the Germans attempted to attack, the Russians said.

Earlier, on the Leningrad front, Red Army artillery wiped out attacking German infantrymen, the Russians announced.

A Moscow broadcast early today bore out German radio claims that the Kuban area of the Caucasus was stirring with new activity. Russian flyers were said to have pounded at Taman, on the Kerch strait opposite the Crimea, an entry point into the Caucasus, and the Germans asserted their flyers were smashing at Russian shipping in the Black Sea and in the Sea of Azov.

The Germans also hinted they had submarines operating in the Black Sea.

The Russian midnight communique said that at least 1,000 Germans were killed and barracks and munitions were blown up in a Red Air Force raid June 23 on Pskov, near the Estonian border. On an airdrome 3 miles away, 12 German planes were destroyed on the ground, the bulletin said.

British military observers, remarking on the lull in warfare on the eastern front, which today entered its fourth month, declared both sides had built defenses so strong that any quick break-through was unlikely in the event either began an offensive.

However, a London report that 50 German divisions had been ordered away from the Soviet front to guard a western invasion battle line, was challenged by Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper in Moscow.

Chinese Block Japanese Move To Shatter Trap

Check Reinforcements for Encircled Owchihkow; Foes' Collapse Is Hinted

CHUNGKING, July 1 (AP).—The Chinese high command announced today that Chinese forces had checked Japanese reinforcements rushing to relieve their troops in encircled Owchihkow (Lotus Pond Inlet), where, a communique said, the Japanese are showing signs of collapse. Entry by the Chinese into Owchihkow, on the Upper Yangtse River front forty miles south of Shasi, was announced two nights ago.

Today's communique said also that the Chinese had reached the right bank of the Yangtse at points below Shasi and were facing the invaders across the river.

In southeastern China, the high command said, the Chinese hurled back Japanese trying to attack their positions from Chungshan, birthplace of Sun Yat Sen, and other points near Canton. Chinese dispatches reported street fighting inside Owchihkow and frustration of one enemy attempt to break the siege lines.

Part of the battered Japanese garrison sought to cross to the north bank of the Yangtse under cover of a smoke screen, but Chinese artillerymen sank six of their barges and killed more than 200 men, it was declared.

The Chinese also were reported to have blown up a bridge on the highway linking Owchihkow with the Japanese-occupied town of Shihshow.

RAF BOMBS BURMA BASES

Japanese Barracks Smashed and River Craft Damaged

NEW DELHI, India, July 1 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers roared down the area between the Kaladan and Lemro Rivers yesterday to rain bombs and machine-gun fire on Japanese troop quarters near Mychaung, thirty-five miles northeast of Akyab, Burma, a British communiqué said today.

The bombs demolished one group of buildings and damaged another, it was said. Fighter planes damaged twenty-five Japanese craft on the Irrawaddy River yesterday and struck at small shipping south of Akyab Tuesday, the bulletin added.

The British lost one plane in the operations.

Japanese Building All-Rubber Freighter

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 30 (AP).—Further scant details of an all-rubber ship built by the Japanese in the Netherlands East Indies were contained in a broadcast by the Japanese-controlled Bandoeng radio picked up by N. E. I. monitors here.

"A large freighter, made entirely of raw rubber, has been under construction in Java since February and will soon sail for Japan, carrying raw material," the broadcast said, adding that "factories will be able to use the ship itself as a rubber source."

Italian Submarine Sunk

Rammed in South Atlantic; Only One on Board Survives

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 1 (AP)—The sinking of an Italian submarine in the South Atlantic after a collision with an unidentified craft was related in a dispatch to the newspaper "O Globo" from Belem, Brazil, today.

An officer of the sunken submarine, its only survivor, told how he had drifted in a lifeboat for 29 days before he was sighted by an American patrol plane and rescued, the paper said. He told of watching his fourteen companions in the lifeboat die of exposure. No dates were gien.

Honduras Rubber Increasing

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, July 1 (AP)—It was announced officially today that rubber exports to the United States in the fiscal year ended yesterday totaled 25,191 pounds. It was thought that rubber exports would increase in the next year with modern methods used in the production areas.

Mrs. Luce's Criticism Of Foreign Policy Hit

Trick of Politicians to Raise Dust of Words, Says Rep. Richards.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP) Replying to the recent criticism by Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) of the nation's foreign policy, Representative Richards (D. S. C.) told the House today "our foreign policy toward Europe and Asia is one known to all and which—unlike the lady's speeches—all can comprehend."

"For our allies it promises friendship and assistance. For our enemies it has but one message: Unconditional surrender. For all the world it offers hope.

"Nothing further can be added now or needs to be."

"To adopt now a policy of post-war alliance with Great Britain or any other single power could only engender suspicion in the minds of other nations fighting in the common cause. The Fulbright resolution—itself as simple and direct as our fight-and-befriend policy—should be taken up now and passed by this House."

The resolution by Representative Fulbright (D., Ark.) would record Congress as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world.

Richards asserted that Mrs. Luce in her speech had "enshrouded her thoughts in a maze of beautifully constructed, thoroughly contradictory, sentences and left us dizzy in our mental effort to follow her around the circle.

Met Ourselves Coming Back

"We—as she—always met ourselves coming back."

"The theme of the day's address is condemnation—of persons and policies. She condemns both isolationists whom she calls 'unconverted interventionists' and interventionists whom she calls 'renegade isolationists.' She takes her own post in the vast no-man's land of the in-between.

"In a breath, the gentlewoman condemns the neutrality act of the pre-war period and the President for signing it. She well knows, though, that when the act was passed, 99 per cent of the people of the United States wanted to stay out of war and that meant neutrality. The President in signing the act and following the will of the people was only doing what she said in her speech last week a President should do. x x x"

Quotes From Wisconsin Talk

"I am led to believe from the remarks the gentlewoman herself made in a political speech to the Republicans of Wisconsin the other day that she herself would have voted for the neutrality act had she been here. In that speech, the papers quote her as saying 'If an isolationist is or was a man who wanted to stay out of the war, then I was and am an isolationist.' The lady has thus added to our bewilderment as to what she really stands for.

Mrs. Luce, the South Carolinian remarked, took care to read to us the 'ordinary Webster's collegiate dictionary' definition of the good, simple, homely, understandable word 'policy.' But she confused us by adding to her list of brainchildren the words 'globlindness' and 'globalliances' which do not appear in any dictionary.

"This list, which began when she spoke of 'globaloney' in her maiden effort here, continues to grow with the addition of 'WPA-ism,' 'pappa-fixism,' 'mamma-do-goodism' and 'dazzledust.' x x x statesmanship has a new language. Unconcernedly she adds in her address:

"'It is the trick of politicians in high places today to raise a terrible dust of words . . . and then to complain that the people do not see.' Imagine the gentlewoman, of all people, charging anyone with raising a dust of words. x x x with the genius of the accomplished playwright she is, she in her story led us through the labyrinth of her thoughts and held us in suspense awaiting a logical conclusion. Then she left us with no key to the puzzle she had made.

"It is true that the congresswoman says that she supports the Fulbright resolution. So do I. However, she certainly is out of tune with the obvious when she intimates that the President and the State department do not look with favor on the principles embodied in this resolution. Into the speech adding her endorsement to this move the gentlewoman has injected a bitter, partisan tone which heretofore has been omitted from our discussions of this momentuous step in our foreign policy. This resolution was not offered as expressing the sentiment of either party but as expressing the wishes of the people."

NEW OFFER BY MARTINIQUE

Robert Proposal To Transfer Authority Under Consideration

Dispatch On Situation Is Received From Navy, Hull Declares

JUL -2 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 1 — United States authorities today took under consideration a reported offer of Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy French High Commissioner at Martinique, to negotiate a transfer of his authority over the Antilles—a step which could lead to the islands' alignment with the United Nations.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said a dispatch on that subject had been received through the navy and that attention is being given to it.

Asked at his press conference if any envoy had been sent to Martinique to discuss "terms for a change of French authority," Hull said the navy probably would have to await further developments before any announcement could be made. The Navy Department said: "We have received the note and will take it up with the State Department."

Vice Consul On Island

Since the United States Government broke off relations with Robert last April 26, it has left Vice-Consul Ora S. Sitton there to protect American interests and has also maintained a naval observer there for security reasons. Hull at that time informed Robert that the consular officer would not be authorized to enter into or conduct any negotiations of a political character.

It was not clear whether Robert was ready to surrender his one-man rule of Martinique and Guadaloupe or merely to transfer his allegiance from Marshal Philippe Petain, Chief of State at Vichy, to the new French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers.

But it was assumed here, in any case, that Robert would be obliged to step out, since the French authorities at Algiers were unlikely to sanction a further administration by the elderly admiral who for more than seven months has defied the American blockade and French efforts to bring the islands to the side of the Allies.

Carrier Included

[French naval craft at Martinique which might be added to the Allied fleet by a shift of allegiance include an aircraft carrier and two light cruisers.]

Whether the future government of the islands would be left to the French committee to decide or whether the navy would want a voice in the decision because of questions of the security of the Caribbean, also will have to await further developments, Secretary Hull said.

PROPOSES INQUIRY ON WALLACE, JONES

Bridges' Resolution in Senate Is Referred to the Banking Committee

JUL -2 1943

DEMOCRATS' STAND 'COOL'

Effort to Have Military Affairs Group Act Is Thwarted by Barkley

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—The verbal battle between Vice President Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones led Senator Bridges, Republican of New Hampshire, to propose today that the Senate Military Committee investigate relations between the Board of Economic Warfare and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in purchasing war materials.

With Democratic leaders evidencing no intention of complying with Mr. Jones' request for an inquiry into accusations levelled at him by Mr. Wallace, Senator Bridges introduced a resolution for an investigation. He told his colleagues that he believed the "unusual" exchanges between the two high Government officials ought to be looked into.

Senator Byrd of Virginia and George of Georgia informally suggested that the Senate Committee on reduction of nonessential Federal expenditures should study BEW's war materials purchase program which is financed by RFC. They emphasized that they were not interested, however, in exploring the "unfortunate controversy" between the two Cabinet members.

It was the purchase program which embroiled the officials and over which they were still at odds after a "peace conference" of two hours yesterday in the White House office of James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization. The controversy had flared into the open when Mr. Wallace, as chairman of BEW, asserted that Mr. Jones and the RFC had obstructed and delayed BEW projects to the detriment of the war effort.

Senator Bridges told the Senate the exchanges constituted "very serious charges regarding the conduct of the war" and urged in his resolution "a full and complete study" of BEW and RFC relationships.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts interrupted to assert that there had been "a very long and serious delay in obtaining quinine," which he said had delayed military operations in tropical climates and had menaced the health of members of the military forces. RFC delay in financing the planting of trees from the bark of which quinine is obtained was listed among Mr. Wallace's charges.

Senator Bridges asked that his resolution be sent to the military committee, but the Democratic leader, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, said he thought the banking and currency committee, which ordinarily considers RFC legislation, should look it over first. Mr. Bridges finally agreed to this procedure. Chairman Wagner of New York said the banking committee would consider Mr. Jones' request for an investigation when it meets next Tuesday.

Senator George said he thought the BEW ought to welcome an inquiry by the committee on reduction of nonessential Federal expenditures.

"The whole BEW program, including its commitments and promises, ought to be examined," Mr. George told reporters. "Of course, this must be done without disclosing any military secrets, but it can be done."

ROOSEVELT SAVES DETROIT TRAITOR, ORDERS LIFE TERM

Commutation of Sentence Halts Execution Scheduled for Today.

STEPHAN COLLAPSES

Restaurateur Guilty, Penalty Too Severe, President Declares.

WASHINGTON, July 1 — (AP) President Roosevelt drew Max Stephan, Detroit traitor, back tonight from the gallows from which he was to be hanged tomorrow and commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

The 52-year-old German-born, former restaurateur was convicted of harboring and assisting Oberleutnant Hans Peter Krug, a Nazi flier who escaped from a Canadian prison camp, made his way to Detroit and finally was recaptured in San Antonio, Texas.

Sentence Too Severe

Mr. Roosevelt decided that the death sentence was too severe, since Stephan's treason "was not part of a preconceived plan."

When a warden told the news to Stephan at the Federal correctional institution at Milan, Mich., the prisoner bent and kissed the warden's hand, then collapsed on a chair and burst into tears.

A White House statement said Stephan was guilty, was properly convicted of treason, and there was no question in the chief executive's mind that he was, and probably is, pro-German or pro-Nazi.

But the President determined

that his case was "less or an offense" than that of eight saboteurs who landed on American shores from German submarines, as members of the German armed forces but wearing civilian clothes, in accordance with "a mature plan" which was "concocted in Germany, initiated by the men in question and to be carried out in detail in the United States."

Six of the saboteurs were executed, one got a life sentence and one 30 years at hard labor. The White House statement termed their offenses" akin to a carefully planned murder in the first degree," but Stephan's treason, it added, "bore something of a parallel to murder in the second degree or manslaughter in the first degree."

Aided Nazi in Flight

"A German prisoner, who escaped from Canada and was put in touch with Stephan after reaching the city," the statement said, "stated that he was trying to escape in order to rejoin the German armed forces, and was assisted by Stephan in proceeding to the next place."

If Stephan had met death on the gallows tomorrow, it would have been the first time that a life had been exacted for treason in this country.

The tearful prisoner was waiting to go to his death, but with a last hope that the President of the country which he adopted and then betrayed would spare his life. Surrounded by canvas screening, the gallows had been erected on the grounds of the correctional institution.

Served in German Army

Stephan was a naturalized American who served as a sergeant in the German army in the first World war. His wife, Agnes, has had her citizenship taken away and has been in Federal custody for alleged complicity in aiding Krug.

The escaped flier took a hand at spying as he moved elusively from Stephan's home in Detroit to San Antonio, and a map of American defense installations was found on him when he was recaptured.

Desperate efforts had been made by Stephan's attorneys to obtain presidential clemency, after the 6th United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati twice denied the traitor a new trial and the Supreme court had refused thrice to intervene in his case.

"The President believes," the White House said, "that the sentence imposed by the court was too severe in that it did not sufficiently take into account the statute which provides for the consideration of different qualities of treason. Stephan will go to prison for life, and the President hopes that no one of his successors will commute that sentence."

FBI HAD WARNING OF ATTACK BY JAPS

Japanese - American Tells Dies Group He Had Hint of War in November.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP) Tokie Slocum, a Japanese-American now employed by the War Manpower commission, told the Dies committee today that he relayed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation a warning he had received in November, 1941, that war was impending between Japan and the United States, but was "laughed at".

Slocum fought in World War I with Sergeant Alvin York, and got his present job, he said, through the intervention of Col. William M. Donovan. He said he had been aiding government authorities in shadowing subversive elements in the Japanese west coast communities when he received the warning of war.

"Did you have any advance information of the impending war between Japan and the United States?" he was asked by Rep. Costell (D., Calif.) chairman of the sub-committee.

"I gave what I got to the FBI," Slocum said. "One time when Kurusu (Japanese admiral and special emissary to the United States) landed in Los Angeles I was told by duly constituted authorities to watch him."

Slocum said he circulated around in Little Tokyo, and other haunts of the Japanese in an effort to get information, without much success, but one night, late, he was aroused at home by a knock on his door.

"A friend," he added, "shouted 'War, war, war! War!' He came in the house, and said, 'There's going to be war soon.' He told me of meeting a friend who had been to a private banquet for Kurusu, who was drunk, and who said there was going to be a war.

"'Wait a minute,'" I told him. "'That might be Japanese propaganda.'

"'No, he was drunk,' my friend insisted.

"I shot the news in to the FBI and they laughed at me."

AIR RAIDS ON U. S. MAY COME SOON

Officials Hint Foe Will Seek to Force Dispersal of Allied Planes.

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP) The American public was warned today that the Axis may bomb United States cities this summer in an effort to cripple forthcoming Allied offensives by creating a public clamor for withdrawal of air strength from the battle zones to the home front.

"The war is approaching a vigorous summer, and anything can happen," said D. C. Speaker, the mythical District of Columbia spokesman who frequently represents authoritative sources.

He said the warning carried the clear implication that if such air attacks occur, military leaders expect the country to "take it" in the realization that major air strength is committed to offensive operations overseas, and any change in that strategy could only prolong the war with a resultant waste of the lives of soldiers and sailors.

The enemy could launch attacks against Atlantic or Pacific coasts from aircraft carriers or from submarines carrying float planes, or against the eastern part of the country by long-range, land-based bombers, starting from Germany itself.

"We have no assurance that an air raid on either the east or the west coast could not be made with a limited measure of success," Speaker said.

"Even if we were to construct an aerial Maginot line of fighter planes and anti-aircraft defenses on a fabulous scale clear along both coast lines, the possibility would still exist that a sufficiently determined attack could get through."

The risk of enemy air attack in this country has been carefully calculated, he continued, and the decision reached to continue spotting the bulk of American air strength "at the point of greatest leverage—in other words, in the enemy's backyard, not in ours."

In the long run, Speaker added, the most potent defense of the United States against air attack is the aerial pounding now being delivered to German and Japanese-held territory by Allied fliers.

Critic of Admiral Hart Wins Promotion in Army

Colonel Knerr Is Named To Be Brigadier General

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP).—Colonel Hugh J. Knerr, of Portland, Ore., who less than eight months ago was publicly reprimanded by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, for criticizing Admiral Thomas C. Hart, was nominated today by President Roosevelt for promotion to brigadier general.

Colonel Knerr was retired for physical disability in 1939, after serving as chief of staff of the General Headquarters Air Force. Last November, following publication of magazine articles by Admiral Hart arguing against establishment of a separate air force, Colonel Knerr issued a statement in New York criticizing the articles and their author.

At Mr. Stimson's direction, Lieutenant General Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, telegraphed Colonel Knerr ordering him to refrain from public comment on the conduct of the war, and Mr. Stimson himself, answering a press conference question, remarked that "the United States government does not pay the officers of its Army and Navy to fight with each other in time of war; it pays them to fight with the common enemy in full and harmonious co-operation with each other."

A few days later Colonel Knerr was recalled to active duty, and assigned with the air forces in Washington.

Colonel Knerr was among forty-seven Army colonels nominated for promotion to brigadier general. The President also nominated ten brigadier generals for promotion to major general, among them Brigadier General Thomas J. Hanley, deputy chief of staff of the Air Forces.

16 MORE NAVY CASUALTIES

Latest List Names Four Dead, One Wounded, Eleven Missing

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—The Navy announced today sixteen casualties, including four dead, one wounded and eleven missing.

This brings to 26,991 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,151 dead, 4,733 wounded, 10,514 missing, and 3,593 prisoners.

The casualties announced today (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified), were as follows:

Six Army Men Are Killed In Transport Plane Crash

Five Virginia Victims Officers, Four of Them Colonels

WASHINTON, July 1 (AP).—An Army transport plane crashed and exploded, killing five officers and one non-commissioned officer near Saxe, Va., fifteen miles southwest of Keysville, Va., last night, the War Department announced today.

The department said four of the officers were attached to the operation staff of the Army War College and were en route to Washington from the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga.

They were Colonel Kamell Maertens, of Washington; Colonel Richard L. Baughman, of Washington; Lieutenant Colonel Felix A. Todd jr., of Silver Spring, Md., and Lieutenant Colonel Milton H. Pressley jr., of Arlington, Va.

The pilot, Major William M. Marks jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and co-pilot, Staff Sergeant William Evans jr., of Peckville, Pa., also were killed.

Four High-Ranking Officers Killed in Virginia Crash

By the Associated Press.

KEYSVILLE, Va., July 1.—Army officials came here early this morning to identify the bodies of at least four officers killed about 10:20 o'clock last night when a large Army plane crashed in a wheat field a half mile from Saxe, in Charlotte County.

State Policeman J. W. Matthews said farmers in the neighborhood said they heard the plane's engines roaring low overhead and then a terrific explosion.

The bodies were scattered over a wide area, but at least four high-ranking officers were known to be dead. The plane, which was reported to have burst into flames as it exploded, was almost demolished.

LEAGUE MAPS PLAN FOR WORLD TRADE

Post-War Program for Stable Economy in All Nations Includes Seven Points

WOULD KEEP HIGH TAXES

Curb on Inflation Held Vital to Avoid Ills That Followed the Last Conflict

PRINCETON, N. J., July 1 (AP)—In the same town where Woodrow Wilson, the father of the League of Nations, lived before he became President, the same League of Nations is making a plan for another new world.

There are seven points in this plan for post-war reconstruction:

(1) Fullest possible use must be made of human and material resources, of individual skill and enterprise, of scientific inventions to maintain in all countries a stable economy and rising living standard.

(2) No man or woman able and willing to work must be unemployed for longer than is needed to transfer from one occupation to another or to learn a new skill.

(3) There must be food, clothing, housing and medical care to meet the needs of all classes of the population.

(4) Individual risk from interruption or reduction of earning power must be distributed by society.

(5) The liberty of the individual to choose his own occupation must be respected and promoted by equal educational opportunities.

(6) Trade obstructions are to be progressively removed so that every country has access to raw materials and manufactured goods.

(7) Modern methods of production must be made available to all peoples through international measures of reconstruction and development and removal of trade barriers.

The committee that drafted the report, "the transition from war to peace economy," has been studying the means of preventing depressions since January, 1938. Representing the Financial, Economic and International Public Works Committees of the International Labor Organization, the group is called the Delegation on Economic Depressions.

Under the plan, raw material and heavy goods priorities, food, clothes and fuel rationing would continue in all countries after cessation of hostilities, as would high personal taxes, price ceilings and compulsory savings plans. These controls would be gradually tapered off as production completed the transition from war to peacetime manufacture.

Only by thus keeping the lid on inflation, the authors insist, can the cycle of boom, inflation and subsequent unemployment which followed the last war be avoided.

"Almost all the ills which beset the world between 1918 and 1939 were due to the first two years after the armistice," said Dr. Alexander Loveday, director of the league economic and financial committees since 1919, in explaining the background of the plan.

"The Allies gave food as charity to the wartorn nations of Europe and let business try to do the rest. Private business based on profit could not undertake reconstruction where profit could not be made. Consequently there was inflation, from which the world never recovered."

Reconstruction of war-depleted countries would be achieved, according to the plan, by a revolutionary project for internationally equalized currencies and by State loans to be repaid largely through trade. Diversity in exchange values of the various national currencies would be wiped out, so war-impoverished countries could buy raw materials and finished goods in a market where everybody's money would be of equal value.

What international machinery should operate this economy for a depressionless world, the plan does not say. Dr. Loveday said, "It has been worked out with the ideals of the United Nations in mind."

Ickes Puts U. S. Wealth At 12 Trillion, 23 Billion

[By the Associated Press]

JUL -2 1943

JUL -2 1943

New York, July 1—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, estimated in an American Magazine article released today that the nation's physical assets amounted to $89,000 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Ickes said the assets totaled $12,023,000,000,000—twelve trillion, twenty-three billion dollars—and said the total national debt amounted to only 1.17 per cent. of that sum.

In releasing the article, the magazine said it was believed to be the first computation ever made of the country's physical wealth.

"What We Ought To Get"

"The $12,023,000,000,000 is what we ought to get," Ickes wrote, "for our country, raw, at a forced sale." And he added:

"This is my answer to the 'poor mouths' who are complaining that the war is going to bust us and that we shall leave our children penniless, with nothing but an overdraft that cannot be honored and a headache to show for the long and one-sided battle with the wolf that has been going on ever since the landing of the Pilgrim fathers."

Observing the gross national debt was listed at $140,304,018,663 on June 5, Ickes said, "put it and the total cost of the war against the wealth that lies in and on the ground of the United States and Alaska, and our obligations would look like the Sunday-school collection plate of the swampland church on a bad day."

Only Known Minerals

"In arriving at America's wealth," he said, "I have not done any speculating, but have included only those minerals and metals that we know we have."

The Interior Secretary valued the nation's public and private utilities at $63,000,000,000, its forests at $65,000,000,000, its manufacturing industries at $50,000,000,000, its petro[illegible]im at $75,000,000,000 and its water power at $5,000,000,00.

He said the country's public and private buildings were worth $140,000,000,000, and its iron and all other minerals except coal and petroleum at $1,645,000,000,000.

Ickes said he did not consider the gold hoard buried in Kentucky because it had "little industrial value."

Invasion Points Listed By Berlin

New York, July 1—German experts, according to a Transocean broadcast by the Berlin radio tonight, said the Allies have six possible invasion approaches to Axis Europe but that in the German view none of them can succeed.

As listed by Transocean they are:

1. The long Norwegian coast.
2. The so-called "wet triangle," bounded by the Skagerrack, Helgoland and the East Frisian islands.
3. Across the English channel.
4. North Africa through France.
5. The central Mediterranean—possibly at several points simultaneously.
6. A new kind of Gallipoli enterprise.

Any of the above approaches would be coupled with a simultaneous Russian offensive from the East.

Eve Curie Joins French Women's Volunteer Unit

New York, July 1 (AP)—Eve Curie, author, lecturer and war correspondent, has enlisted as a private in the Fighting French unit of the "Volontaires Francaises," similar to the WAACs in this country, it was announced today.

Miss Curie, daughter of Marie Curie, discoverer of radium, will receive basic training in England, and later will be sent with other French women volunteers to relieve de Gaullist soldiers for combat duties, the announcement said.

She is the author of "Journey Among Warriors," an account of her trip to Africa, Russia, India, Burma and China which she made as a war correspondent.

Nazis Claim Only 20 Ships Sunk by Subs In Month

By the Associated Press.

The Berlin radio testified today to a marked reduction in the efficacy of German submarine warfare last month, broadcasting a DNB dispatch which listed the U-boat toll of Allied shipping in June at 20 ships totalling 107,000 tons, but implied this was only a temporary setback.

The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press. The enemy claim represented less than one-seventh of the reported sinkings in March—149 ships.

It was presented 24 hours after Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that, as a result of the massacre of U-boats in May, "We have had in June the best month we have ever known in the whole 46 months of the war."

JAPANESE SHAKE-UP REPORTED IN BROADCAST

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Tokyo radio broadcast a Japanese Home ministry announcement yesterday of a shake-up involving 110 high officials in a move to concentrate responsibility in the hands of Premier Hideki Tojo's personal appointees and consolidate Japan's 47 prefectures into nine "regional blocs," presumably for greater efficiency in meeting any military threat to the Japanese mainland.

Only 23 of the old 47 prefectural governors were left in their posts, according to Japanese broadcasts reported to the Office of War Information by United States government monitors.

AIR ATTACK ON ATHENS REPORTED IN GERMANY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new Allied air attack on the Athens area Thursday was reported last night by the Berlin radio

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press and purportedly quoting an Athens dispatch, said the attack was made in daylight on "a bathing resort near Athens," and that 38 persons were killed and 60 wounded.

There was no Allied confirmation of the report.

RUMANIANS, HUNGARIANS CLASH IN BORDER WAR

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP) The Moscow radio today reported a border clash between Rumanian and Hungarian troops on June 26 which resulted in Rumanian forces pushing across the Hungarian border and occupying the town of Szekely Kereszttur.

The Polish-language broadcast, recorded by government monitors, said the fight began when a company of Hungarian soldiers crossed the Rumanian frontier, killed two Rumanian soldiers and took three wounded soldiers prisoners. It said the battle lasted for several hours, with artillery and aircraft taking part.

Tokyo Shaken by Quake; Slight Damage Reported

The Tokyo radio reported that a sharp earthquake shook the Japanese capital and adjacent areas yesterday, but damage was declared to have been slight. The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, said the epicenter was near Shimotsuma, about fifty miles northeast of Tokyo.

A DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin reported that high buildings in the "lower town" section of Tokyo swayed and trembled for a minute without causing serious damage. In some areas bricks were said to have been loosened, collapsing walls.

It was the second earthquake reported from Japan in three weeks. The Japanese Domei Agency reported in a broadcast on June 15 that the island of Honshu, on which Tokyo is situated, and Hokkaido, to the north, had been shaken without serious damage.

6 Baptist Missionaries Interned by Japanese

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The Northern Baptist convention headquarters here announced yesterday receipt of official word that six staff members of the Iloilo Mission Hospital in the Philippine Islands and five of their children had been interned by the Japanese.

It said the information came from the Interior Department after a year of mystery as to the missionaries' plight.

The group was listed as follows: Miss Olive Buchner, Detroit; Miss Flora G. Ernst, Nova Scotia; Dr. H. S. Waters, whose parents are missionaries in China; his wife and three children, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Chambers and two children, Princeton, Ind.

What's Behind The War News

By GLENN BABB

The Allied offensive in the southwest Pacific already extends over an arc of nearly 800 miles but a dispatch from General MacArthur's headquarters says it is "only a small beginning" of the great strategic plan yet to be unfolded. Most of the evidence supports this estimate.

The initial thrusts, into the New Georgia group in the central Solomons and along the northeastern coast of New Guinea, apparently are the two prongs of a pincers directed toward Rabaul, on New Britain, the main base set up by the Japanese in their island conquests above Australia. But Rabaul may be only an intermediate objective, although its reduction would be a major military accomplishment.

To the north lies Truk in the midst of Japan's powerful outposts in the mandated islands just above the equator. To the northwest lies most of the rich island empire Japan seized from the United States, Britain and Holland in the first six months of the Pacific war. If the drive from the Pacific were coordinated with an eastward thrust from the Indian ocean that whole region of conquest might be sliced off from the rest of Japan's holdings. It is not unreasonable to assume that some such enterprise was discussed at the Washington war council in May.

The initial advances by the Allied forces, largely American, under the overall command of General MacArthur, were against the islands nearest territory already in Allied hands. Beyond Guadalcanal and the Russell islands, into which the Americans had moved in recent months, the closest Japanese territory was the New Georgia group. The move into Woodlark and the Trobriand islands was an easy, unopposed step from nearby New Guinea shores. At first glance, therefore, it would appear this was in the island-hopping pattern.

But the United States already is definitely committed against such tactics. President Roosevelt said on Feb. 12 that "We do not expect to spend the time it would take to bring Japan to final defeat merely by inching our way forward from island to island across the vast expanse of the Pacific." General MacArthur, who is directing this offensive, said in January that newly developed tactics coordinating air and land forces would "permit the application of offensive power in swift, massive strokes rather than the dilatory and rather costly island-to-island advance that some have assumed to be necessary" in the southwest Pacific.

Hence it is logical to assume that these first island landings are merely in the phase of clearing the brush away before the real assault begins.

Planned at Conference

These operations were planned at a series of conferences. Generals from the southwest Pacific and admirals from the south Pacific met in Washington in March. In April General MacArthur and Admiral Halsey conferred. In May Prime Minister Churchill brought his India theater commanders to Washington for the Allied War council, at which there is every reason to believe the whole Allied Pacific-East Asia strategy was reviewed.

Shortly after Mr. Churchill returned to London it was announced that Britain was establishing a new East Asia command for carrying on the war against Japan. More details on this setup are promised soon. When they are available they may throw more light on the scope of the Allies' plans, especially the extent of General MacArthur's responsibilities. It is not inconceivable that when the British thrust eastward from the India area they will be part of a grand offensive under the American commander's overall direction.

But while waiting for the larger objectives to be disclosed the most intriguing question raised by the current offensive is whether it will compel the Japanese navy to come out and fight. Secretary Knox said recently that a great American fleet has been assembled in the south Pacific, and there is no doubt that it is the fervent hope of this force that the challenge now flung at the Japanese is one that cannot be avoided. The Japanese sidestepped the issue in the Aleutians when we retook Attu, but the stakes involved now in the south Pacific seem too important to permit Admiral Koga's big ships to lurk in their faraway bases. The American fleet obviously is prepared to meet all the power the enemy can throw against it and a great naval battle which may go far toward determining the course and duration of the Pacific struggle is among the possibilities of the next few weeks or days.

U. S. PRODUCTION OF WAR GOODS TO CONTINUE A YEAR

JUL -2 1943

Survey Indicates No Immediate Curtailment of Present Schedules.

NEW YORK, July 1 — (AP) The Research Institute of America, in a special report on "America's industrial future", predicts that the enormous demand for production of war materials will continue for another 12 months before beginning to taper off.

Taking cognizance of statements that the nation's war machine is already over-supplied and that many materials are to be released soon for civilian manufacture, the private business research organization conducted the special study in an effort to answer the question "How long will war production continue?"

In making the report public today, Leo M. Cherne, executive secretary, and Leon Henderson, chairman of the board of editors, said the institute had had the cooperation of the military officials responsible.

Here are some of the findings:

No General Over-Supply

"There is no general over-supply, says the institute. "There are some limited areas of over-supply — shells may be one such area, though even here the War department says the requirements may change with invasion.

"War procurement will show little, if any, let-up for the full 12 months ahead—barring a sudden collapse of Germany, a factor not contemplated in the present procurement program and plans."

Most divisions in training and awaiting embarkation are still not fully equipped, says the institute in listing reasons for continued production pressure.

Drop In Production

"It is likely that by the end of this year, many, if not all, of the heavier munitions will have been manufactured in quantity great enough to meet the army's needs," says the report. "The production program does not call for the cessation of production of tanks, mortars, anti-aircraft guns, etc. It does, however, call for the beginning of a production drop in many of these capital items within the first half of 1944. In some cases the drop is sharp. x x x

"The demand of the military for food will continue to increase with the continued growth and activity of the Army and Navy.

30.24—5571

"On clothing and similar quartermaster equipment, the future picture more nearly resembles the program in capital equipment. The next six to nine months will see the peak and the beginning of a sharp drop. Replacement demand will be nowhere near as large as the call for initial supplies."

Emphasis on Rehabilitation

The report places great emphasis on the needs of reoccupation and rehabilitation which the institute says will more than offset any diminution of the strictly military demands in the next year.

"As invasion will be followed little by little by reoccupation, entirely new production demands will enter. Instead of landing barges and dock machinery the program will be changed to housing material, water supply equipment, power machinery and all of the essentials needed to establish basic minimum economic life on the scorched earth which will be left in the wake of the enemy's withdrawal. Thus, the shape of our procurement program will change —but not its size. In this area, incidentally, the demands will continue high even after armistice."

LONDON, JULY 1-(AP)-BRIG. GEN. FRANK O'D. HUNTER, CHIEF OF THE U.S. AAF'S FIGHTER COMMAND IN BRITAIN, WAS QUOTED IN AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY AS SAYING JUNE ESCORT OPERATIONS OVER THE RUHR DEMONSTRATED THAT AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS AND THE RELATIVELY NEW THUNDERBOLTS "ARE SUPERIOR TO THE ENEMY."

HE BASED HIS COMMENT UPON THE ESCORTING OF EIGHTH AIR FORCE HEAVY BOMBERS ASSIGNED TO THE "SYSTEMATIC DEMORALIZATION OF GERMANY'S INDUSTRIAL STRONGHOLD OF THE RUHR," SAID A STATEMENT FROM U.S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

"A FIGHTER PLANE OVER ENEMY TERRITORY HAS A VASTLY MORE DIFFICULT TASK THAN ONE PLAYING A DEFENSIVE ROLE OVER HIS HOMELAND," THE STATEMENT SAID.

"THE LATTER CAN FIGHT UNTIL HIS GAS SUPPLY IS NEARLY EXHAUSTED AND THEN DIVE FOR HIS LANDING STRIP. THE OFFENSIVE PILOT CANNOT DO THIS, NOR CAN HE WAGE A RUNNING BATTLE AS THE BOMBERS DO. YET IN SPITE OF THIS, THE AMERICAN FIGHTER SQUADRON DESTROYED CONSIDERABLY MORE OF THE ENEMY THAN THEY SUFFERED IN LOSSES."

30.24—5575

THE BOMBERS THEMSELVES SHOT DOWN 271 ENEMY PLANES DURING JUNE, POSSIBLY DESTROYED 54 OTHERS AND DAMAGED A TOTAL OF 175.

IN THEIR ATTACKS ON WILHELMSHAVEN, BREMEN, KIEL, HULS, NORTHWEST GERMANY, THE ST. NAZAIRE U-BOAT PENS AND AIR FIELDS AND INDUSTRIAL TARGETS OF FRANCE DURING THE MONTH THE BOMBER COMMAND LOST 52 PLANES, AN INCREASE OF 10 OVER MAY. THE PERCENTAGE OF LOSSES, HOWEVER, DID NOT INCREASE BECAUSE THE FORCES EMPLOYED IN JUNE WERE MUCH LARGER.

LONDON,JULY 1-(AP)- A TALL,SLIM ,FEMININE FIGURE AND WISTFUL DARK EYES ARE NOT LISTED IN UNITED STATES ARMY REGULATIONS AS REQUIREMENTS FOR A SUPPLY OFFICER, BUT THEY HELP.

SECOND LIEUTENANT KATHLEEN MARIE BELL OF SAN FRANCISCO HAS BOTH, AND SINCE SHE WAS GIVEN A TEMPORARY APPOINTMENT AS SUPPLY OFFICER FOR THE WAAC IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS "TWO COLONELS ALREADY HAVE TELEPHONED [redacted] TO ASK IF THERE WERE ANYTHING THEIR OUTFIT COULD DO TO HELP HER TASK," ONE OF HER FELLOW OFFICERS SAID.

JUL -2 1943

ANNE BRADLEY, OF PHILADELPHIA, WAS ANOTHER SUPPLY OFFICER WHO HAD CHARM. SHE WAS SUPPLY SERGEANT OF THE FIRST WAAC CONTINGENT TO AFRICA AND WAS KNOWN AS THE "WAAC POSTER GIRL".

IN ADDITION TO LIEUT. BELL, ONE OTHER PERMANENT MEMBER AND TWO TEMPORARY ONES HAVE BEEN ADDED TO THE HEADQUARTERS STAFF TO AID IN PREPARING FOR THE FIRST FEMININE AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE COMING TO BRITAIN.

JUL -2 1943

LIEUT. HENRIETTE HORAK,FORMER WEST COAST NEWSPAPER REPORTERS, HAS BEEN NAMED A PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER. JUST BARELY TALL ENOUGH TO GET INTO THE WAAC, SHE IS A CZECHO-SLOVAKIAN BORN, LIVED FOR SOME TIME IN PITTSBURGH, PA., AND THEN IN OREGON WHERE SHE WAS ON THE STAFF OF THE PORTLAND OREGONIAN.

SHE ALSO WORKED ON THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE AND ON THE SAN FRANCISCO WORLD'S FAIR PUBLICITY STAFF.

FORMERLY SHE WAS IN CHARGE OF WAAC RECRUTTING AND PUBLIC RELATIONS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, WITH HEADQUARTERS IN LOS ANGELES.

SECOND LIEUTENANT JANE THURMAN, OF TERRE HAUTE, IND., WAS APPOINTED PERSONNEL OFFICER TO WORK OUT THE ASSIGNMENT OF WAAC

LONDON, JULY 1---(AP)---BRITISH FIGHTER AIRCRAFT DAMAGED THREE MEDIUM-SIZED FREIGHTERS AND FOUR MINESWEEPERS IN AN ATTACK ON A GERMAN CONVOY OFF THE HOOK OF HOLLAND TODAY, THE A R MINISTRY NEWS SERVICE ANNOUNCED.

TYPHOON BOMBERS MADE THE ATTACK AT XXXXXXXXX MASTHEAD HEIGHT, EXECUTING THEIR RUNS IN THE FACE OF INTENSE FIRE FROM SHIP AND SHORE BATTERIES AND WEAVING IN AND OUT OF THE CABLES OF THE CONVOY'S BALLOON BARRAGE.

THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCE DESTROYED 258 AXIS PLANES DURING ITS MONTH-LONG ASSAULT ON ITALY'S MEDITERRANEAN ISLANDS AND THE ITALIAN MAINLAND WHILE ITSELF LOSING ONLY 64 AMERICAN AND BRITISH AIRCRAFT.

JUL -2 1943

IT UNLOADED ABOUT 8,500 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES DURING THE MONTH, THE GREATER PROPORTION IN DAYLIGHT PRECISION ATTACKS BY FLYING FORTRESSES. MUCH OF THE XX WEIGHT WAS IN SMALL FRAGMENTATION BOMBS THAT WERE LAID LIKE A BLANKET OVER ENEMY AIR FIELDS ON SICILY, SARDINIA AND SOUTHERN ITALY. THESE ARE PARTICULARLY EFFECTIVE AGAINST PARKED AIRCRAFT.

BUT THE ITALIANS ALSO GOT THERE SHARE OF BLOCK-BUSTERS. THEY WERE CARRIED BY THE RAF'S SLOW BUT RELIABLE TWO-ENGINED WELLINGTONS IN NIGHT ATTACKS ON NAPLES, LEGHORN, MESSINA AND CATANIA.

NOTHING LIKE A 1,000-BOMBER RAID HAS YET BEEN ATTEMPTED IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, BUT OBSERVERS AGREE IT COULD BE DONE EASILY IF THE ALLIES WERE TO CONCENTRATE ALL THEIR NORTHWEST AFRICA, MIDDLE EAST AND MALTA FORCES AGAINST A SINGLE OBJECTIVE.

THE MONTH'S BIGGEST "KILL" OF THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN FORCE CAME JUNE 18 DURING WIDESPREAD ATTACKS ON SARDINIA AND SICILY, WHEN 44 ENEMY

LONDON, JULY 1-(AP)-THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, A LEFT WING LABOR ORGAN EDITED BY ANEURIN BEVAN, TODAY TERMED THE PRESENT POLITICAL SITUATION IN WASHINGTON A "GRAVE CRISIS IN THE ALLIED CAMP."

(BEVAN, LABORITE MEMBER OF COMMONS, HAS BEEN A FREQUENT AND CUASTIC CRITIC OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S CONDUCT OF THE WAR.)

"THE AMERICAN CONGRESS IS IN OPEN REVOLT AGAINST PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND IS NOW GOING ALL OUT ON A POLICY THAT IS DIRECTED IN THE FIRST PLACE AGAINST HIM AND IN THE SECOND AGAINST ALL FORMS OF ORGANIZED LABOR," SAID THE PUBLICATION IN ITS LEAD EDITORIAL.

IT SAID THAT UNDER THE NEW ANTI-STRIKE BILL "JOHN L.LEWIS WOULD BE DELIGHTED TO SUFFER IMPRISONMENT AS A MARTYR OF LABOR. IT WOULD ALMOST CERTAINLY GUARANTEE HIS RETURN TO GENERAL POPULARITY IN THE LABOR MOVEMENT."

AN EIGHTH U.S. AIRFORCE STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 1-(AP)-THE CREW OF "OLD IRONSIDES" HAS PARTICIPATED IN ONLY ONE RAID ON NAZI EUROPE BUT VETERAN FLYERS AGREE WITH THE FORTRESS'S BOMBARDIER, 2ND LIEUT. CHANCEY HICKS, 27, OF HUNTINGTON, W. VA., THAT ANY FUTURE BOMBING MISSION "CAN'T BE ROUGHER UNLESS THE GERMANS GET US."

THE BIG GERMAN RUBBER PLANT AT HULS WAS "OLD IRONSIDES'" TARGET WHEN SHE TOOK OFF JUNE 26 WITH 1ST. LIEUT. BUSTER PEEK OF PAINT ROCK, TEX., AS PILOT AND A "FRESH" CREW OF NINE NEW MEN ABOARD. JUL -2 1943
THE CO-PILOT WAS 1ST. LIEUT. FRANCIS A. PORADA OF CHICAGO.

THE STURDY "OLD IRONSIDES"--WHICH THE CREW SWEARS COULDN'T HAVE BORNE A MORE APPROPRIATE NAME--ENDED HER SHORT BUT GALLANT CAREER AT THE BOTTOM OF THE NORTH SEA SOMEWHERE OFF THE ENEMY COAST. BUT BEFORE THE SHELL-SPLINTERED FORTRESS PLUNGED INTO THE ROUGH, FREEZING WATER SHE HAD ACCOMPLISHED THESE RESULTS:

FOUGHT OFF APPROXIMATELY 150 ENEMY FIGHTER ATTACKS DURING A WILD

30.24—5579

HOUR-AND-A-HALF BATTLE.

SHOT DOWN FIVE GERMAN PLANES.

JUL -2 1943

SLUGGED HER WAY ONWARD OVER THE TARGET TO HAMMER HOME HER BOMBS.

SURVIVED A TERRIFIC ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGE WHICH HICKS SAID PEPPERED THE FORTRESS LIKE "HAILSTONES FALLING ON A TIN ROOF" AS SHE FLOUNDERED ALONE OVER ROTTERDAM ENROUTE HOME AT THE PERILOUSLY LOW ALTITUDE OF 5,000 FEET.

THEN WHEN A THIRD DAMAGED ENGINE FAILED SHE CRASHLANDED IN THE MIDDLE OF A MINEFIELD THE BRITISH HAD LAID IN ENEMY WATERS.

FROM THAT HAZARDOUS MISSION NINE MEMBERS OF THE CREW CAME BACK TO GO RAIDING AGAIN. ALL BUT ONE SERGEANT WAIST-GUNNER, WHO WAS DROWNED, WERE PICKED UP 30 MINUTES AFTER THE CRASH BY A BRITISH RESCUE BOAT.

HICKS, WHO SHOT DOWN TWO FOCKE-WULFS TOLD THE STORY:

"THE FIGHTERS ATTACKED OUR FORMATION AT THE GERMAN COAST. THEY SHOT OFF PART OF THE TAIL SECTION AND KNOCKED OUT ONE ENGINE BUT WE MANAGED TO MAKE THE BOMB RUN. THEN A CAN[illegible] SHELL KNOCKED OUT ANOTHER ENGINE AND DAMAGED THE CONTROLS."

REELING FROM THE SHOCK OF THESE EXPLOSIONS "OLD IRONSIDES," DROPPED 6,000 FEET BEFORE PEEK PULLED HER OUT OF THE DIVE. BY THEN SHE WAS A LONE STRAGGLER AND FIGHTERS INTENSIFIED THEIR ATTACKS FROM ALL DIRECTIONS.

ANOTHER 20 MM. SHELL EXPLODED AGAINST HICKS' GUN, KNOCKING HIM BACK INTO THE NAVIGATOR'S COMPARTMENT. SHELL FRAGMENTS INFLICTED MINOR CUTS ON HIS FACE, TORE OFF HIS OXYGEN MASK, AND INFLATED HIS MAE WEST.

"WHEN I CAME TO I WAS LYING ON THE FLOOR SHAKING LIFE A LEAF," HICKS SAID. "I LOOKED UP AND SAW A FOCKE-WULF STILL COMING IN. I SCRAMBLED BACK TO THE GUN AND ONE OF THE FIRST SHOTS KNOCKED HIM DOWN AND HE CAUGHT FIRE. THE PILOT BAILED OUT"

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WILD BATTLE SGT. RAYMOND R. THOMPSON OF ANDERSON, IND., TOP TURRET GUNNER, STOOPED DOWN TO PICK UP AAMUNITION, THAT ACT PROBABLY SAVED HIM FROM DECAPITATION FOR IN THAT MOMENT A CANNONSHELL BLASTEDHE TOP OFF HIS TURRET.

CANNONSHELL BLASTEDTHE TOP OFF HIS TURRET.

IN THE MEANTIME 2ND.LIEUT.GERALD B.WILLIAMS OF COLUMBUS, O., NAVIGATOR, SGT.RUSSELL D.HATTON, BALL TURRET GUNNER, AND SGT. NORBERT F.SWIERZ OF DOWAGIAC MICH., WAISTGUNNER, EACH SHOT DOWN A GERMAN PLANE.

FROM THIS BATTLE THE FORTRESS EMERGED BADLY SHOT UP AND LOSING ALTITUDE. THE WINDOWS IN THE NOSE AND COCKPIT WERE SHATTERED AND THE LANDING GEAR WAS DRAGGING. THAN, AS THEY FLEW OVER ROTTERDAM, ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE RIDDLED HER AGAIN BUT THE CREW ESCAPED BEING HIT AND HICKS SHOT DOWN ANOTHER FOCKE-WULF.

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT WASN'T WRONG WITH THAT SHIP. I DON'T SEE HOW SHE STAYE DUP, BUT SHE DID UNTIL WE MET A SPITFIRE ESCORT AND STARTED OUT OVER THE NORTH SEA," HICKS SAID. "WE THREW THE GUNS, RADIO, EVERYTHING OVERBOARD TO LIGHTEN THE LOAD BUT WHEN THE THIRD ENGINE FAILED WE HAD TO DITCH HER.

"SHE BROKE ALMOST IN TWO. THE WATER WAS UP TO OUR NECKS BEFORE WE ALL GOT OUT. AS WE STRUGGLED TO INFLATE OUR [illegible] THE TAIL END OF THE BOMBER WHIPPED AROUND AS SHE SUBMERGED AND KNOCKED US ALL UNDER THE WATER. THAT WAS WHEN THE SERGEANT GUNNER WENT DOWN. A BLOW FROM THE TAIL SECTION HAD KNOCKED HIM AWAY FROM US. APPARENTLY HIS MAE WEST HAD BEEN SHOT SO FULL OF HOLES IT DIDN'T INFLATE PROPERLY. I HEARD HIM YELL ONCE, SAW HIM THROW UP HIS HANDS AND SINK BEFORE HE HAD A CHANCE TO GET HIM."

JUL -2 1943

A RADIOED SOS FROM THE TWO SPITFIRES CIRCLING PROTECTIVELY OVERHEAD BROUGHT THE BRITISH BOAT TO THE RESCUE.

"THE BRITISH TOLD US WE WERE PLENTY LUCKY TO GET OUT OF THAT MINEFIELD OKAY. THEY TOLD US WE HAD LANDED RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF E-BOAT ALLEY."

JUL -2 1943

IN TRIBUTE TO THE BRITISH FOR THE PROMPT RESCUE, HICKS SAID: "BOY I BELIEVE IF WE WENT DOWN IN THE RHINE RIVER THOSE BOYS WOULD GET US."

A U.S.BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 1-(AP)-HE'S BEEN ALONG ON FIVE MAJOR AMERICAN BOMBING MISSIONS, ONCE ON A HAIR-RAISER OVER THE RUHR, AND NOW HE'S SOMEWHAT FLAK-HAPPY, ALBEIT OPENLY PROUD.

HIS NAME IS "MISTER." HE IS A CHOW. WHEN HE WAS A TINY NEW-BORN CHOW THREE YEARS AGO HE FELL TO THE OWNERSHIP OF ONE SERGEANT HAROLD ROGERS OF MIAMI, OKLA., A FLYING FORTRESS TAILGUNNER NOW.

"MISTER" ACCOMPANIED HIS MASTER ALL THROUGH AIR TRAINING AND ON FIVE OF HIS EIGHT RAIDS OVER ENEMY TERRITORY.

JUL -2 1943

THE DOG HAD TO PASS UP THE OTHER THREE BECAUSE HE HAD A MISERY DIAGNOSED AS RHEUMATISM WHICH NECESSITATED HIS LAYING UP AT A REST HOME ON THE THAMES.

WHEREIN, IT APPEARS, RHEUMATISM PAID OFF. ON ONE OF THE RAIDS "MISTER" COULD NOT ATTEND--OVER LE MANS ON JUNE 29--THE SPOT HE USUALLY OCCUPIES IN THE FORTRESS WAS RINGED WITH MACHINE GUN BULLETS. IF HE'D BEEN THERE HIS CHANCES OF COMING BACK ALIVE WOULD HAVE BEEN SMALLER THAN HE IS.

JUL -2 1943

ON RAID DAYS, "MISTER" GOES TO BRIEFING WITH THE FELLOWS AND WHEN IT COMES TIME TO LOAD UP HE STREAKS FOR HIS SHIP--ALWAYS FIRST TO BOARD.

ROGERS DESIGNED A SPECIAL OXYGEN MASK FOR HIM AND ON FLIGHTS HE WEARS IT ALONG WITH HIS FLYING UNIFORM--THE COVERING FOR THE SHIP'S BOMBSIGHT.

FOUR OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW LIVE IN A BARRACKS WITH ROGERS AND "MISTER," AND WHEN THE MEN GO OUT SOMETIMES THEY LEAVE THE CHOW BEHIND TO SEE THAT THE MADE-UP BEDS DO NOT BECOME UNMADE, ETC.

YOU CAN ENTER THE BARRACKS AND DO ANYTHING WITH THE 14 OTHER BEDS BUT IF YOU TOUCH ANY OF THE BEDS OF HIS FELLOW CREW-MEMBERS YOUR LEG IS LIKELY TO BECOME CHOW FOR THE CHOW.

ROGERS, A HOLLYWOOD STUNT MAN BEFORE HE ENTERED THE SERVICE, SAYS THAT "MISTER" CAN ONLY ACCOMPANY HIM ON SHORT RAIDS IN THE FUTURE.

ALTHOUGH THE DOG ALREADY HAS BEEN ALONG ON MISSIONS OVER NORTHWEST GERMANY AND ST.NAZAIRE, ROGERS MAINTAINS THAT THAT'S TOO LONG FOR A DOG TO STAY ON OXYGEN.

THE SERGEANT SAYS "MISTER" HAS THE BEST YEARS OF HIS LIFE AHEAD OF HIM AND HE WANTS TO BE CAREFUL.

LATER AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT CIRCULATED IN ALLIED DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES SAID THAT THE ZEITUNG EDITOR HAD BEEN ARRESTED FOLLOWING PUBLICATION OF THE PESSIMISTIC EDITORIAL.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 1-(AP)-ITALY'S BEST KNOWN JOURNALIST AND A FASCIST PARTY SPOKESMAN, VIRGINIO GAYDA, TOUCHED DIRECTLY ON TALK OF A SEPARATE PEACE TODAY WITH THE DECLARATION THAT IT COULD NOT SAVE ITALY FROM BECOMING A WORLD BATTLEGROUND.

IN AN EDITORIAL IN IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA, GAYDA WROTE THAT "AN EVENTUAL EXIT OF ITALY FROM THE WAR--THAT IS, THE CONCLUSION OF A SEPARATE PEACE, WHICH WOULD NEVER SUCCEED --WOULD IN NO WAY FREE THE ITALIANS FROM THE WAR, ITS TRAGEDY AND DESTRUCTION".

GAYDA DID NOT DIRECTLY MENTION GERMANY, THE AXIS PARTNER WITH TROOPS ENTRENCHED IN ITALIAN SOIL, WHEN HE DECLARED THAT IN THE EVENT OF A SEPARATE PEACE THE REMAINING BELLIGERENTS WOULD CONTINUE TO FIGHT AND ITALIAN SOIL WOULD BE THE THEATER OF THEIR BATTLE.

HIS DISCUSSION WAS THE MOST STRAIGHTFORWARD EXPOSITION OF A THEME THE ITALIAN PRESS HAS BEEN ELABORATING DAILY: THAT NO MATTER WHAT ITALY MIGHT WISH, THERE IS NO CHOICE BUT TO FIGHT.

"THE ITALIANS IMPATIENTLY AWAIT THE FIRST ENEMY LANDING ATTEMPT", POPOLO DI ROMA SAID IN AN ARTICLE THAT COULD HAVE A DOUBLE-EDGED MEANING. "LESS DEPENDS ON THE FIRST ACTION THAN ON THE VARIOUS ACTIONS WHICH WILL FOLLOW THE LANDINGS," IT ADDED.

THE NEWSPAPER TONE WAS IN DIRECT CONTRAST TO DISPATCHES FROM BERLIN QUOTING AXIS OPINION THAT THE "INVASION IS HARDLY TO BE EXPECTED AT THE MOMENT."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 1-(AP)-OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 727TH U.S. RAILWAY OPERATING BATTALION WERE CITED TODAY FOR REPEATED BRAVERY UNDER FIRE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY AT THE RISK OF CAPTURE OR DEATH IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN.

TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER, LIEUT.COL.FRED W.OKIE OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., WENT THE LEGIONNAIRE BRAID OF THE AWARD OF THE LEGION OF MERIT. ONE OFFICER AND TWO NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICERS IN ANOTHER BATTALION RECEIVED SOLDIER'S MEDALS AND THREE OTHER ENLISTED MEN WERE SPECIALLY CITED IN A COMBINED CEREMONY ATTENDED BY BRIG.GEN.CARL R.GRAY JR., DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE MILITARY RAILWAY SERVICE IN NORTH AFRICA.

THE 727TH BATTALION, WHICH DISTINGUISHED ITSELF DURING THREE HAZARDOUS MONTHS IN FRONT LINE AREAS, IS COMPOSED LARGELY OF PERSONNEL FROM THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY. DURING THE ALLIED ADVANCE THROUGH KASSERINE PASS IN JANUARY, UNITS OF COLONEL OKIE'S COMMAND SCOUTED THE RAILWAY AHEAD OF THE AXIS FIGHTING ZONE AND UNDER FIRE RECOVERED AND REPAIRED A NUMBER OF LOCOMOTIVES.

WHEN THE GERMAN FLANK ATTACK WAS UNLEASED IN MID-FEBRUARY THE BATTALION REMAINED BEHIND TO EVACUATE MUNITIONS AND FRENCH TROOPS FROM GAFSA AND METALOUI, THE LAST TRAIN BEING MACHINE-GUNNED BY THE ENEMY. COLONEL OKIE PERSONALLY LED A DETACHMENT TO TRY TO SAVE TWO ABANDONED AMMUNITION CARS AND SUPERVISED THE DESTRUCTION OF THE EQUIPMENT WHEN ENEMY ENCIRCLEMENT MADE RAIL MOVEMENT IMPOSSIBLE. THEN HE ASSEMBLED HIS MEN AND A NUMBER OF CIVILIAN REFUGEES AND TOOK THEM TO SAFETY AT TEBESSA BY A CIRCUITOUS DESERT ROUTE.

DESPITE THE DANGER OF ENEMY AERIAL STRAFING AND GROUND MINES,

JUL -2 1943

DETACHMENTS OF THE BATTALION RUSHED REPAIRS ON BRIDGES IN THE GAFSA AND SENED AREAS AS SOON AS COMBAT TROOPS COULD PUSH THE GERMANS BACK IN MARCH.

THE MOVEMENTS OF MEN AND MUNITIONS PERFORMED BY THE BATTALION "AT TIMES UNDER FIRE ON THE NARROW GAUGE RAILROAD, WITH STRANGE EQUIPMENT AND WITHOUT REGARD FOR PERSONAL SAFETY, CONTRIBUTED GREATLY TO THE OPERATIONS OF THE ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES AT A MOST CRITICAL TIME," THE CITATION SAID.

FOR HEROISM IN EXTINGUISHING A BLAZING RAILROAD CAR LOADED WITH HEAVY AMMUNITION, THE SOLDIER'S MEDAL WAS AWARDED TO LIEUT.ROY W. HARTZEL OF WYNNE, ARK.; MASTER SGT. PHILIP M.BUCKINGHAM OF FORT MADISON, IOWA, AND TECH.SGT. HOMER A.JENKINS OF THREE FORKS, MONT.

CITATIONS WERE GIVEN TO TECHNICIANS FOURTH GRADE WALLACE H.CONNELLY OF POCATELLO, IDA., AND WILLIAM M.ROBERTSON OF LEWISTON, IDA., AND TO TECHNICIAN FIFTH GRADE LOUIS V.CERVENY OF MT.VERNON, IA.

HARTZELL ENTERED THE FLAMING CAR AND PLAYED A HOSE ON THE FIRE WHILE DIRECTING THE REMOVAL OF BOXES BY BUCKINGHAM AND JENKINS. CONNELLY, ROBERTSON AND CERVENY ASSISTED IN PUTTING OUT THE BLAZE. IRREPLACEABLE PROPERTY AND VITAL SUPPLIES WERE SAVED BY THEIR ACTION, THE CITATION SAID.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 1-(AP)-UNITED STATES BOMBERS AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS OF THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCE BLASTED PALERMO AND FOUR AXIS AIR FIELDS ON SICILY YESTERDAY, VIRTUALLY WITHOUT OPPOSITION FROM ENEMY FIGHTERS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

(THE ITALIAN HIGH COMMAND COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST FROM ROME AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, REPORTED "GREAT DAMAGE AND MANY CASUALTIES" AT PALERMO, A PORT OF NORTHWEST SICILY. SARDINIAN TARGETS ALSO WERE ATTACKED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. FIRES WERE REPORTED STARTED AND SEVERAL BUILDINGS DESTROYED IN CAGLIARI.JUL -2 1943

(SUBMARINE PRESSURE UPON AXIS SUPPLY LINES CONTINUED. THE LONDON ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED THAT BRITISH SUBMARINES HAD DESTROYED A FAST TRANSPORT AND THREE SUPPLY VESSELS AND PROBABLY HAD SUNK A FIFTH SHIP IN ITALIAN WATERS, BOOSTING TO MORE THAN 20 THE NUMBER OF ENEMY CRAFT SUNK OR DAMAGED IN THE MEDITERRANEAN DURING THE LAST WEEK).

THE ATTACKS BY FLYING FORTRESSES, MITCHELLS, MARAUDERS, WARHAWKS AND LIGHTNINGS CAME AFTER RAF WELLINGTONS, IN A PRE-DAWN ATTACK, SMASHED AGAIN AT THE FERRY TERMINUS AND FREIGHT YARDS OF MESSINA AND ALSO AT THE RAOD SOUTH OF SAN GIOVANNI AND SAN MARCO, ON THE NEARBY ITALIAN MAINLAND.

ONE TWO-TON BOMB WAS AMONG THE EXPLOSIVES SEEN TO BURST IN THE MESSINA YARDS AND MANY FIRES WERE OBSERVED. A LARGE FIRE ALSO DEVELOPED SOUTH OF SAN GIOVANNI.

THE AMERICAN RAIDS ON SICILIAN TARGETS YESTERDAY LEFT FIRES BLAZING AT AIR FIELDS AND MANY ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED IN DISPERSAL AREAS.

"TODAY ITALIAN LABORERS WILL BE BUSY FILLING IN THE HUGE CRATERS MADE ON RUNWAYS BY HEAVY BOMBS," AN OFFICIAL REPORT ADDED.

AT PALERMO SEVEN DIRECT HITS WERE SCORED ON A LARGE BARRACKS.

30.24—5585

IN A RAID ON THE SCIACCA AIR FIELD A FEW ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE ENCOUNTERED AND LIGHTNINGS SHOT DOWN TWO WHILE A THIRD, A MESSERSCHMITT-109, WAS DESTROYED BY ITALIAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS INTENDED FOR THE RAIDERS.

JUL -2 1943

FLYING FORTRESSES, WHICH MADE THE SEVEN HITS ON THE BARRACKS, ALSO STARTED FIRES IN A MILITARY STORES AREA. THE CREWMEN FAILED TO SIGHT ANY ENEMY FIGHTERS AND THE FLAK WAS COMPARATIVELY LIGHT. THE SLACKENING OF THE GROUND FIRE IMPRESSED THE PILOTS.

"THE LAST TIME OUR SHIP WAS OVER THERE THEY SHOT US UP SO BADLY WE HARDLY GOT BACK," SAID LIEUT.THOMAS THAYER OF HOPE, IND. "THIS TIME I DIDN'T EVEN SEE A PUFF OF FLAK OR A SINGLE PLANE IN THE SKY."

TO THAT STAFF SERGT. ARLIE SHANEYVELT OF 1117 MISSOURI AVENUE, ST.LOUIS, MO., A BALL-TURRET GUNNER FOR WHOM THE MISSION WAS HIS 48TH, ADDED: "PALERMO ISN'T WHAT IT USED TO BE. WE USED TO HAVE TO PLOW THROUGH FLAK. I ONLY GOT TO TEST-FIRE MY GUNS TODAY."

LIGHTNING-ESCORTED MITCHELLS HEAVILY BOMBED SCIACCA AIR FIELD. BURSTS COVERED THE FIELD. DIRECT HITS WERE SCORED ON A BUILDING AND ON AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN POSITION.

WHEN ONE MITCHELL FLIGHT STARTED HOMEWARD FIVE OR SIX ENEMY PLANES ATTACKED, BUT LIGHTNINGS BEAT THEM OFF AND DESTROYED TWO.

LIEUT.DON L.SCHLENER OF OAK PARK, ILL., SHOT DOWN ONE ME-109 AND CAPT.RAYMOND H.LYNN OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., BAGGED A FOCKE WULF-190.

WHILE ONE FORTRESS FORMATION BLASTED PALERMO ANOTHER RAIDED THE BOCA DI FALCO AIRDROME, SOUTHWEST OF PALERMO, AND SCORED HITS ON BARRACKS, THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDINGS AND THE FIELD. PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN FROM THE BOMBERS SHOWED A NUMBER OF WRECKED AIRCRAFT WHICH WERE DISABLED IN PREVIOUS RAIDS. ENEMY FIGHTERS FAILED TO APPEAR AND THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS LIGHT.

THE MILO AIR FIELD NEAR TRAPANI, ON THE WESTERN TIP OF SICILY, WAS WELL COVERED BY BOMBS FROM B-26 MARAUDERS. THEY FAILED TO ENCOUNTER ENEMY FIGHTERS, BUT WERE MET BY INTENSE GROUND FIRE. HITS WERE SEEN ON THE RUNWAYS, DISPERSAL AREAS AND BUILDINGS.

THE FOURTH SICILIAN AIR FIELD ATTACKED WAS AT BORIZZO, WHERE MARAUDERS CAUSED ONE LARGE EXPLOSION AND COVERED THE FIELD WITH BURSTS. THE FLIERS REPORTED ONLY SLIGHT GROUND FIRE AND THEY FAILED TO SEE ANY ENEMY FIGHTERS.

JUL -2 1943

ALL ENGAGEMENTS COST THE ALLIES TWO PLANES.

IN ADDITION TO THE TWO GERMAN FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN BY LIGHTNINGS AND THE THIRD DESTROYED BY AXIS FLAK, REPORTS LISTED A JUNKERS-88 AND A HEINKEL 111 AS SHOT DOWN TUESDAY NIGHT BY RAF BEAUFIGHTERS WHICH ENCOUNTERED A NUMBER OF ENEMY RAIDERS OVER THE MEDITERRANEAN.

AT THE SAME TIME A MITCHELL CREW PREVIOUSLY REPORTED MISSING WAS RESCUED BY AN AMPHIBIAN, IT WAS ANNOUNCED.

AIR OFFICIALS SAID PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN SINCE THE BIG FORTRESS RAID ON NAPLES JUNE 28 "SHOW SEVERE DAMAGE HAS BEEN DONE TO THE OIL STORAGE DEPOT OF THE ITALIAN-AMERICAN PETROLEUM COMPANY."

"AT LEAST TWO MEDIUM-SIZED TANKS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED AND A SMALLER ONE IS BADLY DAMAGED," IT WAS REPORTED. "BUILDINGS OF THE DEPOT ALSO SUFFERED CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE XXX. OIL TANK CARS STANDING ON A SIDING ALSO WERE HIT. IN ADDITION, FOUR BUILDINGS NORTH OF THE OIL DEPOT WERE DESTROYED."

AN AMERICAN BOMBER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA,JULY 1--(AP)--

PALERMO,THE CAPITAL ,LARGEST CITY AND THE NO.1 PORT OF SICILY IS VERY ~~RUSH~~ DRUNK,IN THE BELIEF OF MANY ALLIED FLIERS WHO HAVE BEEN PASSING IT IN RECENT WEEKS.

JUL -2 1943

THIS CONVICTION IS BASED PARTIALLY ON THE FACT THAT ONLY THREE SMALL BOATS WERE OBSERVED IN THE WRECKAGE-FILLED HARBOR DURING YESTERDAY'S BOMBARDMENT,COMPARED TO THE SCORES ~~XXX~~ THAT WERE ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ FORMERLY TIED UP AT THE PIERS.MOREOVER,THE RAIDERS FOUND IT UNDEFENDED BY FIGHTER PLANES AND ENCOUNTERED ONLY LIGHT ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

THE CITY HAS BEEN BOMBED MORE THAN HALF A DOZEN TIMES BY DAY AND BY NIGHT. THE FLAK USED TO BE EXCEPTIONALLY HEAVY AND THE FIGHTERS CAME OUT IN GREAT NUMBERS TO MEET OUR BOMBERS.

"WE CONSIDERED IT ONE OF THE TOUGHEST NOT LONG AGO," WAS THE COMMENT OF CAPT.WILLIAM P.KOCH OF 57 HOVER ST.,BURLINGTON,VT., WHO FLEW THE LEAD PLANE ON HIS RETURN YESTERDAY."NOW IT LOOKS AS THOUGH THEY HAVE FOLDED UP."

THE TONNAGE OF BOMBS DROPPED ON PALERMO WAS NOT GREAT COMPARED TO THE OPERATIONS AGAINST CITIES IN GERMANY BUT PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW THAT THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN AIRMEN HAVE BEEN VERY ACCURATE. THE PRINCIPLE TARGETS WERE THE SWITCH YARDS, THE AIRPORT AT NEARBY BOCCA DI FALCO, MILITARY INSTALLATIONS INCLUDING BARRACKS, THE EXCELLENT SYSTEM OF MOLES, PIERS, DRYDOCKS, SHIP REPAIR FACILITIES AND SHIPS.

ONE BOMBARDMENT ON MARCH 22 BLEW UP A MERCHANT VESSEL WITH SUCH FORCE THAT THE EXPLOSION WAS FELT BY THE FLYING FORTRESSES FLYING 25,000 FEET ABOVE THE CITY. RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN A DAY OR TWO LATER SHOWED A 300-FOOT GAP IN THE PIER TO WHICH THE SHIP WAS TIED.

YESTERDAY'S OPERATIONS COVERED THE BOCCA DI FALCO AIRPORT AGAIN AND PRODUCED CONCENTRATED EXPLOSIONS IN THE BARRACKS AREA AND NEAR THE OIL STORAGE TANKS.

JUL -2 1943

THE TAIL GUNNER OF THE LAST PLANE TO LEAVE THE TARGET, SERGT. JACK E. JONES OF MADISON, FLA., WAS IN THE BEST POSITION TO OBSERVE WHAT HAD BEEN DONE TO THE CITY.

" IT LOOKS TO ME LIKE HALF OF IT, ESPECIALLY ALONG THE WATER FRONT, IS WRECKED PRETTY BAD," JONES REPORTED. "WE MUST HAVE COVERED IT PRETTY GOOD THIS TIME, TOO, BECAUSE WHEN WE LEFT FIRES WERE BEGINNING TO BREAK OUT, AND THE DUST AND SMOKE WAS BILLOWING UP IN CLOUDS RIGHT FROM THE TARGET AREA. THE PLACE LOOKS FINISHED TO ME."

A CITY OF 400,000, PALERMO SERVED AS THE PRINCIPAL EXPORT CENTER OF NORTHERN & SICILY, AND WAS ONE OF THE ISLAND'S MOST IMPORTANT RAIL CENTERS. THE PORT FACILITIES WERE LARGE ENOUGH TO HANDLE MORE THAN 3,000 TONS DAILY. SULPHUR AND OLIVE OIL HAD BEEN ITS MOST IMPORTANT WAR EXPORTS.

FOURTEENTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, JUNE 28-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES ARMY 14TH AIR FORCE, THE WORLD'S SMALLEST AIR FORCE OPERATING IN THE LARGEST TERRITORY, WILL WIND UP ITS FIRST YEAR JULY 4--A YEAR OF THRILLING ACHIEVEMENTS WHICH HAVE SURPRISED EVERYONE, ESPECIALLY THE JAPANESE IN CHINA, BURMA AND INDO-CHINA.

THE BIRTHDAY WILL BE THE OCCASION FOR A CELEBRATION THROUGHOUT THE THEATER OF OPERATIONS--BY CHINESE AS WELL AS AMERICANS.

AN ADDRESS BY THE 14TH'S COLORFUL COMMANDER, MAJ.GEN.CLAIRE L. CHENNAULT AND FIREWORKS ARE ON THE JULY 4 PROGRAM.

UNDER CHENNAULT'S BRILLIANT GUIDANCE, THE 14TH NOT ONLY SUCCEEDED IN FULFILLING ITS FIRST YEAR'S MISSION OF KEEPING THE JAPANESE AT BAY UNTIL REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVED, BUT LASHED OUT OFFENSIVELY IN CLOSE COOPERATION WITH CHINESE GROUND FORCES.

JUL -2 1943

THE MOST DRAMATIC DEMONSTRATION OF AN OFFENSIVE TURN CAME RECENTLY WHEN AMERICAN BOMBER-FIGHTERS ATTACKED THE JAPANESE IN THE ICHANG AREA, ENABLING THE CHINESE TO RECAPTURE IMPORTANT POSITIONS. AS IMPORTANT AS THE EFFECT OF THE AMERICANS' BOMBS AND BULLETS WAS THE EFFECT ON CHINESE MORALE.

FOR YEARS THE CHINESE SAW NOTHING BUT JAPANESE PLANES OVERHEAD. WHEN THE AMERICAN PLANES CAME, THE CHINESE CHEERED AND SMASHED FORWARD.

JUL -2 1943

THE 14TH'S EXPLOITS HAVE EQUALLED--IN SOME RESPECTS SURPASSED--THOSE OF THE MUCH PUBLICIZED AMERICAN VOLUNTEER GROUP WHICH PRECEDED IT. CHENNAULT ALSO HEADED THAT OUTFIT.

WHEN THE UNITED STATES TOOK OVER THE AVG, THE NEW ORGANIZATION WAS NAMED THE CHINA AIR TASK FORCE OF THE 10TH AIR FORCE, AND THEN BECAME THE 14TH LAST MARCH.

CHENNAULT NOW HAS P-40'S, MITCHELLS AND LIBERATORS IN HIS FLYING ARTILLERY.

DURING THE LAST YEAR THE P-40'S ROLLED UP 2,569 MISSIONS, COMPRISING 5,325 SORTIES--A SORTIE BEING ONE PLANE ON ONE MISSION. ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL FIGURES THEY DESTROYED 206 JAPANESE PLANES IN THE AIR AND 22 ON THE GROUND, AND PROBABLY DESTROYED 98 MORE.

THEIR LOSSES ARE LISTED AS 15 PLANES LOST IN COMBAT, 15 LOST BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, AND EIGHT ON THE GROUND. EIGHT AMERICAN PILOTS WERE KILLED IN COMBAT AND ONE BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. THREE ARE MISSING.

NINE P-40 PILOTS BECAME ACES BY DESTROYING FIVE OR MORE ENEMY PLANES.

THE LEADING ACE WAS CAPT.JOHN HAMPSHIRE, 25, OF GRANTS PASS, O

30.24—5589

WHO DESTROYED 13 IN THE AIR AND ONE ON THE GROUND BEFORE HE WAS KILLED IN ACTION LAST MONTH. HE SHOT DOWN TWO ZEROES BEFORE HE CRASHED IN THAT ENGAGEMENT.

OTHER ACES INCLUDE: COL.ROBERT SCOTT, 35, OF MACON, GA., 11 DESTROYED IN THE AIR AND ONE AGROUND.

COL.BRUCE K.HOLLOWAY, 31, OF KNOXVILLE, TENN., 8.

LT.JAMES W.LITTLE, 23, OF FINCASTLE, KY., 7.

LT.COL.JOHN ALISON, 31, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA., 6.

MAJOR ALBERT J.BAULMER, 29, TRENTON, N.J., 6.

MAJ.EDMUND GOSS, 27, TAMPA, FLA., 6.

MAJ.JOHN D.LOMBARD, 24, IONIA, MICH., 6.

BAULMER, WHO HAS RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES, WAS THE ONLY P-40 PILOT IN THIS THEATER OF WAR WHO HAD TANGLED WITH THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS--THAT WAS IN SPAIN--AS WELL AS WITH THE JAPANESE.

THE MITCHELLS DURING THE YEAR CONDUCTED 77 MISSIONS, COMPRISING 412 SORTIES. IN ADDITION TO BOMBING THEIR TARGETS THEY DESTROYED 10 ENEMY PLANES IN THE AIR AND 82 ON THE GROUND.

FIFTEEN OTHER JAPANESE PLANES WERE PROBABLY DESTROYED IN THE AIR AN MANY OTHERS ON THE GROUND, AGAINST THE LOSS OF TWO MITCHELLS.

THE LIBERATORS HAVE BEEN WITH THE 14TH ONLY SINCE MAY 4 BUT ALREADY HAVE CONDUCTED 75 SORTIES, DESTROYED 23 ENEMY PLANES AND PROBABLY HAVE DESTROYED EIGHT MORE, OFFICIAL RECORDS SHOW.

IN ADDITION THEY ACCOMPLISHED HEAVY BOMBINGS OF HAINAN ISLAND, CANTON AND THE ICHANG AREA, AND DID IT ALL WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A PLANE OR PERSONNEL IN COMBAT.

JUL -2 1943

FROM CHENNAULT DOWN, THE 14TH TO A MAN IS PROUD OF THE RECORD. BUT AS ONE CAPTAIN PUT IT: "WE'RE GOING TO GIVE THE JAPS 10 TIMES AS MUCH HELL THIS YEAR."

JUL -2 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA,JULY 1-(AP)-AMERICAN BOMBERS PINNED THE JAPANESE AIRFORCE TO ITS BASES IN NEW BRITAIN AND NEW GUINEA WHILE AMERICAN ARMY UNITS GAINED A FIGHTING FOOTHOLD AT NASSAU BAY AND LANDED UNOPPOSED ON TROBRIAND AND WOODLARK ISLANDS UNDER COVER OF ALLIED WARSHIPS.

THE STRATEGICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CONCERTED OPERATIONS OVERSHADOWED THEIR MAGNITUDE. THE CLOSELY CORRELATED THRUSTS ALONG A 700-MILE ARC FROM NASSAU BAY, IN NORTHEAST NEW GUINEA, TO NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, IN THE SOLOMONS, DO NOT CONSTITUTE A MAJOR OFFENSIVE CALCULATED TO ROLL BACK THE JAPANESE.

BUT THE SPEEDY THREE-DIMENSIONAL ACTIONS DO MARK THE BEGINNING--A SMALL BEGINNING--OF THE UNFOLDING PATTERN OF RECONQUEST IN THE ISLAND-STUDDED REACHES OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. JUL -2 1943

THE SHORES OF NASSAU BAY WERE NOT HELD STRONGLY BY THE ENEMY, BUT AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO FOUGHT THEIR WAY TO A FOOTHOLD AFTER CLAMBERING OUT OF SURF-BATTERED LANDING CRAFT GUARDED BY SPEEDY MOTOR TORPEDO BOATS ARE NOW IN CONTACT WITH THE JAPANESE. THE SCENE OF THE ACTION IS ONLY 12 MILES SOUTH OF SALAMAUA AND EIGHT MILES FROM MUBO, THE OUTLYING BUTTRESS OF THE ENEMY'S LONG-HELD LAESALAMAUA BASE.

RABAUL, THE SOUTHEASTERN ANCHOR OF JAPAN'S LATERAL AND VERTICAL CHAINS OF OFFENSIVE-DEFENSIVE ISLAND BASES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, HAS BEEN DEVELOPED INTO A POWERFUL BASTION. BUT CONTROL OF KIRIWINIA, PRINCIPAL ISLAND OF THE TROBRIAND GROUP, AND WOODLARK (OFTEN DESIGNATED BY THE NATIVE NAME MURUA) BRING RABAUL AND GASMATA--THE LATTER A SECONDARY JAPANESE AIR BASE ON THE SOUTH COAST OF NEW BRITAIN--WITHIN FIGHTER PLANE RANGE. JUL -2 1943

ONLY A YEAR AGO GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR'S AIR FORCE WAS BOMBING INTO IMPOTENCE AND EVENTUAL ABANDONMENT THE JAPANESE FLOAT PLANE BASE ON DERQYNE LAGOON IN THE LOUISIADE ARCHIPELAGO 115 MILES SOUTH OF WOODLARK ISLAND.

AS FOR THE OTHER ARM OF THE CURRENT ALLIED OFFENSIVE--THAT DRIVING NORTHWESTWARD THROUGH THE SOLOMONS--IT MAY SERVE TO NEUTRALIZE MUNDA AIRFIELD AND OTHER JAPANESE BASES IN THE NEW GEORGIA GROUP WHICH LONG HAVE CONSTITUTED A THREAT TO AMERICAN AIR AND SEA CONTROL OF THE SOUTHERN SOLOMONS.

IF PUSHED THROUGH TO SUCCESS, LANDINGS ON RENDOVA AND THE MAIN ISLAND OF NEW GEORGIA NOT ONLY WILL REMOVE THIS THREAT BUT MORE SIGNIFICANTLY, WILL PLACE AMERICAN AIRPOWER WITHIN 144 MILES OF THE JAPANESE BASE OF BUIN ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND GROUP, 266 MILES FROM BUKA, WHICH PROTECTS RABAUL'S EASTERN APPROACHES, AND ONLY 438 MILES FROM RABAUL ITSELF.

KIRIWINA IS ONLY 152 MILES FROM GASMATA AND 300 MILES FROM RABAUL. WOODLARK ISLAND, 100 MILES EAST OF KIRIWINA, IS SLIGHTLY FARTHER FROM THE ENEMY'S BASES ON NEW BRITAIN.

30.24—5593

EQUALLY IMPORTANT TO THE FUTURE EMPLOYMENT OF THESE NEWLY WON BASES IS THE FACT THAT KIRIWINA IS ONLY 118 MILES AND WOODLARK 180 MILES FROM THE ALLIED BASE AT MILNE BAY, AT THE EASTERN TIP OF NEW GUINEA. MOREOVER, THE AIR AND WATER SUPPLY ROUTE BETWEEN MILNE BAY AND THE ISLANDS IS DOMINATED BY ALLIED AIR AND SURFACE CRAFT.

THE JAPANESE NEVER OCCUPIED THE TROBRIAND AND WOODLARK ISLANDS, BUT ALLIED PATROLS HAD VISITED THEM PRIOR TO THEIR OCCUPATION, ANNOUNCED TODAY.

JUL -2 1943

SO SWIFTLY AND SECRETLY DID THE AMERICANS TAKE POSSESSION THAT THE JAPANESE APPARENTLY WERE UNAWARE THE MOVE WAS UNDER WAY. PRELIMINARY REPORTS INDICATED THAT NEITHER ESCORTING SURFACE CRAFT NOR THE FIGHTER PLANE UMBRELLA THROWN OVER THE AREA EVEN WERE CHALLENGED BY THE ENEMY.

NEW GEORGIA DESCRIPTIVE

BY MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA,JULY 1-(AP)-NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE SOLOMONS CHAIN--DECEPTIVELY BEAUTIFUL IN ITS TROPICAL LUXURIANCE -- HAS A HERITAGE OF WAR AND BLOODLETTING THAT GOES BACK MUCH FARTHER THAN THE PRESENT CONFLICT.

A LAND OF DENSE, TROPICAL JUNGLE PROTECTED BY TREACHEROUS, UNCHARTED CORAL REEFS, ITS BEAUTY IS OFFSET BY MALARIA AND OTHER DISEASES PREVALENT IN THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

JUL -2 1943

ITS DARK, MELANESIAN TYPE NATIVES COME FROM A RACE DESCRIBED AS THE MOST DARING AND MOST SAVAGE OF ALL IN THE SOLOMONS GROUP. THEIR FEROCITY, HOWEVER, HAS BEEN TEMPERED CONSIDERABLY SINCE THE ARRIVAL OF MISSIONARIES IN 1902 AND SINCE THE BRITISH TOOK OVER THE TERRITORY AS A PROTECTORATE.

NEW GEORGIA, ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL ISLANDS OF THE SOLOMONS, IS 32 MILES LONG AND 33 MILES WIDE. ABOUT A YEAR AGO THE JAPANESE BEGAN INFILTRATION TACTICS THROUGHOUT THE ISLAND CHAIN, AN UNDERTAKING WHICH ENDED ABRUPTLY WHEN AMERICAN FORCES THREW THEM OUT OF GUADALCANAL.

WHILE NEW GEORGIA IS THE PRINCIPAL ISLAND IN ITS GROUP, THERE ARE NEARLY A DOZEN SMALLER ISLANDS CLUSTERED TIGHTLY ABOUT IT. THESE INCLUDE RENDOVA, WHERE THE AMERICANS MADE A LANDING YESTERDAY, AND GIZO, WHICH WAS HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BRITISH PROTECTORATE.

THE JAPANESE BUILT AN AIRFIELD AT MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO WANA WANA AND ROBIANA LAGOONS, WHICH LIE ONLY ABOUT SIX MILES ACROSS A STRIP OF WATER FROM THE NORTHERN TIP OF RENDOVA.

THE NEW GEORGIA ISLAND GROUP IS A DIFFICULT AREA IN WHICH TO WAGE WAR BECAUSE OF THE JUNGLE AND MOUNTAINS WHICH RISE SHARPLY FROM SEA LEVEL TO NEARLY 4,000 FEET.

THE CENTRAL ISLAND HAS THE LARGEST LAND-ENCLOSED LAGOON IN THE WORLD. IT IS CALLED MAROVO AND IS ENTERED THROUGH A NARROW OPENING BETWEEN STEEP CLIFFS.

UNTIL COMPARATIVELY RECENT TIMES THE NATIVES LIVED UP TO THEIR REPUTATION FOR SAVAGERY. IN THEIR WAR CANOES OR TOMOKOES THEY SAILED HUNDREDS OF MILES ON HEAD-HUNTING RAIDS, GOING EVEN AS FAR AS FLORIDA ISLAND IN THE GUADALCANAL AREA SOME 250 MILES TO THE EAST.

JUL -2 1943

THEY LOOKED UPON THE NATIVES OF CHOISIUL AND SANTA ISABEL AS LEGITIMATE PREY AND ALMOST DEPOPULATED THESE ISLANDS BY CARRYING OFF NOT ONLY HUMAN HEADS BUT ALSO SLAVES.

WHILE THE NEW GEORGIANS WERE CANNIBALS, THEIR CANNIBALISM DIFFERED FROM THAT OF THE FIJIANS, WHO ATE HUMAN FLESH BECAUSE THEY LIKED IT. THE NEW GEORGIANS ATE HUMAN FLESH IN CONNECTION WITH HUMAN SACRIFICES AND GREAT RELIGIOUS FESTIVALS.

THEY WERE CRAFTY AND CRUEL BUT UNSURPASSED IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF NATIVE CANOES. SORCERY AND WITHCRAFT FLOURISHED. ALL THINGS WERE ATTRIBUTED TO WITCHCRAFT, AND THE MOST REVOLTING CRUELTY WAS PRACTICED TO EXTORT CONFESSIONS FROM WOMEN CHARGED WITH OFFENSES. THE WOMEN WERE BEASTS OF BURDEN, DOING MOST OF THE WORK.

THE NATIVES HAD UNUSUAL CUSTOMS. ONE OF THE MOST PECULIAR WAS IN CONNECTION WITH THE BIRTH OF CHILDREN. THE MOTHER WAS NOT ALLOWED TO GIVE BIRTH IN A VILLAGE, AND WOMEN FRIENDS AND RELATIVES BUILT HER A TINY SHELTER IN THE JUNGLE, UNTOUCHED BY MALE HANDS. FOR 14 DAYS AFTER THE BIRTH, THE FATHER WAS NOT PERMITTED TO SEE EITHER HIS WIFE OR THE CHILD.

AMONG THOSE RECEIVING THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER WERE CAPT.HARRY ... STALEY, 10 NORTH ST., GENESEO, N.Y.; STAFF SGT.HARVEY C.... BANCROFT, 420 PROSPECT ST., WATERTOWN, N.Y.; FIRST LIEUT. KENNETH W.BECKSTROM, VAUGHN, MONT.; FIRST LIEUT.ROBERT H. BUTLER, ST.PAULS, N.C.; STAFF SGT.GEORGE E.DIRR JR., 1445 NORTH WALLACE AVE., INDIANAPOLIS, IND., AND STAFF SGT.EDWARD P.WELCOME, CANADA HILL, TURNERS FALLS, MASS., BOTH AWARDED SECOND OAK LEAF CLUSTERS IN LIEU OF ADDITIONAL AIR MEDALS; CORP. CHARLES S.RESER, 4760 SOUTH WEST SECOND TERRACE, MIAMI, FLA.; FIRST LIEUT.JOSEPH C.WILFERT, CROWLEY, LA.; PFC OLIVER CSONTOS, (CORRECT) 900 SUMMIT AVE., BROWNX, N.Y.

THIS WAS THE SECOND AWARD OF THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER FOR BANCROFT, BECKSTROM, BUTLER, MCCULLAR AND PAZ. IT WAS THE THIRD FOR STALEY.

THE CITATIONS FOR STALEY, BANCROFT, BECKSTROM, BUTLER, DIRR, WELCOME, RESER, MCCULLAR AND PAZ STATED THAT IN A FLIGHT OVER RABAUL HARBOR, NEW BRITAIN, IN OCTOBER, 1942, THEIR FLYING FORTRESS WAS ENGAGED IN A LOW-LEVEL ATTACK AGAINST JAPANESE SHIPPING. "THIS CREW SUCCESSFULLY BOMBED AN ENEMY DESTROYER FROM A LOW ALTITUDE AND THE WARSHIP WAS LEFT IN A SINKING CONDITION," THE STATEMENT SAID. THEN THE FLIERS WENT HIGHER AND MADE A BOMBING RUN IN FACE OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT AND SEARCHLIGHTS, SCORING SEVERAL NEAR MISSES ON SHIPS IN THE HARBOR.

STALEY'S THIRD CLUSTER WAS FOR A FLIGHT OVER FAISI IN THE SOLOMONS IN JANUARY; THE SAME FLIGHT IN WHICH WILFERT, CSONTOS, DIRR AND WELCOME PERFORMED AS HEROES. REACHING FAISI, STALEY SIGHTED TWO CARGO VESSELS AND A WARSHIP AND MADE A LOW LEVEL BOMBING ATTACK IN THE FACE OF INTENSE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. ONE DIRECT HIT EXPLODED INSIDE A CARGO BOAT, AND A SECOND FELL NEAR THE BOAT, THE CITATION SAID. "WHEN THIS CREW LEFT THE AREA THE DAMAGED VESSEL WAS SMOKING BADLY AND LATER RECONNAISSANCE REPORTED IT WAS SUNK. ON THE RETURN FLIGHT TO THE BASE THIS AIRCRAFT ENCOUNTERED UNFAVORABLE WEATHER AND A BLIND LANDING WAS MADE WITH LESS THAN A 15-MINUTE FUEL SUPPLY REMAINING IN THE TANKS."

GREENBURG, THOMPSON AND TOFSON WERE CITED FOR A MISSION OVER THE SEA OFF THE NORTH COAST OF NEW BRITAIN IN MARCH. THEY WERE PATROLLING ENEMY SHIPPING LANES TO LOCATE A JAPANESE CONVOY. THEY HIT BAD WEATHER AS SOON AS THEY TOOK OFF, AND HAD TO FLY LOW. "THE ENEMY CONVOY WAS SIGHTED THROUGH A BREAK IN THE CLOUDS FROM AN ALTITUDE OF 2,000 FEET," THE CITATION SAID, "AND THE ENEMY'S POSITION WAS RADIOED TO THE BASE. THIS CREW WAS INSTRUCTED TO SHADOW THE HOSTILE VESSELS UNTIL OUR BOMBERS COULD REACH THE TARGET AREA. WHEN THE FLYING FORTRESSES ARRIVED OVER THE CONVOY, THIS AIRCRAFT GUIDED THEM INTO A POSITION FOR THE BOMBING RUN, X X X THEN REMAINED X X X TO DRAW ENEMY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, IN ORDER THAT THE BOMBERS COULD REACH THE PROPER ALTITUDE WITHOUT OPPOSITION. THIS CREW REMAINED IN THE TARGET AREA FOR OVER TWO AND ONE-HALF HOURS, CONTINUING THE RECONNAISSANCE WHICH CONTRIBUTED GREATLY TO THE ANNIHILATION OF THE ENEMY CONVOY."

CURREN, HARDIN AND MESSER FLEW IN A FORTRESS WHICH ATTACKED ENEMY SHIPPING NEAR KAVIENG, NEW IRELAND, IN APRIL. THEY ENCOUNTERED ENEMY SEARCHLIGHTS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, BUT ON A LOW-LEVEL RECORED THREE DIRE

RUN SCORED THREE DIRECT HITS AND ONE NEAR MISS ON A ENEMY WARSHIP, WHICH BURST INTO FLAMES AND EXPLODED. "WHEN LAST SEEN," THE CITATION SAID, "THE VESSEL WAS IN A SINKING CONDITION. THOUGH DAMAGED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, THIS AIRCRAFT RETURNED SAFELY TO ITS HOME BASE.

BALDWIN, ROBERTSON, PAICH, TATRO, COUSINO, NISBET, RUDEY AND JINGOZIAN WERE CITED FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT ON A MISSION OVER RABAUL IN JANUARY. THEY FLEW THROUGH VIOLENT THUNDERSTORMS IN A FORTRESS, AND IN THE FACE OF HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, SCORED A DIRECT HIT AND A NEAR MISS ON A JAPANESE TRANSPORT. THEY LEFT THE SHIP BURNING AND LISTING BADLY THEN, HAVING SOME BOMBS LEFT, THEY MADE A RUN OVER ENEMY GROUND INSTALLATIONS AT VUNAKANAU AIRDROME, SCORING TWO HITS ON THE RUNWAY AND MAKING IT PARTIALLY UNSERVICEABLE.

CITATIONS ALSO TOLD THE STORY OF THE EXPLOITS OF ADAMS, FAIRCHILD, RACIOPPO, DISILVIO, BAKER, ELSASSER, ENGEL, AND WILSON.

THEIR FORTRESS WAS ENGAGED IN A SINGLE PLANE RECONNAISSANCE MISSION NORTH OF CAPE GLOUVESTER, NEW BRITAIN, LAST NOVEMBER, SHADOWING A CONVOY OF FOUR JAPANESE WARSHIPS. THEY WERE INTERCEPTED BY JAPANESE FIGHTERS WHICH MADE SIMULTANEOUS FRONTAL ATTACKS. "IN THE ENSUING ENGAGEMENT THE GUNNERS OF THIS CREW DESTROYED ONE ENEMY FIGHTER AND BADLY DAMAGED ANOTHER," THE CITATION SAID. "THOUGH THE AIRCRAFT WAS DAMAGED BY ENEMY CANNON AND MACHINE GUN FIRE, THIS CREW CONTINUED TO SHADOW THE HOSTILE CONVOY AND MAKE PERIODIC REPORTS OF WEATHER CONDITIONS AND THE ENEMY'S POSITION UNTIL RELIEVED."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, FRIDAY, JULY 2-(AP)- CORRESPONDENTS COVERING GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS USED APPROXIMATELY 26,000 WORDS TO TELL THE WORLD ABOUT THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC YESTERDAY.

THE REPORTERS SENT 373 MESSAGES OVERSEAS, A GREATER NUMBER THAN THAT USED TO DESCRIBE THE THRILLING BISMARCK SEA, BATTLE OF LAST MARCH IN WHICH A 22-SHIP JAPANESE CONVOY WAS DESTROYED BY AIR BOMBARDMENT. TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-ONE OF THE MESSAGES WERE SENT IN THE 11-HOUR PERIOD BEGINNING AT 1 P.M. JULY 1 (AUSTRALIAN TIME).

AUSTRALIAN NEWSPAPERS PRINTED 28,770 WORDS ON THE NEW THRUST AGAINST THE JAPANESE. THIS WORDAGE WAS LESS THAN THAT USED IN PRESENTING THE NEWS OF THE BISMARCK SEA BATTLE. HOWEVER, THERE WERE SEVERAL CORRESPONDENTS WHO WERE ABLE TO GIVE EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNTS OF THAT NAVAL ENGAGEMENT. THERE WERE CORRESPONDENTS, TOO, WITH THE ALLIED FORCES WHICH OCCUPIED THE TROBRIAND AND WOODLARK ISLANDS BUT THERE WAS NONE WITH THE FORCES AT NASSAU BAY.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,JULY 1-(AP)-THE BOYS WHO RUN THE RABAUL "MILK RUN" AND WHO RAN IT FOR THE UMPTEENTH TIME LAST NIGHT, HAVE A MYSTERY CONFRONTING THEM WHICH NONE HAS BEEN ABLE TO SOLVE -- THE MYSTERY OF WHO STARTED THE LARGE FIRES FOUND BLAZING IN THE DISPERSAL BAYS OF THE JAPANESE VUNAKANAU AIRDROME.

CORRESPONDENTS FIRST ASKED AN EXPLANATION OF CAPT.ARTHUR I.CURREN OF PATERSON,N.J., THE FLYING FORTRESS PILOT WHO FLEW TO NEW BRITAIN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON AND RETURNED TO NEW GUINEA AND WENT OUT AGAIN IN THE EVENING. BUT CURREN SAID HE HADN'T CARRIED ENOUGH BOMBS TO START ANY SIZABLE FIRE.

THE BOYS THEN HUNTED UP LIEUT.JACK M.BERKOVITZ, LOS ANGELES, WHO HAD GONE OUT AHEAD. BOTH HE AND CO-PILOT CHARLES A.WALKER OF AUSTIN,TEX., SAID THEIR FRAGMENTATION AND INCENDIARY BOMBS HAD STARTED THREE FIRES, BUT THESE HAD APPEARED TO BE DYING OUT WHEN THEY LEFT THE TARGET AREA.

LIEUT.ALTON G.BOYD, HOUSTON,TEX., LIKEWISE OFFERED LITTLE HELP. HE LED THE LIBERATORS OVER VUNAKANAU. BOYD'S BOMBARDIER, SECOND LIEUT.JAMES W.SMITH, HAYES STORE,VA., WAS RIDING HIS FIRST COMBAT MISSION.

"THE THING THAT PUZZLED US WAS THE LACK OF ACK ACK," BOYD CONTINUED. "ESPECIALLY SINCE THE GUY BEHIND US RAN INTO ENOUGH STUFF TO MAKE THE BIGGEST FOURTH OF JULY YOU EVER SAW."

THE PILOT WHO DREW ALL THAT FIRE WAS CAPT.HAROLD H.BRECKT, OKMULGEE,OKLA. BUT AS FAR AS COULD BE DETERMINED, EVEN I DISCLAIMED ANY CREDIT FOR THE CONFLAGRATION WHICH INTELLIGENCE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN THE LARGEST EVER STARTED IN RABAUL.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 1-(AP)-PATROL TORPEDO BOAT 99 PULLED AWAY FROM HER JUNGLE HIDEOUT, MOVED SLOWLY DOWN A SLUGGISH SALT WATER CREEK TO THE SEA. SHE WAS LOOKING FOR TROUBLE--JAP TROUBLE.

THAT SHE DIDN'T FIND IT WASN'T HER FAULT. SHE SAILD STRAIGHT INTO THE JAPANESE BACK YARD AT SALAMAUA AND LAE AS THOUGH DARING THE ENEMY TO COME OUT AND FIGHT.

"THERE MAY BE TROUBLE AND AGAIN THERE MAY NOT, BUT YOU'RE WELCOME TO COME ALONG," WAS LIEUTENANT JOHN S.BAYLIS' INVITATION FOR ME TO MAKE THE TRIP. "IT JUST DEPENDS ON HOW BADLY THE NIPS WANT TO TRY TO BREAK THROUGH THE BLOCKADE AROUND LAE AND SALAMAUA."

THE PT 99 IS A TRIM LITTLE CRAFT, EIGHTY FEET LONG, BUT SHE PACKS A MIGHTY WALLOP. SUBMARINES ARE HER MEAT, PROVIDED SHE CAN GET IN CLOSE ENOUGH TO DISCHARGE HER TORPEDOES BEFORE THE SUB CRASH DIVES.

MARRIED, HIS WIFE LIVES IN UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. HIS EXECUTIVE OFFICER WAS TALL, PIPE-SMOKING ENSIGN ARCHIBALD PEABODY, BOXFORD, MASS.

JUL -2 1943

THERE WAS NO SIGN OF TENSENESS AS NIGHT CAME. THE MEN SAT AROUND TALKING AND LISTENING TO A SAN FRANCISCO NEWS BROADCAST. AT A SIGNAL FROM BAYLIS THEY WENT TO WORK, CAST OFF LINES WHICH TIED THE BOAT TO TREES ALONG THE WATER.

JOHN STOCKMAN, HOUSTON, TEX., STOOD BY THE BIG ENGINES BELOW DECK AND EVEN THE BOAT'S COOK, ARTHUR NIELSEN, 9216 FOURTH AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y., WAS ON HAND TO HELP. THE BOAT WAS READY FOR COMBAT.

ONCE OUT IN THE OPEN WATER, THE BOAT SPEEDED UP.

THE MOON LIFTED HIGHER, "LOVER'S MOON" IN THE STATES, BUT OUT HERE A BOMBER'S MOON. BAYLIS, PEABODY, AND THEIR MEN SWEPT THE SEA WITH POWERFUL GLASSES, ALTERNATELY SCANNING THE SKY. BUT SEA AND SKY WERE EMPTY.

AFTER A WHILE BAYLIS POINTED TO THE SHORE STRAIGHT AHEAD AND SAID, "THAT'S SALAMAUA AND TO THE RIGHT IS LAE." WITHIN A FEW MILES OF EACH OTHER, THEY ARE STRONGHOLDS SWARMING WITH JAPANESE.

BAYLIS PRESSED A BUZZER--"BATTLE QUARTERS"--AND ALL THE MEN WHO HAD BEEN BELOW DECKS CAME UP TO STAND BY THEIR GUNS. FOR WHAT SEEMED LIKE HOURS, WE STOOD WATCH UNTIL BAYLIS SAID "TIME TO GO." HE TURNED THE BOAT BACK TOWARD FRIENDLY WATERS.

WE PROCEEDED SLOWLY WITH ENGINES MUFFLED FOR A TIME AND THEN OPENED UP THE THROATY ROAR OF THE ENGINES DROWNING OUT TALK. THE SUN WAS JUST COMING OVER THE HORIZON WHEN WE REACHED BASE.

AN ADVANCED BASE SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JULY 1-(AP)-A TORPEDO CRASHED INTO THE SIDE OF A JAPANESE SUBMARINE OFF THE COAST OF NEW GUINEA ONE MOONLIGHT NIGHT DURING THE CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

THE SUBMARINE BROKE IN TWO AND SANK WITH ALL ABOARD.

AMERICAN PATROL TORPEDO BOATS HAD GONE INTO ACTION.

WORD OF THE SINKING OF THE SUBMARINE BY A SWIFT HARD-HITTING TORPEDO BOAT COMMANDED BY ENSIGN T.F.BRUNO OF PENSACOLA,FLA., WAS RELAYED JUBILANTLY BY WORD OF MOUTH ALL ALONG THE PAPUAN BATTLE-FRONT.

THE JAPANESE LEARNED OF THE PT BOAT'S ARRIVAL TOO. JAPANESE BARGES SEEKING TO RUN THE ALLIED AERIAL BLOCKADE UNDER COVER OF NIGHT, FOUND THE PTS IN THEIR MIDST, SLASHING AT THEM WITH MACHINE GUNS, CANNON AND DEPTH CHARGES.

PUSH, MISTOOK ONE BOAT COMMANDED BY ENSIGN SKIP DEAN OF SAN DIEGO, CALIF., FOR THEIR OWN SUBMARINE AND TRIED TO GO ABOARD, ONLY TO BE CUT DOWN BY PISTOL AND MACHINE GUN FIRE.

TWO BOATS SKIPPERED BY LIEUTENANTS (JG) JOHN S.BAYLIS,JR., 154 WATCHUNG AVE., UPPER MONTCLAIR,N.J., AND RUSSELL HAMACHEK, MANITOWOC,WIS., DEALT ONE OF THE LAST BLOWS OF THE BISMARCK SEA ACTION. THEY FOUND A DAMAGED TROOPSHIP OF ABOUT 8,000 TONS AND SENT IT TO THE BOTTOM WITH THEIR TORPEDOES.

JUL -2 1943

THE PT BOATS ARE DEALING DEADLY BLOWS AT THE JAPANESE, BUT WORD THEY HAD GONE INTO ACTION WAS WITHHELD UNTIL IT HAD BEEN DETERMINED DEFINITELY THAT THE JAPANESE KNEW THE BOATS WERE HERE.

WHEN NIGHT CLOAKS THE PACIFIC IN DARKNESS, THEY SLIP FROM THEIR HIDE-OUTS LIKE BEASTS OF PREY GOING ON THE HUNT. PAINTED TO BLEND WITH THE JUNGLE BACKGROUND, THE PT'S BRAVE ENEMY WATERS WHERE JAGGED REEFS STAND AS A CONSTANT MENACE. NO BOAT HAS BEEN LOST THROUGH ENEMY ACTION, BUT THE INTREPID COMMANDERS HAVE FOUND REEFS AND FLOATING LOGS HARD ON THEIR FRAGILE CRAFT.

BAYLIS WENT OUT ONE NIGHT DURING THE BISMARCK SEA BATTLE IN SEARCH FOR AN AMERICAN PILOT FORCED DOWN AT SEA. THE BOAT SKIMMED THE TOP OF THE WATER LEAVING A FOAMY WAKE BEHIND. THREE PROPELLERS CHURNED WATER AT THE STERN AS THE BOAT COVERED A WIDE AREA, STOPPING OCCASIONALLY WHILE THE CREW SHOUTED FOR THE PILOT.

AT DAWN, THE BOAT GAVE UP THE UNSUCCESSFUL HUNT AND STARTED BACK TO ITS HIDEOUT, WHEN SUDDENLY, ON THE HORIZON, THE CREW SPOTTED A SUBMARINE SURROUNDED BY A NUMBER OF SMALL BOATS, BARGES AND RAFTS.

"IT WAS TOO LIGHT FOR A SURPRISE ATTACK," BAYLIS SAID. "BUT WE MOVED UP WITHIN 900 YARDS BEFORE FIRING THE FIRST FISH (TORPEDO). WE CUT LOOSE, TOO, WITH OUR GUNS AND PEPPERED THE CONNING TOWER, BUT THE SUB CRASH DIVED, LEAVING THE SURVIVORS OF THE BISMARCK SEA ACTION STILL IN THEIR BOATS AND BARGES.

"IT WAS A DIFFICULT THING TO DO BUT WE KNEW THE JAPANESE WOULD BE HARD TO ROOT OUT IF WE LET THEM ASHORE. SO ROUND AND ROUND WE WENT, MACHINE GUNNING JAPS. IN ONE PLACE WE FOUND QUITE A NUMBER TOGETHER AND DROPPED DEPTH CHARGES, BLOWING THE JAPS TO PIECES."

JAMES H.RUSSELL, ST.PAUL PARK,MINN., TORPEDOMAN SECOND CLASS, TOLD HOW THE PT CIRCLED ONE LIFE BOAT AND SAW THE BOTTOM FILLED WITH DEAD. THINKING THERE WERE NO LIVE JAPS THERE, THE PATROL CRAFT LEFT.

JUL -2 1943

"BUT AS WE TURNED TO GO OUR WAY, WE WERE AGAIN CLOSE TO THE LIFE BOAT AND I LEANED OVER FOR ONE MORE LOOK," RUSSELL SAID. "JUST THEN A JAP RAISED UP AND LOOKED ME SQUARE IN THE FACE. HE WAS AS SURPRISED AS I. WE FINISHED HIM WITH A TOMMY GUN."

ENSIGN BRUNO HAD LIEUT. (SG) D.F.BAUGHMAN OF WASHINGTON,D.C., AND ENSIGN ROBERT LYNCH, NEW YORK CITY, ABOARD THE NIGHT HE BAGGED THE FIRST SUBMARINE WITH A TORPEDO THAT BROKE IT IN TWO.

THE SUB WAS UNLOADING SUPPLIES FOR TROOPS NEAR THE KUMUSI RIVER.

ONE PT'S HAVE BEEN DEATH ON JAPANESE LANDING BARGES ALTHOUGH THE LATTER ARE HEAVILY ARMORED AND HAVE PUT MORE THAN ONE HOLE IN THE AMERICAN BOATS. MORE THAN 25 BARGES HAVE BEEN SUNK.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS,JULY 1-(AP)-THE NAVY DEPARTMENT'S COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING THE LANDING OF UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES IN THE NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS MARKED THE EXECUTION OF AN OFFENSIVE PLAN SUPPORTED BY SUCH EXHAUSTIVE PREPARATION THAT IT COULDN'T VERY WELL FAIL.

IT IS THE FIRST OFFENSIVE MOVE IN THIS AREA SINCE THE RUSSELL ISLANDS WERE OCCUPIED IN FEBRUARY AFTER THE LONG BATTLE AT GUADAL-CANAL. MANY OFFICERS AND MEN HAVE BEEN WAITING IMPATIENTLY FOR THIS MOVE WHICH PUTS AMERICAN FORCES ABOUT 120 MILES FARTHER NORTHWEST UP THE SOLOMON ISLANDS LINE.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS DECLINED TO AMPLIFY WASHINGTON'S BRIEF COMMUNIQUE IMMEDIATELY. THE NEW GEORGIA GROUP IS IN EASY RANGE OF JAPANESE PLANES BASED AT BUIN, KAHILI, BUKA AND REKATA BAY IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS, AND FIERCE, DETERMINED COUNTERACTION BY AIR CAN BE EXPECTED PROMPTLY.

JUL -2 1943

THE JAPANESE ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE CONSIDERABLE GROUND TROOPS IN THE NEW GEORGIAS, AND AMERICAN FORCES ASSIGNED TO THIS JOB WENT IN EXPECTING A FIGHT. THEY ALSO HAD A RIGHT TO EXPECT A STRONGER FOLLOW THROUGH THAN WAS DELIVERED AFTER THE FIRST LANDINGS AT GKADALCANAL AN EXPECTING A FIGHT. THEY ALSO HAD A RIGHT TO EXPECT A STRONGER FOLLOW THROUGH THAN WAS DELIVERED AFTER THE FIRST LANDINGS AT GUADALCANAL AND TULAGI.

THE MAIN TARGET OF THE PRESENT THRUST PROBABLY WILL PROVE TO BE MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA PROPER. MUNDA IS THE SITE OF A JAPANESE AIRDROME WHICH HAS BEEN BOMBED FOR MONTHS PAST.

WASHINGTON,JULY 1-(AP)-POWERFUL AMERICAN SEA AND AIR FORCES BEAT OFF JAPAN'S FIRST AERIAL COUNTERATTACK ON THE SOLOMONS PRONG OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC OFFENSIVE, THE NAVY ANNOUNCED TODAY, WHILE TROOPS ASHORE ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND CAPTURED VIRU HARBOR, ONLY 30 NAUTICAL MILES SOUTHEAST OF THE ENEMY'S MUNDA AIR BASE.

AT LEAST 65 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED IN A VIOLENT ALL DAY

30.24—5603

BATTLE OFF RENDOVA ISLAND TWO DAYS AGO WHEN AMERICAN TROOPS WERE FIRST BEING DISCHARGED THERE IN A FLANKING MOVE ON MUNDA, FIVE MILES AWAY. THIS WAS MORE THAN HALF THE ESTIMATED TOTAL OF 110 ENEMY FIGHTERS, LEVEL BOMBERS, DIVE BOMBERS AND TORPEDO PLANES, WHICH TOOK PART IN THE SUCCESSIVE ASSAULTS.

JUL -2 1943

A NAVY COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT 17 UNITED STATES AIRCRAFT WERE REPORTED MISSING AND THAT THE 7,712-TON TRANSPORT MCCAWLEY WAS DAMAGED IN THE AIR ATTACK AND LATER SUNK BY A JAPANESE SUBMARINE. THE TROOPS SHE CARRIED TO THE AREA ALREADY HAD BEEN PUT ASHORE, AND AVAILABLE INFORMATION INDICATED THERE WAS NO LOSS OF LIFE IN THE SINKING.

IN THE NEW GUINEA AREA, WHERE GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IS PERSONALLY DIRECTING OPERATIONS, THE WESTERN PRONG OF THE DRIVE AIMED AT THE BIG ENEMY BASE OF RABAUL APPARENTLY WAS CONTINUING TO DEVELOP IN THE DIRECTION OF SALAMAUA, JAPANESE OUTPOST PROTECTING THE FLANK OF RABAUL.

GENERALLY THE OVERALL PROGRESS OF THIS GREATEST OFFENSIVE OF THE PACIFIC WAR, UNDER THE OVER-ALL DIRECTION OF MACARTHUR, WAS OFFICIALLY DESCRIBED AS GOING ALONG VERY WELL.

JUL -2 1943

SECRETARY OF WAR STIMSON SUMMED UP THE RESULTS OF TWO DAYS OF COORDINATED ATTACKS ON THE NEW GUINEA AND SOLOMONS FRONTS, 500 MILES APART, BY TELLING A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT "REPORTS ARE INCOMPLETE BUT SATISFACTORY PROGRESS APPARENTLY ALREADY HAS BEEN MADE."

"OUR FORCES HAVE REACHED THE OUTER DEFENSES OF JAPAN," HE SAID, "AND STRONG ENEMY REACTION MAY BE EXPECTED." CLEARLY INDICATING THE SCOPE OF THE OPERATION AND THE GREAT STRIKING POWER OF THE UNITS INVOLVED, STIMSON SPOKE OF THE DRIVE AS A "COORDINATED ATTACK OF LAND, SEA, AND AIR FORCES." HE SAID IT WAS PLANNED IN WASHINGTON SEVERAL WEEKS AGO.

WHAT THE JAPANESE FLEET WOULD DO CONTINUED TO BE ONE OF THE MAJOR QUESTIONS OF SPECULATION IN WASHINGTON. IN VIEW OF WHAT STIMSON SAID, IT SEEMED POSSIBLE HE ANTICIPATED THAT THE ENEMY UNITS BASED AT TRUK, ABOUT 1,000 MILES NORTH OF RABAUL, MIGHT SOON BE THROWN INTO THE COMBAT.

THE PURPOSE OF MACARTHUR'S TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA APPEARED TO BE TO KNOCK OUT SALAMAUA AND WIN CONTROL OF THE AIR FIELDS IN THAT VICINITY TO FACILITATE ATTACKS ON RABAUL. THE OBJECTIVE OF THE FORCES UNDER COMMAND OF ADMIRAL WILLIAM S.HALSEY,JR., IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, PRESUMABLY IS THE MUNDA AIRBASE AREA, INCLUDING NOT ONLY THE FIELDS ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND WHERE MUNDA IS SITUATED BUT ALSO THOSE ON NEARBY KOLOMBANGARA.

THE CAPTURE OF VIRU IS EXPECTED TO FACILITATE OPERATIONS AGAINST MUNDA CONSIDERABLY. VIRU HARBOR OFFERS THE ONLY SHELTER OR ANCHORAGE ALONG THAT ENTIRE SECTION OF THE NEW GEORGIA COAST.

TODAY'S COMMUNIQUES SKETCHED IN SOME DETAILS OF THE INITIAL OPERATIONS WHICH WERE OMITTED FROM YESTERDAY'S BRIEF ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ATTACK ON RENDOVA.

ON TUESDAY NIGHT, SOLOMON ISLANDS TIME, AMERICAN AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS AND DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS ATTACKED THE AIR FIELD, SUPPLY CENTERS AND CAMP AREAS AT VILA, ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND. THIS SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN A PRELIMINARY, SOFTENING UP RAID, AIMED AT NEUTRALIZING THE ENEMY'S VILA FORCES TEMPORARILY TO PREVENT THEM FROM RUSHING TO THE AID OF RENDOVA AND MUNDA.

THEN ON WEDNESDAY ABOUT THE TIME THAT THE OPERATIONS OFF RENDOVA WERE WELL UNDERWAY, MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS TOGETHER WITH DAUNTLESSES AND AVENGERS ASSAULTED THE ENEMY'S POSITIONS AT MUNDA. THE ONLY RESULT REPORTED WAS THAT A LARGE FIRE WAS STARTED.

AROUND MID-MORNING WEDNESDAY, THE JAPANESE BEGAN THEIR ATTACK ON OUR SHIPS OFF RENDOVA. IN THESE THEY SEEM TO HAVE USED EVERY PLANE WHICH THEY COULD SPARE FROM THE DEFENSE OF OTHER POSITIONS. THROWN INTO THE ATTACKS WERE ZERO FIGHTERS, MITSUBISHI MEDIUM BOMBERS, AICHI DIVE BOMBERS, TORPEDO PLANES AND "VARIOUS OTHER TYPES." THE 65 PLANES SHOT DOWN WERE BAGGED PARTLY BY SHIPBOARD ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE AND PARTLY BY OUR FIGHTER PLANES. THE NUMBER DISTROYED MAY BE GREATER, FOR THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE TABULATION OF 65 WAS BASED ON AN "INCOMPLETE REPORT."

THE LOSS OF THE MCCAULEY WAS DESCRIBED BY THE NAVY IN THESE WORDS:

"THE TRANSPORT MCCAULEY WAS ATTACK AND DISABLED BY JAPANESE PLANES AFTER LANDING TROOPS ON RENDOVA. SUBSQUENTLY THE VESSEL WAS ATTACKED AND SUNK BY A JAPANESE SUBMARINE. REPORTS INDICATE THAT ALL PERSONNEL WERE REMOVED BEFORE THE VESSEL SANK AND THAT THERE WAS NO LOSS OF LIFE."

SKIPPER OF THE TRANSPORT WAS COMMANDER ROBERT HENRY ROGERS, OF ARROCHAR, STATEN ISLAND, NEW YORK, A 1923 GRADUATE OF THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

UNDATED GERMAN-INVASION

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A TRANSOCEAN COMMENTARY BROADCAST BY THE BERLIN RADIO LAST (THURS) NIGHT AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAID GERMANY IS RESIGNED TO THE FACT THAT THE NEXT MAJOR MOVE BY THE UNITED NATIONS WILL BE AN ATTACK ON THE CONTINENT, BUT THAT MILITARY AND POLITICAL CIRCLES INSIDE THE REICH CLAIM THE POSSIBILITIES ARE LESS PROMISING THAN THEY WOULD APPEAR TO ALLIED LEADERS.

GERMAN EXPERTS, ACCORDING TO TRANSOCEAN, BELIEVE THE ALLIES HAVE, IN ALL, SEVEN POSSIBLE INVASION APPROACHES TO AXIS EUROPE BUT THAT IN THE GERMAN VIEW NONE OF THEM CAN SUCCEED.

AS LISTED BY TRANSOCEAN THEY ARE:

JUL -2 1943

1. THE LONG NORWEGIAN COAST.

2. THE SO-CALLED "WET TRIANGLE", BOUNDED BY THE SKAGERRACK, HELGOLAND AND THE EAST FRISIAN ISLANDS.

3. ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

4. NORTH AFRICA THROUGH FRANCE.

5. THE CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN--POSSIBLY AT SEVERAL POINTS SIMULTANEOUSLY.

6. A NEW KIND OF GALLIPOLI ENTERPRISE.

7. ANY OF THE ABOVE APPROACHES COUPLED WITH A SIMULTANEOUS RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE FROM THE EAST.

FIRST LEAD UNDATED U-BOATS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HITLER'S HARASSED U-BOAT FLEETS, PUNISHED BY ALLIED PLANES AND SURFACE CRAFT RECENTLY AS NEVER BEFORE, WERE REPORTED IN OFFICIAL GERMAN BROADCASTS TODAY TO HAVE SUNK ONLY 20 BRITISH AND AMERICAN MERCHANTMEN TOTALING 107,000 TONS IN JUNE.

JUL -2 1943

IT WAS A FAR CRY FROM THE 138 (CORRECT) MERCHANT VESSELS AGGREGATING 851,000 TONS WHICH THE GERMANS CLAIMED AS SUBMARINE VICTIMS IN MARCH. AND EVEN THIS CLAIM OF 20 WAS WITHOUT ALLIED CONFIRMATION.

THE NAZI HIGH COMMAND--WHICH IN THE PAST HAS DEVOTED SPECIAL BULLETINS TO THE WORK OF THE UNDERSEA RAIDERS IN THE BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC--INCORPORATED THE JUNE REPORT IN ITS REGULAR COMMUNIQUE.

"THIRTY-ONE ENEMY MERCHANTMEN AGGREGATING 149,000 TONS, AS WELL AS THREE TRANSPORT LIGHTERS, WERE SUNK IN THE FIGHT AGAINST BRITISH AND AMERICAN COMMUNICATIONS DURING JUNE," SAID THE COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST AS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. "OF THE TOTAL, 107,000 TONS WERE SUNK BY OUR U-BOATS."

ALTHOUGH THE COMMUNIQUE, AS IF TO MAKE COMPARISON WITH PAST CLAIMS MORE DIFFICULT, DID NOT STATE THE TOTAL NUMBER OF SINKINGS ATTRIBUTED TO SUBMARINES, BROADCAST DISPATCHES OF DNB AND TRANSOCEAN SAID THE SCORE WAS TWENTY.

MALCOLM MACDONALD, BRITISH HIGH COMMISSIONER TO CANADA, ANNOUNCED IN OTTAWA TUESDAY THAT AT LEAST 14 ENEMY SUBMARINES HAD BEEN SUNK IN THE PRECEDING TWO WEEKS AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL REPORTED YESTERDAY THAT "MORE THAN 30 U-BOATS WERE CERTAINLY DESTROYED IN THE MONTH OF MAY."

"STAGGERED BY THESE DEADLY LOSSES," CHURCHILL SAID AT THE GUILD-HALL (CORRECT) IN LONDON, THE U-BOATS HAVE RECOILED TO LICK THEIR WOUNDS AND MOURN THEIR DEAD. NOW AS A RESULT OF THE MAY VICTORY (OVER ONE PROLONGED SUBMARINE ATTACK) AND MASSACRE OF U-BOATS WE HAVE HAD IN JUNE THE BEST MONTH WE HAVE EVER KNOWN IN THE WHOLE 46 MONTHS OF THE WAR."

JUL -2 1943

BOTH CARRIER AND LAND-BASED PLANES ARE COOPERATING WITH SURFACE SHIPS IN THE CURRENT FIGHT TO RID THE ATLANTIC OF SUBMARINES. DNB INSISTED, HOWEVER, THAT LOSSES OF U-BOATS IN JUNE "DID NOT EXCEED THE NORMAL AVERAGE" AND SAID THEIR PRODUCTION HAD INCREASED.

IMPLYING THAT AT LEAST SOME OF THE PACKS HAD BEEN ORDERED FROM THE HIGH SEAS TO EUROPEAN COASTAL WATERS, THE NEWS AGENCY SAID AN IMPORTANT PART OF "THE MEASURES TAKEN BY GERMAN MILITARY LEADERS AGAINST THE WESTERN POWERS' EXPECTED OPERATIONS"--ONE WAY OF REFERRING TO INVASION--WOULD BE ASSIGNED TO SUBMARINES.

THE TONNAGE CLAIMED FOR JUNE WAS LESS THAN ONE-THIRD OF THE MAY FIGURE, WHICH WAS THE LOWEST PREVIOUS TOTAL THIS YEAR.

PREVIOUS MONTHLY CLAIMS OF TONNAGES SUNK WERE: JANUARY, 408,000; FEBRUARY, 545,000; MARCH, 851,000; AND APRIL 415,000.

DNB SAID THAT, IN ADDITION TO 20 MERCHANTMEN SUNK IN JUNE, ONE BRITISH CRUISER, ONE DESTROYER, AND THREE SAILING VESSELS WERE SENT TO THE BOTTOM.

JUL -2 1943

SHORTLY BEFORE THE JUNE FIGURES WERE ANNOUNCED, THE GERMAN-CONTROLLED NORWEGIAN RADIO EASED THE BLOW BY SAYING THE DECLINE IN THE U-BOAT CAMPAIGN WAS "THE RESULT OF ARRANGEMENTS BY GERMAN LEADERS TO MEET FUTURE OPERATIONS BY THE WESTERN POWERS. ANOTHER REASON IS THE U-BOATS HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN TO BE EQUIPPED WITH NEW WEAPONS OF ATTACK."

THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND'S COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT ALLIED MERCHANT LOSSES IN JUNE FROM ALL CAUSES--SUBMARINES, AIRCRAFT, SURFACE ACTION AND MINES--WERE 31 SHIPS TOTALING 149,000 TONS. FIFTY-ONE ADDITIONAL VESSELS TOTALING 250,000 TONS WERE DECLARED HEAVILY DAMAGED.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

WHILE WASHINGTON IS SILENT REGARDING THE SCOPE OF THE NEW OFFENSIVE IN THE PACIFIC, THE IMPORTANT FACT REMAINS THAT WE RETAIN THE INITIATIVE AND ARE ON THE MOVE. JUL -2 1943

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY KNOX SUMMED THE THING UP SUCCINCTLY IN HIS SPEECH IN LOS ANGELES YESTERDAY WHEN HE SAID THAT POWER TO DECIDE WHERE THE NEXT BLOW WILL BE STRUCK IN THE PACIFIC "NOW RESTS WITH OUR SIDE, AND IT WILL CONTINUE TO REST WITH US FOR THE DURATION."

WE SHALL DO WELL NOT TO RUSH TO THE IMMEDIATE CONCLUSION THAT THE OPERATIONS ALREADY CARRIED OUT REPRESENT THE BEGINNING OF A WHOLESALE OFFENSIVE, HOWEVER, IT ALREADY APPEARS TO BE MORE THAN A MINOR OPERATION. IT LOOKS AS THOUGH WE INTENDED TO DO A HOP-SKIP-AND-JUMP WESTWARD THROUGH THE ISLANDS, AND TWO LOGICAL OBJECTIVES, AMONG NUMEROUS POINTS WHICH MIGHT BE OCCUPIED, ARE THE BIG JAP BASES IN NEW BRITAIN AND NORTHEAST NEW GUINEA. JUL -2 1943

THE PROSPECTS ARE FASCINATING, AND IF THINGS GO WELL THE DRIVE MIGHT SWELL INTO A VERY BIG OPERATION.

MEANWHILE, BRITISH PREMIER CHURCHILL'S STATEMENT THAT IT'S PROBABLE THERE "WILL BE HEAVY FIGHTING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND ELSEWHERE BEFORE THE LEAVES OF AUTUMN FALL" INVITES US TO THE PLEASURABLE ANTICIPATION THAT THE ALREADY FAST-MOVING ALLIED WAR MACHINE MAY HIT HIGH-GEAR IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER SOON.

MR.CHURCHILL PURPOSELY LEAVES CONSIDERABLE TO THE IMAGINATION. HOWEVER, IF HIS DECLARATION THAT THERE WILL BE HEAVY FIGHTING NOT ONLY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN BUT "ELSEWHERE" MEANS ELSEWHERE IN EUROPE, THEN HE MAY BE TALKING ABOUT A GENERAL ONSLAUGHT ON HITLER, THAT IS, INVASIONS FROM SEVERAL DIRECTIONS.

SHOULD THIS MEAN INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE IT CERTAINLY WOULD BE A HAPPY ANSWER FOR RUSSIAN GENERALISSIMO STALIN, WHO IS PLEADING FOR THAT SECOND FRONT RIGHT NOW, AT WHAT HE REGARDS AS THE OPPORTUNE MOMENT. INDICATIONS ARE THAT HE HIMSELF IS ALL SET FOR A VIOLENT BLOW AT THE BOCHE IN CONJUNCTION WITH A MAJOR ANGLO-AMERICAN ONSLAUGHT.

JUL -2 1943

OF COURSE THE TIME ELEMENT IS A BIG FACTOR. IF A GENERAL OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE ALL HIGHEST COULD BE GOT UNDER WAY WELL BEFORE WINTER ARRIVES TO HAMPER FIGHTING WITH BAD WEATHER, THERE'S NO TELLING HOW FAR THE ALLIES MIGHT PUSH THE NAZI CHIEF BY THE END OF THE YEAR. IT MIGHT BE A VERY LONG WAY.

IN THIS CONNECTION THE COLORFUL BRITISH SKIPPER TOSSES IN OUR DIRECTION THE PHRASE "BEFORE THE LEAVES OF AUTUMN FALL." WELL, THAT GIVES US A FAIR AMOUNT OF LEEWAY FOR SPECULATION. THE EXPERTS TELL US THAT ASTRONOMICALLY THE AUTUMN BEGINS SEPTEMBER 22 AND ENDS ABOUT DECEMBER 21. HOWEVER, THE POPULAR CONCEPTION OF THE FALL IS RATHER DIFFERENT.

IN THE UNITED STATES WE GENERALLY LOOK ON SEPTEMBER, OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER AS AUTUMN. BUT IN ENGLAND MANY PEOPLE THINK OF IT IN TERMS OF AUGUST, SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER. YOUR GUESS IS AS GOOD AS MINE AS TO JUST WHAT CHURCHILL MEANS BY "AUTUMN." STILL, WHATEVER PERIOD HE HAS IN MIND, IF AMERICA, BRITAIN AND RUSSIA CAN HIT HITLER FROM ALL SIDES BEFORE WINTER IS TOO CLOSE, IT MIGHT GIVE WONDERFUL RESULTS.

WE ARE ASSURED THAT PENDING THE ARRIVAL OF AUTUMN THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AIR NAVIES WILL INCREASE THEIR TERRIFIC BLASTING OF WESTERN EUROPE UNTIL "THERE IS NO INDUSTRY OR MILITARY TARGET IN GERMANY THAT WILL NOT RECEIVE AS WE DEEM NECESSARY THE UTMOST APPLICATION OF THE EXTERMINATING FORCE." EVERY DAY THAT THIS HAMMERING CONTINUES, DER [illegible]'S KNEES SAG SO MUCH THE MORE.

INTO THIS GENERAL PICTURE--WHICH THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CERTAINLY DOESN'T VIEW THROUGH DARK GLASSES--FITS PERFECTLY HIS STATEMENT THAT JUNE IS "THE BEST MONTH WE HAVE EVER KNOWN IN THE WAR" FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF ENEMY SUBMARINES. THE ALLIES ARE REGAINING THE MASTERY OF THE SEAS, AND OUR SHIPS ARE CRISS-CROSSING THE OCEANS WITH THE CARGOES UPON WHICH THE AERIAL OFFENSIVE AND THE COMING LAND INVASIONS DEPEND.

JUL -2 1943

THUS AS HITLER'S RESOURCES ARE BEING SWALLOWED UP IN THE DELUGE OF BOMBS, THE ALLIED STRIKING-POWER IS INCREASING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS. THAT COMBINATION OF FACTS SPELLS THE VICTORY WHICH IS NOW ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN FOR THE UNITED NATIONS.

I DON'T TAKE CHURCHILL'S STATEMENT AS MEANING THAT WE MUST WAIT UNTIL AUTUMN TO WITNESS HEAVY FIGHTING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. AS PREVIOUSLY POINTED OUT IN THIS COLUMN, AS THINGS NOW STAND WE MAY GET AN INVASION OF SICILY AND PERHAPS SARDINIA AT ANY TIME.

Great Air Battles Rage Over Central Solomons Area.

22 JAPS SHOT DOWN

Big Allied Bombers Continue to Pound Airdromes at Rabaul.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, July 3—(AP) Matching successes already scored in the central Solomons, the Allies have made progress on the Salamaua, New Guinea, battle-front of the Pacific offensive by a junction of inland forces with the beachhead achieved at Nassau bay, the High Command announced today.

Australian jungle troops which for long have been at Mubo, 12 miles south and inland from Salamaua, have fought their way to Nassau bay 12 miles down the coast where Americans landed Wednesday, the noon communique reported.

Front Strengthened

This juncture made a more compact front against Salamaua whose capture would afford the Allies a base in the Huon gulf of northeastern New Guinea within fighter plane range of Japanese-held New Britain.

The Japanese, who had been caught completely by surprise in the New Guinea landing, sent its air force to bomb the American beach head.

"Elements of our ground forces moving overland from Mubo captured and consolidated the area at the mouth of the south arm of Bitoi river, effecting contact with our forces at Nassau bay," the communique said.

10 Planes Raid Allies

"Ten enemy planes raided the area."

On the central Solomons front, 22 Japanese planes were reported downed.

These reports did not make clear whether the 22 were a part of the 123 previously listed as downed or an addition to that total. But the latest advices did make clear that present action in the central Solomons is concentrated in a battle for control of the air.

Pinning down Japanese planes at the base which could best serve the enemy to parry the Allied blows, big four-engined bombers struck for the third straight day at Rabaul, New Britain.

They sent 33 tons of bombs down on Vunakanau and Rapopo airdromes.

Many fires and explosions resulted and five searchlights were put out of action in the night raid.

The night before 22 tons were dropped on three Raboul airdromes and in the first raid, timed with the opening of the Pacific offensive, 23 tons were loosed on that big air and shipping fortress.

All Planes Return

Warding off night fighters, all our planes returned.

The Allied air arm continued to strike widespread blows in direct support of ground actions. Mitchell medium bombers attacked Japanese installations in the vicinity of Salamaua, causing explosions and fires and silencing anti-aircraft positions.

On the ground, sharp clashes of patrols were reported at Bobdubi, a jungle outpost only five miles from the air base of Salamaua.

Solomons Situation Unchanged

In the central Solomons, where the Allies have captured Rendova island and Viru harbor on New Georgia to menace the enemy air base of Munda, "the ground situation is unchanged," the communique said.

"Our fighters intercepted a group of enemy planes over Rendova island, shot down 14 fighters and eight dive bombers. We lost eight planes but three pilots are safe."

(It previously had been announced that in the downing of 123 planes, the Allies had lost 25 planes but that 10 pilots were saved.

"At Bairoko anchorage north of Munda, medium bombers with a fighter escort attacked and sank an enemy cargo vessel of about 1,500 tons," the communique added.

In the Arafura sea, between Australia and New Guinea, mention was made of an Allied convoy.

A two-engined bomber on escort patrol with the convoy shot down one of two Japanese float planes. Other enemy aircraft attempting to attack were reported driven off by the fighter cover.

And One Transport

[By the Associated Press]

South Pacific Headquarters, July 2—Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters announced today that 123 Japanese planes were shot down over the New Georgia Islands Wednesday and yesterday, against American losses of twenty-five planes and fifteen pilots.

A total of 101 enemy planes were knocked out of the sky Wednesday, the day our forces landed in the central Solomons, and seventeen American planes were destroyed but seven of their pilots were saved.

The next day the Japanese lost an additional twenty-two aircraft. American losses in the continuing air battle were eight planes, the pilots of three of which landed safely.

On the first day of the invasion, the enemy divided his attacks between ship and land targets. Land positions only were raided yesterday.

Action Like Guadalcanal

Army, navy and marine pilots thus practically repeated their remarkable performance over Guadalcanal two weeks before when the score was ninety-four Japanese planes destroyed to six American lost.

Well to the north, navy surface units were reported active against Japanese positions on the approaches to Bougainville island, heart of the enemy's strength in the Solomons.

Purpose Still Undisclosed

Whether this action was intended only as a diversion, a hit-and-run raid such as United States warships have made on several occasions in these waters, or whether it represented the beginning of an expanded operation was not immediately apparent.

Only One Ship Lost

The navy transport McCawley, which sank without loss of a single man after an aerial attack on the first day of the Rendova landings, was the only American ship lost in the operation, Halsey's report said. The McCawley was known widely as the flagship of the original Guadalcanal invasion transport fleet last August.

Headquarters also disclosed that the occupation by marines of Viru harbor of the main island of New Georgia (announced previously by General MacArthur) was achieved after the American forces had fought their way through a jungle against "medium" Japanese opposition.

Landed Several Days Ago

Those marines, headquarters said, were landed as an advance element several days before the main push.

Land action by the Americans on Rendova was reported today to have consisted mainly of mopping up operations.

The invaders were said so far to have encountered nothing stronger than patrols in the way of ground opposition, and the enemy's efforts to counter the landings were limited largely to air attacks on the American troops and their invasion craft.

Japs Press Air Attacks

These were continuing despite the heavy losses sustained by the Japanese in the first big air battle which followed shortly after transports unloaded United States Army soldiers and marines on Rendova Wednesday morning.

The entire American operation was described officially today as "successful and proceeding according to plan," the announcement adding:

"Our forces are well established."

The Americans were said to have made as nearly perfect landings as could be hoped for at several points on Rendova. The island is separated from the Japanese airbase at Munda on New Georgia proper by about seven miles of water.

Gains Are Consolidated

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 2 (AP)—Artillery shelling of the big Japanese air base at Munda, in the central Solomons, destruction of 101 enemy planes and the consolidation everywhere along a 700-mile front of Allied gains under a canopy of bombers and fighters were announced today as successes in the as-yet-young Pacific offensive.

(This report did not include planes destroyed in action yesterday, as reported in Admiral Halsey's announcement.)

Munda Under Fire In Two Hours

Today's communique disclosed that the United States forces which landed Wednesday on Rendova Island had destroyed the small Japanese garrison there by midday and within two hours after debarking from barges were firing shore batteries at the Munda air base five miles away.

In heavy support of the Solomons operations, Allied naval units and planes blasted the enemy air bases at Vila and Munda while other surface craft moved even further up the Solomons chain to hit the Japanese in the Balance-Faisi area.

Thirty Miles Across Straits

(Faisi is a settlement in the Shortland islands some thirty miles southeast across Bougainville strait from the major Japanese base of Buin on the southern tip of Bougainville Island. Available maps do not show Balance, but it may be presumed to be in the same neighborhood.)

A spokesman for General MacArthur said tonight that there was nothing further to report from either the New Guinea or the Solomons fronts. From that statement it was assumed here that all operations were proceeding satisfactorily and according to plan.

Jap Air Attack Is Heavy

The Japanese attested concern for this new menace posed not only at Munda but at air bases in the northern Solomons and at Rabaul, New Britain, by pouring medium bombers, dive bombers, torpedo planes and fighters at the landing parties and at Allied shipping.

Allied casualties to date in the Solomons operations were said by a spokesman for General MacArthur to be light.

Rabaul Area Bombed

Continuously striving to pin to the ground the enemy's potent air strength at Rabaul, New Britain, Allied Liberators yesterday dropped twenty-two tons of bombs on its three airdromes.

The role of the Allied fighter plane seems destined to become greater as the offensive grows. From the Trobriands, fighters can give bombers protection over the southern half of New Britain which includes the enemy air base at Gasmata. From Rendova, fighter, could range to the northern half of New Britain which includes Rabaul.

Salamaua Ack-Ack Tame After 'Soupy' Flying

JUL -3 1943

By William Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 1 (Delayed)—In prompt and effective harassment of Japanese concentrations at Salamaua, strong formations of Mitchell bombers were sent out on bombing missions this morning and again this afternoon.

They set out a little more than twenty-four hours after United States troops landed at Nassau Bay, only twelve miles below the enemy strongpoint.

It was a successful mission in that the pilots—including Flight Leaders Robert Judd, Jefferson, Iowa; Lee Kizzire, Greybull, Wyo., and Milford Maggee, Topeka, Kan.—noted all bombs dropping within the target area.

All Planes Reach Target

The weather was sufficiently clear over the Owen Stanley mountain range to permit all planes to reach the target area.

For Kizzire, with the build of a fullback, and for a number of others it was the first combat mission. The men sat in their tent after the raid discussing their first taste of enemy aircraft fire—thinking, as usual with men on their first mission, more of the ack-ack than the manner in which their bombs were released.

Besides the flight leaders, members of raiding group included Lieuts. Edgar R. Cavin, New York city, wingman in Kizzire's flight; Howard H. Brigham, Springfield, Mass., "Kizzy's" copilot; B. Joe Carroll, Dallas, Texas, and Edroy C. From, Kenyon, Minn., bombardier.

"Small-Caliber Stuff"

Brigham, commenting on his first mission over Japanese anti-aircraft fire, said:

"It didn't seem to me they were shooting at us at all."

"Maybe you didn't see them," said Maggee, "but they were pegged right on your tail. It must have been small-caliber stuff, though, because the shells were bursting right under my wings and it didn't bother the plane at all."

"We figured out ahead of time," said From, "that they'd probably start tracking on Judd's flight and start shooting on Kizzy's, and start hitting us on Maggee's. That's just about the way it worked, except for that last part—they didn't hit anybody."

Lights A Cigarette

"I think my copilot was the only guy on the mission who was excited," Cavin remarked.

"Excited?" Brigham exclaimed. "Who? Why, brother, I lighted a cigarette for Kizzy while we were going over the target, and I was so damned nervous I almost stuck the lighted end in his mouth!"

Kizzire asked, "When did you open your bomb-bay doors, Josie?"

And Carrol countered, "Didn't you know when they were open?"

Like Nose Blown Off

"Well, I guess I did," the flight leader agreed, "because it seemed like the whole nose of the plane had been blown off and the wind was whistling and howling something awful."

Judd—the flyers call him "Redbird"—had been sitting by quietly. Suddenly he exclaimed:

"Say, I'd rather fly another mission through that ack-ack, dropping bombs, than fight my way through that soupy weather that kept us from the target yesterday. And that jungle country—I'd like to see a bit more of that if I could do it without crashing."

Says He Saw Fish

"Yeh, that looked pretty good," mused Cavin. "Waterfalls, green hills and streams—boy, I saw one stream there, I swear, you could see fish jumping out of the water."

The boys had been sitting quietly in comfortable easy chairs built by Lieut. Roy (Rusty) Turk, of Cleveland, who also had built a card table and a handsome desk which he described as of the "early New Guinea period."

Suddenly there was a rush toward a corner of the tent as if a raid alert had sounded. It turned out, however, they were fighting for the choicest bananas which had been ripening on a stem.

Leaves It To Wife

While munching the bananas they began kidding Kizzy.

"If it turns out that it was born today are you going to call it Salamaua?" asked Brigham, then turning to the others, grinned: "Kizzy's sweating out a son or a daughter back home."

"I guess," Kizzy pondered, "that I'll let the wife name it. But gosh, I hope it isn't two or three months before I hear about it!"

Aussies Push Guinea Drive To Join Yanks

JUL -3 1943

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 1 (Delayed)—In a smooth piece of cooperation by Allied ground forces, typical of the way all forces dovetailed on the latest Southwest Pacific operations, the Australians now are driving toward Nassaua Bay, where American troops established a beachhead in a hazardous landing yesterday.

(An allied communique on July 2 reported that Australian patrols twelve miles south of Japanese-held Salamaua in the inland Muba area had killed twenty-six of the enemy and wounded many others. The Americans at Nassaua Bay were twelve miles down the coast, south of Salamaua, and the Australians were seeking a junction with the Americans.)

Amphibious Operation

The American troops landed in an amphibious operation springing from an advanced coastal base established in the period since the conclusion of the major Buna-Gona campaign six months ago.

The operation was executed under the cover of the blackness of a tropical night shortly after midnight. It required skillful navigation of landing craft and some boats had trouble withdrawing after putting troops ashore.

Troops Fan Out

After landing, the Americans promptly fanned out with one contingent circling back against the enemy on the point at the end of the bay's southern arm.

For the present it is still a limited operation. The latest unofficial estimates give the Japanese a strong force in the Lae-Salamaua area—but one which is steadily shrinking in area.

The United States forces have been working up the coast in the direction of Salamaua by stages. The latest operation, while on a relatively minor scale, represents the longest single step forward toward the eventual elimination of the enemy's holdings since the end of the Buna campaign.

U. S. Rushed Rendova Beaches

Planes Provided Umbrella for Landing—Troops Wore Camouflage Suits.

By J. NORMAN LODGE.

With United States Invasion Forces in the New Georgia Islands, June 30 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Combined Army, Navy and Marine forces today swarmed into Rendova Island in the greatest American offensive yet undertaken in the South Pacific.

A multitude of all types of planes provided an umbrella for the activities of the amphibious forces, which rushed various beachheads and immediately began pushing the Japanese northward.

The invasion began at dawn with simultaneous landings on Rendova Island, from which the Japanese airfield at Munda on nearby New Georgia Island will be stormed.

Thousands of young and well-trained Americans took on the job of wresting valuable airfields from the Japanese and of driving them toward Bougainville Island and eventually out of the Solomons altogether.

Clad in spotty jungle suits and equipped as well as any military men in the world, the invaders planned to war from their various Rendova landing places toward Munda, where a huge landing field awaits the successful termination of the large-scale offensive. This landing field the enemy has been unable to use for some time because of constant night and day attack by our large bombers.

UNIFIED COMMAND IN SOUTH PACIFIC HINTS VAST ATTACK

JUL -3 1943

Designation of Single Leader Follows Pattern Set in North Africa.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP) Only preliminary phases of the offensive launched against the Japanese are yet discernible, but the fact that American-Australian ground, air, and sea forces involved have been merged under supreme command of General Douglas MacArthur testifies that major strategic objectives are aimed at.

Those objectives were set at the recent joint British-American staff conferences in Washington. The decision to establish a single command, paralleling that of General Dwight D. Eisenhower in north and west Africa, also was taken at that time. It placed Admiral William F. Halsey's forces of the south Pacific command as fully under Gen. MacArthur's orders as necessary for coordinated action, just as British fleet elements in the western Mediterranean have been under General Eisenhower's command and still are for impending trans-Mediterranean attacks from French Africa.

First Used in Africa

The North African campaign was the first Allied example of completely unified command in this war. It violated British service traditions; but its success in Tunisia made it the pattern for what now has been established in the southsouthwestern Pacific under Gen. MacArthur. The same pattern unquestionably is in prospect for India-Burma operations to come.

Informed naval opinion in Washington credits Admiral Sir Andrew B. Cunningham, British naval commander in the Mediterranean, with a major share in the success of the North African campaign for his prompt and whole-hearted acceptance of the single command idea. There was no precedent for it in British navy annals but Admiral Cunningham waved aside traditionalist objections and worked hand-in-glove under Gen. Eisenhower to achieve the desired results.

The same cooperation on the part of Admiral Halsey under MacArthur's general direction of the opening aggressive campaign against the Japanese is not only expected in Washington but already clearly indicated from the scene of action. As far as the fight has yet gone, it demonstrates anew in the opinion of highest ranking military and naval authorities here the value of the single command technique at the front to carry out strategic directives.

SOLOMONS ATTACK MINIMIZED BY AXIS

Tokyo Dispatch Broadcast by Berlin Says We Seek Unoccupied or Weak Islands

KEY ONES 'IMPREGNABLE'

Japanese Assert They Sank 6 Warships and 3 Transports and Downed 77 Planes

Axis broadcasts, perhaps intended to cushion an announcement of the loss of further southwest Pacific territory by the Japanese, sought yesterday to minimize the importance of the United States offensive in the New Guinea-Solomons area.

A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press declared the Americans "are compelled to employ shipping space to an extent absolutely out of proportion to the military value of landings on relatively unimportant islands."

Japanese military circles were said to regard the new operations with "remarkable calmness."

"The opinion prevails here that the Americans, as a result of decisions made at Washington in May, obviously now are attempting to establish strongholds on unoccupied islands or attacking, one after another, the islands occupied by weak forces," it was said.

The dispatch implied that no key positions were immediately involved, stating that Maj. Gen. Nakao Yahagi, imperial headquarters press chief, reported recently that all strategic spots "had been strongly fortified by the Japanese and that they were made practically impregnable."

Japanese imperial headquarters asserted today their forces sank six Allied warships and three transports, damaged five other vessels and shot down seventy-seven planes in the Rendova Island area in the Solomons Wednesday and Thursday during the successful American landings there.

These claims, characteristic of the reports of great successes the Japanese frequently issue for propaganda purposes, were at great variance with acknowledged Allied losses.

A communiqué broadcast from Tokyo and recorded by The Associated Press declared the vessels sent to the bottom included a "B class" cruiser, four large destroyers and one smaller destroyer.

Vessels reported damaged were another cruiser, a destroyer and three transports.

The communiqué acknowledged that thirty-one Japanese planes had not returned to base.

A Berlin broadcast said the six vessels listed as sunk were sent down "in battle in the central Solomons area."

The Tokyo radio asserted that Japanese naval forces had sunk 382 Allied ships since the beginning of the war in the south Pacific and that eighty-one cruisers and eighty-six destroyers had been sunk or damaged by air attack.

To these assertions, fantasti when compared with acknowledged Allied losses, the broadcas added the claim that Japanes planes had destroyed 2,517 Allie aircraft in the south Pacific in the last twelve months, shooting down 2,234 in air combat and wrecking 283 on the ground.

the fact that he was in Singapore until just before that city fell, escaping at the last moment to Australia.]

The Rendova plantation where the landing was made is a mere seven and a half miles from Munda.

In the black days of the battle for Guadalcanal the Japanese sent out five or six transports to a point twelve miles from Henderson Field. They lost the lot and most of their equipment to our planes.

We, on the other hand, got every man, every scrap of material ashore (on Rendova) before the Japanese were able to make even a semblance of attack—a torpedo bomber assault on our way back to base.

The primary mission was accomplished with the loss of only one transport—the McCawley.

There was a thrilling moment as the first of the troops hurtled ashore through the boiling surf. Over the battle circuit loudspeaker on the bridge of the destroyer on which I was the only British correspondent watching every phase of the action, came the announcement: "We are landing under machine-gun fire."

A few minutes later through the drizzling rain came the stuttering chatter of machine guns. Another few minutes and all was silence again. Thirty-five Japanese had been killed in less time than it takes to tell, while still another machine-gun position was found perfectly intact on the beach.

It was obvious its Japanese crew had hightailed it through the cocoanut groves into the dense jungle blanketing Rendova Mountain which almost crowds the plantation into the sea. The American Army showed its mettle at once. Within a short time of establishing the beachhead engineers could be see preparing positions for the big g as which are now believed to be shelling Munda in preparation for the next necessary move—a strong land attack against this Japanese airfield.

The attack against Munda is evidence that we are continuing the island-to-island warfare, tedious and disappointing as it may be to contemplate. But Rabaul, key to the whole Japanese defensive arc, can be captured only after seizure of the outlying air bases which the Japanese have established.

Apart from Munda and Vila there are five more of these in the Solomons chain and also Buka, Kieta, Kahiki, Ballale and the relatively unsuccessful seaplane base at Rekata Bay. So much land-based air power in the closed waters of the northern Solomons and the New Georgia-New Britain area rendered the amphibious invasion of Rabaul a far too costly undertaking.

Naval excursions, such as the bombardments of the northern Solomons area in the past, had to be hit and run and were made at night. When we succeed in wresting Munda and Vila from the Japanese, however, a way may be open to Bougainville and Rabaul and the beginning of the Japanese end.

AN ALLIED BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, July 2.—Fifteen months ago I was chased out of the Orient by the Japanese. Today I am on my way back, traveling with the Americans in the South Pacific.

Only yesterday I returned from Munda, where once again I saw and admired Yankee audacity and courage in tackling and beating the Japanese at his own game.

[The correspondent was aboard an American destroyer which took part in the assault on Rendova. After witnessing the first stages of the operation he returned to base to file his eyewitness story. When he writes of being chased out by the Japanese he refers to

Japs Claim 9 Allied Ships

New York, July 2 — Japanese imperial headquarters asserted today their forces sank six Allied warships and three transports, damaged five other vessels and shot down seventy-seven planes in the Rendova Island area in the Solomons on Wednesday and Thursday during the successful American landings there.

These claims, characteristic of the reports of great successes the Japanese frequently issue for propaganda purposes, were at great variance with acknowledged Allied losses.

Five Destroyers Claimed

A communique broadcast from Tokyo and recorded here by the Associated Press declared the vessels sent to the bottom included a "B class" cruiser, four large destroyers and one smaller destroyer.

Vessels reported damaged were another cruiser, a destroyer and three transports.

The communique acknowledged that thirty-one Japanese planes had not returned to base.

A Berlin broadcast said the six vessels listed as sunk were sent down "in battle in the Central Solomons area."

Enemy Report

The enemy frequently disseminates false reports in an attempt to induce replies that will be of benefit to it. The enemy's report is without corroboration.

London, July 2 (A. P.).—The Tokio radio, which frequently broadcasts fantastic reports of Japanese successes, asserted today that Japanese naval forces had sunk 382 Allied ships since the beginning of operations in the South Pacific and that eighty-one cruisers and eighty-six destroyers had been sunk or damaged by air attack.

To these assertions, wholly at variance with acknowledged Allied losses, the broadcast added the claim that Japanese planes had destroyed 2,517 Allied aircraft in the South Pacific in the last twelve months, shooting down 2,234 in air combat and wrecking 283 on the ground.

The broadcast was heard by the Associated Press.

Foe Forecasts Naval Battle

LONDON, July 3 (Saturday) (AP).—The German-controlled Vichy radio quoted a spokesman at Japanese Far Eastern headquarters early today as saying that Allied forces had gained "initial successes" in the South Pacific fighting but that a major naval battle was expected soon.

AIR MEDALS GO TO 40 HEROES

JUL -3 1943

Local Flyers Honored for Southwest Pacific Feats.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, June 28 (Delayed) (A. P.).—There were new stories today of the courage of our air men and of their devotion to duty—stories of how the late Major Ben McCullar brought about the destruction of a Japanese destroyer; of how one Flying Fortress crew spent long hours keeping tab on an enemy convoy in the Bismarck Sea, finally leading our bombers to the target which was destroyed; of how another crew fought off Japanese Zeros to shadow a second convoy.

For their heroism, Lieut-Gen. George C. Kenney, Commander of the Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific, awarded the air medal, or the oak leaf cluster in lieu of a second air medal, to more than two score officers and men.

Posthumous award of the oak leaf cluster was made to Staff Sergt. Michael J. Paz Jr. of Oak Lane, Bridgeport, N. J.

Those decorated today with the air medal included: First Lieut. Arthur T. Curren, Paterson, N. J.; Staff Sergt. George W. Thompson, Barnegat, N. J.; Sergt. Stewart D. Nisbet, West Haven, Conn.; First Lieut. Rufus H. Fairchild, 14 Glen Eagles Drive, Larchmont, N. Y., and Master Sergt. Carmine Racioppo, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bronx Man Honored.

Among those receiving the oak leaf cluster were Capt. Harry A. Staley Geneseo N. Y.; Staff Sergt. Harvey C. Bancroft, Watertown, N. Y., Private, First Class, Oliver Csontos, 900 Summit avenue, Bronx, New York city.

This was the second award of the oak leaf cluster for Sergt. Bancroft. It was the third for Capt. Staley.

The citations for Capt. Staley and Sergt. Bancroit stated that in a flight over Rabaul Harbor, New Britain, in October, 1942, their Flying Fortress was engaged in a low-level attack against Japanese shipping. "This crew successfully bombed an enemy destroyer from a low altitude and the warship was left in a sinking condition," the statement said. Then the flyers went higher and made a bombing run in face of anti-aircraft and searchlights, scoring several near misses on ships in the harbor.

Capt. Staley's third cluster was for a flight over Faisi in the Solomons in January. Reaching Faisi, Capt. Staley sighted two cargo vessels and a warship and made a low level bombing attack in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire. One direct hit exploded inside the cargo boat, and a second fell near the boat, the citation said, adding: "When this crew left the area the damaged vessel was smoking badly and later reconnaissance reported it was sunk. On the return flight to the base this aircraft encountered unfavorable weather and a blind landing was made with less than a 15-minute fuel supply remaining in the tanks."

BOMBERS ATTACK FRENCH RAIL LINES

JUL -3 1943

Tracks, Engine Sheds, Junctions Blasted by R.A.F. Squadrons.

LONDON, July 2 — (AP) Royal Air force bombers and fighters again ripped into enemy railway supply and communications targets in France and the low countries today and observers reported seeing another strong force of British planes, apparently including bombers, heading across the channel early tonight.

The Air ministry news service said R.A.F. Typhoons hit an oil storage tank near Ijmuiden in Holland and the "pilots saw flames shoot to a height of 100 feet.

Rail Lines Attacked

Boston bombers attacked rail way tracks, engine sheds and rail junctions at Ghent and Courtrai in Belgium and at Lille in FrFance.

An earlier Air ministry announcement disclosed that U. S. Thunderbolts and R.A.F. Spitfires destroyed eight enemy fighters in separate sweeps over France and the low countries late yesterday.

U. S. headquarters said the Thunderbolt squadrons ran into about 30 Focke-Wulf 190s south of Rotterdam and shot down four, probably destroyed another and damaged five with the loss of only one plane.

The Spitfires downed four planes over northern France. Four British planes were lost in this sweep and an earlier attack by fighter-escorted Typhoon bombers on an enemy convoy off the Dutch coast. Three merchant ships and four mine sweepers were reported damaged by the convoy attackers.

R. A. F. BOMBERS HIT FRENCH RAIL LINES

London, July 2 (A. P.).—R. A. F. Boston bombers blasted three railway targets in France and the Low Countries today while Typhoon fighters struck at locomotives in continued harassing attacks on Nazi communications, the Air Ministry News Service announced.

Typhoons also were reported to have fired an oil storage tank near Ijmuiden, the Netherlands, which sent up 100-foot flames.

The Bostons struck at targets at Ghent in Belgium and at Lille and Coutrai in France, bombing railway tracks, engine sheds and rail junctions, the announcement said.

Early tonight a strong force of British planes, believed to include bombers, swept across the channel in the direction of France, observers on the southeast coast reported.

The Air Ministry announced today that eight enemy fighters were destroyed by Royal Air Force Spitfires and United States Army Thunderbolts in separate sweeps over northern France and the Low Countries late yesterday.

A subsequent announcement from United States headquarters said that squadrons of American Thunderbolts ran into about thirty Focke-Wulf 190 fighters south of Rotterdam late yesterday, shot down four, probably destroyed another and damaged five more with the loss of only one plane.

Fighter pilots credited with shooting down one enemy plane each were Major Eugene P. Roberts, Casper, Wyo.; Capt. Harold E. Stump, Cody, Wyo.; Second Lieut. James F. Byers, Detroit, Mich., and Second Lieut. William H. Madole, Stamps, Ark.

The British lost four aircraft in th fighter sweep and an attack yesterday morning by fighter-escorted Typhoon bombers on an enemy convoy off the Dutch Coast. Three merchant vessels and four mine sweepers were said to have been damaged.

A German broadcast asserted six fighters and two bombers were shot down in the convoy attack.

Nazi Production Whipped, On Downgrade, British Say

JUL -3 1943

By R. E. Bunnelle

[Associated Press Correspondent]

London, July 2 — Strained by nearly four years of total war and hammered day and night by Allied air power, German industry has lost the production race essential to victory, although Germany still has plenty of fight left, reliable British and foreign sources indicated today.

Figures gathered by these sources suggest that Germany has positively passed her peak as a warmaking power and now is on the downgrade because of a production decline. More conclusive evidence of this will appear within the year, it was said.

Steel Production Off

A steady fall in steel production, a narrow margin of oil reserves, an inability to replace vital railway equipment, reduction in tank and plane production and other important symptoms of industrial deterioration appeared in the available figures, the sources said.

Steel production, which was at an annual rate of approximately 25,000,000 tons in January, 1942, fell to 92.5 per cent. of that peak by the first of this year and was down to 89.5 per cent. in May, according to the figures here.

Tied in with reported electric power difficulties, which were magnified by the RAF's destruction of the Moehne and Eder dams, was an oil shortage.

Oil Reserves Low

The best sources estimate that Germany normally needs 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 tons of oil yearly, and Italy 2,500,000, while a comparative lull in fighting exists.

Germany's present oil reserve is estimated at 3,000,000 tons and the British and foreign sources emphasized that is all she is likely to have to counter a prospective Allied invasion.

Heavy Power Output

According to the best information, the Reich gets around 5,000,000 tons of natural oil yearly from the Rumanian fields and between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 tons from synthetic plants.

But one of the catches in production of synthetic gasoline, the sources here said, is that the present output requires at least 15,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of Germany's available 80,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric power..

Locomotives A Weak Spot

Locomotives are another weak spot in Nazi war production. Simplified utility models are being turned out at about 300 monthly, but normal wear is estimated to force discard of between 150 and 200 monthly, and in May alone the RAF shot up or destroyed some 150.

Plane production is reported to have dropped sharply this year. Up to last year it was estimated that the output was 2,500 to 3,000 monthly, half of them bombers. Now, according to the best information, the monthly output ranges between 1,700 to 2,100, of which two-thirds are fighters for defense. Italian production also is said to have fallen—from 1,200 monthly last year to 600 or 700 now.

The sources said also it appeared that the Reich is turning out between 600 and 1,000 tanks monthly, compared with a much higher production a year ago.

U-Boat Only Bright Picture

Only in submarine production is Germany on the upgrade, these sources said. Between twenty-five and twenty-nine are being launched each month, compared with sixteen to nineteen a year ago.

From foreign contacts, quoted by a foreign diplomatic source, came the following additional reports of Germany's shortages:

The Germans have ordered armored divisions moved by rail henceforth instead of motor transport to save oil, rubber and motors.

Horses Requisitioned

During the past three weeks the Nazis have requisitioned all horses in Norway and Holland.

The age limit for the registration of women is to be extended in September from 45 to 60 years, and 15 and 16 year olds of the Hitler youth groups now are being sent to any area needed.

Four submarines completed last month were delayed in launching because they had to wait for completion of motors.

Women Manning Ships

Artillery regiments inside the Reich were ordered to reduce the number of guns by fifty per cent. and heavy guns of the unfinished aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin were dismantled and sent to Oslo, Norway, for coastal defense.

Thirty per cent. of the crews of German merchant ships now plying the North Sea are women.

June R.A.F.'s Top Month Since Big Air Attack Began

15,000 Tons of Bombs Delivered to Axis, Mostly on Germany.

LONDON, Saturday, July 3.—(AP) British-based planes of the R.A.F. unloaded 15,000 tons of bombs on Europe—principally on Germany—during June to make it the top month of the aerial war, the Air ministry announced today. Ten thousand tons were dropped in seven assaults on the Ruhr alone.

Capt. Harold H. Balfour, undersecretary of state for air, said yesterday that 37,500 tons of explosives had been dumped on Germany in the past three months.

335 Planes Lost

June operations of the aerial offensive, including almost continual attacks on the enemy's transport and air bases in occupied Europe, cost the R.A.F. 335 planes, mostly heavy bombers.

The R.A.F. destroyed 108 German planes over Britain and northern Europe. The Middle East command lost five planes while destroying 62. In the African theater, Allied planes destroyed 264 enemy planes at a cost of 64.

The attack on the Ruhr reached fiery heights in June with heavy raids successively on Duesseldorf June 11, Bochum June 12, Oberhausen June 14, Krefeld June 21, Mulheim June 22, Wuppertal June 24 and Gelsenkirchen and Bochum June 25. The Air ministry assessed these blows in a quotation from "a person prominent in the newspaper world in a neutral country."

Fall in Morale

"All of my sources of information report there has been a catastrophic fall in morale and conditions since the spring of this year," the source was quoted as saying.

"The gravest problem of all is the question of the bombed-out population of the big cities. It is becoming increasingly impossible for the authorities to deal with this and if the bombing should continue as at present Germany will face to face with a really grave crisis on this score alone."

The Air ministry also said that "utter fatigue prevalent among the population of the German capital is apparent" as the result of frequent attacks by a small number of Mosquitoes against Berlin.

As compared with the R.A.F.'s record month against the enemy, there was a drop of 40 per cent in the number of enemy sorties against Britain, the Air ministry said. Bombs were dropped on 11 nights and six days.

Although Essen was not attacked during June, the month's survey spoke of new evidence of damage to the seat of the great Krupps armament works.

100,000 Homeless

As the result of two attacks in May, the latest May 27, "100,000 people in Essen had no roof over their heads," the survey said, and "the attitude of the workers added to the difficulties arising from the actual damage at the plant had made it difficult to restart the works."

It added that undamaged machinery had been sent from the Krupps works to Luxembourg and to Mulhouse in France and that 3,500 workers had arrived in Alsace.

As a result of the unrelenting aerial attack on transport in Europe, the Air ministry said traffic of Rhine barges from the Ruhr to Basel stopped "completely at the end of last month."

It estimated that recent bomber attacks reduced the coal traffic to Italy "by one-third."

UNIFORM CHANGES MODIFIED BY NAVY

It Eases Shift to Gray Shirts and Work Garb for Officers, Making Them Optional

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 2 — The Navy Department "retreated" tonight on its recently announced regulations requiring changes in gold stripes, gold braid and the color of shirts worn by naval officers.

Unofficial protests had risen from officers after the Navy announced on Saturday that a number of uniform changes were to become mandatory after Oct. 1.

These changes included the wearing of gray shirts, instead of white, with blue service uniforms; the wearing of half-stripes, instead of stripes extending all the way around the sleeve, on blue service uniforms (although full stripes were required with dress blues);

Axis Losses Put at 18,031 Planes In Allied Toll Up to End of June

Russian, Some Naval and French Claims, Not Included, Send Score Much Higher— Cost to Allies Exceeds 9,900

JUL -3 1943

LONDON, July 2 (AP)—United States and British Air Forces and Allied anti-aircraft units destroyed a known total of 18,031 German, Italian and Japanese planes from the start of the war to the end of June, a compilation from communiqués disclosed tonight.

Thousands more Axis planes were destroyed by the Russians, an additional 985 by the Royal Navy, and others by United States Navy guns and planes in the first month of the Pacific war that were not included in the total, and by the French Air Force before the collapse of France. Accurate records of these tolls are not available.

Known United States and British losses are 9,906 planes, but this total does not include United States losses in the Pacific and in Burma.

NAZIS STILL SURE ALLIED INVASION WILL COME TODAY

Attack Is Matter of Hours, Perhaps Minutes, Says Paris Radio

LONDON, Saturday, July 3—(AP) German propaganda resumed this morning its predictions that an Allied invasion of the continent would begin today, with the Nazi-controlled Paris radio broadcasting that it was so sure the blow was going to fall it had sent reporters to the French coast.

"It is no longer a question of days," the Paris station declared early this morning. "It is a matter of a few hours and perhaps only a few minutes."

This was a turnabout from yesterday. At that time Paris had abandoned its "July 3" refrain, saying, however, that heavy fighting would come "while the trees are still green."

This, the broadcast added, was far more likely than action merely "before the leaves of autumn fall," as Prime Minister Churchill declared in his Guildhall speech in midweek.

Germany Not Afraid

"Not only is Germany not afraid of the offensive against her," said the Paris commentator, "but she is even looking forward to it because this will indeed be the best means of proving to her enemies the futility of their efforts and of inflicting on them a setback or series of setbacks which will discourage them for good."

The Rome radio for its part continued the effort to harden Italian morale. In a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press a Fascist military commentator declared that if Italy surrendered "she would have to join in the fight against her former ally. So for war, war again would be substituted. No thanks, gentlemen."

Air Headquarters Shifted

From a foreign source in London came the report that the German command had moved its air force headquarters in Italy from Rome to Milan. The same informant asserted also that the Nazi fliers were complaining of being forced to use inexperienced and careless Italian ground personnel with many resultant operational accidents.

The Nazis paid more attention to their own bomb troubles than to the worries of their menaced Italian allies.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels, in an article in Das Reich which was broadcast by the German agency DNB, alleged:

"In these bombed regions every child knows that the enemy air command mainly attempts to hit the centers of cities because there most victims will be made."

Germans Drop July 3 Chant

London, July 2 (AP)—The Paris radio, which has been drumming at the theme that July 3 would mark the Allied invasion of Europe, dropped mention of the date today.

It insisted, however, that heavy fighting was more likely to come "while the trees are still green" than "before the leaves of autumn fall," as Prime Minister Churchill said.

The Paris broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

MORE CANADIANS ARRIVE

LONDON, July 2—(AP) Another large contingent of Canadian air force personnel, including a group of Canadian WAAFS, arrived recently at a British port, it was disclosed tonight.

JUL -3 1943

Large Contingents Of Troops Get Across

London, July 2 (A. P.).—Large contingents of American and Canadian troops have been convoyed to Britain during the last two months without loss, a reliable spokesman said today.

The exact number of the reinforcements was not disclosed, but an unofficial British military statement said their strength exceeded the highest hopes.

LONDON, July 2 (AP)—The German news agency DNB declared today in a Berlin broadcast heard by the Ministry of Information that the Axis had sunk nineteen Allied transports, totaling 156,000 tons, in the Mediterranean during June.

One Allied cruiser and one submarine also were reported sunk.

This report, for which there was no Allied confirmation, listed an additional forty transports, three cruisers, one destroyer, one torpedo boat and sixteen other naval vessels as badly damaged. DNB declared further that 386 Allied planes had been shot down in the Mediterranean area during the month, and that twenty attacks had been made on Allied ports there.

MUTINY OF ITALIANS REPORTED BY RUSSIA

LONDON, Saturday, July 3—(AP) A mutiny aboard Italian warships, quelled only by Fascist militia, was reported today in a Tass dispatch from Geneva broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

The dispatch said the crews of warships anchored at Brindisi in southern Italy refused to obey an order to sail south on a "special mission." Leaders were reported executed and a naval commission set up to purge the crews.

23 Swedish Ships Listed as Sunk

LONDON, July 2 (AP)—The Rome radio, quoting dispatches from Stockholm, reported today that twenty-three Swedish merchant ships totaling 69,000 tons had been sunk during the first six months of 1943 with a loss of 156 men. The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, said that since the beginning of the war Sweden had lost more than 500,000 tons of shipping and 1,174 merchant seamen.

Red Guerrilla Toll Given

London, July 2 (AP)—The Moscow radio quoted the Soviet army organ, Red Star, today as saying that Russian guerrillas had killed more than 31,000 Germans in the last five months.

In the same period, said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Soviet radio monitor, the guerrillas have derailed 238 German trains and smashed 222 locomotives and 1,809 boxcars.

Dean Inge Says Allies May Regret Air Raids

London, July 2 (A. P.).—The Rev. William Ralph Inge, former dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, says he believes the Allies will be very sorry after the war that they bombed the beautiful cities of Cologne, Lubeck, Genoa, Naples and others in Germany and Italy.

Dean Inge wrote in the Church of England newspaper: "When I think of the ruined cathedrals of Lubeck and Mainz, of the Church of St. Gereon at Cologne, of the house of the painter Durer, of the beautiful patrician mansions in the Hanseatic towns of Genoa, Naples and Palermo, I believe when the war is over we shall be very sorry for what we have done."

TRANSFER OF TROOPS IN MIDDLE EAST BARED

LONDON, July 2.—(AP) The first authentic intimation that at least some of Britain's army in Iran had moved into Tunisia, 2,500 miles across the sands of the Middle East, was given today in a letter published by The Daily Telegraph.

The letter described a move of the Royal Fusiliers, a London battalion, and was accompanied by an editor's note that "many such letters have been reaching friends from the men of various units." The note added that "this is the first public reference to the journey which has been permitted by the censorship in this country."

General Mohr Urges Draft Of Guards

JUL -3 1943

London, July 2 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Dwight H. Mohr, of the Maryland State Guard, said today the United States should draft for part-time State Guard duty all men exempt from military service because of dependents, health or essential war work.

Mohr, who has just completed an inspection of the British Home Guard, told a press conference that the State Guard program in the United States "never will amount to much" until it is made compulsory and placed under the War Department.

Such a force, Mohr declared, could safeguard the domestic security of the United States "more than adequately," and relieve thousands of regular troops for overseas service.

Mohr previously has declared he would recommend that United States State Guards be taken over by the War Department and that compulsory limited training be adopted.

Archbishop Spellman Reaches Madagascar

London, July 2 (A. P.).—The Vichy radio reported today that Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, who has been visiting American troops overseas, had arrived by air at the Island of Madagascar, off the African east coast.

Archbishop Spellman announced in Cairo on June 5 that he was setting out on a new journey which would take him to Madagascar and numerous points in Africa before continuing on to India and China. He was last reported in Uganda on June 18.

ALLIES TO CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE HOLIDAY

LONDON, July 2—(AP) The Allies will join American soldiers in Great Britain in celebrating the Fourth of July not only as the American Independence day but also as the occasion for marking the interdependence among the United Nations.

Since the holiday falls on Sunday, religious rites will have an important place in the celebrations, most of which will be held on that day so as not to interfere with army routine.

On Monday, an American flag will be raised by a United States Army color guard atop the Reuters Press association building in Fleet street. The London bureau of the Associated Press has offices in this building and the flag was presented to Reuters by the Associated Press in exchange for a Union Jack.

NEW EIRE VOTE HINTED

Premier de Valera May Appeal to People for True Majority

Dublin, July 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Emon de Valera, whose Fianna Fail party lost its eleven-year-old working majority in the Eire Parliament in the June election, hinted today he would call for another vote, probably in the fall.

Asserting that his Government found itself in a strange position, with no assurance that at any particular time its measures would go through, the New York-born Premier said "the question is whether there is any solution other than a solution by the people themselves."

"I do not see it," he added. "I feel satisfied that if it is to be a good government, the people again have to be appealed to. They know the result of their voting. They see the position. It can be put up to them to remedy it."

The Fianna Fail, as a result of the latest balloting, has sixty-six seats in the Dail compared to seventy-one held by the other parties. The majority of the opposition seats are held by William T. Cosgrove's Fine Gael.

Lower Morale Laid To Raids

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, July 2—The Swiss weekly newspaper Weltwoche declared today the destructive bombing of the German Ruhr has had serious psychological effects, especially among miners in the valley.

The newspaper said the Ruhr miner considers himself in danger of losing everything and asks "What good is it to a worker to win the war if thereby he loses the means of livelihood" through destruction?

Transmitted To Soldiers

"Because of this feeling, the British terror raids, as we learn from the Reich, awaken more and more a feeling of gloomy desperation and resignation which extends itself to relatives at the front of the people concerned," the article added.

"The destruction in the Ruhr area, from which Germany obtains about a third of her production of steel and iron, will have a corresponding weakening of the German army, which can in no way be compensated for by moving industry."

Brussels View Similar

An issue of the Bruessler Zeitung which has just reached here from Brussels spoke in similar vein. This Nazi-controlled German-language newspaper, frequently an accurate barometer of German home and front feeling, declared the month of June had cut deep into German morale.

Later an unconfirmed report circulated in diplomatic circles here said that the Zeitung editor had been arrested.

Stockholm, July 2 (A. P.).—R. A. F. heavy bombers, in blasting slices at Duisburg May 12 and at Oberhausen June 14, paralyzed traffic on the Rhine-Herne Canal, eyewitness reports from Germany declared today.

Herne, a town in Westphalia, is situated about twenty-two miles northwest of Duisburg, which is at the junction of the Rhine and Ruhr.

Witnesses said that a great many barges, used mainly in transporting coal from the Ruhr to Rotterdam, either were trapped between those points by the attacks or smashed by explosives.

This would place an additional load on the already struggling German railway system which has been diverting to inland waterways as much freight as possible.

5,000 Reported Killed.

The eyewitnesses said that the force of the blasts delivered by the R. A. F. in the raid on Barmen May 29, was beyond their "dreams." The police officially estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 were killed and 20,000 injured, in that bombing, they declared, mainly because residents did not have time to reach shelters. Some 130,000 families were reported bombed out over an area of seven square miles and Barmen was said to have been leveled.

For Shaking Knees—

Stockholm, July 2 (AP)—The Germans were given a new set of wartime rules to observe today.

Noting that the relentless pounding of American and British bombing raids is reducing the physical and psychological resistance of civilians, the Nazi health office has issued a brochure advising them what to do when "your knees weaken and your heart beats painfully against your breast with explosive force or jumps into your mouth."

Dispatches on the brochure were received here today from Berlin.

It is necesary to call on "one's positive, reserve strength" during a raid in order to avoid losing one's head and becoming panicky, Dr. Schenk, of the Health Office said. He described these reserves as "unbending hardness, fanaticism and glowing hate."

Finnish Friends of U. S. Organize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 2 (AP)—A Finnish-American union has been organized dedicated to the promotion of better relations between the two countries, Helsinki dispatches said today. Eljas Erkko, editor of the newspaper Helsingin Sanomat, was said to be chairman. Other leaders were reported to be E. Hiitonen, attorney and diplomat; Dr. C. O. Frietsch, first vice chairman of the Finnish Parliament, and Uuno Hannula, a member of Parliament and former Minister of Education.

NAZIS WARN NORSE

Stockholm, July 2 (A. P.).—German troops in Norway are conducting extensive anti-invasion exercises and have issued detailed instructions to the Norwegians on what they must do in the event of invasion, reports reaching here from Oslo said.

Norwegians were warned to obey the instructions under penalty of death, the report said.

Germans Disclose Retreat On Front West of Moscow

JUL -3 1943

Reds Report Infantry Charges Seizing Nazi Trenches.

LONDON, Saturday, July 3.—(AP) The German radio acknowledged last night that Nazi troops had "fallen back to strongly fortified new positions" near Dorogobuzh, on the Moscow front about 50 miles northeast of Smolensk—an area where the German High Command itself earlier had reported repeated Soviet attacks although claiming that all had been repelled at that time. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

This flareup of fighting on one of the most critical sectors in Ruesia was not specifically mentioned early this morning in the Russian mid-night communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

Nazi Trenches Taken

It told, however, of Soviet infantry charges which occupied German trenches in one sector of the "western front"—the Russian term for the Moscow front.

Reinforced German troops launched fierce counterattacks in that sector but all of these were repulsed by artillery, mortar and rifle fire which killed 600 officers and men, the bulletin said. The Soviets were said to have taken some prisoners and a quantity of materiel.

In the Caucasus the Germans broadcast a report of increased fighting, and said that one Soviet contingent had attacked their bridgehead there after making "a landing near Novorossick," the Black sea naval base. The Germans declared this attack had been "finally repulsed" after a fierce fight.

The Russian communique made no mention of the Caucasus, but earlier Moscow dispatches told of Soviet bomber attacks on the German-occupied ports of Kerch and Senaya in the Kerch strait area.

A Tass dispatch said the bombers sank several ships in the harbors at Kerch, Senaya and Taman with direct hits and inflicted serious damage on others in attacks carried out Wednesday night.

The planes, all of which returned safely, also dropped bombs on enemy troop concentrations and supply depots at all three points, causing explosions and large fires, the dispatch said.

These two ports, and Taman, which has ben attacked also for two straight nights by the Red air force, are vital German supply bases on the reinforcement route from the Crimea to the Caucasus.

Soviet Flyers Pound 2 Nazi Crimean Ports

JUL -3 1943 [By the Associated Press]

Moscow, July 2—Attention swung again today to the extreme southern end of the vast Russian front with Soviet disclosure that long-range bombers had attacked the German-occupied ports of Kerch and Senaya, both on the shores of the Crimea opposite the Nazi bridgehead on the Taman Peninsula.

Observers here attached considerable significance to this sudden shifting of the Red air force.

Interpreted Variously

Kerch and Senaya, on the west side of Kerch Strait, and Port Taman on the opposite shore serve as bases to feed supplies to the German troops on the Taman Peninsula and the Kuban area.

The Russians announced two days ago their aircraft had bombed Port Taman two nights running.

This concentrated aerial action was variously interpreted by military sources here as heralding either renewed German or Soviet land operations. Some sources were of the opinion the Nazis might be trying to rush in reinforcements. Others thought it might forecast a Soviet drive to blast the Germans from their last Caucasus foothold.

(The Soviet midday communique, as recorded in London by the Soviet monitor, said a large number of high-explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on shipping in Kerch harbor and on enemy supply dumps.)

Despite these activities in the south, military observers still expect the main German blow to fall in the Orel-Voronezh district of the central front, with the object of enveloping Moscow.

Russian newspaper readers were told today about Allied progress in reducing the power of Italy.

A Red Star dispatch said British submarines, cooperating with planes and surface vessels, have virtually surrounded Sardinia and Sicily, cutting off their communications with the mainland.

JUL -3 1943

KERCH BOMBED BY RUSSIANS

Last Nazi Hold Threatened in the Caucasus.

London, July 2 (A. P.).—Russian bombers, continuing their heavy attack on the German brideghead on the Taman Peninsula, blasted the town of Senaya last night and reached across Kerch Strait to hammer the port of Kerch on the eastern tip of the Crimea, the Soviet midday communique announced today.

A large number of high explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on shipping in Kerch harbor and on enemy supply dumps, said the bulletin, which was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet Monitor here.

All the raiders were said to have returned safely.

The raids coincided with German reports of increased Russian activity opposite their lines on the Taman Peninsula, which some observers interpreted as an indication that the Red Army might be about to break the four-month lull on the eastern front with a determined effort to drive the Nazis from their last foothold in the Caucasus.

Smolensk Trenches Raided.

On the Smolensk front west of Moscow, the bulletin said, Red Army scouts raided German trenches, inflicted casualties and returned to their lines.

On the Kalinin front, a company of enemy infantry was reported repulsed in an attack on Russian outposts, losing some thirty men. This apparently was in the same general area where the midnight communique reported the Russians had captured a height of strategic importance and held it against twenty-three counterattacks which cost the Germans 600 men.

Skirmishes and activity by Russian snipers was reported in the Belgorod sector northeast of Kharkov and in the Sevsk area.

The Moscow radio quoted the Soviet Army organ, Red Star, as saying that Russian guerrillas had killed more than 31,000 Germans in the last five months. In the same period, said the broadcast, the guerrillas have derailed 238 German trains and smashed 222 locomotives and 1,809 box cars.

(The German communique said Red Army forces attacked both in the Kuban area and in the Dorogobuzh section of the Smolensk front, but were repelled.

350 Pillboxes Claimed

(Soviet guerrillas operating behind the Nazi central front lines drew punitive action from German Elite Guards and police, supported by army and air force formations, the communique said.

(Some "350 enemy pillboxes were blown up and 194 fortified partisan camps were taken from the enemy," the high command declared. "The partisans lost numerous dead and large amounts of arms and war material.")

Russian dispatches said partisan forces in the German rear continued effective warfare. Reports from the Ukraine said the Germans had been forced to organize defenses of occupied cities as deep in the rear as Zhitomir, 400 miles from the front.

Moto Trouble Forces Rickenbacker's Return

Moscow, July 2 (A. P.).—Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker was forced to return to Moscow today when his plane developed engine trouble on the first leg of his trip back to the United States.

ATLANTIC BATTLE REPORTED

LISBON, July 2.—(AP) A violent air and naval battle off the coast of Portugal last night was reported today by fishermen, who said they watched the fighting for three hours while searchlights swept the sky.

GREEK SHIP ROUTE BLOCKED BY R.A.F.

Vessel Sunk in Channel, Forcing Axis to Use Perilous Outside Passage.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 2—(AP) The Strait of Levkas off the west coast of Greece was left blocked today, thus forcing Axis coastwise shipping to skirt the island and expose itself to Allied submarines and warplanes patrolling the Adriatic waters, after an R.A.F. attack had caused an enemy transport to capsize at the entrance.

This was accomplished yesterday by planes of the Middle East command while across the Mediterranean U. S. airmen flying British Spitfires from the Northwest African Air force added four more victims to their impressive string—three Focke Wulfe 190's and one Messerschmidt 109 shot down in attempting to raid the North African coast.

Two Schooners Sunk

British coastal command planes also shot up and left sinking two Axis schooners.

This in turn followed an attack of Wednesday night by R.A.F. Wellingtons on Cagliari, the main Sardinian port, in which its barracks and railway facilities were set afire.

No Allied plane was lost.

During the day, it was announced that Brig.-Gen. A. C. Strickland, U.S.A., a veteran army flier, had been garrison commander and military governor of the island of Pantelleria, which surrendered June 11.

An R.A.F. wing commander, J. D. Bisdee, holds a similar command at Lampedusa, which gave in on June 12.

Allied Airmen Pound Axis Shipping

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 2—Allied airmen shot down four German fighters and slashed again at Axis Mediterranean shipping yesterday in the wake of a fire-setting attack upon barracks and railway facilities of Cagliari, Sardinia's major port, it was announced today.

(The Italian communique said that Palermo, the Sicilian capital, was attacked again last night, and that the royal palace was "among the numerous buildings damaged." Catania, Sicily, also was raided, it said.

(A DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin reported that United States airmen "carried out a bombing raid against a bathing resort situated near Athens yesterday in full daylight" and that thirty-eight persons were killed and sixty injured. Allied communiques did not touch upon such an action.)

Routine Sweeps

Spitfire pilots of the United States AAF shot down the four German fighters—one Messerschmitt 109 and three Focke Wulf 190s—off the North African coast. Routine sweeps and patrols were maintained from northwest African bases. Malta-based fighter-bombers attacked the Biscari airdrome in Sicily, a Valletta communique said.

RAF planes of the Middle East Command again bombed a medium-sized Axis transport which was found listing heavily to port and blocking the Levkas channel entrance as a result of previous direct hits and shot up an enemy schooner off the west coast of Greece yesterday, a Cairo communique announced.

Successful attacks on two enemy schooners by British coastal planes of the Northwest African Command Wednesday were officially announced here. One was an 800-ton, two-masted vessel. The other was not described. Both were said to have been left sinking.

Troops' Quarters Target

Wellington bombers, which have pounded away night after night for many weeks at vital ports in Sicily, Sardinia and southern Italy, concentrated upon troops quarters and the railway station of Cagliari Wednesday night.

Many bomb bursts were seen in the target area, one of the several fires observed was started by a two-ton blockbuster which fell near the railway station.

All operations of the Northwest Africa, Middle East and Malta commands were reported carried out without the loss of a plane.

Yesterday's Italian communique acknowledged that fires were started in Cagliari the Sardinian capital, and several buildings in the central area of the town were said to have collapsed.

[A Berlin broadcast of a Rome dispatch, recorded by the Associated Press, reported meanwhile that the heavy Allied daylight attack on Palermo on Wednesday had destroyed two churches and other buildings. "The heart of the city was particularly damaged," the broadcast added.]

The raid on Palermo, Sicilian capital, located on the northern coast, was timed with assaults on four airfields on Sicily. Returning airmen described Palermo as about finished.

The Italian High Command said that Palermo was raided again last night and that among the numerous buildings damaged was the Royal Palace.

Wednesday's raids by Allied squadrons were reported by the Italian communique to have killed 64 persons and injured 286 in Palermo and to have killed 10 and injured 36 along the Messina narrows and the Calabrian coast.

The British said they raided Biscari airdrome, Sicily, yesterday.

U.S. Air Officer Made Chief Of Pantelleria

it was announced today.

Wing Commander J. D. Bisdee, of the RAF, occupied a similar post at Lampedusa, which capitulated the day after Pantelleria fell.

Appointment of the air officers to command the strategic isles guarding the Sicilian straits underlined the importance of the two bases to the Allies in the continuing air war in the Mediterranean.

WOMAN ARMY DOCTOR

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 2 (A. P.).—First Lieut. Margaret Janeway was discharged from the Waacs yesterday and became a major in the Army Medical Corps—the first woman to become an Army doctor in the North African theater and the second in the entire United States Army.

Her transfer gratified her long-standing ambition. She had practiced extensively in New York city at the Lenox Hill and St. Luke's hospitals.

Major Janeway's grandfather, Col. John H. Janeway, was an Army surgeon in the civil war and she always wanted to follow his career.

Catroux Off to Syria To Run Moslem Affairs

Algiers, July 2 (A. P.).—Gen. Georges Catroux, Governor-General of Algiers, left today for Syria to attend to his duties as Commissioner for the Co-ordination of Moslem Affairs. He expected to remain there a week.

Giraud Reorganizes "Cabinet"

ALGIERS, July 2 (AP)—General Giraud, just prior to his departure for Washington, reorganized his "private cabinet," it was announced officially today.

[The wording of this dispatch suggested that General Giraud might already be en route to the United States.]

Gen. René Chambe, his former Minister of Information, was appointed chief of the military cabinet, replacing Col. François de Linares, "who was called to other duties." Guillaume Georges-Picot was appointed chief of the Civilian Cabinet.

General Chambe, a veteran of the French Air Force since 1914, escaped from his homeland to join General Giraud last spring. M. Picot, 44-year-old career diplomat, had served in Moscow, Chungking and Washington, coming from the United States to North Africa after the Allied landings to become General Giraud's assistant secretary for foreign relations.

French Fears Expressed

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Correspondent

Algiers, July 2—The newspaper Echo d'Alger published today what it described as a joint resolution signed by ten French political groups expressing "uneasiness caused by anything that might constitute limitation of national sovereignty."

Observers said they believed the resolution referred to the American and British role in retaining Gen. Henri Giraud as commander in chief of French forces in North Africa.

While this action was not directly designated as the reason for the resolution, the document dealt generally with the question of reorganizing the French army and deplored any "threat to the principle of equality between the Allies."

Speculation Stirred

Prime Minister Churchill's statement in Commons yesterday that the United States and Great Britain had asked assurances from both General Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle respecting the French army stirred speculation among the French here.

Signers of today's resolution proclaimed full agreement with de Gaulle regarding the necessity for reorganizing the French army. Among the groups signing the statement were members of parties and organizations known to be de Gaullist supporters.

Equality Is Urged

"They (the signers) express the uneasiness which has been caused among the population by anything that might constitute limitation of national sovereignty or a threat to the principle of equality between the Allies," the resolution said.

"They proclaim their full agreement with General de Gaulle on the urgent necessity of revamping the army of Africa into a modern army animated by a new spirit, in the service of the nation.

Loyalty Reaffirmed

"They reaffirm their loyalty to the democratic principle and their desire to restore a republican regime. They ardently wish that in the interests of the common war effort the relations of the new France and of her Allies will be established on a basis conforming with the aspirations of the French nation, united for freedom and the triumph of democratic ideals."

Some observers were inclined to regard the statement as a political maneuver by the de Gaullists. At the same time they said that the American and British action has caused widespread anxiety in French circles.

Declines To Comment

General de Gaulle declined to comment on Churchill's statement and Algiers newspapers did not publish the fact of Allied intervention in the French quarrel.

Intimates of de Gaulle said his insistence upon removing some French military leaders was based on two contentions, first, that many are too old to organize and direct a modern army and, second, that others are known Vichyites.

JAP SHIPPING BOMBED

New Delhi, July 2 (A. P.).—Mitchell bombers of the United States 10th Air Force dropped more than nine tons of explosives on Japanese shipping in the Irrawaddy river near Mandalay yesterday, an American communique announced today.

"Bombs were seen to straddle several boats and near hits were reported on others," the bulletin said. "All the aircraft and crews returned."

Royal Air Force bombers raided Japanese storehouses and encampments at Akyab in western Burma yesterday, while fighters shot up shipping along the coast and ranged inland to attack highway, rail and river transport, a British communique announced.

More than twenty sampans were sunk or damaged off the Arakan coast, the bulletin said. Attacks on shipping on the Irrawaddy River were said to have resulted in damage to two steamers, two barges and some sampans, while about 165 railway trucks were shot up along the shores.

No planes were lost in the forays, the British communique said.

Fresh Action Breaks Out Near Hangchow

JUL -3-1943

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, July 2—The Japanese lost a total of 55,870 men in heavy fighting along the upper Yangtze river between May 4 and June 30, a Chinese army spokesman declared today.

At the same time he reported a fresh outbreak of action near Hangchow, Japanese-occupied capital of Chekiang province about one hundred miles southwest of Shanghai. Chinese guerrillas, the spokesman said, captured the town of Tama, about twenty miles northeast of Hangchow, during the fighting.

War Material Taken

The spokesman said the Chinese had taken but forty-eight prisoners in the Yangtze battle, but had captured considerable war material, including 646 rifles, 30 machine guns, 10 trench mortars and more than 300 horses. Three Japanese planes were shot down and ten river craft sunk, he said.

Thirty thousand of the Japanese casualties were inflicted prior to May 30, the spokesman declared.

He admitted the possibility that the Japanese might attempt a comeback on the Yangtze front, but said that at the moment the whole position on the front west of the Japanese base at Yochow had "reverted to normal," except for a few towns still in enemy hands.

Troops Make Contact

Japanese reinforcements have made contact with the besieged garrison of Owchihkow despite Chinese resistance and severe fighting rages on the outskirts, a high command communique said today.

Chinese troops have been seeking for several days to oust the enemy from Owchihkow, which lies near the south bank of the Yangtze, forty miles south of Shasi.

The communique quoted two prisoners as saying that recent Allied successes had caused alarm and pessimism among Japanese officers and men.

ASSERTS JAPS PLAN TO ATTACK SIBERIA

Chungking, July 2 (A. P.).—The Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao declared today the Japanese have been pushing troops to Manchuria and said it is plain as day the enemy is preparing to attack Siberia.

Three Army commanders have recently been transferred to that area from the Pacific, the newspaper added. It also coupled a special Japanese military conference, which it said was now in session in Korea, with the Manchuria preparations.

Ta Kung Pao joined in unanimous press rejoicing over the new American drive in the Southwest Pacific and Prime Minister Churchill's avowal of Britain's determination to make Japan submit or bite the dust.

"Today," it said, "the Allied strategy to all appearances has changed. There seems no longer any insistence on Europe first and the prospect of a long drawn out war is now out of the question."

The Army mouthpiece Sao Tang Pao also welcomed the latest developments, but at the same time appealed for more planes for China.

The official Central Daily News expressed "great joy" over the recent developments and declared the Allies finally are paying equal attention to the West and East.

Aussies And Lend-Lease

Canberra, Australia, July 2 (AP)—Premier John Curtin stated today that Australia is receiving lend-lease benefits from the United States two or three times greater than Australia is able to give, but each country is contributing its utmost to the United Nations cause.

He said that recent reports suggesting that Australia's reciprocal aid to United States forces now exceeded the lend-lease aid received from the United States gave a completely false impression.

He added that there was no adequate measuring stick with which to compare each country's contribution and that it would be contrary to the whole spirit of lend-lease that money value comparisons be made.

Statement by Hoover

SAN JUAN, P. R., July 2 (AP).—Vice-Admiral John H. Hoover announced today that he would confer tomorrow with Admiral Georges Robert, French High Commissioner at Martinique, who has asked for an emissary to arrange a change in the island's government.

More Italians Drafted for Labor

Italian men and women of the classes of 1922 to 1925 have been ordered inducted into the civilian labor service, the Berlin radio said yesterday in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press. Presumably the men affected are those exempt from military service for physical reasons.

What's Behind The War News

BY GLENN BABB

This is the day the Axis soothsayers had set for the Allied invasion of Europe—although last night they were less positive about it than a week ago. However, its arrival with the blow still withheld—if it is withheld—will bring no comfort to those who live in dread of it, especially the tormented people of Italy.

There is ample evidence that in that unhappy land the tension is near the breaking point; where anything, including the calamity of hostile invasion, would be welcomed as relief from the awful suspense. So well has the Allied war of nerves done its work.

The plain fact is that the Allies now are in a position to deliver at any time their opening attack on the European fortress, or at least so nearly ready that the enemy must be prepared with every dawn to meet it. Each day that passes without it is borrowed time for Hitlerian Europe.

Meanwhile the evidence piles up that Mussolini and his lieutenants feel compelled to attempt to answer questions rising insistently in Italian hearts and doubtless heard on Italian lips. There can be no doubt that the dread situation in which they find their country has caused many Italians to ask why they should not throw themselves on what Winston Churchill calls the "justice and mercy" of the United Nations.

The replies offered are illuminating. Virginio Gayda, chief newspaper spokesman of the Fascist regime, assured his compatriots that "a separate peace x x x would never succeed, would in no way free the Italians from the war." It would, he said, merely make Italy a battleground for the remaining belligerents.

A Rome radio commentator carried it a bit further. If Italy yielded now "she would have to join in the fight against her former ally" — Germany. "So for war another war would be substituted. No thanks, gentlemen." Doubtless he had the tragic example of France in mind.

Lavoro Fascista made the appeal to honor. "No one would have respect for the people of a nation which surrendered without combat," it said.

These are selected from many. They all go to show the questions uppermost in millions of Italian minds: Why can't we get out of this war? What is there left to fight for?

This is easy to understand when the outlook which confronts Italians is considered. The Mediterranean, which was to have been their sea, has become the highway of menace. Great hostile armies are gathered on the opposite shore, preparing, training, perhaps even now embarking for the assault on Italian soil. Italians follow their radio's accounts of the thousands of landing barges assembling in Mediterranean ports, of great convoys and war fleets passing through the Strait of Gibraltar. And if they were able to forget for a moment these unforeseen portents there are the devastating Allied air fleets that blast their cities by day and night.

That punishment from the air has reached a new pitch of intensity this week, with most of it centered on Sicily. Early in the week the drubbings given that island's chief cities, Messina and Palermo, and a long list of air fields were so heavy as to hint that the last stage of softening up process had been entered. Thursday Sicily enjoyed a lull while the scourge was shifted to her sister island of Sardinia.

But this brings no comfort. Probably it is only to permit preparation for the final, furious air campaign to smooth the way for the landing barges. At least the Italians are sure that the invasion will come long before the time limit indicated by Winston Churchill Wednesday, "before the leaves of autumn fall."

OPA FOOD PROGRAM SALVAGED BY F.D.R. TO BAR INFLATION

House Vote of 228 to 154 Upholds President's Decision.

JUL - 3 1943

ROLLBACK WINS FAVOR

Senator Taft Announces Support for Payments to Hold Prices.

WASHINGTON, July 2 — (AP) A Presidential veto, sustained by the House, today saved the Administration's food subsidy program from a congressional death sentence.

Declaring that it was "an inflation bill, a high-cost-of-living bill, a food shortage bill," President Roosevelt sent back to the Capitol with his disapproval the measure Congress passed last Wednesday prohibiting use of subsidies to push down retail food prices.

Vote is 228 to 154

Promptly, the bill died when its advocates in the House failed to muster the necessary two-thirds to over-ride the veto. The vote was: 228 in favor of over-riding and 154 against.

The original House vote approving the bill was 160 to 32.

Since the subsidy ban was part of legislation extending the life of the Commodity Credit corporation for two years from midnight June 30, that agency technically was out of existence.

Administration leaders in Congress set the machinery in motion, however, to rush through a simple resolution continuing the life of CCC. Mr. Roosevelt had asked that this be done pending later consideration of more permanent legislation.

CCC Gets Emergency Funds

This resolution, drafted by the House Banking committee, extended the CCC to Jan. 1, 1944, and authorized a $350,000,000 increase in its borrowing powers. It was passed by the House on a voice vote and sent on to the Senate for probable action tomorrow.

The veto message minced no words in declaring the anti-subsidy bill was a long step forward on the high road to inflation.

In vigorous language, Mr. Roosevelt told the legislators that the measure would shackle his hands and "make it impossible for us to stop the rising cost of living."

He warned them, too, that he could not accept responsibility for holding the line against wage inflation if the legislation was approved over his veto, and made this plea for acceptance of his leadership:

"In this task of saving our free economy, Congress and the executive must work together, as a team."

Swing to Subsidies

Even before the veto, there had been indications among some legislators of a disposition to modify the stand represented by original passage of the measure last Wednesday.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) announced he favored sufficient subsidy payments to continue the present "roll back" in prices of meat, butter and coffee, and several lawmakers privately said they would support this proposal. This program is estimated to cost $450,000,000 a year.

Another farm-food measure, also opposed by Mr. Roosevelt, advanced a step in the legislative process during the day. The House Agriculture committee reported favorably a measure to put all food problems under one man who would also have the food pricing powers of the Office of Price Administration.

"We are convinced," the committee's report said, "that the chief reason for this food crisis is the confusion and chaos resulting from the fact that a multiplicity of agencies are attempting to deal with food production and distribution."

The ban on subsidies was incorporated in a measure extending the life of the Commodity Credit corporation for two years and adding $750,000,000 to its present $2,650,000,000 lending powers.

Fears Inflation

In his 3,000-word veto message, Mr. Roosevelt said the agency had an essential function to perform in the war food production program and must be continued. But the bill, he declared, would not only invite inflation but would "hamstring" the CCC.

Some of the restrictions it proposed to place on the CCC, he said, were in language so obscure that it could not be translated into "common sense English" and would raise serious problems of administration all of which he would not point out lest his message "become as complicated and confused as the language of the bill itself."

But whatever way these sections should be interpreted, he said, the measure would have "a devastating effect upon our economy and our war effort." He continued:

"1. This bill blacks out the program to reduce the cost of living. In other words, it completely outlaws the recent reductions in the price of meat and butter which we instituted in order to help get the cost of living back down from the height to which it has risen in recent months.

Would Increase Prices

"By this measure, the Congress will compel every housewife to pay five cents a pound more for every piece of butter that goes on her table, and to pay higher prices for every pork chop, every ounce of beef, every slice of ham or bacon which goes to feed her family.

"2. This measure will make it virtually impossible to institute any additional measures to reduce the cost of living or even to hold the line.

"3. The bill denies to the executive any power to purchase farm products for resale at a loss or to make incentive payments to obtain increased production of foodstuffs without the approval of the Congress."

On that latter point, he observed that food is as vital as any other war material and said that there would not be time to submit each specific food program to Congress.

"Crops will not wait for congressional debate," he commented.

Group Strife Looms

Along with its inflationary dangers, he said, the measure would "set the soldier, the worker and the unorganized consumer at war with the farmer."

In addition to his specific objections to the bill, the President set forth many general observations on the anti-inflation program and economic outlook. Among them were:

1. All prices and all wages cannot be rigidly frozen.

2. "I do not think that a reduction of all living costs or wage increase to the September (1942) level (as directed by the stabilization act) is practicable. We must all be prepared in total war to accept a substantial cut in our accustomed standards of living."

3. "We cannot hope in a period of total war to increase the supply of all necessities sufficiently to relieve the price situation."

4. Subsidies alone will not achieve stabilization but must be accompanied by "firm price and wage policies, adequate fiscal measures, and positive programs to assure that adequate supplies of essentials at legitimate prices will be available in the legitimate markets."

5. Subsidies "to hold down living costs and at the same time protect the farmer should be applied only in strictly limited and clearly defined circumstances."

Many with Low Incomes

Mr. Roosevelt said it was "too easy" to assume that all consumers have "surplus purchasing power," but that there were four million wage earners getting less than 40 cents an hour and millions of others getting little more than that.

Such an assumption, he added, ignores "the millions of salaried, white-collar workers — the school teachers, the clergymen, the state, county and city officials, the policemen, the firemen, the clerks—whose salaries have remained low, but whose living standards are being cruelly and inequitably slashed by higher food prices."

"It equally ignores," he went on, "others on fixed incomes—the dependent mother of the soldier boy with her scant $37 per month, the widow living off the proceeds of her husband's insurance policy, and the old age pensioner.

"These millions are entitled to be protected against skyrocketing food costs. It is my duty to guard them against the ravages of inflation — and I shall guard them unless the Congress shackles my hands.

"These unorganized millions must not become the forgotten men and women of our war economy."

He advanced the argument that subsidies, if they held down living costs and consequently permitted wages to be held down, would save the government money.

"If a 10 per cent overall increase in wages should occur as a consequence of our failure to stabilize living costs," he said, "that added cost of labor alone would cause an increase of not less than 4 1-2 per cent in the general level of prices. That would increase our annual war costs approximately 4 1-2 billion dollars for we are spending 100 billions per annum for war."

President Says Bill Is Inflationary and Will Increase Living Costs.

Text of the Veto Message

JUL - 3 1943

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The text of President Roosevelt's veto of the CCC-subsidies bill today was as follows:

JUL - 3 1943

HR-2889, to continue the Commodity Credit Corporation as an agency of the United States, is before me. This measure will become law only over my strenuous objection and protest. The Congress is aware of my deep interest in the Commodity Credit Corporation. It was created by me under Executive order issued October 16, 1933, to meet a grave and critical emergency. It has proved to be useful not only in an emergency but under other conditions. It has an essential function to perform in our war food production program. It should and must be continued.

But this is not a bill to continue the Commodity Credit Corporation. It is a bill to hamstring the Commodity Credit Corporation. It places new and unwarranted restrictions on the use of its funds and on the powers heretofore given to the administration to stabilize the cost of living. These restrictions would prevent our giving to farmers the assistance they need in carrying out our new food production programs, so essential to feed our citizens and our soldiers. They would make it impossible to stop the rising cost of living.

Calls It Inflation Bill.

As the measure now stands, this is an inflation bill, a high cost of living bill, a food shortage bill.

There is, for instance, a provision in Section 6 (A) which prohibits the establishment of a maximum price for any raw or processed agricultural commodity which will reflect to the producers thereof a price less than the support price heretofore or hereafter announced by the War Food Administrator, or less than the higher of the maximum prices provided in Section 3 of the act of October 2, 1942.

I have tried to analyze this section and to translate it into common sense English. Frankly I do not know what it means.

If the provision merely means that if the support price is higher than the maximum price established under the act of October 2, 1942, the commodity must be purchased from the producer at the support price or the farmer must be paid the difference between the support price and the maximum price, the provision would serve no purpose. That is now, as I understand it, the law.

If, on the other hand, despite language which looks the other way, the provision were construed to mean that the maximum price must be fixed so as to yield to the producer the support price without the payment of any subsidy, the provision would require the immediate upward adjustments in the ceiling prices for many basic food products.

Prices for dry edible beans, cheese, canned vegetables, sugar and, in some markets, fluid milk would immediately go up because the support prices for these products are higher than their present ceiling prices.

Would Boost Living Cost.

If the provision were so construed it would not only immediately increase the cost of living, but it would make it impossible for us to adopt support programs needed to increase production without causing a still further rise in the cost of living. Undoubtedly if we must in each case weigh the advantages of a support program against the disadvantages of an increase in the cost of living, many support programs which might otherwise be adopted will be rejected, and other support programs, although finally adopted, will inevitably be delayed.

Prohibits Subsidies.

Section six (B) of the bill prohibits, with specified exceptions, the making of any subsidy or other payment other than those which have accrued prior to August 1, 1943, if such a payment is designed either (1) to reduce or roll back maximum and support prices or (2) as a substitute for increasing maximum prices or support prices, unless such payments are specificallly authorized by the Congress. The specified exceptions are rigidly limited. Subsidies or other payments can be made until the end of the current crop year on any agricultural commodity other than milk or livestock if, prior to June 15, 1943, the Government was committed to make them. Wheat can be sold for feeding purposes at not less than the parity price for corn. Maximum and support prices of domestic fats and oils and oil seeds can be adjusted as necessary to assure adequate production.

Section 7 seeks to subject to the War Food Administration's control all the powers given under Section 2 (E) of the emergency price control act in respect to the purchase, sale storage and use of foods. I am sure that the War Food Administration is amply capable of handling such a task. But even its hands are shackled by the imposition of rigid restrictions which were included neither in the original price control act nor in the act of October 2, 1942.

Section 7 provides that purchases can be made only at prices which reflect to the farmer not less than the maximum price provided in the act of October 2, 1942, or the announced support price, whichever is the higher. No purchases can be made for the purpose of reducing any maximum price. No purchases can be made for the purpose of resale at a loss unless made under a program announced prior to July 1, 1943. Even under pre-existing commitments, the Government is not authorized to make purchases which will involve losses in excess of $150,000,000. It apparently prohibits any purchase and sale program involving any loss for the 1944 crop. Commodities purchased are not to be sold for less than the maximum price limitations provided in the act of October 2, 1942 or contrary to Section 2 (F) the price control act. It is far from clear that this last restriction does not nullify the exception in Section 6 permitting wheat to be sold for feed at the corn parity price.

Restrictions Not Clear.

It is not clear whether the restrictions in Sections 6 and 7 are cumulative or whether the Congress wished to draw a distinction between direct subsidies and trading losses resulting from the purchase and resale of foods.

Reputable lawyers could, I am advised, argue that Section 6 completely nullifies Section 7. If I should agree, then the bill would be even more inflationary. If I should take the contrary view, I may be sure that I will be accused of misconstruing the law.

Many other serious complications and difficulties in administering and construing the bill have been brought to my attention. But if I attempted to deal with all of them here, my message would become as complicated and confused as the language of the bill itself.

When farm prices were low, in time of peace, no one in either branch of Government ever suggested that the Commodity Credit Corporation should be forbidden to take losses in its operations. Now, in the critical emergency of war, it is proposed to tie the corporation's hands in ways undreamed of in less strenuous days.

No matter how this measure is interpreted, it will have a devastating effect upon our economy and our war effort about which I believe the Congress and the American people ought clearly to be warned.

Raises Living Cost.

1. This bill blacks out the program to reduce the cost of living. In other words, it completely outlaws the recent reductions in the price of meat and butter which we instituted in order to help get the cost of living back down from the height to which it has risen in recent months.

By this measure, the Congress will compel every housewife to pay 5 cents a pound more for every piece of butter that goes on her table, and to pay higher prices for every pork chop, every ounce of beef, every slice of ham or bacon which goes to feed her family.

2. This measure will make it virtually impossible to institute any additional measures to reduce the cost of living or even to hold the line.

3. The bill denies to the Executive any power to purchase farm products for resale at a loss or to make incentive payments to obtain increased production of foodstuffs without the approval of the Congress. I do not believe that the Congress has had an opportunity to know or to consider how seriously it may cripple our entire food program.

It is proper for the Congress to set the limits within which our food programs must operate and the principles to which they must conform. But there is not time to submit each specific food program for congressional approval. Crops will not wait for congressional debate. To require specific approval of each specific program is in effect a prohibition.

Stops Incentive Payments.

In order to obtain a greater production of important war foods it may be necessary to establish special incentives for our farmers. We are asking our agricultural producers to change their farming methods and to grow new crops to which they are unaccustomed and which we need greatly in place of the old crops to which they are accustomed and which we may not need so greatly. It may often be difficult for the War Food Administrator to decide just how great an incentive is required for this purpose. This bill does not prevent the continued use of generous incentive payments to obtain strategic war materials other than food. Yet food is as important as any other strategic war material.

This measure, however, would mean that every additional dollar paid to the farmer to get the extra war crops we need to feed our soldiers abroad would reduce the purchasing power of the limited allowances of their wives and children at home.

Such a restrictive measure would serve only to set the soldier, the worker, and the unorganized consumer at war with the farmer.

The original price control act gave the Government certain powers to regulate prices. In the summer of last year I informed the Congress that the administration could not control the cost of living and prevent inflation unless it was given more adequate power to stabilize wages and food prices. Thereafter the Congress passed the act of October 2, 1942, which authorized me to stabilize prices, wages and salaries affecting the cost of living so far as practicable on the basis of the levels which existed on September 15, 1942.

Nullifies Present Law.

The measure now before me virtually nullifies the act of October 2, 1942. This Government cannot effectively stabilize the cost of living if it cannot stabilize the cost of necessary food. As a matter of fact, this measure even takes from the Government powers which it was given under the first price control act.

As the danger of inflation grows, the Congress would, by this bill, put new shackles on those whose duty it is to fight inflation. The fight against inflation cannot be won that way.

To get our economy to work I realize that we cannot rigidly freeze all prices or all wages. In some cases we must pay higher prices to producers to get the extra war production which we need because that extra production costs more to produce. We must likewise put more money in the worker's pay envelope when he works longer hours or when he does more skilled or efficient work, or when his pay is insufficient to keep him on a decent subsistence level. But with a well-balanced combination of measures we must keep wage rates and consumers' food prices from rising if we wish to hold down living costs.

Our wage stabilization program is and must be dependent on the stabilization of the cost of living. This is expressly recognized in the act of October 2, 1942. The Little Steel formula was based on the fact that there had been a rise of approximately 15 per cent in the cost of living between January, 1941 and May, 1942, for which rise workers could be compensated by wage increases.

The cost of living is now about 8 per cent above the level of May, 1942, and about 6 per cent above last September. There has been an increase in the average worker's weekly pay check since September. This increase has come primarily through longer hours and through the shift of workers in war industries from lower-paid civilian occupations, although increases in wage rates to correct inequities have played a part. But there are many workers who have enjoyed no increase in earnings.

Many Low Wage aErners.

It is too easy to act on the assumption that all consumers have surplus purchasing power, and that the high earnings of some workers in munitions plants are enjoyed by every worker's family. This easy assumption overlooks the 4,000,0000 wage workers still earning less than 40 cents per hour, and millions of others whose incomes are almost as low. It ignores the fact that more than four million families have not had an increase of more than 5 per cent in their income during the last eighteen months. It further ignores the millions of salaried, white-collar workers—the school teachers, the clergymen, the State, county and city officials, the policemen, the firemen, the clerks—whose salaries have remained low, but whose living standards are being cruelly and inequitably slashed by higher food prices. It equally ignores others on fixed incomes—the dependent mother of the soldier boy with her scant $37 per month, the widow living off the proceeds of her husband's insurance policy, and the old age pensioner.

These millions are entitled to be protected against skyrocketing food costs. It is my duty to guard them against the ravages of inflation—and I shall guard them unless the Congress shackles my hand.

These unorganized millions must not become the forgotten men and women of our war economy.

Inflationary Spiral.

The plea has been urged on behalf of industrial workers that if the cost of living is not cut to September, or even to May, 1942, levels, wage rates should be raised to compensate. But to raise wages because living costs have risen will be at best only a temporary solution. Raising wage rates increases the cost of production, both of war goods and of the goods whose prices make up the cost of living.

It also increases consumers' spending power. The combined effect of increased spending power and increased production cost is inevitably a further rise in the cost of living; and at the same time the money cost of the war increases. In short, to give people more money because prices are rising does not cure the evil, but makes it worse. This is precisely what is meant by the "inflationary spiral."

To prevent this spiral of rising costs and prices we must hold firm to the stabilization of wage rates. But to do this, we must assure workers that they can get a fair share of available goods on legitimate markets, and at prices "so far as practicable on the basis of the levels which existed on September 15," as prescribed by the act of October 2.

Whatever theoretical choices may conceivably be open to us, practically we will have only two. We must keep the cost of living more nearly in line with the level prescribed in the law or we will not be able to hold the wage line or protect the millions of men and women living on low salaries and small fixed incomes. If wages rise, the cost of living will not stand where it is. It will go up and the inflationary spiral will gain strength.

I do not think that a reduction of all living costs or wage increases to the September level is practicable. We all must be prepared in total war to accept a substantial cut in our accustomed standards of living. But we must definitely stop the rising trend of living and push back the price to consumers of important key commodities in the family market basket.

Necessities of Life.

When I talk of important key commodities I do not mean fur coats, or tailored suits or caviar. I mean the necessities of life, things like bread, milk, butter, sugar, coffee, ordinary meats, fats and canned foods, things that plain working folk must have. We must not only keep the price of these necessities down, but we must increase, when we can, the supply which helps relieve the pressures for higher prices and helps reduce the temptations of the black markets. With the improvement in the war against the submarine we may even be able soon to remove sugar and possibly later coffee from the ration list. But we cannot hope in a period of total war to increase the supply of all necessities sufficiently to relieve the price situation.

To reduce the price of key necessities or even to hold some of them at present levels, we either will have to reduce producers' prices and distributors' margins or we will have to use subsidies.

That does not mean that we can achieve stabilization by subsidies alone, without firm price and wage policies, adequate fiscal measures, and positive programs to assure that adequate supplies of essentials at legitimate prices will be available in the legitimate markets.

Subsidies a Key Weapon.

But the experience of other countries like Canada and England does demonstrate that limited subsidies can and must be effectively used as a key weapon to control inflation.

The alternative to such action would be more costly to the Treasury and to the people. If we do not take the course of action I have suggested, we shall be charged with having failed to stabilize the cost of living, as the act of October 2, 1942, directed us to do, and there will be increasing demands from the workers of the nation for a drastic modification of the Little Steel formula.

If a 10 per cent overall increase in wages should occur as a consequence of our failure to stabilize living costs, that added cost of labor alone would cause an increase of not less than 4½ per cent in the general level of prices. That would increase our annual war costs approximately 4½ billion dollars. For we are spending 100 billions per annum for war and every rise of one per cent in the prices the Government pays, adds approximately one billion to the Government's war expenditures. I say approximately because some of the expenditures would not automatically be increased. A 10 per cent wage increase would, moreover, increase the cost of living by at least 4½ per cent and would cost consumers at least 4 billion dollars a year.

And, what is more, if we should have to abandon the hold-the-line order and to allow wages to rise we would have no assurance that we would be able to hold living costs stable even at a higher level. Rising costs would continue to press against the price and wage levels and these would be forced higher still. Rising wages would add to the excess purchasing power, and an enlarged inflationary gap would make the fiscal task of absorbing excess purchasing power by higher taxes and enforced savings unmanageable. Those with meager wages and small fixed incomes would be ground below the margin of fair subsistence.

Warns of Inflation Perils.

I need not tell the Congress the devastation which will be wrought far and wide, on the farmer, the worker, and the business man, if the fires of inflation ever get out of control. The farmers will never forget the deflation following the last war and the sufferings they then endured.

To protect the farmer it is not necessary to oppress the consumer. The way to protect the farmer is to authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation to pay the farmer what he should get for his products and to sell those products at a loss if need be to keep the cost of living down. That may be a subsidy, but that is the only way to avoid inflation which will be ruinous to farmer and consumer alike. If we prohibit subsidies and allow the cost of living to rise, as this bill does, whatever support prices we make to the farmer will be nullified by the inflation of all prices and all costs.

I have just been informed that the preliminary figures indicate that between May 15 and June 15 there was a decrease of 1 per cent in food prices. This is the first decline in the food price index in more than a year. This bill would wipe out that decline and start anew a rise in the cost of living. I cannot by signing it share the responsibility for that rise and its disastrous consequences.

Must Meet Emergencies.

Those in command of our war economy, like those in command of our armies, must be endowed with adequate authority to meet emergency situations as they arise.

Subsidies to help hold down living costs and at the same time protect the farmer should be applied only in strictly limited and clearly defined circumstances. Such subsidies should be confined to goods essential to the maintenance of a reasonable wartime standard of living for the people. Wherever the grant of subsidies at flat rates would involve gross windfall profits for low-cost producers, processors or distributors, they should be granted on a differential basis to cover the special burdens of small business and high-cost producers.

I do not intend to permit farm prices and farm incomes to be depressed. Today the aggregate net income of farmers like that of the workers is larger than ever before. As a result of my recommendation of September 7, 1942, that a floor be established for farm prices, Congress, by the act of October 2, 1942, guaranteed to farmers 90 per cent of parity on most farm products during the war and for at least two crop years thereafter—a guaranty given to no other group. If further payments to farmers are necessary to enable them to make the added outlays required to increase the production of war crops, these payments should and will be made.

But unless the Congress leaves with the Executive branch the means of seeing to it that further increases in producers' prices do not increase the cost of living, the Executive branch cannot accept responsibility for holding the wage line or for stopping the inflationary spiral.

Must Work Together.

If I am to hold the line, my hands must be left reasonably free to hold it even-handedly.

In this task of saving our free economy, Congress and the Executive must work together, as a team. H. R. 2869 marks a definite retreat from economic stability toward uncontrolled inflation. That retreat cannot be made with my approval.

I sincerely hope that if the Congress cannot agree before its recess on legislation which will remove the serious defects in this bill, it will pass a joint resolution continuing the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation and providing the increase in borrowing power until the Congress has time to agree upon an appropriate measure. The officials of the Executive departments will welcome an opportunity to furnish information and be of assistance.

I return the bill without my signature.

U.S. ADMIRAL TO GO TO FRENCH ISLAND

JUL -3 1943

Martinique's Future to Be Discussed at Conference with Colonial Governor.

WASHINGTON, July 2. — (AP) A new deal on Martinique, long a troublespot in the Caribbean, seemed imminent tonight as the Navy announced that Vice Admiral John H. Hoover would talk with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner, about the latter's offer to arrange terms for a "change of French authority" in the island colony which Admiral Robert has been administering.

Britain's interest in a clarification of the long standing Martinique tangle was indicated when Ambassador Lord Halifax called on Secretary of State Hull late tonight to discuss the situation. This was in line with the close Anglo-American cooperation already evidenced in the North African situation arising out of rivalry between Generals Charles de Gaulle and Henri Giraud.

Committee to Act

Both de Gaulle and Giraudists headquarters previously had made known their choice of a successor to Admiral Robert—should withdraw to make room for a regime willing to collaborate with the Allies—would be left to the newly organized French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers.

It will not be the first time Admiral Hoover has been delegated to talk things over with Admiral Robert. President Roosevelt sent him to Martinique in May, 1942, to seek an agreement with respect to problems arising out of the pro-Axis policies of Vichy Premier Pierre Laval. At that time the United States still maintained diplomatic relations with the Vichy government.

The result of Admiral Hoover's 1942 mission was an agreement under which French warships at Martinique were "immobilized" and the United States, in return, continued to recognize Admiral Robert as the "ultimate governing authority of French Caribbean possessions."

When, however, Vichy broke relations with the United States last November and Admiral Robert nevertheless continued to regard himself as responsible to the Vichy government, the State department ordered food shipments to Martinique suspended and later, last April, withdrew the American consul general from Martinique and informed Admiral Robert that the United States no longer could recognize a French official subservient to the Vichy regime.

Food Czar Bill Pressed In House

JUL -3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 2—Saying that a disastrous food situation now confronts "the country and the war effort," the House Agriculture Committee today asked quick consideration of a measure to put all food problems under one man.

It submitted a report to the House saying:

"We are convinced that the chief cause of the food crisis is ... a multiplicity ... attempting to deal with ... production and distribution.

Delay In Policies

"Lack of coordination, delay in formulating policies, and failure to consult men experienced in food problems appear to your committee to be important factors in bringing about the disastrous situation now confronting the country and our war effort."

The committee approved the "food czar" bill last week before Chester C. Davis resigned as War Food Administrator, and some members of the farm bloc had indicated waning enthusiasm for the centralized control because of the resignation. Nevertheless, the committee asked for immediate consideration of the measure.

Jones Former Chairman

Marvin Jones, a former chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, succeeded Davis as Food Administrator in charge of food production and distribution.

The committee measure would take from the Office of Price Administration the powers for pricing and rationing food and place them in the hands of the War Food Administrator, giving the administrator absolute authority over the nation's bread basket.

JESSE JONES SAYS HE'S FOR FEUD INQUIRY

JUL -3 1943

Tells House Committee He Welcomes Investigation of Row With Wallace.

QUERIED ON SHIPSHAW LOAN

Declares Examination Will Prove 99.9 Per Cent of Allegations Are False.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, told the House Rules Committee today that he would welcome a congressional investigation of the feud between him and Vice-President Wallace over stock-piling war materials.

Mr. Jones was asked by Representative Fish (R.-N. Y.) how he felt about an inquiry into the charges and counter-charges which he and Mr. Wallace have made.

"I have said on two occasions," he replied, "that I welcome such an investigation, and that is my statement to this committee."

The Rules Committee has before it a resolution sponsored by Representative Wigglesworth (R.-Mass.) calling for a congressional investigation of the bitter quarrel within President Roosevelt's official family. Mr. Wallace set off the fireworks this week when he accused Mr. Jones, as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of "obstructionist tactics" toward the acquisition of vital war materials by the Board of Economic Warfare, headed by Mr. Wallace.

Called Charge Dastardly.

Mr. Jones retorted that "the dastardly charge" was untrue.

The two men were called together by James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization chief, whose job is to achieve unity on the home front, but he failed to alleviate their differences.

Queried on Shipshaw Loan.

Mr. Jones was questioned briefly about the quarrel when he appeared before the Rules Committee on another matter.

He told the committee that an investigation of United States aid in the development of the Canadian Shipshaw power and aluminum project would "disprove 99.9 per cent of the charges and innuendoes" concerning the deal.

The investigation of the Shipshaw development, under which Metal Reserves, an RFC agency, lent the Aluminum Company of Canada $68,500,000 for the project, has been sought by Representative Coffee (R.-Wash.), who said he wanted to know why the money was lent interest-free "when a vast number of power projects in the United States were denied priorities."

Would Clarify Details.

After saying that an inquiry would disprove the charges concerning the loan but that he would not resent the inquiry, Mr. Jones volunteered to answer any questions members of the committee might ask, and offered to prepare a chronological statement on every step of aluminum procurement.

Representative Clark (D.-N. C.) said that members of the committee had heard Mr. Coffee's side of the story, and now wanted to hear the other side, and then asked Mr. Jones whether he thought the inquiry would serve any useful purpose.

"None," responded Mr. Jones, "except to clarify details."

Swinging back in his swivel chair, the white-haired Texan told the committee that the arrangements were made after he had received a request from the War Production Board to buy a certain amount of aluminum from the Aluminum Company of Canada. He said that he had informed President Roosevelt by letter of the arrangements which were made for the purchase, and then began a detailed discussion of the details of those arrangements.

SENATE CONCURS IN DISMISSAL OF THREE EMPLOYES

Men Accused of Subversive Activities to Be Dropped November 15.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP) The Senate, after long opposition, gave in today and accepted House legislation to remove from the Federal payroll three employes accused of affiliation with subversive organizations.

Secretary of Interior Ickes immediately issued a statement protesting that "witchhunters" had sent the American Constitution and standards of fair play into "eclipse."

The three men are Robert Morss Lovett, government secretary for the Virgin islands; and Goodwin Watson, and William E. Dodd, Jr., employes of the Federal Communications commission. A House Appropriations sub-committee made the accusations against them.

Lose Jobs Nov. 15

Under the legislation, attached to a deficiency appropriations bill the three must be dropped Nov. 15 unless President Roosevelt renominates them and they are confirmed by the Senate.

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) led the fight for the legislation, saying an investigation by the subcommittte had convinced the House the three men "had Communistic principles."

Dodd, he said, once held a cocktail party in New York that Communists attended and "the Communist party paid for."

"Dr. Lovett," Senator McKellar added, "belonged to so many Communist and Communist-front organizations he couldn't count them all. If there were any he didn't belong to it was by accident."

Opposes Bill

Senator Clark (D., Mo.), opposing the legislation, declared "There is no evidence to justify us in overriding the Constitution," and added:

"It doesn't seem to me to be fair to say a man (Dodd) was devoted to subversion because he gave a cocktail party for Harry Bridges. I think Harry Bridges should be deported, but I can't say it is a crime for some one to hold a contrary view."

Also fighting the legislation Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) said that in defending the Soviet Union back in 1935, "Dr. Lovett saw coming events cast their shadows before them," and adding "our entire country is extolling the Soviet Union today."

"It's a free country," Senator Tobey continued. "He followed his conscience and his heart."

SENATORS PRESS FOR DECISION ON POST-WAR PLANS

JUL -3 1943

Vandenberg, White Offer Proposal for Cooperation with Other Nations.

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) American cooperation with other nations to prevent future aggression "by any necessary means" is proposed by two Senate Republicans today as three other senators served notice that they would demand a vote by mid-October on the Ball-Burton-Hill-Hatch resolution to preserve post-war peace, by force if necessary.

Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich) and White (R-Me), members of a Foreign Relations sub-committee considering several similar proposals, introduced a resolution that would put the 78th Congress on record as favoring:

Post-War Program Offered

"The participation by the United States in post-war cooperation between sovereign nations to prevent, by any necessary means, the recurrence of military aggression and to establish permanent peace with justice in a free world."

The resolution proposed present examination of these aims, so far as is consistent with the war effort, "and their ultimate achievement by due congressional process and with faithful recognition of American responsibilities and American interests."

Significance was attached to Senator Vandenberg's co-authorship of the proposal, since he was classed among the "non-interventionists" of the Senate who opposed repeal of the arms embargo and fought enactment of Lend-Lease before this country was plunged into war at Pearl Harbor.

U. S. Free to Act

Senator Vandenberg told reporters a great deal of work had gone into the framing of the resolution with the obvious purposes of preparing a proposed commitment that would leave this country free to act in the way it thinks best after the war, would preserve the Senate's constitutional right to ratify treaties and would not be interpreted as inviting the formation of an international super-government.

He interpreted the phrase "by any necessary means" as leaving the way open for establishment of an organization to preserve the peace—through a world police force, economic sanctions, a world court, or an association of nations—as post-war circumstances might demand.

Shortly after Senator Vandenberg and Senator White had offered their resolution, Senators Ball (R-Minn), Burton (R-Ohio) and Hill (D-Ala) served notice in the Senate they intend to attempt to force action a month after Congress reconvenes from a summer recess on their proposal. This resolution would urge this government to take the initiative in organizing the United Nations for immediate cooperation on military, economic and political problems and post-war collaboration to preserve the peace, by force is necessary.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee told reporters the Vandenberg-White resolution would be given consideration along with pending proposals. He said the sub-committee had every intention of acting on a post-war proposal of some nature shortly after Congress reconvenes.

SAYS JAPANESE GOT 'CONFIDENTIAL' DATA

Soldier Tells Dies Inquiry of Releases to Citizens League

JUL -3 1943

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Tooru Kanazawa, an American of Japanese parentage and a private in the United States Army, told the Dies Committee today that the War Relocation Authority passed confidential documents concerning its plans to the Japanese-American Citizens League in this country.

Mr. Kanazawa testified that as an officer of the league he had obtained from Dillion S. Myer, director of the WRA, "confidential" releases of the agency's plans for dealing with the Japanese in the West. His testimony was supported by his wife, a Caucasian born in Kentucky, who said she had told him that releasing the information was "not a good idea."

Robert Stripling, committee investigator, read into the record excerpts from a report dated Sept. 19, 1942, and said to have been written by Mike Masaoka, national secretary of the league, to its headquarters in Salt Lake City. He quoted from it as follows:

"Myer said that he and his staff deal with us on the same basis of confidence and mutual trust as they do among themselves. Up to now I have been permitted to sit down and discuss every major policy before it is finally passed on. The WRA desires to continue this fine relationship as long as we sincerely try to cooperate with them on the improvement of conditions."

Record Army Fund Bill Signed By Roosevelt

[By the Associated Press]

JUL -3 1943

Washington, July 2—The $71,500,000,000 "decisive war bill" was signed into law today by President Roosevelt, giving the War Department three times as much money to spend toward victory in the next twelve months as the entire cost of the first World War to the nation.

More than $50,000,000,000 is provided in the vast measure for army aviation, including purchase of 99,740 planes.

Congress gave it enthusiastic indorsement as a "win-the-war" bill, but Senator Byrd (D., Va.) served notice that his Economy Committee means to look out against any waste of the money.

Byrd declared the group intends to probe the records of $330,000,000,000 in army and navy appropriations with the idea of putting the brakes on further bills such as the War Department measure.

Reports Huge Surplus

"There are unexplained balances for war expenditures of $203,000,000,000," Byrd said, "and we want to find out why it is necessary to keep making such large additional appropriations.

His view was shared by Senator George (D., Ga.), who said he felt the time had come for Congress to look thoroughly into all proposed military expenditures.

Wants No Waste

"Again and again Congress has made appropriations almost without inquiry or investigation of the funds requested for the army and navy," George said. "Naturally, Congress is going to provide every penny needed for the legitimate prosecution of the war, but taxpayers are entitled to know there is no extravagance or waste in the handling of these funds.

Broad Basis Suggested

George and Byrd agreed that such an inquiry would have to be made, and could be made, without revealing any military secrets. They proposed that the Byrd committee base its inquiry on the broad financial outline of expenditures, rather than delve into details of certain projects as has the Truman War Investigating Committee.

Chairman Truman (D., Mo.) of the latter group told the Senate this week that he believed a continuous check, such as proposed by the Byrd committee, should be kept on military appropriations, asserting that the army and navy "know how to waste money better than any organizations I have ever had anything to do with."

WACS WILL BECOME MEMBERS OF ARMY

Roosevelt Signs Bill Making Auxiliary a Part of Armed Force.

JUL -3 1943

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) The Army of the United States acquired some 65,000 readymade members today, all of them women, when President Roosevelt signed a measure transforming the WAACS from an auxiliary unit into the WACS, or Women's Army Corps.

Signing of Army enlistment papers is all that remains to make each former WAAC a member of the real Army.

Because WAAC members volunteered for auxiliary service, the bill provides that they are free to refuse enlistment in the Army and could have automatic discharge.

"The great majority of our women are eager to enlist as soon as they can secure blanks," said Second Officer Faith Conklin, commanding the 50th WAAC post headquarters company.

They're in the Army now and, like Army men, are eligible for service life insurance, death and disability benefits, franking privileges and flying and overseas pay.

Provision is made for dependency allowance when proof of dependency is shown.

The current enlistment age range of 20 to 45 was expanded to 50 years.

In addition, the President was empowered to raise the present authorized corps strength of 150,000 whenever he deems it necessary. Last May 13 Secretary of War Stimson said the Army needs "500,000 more WAACS and I sincerely hope we will get them."

The new law specifies that the corps is not to enlist nurses or physicians.

The Women's Army corps is the second women's unit to become a component part of the Army of the United States. Heretofore the Army Nurse corps was the only one.

Ranks and ratings of WAACS under their original organization and the equivalent Army titles that will become effective under the new legislation are:

Director, colonel; field director, major; first officer, captain; second officer, first lieutenant; third officer, second lieutenant; first leader, master sergeant; leader, sergeant; junior leader, corporal; auxiliary first class, private first class; and auxiliary, private.

PLAN TO DEFER FATHERS GAINS SENATE BACKING

JUL -3 1943

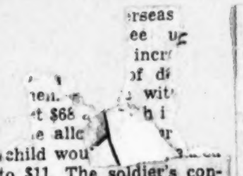
Military Committee Returns Favorable Report on Wheeler's Proposal.

WASHINGTON, July 2. — (AP) Senator Wheeler's long-pending bill to defer fathers from the draft was finally reported favorably today by the Senate Military committee, by a vote of 11 to 5.

The Montana Democrat, who has declared repeatedly that there are enough single men and childless married men to fill the army ranks "without tearing up families," announced he would press for congressional action immediately after the projected summer recess.

Inasmuch as the committee amended his bill to make the deferments effective only until next Jan. 1, he could hope to achieve only a few months deferment for the fathers unless the act later were extended. However, he expressed the hope that meanwhile it would lessen the number of conflicting statements and directives issued by Selective Service.

Senator Wheeler recently told the Senate that if not another man were inducted into the army, there still would be more than 1,700,000 soldiers left in this country by the army's own account of prospective



...10 to $11. The soldier's con... would remain the same, a month, and there would be increase in the $50 total ...ived by childless wives.

The bill made other changes, roadening the list of eligibles to include the highest ranking noncoms. Under present law the grants go only to dependents of the four lowest grades, which in the army, means up to and including line sergeants.

A new class would be established for parents chiefly dependent for their living on a son in the service. One such parent would be eligible to receive $50 monthly. If both were living and dependent, they would get a total of $68.

After Oct. 1, the government would undertake to pay the full first month's allowance, with no contribution from the soldier or sailor until the second month. This provision, not retroactive, would not afect men who already had made allotments of their pay for the support of relatives.

NAVY TO INCREASE PERSONNEL IN 1944

Will Add 500,000 Men While Army's Size Remains Level.

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) The Navy will increase in size by nearly 500,000 in the first six months of next year, while there will be no appreciable change in Army's size during that period, War Manpower commission officials revealed today.

The expansion will be necessary to man the growing fleet and provide a corresponding increase in supporting personnel on shore, it was explained by Frank Sparks, head of the WMC's labor utilization bureau.

The total strength of the armed forces is now 9,300,000 and it has been estimated that this figure will increase to 10,800,000 by the end of this year.

The further increase in Navy personnel will bring the total of the armed forces to 11,300,000 by July 1944.

Mr. Sparks cautioned that the 2,000,000 increase in the total fighting forces (from 9,300,000 to 11,300,000) merely reflected growth and did not mean that only that number would be drafted, since it did not take into consideration replacement for casualties or normal attrition.

On the other hand, he noted that the totals include an unstated but large number of women who will go into the WACS, WAVES, SPARS and Marines, reducing in proportion the number of men who will have to be drafted.

The WMC's figures were not itemized by services, but Army officials have said they expected the Army's size to remain constant after reaching 8,230,000 by the end of this year, including enlisted men, officers and WACS.

This indicated that unless the combined Marine and Coast Guard strength is increased above the 700,000 figure last given, the Navy's size will go from about 1,900,000 by the end of this year to nearly 2,400,000 by next July.

The Army always has obtained by far the greatest proportion of men inducted under Selective Service each month, but the Navy's proportion of inductees has increased lately as the fleet has lifted its requirements.

MARINE WINS STAR

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Knox has awarded the Silver Star medal to Marine Corporal Arthur J. J. Dimick, 24 years old, son of Mrs. Anna Marie Dimick, 1047 Main street, North Hackensack, N. J.

Corporal Dimick was cited for aiding in the capture of a 37-mm. Japanese gun during the battle for Guadalcanal. The advance of his company held up by close-range fire, Corporal Dimick and two other Marines rushed forward under fire, killed the gun crew and put the weapon out of action.

He enlisted December 14, 1941, at Cleveland, while living at suburban Lakewood. The citation follows:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while a member of the First Marine Division, during action against enemy Japanese forces in the Solomon Islands on November 3, 1942. During our assault on hostile positions at Guadalcanal, Corporal Dimick, when the advance of his company was held up by close-range fire, rushed forward with two other Marines to capture a 37-mm. gun. Under tremendous hostile shelling, he succeeded in destroying the gun crew and putting the weapon out of action, thereby permitting the remainder of his company to complete its objective without undue losses. His heroic conduct, maintained at great risk in the face of grave danger, was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States naval service."

FOUR MORE OF NAVY DEAD

Rochester Officer Is Included in the Latest Casualty List

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The Navy listed today fifteen casualties, including four dead and eleven missing. In addition, the status of three others was changed from missing to dead.

This brings to 27,006 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,158 dead, 4,733 wounded, 10,522 missing and 3,593 prisoners.

The casualties announced today (those listed are Navy and noncommissioned personnel, unless otherwise specified) included the following:

DEAD

New York

FERRANTE, CASEY CARL, lieutenant; parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Ferrante, Rochester.

MISSING

an arm or a leg or both legs in battle.

He has a message he conveys with a grin or a carelessly lit cigarette. It's a public message to his relatives, friends and the country at large. It goes something like this:

"Don't feel sorry for me. I'm doing fine. The medics are fixing me up a swell new limb. I'm no hero. I know a lot of guys who weren't as lucky."

This is Joe talking. This is Staff Sergeant Cleo Roberts, 27, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who lost a leg at Maknassy in March:

"We were advancing. We were due to attack a hill at 11:50 p. m. We went through a mine field at the foot of the hill. We had to withdraw. I stepped on a mine. I was wounded in the right foot at 4:45 a. m. I tried to move back and I couldn't.

"I lay there all through the next day and most of the next night. The medics kept trying to get out to me and they couldn't the firing was so heavy. I thought it was all up then. That's right, I thought I was going to die. I just laid there and waited and after a while they got out to me and took me back."

Anthony Frigulti, 27, of Visalia, Calif., a tank driver, was wounded on the beach at Casablanca Nov. 8. He crawled into some woods and lay there for a day and a half before he was found.

Aided by Navy Doctor

"It was a naval doctor who fixed me up," he said. "He was a swell guy.

The wounded have a hero. He's the medic—the man in white. The medic was at the field hospital, aiding Joe under fire. The medics at Halloran have given Joe faith in a future. They've patched him up so that he can either return to army life or start again as a civilian.

Joe is being helped to get his new start at the hospital with work in crafts under the direction of Red Cross volunteers. At his disposal are shops in woodworking, metal craft, pottery, weaving, mask moulding. Or he can paint, listen to music or read in a large library.

Each ward has a game room where he can play table tennis, shoot pool and play other games.

Grateful as all the wounded are to the many persons and organizations who have aided them, the medic still remains the hero.

As Warren Roberts, 21, of Superior, Wis., who was wounded while advancing at Maknassy March 25, said when he quit a game of pool in a sunlit game room:

"The medics are as good in the field as they are here at the hospital—and that's plenty good. They're always right behind you."

HALSEY'S CALL REVEALED

Admiral Urged MacArthur to Batter Foe Last November

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The dramatic message by which Admiral William F. Halsey called on Gen. Douglas MacArthur to send bombers to help finish off a battered Japanese fleet in the Solomons Islands last November was revealed today by James V. Forrestal, Under-Secretary of the Navy.

Immediately after the sea battle of Guadalcanal, Mr. Forrestal said, Admiral Halsey, commander in the south Pacific, sent this message to General MacArthur, commander in the adjoining Australian area:

"There should be many cripples at Buin-Faisi tonight. They should be easy targets. Hit 'em hard."

Buin and Faisi are Japanese bases on Bougainville Island in the northwestern Solomons, more than 300 miles from Guadalcanal.

Mr. Forrestal spoke here at a celebration marking the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Naval Research Laboratory.

NEW YORK, July 2. — (AP) Here comes Joe.

He's the kid who fixed your car and sowed your wheat last year, the kid they said didn't want to study war.

He's home now—hundreds of him—home from the war. He lies in a bed or hobbles on crutches about the quiet wards of Halloran general hospital, an Army hospital for wounded men set in the green highlands of Staten Island.

MAY END SUGAR, COFFEE RATIONS

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt foresaw today the possibility of lifting rationing restrictions on sugar and coffee.

In his message to Congress vetoing the Commodity Credit Corporation bill, he said:

"With the improvement in the war against the submarine we may even be able soon to remove sugar and possibly later coffee from the ration list."

Nehru's Two Nieces To Enter Wellesley

Wellesley, Mass., July 2 (A. P.)—The Misses Chandralehka and Nayantara Pandit of Allahabad, India, nieces of Jawaharlal Nehru, have arrived in this country to study at Wellesley College, the college announced today. The girls were entertained in Los Angeles by the brother of Mrs. John Gunther, wife of the author. Within the next few days they will go to Mrs. Gunther's home in Amagansett, L. I., and will remain there until the opening of the college on August 25.

Miss Chandralehka, 19 years old, and Miss Nayantara, 16, were educated at the Woodstock High School, Allahabad, run by the American Presbyterian Mission. The elder will enter as a member of the junior class and the younger as a freshman.

Short Haven In U. S. Given Couple Without Country

JUL 3 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Philadelphia, July 2—A man and wife without a country found a few days' sanctuary here today.

A temporary order signed by United States District Court Judge J. Cullen Ganey postponed the deportation of French-born Camilo Chauvet, 54, and his wife, Eulalie, who already were aboard a ship leaving today for Portugal.

Unwanted There, He Says

And Portugal, said Chauvet, who formerly was a chef for wealthy families in the United States and Mexico, is one of the several countries that does not want them.

He gave this account of their plight:

He and his wife came to this country from France to get some securities they had bought with their life's savings. They came on Mexican passports, having been naturalized in that country.

Ruling In Baltimore

But while they were in Baltimore the Mexican consul ruled that their passports were invalid because they had not lived in Mexico for eight years.

United States Immigration officials, after a hearing, ordered them deported. The only port they could reach was Lisbon, Portugal. And the Portuguese consul said they would not be permitted to land there.

Judge Ganey said he would consider granting a permanent stay of deportation proceedings at a hearing next Thursday.

DAVIS TO AID JONES

Charlotte, N. C., July 2 (A. P.).—Chester C. Davis, who quit Monday as Food Administrator after ninety days in that office, said today that he had pledged his aid to Marvin Jones, his successor, and that he was not disposed to quarrel with the President.

He said, "The President has a tremendous lot on his hands already and I certainly would not wish to add the least bit to his present burdens. I want to do everything I can to help."

Mr. Davis wrote the President on June 16 that he had decided to resign because he found himself to be lacking in authority to carry out programs for which he was held responsible.

Mr. Davis declined to amplify his statement of last Monday in Washington that during his ninety-day tenure as Food Administrator he had been "unable to get at the nerve center where food policies were made."

ESCAPE FROM ROPE ELATES STEPHAN

Milan, Mich., July 2 (A. P.).—Plucked from the shadow of the gallows seven hours before he was to have been hanged as a traitor, German-born Max Stephan kissed the hands of his lawyer and jailer, wept and shouted for joy until he collapsed—and today looked forward to some future presidential commutation restoring his freedom.

President Roosevelt commuted to a life term the death sentence which had been pronounced upon the one-time German Army sergeant. The order declared "the President hopes that no one of his successors will commute that sentence."

James E. McCabe, one of Stephan's attorneys, said he expected no further plea for clemency to be made for his client while the nation is at war, but that the return of peace would bring a different story.

The White House statement said President Roosevelt considered Stephan's crime of harboring and assisting an escaped German prisoner of war was less serious than the crime for which six Nazi saboteurs paid with their lives. Stephan's crime, he said, "bore something of a parallel to murder in the second degree or manslaughter in the first degree."

Attorney Nicholas Salowich, chief defense counsel, gave much of the credit for the commutation to Frank Murphy, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and to Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone.

"The Chief Justice assured us in Washington that we should not give up—that this was no heinous crime," Mr. Salowich said. "Justice Murphy was of inestimable aid."

SHIPS AND PLANES GOING TO PACIFIC, KNOX DISCLOSES

JUL -3 1943

U. S. Exerting Major Effort Against Japs, Says Navy Chief.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2—(AP) Secretary of Navy Frank Knox said today "much more" in ships, planes and submarines "is now on the way to the Pacific" to intensify the increasing battle against the Japanese.

"We are exerting a major effort in the Pacific, and this effort will be increased and intensified as times goes on," he said in an address at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"It is certainly true there have been occasions when we have lacked the men and the material that we felt we needed. There were times in the past when we simply did not have available the men, the ships and the planes that we wanted to send to the Pacific area. But the day of shortages is nearing an end."

Receiving More Planes

The Navy secretary, here on a tour of west coast war plants and military installations, said that during June, the Navy accepted combat planes at the rate of approximately 20,000 a year. This figure, as good as it is, he said, may be expected to go still higher in next six months.

Secretary Knox said it would be "fatal to accept our accomplishments of the past year with satisfaction." For on the day our progress is equal to our desires, "on that day we will begin to lose the war."

Yet, he said, in the first half of 1943 there is much to enter on the profit side of the ledger:

No Longer On Defensive

In the Pacific, we are no longer on the defensive—at sea, "we are offering battle more often than we can find takers."

In the Aleutians theater, on the island of Attu, "we have given the Japanese enemy a blow which he will not soon forget—and he may expect more of the same."

In the Atlantic, the Axis forces failed completely in their effort to disrupt Allied communication and supply lines which aided in the invasion and liberation of Africa.

In the Mediterranean, Italy has surrendered a number of vital outpost islands.

And in all western Europe and parts of Scandinavia, "Hitler and Mussolini frantically prepare for the awful hour of invasion, already threatened by ever growing signs of devastation from the skies."

"Those who persist hereafter in saying that we are making only half-hearted efforts in the Pacific completely disregard the fact that during the past twelve months, the air, surface and undersea naval action between United Nations' forces and the Japanese have been the most intensive in all the history of naval warfare. In almost every encounter, our forces have had to face superior odds—and in no encounter have our forces failed to add new glory to the gallant traditions of the United States naval service."

THE RAID LEFT BARMEN WITHOUT WATER, ELECTRICITY, GAS, TELEPHONE SERVICE OR STREET CARS, THE WITNESS SAID, ADDING THAT THE MAIN RAILWAY STATION WAS SMASHED, POLICE HEADQUARTERS AND TOWN HALL GUTTED AND THE SUSPENSION RAILWAY THROUGH WUPPERTAL, OF WHICH BARMEN IS A PART, DESTROYED AT SEVERAL POINTS.

ONE SOURCE SAID HE BELIEVED THE RAF ELIMINATED BARMEN AS AN IMPORTANT WAR PRODUCTION CENTER BECAUSE SO MANY FACTORIES WERE DESTROYED AND THE CITY WAS SO DEVASTATED THAT PLANTS STILL INTACT WOULD BE TOO HANDICAPPED TO OPERATE EFFECTIVELY. HE SAID "THERE IS NO POSSIBILITY OF REBUILDING BARMEN."

SIKORSKI TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE HE DIDN'T BELIEVE THAT PEACE COULD BE MAINTAINED AFTER VICTORY UNLESS THE PROBLEM OF EAST PRUSSIA WAS SETTLED ONCE AND FOR ALL. HE SAID THAT IF EAST PRUSSIA REMAINED POISED LIKE A DAGGER AT POLAND'S SIDE, NO PEACE WAS POSSIBLE.

ONE ANSWER AS TO HOW TO SECURE SAFETY FOR THE SMALLER NATIONS WAS AN INTERNATIONAL AIR FORCE TO BE MANNED BY PLANES AND PILOTS OF ALL THE UNITED NATIONS, HE DECLARED, ADDING THAT HE BELIEVES THE SMALL NATIONS SHOULD MAINTAINLC WN ARMI

THE PRIME MINISTER SAID AGAIN THAT POLISH FORCES ARE READY TO TAKE THE FIELD AND WOULD PLAY A STRONG PART IN COMING OPERATIONS. BUT HE WARNED THAT THE GERMANS WOULD FIGHT
FIERCELY DEFENDING THEIR OWN SOIL AND THAT THE WAY TO VICTORY LAY THROUGH AN ORDEAL OF BLOOD.

ON THE DELICATE QUESTION OF POLISH-RUSSIAN RELATIONS, SIKORSKI

PLANS FOR THE SEIZURE OF NEW GEORGIA GROUP HAD BEEN IN PREPARATION MANY MONTHS. INTENSIVE PREPARATION BY THE ENEMY HAS BEEN MATCHED WITH EVEN GREATER PREPARATION. IT HAS DEMANDED THE ESTABLISHMENT OF ISLAND BASES THROUGHOUT THE ENTIRE SOUTH PACIFIC AREA SO THAT ALL THE EGGS SHOULD NOT BE IN ONE BASKET AND THE VAST RESERVES OF MEN AND MATERIALS COULD BE AVAILABLE AT A MOMENT'S NOTICE. LONG LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE UNITED STATES, TOO FEW SHIPS AND THE CRUDEST POSSIBLE UNLOADING FACILITIES HAVE FORCED US TO TAKE THE TIME TO ALLOW THE ENEMY TO DIG IN.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DESCRIBE THE ENORMOUS JOB THAT HAS BEEN DONE. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO CONVEY THE PICTURE OF THE PAINSTAKING LABOR INVOLVED IN MAPPING THE ISLANDS, CHARTING THE TREACHEROUS CORAL SEAS, PLANNING AND BUILDING OF ROADS, AIRFIELDS, CAMPS AND HOSPITALS. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DETAIL THE DIFFICULTIES OF SUPPLYING PLANES, BOMBS, GASOLINE, GUNS, AMMUNITION, JEEPS, TRUCKS, GIANT BULLDOZERS AND THE MILLION AND ONE OTHER THINGS; OF TRANSPORTING PERSONNEL AND FEEDING AND LOOKING TO THE CREATURE COMFORT OF HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF MEN ON DOZENS OF ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC.

BUT THE EVIDENCE THAT ALL THESE THINGS HAVE BEEN DONE AND WELL DONE IS PROVIDED BY THIS OFFENSIVE, FOR PRIMARILY IT IS A BATTLE OF SUPPLY ALL OVER AGAIN.

THE LAST THREE WEEKS HAVE BEEN THE BUSIEST FOR THE COMMANDERS OF THE OPERATION BUT THEIR WORK HAS PROVED THE BRILLIANCE OF AMERICAN LEADERSHIP, ITS ATTENTION TO DETAIL AND THE STURDINESS OF ITS OFFENSIVE SPIRIT.

JUL -3 1943

MUNDA HAS BEEN ONE OF JAPAN'S MOST FORLORN VENTURES. IT IS IDEALLY SITUATED FOR DEFENSIVE PURPOSES BUT OFFENSIVELY IT HAS BEEN A FLOP. THE ASSAULT FROM THE SEA AND THE AIR LONG AGO REDUCED IT TO FUTILITY.

INDEED THE JAPANESE OBJECT IN HOLDING ON TO IT SO LONG HAS BEEN TO DENY US THE USE OF ITS SPLENDID BOMBER STRIPS, TAXIWAYS AND REVETMENTS ON WHICH THEY HAVE WORKED SO INDUSTRIOUSLY FOR NINES MONTHS.

NEVERTHELESS, GEOGRAPHICAL OBSTACLES FOR THE INVADER WERE MANY. THE SUBTLETY AND FINESSE OF THE PLAN AND THE PERFECT TIMING WERE AS IMPORTANT AS THE DARING AND BOLDNESS. INVASION BY THE NORTHEASTERN COAST WOULD MAKE THE SUPPLY LINE VULNERABLE TO DIRECT ASSAULT FROM MUNDA ITSELF. A FRONTAL ATTACK ON THE AIRFIELD BY SEA FROM THE SOUTH WAS EVEN MORE DANGEROUS. THE REASON WAS THAT THERE WAS ONLY ONE APPROACH TO IT--OVER THE NARROW, NINE-FOOT-DEEP MUNDA BAR AND A LAGOON CHOKED WITH CORAL AND SAND CAYS. HENCE THE ADMIRAL COMMANDING THE OPERATION ON THE SPOT ELECTED TO LAND AS CLOSE AS POSSIBLE.

HE DECIDED THE INVASION FORCES SHOULD DISEMBARK FROM TRANSPORTS AND FREIGHTERS ANCHORED FIVE MILES FROM MUNDA JUST OFF THE RENARD ENTRANCE TO RENDOVA HARBOR--THE NORTHERNMOST POINT OF THE RENDOVA GROUP. HIS PLAN WORKED BUT IT REQUIRED STEELED NERVES TO DO IT. I WATCHED THOSE NERVES IN ACTION. IT WAS A SPINE-TINGLING

EXPERIENCE TO BE ON A DESTROYER SERVING AS TARGET BAIT FOR THE ENEMY'S GUNS. I HAD THOUGHT WE WOULD BE ON THE MOVE AT HIGH SPEED WHEN WE DID THAT, BUT NO. WE GAVE ENCOURAGEMENT TO THE JAPANESE, THE DESTROYERS BARELY MAKING HEADWAY WHILE THE JAPANESE FIRED AND WE PLOTTED AND RANGED THEIR POSITIONS AND KNOCKED THEM OUT ONE AFTER ANOTHER. THIS IS THE KIND OF COURAGE WHICH WHIPPED THE JAPANESE.

7 Japanese Warships Put to Rout By U.S. Task Force Off Rendova; Allies Push Salamaua Offensive

JUL -4 1943

...Naval Force ...akes First Appearance

WASHINGTON, July 3 — (AP) American warships lying in wait pounced on a Japanese force which tried to shell Rendova island last night, the Navy disclosed today, and drove off the attackers with heavy gunfire.

This fight, started by three enemy light cruisers and four destroyers, probably is but the first of a series of brushes between American and Japanese sea squadrons which may culminate in a major sea battle if the Japanese throw more and more units into their efforts to stem the Allied south Pacific offensive.

Land Drive Continues

Air and land fighting continued, meantime, with Army and Marine forces on the Solomons front driving steadily toward the enemy's Munda air base, and American and Australian forces in northeast New Guinea tightening their ring of positions around the strategic air field at Salamaua.

Like Salamaua, Munda is subject to attack from at least two sides—by Army groups in Rendova island and by Marines pressing up from the south of New Georgia island where they already have captured Viru harbor. The attack by warships seemingly was an attempt on the enemy's part to harrass and delay the Rendova phase of the operation.

The Japanese thus were trying to accomplish with naval vessels under the cover of darkness what they had failed entirely to do by heavy air attack on the day the Army landed on Rendova. At that time they lost 101 planes of a force estimated at more than 110. What damage they may have suffered in the sea skirmish was not reported here.

Japs Attack at Night

All the communique said was: "On July 3 (Saturday Solomons time) during the night, a Japanese force consisting of three light cruisers and four destroyers attempted to shell U. S. positions on Rendova island. U. S. surface craft replied to the bombardment and the enemy ships retired in short order. No further details have been received."

The sea action was reminiscent of that which marked the first hours of the American invasion of Guadalcanal and its indicated outcome suggested that not again would Allied commanders be caught in the south Pacific as they were at that time. Immediately after American troops had landed on Guadalcanal, a light Japanese force, probably of about the same composition as that thrown at Rendova island, made a surprise attack from behind Savo island and destroyed three American and one Australian cruisers.

Subsequently the south Pacific commander, Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley was replaced by Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., present commander of the Solomons branch of the offensive which is under the general direction of General Douglas MacArthur, who is personally commanding the New Guinea striking force.

In this case, Admiral Halsey and his commanders in the Rendova area apparently disposed their forces so that the surprised party was the Jap rather than themselves.

JUL -4 1943

Washington, July 3 (A. P.). — Japanese cruisers and destroyers, endeavoring to turn their big guns on American positions on Rendova Island, were driven off by United States naval units in a sharp engagement early today.

The Navy said the enemy task force of seven warships included three cruisers and four destroyers. They moved in the Navy said, in an unsuccessful bombardment attempt.

The size of the United States force which met and repulsed the Japanese ships was not disclosed by the Navy, which said, however, that "the enemy ships retired in short order." No details of the surface battle have been received, it said.

Casualties on McCawley.

It is possible that the American naval vessels, identified only as "surface craft" could have pursued the enemy out of the immediate area and that the battle was still under way in that central Solomons area.

The Navy reported also that "several of the crew" were killed in the initial torpedo plane attack which led to the sinking of the transport McCawley in the action which moved United States forces into the outer defense ring of the Japanese. The McCawley, damaged by torpedo planes, was sent to the bottom by an enemy submarine. However, most of its crew had been removed.

Japanese bombers escorted by Zero fighters also joined in the attacks on Rendova. The Navy added that damage they inflicted in their raid, on July 2, Solomons time, was negligible.

Official Communique.

The text of the Navy communique said:

"South Paclific (all dates east longitude).

"1. On July 2, in the afternoon Japanese bombers, escorted by Zero fighters, attacked United State positions on Rendova Island. Damage was negligible.

"2. On July 3, during the night, a Japanese surface force consisting of three light cruisers and four destroyers attempted to shell United States positions on Rendova Island. United States surface craft replied to the bombardment and the enemy ships retired in short order. No further details have been received.

"3. In Navy Department communique No. 429 it was reported that no loss of life was sustained in the striking of the transport McCawley. A later report now reveals that several of the crew were killed in the initial torpedo attack by the Japanese planes. The next of kin have been notified."

Triple Threat to Salamaua.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 3 (A. P.).—American and Australian jungle fighters menaced the Japanese air base of Sala... on the northeast coast of New Guinea from three sides today in the growing Pacific offensive, while in the central Solomons, at the other end of a 700-mile arc, pressure was maintained on the enemy air base of Munda.

It was emphasized here that despite bitter jungle fighting on a patrol basis along the New Guinea coast, this drive is not expected to result in the immediate capture of Salamaua. Any push along the coast from Nassau Bay northward was considered almost impossible because of densely tangled jungle and swamps.

While there has been no official explanation of the immediate objective in the Nassau Bay area some observers consider this action a diversionary maneuver designed to preoccupy enemy troops and planes from the Salamaua sector.

Air Battle Over Rendova.

In the central Solomons, where the Americans have seized Rendova Island, from which shore batteries started shelling the enemy's Munda airfield and where the important harbor of Viru on New Georgia was captured, no changes in positions were reported. Today's communique told of an air battle on Thursday over Rendova in which fourteen Japanese Zeros and eight dive bombers were shot down at a cost of eight Allied fighters.

These figures were the same as those reported on Thursday in an earlier announcement from Allied headquarters in the South Pacific, which placed Japanese air losses in the first two days of the offensive at 123.

There was no further word of Allied naval action in the northern Solomons. Yesterday's communique had told of surface units shelling Japanese positions on the approaches to Bougainville. Nor was there mention of any counter-action by the Japanese Navy.

Air Force Plays Major Role.

But the mighty Allied air force, whose widespread activity has been impressive from the outset of the new drive, continued to play a major role. Seeking to keep Japan's plane concentrations at Rabaul, New Britain, pinned to their fields, Allied Liberators and Flying Fortresses dropped thirty-three tons of bombs there. That was the third straight night of raiding on Rabaul and the bomb weight has totaled seventy-eight tons. Last night's raiders started fires and explosions on Vunakanau and Rapopo runways, fought off enemy night fighters, weathered anti-aircraft fire and all got home safely.

North of Munda in the Solomons, American medium bombers, which had a fighter escort, sank a 1,500-ton Japanese cargo ship at Bairoko anchorage.

Supporting ground action around Salamaua, other medium bombers attacked Japanese positions at Kela Point and along the trail to Logui Village, starting fires and explosions. They also silenced some anti-aircraft positions.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Sunday, July 4 — (AP) One hundred Japanese planes have been routed in the last two days of sky fighting over the newly-invaded central Solomons and enemy plane losses in that area of the Pacific offensive have mounted to 134, it was announced today.

JUL -4 1943

In far flung battles for control of the air, the enemy also was routed over the scene of American landings at Nassau bay, New Guinea; his bivouac areas near his menaced air base on Munda on New Georgia was blasted by 28 tons of bombs dropped by torpedo and dive bombers; his mighty air fortress of Rabaul was set ablaze by 22 tons of bombs in the fourth straight Allied raid; his air base at Kendari, Dutch Celebes, was rocked by 16 tons of bombs by Allied planes which had to make a 1,500 mile round trip flight; and his airdrome at Koepang, on Dutch Timor, 500 miles northwest of Darwin, underwent a heavy attack.

Japs Shell Rendova

In the darkness of early morning Saturday, three Japanese light cruisers and four destroyers succeeded in lobbing a few shells on Rendova Island in the Solomons where the Americans landed Wednesday but the shelling was characterized as "ineffective" and American warships chased the enemy units away.

The Japanese units moved up to Renard cove seven miles southwest of Ugali on the north end of Rendova island to hurl their shells at Rendova plantation.

Whether they sought to ascertain the strength of our naval forces was not disclosed but they pulled out as soon as the American warships moved in. Meanwhile, our troops went on about the business of consolidating positions.

Odds Favor Japs

The Japanese, battling against American control of the air over the newly-conquered positions, sent over 100 planes Friday and Saturday. Against the 50 encountered Friday were pitted only seven Allied fighters but the seven downed six of the enemy and dispersed the remainder with a loss of only three planes, and one of the pilots was saved. On Saturday 50 more enemy planes fought it out with 10 American planes, losing five against three of ours.

Today's communique also told of continued Allied efforts to conquer the New Georgia area.

Allied ships poured shells in enemy positions on Vangunu, an island off the southeastern tip of New Georgia.

On the western arm of the Pacific drive, four Japanese Zeros and a bomber were destroyed over Nassau bay, on the coast below Salamaua, New Guinea, where Americans landed Wednesday to be joined later by Australians fighting their way from the inland jungle area of Mubo.

No mention was made of Allied plane losses there but over Rendova six of our planes were lost.

U. S. Shells Enemy Positions

American warships shelled enemy positions near Wickham anchorage on the south end of New Georgia island on the afternoon of July 2 while our dive bombers aided with a heavy bombing and strafing attack.

Saturday night, for the fourth successive night, Allied four-engined bombers maintained their "milk run" on the big enemy air base at Rabaul, New Britain. More than 22 tons of bombs were dropped on the airdromes of Lakunai, Rapopo and Vunakanau.

These added to the destruction wrought by 78 tons dropped in three previous raids.

Runways Bombed

The Saturday night raiders planted their bombs on the runways and dispersal areas. Three of the fires started could be seen for 40 miles away.

Numerous other fires were observed and two searchlights were put out of action. The Japanese again threw up anti-aircraft fire and sent up night fighters but all our planes returned.

In the four raids on Rabaul, intended to keep the enemy's air strength there crippled or pinned to the ground, only one Allied bomber has been reported missing.

Extending the scope of Allied air operations which have been on a large scale in all the areas attacked, other Allied bombers made a round trip flight of 1,500 miles to strike at another big enemy air base, Kendari, Dutch Celebes.

There 16 tons of bombs fell on the town and aidrome.

Observation of results was hindered by clouds on the raid, which was made daringly in midday, but one grounded plane was seen destroyed and considerable damage was done to barracks and buildings.

Timor Airdroms Bombed

Five hundred miles northwest of Darwin, on Dutch Timor, Penfoei airdrome at Koepang was bombed after dark by two-engined Allied raiders.

For the second straight day the communique referred to Allied shipping in the Arafura sea between Australia and New Guinea. It said one of three enemy fighters attempting to attack the shipping was damaged and the others driven off. Yesterday's communique referred to the shipping there as a "convoy."

A late message reports that seven of our fighters on patrol intercepted 30 enemy Zeros and subsequently 20 more on July 2, shooting six and dispersing the remainded. Three of our planes were lost but one pilot was recovered.

"The following day, 10 of our interceptors engaged a force of 50 enemy fighters, destroying five with a loss of three of our planes."

Corsairs in Fight

The new Corsairs were the fighters which piled into the far superior numbers of enemy planes over Rendova and licked them Friday. Lightnings made up the 10 interceptors which took on the second group of 50 Saturday.

The air action over Nassau Bay was precipitated by the appearance of eight enemy bombers with an escort of nine Zeros seeking to attack American positions.

"Four enemy planes and one bomber were shot down and an additional fighter probably was destroyed," the communique said.

"We suffered no losses. Earlier, a single enemy fighter strafed the area."

The ground situation was reported quiet at Nassau Bay. A pocket which had existed below the south arm of the Bitoi river was reported cleared of enemy troops.

In the Salamaua area at Orodubi, sharp patrol clashes were reported.

An effective raid by eight enemy bombers was made on Bena Bena

Salamaua Seen By Allies From High Points

By William F. Boni

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 2 (Delayed)—Allied forces in the Nassau Bay sector have reached a point from which they can see the big enemy base at Salamaua from peak positions.

Australian troops pushing eastward across Komiatum track, although under fire from Japanese artillery established in the vicinity of Kela Point, gained advantageous positions on ridges near Francusco river.

Yanks Meet Aussies

American troops which had landed on the shores of Nassau Bay on June 30 contacted the Australian infantry force which was moving along the Mubo-Duali track to reach the coast at the mouth of the southern arm of the Bitoi river.

The Australians encountered some Japanese positions below the native village of Duali, but dispersed the enemy so completely that, despite their best efforts at pursuit, they were unable to regain contact with the Japanese.

Forces Consolidated

At the same time, American forces consolidated their coastal holdings.

(General MacArthur's noon communique July 3 announced that Aussie jungle troops which had been at Mubo, twelve miles south of Salamaua, had reached Nassau Bay, twelve miles down the coast, where the American troops landed on Wednesday, forming a combined front and completing the first phase of operations there.

Fight At Pocket

The Allied air command simultaneously harassed the enemy with bombing-stafing attacks yesterday and again today at the enemy-held coastal pocket between Duali and the two arms of the Bitoi River.

At least for the moment, Allied forces control the Mubo-Duali track for its full length of more than nine miles on almost an exact west-to-east axis. It is to be expected that the combined Australian and American infantry forces will progress to a thorough cleaning out of this area.

In the region of Mubo itself, the Japanese still were entrenched on Pimple Wells and Green Hill, thus controlling the track leading north through Komiatum to Salamaua. But northward, Australians slashed through the jungles to gain the ridge positions from which Salamaua itself could be seen.

These actions constitute two of the three current phases of the land fighting now raging in New Guinea.

The third phase is being carried on farther north, where wide-ranging Australian raiding parties constantly harry the Japanese forces based on Lae.

Allies Fighting at Nassau Bay Are Within Sight of Salamaua

By WILLIAM F. BONI

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, July 2. — (Delayed) — (AP) Australian jungle fighters and American invasion forces which landed at Nassau bay last Wednesday were cleaning up their forward positions today within sight of the big enemy base at Salamaua, about 12 miles distant.

The Australians, who drove from the inland Mubo area, and the Americans joined forces today, completing the first phase of the New Guinea offensive operations.

After pushing eastward toward the coast while under Japanese artillery fire the Australians gained positions on ridges near the Francisco river and could see the Salamaua air base. They encountered some Japanese below the native village of Duali and dispersed them so quickly that they were unable to regain contact.

There was no official explanation of the immediate objective in the Nassau bay area. Any push northward toward Salamaua would be almost impossible because of the tangled jungle and swamps. The action appeared to be a diversionary maneuver to occupy enemy planes and troops from the Salamaua sector.

Such a diversion would aid United States forces in the New Georgia group of the Solomon islands, the other prong of the powerful offensive action, which has resulted in seizure of Rendova island and a landing on New Georgia island.

The Allied forces control the Mubo-Duali track for its full length of more than nine miles on an east to west axis and a thorough cleaning out of the area was expected.

Farther north the Australian Indian-style fighters were harrying Japanese forces based at Lae, near Salamaua. These raiders have clashed with several Japanese patrols with comparatively heavy cost to the enemy.

If the Nassau bay action was intended as a diversionary move it brought some results. Ten Japanese planes raided the area during the day. Meantime Allied medium bombers attacked nearby enemy installations at Kela point, causing explosions and silencing anti-aircraft positions.

PACIFIC CAMPAIGN IS FOR AIR BASES

Attack Is Not Start of Island - to - Island Drive.

JUL -4 1943

(Editor's note: The following delayed dispatch was written the eve of the invasion of the New Georgia island group by American forces.)

By J. NORMAN LODGE

IN THE NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS, June 29 (Delayed)—(AP) This definitely is not the start of an island-to-island campaign in the south Pacific but rather the necessary acquisition of a base for further offensives against the Japanese - occupied Far - Eastern Pacific.

In fact this campaign was planned before the Russell islands were occupied last February. New Georgia and Kolombangara islands are several hundred miles nearer Tokyo, but before the great United Nations offensive can be undertaken, there must be space for airfields.

For this offensive sweep, there has been months of planning; for this slash at the Japanese there has been rigorous training; for this booting out of the Nips there has been more air strength gathered than for any other blow yet struck in the Pacific.

Dawn will show what the Allied navy, army, marine and air forces can do. Before tomorrow noon it is hoped that our artillery, set up on the tip of Rendova island, will be lobbing heavy caliber shells toward the Japanese air base at Munda.

During the entire landing process hundreds of our planes, large and small, will be providing an umbrella.

The campaign actually began earlier than was planned. Some of our troops already hold a beachhead near Viru harbor. They went in several days ago. Until tonight, however, there was no word of our boys having contacted the Japanese in those areas. Part of our strategy, too, is to watch the Japanese and prevent them from spreading the alarm, but not to contact them by gun to disclose our intentions.

An Allied Base in the South Pacific, July 3.—The attack against Munda is clear evidence that we are forced to continue island-to-island warfare, tedious and disappointing as it may be to contemplate. But Rabaul, the key to the whole Japanese defensive arc, can be captured only after the seizure of the air bases the Japanese have established.

Apart from Munda and Vila, there are six more of these in the Solomons chain, Buka, Kieta, Kahili, Ballale and the relatively unsuccessful seaplane base at Rekata Bay.

Long Preparation Made.

Plans for the seizure of the New Georgia group have been preparing for many months and intensive preparations by the enemy had to be matched by even greater preparation. It has demanded the establishment of island bases throughout the entire South Pacific area so that vast reserves of men and materiel might be available at a moment's notice.

The long lines of communications from the United States, too few ships and the crudest possible unloading facilities have forced us to take time and allow the enemy to dig in. It is impossible to describe the enormous job that has been done. It is impossible to convey a picture of the painstaking labor involved in mapping the islands, the charting of the treacherous coral seas, the planning and building of roads, airfields, camps and hospitals.

The supply difficulties were enormous for their offensive, for primarily it was a battle of supply all over again.

The last three weeks have been very busy for the commanders of the operation but their work has proved the brilliance of American leadership, its attention to detail and the sturdiness of its offensive spirit.

PLANES SINK SUBS TRYING TO ATTACK ATLANTIC CONVOY

Carrier-Borne Aircraft Fill in Gap of Land-Based Bombers.

LONDON, July 3.—(AP) Carrier-borne and land-based planes, teaming to provide "complete shore-to-shore air cover" spanning the Atlantic, have helped bring a valuable convoy over that dangerous sea "without interference from powerful forces of U-Boats," it was announced today.

A joint Admiralty and Air ministry communique describing continuous air protection against submarines declared that in attacks over a two-day period recently one U-Boat was destroyed, another was probably destroyed, and "others may have been damaged."

Protected by Carrier Planes

The escort carrier H.M.S. Archer and her planes took up the task of air protection between the time that the convoy moved out of range of land-based planes on the western side of the Atlantic, and reached the range of those based in Britain. The convoy crossed "a few weeks ago."

Today's announcement followed one two weeks ago saying that British naval and air units had beaten off "one of the fiercest and most sustained offensives ever mounted by U-Boats," sinking from two to five submarines and damaging others in a five-day running battle.

In this newest success, the joint communique said, the convoy also was protected by surface escorts under Commander M. J. Evans in the destroyer H.M.S. Keppel. The group in the central Solomons. Rendova, just off the main island of New Georgia, was quickly seized, its garrison destroyed and heavy guns emplaced within two hours after debarkment. These immediately began shelling the enemy's big airbase at Munda on the main age by Hudson, Ventura, Liberator and Catalina aircraft of the Royal Canadian Air force eastern air command and during the final stage by Liberator, Sunderland and Halifax aircraft of the Royal Air force coastal command," the communique said.

"The mid-Atlantic air gap between the extreme escorting ranges of these shore-based aircraft was bridged by Swordfish and Martlet aircraft from the escort carrier H.M.S. Archer."

Aircraft from the Archer scored the one confirmed kill, diving out of a cloud cover on a submarine 15 miles from the convoy.

"The submarine made repeated and unsuccessful attempts to dive. It then endeavored to get underway on the surface, turning in slow circles with oil pouring from its tanks." Later it was abandoned and sank, and a number of survivors were picked up.

Depth charges from an airplane of the fleet air arm probably sank another U-Boat, a Liberator of the coastal command attacked a third, and naval aircraft forced two others to dive. The conning tower of one submarine was peppered by gunfire from a plane.

nadian Air Force of the Eastern Command protected the ships. Liberators, Sunderlands and Halifaxes of the R. A. F. Coastal Command took over on the approaches to Britain.

The Mid-Atlantic gap was filled by planes from a British carrier.

How U-boat Was Caught.

The submarine known to have been destroyed was first damaged by aircraft which caught it on the surface about fifteen miles from the convoy. The communique told this story of the kill:

"The submarine made repeated and unsuccessful attempts to dive. It then endeavored to get under way on the surface, turning in slow circles with oil pouring from its tanks. Several members of the U-boat's crew manned the forward guns, but machine-gun fire from the aircraft forced them back under cover. Later the enemy abandoned ship and shortly afterward, listing to port, it slewed over and sank.

"A number of survivors were picked up by the destroyer H. M. S. Escapade (Lieut.-Commander E. C. Peake, R. N.) and were made prisoners of war."

R.A.F. PLANES RAID NAZI-HELD EUROPE

Strong Force of Night Bombers Crosses Channel.

LONDON, Sunday, July 4.—(AP) A strong force of planes—presumably Royal Air force bombers—flew out over the southeast coast early this morning bound for some place in occupied Europe.

The last time R.A.F. bombers were out in strength was the night of June 28 when they attacked Cologne and Hamburg.

The bomber movement followed widespread sweeps over France, Holland and Belgium yesterday by R.A.F. light bombers and fighter planes which struck at enemy objectives by daylight for the third consecutive day.

The Air ministry said Bostons, Typhoons, Mustangs and Spitfires attacked locomotives, railway switches, barges, oil tanks, factories, gun positions and a plane hangar, and that one group shot up a bus loaded with German soldiers.

Two Mustang pilots patrolling in the Abbeville-Amiens area attacked three locomotives, then turned their guns on four trucks which were set afire.

Soon afterward, the pilots attacked the bus and saw Germans jumping out and falling as the cannon shells burst among them. The Mustang pilots went on to shoot up a hangar, causing casualties among a group of men standing nearby.

Two British planes were lost in the day's operations.

A Typhoon pilot who attacked a barge on a canal near Courtrai, Belgium, reported: "After I had fired nothing happened for a second—then there was a brilliant burst of flame. Smoke and debris flew up to a great height as the barge blew up, narrowly missing my number two."

Accompanying pilots set another barge on fire. Many pilots said on their return that they had been fired on by anti-aircraft guns mounted on freight trains which they attacked.

NAZI RAIDERS STAB AT BRITAIN

British Report 10,000 Tons of Bombs Dropped on Ruhr in Seven June Assaults.

Folkestone, England, July 3 (A. P.).—A strong force Allied aircraft apparently including bombers, was heard crossing the channel at a great height early this afternoon and soon distant explosions echoed back from France. Flying over the channel increased as the afternoon wore on.

JUL -4 1943

Night Raiders Also Heard.

London, July 3 (A. P.).—Southeast coastal observers said a strong force of British aircraft headed across the channel last night, but there was no immediate announcement.

In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio, however, the German High Command said that Allied planes flying singly dropped a few bombs in western Germany near the frontier, damaging buildings. The High Command also asserted that 614 British and American planes were destroyed over Germany and occupied territory in June, including 408 four-engined bombers.

Yesterday R. A. F. Boston bombers laid explosives during daylight across railway targets at Ghent and Courtrai in Belgium, and Lille, France, while R. A. F. Typhoons sent flames shooting up 100 feet from an oil storage tank near Ijmuiden, Holland.

German planes stabbed toward Britain last night for the first time in a week. The Ministry of Home Security said one was destroyed off the South Coast.

Ruhr Is Hard Hit.

So far this month major forces of Britain's big Halifaxes, Stirlings and Lancasters have remained on the ground, marking a lull similar to the period of inactivity that prevailed for more than a week at the beginning of June.

JUL -4 1943

Despite the late June start, however, the destruction spread through enemy Europe in the month surpassed any other planned devastation in world history.

Of the 15,000 tons of bombs carried to the Continent by home-based British aircraft, the greater part was tumbled upon objectives in Germany itself. In seven assaults on the Ruhr Valley alone, 10,000 tons were loosed.

Assessing the damage in the Ruhr, the Air Ministry quoted a prominent newspaper man in a neutral country as reporting "a catastrophic fall in morale and conditions since the spring."

Axis Plane Losses.

United States and British Air Forces and Allied anti-aircraft units destroyed a known total of 18,031 German, Italian and Japanese planes from the start of the war to the end of June, a compilation from communiques disclosed today.

Thousands more Axis planes were destroyed by the Russians, an additional 985 by the Royal Navy, and others by United States Navy guns and planes in the first month of the Pacific war that were not included in the total, and by the French Air Force before the collapse of France. Accurate records of these tolls are not available.

Planes now employed as night intruders are 400-mile-an-hour Mosquitos and Beaufighters, with three times the firepower of the two-engined Blenheims that were used when the sweeps first began in December, 1940.

Calling the pilots "night Commandos of the air," the ministry said their successes had made enemy air fields "much less active at night" and that the R.A.F. was having to fly farther and farther in its search for victims.

U. S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE EXPANDS IN ONE YEAR

LONDON, Sunday, July 4.—(AP) The United States Eighth airforce, which one year ago today struck its first official blow in the European theater with six twin-engined Bostons, has grown into a powerful striking force with several hundred planes capable of launching three-figure raids with Fortresses and Liberators protected by their own fighters.

Dawn was just breaking that Independence day morning a year ago when a half a dozen Boston bombers flew across the channel to bomb German air fields at Hamstede, Alkmaar and Valkenburg in Holland.

Since then United States high flying precision bombing Fortresses and Liberators have hammered German targets in France, Holland, Belgium a[illegible] in Germany itself again and [illegible]in.

R.A.F. NIGHT UNITS CUT DOWN 14 NAZIS

Intruder Planes Have Best Monthly Record Since Attacks Began.

LONDON, Sunday, July 4 — (AP) R.A.F. nightfighters shot down 14 German planes over the continent during June, their best month since they began their nocturnal thrusts, the Air ministry announced today.

In the past two and one half years the nightfighters have destroyed nearly 100 Nazi planes, in addition to bombing and shooting up the enemy's rail and sea transport from Denmark to southwestern France, it was declared.

ing suffered a "nervous breakdown with serious heart trouble after taking a cure."

Wife at Bedside

The reports said two specialists and Goering's wife were at his side almost uninterruptedly and that only intimates were permitted to see the air chief.

Obviously inspired by Goebbels, the Paris radio put on during the day a heavy-footed "humorous" program ridiculing Allied plans for an attack on Europe. The date of July 3 for the Allied push was set arbitrarily by Goebbels after his previous guess of June 22 had not borne fruit.

Starting at 7 a. m. and breaking into the program at intervals until early afternoon, voices from "somewhere in France" kept listeners advised of the invasion situation. It was designed to be extremely funny. Examples:

8 a. m.—"The British and Americans are still at breakfast."

9 a. m.—"We have just learned that the British and Americans have left the breakfast table."

1 p. m.—"Still nothing. Perhaps the British will make up their minds later in the day."

Build Up Patriots' Hopes

The apparent reason for the German build-up of the alleged invasion date was to arouse the hopes of the populace of the occupied countries and then to crush them with ridicule. At one time today the Paris announcer told them with heavy satire that "the hour of liberation is striking."

Second 'Date' of Invasion Set by Germans Passes

Axis Shows Strain of Waiting for Allies to Attack.

LONDON, July 3 — (AP) Ponderous attempts at levity by Paul Joseph Goebbels' propaganda machine today could not quite conceal the misgivings within Nazi Europe as the second date set by the Germans for an Allied invasion passed with scarcely more than the usual flow of reports from belligerent and neutral capitals.

Stories of spreading uneasiness within Hitler's fortress kept coming. Stockholm newspaper reports assert that Reichsmarshal Herman [illegible]ing was "very ill," hav-

On the Rome radio an Italian military commentator said Italy would defend her soil to the last, but that the European invasion "seems to have become a nightmare more for our opponents than for ourselves. They seem not to have made up their minds where and when to start." He added that the initial blow probably would be struck at Italy.

A German commentator asserted that "in spite of many strategic possibilities in the Mediterranean zone, the enemy cannot exploit them. This conquest already has cost the Allies many more men and, above all, much more time than they expected."

In the afternoon the Paris radio, tiring of its "invasion" skit, turned to spreading rumors of revolts among the Fren[illegible] North Africa, one broadcast recorded by the Associated Press declaring that a revolt again Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Henri Giraud was brewing in Algiers. It also told of a "new rebellion" in northern Syria.

Invasion Delayed For Breakfast, Nazis Jest

JUL -4 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 3—Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, in a heavy-handed attempt at ironic humor, used the Paris radio today for a series of reports of an Allied "invasion" army after flatly announcing that Axis enemies had chosen July 3 for an assault on France.

The broadcasts apparently were designed to ridicule Allied plans of attack against Europe, and at the same time, to show that the Germans could be light-hearted about such matters.

"Matter Of Minutes"

At 7 A. M., the Paris announcer said: "The hour of liberation is striking. Probably it will be only a matter of minutes."

The broadcast said reporters had been sent to all vital points to keep listeners informed on the situation "just in case the British should try to reembark after landing."

Then the voice was brought from "somewhere in France" to announce:

"At 7 A. M. there is nothing to report for the time being. The Anglo-Americans will not attempt anything before breakfast time."

"Still At Breakfast"

Later broadcasts:

At 8 A. M.—"The British and Americans are still at breakfast."

At 9 A. M. — "We have just learned that the British and Americans have left the breakfast table. Further developments will be recorded duly."

At 1 P. M.—"Still nothing. Perhaps the English will make up their minds later in the day. It must be admitted that it is lunch time now, but that leaves them one more half day."

"They'll Surely Land"

At 1.42 P. M.—"Still nothing to report. It is not possible that the Allies should keep us waiting so long. . . . Well, let's wait a little more. They'll surely land."

The July 3 date for an invasion was conceived only in the mind of the propaganda minister, and had utterly no basis in fact and no suggestion from Allied sources. The apparent reason for the German buildup of the fictitious date for an invasion was to arouse the hopes of the millions of Europeans in occupied countries, and allow these anticipations to be dashed.

Italians Serious

On the Rome radio, an Italian military commentator said that Italy would defend her soil inch by inch, but that the European invasion "seems to hav become a nightmare more for our opponents than for ourselves. They seem not to have made up their minds where and when to start."

He said Italy had decided to sacrifice everything in "this fight for life and death," and added:

"It is more than probable that the threat will materialize first against our country where they (the Allies) will try to open the first breach to invade Europe. Hard times are ahead and fighting undoubtedly will be the bloodiest ever seen, but we shall not falter."

Revolts Reported

In the afternoon the Paris radio turned from ridiculing the idea of an invasion of the Continent to spreading rumors of revolts among French liberationists.

One broadcast recorded by the Associated Press declared that a revolution against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Henri Giraud was brewing at Algiers.

It also said that De Gaullist detachments had been routed by rebellious forces—their nationality and numbers undescribed—in northern Syria.

LOST PLANE'S PILOT PRISONER OF NAZIS

JUL -4 1943

At a United States Bomber Station in England, July 3 (A. P.).—The pilot of the only Fortress lost from this station in the raid on Kiel, Germany, on May 19, First Lieut. Edwin L. Baxley, 28 years old, of Tyler, Tex., survived the crash into Kiel Fjord and is a prisoner of war, it was learned today.

Station officials said the pilot's mother, Mrs. Etta M. Baxley, wrote them she had been notified by the International Red Cross that her son was a prisoner.

Other bomber crews reported that one engine of Lieut. Baxley's bomber was knocked out and the other three damaged by cannon fire in the first enemy fighter attacks at the German coast.

But Lieut. Baxley maneuvered the Fort into formations below him and went on to drop his bombs. Over the target sustained enemy attacks forced the plane to straggle behind. As the crippled ship spiraled downward, still under control, crewmen of companion bombers reported seeing three parachutes leave it.

Then the bomber landed in the fjord where it exploded soon after crashing.

Other crewmen said the fact that only three chutes were observed was not conclusive evidence that only three men escaped, because others might have jumped unobserved by men in bombers overhead busy fighting off enemy attacks.

Since the pilot, usually the last one to jump, is safe it is possible others also escaped.

One member of his crew was William A. Rathgeber of Farmingdale, N. Y., tail gunner.

JAPS CLAIM SINKINGS

London, July 3 (A. P.).—The Tokio radio broadcast today a Japanese headquarters communique which asserted Japanese submarines sank eleven Allied ships totaling 85,000 tons, during June. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

The claims had no confirmation from any Allied source.

The radio also reported unofficially that two large Allied destroyers, one medium destroyer and three transports were sunk in the vicinity of Rendova Island on Wednesday. It also asserted that fifty Allied planes were shot down and three transport vessels were damaged.

These reports, too, were without any Allied support.

In another broadcast, the Tokio radio declared that 3,000 United States troops were killed during the first two days of fighting for Rendova and added that air mastery firmly is in Japanese hands.

Nazi Administrator Was Probably Right

London, July 3 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor today, said that Robert Wagner Nazi administrator for Alsace, announced at a public meeting recently that an attempt had been made to assassinate him.

"I have no doubt that most of my audience prefers to see and hear some American general in my place," Moscow quoted Wagner as saying.

Spaatz's and Kennedy's Daughters Reach London

They Will Aid U. S. Forces as Red Cross Workers

LONDON, July 3 (AP).—The daughter of an American lieutenant general and the daughter of a former American ambassador to the Court of St. James's have arrived to do their part as American Red Cross workers, it was announced today.

One is Katherine Spaatz, twenty-two years old, of Washington, whose father, Lieutenant General Carl Spaatz, commands the Northwest African Air Force. The other is Kathleen Kennedy, twenty-three, also of Washington, daughter of former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. They have just arrived with a Red Cross contingent of fifty-two other women.

Mortimer D. Mahler, a New York City social worker, was among the men arriving with the contingent. The girls in it included Barbara Graves, of Geneva, N. Y.; Jean Geither, of New York; Mary Lincoln Denison, of New York, a fashion designer, and Mrs. Eleanor P. Ribley, of Ithaca, N. Y., a medical social worker.

VICTORY IS NEARER, SAYS U.S. COMMANDER

BELFAST, July 3 — (AP) Brig. Gen. Edmond V. Hill, commander of U. S. forces in Northern Ireland, declared today that "victory is being pursued with vigor, with ever-increasing success, and new evidence mounts daily that the successful conclusion is near at hand

"But there is a second objective which lies beyond the immediate one of victory over the Axis," he said. "Our countries must and will work together in neighborly harmony during the peace to follow our victory."

General Hill's statement was in reply to a Fourth of July message from Prime Minister Sir Basil Brooke who said that "Northern Ireland is proud to have had the opportunity of welcoming so many members of the U. S. fighting services and to know that American forces and our own Ulster regiments helped with so glorious a victory in the North African campaign."

MAY ASK IRISH VOTE

Dublin, July 3 (A. P.).—Eamon De Valera, returned to the Prime Minister's post despite his party's loss of the control in the Dail Eireann, has hinted he may call for another parliamentary election in the fall.

As a result of the June 22 elections, the American-born Prime Minister's party holds sixty-six seats in the Dail. Other parties hold a total of seventy-one, the majority held by members of William T. Cosgrave's Fine Gael.

"I feel satisfied that if it is to be a good government the people again have to be appealed to," Mr. De Valera declared.

Nazis Doom More Czechs to Death

Stockholm, July 3 (A. P.).—The Social Demokraten reported today that the Germans had sentenced twenty-one persons to death in Bohemia and Moravia on a charge of harboring two Allied parachutists planning sabotage.

SWEDEN REPORTS GOERING VERY ILL

Stockholm, July 3 (A. P.).—The Goeteborg newspaper Handels-och Sjoefartstidning, quoting what it said was reliable quarters, reported today that Riechmarshal Hermann Goering is very ill from a nervous breakdown, with serious heart trouble.

As late as last Thursday night, the newspaper said, Goering's condition was very bad and two specialists were assigned to treat him. The newspaper added that his wife, Emmy, was at his bedside night and day.

Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel was said to have represented Goering, the number two Nazi, at the last session of the Reich defense council and it was recalled here that he has been out of the public eye for months. A substitute was said to have made the annual economic accounting recently, asserting that Goering was too busy to do so.

SMOLENSK REDS CONTINUE DRIVE

Fight Nazis Hand to Hand and Capture Arms.

JUL -4 1943

London, July 3 (A. P.).—Russian infantrymen continued to pound away at German positions along the western front before Smolensk, the midday communique broadcast from Moscow and recorded here by the Soviet monitor revealed today.

Although the bulletin reported no essential changes, the announcement of hand-to-hand fighting in one sector of the front and the capture of arms, radio and mine-detecting equipment in a surprise attack at another was partial confirmation of the Berlin radio admission that Nazi troops had fallen back to strongly fortified new positions near Dorogobuzh, fifty miles east of Smolensk.

On the Leningrad front Red Army units killed 150 German officers and men and destroyed nineteen blockhouses and five observation posts by artillery and mortar fire, the communique said.

German Troop Train Mined.

Guerillas in the Kamenets-Podolsk area in the southwestern Ukraine mined a German troop train, destroying the locomotive and six passenger cars, the bulletin said, adding that it took the Nazis three days to repair the line.

The guerrillas immediately attacked, derailing the first train to leave after repairs had been completed and destroying a locomotive and seventeen cars. "Scouts saw the Germans taking away large numbers of killed and wounded in trucks," the communique said.

The noon bulletin was silent on activity in the Kuban Valley of the Western Caucasus, where the Red Air Force has been ranging along the Taman Peninsula and across Kerch Strait to pound at shipping and troop concentrations.

Russians Repel Drive.

A German radio report that a Soviet landing attempt near Novorossisk had been repulsed in heavy fighting, received no confirmation from Russian sources.

The Russian communique said a company of German infantry attempted to attack Red Army positions west of Rostov but were repelled, and that in another sector of the Rostov area Red Army scouts broke into a German trench and took prisoners, the bulletin said. The Moscow broadcast also announced that Red airmen had brought down two Nazi planes in the Rostov region.

On the Volkhov front south of Leningrad fourteen German cycle troops were killed by mortar fire and in another sector of the same front artillery fire resulted in the death of seventy German officers and men, the communique said.

RED TROOPS HALT GERMAN ATTACK

Soviet Artillery, Infantry Repel Enemy at Smolensk.

JUL -4 1943

LONDON, Sunday, July 4—(AP) A German thrust toward Russian positions on the central front before Smolensk was frustrated yesterday by Soviet artillery and infantry units, Moscow announced early today in the regular midnight communique.

The bulletin, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the Soviet monitor, reported exchanges of artillery, mortar, machine-gun and rifle fire in that area, where a German withdrawal was admitted yesterday by Berlin after the renewed skirmishes of recent days.

Russian troops were said to have wiped out about a company of Germans, silenced several artillery and mortar batteries and destroyed half a dozen machineguns.

One German unit which attempted to penetrate Soviet positions ran into a mine field, the communique said. Many enemy troops were blown up and the rest were killed by machinegun and rifle fire before reaching the Russian lines.

Moscow also reported a combined sea and air attack in the Black sea in which Russian warships and planes were said to have sunk a German transport and a motor barge.

Although the communique gave no location for the action, it presumably occurred between Novorossisk and the Narrow Kerch strait.

The attack pointed to further recent German efforts to bolster the Kuban bridgehead in the Caucasus, either in anticipation of a Soviet knockout blow or to attempt a diversionary thrust of their own.

Sulzberger Sees Hospitals

New York Times' Publisher Back in Moscow From the Front

MOSCOW, July 3 (AP).—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of "The New York Times," returned to Moscow today after a two-day visit somewhere on the Russian front, at which he inspected several hospitals in his capacity as a Red Cross delegate.

"We were considerably impressed with the facilities we saw," said Mr. Sulzberger. "They are particularly well equipped for moving wounded back."

Mr. Sulzberger said he saw more British and Canadian equipment than American. "When I asked why this was so, I was told that it was because American aid has been concentrated largely in drugs," he said.

Mr. Sulzberger's trip was arranged by the Russian branch of the International Red Cross. He was accompanied by two American Red Cross representatives here and the American Embassy doctor, Commander Fred Lang.

Leader in Algiers Sends Greetings on Eve of Holiday.

ALGIERS, July 3. — (AP) Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-president of the French Committee of National Liberation, said in a statement today on the eve of July Fourth that "France is heart and soul with the United States in the war for liberation and renovation of the world."

The text of the statement:

"On this anniversary of their independence, I send greetings to the American people, for whom the people of France have always had and always will have the deepest feeling of friendship.

"The anniversary is being celebrated by the United States in the midst of war. They are fighting this war not only for themselves, but for all because the cause of liberty is indivisible.

"France is heart and soul with the United States in the war for liberation and renovation of the world."

All public buildings of Algiers were ordered decorated in the Allied colors tomorrow and citizens were asked to hang out flags at their homes. The Sultan of Morocco will participate in a celebration at Rabat, where American and French troops will be reviewed.

In a statement for release on July 4, Gen. Henri Giraud said that "In the work which the Americans have taken upon themselves to maintain, the French people, traditionally devoted to the same aspirations, associate themselves with all their means and all the strength of their soul and heart.

"At the moment of my departure for Washington I send my most ardent and sincere greetings to the President of the great republic of the United States on this American national holiday. I hope to renew them to him by word of mouth soon."

(Giraud was reported today by Rio de Janeiro dispatches to have reached Brazil en route to Washington.)

French Mission To Martinique

[By the Associated Press]

Algiers, July 3 — The French Committee of National Liberation, noting what it described as "a more hopeful tone" in recent statements by Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of Martinique, decided today to send a delegate to that island in an effort to bring the French of the Antilles into the united empire.

A spokesman said that Robert's recent remarks addressed to French populations everywhere contained statements inducing a belief among the national committee that it might now be possible to end the long isolation of the Antilles from the anti-Vichy French movement.

To Go From Algiers

He said the envoy had not been named, but would be sent from Algiers.

Besides Admiral Robert's zone of influence, the only part of the French overseas empire still outside the authority of the national committee is Japanese-occupied French Indo-China.

The committee also agreed to restore July 14 as a national holiday. It has not been celebrated since Marshal Petain decreed it a day of mourning in 1940.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle presided at the meeting.

GIRAUD IS ON WAY TO UNITED STATES

Algiers, July 3 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud is en route to the United States, it was disclosed today.

The French Committee of National Liberation disclosed last Tuesday that it had decided that Gen. Giraud, its co-president and the French Commander in Chief, should be permitted to visit Washington in response to an invitation from President Roosevelt. Gen. Charles de Gaulle is to preside at all sessions during his absence.

Gen. Giraud's mission is expected to be confined to questions affecting American arms assistance for the French, it was said.

ITALIAN BASES HIT IN DAYLIGHT RAIDS BY ALLIED PLANES

100 Liberators Bomb Three Airdromes Protecting Taranto.

JUL -4 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 3—(AP) The Allied assault on Italy's military air fields rose to a new peak of fury yesterday when heavy and medium American bombers from North Africa and the Middle East swung across by daylight to pulverize four important bases on Sicily and the Italian mainland.

Only a few hours earlier heavy British night bombers had poured scores of tons of high explosives and fire bombs on the battered cities of Palermo and Catania, Sicily, and Cagliari, on Sardinia.

The attack on Palermo was termed "heavy and successful," with two-ton blockbusters heading the destruction.

100 Planes in Raid

In what a U. S. communique described as "a sudden intensification of the attack," nearly 100 four-engined Liberators of the Middle East command swarmed over the "heel" of Italy to drop more than 400,000 pounds of bombs on Axis airdromes at Lecce, Grottaglie and San Pancrazio—all within the aerial defense zone protecting the big Italian naval base at Taranto.

It was the biggest offensive action yet staged by Liberators of the Cairo command. Three were lost as clouds of German and Italian fighters rose to defend their home fields, but 12 Axis planes were destroyed, paying the penalty for getting within range of the Liberators' machine-guns.

Three Airports Hit

Dispersal areas at all three airdromes were blanketed with fragmentation bombs, direct hits were scored on hangars and runways and bursts were seen throughout the target areas, a communique said. At Lecce bursts of smoke covered the field, indicating hits on grounded aircraft, and at least two were destroyed at Grottaglie, the announcement said. It was American precision bombing at its best.

Grottaglie is 10 miles northeast of Taranto; San Pancrazio is 28 miles east of the naval base and Lecce 42 miles to the east. Axis fighters trying to protect the bases resorted to attempts at bombing the American raiders from above, but there was no indication they were any more successful than in previous attempts.

Mitchell medium bombers of the North African Air force also ran into furious resistance in their daylight attack on the Castelvetrano field in Sicily, the results of which were obscured by a ground haze. More than 20 German fighters tore into the attacking formation, and in the course of the ensuing battle Lieut. Charles B. Hall of Brazil, Ind., gained the distinction of being the first American Negro pilot to destroy an enemy plane in combat.

Lieut. Hall, flying a P-40 Warhawk in the squadron escorting the Mitchells, got a German Focke-Wulf-190 between his sights and sent him crashing. Upon returning to his base he was personally congratulated by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander-in-chief, who made a 1,500-mile tour of Allied air fields during the day.

In addition to Lieut. Hall's victory, the Warhawks probably destryed a Messerschmitt-109 and damaged another. All Allied planes returned safely, both from this operation and from the raid by British Wellington bombers on Palermo and Cagliari the preceding night.

The attack on Castelvetrano was the first mission by medium bombers of the Northwest African Tactical Air Force since the fall of Pantelleria Island on June 11. Crewmen said they had difficulty locating their targets through the haze, but one pilot said: "I think we tore up the objectives."

The Royal Air Force's slow but dependable Wellingtons achieved spectacular results in their night blow at Palermo, one of Sicily's most vital ports.

"High explosives, including several 4,000-pounders and incendiaries, were dropped on the marshaling yards," a report said. "When one stick of bombs burst on the sidings there was a series of brilliant blue flashes. Other bombs fell near oil tanks north of the harbor. Cagliari, in Sardinia, also was attacked, and all bombs were reported to have landed in the target area."

Heavy R. A. F. bombers from the Middle East carried out Thursday night's attack on Catania, in Sicily.

R. A. F. fighters from Malta were reported to have joined in yesterday's daylight onslaught on Sicily and to have destroyed two German fighters,

100 LIBERATORS HIT SOUTHERN ITALY AIRPORTS

Middle East Flyers in Their Biggest Raid Bag 12 Axis Aircraft.

JUL -4 1943

Cairo, July 3 (A. P.).—Nearly 100 United States Liberators smashed at three air fields in southern Italy yesterday in the biggest offensive action yet staged by these four-engined craft from the Middle East, dropping more than 400,000 pounds of bombs on the Italian bases at Lecce, Grottaglie and San Pancrazio.

Lecce and Grottaglie are on the heel of the Italian boot. San Pancrazio is thirty-five miles north of Rome.

The lethal loads included high explosive, fragmentation and incendiary bombs, an American communique from Middle East headquarters announced.

Three American planes were lost in delivering the triple punch, this relatively small figure equaling the entire United States losses for the month of June in this area. Twelve Axis planes were shot down, the communique said.

"At Lecce, bursts of smoke covered the field, indicating hits on dispersed aircraft," the announcement said. "Other hits were observed on hangars and runways. Fires were left burning behind the hangars and in the dispersal area. A very large fuel fire was observed in the southeast section.

"At Grottaglie direct hits were scored on hangars and bursts were seen throughout the target area. The dispersal area was blanketed with fragmentation bombs. One enemy aircraft was seen to explode, and at least one other was seen burning.

"At San Pancrazio the target area was well covered with bursts."

Italians Try to Bomb Planes.

Axis fighters trying to protect the Italian bases sought to bomb the American planes from above. Many German planes joined in the attack, among them Messerschmitts, Focke-Wulfs, Junkers and Heinkels.

A British communique said five Allied planes were lost during operations yesterday, including the three Liberators.

A force of forty enemy fighters, including Messerschmitt 109s and 202s, challenged the bombers at Lecce, but twelve were reported shot down.

[The Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, admitted casualties and damage were caused in the Lecce and Grottaglie areas and asserted twenty-four of the attacking planes, twelve of them four-engined bombers, were shot down in attacks yesterday on the mainland in Sicily and Sardinia.]

Fires at Lecce Field.

At the Lecce field fires were reported started behind the hangars and dispersal areas, fuel was set afire in the southeastern sections of the field and other hits were scored to the north. At Grottaglie bursts were observed in dispersal areas.

Both fields are on the heel of the Italian boot, east of the Taranto naval base and near the Adriatic coast.

The R. A. F. night bombers scored hits on the Catania railway yards, the communique said. Bomb bursts were seen all over the sidings and in the industrial area, including a section where sulphur refineries are located. Four small fires were said to have been started at this east coast Sicilian city.

British long-range fighters, continuing their attacks on enemy shipping in Ægean waters, shot up a schooner in Kyllene Harbor off the west coast of Greece yesterday, the bulletin said. On the previous day Allied fighters attacked two dredges in the Levkas channel in the same area where a ship had been sunk, blocking the channel.

At the same time, in sweeps along a canal in that district, the Allied planes silenced several gun posts, the announcement said.

Spitfires sent a Junkers-86 crashing into the sea north of Alexandria yesterday.

Sicilian Cities Raided.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 3 (A. P.).—Flying through a heavy haze which obscured their targets, American Mitchell bombers attacked the Castelvetrano air field in Sicily yesterday after R. A. F. Wellingtons had again raided Palermo, Sicily, and Cagliari, Sardinia, the preceding night.

More than twenty enemy fighters rose to attack the American planes, which comprised the first medium bomber mission of the Northwest African Tactical Air Force since the fall of Pantelleria Island on June 11.

The enemy attack was beaten off largely through the efforts of escorting Negro Warhawk pilots, one of whom shot down a Focke-Wulf 190 to score the first victory for his squadron, the first Negro air unit to see action in the North African theater.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander in Chief, visited the squadron after yesterday's fight and personally congratulated the victorious pilot, Lieut. Charles B. Hall, 22 years old, of Brazil, Ind. Gen. Eisenhower also congratulated Lieut. Hall's squadron commander, Lieut.-Col. Benjamin O. Davis Jr. of Washington, D. C.

In addition to Lieut. Hall's victory, the Warhawk fighters probably destroyed a Messerschmitt. Allied planes returned safely from both the night and day operations.

Eisenhower Tours Airfields.

Gen. Eisenhower made a 1,500-mile tour yesterday of Allied airdromes in North Africa. Among the combat units he visited was an American Spitfire group commanded by 28-year-old Col. Graham W. West of Portland, Ore., whom he congratulated upon his unit's recent 100th victory. One squadron of this group gained fame by destroying fourteen German dive-bombers in a single swift battle at El Guettar three months ago.

In scoring the first victory by a Negro pilot, Lieut. Hall, flying his eighth combat mission, intercepted two Focke-Wulf 190s as they closed in to attack the Mitchell bombers over their targets. He gave one long burst with his 50-caliber machine-guns at one of them, and it was seen to crash in a great cloud of Sicilian dust.

Lieut. Hall, a former student at the Illinois State Teachers College, left his studies last November to begin flight training.

Opposition from enemy fighters yesterday was the heaviest encountered in recent days and seemingly dispelled any idea that they had been withdrawn from Sicily because of the continuous poundings that have been given the island's airdromes.

WIDE DEVASTATION WROUGHT ON ITALY

Strategic Air Force's Activities Have Crippled Mainland and Dependent Isles

JUL -4 1943

SUPPLY A MAJOR TARGET

Command Satisfied With Attacks on Enemy Plane Bases and War Industries

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, July 3 (AP)—Accelerating operations week by week, Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Strategic Air Force has piastered some eighty-five areas of Sardinia, Sicily and Italy with many thousands of tons of bombs in the aerial campaign against the under-belly of Europe.

Air supremacy gained months ago has been increased to the point where Allied planes operate at will with nominal losses. Railroad operations have been disrupted in Sicily and Sardinia and in Italy south of Naples. Every important seaport within reach has been hit hard and shipping has been attacked so thoroughly that Italian vessels within range now prefer to move under cover of darkness.

The consistent bombardment is the second phase of a long-range program, the first objective of which was to cut off Axis supplies to Tunisia. The outstanding success of the airmen in achieving this aim was an important contribution to the Allied victory.

Command Satisfied

Since the middle of May, operations generally have been directed against lines of communication, the enemy air forces and Italy's industries. The command feels that its crews have done a satisfactory job.

The destruction of hundreds of German and Italian planes has forced a large turnover of enemy aircraft. Widespread damage has been done to at least six important Italian rail centers, slowing down the southward movement of supplies. The raids have created temporary chaos at times in Naples.

Attacks on Italian shipping since the start of the North African campaign have caused the destruction of ninety-seven Axis vessels, including sixty-one merchant ships, the 10,000-ton cruiser Trieste and the 3,200-ton cruiser Bari, which was obsolete and inactive. Approximately 250 vessels, among them at least one 35,000-ton Italian battleship of the Littorio class and a 10,000-ton heavy cruiser, have been damaged.

Pattern-bombing from medium altitudes is being applied, with a success that airmen regard as tremendous, to industrial areas. High-altitude precision bombing is used with notable results against such specific targets as torpedo factories, arsenals, refineries and air depots.

The planes are making wide use of general-purpose bombs ranging to two tons and are battering personnel and matériel, especially grounded aircraft, with fragmentation bombs that explode into thousands of steel squares.

Bombers and fighters based at Malta and in the Middle East are supplementing the North African planes. The operations of the forces are coordinated.

Palermo, the capital and main seaport of Sicily, has been hit hardest to date, receiving more than 1,000 tons of bombs since December. Because it served as an embarkation point for Tunisia-bound ships, the port and installations have been severely damaged. Two near-by cities, Trapani and Marsala, received the same treatment for the same reason.

750 Tons Hit Cagliari

The bombers also caused great damage to the principal port of Cagliari, in Sardinia, dropping more than 750 tons of steel and explosives. They destroyed the shipping berth at Olbia, an alternate seaport on the northeastern side of the island. A third Sardinian seaport, Maddalena, was also damaged badly.

The concentrated bombardment on the three embarkation points of western Italy—Naples, Leghorn and Civitavecchia—cut down shipping to Sardinia materially. Operations against Civitavecchia, the eastern terminus of the ferry shuttle service, destroyed a large portion of the harbor installations and, when traffic shifted north to Leghorn, Flying Fortresses bombed that port.

Every airport of western Sicily has been pounded by Africa-based bombers, dealing a severe blow to the island's defenses. The field at Castelvetrano has been greatly damaged, and almost equal damage has been done at Sciacca, Bocca di Falco, Milo, Trapani and Borizzo.

Sardinia's airfields of Elmas, Villacidro and Decimomannu have been attacked heavily.

In Italy, reconnaissance shows sizable damage at Cancello, the site of one of the country's most important air supply depots; at Foggia, principal Italian base of the German Air Force reserve fighters; at Grosseto; at Capodichino, and at Pomigliano, which has an aircraft factory.

Rail movements to southern Italy have been disrupted by a series of raids on Leghorn, Foggia, Naples, Salerno and Battipaglia. With the switchyards at Foggia damaged, east coast traffic south on the main line has been halted and, with junctions and siding in other cities hit, every line leading to the "toe" of the Italian "boot" has been damaged.

Italy's industry suffered most heavily at Naples, where recent reconnaissance showed damage to nearly every factory of military importance, including the torpedo works of the Royal Arsenal. Leghorn's large refinery was knocked out.

ALLIES TO HELP CELEBRATE FOURTH

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 3 (A. P.).—Because of a British admiral's expressed desire "to let us Limeys help you Yanks celebrate your Independence Day," a Royal Navy warship will fire a forty-eight-gun salute at the July 4 reception by American officers at Allied headquarters.

And to make it a completely Allied affair, a French military band will play "The Star-Spangled Banner."

A suggestion from Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of Allied naval forces in the Mediterranean, to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, led to the arrangements for tomorrow's ceremony.

CHENNAULT SEES ATTACK ON JAPAN IN COMING YEAR

JUL 4 1943

U. S. Commander in China Predicts Raids on Island Empire.

HEADQUARTERS U. S. 14TH AIR FORCE, China, July 3—(AP) Major General Claire L. Chennault said today in an address commemorating the first anniversary of the United States air forces in China: "I sincerely hope that during the next year you men will fly over Japan itself many times before the first firecracker explodes July 4, 1934."

"We are starting a new year," Gen. Chennault declared. "Things will be different before it ends."

Praises A. V. G.

He recalled that on July 4th, 1942, the American Volunteer Group completed a "remarkable and outstanding chapter in American aerial history." He told the air force ground crewmen and headquarters staff that "you strafed and bombed 35 important Japanese bases and numerous other targets of opportunity. You made them pay a high price for the raids they made on American bases in China."

"In the past year," Chennault continued, "not only have you saved thousands of lives by preventing the Japanese from dropping bombs on Chinese towns and cities as they once did unhampered, but you have taken an important part in the defeat of the enemy on the Hupeh front—a retreat that is still going on under the relentless pressure of Chinese ground troops supported by American and Chinese planes.

"For that work, the first of its kind since American planes came to China, you have received not only the thanks of the Chinese leaders but also those of the Chinese soldiers on the ground who no longer fear the sound of motors overhead—they know they're American or Chinese.

Jap Air Raids Checked

"You have earned the gratitude of these men who have fought six long years without full support. You have also earned the gratitude of millions of Chinese who now live in their towns for the first time in five of these six years without the daily fear of Japanese bombings. We haven't completely stopped the Japanese raids of Chinese towns. That is for the future."

Gen. Chennault pointed out that America's air organization in China had grown from a fighter group to an air force in the past year. He said medium bombers in 77 missions had built a "record of hell for the Japanese who are hard to beat in any theater of war," losing a total of only two planes and crews. He praised the work of heavy bombers which recently joined the air force.

Gen. Chennault paid tribute to the ground crews, saying "your work as members of the 14th air force has been equally as great as the records of the combat men."

"We can expect an even better record in the year to come," the general declared. "Why shouldn't we? Our bombers and fighters this year fought a superior fight—short-straffed and undermanned."

Jap Airmen Inactive In China

Headquarters Fourteenth United States Air Force in China, July 2 (Delayer) (AP) — Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault said today that Japanese planes made no attack on unoccupied China during the week of June 23-30 and commented:

"It is quite possible the Japs don't want to lose any more planes in China for a while, because they are so badly needed elsewhere."

The lull probably created a record for Japanese inactivity, the general said. Bad weather kept American planes grounded during the same period, but Chennault pointed out that there were localities where the enemy could have taken advantage of good weather.

Chinese Flyers Praised

He praised American-trained Chinese airmen who "have made excellent records."

"They are anxious to participate in the defeat of the Japs," he said. "They are confident they are better airmen than the Japs and eager for opportunities to prove it."

HONORS 30 FLIERS IN CHINA

Stilwell Also Gives First American Medal to Chinese Flier

U. S. 14TH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, July 3 (AP)—Thirty American airmen were honored today when they received medals from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell in ceremonies commemorating the first anniversary of the Fourteenth Air Forces.

Captain Tzang Hsi-la became the first Chinese Air Force officer to be decorated by the United States Air Force in China when he received the Silver Star for coming to the rescue of Lieut. Col. John Alison, 31, of Daytona Beach, Fla., on May 31.

Among those to receive Distinguished Flying Crosses was Lieut. Charles Crysler of Kenmore, N. Y.

Air Medals went to Sgts. Alberto Gazo of New York City and Frank F. Metallo of Middletown, Pa.

Brig. Gen. Edgar E. Glenn, New York City, who was wounded in a Japanese raid here April 23, received a Purple Heart.

10TH AIR FORCE HITS JAPS HARD

Attacks on 23 Days in June —No Loss, No Casualties.

JUL -4 1943

New Delhi, July 3 (A. P.).—Heavy and medium bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force flew through heavy monsoon weather to pound Japanese targets in Burma on twenty-three days during June, Major-Gen. Clayton L. Bissell said today. They suffered no casualties and lost no planes, and the Japanese made no attempt to intercept them. The last challenge by Japanes planes was met on May 21, when the Americans destroyed or damaged fourteen out of twenty-five attacking fighters.

Gen. Bissell said that a recent Japanese broadcast accused the Americans of bombing hospitals. He showed newspaper men a reconnaissance photograph of a Japanese building marked with a Red Cross standing adjacent to a munitions dump at Maymyo. He made it clear that as long as the Japanese place military objectives beside hospitals, they will be inviting trouble.

British fighter patrols operating over the Chindwin and Irrawaddy rivers in Burma smashed at the Japanese sampan supply line in Burma, a British communique said today.

The raiders, who returned to their bases without the loss of a plane, sank ten sampans, damaged fifty more, sank a barge, and damaged a river steamer, in addition to striking at enemy factories located in the area, the bulletin said.

Blenheim bombers left a large fire burning after an attack on an enemy supply base near Kalemyo. Pilots said all bursts were well within the target area.

Little ground activity was reported.

Among the men charged with the difficult task of getting supplies to American forces in the China-Burma-India theater of operations are Lieut.-Col. T. L. Bell of Montclair, N. J., a motor transport expert, and Major Edwin A. Goodwin of Long Branch, N. J., a signal officer.

Most U.S. Ships Reaching India Without Mishap

Two Jersey Officers Assist in Supplying Troops

NEW DELHI, India, July 3 (AP). — Among the men charged with the difficult task of getting supplies to the American forces in the China-Burma-India theater of operations are Lieutenant Colonel T. L. Bell, of Montclair, N. J., a motor transport expert, and Major Edwin A. Goodwin, of Long Branch, N. J., a signal officer.

Colonel Samuel M. Lansing, service force chief of staff, disclosed today that the American forces are getting nearly half of their requirements from local sources.

Most of the ships from the United States, he said, are getting through without mishap, and "every available inch of space" is being used for vital war materials. Food, clothing, and some medical supplies are available locally.

The staff of experts which has brought this about in little more than a year is headed by Major General Raymond A. Wheeler, of Washington.

Repair 2,877 Ships in Year

CANBERRA, Australia, July 3 (AP).—Australian ports have averaged 1,000,000 tons of merchant ships repaired or overhauled every month since last August, the Navy Ministry announced today. It said 2,877 ships received repairs. Of this number, 386 were drydocked. An extensive shipbuilding program also was disclosed.

GETS UNIT CITATION

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 3 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral A. S. Carpender, commander of Allied naval forces in the Southwest Pacific, today presented the presidential unit citation to the destroyer U. S. S. Smith, which held her position in action against Japanese forces off Santa Cruz Island on October 26, 1942, although her forward topside was aflame. Admiral Carpender made the citation on behalf of the President and at the direction of Secretary of the Navy Knox.

Lieut.-Commander H. Wood Jr., was the commanding officer at the time of the action.

HAWAII DEPOT HELPS IN DRIVE

JUL -4 1943

Repair and Maintenance Men Back Up Flyers.

Hickam Field, T. H., July 3 (A. P.).—Air strength must be measured by more than numbers of planes. Without repair shops, maintenance facilities and the thousands of gadgets which must be fitted and overhauled by unsung ground workers it would be impossible to keep 'em flying.

An indication of America's swiftly growing air power in the Southwest Pacific and South Pacific can be seen at the sprawling Hawaiian air depot. For the first time since Pearl Harbor, correspondents have been taken behind the scenes and shown how this huge aviation depot is making its influence felt.

In one large hangar workmen swarmed over a long line of four-engine bombers. Some big ships were battle-scarred veterans being rejuvenated and improved for further service.

In other hangars, hundreds of civilian employees—including Filipinos, Chinese, Koreans and Hawaiians—and Army technicians were overhauling and repairing engines. There is even a foundry where new parts are manufactured.

Large warehouses at this depot contain thousands of different spare parts for planes. Workers can obtain any one of those items—no matter how rare and intricate—on a moment's notice.

Efficiency Emblem.

The Army and Navy will award an E to the depot. It will be the first time an Army unit in the Pacific has been given such an award.

Many important improvements to aircraft have originated here after planes arrived from the States, suggested by Pacific war veterans and skilled engineers on the staff.

Stories about discontent among civilian workers on Hawaiian projects do not apply to the Hawaiian air depot, according to Col. Harry G. Montgomery, commanding officer.

"Democracy is at work here," he said. "I've never seen such hard workers. Hours mean nothing to them and there have been times when they've worked the clock around to rush planes into condition."

Col. Montgomery, formerly of Omaha, Neb., said that absenteeism averages only 1.8 per cent, compared to the average on similar projects in the States of 15 per cent. Both figures do not include legitimate absence from work because of illness.

Recently employees chipped in $50,000 to buy a Pass fighter plane.

Minister-Rank Appointment Is Lauded

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, July 3—The administration of Pedro Ramirez, which came into power last month by revolutionary action, has appointed a new Argentine delegate to the Consultative Committee for the Political Defense of the Hemisphere, it was announced today.

Guillermo Achaval, named to represent this country at the committee's meetings in Montevideo, Uruguay, will be assisted, however, by the present delegate, Miguel Angel Chiappe, who also is councillor of the Argentine Embassy in Uruguay, the announcement said.

Achaval was charge d'affairs in Spain during the civil war and later plenipotentiary minister to Poland.

Montevideo Lauds Action

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 3 (AP). Alberto Guani, Uruguayan Vice-President and chairman of the Consultative Committee for the Political Defense of the Hemisphere, said today he felt "sure all members will welcome appointment of a new Argentine delegate with the rank of minister."

Guani declared that this appeared to be "evidence that Argentina is paying growing attention to the committee's work."

"Action" Still Awaited

Circles close to the committee, while saying the appointment of Guillermo Achaval was a hopeful sign, pointed out it still would be premature to predict to what extent the Buenos Aires regime would implement its announced policy of showing inter-American friendship by facts and not mere words.

These circles said during the regime of ousted President Castillo, Argentina on many occasions, through a non-cooperative attitude, had delayed the committee's decisions.

Set Up By Conference

The committee, composed of seven members, was set up by the Rio de Janeiro conference of foreign ministers to act on behalf of all twenty-one American republics, each delegate representing several countries.

Committee circles expressed the hope Achaval would be able to attend next Tuesday's meeting when final details are expected to be settled on sending two missions to several American countries to recommend the most effective means of bringing about joint political defense against the Axis.

CANAL TROOPS PRAISED

Gen. Brett Tells Soldiers They 'Are Doing a Great Job'

HEADQUARTERS, UNITED STATES CARIBBEAN DEFENSE COMMAND, July 3 (AP)—"You are doing a great job," Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, commander of the Caribbean area, told troops guarding the approaches to the Panama Canal today.

His statement said:

"Believe me, for I know, your task is of the utmost importance and though you may not be in an actual combat theatre, the duties you perform, wearisome as they may seem, are just as important as engaging the enemy."

Coast artillery troops last month completed their third year at battle posts in the jungles and at distant outposts.

Plans were completed for a limited Fourth of July celebration in the Canal Zone and the Republic of Panama. Maj. Gen. William E. Shedd, deputy commander of the Panama Canal Department, and Octavio Fabrega, once Foreign Minister, will be the principal speakers at official exercises in Balboa.

Rents Are Lowered By Ramirez Government

Buenos Aires, July 3 (A. P.).—A general reduction in home rentals and a bonus for certain Argentine Government workers were decreed by the new Ramirez administration today in a move to compensate for the higher cost of living. Workers in the lower wage and salary brackets were expected to receive the major benefit.

The decree relating to home leases directed reductions ranging from 5 to 20 per cent below the figures of December, 1940. The other directive gives a bonus to administration employees with monthly salaries less than 250 pesos ($65), 10 per cent going to married persons and 5 to single.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 3—(AP) General Henri Giraud has passed through Natal enroute to the United States, an O Globo dispatch from there said tonight.

Natal is an air base on the South Atlantic route between the United States and Africa.

Troops to Guard Mexican Elections

Mexico City, July 3 (A. P.).—Fifteen thousand troops will go on duty at 6 P. M. today and remain on duty through Sunday night in Mexico City and suburbs to assure order in the Sunday elections, it was announced by Gen. Rodrigo Quevedo Moreno, commander of the military zone.

Sale of alcoholic drinks also will be prohibited from 10 o'clock tonight until Monday morning.

Mexico Recognizes French Committee

Mexico City, July 3 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla announced today that Mexico has recognized the French Committee of National Liberation.

Mexico previously had recognized the De Gaulle unit in London.

Admiral Going To Martinique

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 3 (AP). Vice-Admiral John H. Hoover, commandant of the Tenth Naval District here, announced he would fly today to Martinique to confer with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner for the Antilles, on that official's offer to arrange terms for a "change of French authority."

(A navy announcement in Washington stressed that Hoover's visit was to be purely consultative.)

Informed sources in Puerto Rico said they believed Hoover's function would be that of an observer for the United States State and Navy departments and that any direct negotiations for a change would await his report to Washington.

Admiral Hoover conducted the first negotiations in June, 1940, by which Robert, after the fall of France, agreed to demilitarization of ships and planes in the islands in return for economic assistance, and also agreed to close the islands to Axis submarines. The State Department abrogated the agreement last May.

Terms for Shift at Martinique Offered by Vichy French Ruler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Martinique radio said last night that Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy French high commissioner to Martinique, had presented United States Vice Admiral John J. Hoover with a three-point plan under which he would agree to permit Martinique to "pass to other French authority."

The French broadcast heard by Federal Communications commission quoted a "communique from the high commissioner" in which the following points were outlined:

"1. A demand for a guarantee of the maintenance of French sovereignty.

"2. The non-intervention of foreign armed forces.

"3. The resumption of the supply of provisions."

Six Canadian Flyers Killed in Crashes

Montreal, July 3 (Canadian Press).—Several men (probably four) were killed yesterday when two Royal Canadian Air Force planes crashed near Pendleton, Ont., and two men were killed when two planes collided near Plantagenet, Ont., No. 3 Training Command of the R. C. A. F. reported today.

An Anson trainer from the Rockcliffe Airport near Ottawa and a Moth trainer from the Pendleton Airport were believed to have collided in mid-air.

Officials here said they did not know how many men were in the Anson, which crashed to the ground and burned. Two of the victims were identified as Flying Officer Douglas Harker of Toronto, and Warrant Officer James Millar Brownie of Ottawa. It was not definitely established whether they were occupants of the Anson or of the Moth.

At Plantagenet a Tiger Moth and a Gypsy Major from the Pendleton airport collided in mid-air.

The victims were listed as Flight Sergt. V. A. Poulin of Currant, Ont., and Sergt. R. F. Shattock of Ottawa.

prisoners yet brought to this country. We carried thousands of them, both German and Italian.

After the voyage was safely made, their faith in Axis propaganda, which had told them that U-boats controlled the Atlantic and that scarcely any Allied ships could get across it, was a little shaken.

They also found our East Coast had not been blitzed. But many of them, especially the Germans, were still confident that they would win the war.

Many Axis Prisoners Think U. S. Bombed Kennedy

(Associated ...

New York, July 3—Of the hundreds of thousands of Axis soldiers captured in Africa, many believe that New York and other Eastern cities have been reduced to masses of twisted wreckage by German bombers and that the Japanese have established bridgeheads on the Pacific Coast and soon will close in for the kill.

When events were going badly for them in Tunisia, the "imminent collapse" of the United States was offered to them as a reason why they should hold out longer.

Thousands In Contingent

I recently arrived at an Atlantic port with the largest group of war

In the case of the Italians, the change was highly musical. They burst into song—"O Sole Mio" and other gay numbers from Naples, and occasionally an operatic air.

The Germans looked much relieved, but some remained a little sullen. They did not sing or talk much, except in whispers among themselves.

The prisoners, other than the officers, will be permitted to work in America, mostly on farms, and will be paid for their work. They are eager to go to work. When thirty Italians were wanted as waiters in the officers' mess aboard, they all wanted the jobs.

No Dangerous Work

They will not be put to unhealthful or dangerous work—the Geneva conventions do not allow that.

Almost all the Italians have relatives in America.

Among those who fell into the bag in Tunisia, but did not come with us, were three Italian boys of 12 or 13.

After their families had been killed in air raids in Tripoli, they said, they went with the army and fell back into Cape Bon with it. The soldiers fed them and they had picked up uniforms which hung loosely from them.

Left Behind

They were moved to our port of embarkation, but then their ages were noticed and they were segregated from the other prisoners. When I last saw them in Africa they were still in their comic oversized uniforms, saluting American officers with calm dignity and insisting on their rights to be prisoners of war. It had not yet been decided what to do with them.

It was plain that there was little love lost between the Germans and the Italians, but they were segregated and there were no incidents. There was some ill-feeling between regular Italian soldiers and Fascist Black Shirts.

Told Moscow Fell

The prisoners had obtained their propaganda at the front from Nazi and Fascist "enlighteners" attached to their armies.

They were told months ago that Moscow had fallen and some still thought it true.

The United States had been described to them as a country largely in revolt, running wild with sabotage and peopled by a strange mixture of nationalities which had lost all unity and cohesion under the strain of war.

The Italians believed far less of this than the Germans and many of them said Mussolini was wrong in going into the war and that there was now little in it for Italy, no matter which side won.

Some were against Mussolini and Fascism, but none spoke against the King. A few though Crown Prince Umberto was the best hope.

They said they had heard reports that Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Foreign Minister and Mussolini's son-in-law, was in exile on an island.

NAZI WHITE PAPER

The Berlin radio said in a propaganda broadcast today that the German Foreign Office had issued a new white paper entitled "Roosevelt's Way Into War," and containing secret documents on the war policy of the President of the United States from European archives.

The broadcast asserted that the present war is "Roosevelt's war" and said: "He certainly will have to bear responsibility for it." The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press. The white paper was described as the first in a series with the general title of "Causes for the War of 1939."

What's Behind The War News

By GLENN BABB

While the great forces besieging and defending Hitler's European fortress remained poised last week for the first onset of the Allies' 1943 offensive, the war in the Pacific claimed the spotlight. Against the European end of the Axis the United Nations waged the war of the air and the war of nerves but against the Asiatic end they loosed a formidable combination of air, land and sea power.

But while these forces were in actual close-quarter contact with the enemy holding Japan's outermost defenses it was strongly indicated that this, like the continued air assault on Europe, was merely a preparatory phase for far larger undertakings.

In Europe the Axis lands, especially Italy, lived from day to day under the shadow of imminent invasion. They knew that it might come at any moment and the Allies did nothing to lessen their anxieties. Axis propaganda insisted throughout the week that the American-British attack was coming on Saturday. When it did not—and there never had been any Allied suggestion that it would—Doctor Goebbels tried to comfort his people with the idea that the Allied timetable had gone awry. This, of course, had no basis outside the Goebbels imagination; the preparations for the invasion, from all indications moved ahead surely and implacably.

The Allied—chiefly American—offensive in the southwest Pacific opened Wednesday, June 30, along a 700-mile arc, ending the deadlock that had persisted in that theater since the Allies cleared the last Japanese from Guadalcanal and mopped up the Papua area of New Guinea in January and February. General MacArthur was in supreme command of the new operation, which drew on the naval, ground and air forces of Admiral Halsey's south Pacific command as well as MacArthur's own American-Australian-British forces.

The attack took the form of a pincers directed toward Rabaul, on New Britain, the main Japanese base in the island chains south of the equator. It was strongly indicated that the immediate objective was to seize air bases from which Allied fighters could carry several hundred miles further north the umbrella necessary for attacks on more important enemy-held territory such as New Britain. The ultimate objectives were not disclosed but many believed these might lie well beyond Rabaul and that the operation now under way might develop into the right claw of a huge pincers which might catch the Japanese in the south seas between the Americans in the Pacific and the British in the Bay of Bengal.

Rendova Seized

The eastern wing of the Allied attack was thrown at dawn Wednesday against the New Georgia group in the central Solomons. Rendova, just off the main island of New Georgia, was quickly seized, its garrison destroyed and heavy guns emplaced within two hours after debarkment. These immediately began shelling the enemy's big airbase at Munda on the main island, which the Allies apparently intend to turn to their own use. Viru harbor, on the main island, was seized after bitter fighting.

The Japanese struck back quickly and fiercely. First came the planes. In three days of savage air battles over the New Georgia area 123 enemy planes, torpedo bombers, dive bombers, fighters, were destroyed. The Allies lost 25 planes but 10 of the pilots were saved.

Friday the Japanese navy had its try. A small cruiser and destroyer force tried to bombard Rendova but American surface vessels quickly put it to flight. One of the main purposes of the offensive was to compel the Japanese fleet to come out and fight and it was an American hope that this skirmish would prove the prelude to something much bigger. But at the week-end the big ships apparently had not intervened.

Two Islands Occupied

The western thrust involved the unopposed occupation of Woodlark island and the Trobriand islands, off New Guinea's southeastern tip, and the landing of an American force at Nassau bay, just below the big enemy base at Salamaua, on New Guinea's northeastern coast. By the week-end this contingent had effected a junction with veteran Australian jungle fighters who had driven toward the coast from the Mubo area, inland. Other Australian columns approached Salamaua from the west and advanced to within sight of the big base.

The softening up of Italy and her islands for invasion continued with devastating power although toward the end of the week there appeared to be a slight slackening of the tempo of attack. But Sicily's chief cities, Messina and Palermo, and the entire list of her airbases were hammered again and again by American and British planes of all types, while on Sardinia Cagliari and the airfields received a like drubbing. Most of this was done from bases in Tunisia and Algeria and on Malta.

Athens Airfields Raided

One highlight of the week was a Liberator raid on the Elevsis and Hasani airfields, near Athens, following the previous week's raid on Salonika. In these flights over Greece the planes dropped leaflets carrying a message of hope and cheer from President Roosevelt to the Greek people. An aftermath took the form of riots against the German conqueror in four Greek cities. The usual harsh measures of repression followed.

The air offensive from Britain against Germany and western Europe, which already had crippled Hitler's war industry and placed millions of Germans under constant terror, failed to match the destructive punch of the previous week although Cologne was scourged with a 2,000-ton raid by the R.A.F. Monday night. This aroused German propaganda to its shrillest reaction of the war. Charges that the bombers had destroyed the magnificent Cologne cathedral were mingled with dark, vague threats of terrible vengeance to come.

A pause toward the weekend suggested that the big bombers of both the R.A.F. and the American Eighth air force were being prepared for heavier blows than any yet delivered. Nevertheless during the week the American Flying Fortresses managed to get in two effective attacks, on St. Nazaire, the U-boat base on the French coast, and Le Mans, railway and war industry center in northwest France.

There still was no sign of Hitler's expected 1943 offensive on the Russian front. The mystery of the German command's intentions deepened; the suggestion that it had abandoned offensive plans gained wider credence.

In China the Japanese threw reinforcements into the battle between the Yangtze river and Tungting lake to stem the Chinese drive which has nearly cleared the enemy from his conquests of the spring. But as China approached the end of her sixth year of war her position seemed stronger and more hopeful than ever it had been, with American air power already effective on her battlefields and new aid not far off.

POST-WAR FORUM TO COVER NATION

JUL -4 1943

Members of Senate and House to Stump U. S. in Bi-Partisan Teams.

WASHINGTON, July 3 — (AP) Advocates of post-war international collaboration will take their views to the people this Summer with a bi-partisan speaking campaign reminiscent of the days of Chautauqua platform oratory.

Giving up the vacation they might otherwise spend fishing or glad-handing constituents, 16 members of the Senate and House expect to employ the forthcoming congressional recess in trying to convince the American people that Congress ought to make an early expression of the United States' post-war intentions.

This campaign will take the form of speaking tours by teams of two —one Republican and one Democrat in most cases—covering the country from New Hampshire to California. The expenses will be paid by various organizations interested in post-war collaboration.

The idea is reported to have originated in discussions between Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) and Rep. Fulbright (D.-Ark.) Those who will carry it out include Democratic Senators Truman of Missouri, Hatch of New Mexico, Hill of Alabama and Maybank of South Carolina, Republican Senators Ball, Burton of Ohio and Ferguson of Michigan, and Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.)

Also planning to participate are Democratic Reps. Monroney of Oklahoma, Gore of Tennessee, Wright of Pennsylvania and Ramspeck of Georgia and Republican Reps. Herter of Massachusetts. Judd of Minnesota, Lafollette of Indiana and Hale of Maine.

Representing several shades of opinion, the speakers plan to argue the general question of whether Congress should act now to commit this country to a post-war course of collaboration with other nations. Some will make an extensive series of speeches, appearing in several states, while others, like Senator Truman, said they planned only two or three talks.

Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) said opponents of such commitments would not be idle. While no organized plans have been made by the opposition, Wheeler said, he would speak several times and was informed that others also would.

Ball and Gore will undertake the most ambitious speaking tour of the group urging action on the post-war issue. They will start at Los Angeles July 5, go to Reno, Nev., July 7, Sacramento, July 9, Portland, Ore., July 12, Seattle, July 13 and Denver, Colo., July 15.

Truman and Judd will speak in Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas from July 25 through Aug. 12; Ferguson and Wright, Michigan and Wisconsin in August; Maybank and Hale in Connecticut, Vermont New Hampshire and Massachusetts in August; Burton and Ramspeck in Indiana and Ohio in August; Ball and Monoroney in Minnesota North Dakota and South Dakota from July 23 to Aug. 1; Hatch and Lafollette in Colorado, Wyoming New Mexico, Montana and Idaho in August, and Hill and Herter in Texas and Oklahoma in August.

Baruch Assisted BEW, Perkins Declares

JUL 4 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 3—A government committee heard today that Bernard M. Baruch had been called in to clear several "log jams" on policy between the Board of Economic Warfare and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, whose respective heads have been feuding in public over strategic imports.

Vice-President Wallace, head of BEW, had charged that the RFC, headed by Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, has hampered the war effort by delaying the advance of funds needed for BEW purchases. Jones replied that these statements were untrue and made with malice, demanding a Congressional investigation.

Has Helped Before

Milo Perkins, executive director of BEW, told the Byrd Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Expenditures that on several occasions Baruch "has helped us break log jams on this front." Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board in the first World War, is an assistant to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes.

Perkins told the committee that at times there had been "sharp differences of opinion" that "tend to stand out like sore thumbs."

Commerce Services Helpful

Perkins said that shortly before Pearl Harbor Secretary Jones made available to the BEW services of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, adding that this agency's statistical work "has been of tremendous help to us."

"There have been times," Perkins said in his report, "when our relations with the RFC subsidiaries within the Department of Commerce regarding our imports work have been strained. Differences of opinion have arisen almost exclusively over questions of policy.

"On several occasions Bernard Baruch has helped us break log jams on this front. I have sought and been helped by his counsel and advice and have seen him on an average of once a week for more than a year now."

Foreign Living Standards

Asked by the Byrd Committee if the BEW is attempting to raise living standards in foreign countries by its purchases of materials and other operations, Perkins said that no such instructions had been issued.

He took occasion, however, to express his own opinion that something would have to be done to increase foreign living levels after the war if American plants are to transfer successfully from war operations to peace-time manufacture.

LIBERTY SHIP NAMED FOR GEORGE M. COHAN

BALTIMORE, July 3.—(AP) The kid who was born on the Fourth of July and lived to quicken the pulse of a nation at war with the stirring marching song "Over There" is dead, but the name George M. Cohan will make another contribution to World War II —tagged to a Liberty ship.

They'll launch one of the 10,500-tonners tomorrow to the tune of one of his famed "flag-wavers"—"Yankee Doodle Dandy."

On hand to do the job right will be his life-long friend, Eddie Cantor, Ida Cantor, his wife, and at least one of "the girls." Eddie won't sing "Yankee Doodle Dandy," because that's reserved for the military band which will play it as the cargo vessel begins moving down the ways at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards.

Army to Relieve Industry

Ten Per Cent of Its College Students Are Reported to Be Released.

JUL -4 1943

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—The Army, an informed source said today, has agreed to turn over to hard-pressed civilian industry 10 per cent of the approximately 130,000 students it sends to college for specialized training.

The informant said the 13,000 to be relinquished would be students of engineering, since the Army wants to retain its medical trainees and others in highly-technical categories.

The men released by the Army will not be selected until they have completed their courses, it was said.

Most of those released for civilian work probably will be men the Army could use only for limited service because of physical handicaps.

The decision was in response to an appeal from the War Manpower Commission. It coincided with authoritative reports that a projected WMC program calling for $50,000,000 to help 100,000 needy youths get college training for work in vital industry had got no further than the Budget Bureau. Its principal sponsor, Dr. W. W. Charters, was said reliably to have told friends he would resign as head of the bureau of training, largely in disappointment over the fate of the project.

Big Navy Increase.

To emphasize the need for war workers, the WMC said last night that industries in the next year must not only replace employees drafted or lost for other reasons but must find another 1,600,000 to keep wheels turning at the hoped-for speed.

Working time in the factories probably will jump from an average of 46.9 hours to 48 per week, WMC officials added.

A net increase of 3,600,000 in the armed forces and in war plants is expected. WMC said this means 2,300,000 workers will have to be transferred from less-essential industries.

The rapidly expanding fleet will require the addition of 500,000 in Navy personnel in the first half of 1944, the WMC has revealed.

Total strength of the armed forces now is 9,300,000. Government sources have indicated this figure will increase to 10,800,000 by the end of 1943 and the rise in Navy personnel will bring the total to 11,300,000 by July, 1944.

Army officers have said they expected the Army's size to remain constant after reaching 8,230,000 by the end of this year.

Union Calls On Men To Join War Effort

JUL -4 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 3—The leadership of the United Mine Workers admonished all members today to return to work because "there is nothing to be gained" by continued striking and "the war cannot be won without an adequate supply of coal."

Thousands still are off the job in the coal fields.

"By returning to work," said the lead editorial in the United Mine Workers' Journal, "the mine workers are not forfeiting collective bargaining or their right to negotiate a wage agreement with the coal operators embodying portal-to-portal pay and other benefits."

"Must Win The War"

"Certainly under these conditions coal miners have nothing to lose by their resumption of work until such time as a satisfactory agreement can be reached or the policy committee is called into meeting again to canvass the situation and to determine a further course of action.

"We are at war. We must win the war. The war cannot be won without an adequate supply of coal.

"American coal miners don't want to strike. They don't want to

Steel Companies Hit

The UMW editorial said the Republic Steel Company and United States Steel, operating in Alabama, had declined to store coal "for the reason that they did not want to pay overtime rates for six-day employment and spend the money necessary to pick up the storaged coal in the case of a shortage."

Referring to the shut-down of several steel furnaces in the Alabama region, the publication said "every furnace which needs to be relined, where major repairs must be made, is closed down during a temporary stoppage of coal mining and the news is heralded that the miners' strike is reducing essential steel production.

"There are more than 79,000,000 tons of bituminous coal in storage—the largest storage stocks of coal ever recorded in June in the history of American coal production. Yet, the steel companies publicized shut downs resulting from their self-willed unpreparedness when coal production stops for three or four days."

97,000 Still Out

To the Journal's plea was added reminders from UMW district officials that by starting work Monday morning the miners can earn the equivalent of seven days' pay for six days' work. The anthracite tri-district scale committee was one of the groups which pointed out that miners would receive time and one half or rate and one half Monday, when normally they would observe the July 4 holiday, as well as on Saturday, since they get extra pay for a sixth work-day each week.

Reports from the fields indicated that approximately 97,000 of the nation's 521,000 miners still are on strike, including 77,800—more than half of them hard-coal miners—in Pennsylvania, 16,000 in Alabama, 2,500 in Virginia and 700 in Tennessee. Absenteeism also was running from ten to twenty per cent. in many mines.

Numerous UMW locals are meeting over the week end to consider their leaders' pleas to end the walkout.

The amount of coal lost in the two weeks during which all or part of the miners have been idle was estimated at more than 10,000,000 tons.

Soldier Tells Committee They Should Get Chance to Stay in U.S. After War

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Mike M. Masaoka, who said he joined the Army to show loyalty to his native America and enmity to ancestral Japan, urged before the Dies committee today that loyal Japanese-Americans get a chance to stay here after the war.

Private Masaoka, former secretary of the Japanese-American Citizens League, also asked current assistance, saying that the War Relocation Authority "should get more Japanese-Americans out of the relocation camps and restore them to normal life."

In the Army since June 4, Private Masaoka said that the relocation agency "should take more firm steps to inform Americans generally of the loyalty of the Japanese-Americans in this country."

The soldier testified that the league is made up of loyal Americans, that it requires for membership a pledge of loyalty to the American government and that the members "are no hyphenated group" among the American public.

Under questioning of the committee, the House group on un-American activities, he said he does not believe that every member of the league is loyal to the United States, but "at least 90 per cen of them are." As for the pledge of loyalty, he said "some of them might have signed with mental reservations."

Private Masaoka admitted writing reports as secretary of the league to Japanese-Americans in the West urging that they refuse to work unless government restrictions placed upon them and their kinsmen in the relocation centers were removed. Committee investigators read to the committee some of Private Masaoka's reports, in which he urged strikes among the Japanese-Americans unless their demands against restrictions were granted.

Lengthy correspondence and reports of Mr. Masaoka to Japanese-Americans over the country were introduced in which he stated that as secretary of the league in Washington he was in touch with high officials of the government and others here. Among those mentioned were Mrs. Roosevelt, Chief

...ary L. Stimson, Secretary ...vy Frank Knox, Attorney ...Francis Biddle and others.

Asked if he had personal contact with these persons, Private Masaoka replied he "may have."

"Isn't it a fact that you ... merely trying to impress the league with things you hadn't done?" he was asked by J. B. Mathews, committee investigator.

Private Masaoka replied, "All right, let's put it that way."

The soldier, referring to the Japanese-Americans in this country, told the committee the Japanese attack upon Pearl Harbor "hurt us more than it did you."

PRESSES DRAFT BILL

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Senator Wheeler (D. - Mont.) urged today that Congress act by next fall on legislation to defer fathers from the military draft.

Mr. Wheeler said he would press for consideration of the bill, reported favorably by the Senate Military Committee yesterday, immediately after the proposed summer recess of Congress.

Senator Wheeler's bill was amended to make the deferments effective only until next January 1, but the Montana Senator said he hoped the measure would clarify the selective service situation.

ALLIED PLANE OUTPUT TRIPLE THAT OF AXIS

WASHINGTON, July 3 — (AP) United Nations aircraft production now is about three times Axis output, but by the estimate of some government officials, with American producers alone putting out nearly double the combined Axis total.

The United States in May produced between 7,100 and 7,200 planes, with June production figures expected to show another increase although perhaps not as great as had been hoped.

By comparison, about 2,200 planes a month are estimated to be coming from plants in the Reich, in Nazi-occupied countries and in Hitler's satellite nations. Of these, perhaps 1,600 to 1,800 are combat planes.

Japan is thought to be producing about 1,200 aircraft monthly but may be getting as many as 1,500. Italy's output may be around 600.

And They All Tell Stories in New Quarters at Valley Forge

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., July 3 (AP) — Seventy-five Pennslyvania soldiers wounded in the North African campaign arrived today at Valley Forge General Hospital from Halloran General Hospital, New York, and most of them had a story to tell.

Corp. John Matelyan, 22, of Philadelphia, offered this one:

An American soldier walked up to an Italian prisoner and addressed him in Italian. The prisoner cut him short with: "Can that stuff. I used to be a barber in Brooklyn."

Major Conrad V. Anderson, 26, also a Philadelphian, was wounded twice, had an indignant German colonel surrender to him while he was only a lieutenant, and met his bride-to-be, an Army nurse, on the way home.

Major Anderson said the German colonel popped out of a fortress, took a look at him and sputtered: "Is the American Army down to this? O first lieutenant commanding a battalion!"

It was not a battalion, but the colonel surrendered anyway.

Private James McCarter, of Upper Darby, had the reddest face of the bunch. He spent months at Oran without seeing action, then threw his arm out of joint in a baseball game and was invalided home.

NAVY BATTLES IN PACIFIC GREATEST IN HISTORY

HAWTHORNE, Nev., July 3 — (AP) Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox described action in the southwest Pacific in recent months as the "greatest naval campaign ever waged by man."

In one Guadalcanal action alone, he told military personnel and civilian workers at the naval ammunition depot, the Allies sank more of the Japanese fleet than the Germans lost in the battle of Jutland.

(The Germans lost six cruisers and five destroyers at Jutland.)

Secretary Knox did not describe the action further.

In the European theater of action, he said, "we have re-established complete control of all the seas around our enemies."

JUL - 4 1943

By J. NORMAN LODGE

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands — (AP) I'd like to lay at rest the mistaken idea most of the uninitiated have that war correspondents "must live an interesting life."

There is no glamor in war reporting, either in the jungle lands of the South Pacific, in the convoy lanes of the North Atlantic, under the rain of falling bombs in London's blitz, over the rugged mountains of Norway, in the sub-zero temperatures of Finland, or crossing the North Sea ducking the fury of Stuka dive bombers.

I've been in all those places as a war reporter.

Of course you meet interesting people. You meet them in Central Park, in the Black Hills of South Dakota, on Wilshire boulevard in Los Angeles, and in the Loop at Chicago. You meet bores, too.

The days of Richard Harding Davis are no more. You take your wars now where you find them. And you take your transportation the same way, a majority of times on foot, shod with ill-fitting field shoes too heavy for anything save throwing at the people who say, "You must live an interesting life."

Often Under Fire

Let's just take this tour of duty in the South Pacific. Since I left the states in the early fall of 1942 I have travelled 38,507 miles in naval craft, sometimes under fire, most times not. It's interesting when you're under fire for there is a story in the offing—a story usually not passed by the censor for security reasons.

In the air, in all types of craft, I have flown more than 30,000 miles in nine months. On foot I have walked so many miles it makes me tired to recall them. I have "jeeped" too many miles to remember over shell and bomb-torn roads. I have tried to sleep on New Zealand trains, without success. And I have crawled through jungle undergrowth with lizards crawling over me, mosquitoes using my most prominent anatomical portion as a landing field, and my lips covered with thick mud.

Good food has been at a premium. For six solid weeks in one sector our forage was limited to powdered eggs, "K" ration and rancid water. And usually there were new printable stories that emerged from that type of living.

On the other side of the picture, I have been the guest at numerous wine messes where warm beer was dispensed, but beer, nevertheless. I've paid as high as $2.50 for a single dram of spirits. And I've offered, without success, $5 for a brace of fresh eggs.

Mail has sometimes been as long as six weeks arriving. In fact on June 8 I got a letter dated Dec. 6 of last year. There are few white women in this part of the world. Those who are here are so monopolized it's difficult even to hear them speak English.

Natives Interesting

The natives are interesting people. They don't ask the usual questions: "Does the government pay you? Are you allowed to write anything you want to? Can you tell the froc hollow times you saw me here?" and so on ad boresome.

It's not a complaint, but, lest some misguided youth who spies a by-line in the paper occasionally, and attends too many movies like "Foreign Correspondent", plans this work as a vocation, I want to be on record as having voted "no."

And it isn't only the enlisted personnel who pose the same questions over and over again. Admirals, generals, all the way down the line of rank "envy" us. I've had a commander aboard an aircraft carrier say, during a desultory three week trip, "You fellows get all the gravy."

Whatever in the world I don't know. He at least ha... to occupy his time during the... I had nothing to do and even lost the urge to write letters. You just don't mention aircraft carriers by name anymore nor is there world shattering news aboard a craft doing nothing but patrol work.

It's a Living

It's a hell of a way to make a living. But we do meet such interesting people. Right now, the most interesting people I'd like to meet is my family.

Jersey Marine Awarded Medal for Heroic Acts

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Because he "unhesitatingly volunteered time after time to act as stretcher bearer with cool courage and utter disregard of his personal safety during the Guadalcanal battle," the Silver Star medal has been awarded to Marine Private First Class Carlton R. Rouh of Lindenwold, N. J. Private Rouh, 22, is the son of Mrs. Adelheith Rouh.

The official citation reads:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while a member of the First Marine Division, during action against enemy Japanese forces at Guadalcanal, Solomon Islands, October 9, 1942. While under tremendous hostile fire, Private First Class Rouh, with cool courage and utter disregard for his own personal safety, unhesitatingly volunteered time after time to act as stretcher bearer, tirelessly assisting in the transportation of injured personnel to the company and station until he, himself, was wounded by enemy fire. His heroic conduct, maintained at great risk in the face of grave danger, was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States naval service."

OAKLAND, Calif., July 3—(AP) Mrs. Amy O. Earhart reluctantly has abandoned hope that her daughter, Amelia Earhart Putnam, lost six years ago on an equatorial air trip around the world, ever will be found alive.

The consul was recalled to Japan before the promised investigation was completed and Mrs. Earhart could learn nothing further.

A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 3-(AP)-FIRST LIEUT. EDWIN S.BOYD OF SANTA MONICA, CALIF., SHOUTED TO HIS CREW TO PREPARE TO BAIL OUT AS HE STRUGGLED WITH THE DAMAGED CONTROLS OF HIS FLYING FORTRESS RETURNING FROM AN ATTACK ON NORTHWEST GERMANY JUNE 25.

THREE WOUNDED CREWMEN WERE ABOARD THE TOTTERING FORTRESS "AMATOL" WHICH BORE MORE THAN 300 MACHINE-GUN, CANNON AND FLAK WOUNDS FROM SAVAGE AIR ACTION. TWO ENGINES WERE GONE. THE GASOLINE WAS NEARLY EXHAUSTED. WHEN THE ENGLISH COAST WAS SIGHTED, AMATOL HAD SLIPPED DOWN TO 1,500 FEET AND WAS LOSING ABOUT 100 FEET OF ALTITUDE EVERY MINUTE.

THE BOMB BAY DOORS WOULDN'T CLOSE, MULTIPLYING THE HAZARDS AND GREATLY LESSENING THE CREW'S CHANCE TO SURVIVE.

WHEN CREWMEN HEARD BOYD'S ORDER TO PREPARE TO BAIL OUT, ONE OF THEM REPLIED: "OKAY, BUT WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?"

"HARRY (SECOND LIEUT. HARRY B.HOLSAPPLES, 23, OF SPRINGFIELD, O., THE CO-PILOT) AND I ARE GOING TO STAY AND TRY TO LAND HER," ANSWERED THE SLENDER, 21-YEAR-OLD PILOT WHOSE CREW CALL THEMSELVES "BOYD'S BUMS."

JUL -4 1943

"THEN WE WANTA STAY WITH YOU," SAID ONE OF THE CREW.

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN RELATIVELY SAFE FOR THEM TO PARACHUTE DOWN TO THE ENGLISH FARMSIDE BELOW OR EVEN INTO THE CHANNEL WITHIN SIGHT OF READY AND HELPING HANDS, BUT BOYD'S BUMS PREFERRED TO REMAIN WITH THEIR BOYISH LEADER WHO BEARS THE REPUTATION OF BEING ONE OF THE BEST PILOTS IN THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE.

BOYD AGREED RELUCTANTLY. SO WITH FLAPPING BOMB BAY DOORS ALLOWING ONLY ONE FOOT OF CLEARANCE, HE MADE A TICKLISH LANDING ON HIS HOME BASE WITHOUT INCIDENT.

AS THE BOMBERS THUNDERED THROUGH THE HEAVY CLOUDS AND FOUGHT ENEMY FIGHTERS TO ATTACK THEIR TARGETS, BOYD'S PLANE LOST ONE ENGINE. STRAGGLING BEHIND, HE DROPPED 2,000 FEET DOWN FROM ONE FORMATION TO ANOTHER AND CONTINUED HIS BOMB RUN, UNLOADING HIS CARGO.

THEN FROM CONCENTRATED ATTACKS BY FOUR FIGHTERS, THE BOMBSHE

TO ANOTHER AND CONTINUED HIS BOMB RUN, UNLOADING HIS CARGO.

THEN FROM CONCENTRATED ATTACKS BY FOUR FIGHTERS, THE BOMBER EMERGED WITH ANOTHER ENGINE SHOT OUT AND 60 PER CENT OF THE CONTROL CABLES SEVERED. THE OXYGEN SYSTEM WAS PARTLY DESTROYED; THE ELEVATORS WERE LOCKED IN A CLIMBING POSITION.

JUL -4 1943

THREE 20-MILLIMETER CANNON SHELLS EXPLODED IN THE WAIST SECTION, WOUNDING SERGEANTS ALBERT L.DELCONTE, 32 OF PHILADELPHIA; ROY L. WEATHERFORD OF SPARTA, WIS., AND JULIAN J.GURBINDO, 22, OF FRESNO--ALL GUNNERS. BUT ALL REMAINED AT THEIR POSTS AND KEPT THEIR GUNS SMOKING.

JUL -4 1943

DELCONTE, WHO DOUBLES AS A RADIO OPERATOR, LATER WAS FOUND TO HAVE BEEN HIT BY 50 SHELL FRAGMENTS IN THE CHEST, LEFT ARM AND LEFT SIDE. DESPITE HIS WOUNDS, HE SPLICED TOGETHER ENOUGH OF THE SEVERED CONTROL CABLES TO ENABLE THE PILOT TO KEEP THE SHIP IN THE AIR.

PRAISING DELCONTE, BOYD SAID "HE DIDN'T EVEN TELL US HE WAS WOUNDED UNTIL WE GOT THREE-FOURTHS OF THE WAY HOME. THEN WE GOT HIM INTO THE NAVIGATOR'S SECTION AND ADMINISTERED FIRST AID."

DELCONTE, WHO HAS BEEN OFFICIALLY RECOMMENDED FOR THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, NOW IS RECOVERING IN A HOSPITAL, HIS COMRADES SAID.

FRAGMENTS STRUCK GURBINDO IN THE HEAD AND LEFT LEG AND INFLICTED MINOR CUTS ON WEATHERFORD'S HEAD AND FACE. BOTH HAVE ALREADY BEEN DISCHARGED FROM THE HOSPITAL.

UNABLE TO KEEP UP WITH THE BOMBER FORMATIONS, BOYD HEADED FOR HEAVY CLOUDS WHICH PROVIDED COVER.

"WE COULD SEE FIGHTERS ATTACKING THE FORMATIONS ABOVE US BUT WE PLAYED HIDE AND SEEK IN THE CLOUDS AND THEY DIDN'T GET TO US. IF THEY HAD WE WOULDN'T HAVE HAD MUCH CHANCE OF GETTING BACK."

JUL -4 1943

ONCE, BOYD SAID, THE SHIP BROKE OUT OF THE CLOUDS AND HE DISCOVERED HE WAS OFF COURSE AND HEADED BACK FOR GERMANY. HE SWUNG THE SHIP AROUND AND FLEW BY INSTRUMENTS UNTIL HE BROKE OUT OF THE OVERCAST OVER THE CHANNEL.

JUL -4 1943

GURBINDO AND SERGT. EDDIE E.HAMLIN, 19, TRINIDAD, COLO., WERE CREDITED WITH DAMAGING ONE FIGHTER EACH.

THE NORTHWEST GERMANY RAID WAS THE SECOND FOR HOLSAPPLE, BUT THE OTHER CREWMEN HAD BEEN ON SEVEN TO NINE MISSIONS.

BOYD SAID HIS BIGGEST SCARE OCCURRED ON A PREVIOUS RAID WHEN A 2,000-POUND BOMB DROPPED BY A HIGHER-FLYING BOMBER TORE A CHUNK OUT OF THE END OF ONE OF HIS WINGS AS IT WHISTLED DOWNWARD.

OTHER CREW MEMBERS WERE SECOND LIEUT. ELDON M.TOLMAN, 23, BUFFALO, N.Y., NAVIGATOR; SECOND LIEUT. DELBERT P.RAY, 26, LOVELL, WYO., BOMBARDIER; SERGT. JOSEPH W.KEEN, 24, LONGMONT, COLO., BALL TURRET GUNNER, AND SERGT. JOHN R.FARRELL, 22, FOND DU LAC, WIS., TAIL GUNNER.

TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE FROM HEADQUARTERS OF GEN. DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR, SUPREME COMMANDER OF OPERATIONS, REPORTED AS THE LATEST SUCCESS A JUNCTURE OF AUSTRALIAN PATROLS FROM MUBO, 12 MILES SOUTH AND INLAND FROM SALAMAUA, WITH THE AMERICANS WHO LANDED ON THE COAST AT NASSAU BAY WEDNESDAY. THIS COMPLETED THE FIRST PHASE OF THE NEW OPERATIONS THERE.

JUL -4 1943

IN ADDITION TO PATROLS BELOW AND BEHIND THAT ENEMY BASE, OTHER PATROLS HAVE BEEN REPORTED ABOVE IT IN THE VICNITY OF MALOLO.

REALIZING THE PERIL POSED AT SALAMAUA, WHICH HAS A GOOD AIRDROME WITHIN EASY FIGHTER RANGE OF JAPANESE-HELD NEW BRITAIN ISLAND, THE ENEMY SENT 10 PLANES AGAINST THE AMERICANS AT NASSAU BAY THURSDAY AFTERNOON, THE LATEST COMMUNIQUE DISCLOSED WITHOUT FURTHER ELABORATION.

FOR THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE DAY THE TROBRIANDS AND WOODLARK ISLANDS WERE NOT MENTIONED IN THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE, BUT A HEADQUARTERS OFFICER COMMENTED THAT IN THIS CASE "NO NEWS PROBABLY IS GOOD NEWS."

FROM THIS IT WAS BELIEVED THAT THESE OPERATIONS HAD BEEN COMPLETED. NO JAPANESE COUNTERATTACK WHATEVER HAS BEEN REPORTED.

FUTURE OPERATIONS PROBABLY WILL DEPEND TO A GREAT EXTENT ON NEW EQUIPMENT, SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS SENT THIS WAY, PARTICULARLY TO THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC COMMAND. OPERATIONS THUS FAR HAVE BEEN CARRIED OUT WITH MUCH THE SAME EQUIPMENT THE MEN HAD ON HAND IN EARLY SPRING.

JUL -4 1943

BUT ACQUISITION OF THE TROBRIANDS AND WOODLARK ISLANDS GIVES MACARTHUR NEW BASES WITH WHICH TO MOVE HIS BOMBER LINE FORWARD, AND HIS CONTROL OF THE AIR AND SEA APPROACHES SHOULD ENABLE HIM TO SUPPLY THESE ISLANDS.

WITH FIGHTERS BASED ON THE ISLANDS, BOMBERS SUCH AS THOSE THAT POUNDED RABAUL ON NEW BRITAIN IN ANOTHER HEAVY RAID YESTERDAY COULD HAVE FIGHTER COVER WHICH THEY HAVE NOT HAD THUS FAR. IN ADDITION, THE ISLANDS WILL GIVE MACARTHUR SCATTERED BASES ON WHICH TO DISPERSE HIS FORCES AND AT THE SAME TIME SHORTEN HIS LINES OF COMMUNICATION.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JUNE 26,(DELAYED)-(AP)-JUST AS YOU CAN COME BACK TO NEW YORK AFTER A BRIEF ABSENCE AND NOTICE NEW APARTMENT BUILDINGS GOING UP WHERE YOU'D PASSED FAMILIAR OLD BROWNSTONE FRONTS BEFORE, SO YOU RETURN TO NEW GUINEA AFTER FOUR MONTHS AND FIND THERE ARE MANY CHANGES.

JUL -4 1943

THERE ARE CHANGES IN ATMOSPHERE, IN APPEARANCE, IN PERSONNEL. YOU GO LOOKING FOR SOME OF YOUR OLD FRIENDS AT B-17 OPERATIONS AND THE FIGHTER SQUADRONS, ONLY TO BE MET WITH A CASUAL "OH, HE'S BACK IN THE STATES."

FAIR ENOUGH AT THAT, SINCE MANY OF THOSE FLIERS HAD BEEN HERE 16 TO 18 MONTHS. BUT SOME OF THE FORTRESS BOYS ON THE RABAUL "MILK RUN" MADE IT FOR THE FIRST TIME LAST AUGUST AND ARE STILL AT IT.

WHERE THERE USED TO BE BOMB DUMPS IN OPEN FIELDS, YOU NOW FIND PAVED, GRAVELLED TAXI RAMPS LEADING TO REVETMENTS FOR LIBERATORS AND DOUGLAS TRANSPORTS. THE LOCKHEED LIGHTNINGS STILL WERE A NOVELTY WHEN YOU LEFT IN FEBRUARY. NOW, ONE MORNING ON AN ALERT, YOU COUNT NUMBERS IN THE AIR AT ONE TIME AND CAN HEAR STILL OTHERS UP BEHIND THE CLOUDS.

JUL -4 1943

A NEW ROAD YOU HAD WATCHED THEM BUILD WITH GREAT ANTICIPATION BECAUSE IT WOULD BE SO MUCH FUN TO RIDE OVER A SMOOTH ONE IS OPEN NOW--BUT IT'S BADLY POCKMARKED AND WASHBOARDED FROM CONSTANT TRUCK TRAFFIC THAT POUNDED IT IN THE RAINY SEASON. NEW WAREHOUSES AND REPAIR SHEDS HAVE SPRUNG UP WHERE ONCE YOU STILL COULD SEE AN OCCASIONAL WALLABY BOUNCING THROUGH THE LONG GRASS.

SOCIAL LIFE HAS STEPPED UP IN TEMPO. EACH BOMBER AND EACH FIGHTER SQUADRON HAS ITS OWN OFFICERS' CLUB--BUILT BY THE OFFICERS THEMSELVES, SINCE THEY ARE THE ONES WHO USE THEM. MANY OF THEM ARE TRIBUTES TO THE OFFICERS' RESOURCEFULNESS AND ARCHITECTURAL SKILL.

THERE ARE SO MANY PLACES WHERE MOVIES ARE SHOWN THAT YOU'RE OFTEN HARD PUT TO MAKE A SELECTION. THE BOYS, BY THE WAY, CAN GET ALONG WITHOUT HOLLYWOOD'S GLAMORIZED WAR EPICS. THEY'LL TAKE DEANNA DURBIN, BING CROSBY OR A GOOD MYSTERY.

A96

JUL -4 1943

WITH DEVELOPMENT HAS COME A GREATER FORMALITY. AMERICAN WAR CORRESPONDENTS USED TO WEAR SHORTS AND SHOES--NO MORE--DURING THE DAY. NOW THEY MUST OBSERVE THE FLIGHT SURGEON'S EDICT, THAT, AS A MALARIA PREVANTATIVE, LONG-SLEEVE SHIRTS AND LONG TROUSERS SHALL BE WORN AT ALL TIMES.

JUL -4 1943

AT ONE HOSPITAL THE LADS WITH DATES WOULD COME DOWN IN THE EVENING, STAND BETWEEN THE TWO ONE-TIME MISSION BUILDINGS WHICH WERE MADE INTO NURSES, QUARTERS, AND WHISTLE. NOW THEY HAVE TO PARK THEIR JEEPS AND STAFF CARS BY THE NEW RECREATION HALL, AND BE ANNOUNCED BY TELEPHONE.

THE FOOD HAS IMPROVED IMMEASURABLY (REFERENCES HERE BEING, IN EVERY CASE, TO THE MORESBY AREA AND NOT TO REGIONS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE OWEN STANLEY RANGE). FRESH MEAT IS NO LONGER A RARITY, AND EVEN FRESH EGGS ARE ACCEPTED WITHOUT UNDUE SHOCK. TOMATOES, ONIONS, LETTUCE--THEY DON'T GET THEM ALL THE TIME, BUT EACH OUTFIT GETS ITS SHARE.

JUL -4 1943.

IF THERE IS ANYTHING THAT HASN'T CHANGED, IT'S THE DUST, REDDISH DUST THAT GETS IN YOUR EARS, CLOGS YOUR NOSTRILS, YOUR HAIR, AND IS WHIPPED UP INTO GIANT STORM CLOUDS AS THE BOMBERS WARM UP BEFORE TAKING OFF. BUT MORESBY WOULDN'T BE MORESBY WITHOUT THE DUST AND IT WOULDN'T BE ANYTHING WITHOUT THE BOMBERS.

SOME OF THE AWARDS WERE BASED ON 25 FLIGHTS ACCUMULATED IN LESS THAN A MONTH'S TIME. IN ALL CASES HOSTILE CONTACT WAS PROBABLE AND EXPECTED.

THE CITATIONS PRAISED THE MEN FOR "OUTSTANDING ABILITY, COURAGE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY." THE FLIGHTS WERE AT LOW ALTITUDE OVER MOUNTAINOUS TERRAIN, AND MANY WERE MADE UNDER ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS. THE FLIERS DROPPED SUPPLIES TO ADVANCED OUTPOSTS, CARRIED TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT TO FORWARD AREAS, AND EVACUATED WOUNDED PERSONNEL. LANDINGS IN MANY CASES WERE ON IMPROVISED FIELDS WITHIN A FEW MILES OF ENEMY POSITIONS.

JUL -4 1943

(THE WORDING OF THIS DISPATCH SUGGESTED THAT HOOVER ALREADY HAS GONE TO MARTINIQUE TO CONFER WITH ROBERT.

(FROM ALGIERS IT WAS RELIABLY REPORTED THAT THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE OF LIBERATION HAD NAMED A MEMBER OF ITS WASHINGTON STAFF AS SPECIAL ENVOY TO MARTINIQUE. THE ENVOY, WHOSE NAME WAS GIVEN ONLY AS HOPPENOT, WILL GO TO MARTINIQUE TO DISCUSS ENTRY OF THE ANTILLES INTO THE ANTI-VICHY FRENCH EMPIRE.)

JUL -4 1943

ONLY A WORD FROM ROBERT IS NEEDED FOR THE NAVY TO GIVE THE SIGNAL FOR THE FOOD-LADEN SHIPS TO TURN TOWARD MARTINIQUE AND GUADELOUPE HARBORS TO DISCHARGE VAST STORES OF BADLY NEEDED MEATS, RICE, SALT-FISH, AND CANNED GOODS SUPPLIED BY THE LEASE-LEND FOOD DISTRIBUTION ADMINISTRATION.

AT LEAST TWO SHIPS AND PERHAPS A THIRD WERE LOADED IN NEW YORK SOME TIME IN MAY AND ARRIVED AT SAN JUAN LAST MONTH. THEY STAYED IN SAN JUAN HARBOR SEVERAL DAYS, AWAITING FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS. THEY NOW ARE "SOMEWHERE IN THE CARIBBEAN," AWAITING THE OUTCOME OF THE CONVER-SATIONS BETWEEN ROBERT AND HOOVER.

PRESUMABLY, IF ROBERT REMAINS UNYIELDING AND CLINGS TO HIS PAST POLICIES THIS FOOD WILL BE DIVERTED TO SOME OTHER WEST INDIAN ISLE, AS HAPPENED WITH A SHIPMENT OF MEATS AND OTHER FOODS THREE MONTHS AGO.

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THE FOOD ABOARD WILL BE SUFFICIENT TO FEED MARTINIQUE AND GUADELOUPE SEVERAL WEEKS, UNTIL REGULAR SHIPPING SERVICE CAN BE ORGANIZED.

EDWARD BASH, CHIEF OF THE FOOD DISTRIBUTION ADMINISTRATION FOR THE CARIBBEAN, SAID HIS OFFICE IS PREPARED TO SEND ADDITIONAL SUPPLIES TO SUPPLEMENT THE SHIPMENTS VERY QUICKLY. HE ADDED THAT THE FDA IN SAN JUAN IS PREPARED TO FOOD MARTINIQUE FOR A SHORT PERIOD, UNTIL REGULAR SHIPPING IS ORGANIZED IN THE EVENT OF DELAY OR QUICK CONSUMPTION OF THE INITIAL SHIPMENTS.

WHILE THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL WORD AS TO SUCH A PLAN, IT IS POSSIBLE THAT GIRAUD MAY TAKE THE OPPORTUNITY EITHER ON HIS WAY TO WASHINGTON OR LATER TO STOP AT MARTINIQUE, BIG FRENCH ISLAND IN THE CARIBBEAN.

UNTIL LATELY, MARTINIQUE HAS HELD ALOOF FROM THE UNITED NATIONS BUT THE NAVY ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY THAT VICE ADMIRAL JOHN HOWARD HOOVER WOULD CONFER WITH ADMIRAL GEORGES ROBERT, HIGH COMMISSIONER OF THE COLONY, ON ITS STATUS.

THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION IN ALGIERS, NOTING WHAT IT CALLED "A MORE HOPEFUL TONE" IN RECENT STATEMENTS BY ROBERT, DECIDED TODAY TO SEND A DELEGATE THERE IN AN EFFORT TO BRING ITS PEOPLE OVER TO THE UNITED FRENCH EMPIRE.

ROBERT, WHO HAS REMAINED FAITHFUL TO THE VICHY GOVERNMENT DESPITE PRESSURE FROM THE UNITED NATIONS, MAY STILL BE UNWILLING TO DEAL WITH THE FRENCH COMMITTEE, OR ELSE HE IS SEEKING UNITED NATIONS SUPPORT IN WASHINGTON BEFORE TURNING OVER CONTROL OF THE ISLANDS.

RENE VEBER, FORMER GOVERNOR OF FRENCH GUIANA WHO WAS OUSTED IN MARCH, EXPRESSED THE OPINION HERE THAT ROBERT OPENED NEGOTIATIONS THROUGH WASHINGTON TO INSURE CONTROL PASSING TO A SUPPORTER OF GENERAL HENRI GIRAUD RATHER THAN TO GENERAL CHARLES DE GAULLE.

EARLY IN APRIL ROBERT INDICATED HE WOULD BRING MARTINIQUE TO THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES WHEN "THE FRENCH WHO ARE FIGHTING FORM A UNITY UNDER ONE SINGLE AUTHORITY VESTED WITH SOVEREIGN RIGHTS."

LIKELIEST SUCCESSOR TO ROBERT WAS BELIEVED TO BX JEAN RAPENNE, YOUNG AND WELL-LIKED GOVERNOR OF FRENCH GUIANA WHO WAS APPOINTED TO THE POST BY GENERAL GIRAUD AFTER VEBER'S OUSTER.

EARLY IN MAY RAPENNE REVEALED THAT WHEN HE LEFT AFRICA TO TAKE OVER THE POST AT CAYENNE GIRAUD HAD TOLD HIM TO "LOOK AFTER FRENCH INTERESTS" THROUGHOUT THE FRENCH ANTILLES.

RAPENNE ADDED THAT GIRAUD INTENDED HIM TO BECOME HIGH COMMISSIONER OF MARTINIQUE IF AND WHEN ROBERT STEPPED DOWN.

IF ROBERT SIGNIFIES A WILLINGNESS TO JOIN THE ISLANDS UNDER HIS JURISDICTION TO THE UNITED NATIONS' CAUSE, PROCLAIMS HIS ALLEGIANCE TO THE FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE OF LIBERATION IN ALGIERS OR STEPS OUT IN FAVOR OF AN ALGIERS-APPOINTED GOVERNOR, THE FOODSTUFFS WILL BE UNLOADED WITHIN A FEW HOURS.

JUL -4 1943

THIS IS THE DATE WHICH THE GERMAN CONTROLLED PARIS RADIO HAS BEEN PERSISTENTLY PREDICTING WOULD PRODUCE THE ALLIED INVASION OF EUROPE--BUT TODAY, WITH THE INVASION STILL IN THE FUTURE, THE PARIS STATION SCOFFED AT THE ALLIES, SARCASTICALLY INTIMATING THAT THEIR PLANS HAD GONE AWRY.

IT WAS A PATENT EFFORT TO GET OUT FROM UNDER THE FORECAST WHICH THE STATION HAD BEEN DRUMMING FOR A WEEK.

CERTAINLY PROPHECY IS A TRICKY BUSINESS, CALLING EITHER FOR VAST RASHNESS OR GREAT CLEVERNESS. STILL, HAD THE PARIS BROADCASTER SINGLED OUT JULY 3 AS THE APPROXIMATE RATHER THAN THE SPECIFIC DATE -- AND ASSUMING THAT INVASION DOESN'T COME BEFORE MIDNIGHT TONIGHT -- HE MIGHT NOT HAVE BEEN SO FAR OFF AT THAT.

JUL -4 1943

ONE SUSPECTS THAT THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND WOULD AGREE WITH HIM BROADLY, FOR INDICATIONS MULTIPLY THAT WE ARE CLOSE TO THE ZERO HOUR OF SOME SORT OF INVASION IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. AS PREVIOUSLY POINTED OUT, SICILY IS A GOOD BET, AND THE BIG SISTER ISLAND OF SARDINIA MIGHT BE COUPLED WITH THAT FOR A DOUBLE.

DISPATCHES FROM SPAIN REPORT HEAVY MOVEMENT OF ALLIED SHIPPING INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN. TWO CONVOYS OF TRANSPORTS ARE SAID TO HAVE CLEARED GIBRALTAR YESTERDAY, AND ANOTHER WAS STATED TO BE ARRIVING THERE FROM THE ATLANTIC. A CONSIDERABLE BRITISH NAVAL UNIT, INCLUDING THE WARSHIPS NELSON AND RODNEY, ARE REPORTED ANCHORED IN THE ROADSTEAD OF THE ROCK. MEANTIME THE ALLIES HAVE DESTROYED MORE THAN TWENTY ENEMY SHIPS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN DURING THE PAST WEEK.

BOTH SICILY AND SARDINIA--PARTICULARLY THE FORMER--HAVE BEEN BLASTED WITH BOMBS TO A POINT WHERE THEY ARE IN DIRE STRAITS. "PALERMO THE HAPPY," CAPITAL AND CHIEF PORT OF SICILY, HAS BEEN BOMBED UNTIL AMERICAN AIRMEN OPERATING FLYING FORTRESSES HAVE REPORTED THAT THIS BIG CITY IS ABOUT "FINISHED." THE AIRFIELDS OF SICILY, WHICH CAUSED THE ALLIES SO MUCH ANGUISH DURING THE FIGHTING IN NORTH AFRICA, ALSO HAVE BEEN BLASTED UNTIL THE MOVEMENT OF AXIS WARPLANES FROM THEM IS SAID TO BE LIGHT. THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS POSSESS SUPREMACY IN THAT THEATRE.

THE THREE THOUSAND YEAR OLD CITY OF MESSINA, WHICH IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT STRATEGIC SPOTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, HAS BEEN ONCE MORE TORN TO PIECES--THIS TIME BY BOMBS. IT WILL BE RECALLED THAT IT WAS DEVASTATED BY EARTHQUAKE IN 1908 WHEN MORE THAN 77,000 PEOPLE WERE KILLED AND NINETY PERCENT OF THE CITY WAS DESTROYED.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH BOMBERS HAVE PAID SPECIAL ATTENTION TO MESSINA BECAUSE ITS AMPLE HARBOR IS THE RAILWAY JUNCTION WITH THE MAINLAND. TRAINS ARE FERRIED ACROSS THE STRAIT OF MESSINA, WHICH AT ITS NARROWEST POINT IS ONLY TWO MILES WIDE. NATURALLY THE ALLIES WOULD NEED TO SEVER THIS COMMUNICATION, TO CUT OFF REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES, BEFORE ATTEMPTING INVASION OF SICILY.

INCIDENTALLY, THE STRAIT OF MESSINA IS A RACEWAY OF TIDES. IT'S HERE THAT SCYLLA AND CHARYBDIS USED TO TORTURE THE ANCIENTS. SCYLLA WAS A FORMATION OF ROCK AND CHARYBDIS WAS A WHIRLPOOL WHICH SWIRLED NEARBY. SHIPS IN TRYING TO AVOID SCYLLA FREQUENTLY WERE DRAWN INTO THE WAITING MAELSTROM AND LOST, AND IT STILL REMAINS A DIFFICULT PASSAGE FOR ANY CAPTAIN.

THE ANGLO-BRITISH FORCES ARE PROCEEDING METHODICALLY WITH THEIR PRELIMINARY BOMBARDMENT OF ITALIAN POSITIONS, GIVING INDICATION THAT THEY DON'T INTEND TO BE RUSHED. ONE WOULD EXPECT A SIMILAR PROCEDURE WHEN IT COMES TO INVASION OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND, IF INDEED THAT IS ATTEMPTED. WITH SICILY AND SARDINIA OCCUPIED, THE WAY WOULD BE CLEARED FOR BIGGER OPERATIONS, BUT IF THESE TWO BIG ISLANDS ARE THE FIRST OBJECTIVES, THE ANGLO-AMERICAN EXPEDITION QUITE LIKELY WILL PAUSE BEFORE ENTERING ANOTHER PHASE OF THE ATTACK.

21 JAPANESE PLANES SHOT DOWN IN DAY

300 Of Enemy Killed In Attack On Island Off New Georgia

American Flyers Drop Bombs On Bivouac Area At Munda

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Monday, July 5—Allied forces, expanding their gains in the new Southwest Pacific offensive under the personal leadership of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, have seized Vura village on Vangunu Island, off New Georgia, killing 300 of the Japanese garrison and dispersing the remainder.

Announcement of this new conquest came shortly after headquarters here had disclosed that General MacArthur himself had taken the field to direct operations.

Went To New Guinea

The general, who vowed when he left Corregidor in the Philippines that he some day would return, went to New Guinea last month a headquarters statement said, to direct preparation of the great drive which in a few days resulted in occupation of Kiriwina and Woodlark Islands, capture of Viru harbor and a successful landing at Nassau Bay just below Salamaua in New Guinea.

At Rendova Island in the central Solomons, which was occupied by Allied troops last week, twenty-one Japanese planes were destroyed in air battles and by anti-aircraft fire, the noon communique added. This raised to 155 the number of enemy planes downed since the beginning of the new drive last Wednesday.

Nassau Situation Quiet

The ground situation at Nassau Bay, on the northeast coast of New Guinea, was described as quiet.

"Since our landing fifty enemy dead have been counted, representing only a fraction of the total Japanese casualties," the communique said.

"Our losses have been moderate."

In the Salamaua sector, just north of Nassau Bay, patrol clashes are continuing. A Japanese patrol of twenty men were dispersed near Bobdubi, after ten were killed and several wounded.

33 Lost At Viru Harbor

Referring back to the capture of Viru harbor on New Georgia last week, the noon communique declared that American casualties there totaled only thirty-three.

Action Sunday included an attack by Allied torpedo and dive-bombers on the Japanese bivouac areas at Munda, site of a Japanese air base on New Georgia.

A single Liberator bomber, on reconnissance off New Guinea, attacked a 1,500-ton enemy ship, and left it sinking. Three direct hits were scored with 500-pound bombs.

The attack on the enemy encampments in the Munda are was made with 1,000 and 2,000-pound bombs. Enemy outposts at Bairoko harbor also were hit. All our planes returned from these missions.

Allied Losses Light

Allied losses in the capture of Vura village were "relatively light." Those of the enemy garrison that were not killed were dispersed.

In the Viru harbor area of New Georgia, Allied patrols are busy rounding up enemy stragglers.

Eighteen enemy bombers, escorted by twenty fighters, attempted an attack on Allied ground positions at Rendova. They were intercepted

It was the second time in eight months that MacArthur had taken the field. The first was last October for the operations which took Buna.

In Supreme Command

This time General MacArthur was in supreme command of all forces, land, sea and air, engaging in the operations which thus far have resulted in a landing upon New Georgia in the Solomons, occupation of Trobriand and Woodlark and a landing at Nassu Bay, New Guinea, within sight of the Japanese base at Salamaua.

For the operations against Kiriwina and Woodlark he set up advance headquarters in a palm-thatched hut built with the aid of native labor.

Shortly after his arrival in an army bomber escorted by Airacobra and Lightning fighters, the general visited a point on the New Guinea coast where great masses of arms and supplies were stored.

150 miles east of Allied-held Buna, New Guinea. Woodlark is about 100 miles east and slightly south of the Trobriand group.

The special importance of these two places was not publicly explained. They represent but a small part of the area covered in the advance of Allied forces which began June 30 on a land and sea front reaching from the central Solomons east to a point near Japanese-held Salamaua in eastern New Guinea.

Immaculately dressed even in the field, the General, however, discarded the blouse which he usually wears at his Australian headquarters. He went around dressed in well-pressed khaki trousers, khaki shirt bearing the four stars of his rank, a light tie and the elaborate garrison cap which he himself designed.

Tiny Boats Sailed 100 Miles To Land U. S. Army on Isles Combat Troops Occupy Outposts East of New Guinea.

JUL -5 1943

By MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 4 — (AP) The first American landing boat disembarked its complement of heavily armed, picked combat troops on Kiriwina island in 28 minutes, in a perfectly coordinated landing operation.

There wasn't a shot fired or an enemy plane encountered as the boats, in the face of a howling wind and in rough seas, threaded their way through the coral-studded surf and completed one operation in the June 30 opening of the southwest Pacific offensive.

In one of the first stories from correspondents assigned to cover various phases of the operations through which General Douglas MacArthur occupied Kiriwina in the Trobriand and Woodlark island group, Australian correspondent Harry Summers said:

Used Small Boats

"To transport a considerable body of heavily armed troops and vast stores of materials and supplies in small craft across more than 100 miles of open sea in less than one full day was no mean feat."

"Experts are studying its implications in the light of future strategy. It conjures up a big possibility in the conduct of island war against the Japanese."

(The Trobriand-Woodlark archipelago is north of the eastern tip of the Papuan peninsula, New Guinea. Kiriwina island is in the westernmost Trobriand group. It is about 175 miles south of Japanese-held New Britain island.)

Summers told how the landing was made from special landing craft which slid into a cove near the northwest end of Kiriwina. The landing operation was completed within a few hours.

The plans were perfectly drawn and executed in coordinated action involving land, sea and air forces. Naval operations were carried through by the United States Seventh fleet under the command of Vice Admiral Arthur S. Carpender. Rear Admiral Daniel Berbey was in charge of the fleet's amphibious force while Captain J. H. Carter commanded escort vessels and Commander H. F. McGeen was in charge of landing craft.

Top Generals in Charge

Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of the Sixth United States army, who with his staff was in the field in New Guinea, commanded the troops. Air activities were under the direction of Lieut.-Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

"Clouds hung low over the water as the snub-nosed boats dipped into rough seas under the protection of P-38 Lightning fighters overhead and destroyers which cut back and forth through the water like excited ducks watching their broods.

Speedy P-T boats gave additional surface protection. And among those who participated in the clock-like Trobriand operation was famed Lieut.-Comd. John Bulkeley whose P-T boat brought General MacArthur out of Corregidor.

At 3 a. m. the landing boats moved beyond the eastern tip of Kiriwina and headed for a landing point on the low beach which had been carefully selected.

Boats Reach Beaches

From a destroyer, the landing boats could be seen wallowing in the surf and then moving right up on the sand. Figures moved on the beach and material began to pile up there.

Ensign John Kennedy of Chicago, who commanded the first landing boat to hit the beach, told how men, equipment, ammunition and machine-guns were unloaded in 28 minutes.

Vincent Joseph Cardamone of Utica, N. Y., a former Harvard law student, commanded the first landing craft in the first convoy to reach Woodlark island. He said that all boats landed there in one hour and three minutes from the time the first one put in at the point of debarkation. The men in Cardamone's craft unloaded with all equipment and supplies in 35 minutes. The soldiers were so eager to get ashore they leaped overboard in knee-deep water and waded onto the beach.

Many of the troops were violently seasick from riding the small landing boats, and before they reached shore some of them had occasion to use the small paper container issued each of them for just such stomach-churning contingency.

Ensign Kennedy, who won a citation and his commission for gallantry in the Java sea battle, said the Kiriwina landing was one of the toughest he'd seen made since taking over his boat. Great shafts of black coral made the approach difficult and to have run afoul the reefs would have ripped the bottom off the boats.

A rough charting of the course by flags had been made by an exploratory party a few days before the landing, but even then it wasn't easy to get ashore.

U. S. Troops Celebrate Fourth In North Africa

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower presided at special Fourth of July ceremonies attended by French and British officers today.

A British warship, by order of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, fired a forty-eight-gun salute.

French editorialists recalled the role the French played in bringing the American revolution to a successful conclusion and the American assistance given France on two occasions.

Andre Maurois wrote: "Without the armies of De Rochambeau and the fleet of Degrasse the Declaration of Independence would have remained a dead letter. France helped bring the American republic into existence. And the American republic, by its example, brought about the birth of the French republic."

Daylight Attack Follows Heavy R.A.F. Blow at Cologne.

LONDON, July 4 — (AP) The R.A.F. rocked the already devastated city of Cologne for 45 minutes last night and also pounded Hamburg, while large formations of American Flying Fortresses took over the daylight offensive today by laying a destructive bomb pattern across threee important Axis targets—Nantes, Le Mans and La Pallice in France.

The coordinated sky assaults cost the R.A.F. 32 planes and the U. S. Air force eight Fortresses.

Fires Rage in Cologne

Flames visible for 150 miles were were left in Cologne to eat their way through the ruins of that Rhineland industrial and communications hub, returning British bombardiers said.

It was a repeat performance of the big R.A.F. attack on Monday night—a raid which the German radio said had "entirely altered" Cologne's face.

The Americans, observing the first anniversary of Eighth Air force operations over Europe, found the visibility excellent in the attacks on U-boat nests and port installations at Nantes and La Pallice, and an airplane factory at Le Mans.

"Bombing results were good," said the communique, which added that "Strong fighter opposition was encountered at Le Mans and Nantes," but none at La Pallice.

Enemy Fighters Destroyed

"A number of enemy fighters were destroyed by the bombers," the communique said.

R.A.F., Dominion, and Allied fighter squadrons who covered the withdrawal of one of the three bomber formations also knocked down two German fighters.

"We've got one less target to bomb now," said one American bombardier who participated in the blow at a German aircraft works in Le Mans, 120 miles southwest of Paris.

"They can cross that factory off the list," he said. "It just isn't there any more."

The blow at Le Mans involved round-trip flight of more than 200 miles, but this thrust was the shortest of the three. Nantes was a longer ride for the Fortress crews, and the stab at La Pallice, midway along the Bay of Biscay coast, necessitated a round-trip of more than 600 miles.

The combined R.A.F. night and American daylight attacks were a convincing demonstration of the growth of these two great air arms which are softening up the continent preliminary to a land invasion.

British bombers are expected to surpass June's impressive record of more than 15,000 tons of explosives showered on Axis targets, and the Americans are now using hundreds of bombers in their assaults compared to the sixth medium bombers which marked the Eighth Air force's entry on the scene a years ago.

Interspersed with these raids were R.A.F. fighter and bomber sweeps over the continent during the day. Mitchells blasted an important freight yards at Amiens in the afternoon, and their escorting Spitfires destroyed two Focke-Wulf 190s and damaged a number of Messerschmitt 109s, the air ministry said.

Four British planes were reported missing.

Germany's preoccupation with the swelling Allied air offensive was indicated in the absence of German raiders over Britain. Aside from an occasinoal swipe at Britain's formidable coastal defenses, the enemy stayed on his side of the channel today. Britain thus began its second week of respite from aerial attacks.

The great fleets of R.A.F. bombers concentrated their fire and explosive bombs on the Kalk and Deutz sections of Cologne.

The Air ministry, describing the raid as being in "great strength," said preliminary reports indicated that the bombing was well concentrated.

In attacking Cologne, third largest city of the Reich, and the north German U-boat building center of Hamburg, the British airmen returned to the same targets they battered in their last heavy assault on the night of June 28.

Eight hours after last night's raid, much of the Kalk-Deutz section of Cologne was covered by clouds of smoke from fires which still were burning, the Air Ministry news service said.

The two districts, along with Mulheim, form a compact area of about five square miles, half of which is covered with railways and war industries, including some of Germany's most important factories.

Among the major high priority war plants located in the Kalk-Deutz area is the Humboldt-Deutz works, which turns out a large proportion of the Diesel engines for Germany's submarines.

British bombers are expected to surpass June's impressive record of more than 15,000 tons of explosives showered on Nazi targets, and the Americans are now using hundreds of bombers in their assaults, compared to the six medium bombers—Bostons borrowed from the RAF—which marked the Eighth Air Force's entry on the scene a year ago with a daylight raid on German airfields in the Netherlands.

Germany's preoccupation with the swelling Allied air offensive was indicated in the absence of Nazi raiders over Britain during the day, aside from an occasional swipe at this country's formidable coastal defenses.

The great fleets of the RAF's Saturday-night bombers concentrated their fire and explosive bombs on the Kalk and Deutz industrial districts of Cologne on the eastern bank of the Rhine.

The Air Ministry, describing the raid as being in "great strength," said preliminary reports indicated that the bombing was well concentrated.

Eight hours after the raid, much of the Kalk-Deutz section was covered by clouds of smoke from fires that still were burning, the Air Ministry news service said.

The two districts, along with Mulheim, form a compact area of about five square miles, half of which is covered with railways and war industries, including some of Germany's most important factories. Among the major high priority war plants in the Kalk-Deutz area is the Humboldt-Deutz works, which turns out a large proportion of the Diesel engines for Germany's submarines.

A Lancaster pilot said he saw one explosion so terrific "it seemed that the whole factory building was being thrown into the air—it simply disintegrated."

With the main part of Cologne on the west bank still smouldering from fires started by the RAF bombs last Monday night, huge new blazes were set across the river and returning pilots said the smoke rolled up to a height of 10,000 feet. They reported many violent explosions.

The British raiders were reported to have run into fierce Nazi defenses at the start of the attack.

"They massed their searchlights into three big cones and were pouring a curtain of flak up into the spaces between," said one Halifax pilot who was among the first over the target.

Later arrivals said they found the defenses slackened considerably and by the end of the attack they were comparatively ineffective. Large numbers of German night fighters were out.

Some R. A. F. bombers dropped explosives in the Ruhr during the night. The Air Ministry gave no details of the attacks there and at the North German U-boat building center of Hamburg, which was also raided last Monday night.

British bombers again laid mines in enemy waters and the R. A. F. Fighter Command carried out intruder patrols over the Netherlands, Belgium and France during the night, destroying at least one Nazi plane.

The raids marked the 98th attack on Hamburg and the 118th on Cologne, which was believed to have taken its heaviest pounding in the June 28 assault. That raid on Cologne cost the RAF twenty-five bombers.

Flying Fortress crews from one Eighth Air Force bomber station, who were in the raid on Le Mans, reported that their Fourth of July fireworks—in the form of bombs—laid waste the airplane engine plant there in billowing smoke, flames and flying debris rose thousands of feet over the entire target area after they laid a perfect destructive pattern of bombs on the Nazi-used French factory and on near-by airdromes.

The airmen said the weather was so clear that the factory, two miles from Le Mans, "stood out like a beacon" and they encountered only a few enemy fighters and only light flak. Spitfires escorted them back from the French coast.

It was the second time American bombers had been to Le Mans, having hit there on June 26. At that time heavy clouds made visibility unfavorable for high altitude precision bombing so many Fortresses returned to their bases with their explosives. It was a different story today.

Second Lieut. Walter Stockman of Brooklyn, navigator of the Fortress Cherokee Girl, piloted by First Lieut. Fred Hansen, also of Brooklyn, was quoted by The Associated Press correspondent at the bomber station as calling it "damned good bombing."

"I saw several big fires started in the factory and flames shot high in the air," Lieutenant Stockman said. "I didn't expect the raid, which was my eleventh, to be this easy. There were only a few fighters in the sky, and they concentrated on the formation behind us, leaving us pretty much alone."

The Le Mans railway yards, freight car repair shops and engine sheds are among the largest in France. The city is the site of important armament factories, including a subsidiary of the Renault plant on the outskirts of Paris that was attacked successfully by Eighth Air Force bombers on April 4.

Le Mans also has the famous Gnome-Rhone aero engine plant producing motors for the German Air Force, particularly for the big six-motored transports that carried Nazi troops in the North African campaign and probably are being relied upon to rush Axis reinforcements to hard-pressed points in the forthcoming Allied invasions.

La Pallice is one of the key U-boat refitting and repair bases. It had been attacked three times previously by the Eighth Air Force, twice in November by Fortresses and again on May 29 by Liberators.

Nantes is a vital servicing and repair depot for the German Air Force and Army in France.

SICILIAN PORT INSTALLATION IS BLOWN UP

Aerial Reconnaissance Shows Destruction Of Trapani Quay

NORGAARD

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4—Adding to destruction caused yesterday by the heaviest aerial attack on Italy's island airdromes since the fall of Pantalleria, Axis defenders of Sicily have begun blowing up port installations that might be used in an Allied landing, it was disclosed today.

An official announcement said aerial photographs showed that the enemy was destroying his own quays at Trapani, on the northwest tip of Sicily, with demolition charges.

(The Rome radio said in a broadcast recorded Saturday night by NBC that the big air and naval base of Palermo, Sicily's capital, has "ceased to exist" under the pounding of Allied bombers.)

Flew Over Rome

The Italian Sunday communique, broadcast from Rome, stated that Allied planes bombed Ostia and Fiumicino, at the mouth of the Tiber southwest of Rome, last night and repeatedly flew over the outskirts of Rome itself, drawing anti-aircraft fire from the capital's batteries.

(British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reiterated last week that there would be no hesitation in bombing the Italian capital "if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful.")

There was no confirmation here of the attacks on Ostia and Fiumicino, but such raids by the North African air force frequently are not reported immediately.

Heavy Damage Noted

Light, medium and heavy bombers and fighters of the North African Command participated in daylight assaults on Scardinian and Sicilian airfields, which official reports said did "heavy damage to buildings and parked aircraft." Ten enemy planes were destroyed in combat and nine Allied craft were reported missing.

The widespread daylight onslaught followed a raid on Trapani the preceding night by RAF Wellington bombers, which also hit the Sardinian port of Olbia and left seven great fires blazing in its railway yards.

It was while surveying results of the attack on Trapani that aerial photographers discovered the enemy was adding to the destruction of the port, which lies only 100 miles directly across the Sicilian straits from Allied-held Cap Bon in Tunisia.

Quay Demolished

An announcement said that "the quay of the port of Trapani is being demolished by explosions all along the side where shipping is unloaded, according to photo reconnaissance." The 5,000-foot quay line is adjacent to the Trapani submarine basin.

Sicilian airfields at Milo, Sciacca and Comiso were objectives of three raids yesterday by American and South African light and medium bombers escorted by American Warhawk fighters.

Determined opposition both from the ground and from enemy fighters failed to prevent American Bostons from placing their bombs squarely on the airfield and dispersal area at Sciacca.

American Mitchells dropped more than eighty tons of explosives on Comiso, in southeastern Sicily, and photographs revealed "an outstanding job of pattern bombing," the official report said.

Airfield Bombed

The day's operations of the strategic air force were featured by the bombing of Alghero-Cartela airdrome in northwest Sardinia.

Mitchells dropped their bombs on four large buildings there and pitted the airfield, while their gunners shot down five out of twelve enemy interceptors.

Mitchells and Marauders attacked Milis airdrome in central Sardinia, covering the field with bombs and causing heavy explosions among installations. Strong formations of Marauders bombed Capo Terra in central Sardinia, starting a fire believed to be in an oil dump. Warhawk fighters shot up radio installations and gun emplacements at Pula in southern Sardinia.

A Valletta communique reported that Malta-based fighters provided cover for the bomber attack upon Comiso and that fighter-bombers from the British island scored a direct hit on a building and caused other damage at Biscari airdrome on Sicily. It said a Messerschmitt fighter was destroyed and that an escorting RAF Spitfire was missing from the raid.

Italians Claim Fifty

The Italian communique claimed that a total of fifty Allied planes, including "numerous" four-engined bombers, were shot down over Sicily during the day. It said Italian fighters accounted for eighteen of the number and German fighters got ten, while anti-aircraft fire destroyed the other twenty-two. It said damage from the attacks was "negligible."

(The Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch from Rome saying casualties were eleven dead and sixty-five injured at Trapani; one dead and five wounded at Catania and one dead and twenty-one wounded in Sassari province.

ITALIANS DESTROY INSTALLATIONS AT HARBOR ON SICILY

Principal Quay at Trapani Blown Up, Reconnaissance Planes Discover.

MORTON

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, July 4 — (AP) Italy began applying the scorched earth policy yesterday to one of Sicily's principal ports, the bomb-battered harbor of Trapani.

Aerial photographic reconaissance over Trapani, at the northwest corner of Sicily 100 miles from the tip of Allied-held Cap Bon, disclosed that a long chain of demolition charges had been set off at the side of the principal quay, rendering it unfit for further use by shipping.

Craters were seen for nearly one-third of the length of the 5,000-foot installation.

(The object presumably is to deny the harbor facilities to the Allies in the event of a landing attempt there.)

Before Allied bombardments and the threat of invasion started an exodus of Sicily's civilians, Trapani's population totaled about 63,000.

The last daylight bombardment of Trapani was May 7. It was visited Friday night by R.A.F. Wellingtons, which are believed to have covered a large portion of the city with bomb bursts.

A former Italian naval base, the city had been hit hard by Allied bombers during the Tunisian campaign because it, along with Marsala and Palermo, was a major embarkation point for Africa-bound troops and supplies.

Great damage was inflicted at that time. The port has since been visited by comparatively few ships.

Eisenhower Readies Troops For Attacks Against Europe

African Commander Puts Emphasis On Toughness For Combat As He Supervises Training

JUL -5 1943

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is preparing the greatest of all Allied armies for its zero hour, when it will be thrown against Adolf Hitler's "fortress Europe." Now he is constantly among his men, stressing discipline and more discipline. This first of two articles tells how "General Ike" gets ready for war.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4—The commander in chief of the North African theater of war is a tough man in the "dog days" between campaigns.

He has with him the largest Allied force led by any American in the world.

He has in front of him the sea-girt southern flank of Europe. And the fulfillment of destiny.

Cue Given By Churchill

No one can say today where or when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will hurl his American, British and French armies against the continental fortress of the Axis.

But the cue for the greatest military event of 1943 was given the other day by a peerless oracle of the British Empire.

"Very probably there will be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere," said Prime Minister Churchill, "before the leaves of autumn fall."

For two months since his warriors of many nationalities achieved complete victory in Tunisia, the Texas-born generalissimo has been stressing toughness.

Hard Training For Combat

By toughness he means strict discipline and hard training for combat.

Division after division came back from Tunisia to rear camps, not to loll and rest but to learn to fight with new weapons under new conditions. "General Ike" had ordered it that way.

Hardly any important exercise or maneuver has been carried out in North Africa in recent weeks without the presence of a tireless, watchful observer with four silver stars on his overseas cap.

The General's desk routines have been trimmed to a minimum so he can be in the field as much as possible with his officers and men.

On Cruiser Off Pantelleria

He stood off Pantelleria in a British cruiser three days before the Italian garrison surrendered under the air Blitz, June 22. Then he made numerous trips totaling thousands of miles to see his armies prepare themselves for tasks greater than they ever faced before.

Flying as his own pilot, he dropped in the other day on several key training centers. He is an air enthusiast, having received his license six years ago when he was 47.

Landing on a road in front of a "leadership school," he was invited by the commander to address, extemporaneously, the husky, attentive pupils.

Typical Of Beliefs

What he said was typical of his fundamental beliefs.

"In the hands of junior officers lies the fate of an army," the highest American officer in Africa said. "You are in direct, immediate command of the troops. You are their inspirational leaders.

"All of you are fighting for the right to live as you please as long as you don't get unjustly in other people's hair. You are fighting against dictation and dictators.

"Only discipline will win a war. Victories come from discipline. And discipline comes from the everlasting efforts of the junior officers."

Discipline Promotion Test

It's a rule of Allied headquarters that no officer in the theater can be promoted without a favorable report from his immediate superior on his record of maintaining discipline. General Eisenhower is as firm in this respect as was Gen. John J. Pershing in the first World War.

When he personally sees infractions of discipline, he is quick to reprimand, but not in public if this can be avoided. As a professional soldier he holds that "the evidence of discipline in a civilian army is the saluting."

Frequently he has declared, "If you can't trust a man to salute his military superiors as smartly when he is on leave in a town as when he is in his own camp, you can't trust him on any other kind of assignment."

Recently, while driving through an area where the troops appeared particularly smart, the commander in chief spied a military police sergeant in a perfect salute beside the road and stopped his car.

Leaves Proud Non-Com

"How long have you been in the service?" he asked.

"Seventeen years, sir," said the sergeant, his gaze unwavering and his back ramrod-straight.

"Are your MP's tough enough for you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, if they're tough enough for you they're tough enough for me."

The general drove off, leaving behind the proudest non-com in the whole American army.

Eisenhower Can Take Politics, But He'd Much Rather Fight

Allied Chief Envies His Old Buddies Who Lead Troops In Field, His Intimates Say

By DANIEL DE LUCE

JUL -5 1943

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 5—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, his intimates say, very much envies his old army buddies who personally lead troops out in the field and fight battles.

As commander in chief of the Allied forces, he has issued many directives for combat, but others have had the excitement of translating them into action.

And, meanwhile, more than military matters have weighed upon him for decision.

Beset By Political Problems

At every turn in the road to victory the bustling top soldier of this theater of war has had to pause while he got rid temporarily of a Pandora's Box of stinging political problems.

The politics were not of his wanting. They grew from the fact that his American and British troops had seized a base of operations from a doubtful third power—France—and before anything else could be done, two enemy powers, Germany and Italy, had to be cleaned out of it.

As a soldier Eisenhower made his moves, political or otherwise, with the single announced objective—to win the war as soon as possible with a minimum expenditure of Allied lives.

That objective now requires an invasion of Europe.

Biggest Test Lies Ahead

In appraising the American general as a strategist or tactician history will be the final judge. His biggest test still lies before him.

But American and British war correspondents in eight months of frank conferences with him on every subject from the German breakthrough at Kasserine Pass to intervention that assured the continued French command under Gen. Henri Giraud have had ample opportunity to asses him as a personality.

We meet him usually in a modest council room at his headquarters where a big map of the world hangs on an unpainted wooden partition.

He comes quickly from his own office when his naval aide, Com. H. C. Butcher, of Washington, D. C., tells him "the press is here," and begins his statement as soon as he takes a chair at the head of a long mahogany table.

Reminds One Of Rockne

A man with a granite jaw and genial blue eyes, he speaks rapidly and forcefully. He is almost bald but his face is round and young-looking at the age of 53.

His presence is magnetic. His confidence is infectious.

Watching and listening to him, you have the feeling that he reminds you of another American in another decade when the world was at peace. It slips back into your memory out of your youth. For some of the things Eisenhower has, that other American had in a different field. He, too, was bald and round-faced. His name? Knute Rockne.

It would be straining for effect to carry the comparison further. But there's a chance history will decide that, in the direction of his Allied command of diverse minds and races, Eisenhower got a higher quality of teamwork than the generals before him.

The Time He Lost His Temper

In eight months of conferences, at which no "if" questions were barred, the correspondents have seen him lose his temper only once. That was caused by a query implying there was friction between American and British forces.

"We have only one army in North Africa!" he snapped.

Back in 1940, while coming home from the Philippines to serve with the Fifteenth Infantry Regiment at Fort Ord, California, he earned the name of "Calamity Ike" from his brother officers because of his persistent predictions that the United States was bound to be drawn into the war.

No one, however, ever called him "Alibi Ike."

Accepts Full Responsibility

If there's one thing he insists on, it's accepting full responsibility for whatever temporary reverse his forces may undergo. He offers no "alibi." He says, simply, "I made a mistake."

On the other hand, he has stressed emphatically that he delegates full operational authority to what he has called "the military stars of the British Empire," and that to them the credit for successes in the field is due.

In Politics By Necessity

They are General Alexander, his deputy commander in chief and commander of the land forces; Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of the Mediterranean sea forces, and Air Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder, commander of the air forces.

By necessity, General Eisenhower has had to engage in politics with the officialdom in French North Africa. But he never has had to play politics with the British, who are going on to fight in Europe under his command.

McKeesport WAC Weds Briton In North Africa

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 4 (AP)—Josephine McLane, of McKeesport, Pa., a member of the Women's Army Corps, was married today to British Lance Corporal Hubert Heckman, in the first WAC marriage in the North African theater.

After a three-day special honeymoon leave she will return to regular WAC routine, living at WAC headquarters.

The couple met when Miss McLane was assigned to a branch of the army with offices in the same building as Heckman, who is assigned to British censorship.

Juin Heading French In Giraud's Absence

Algiers, July 4 (AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud appointed Gen. Alphonse Juin to act as commander in chief of French forces in North Africa while Giraud is absent on a visit to Washington, it was announced today.

Giraud, now en route at the invitation of President Roosevelt, is accompanied by three staff officers, the French Office of Information said.

British, German Guns Open Channel Barrage

London, Monday, July 5 (AP)—The British opened a barrage of their big guns across the Straits of Dover shortly before 3 A. M. today.

For fifteen minutes they bombarded the Conitnent, after which a reply came from German guns between Boulogue and Calais. The British sent over a steady stream of two-gun salvos, while the Germans fired back only at irregular intervals.

Some shells fell in the Dover area in this duel, which was the third within a week. Before that, the guns had been silent for several weeks.

The exchanges usually indicate that a coastal convoy is passing. With their railroads strained, the Germans were reported relying more and more on this risky means of sneaking small boats through the Channel to supply their coastal defenders.

Yanks Stage Hayride in London As British Hail U. S. Anniversary

LONDON, July 4 — (AP) An old-fashioned American hayride through the heart of London followed by a picnic near Serpentine Lake in Hyde Park highlighted a Fourth of July observance for some U. S. troops today.

Consistent with the wartime restriction back home, there were no fireworks in the day's celebration here, but the holiday was far from cheerless as Red Cross clubs and private hosts heaped their tables with the best at their command to feed the Americans, entertaining them afterward with movies and dances or simply companionship.

Londoners in always-crowded Oxford street gaped at a haycart with 25 singing soldiers and the same number of gay English girls rolling down to famed Hyde park. None of the girls had even been on such a party before and most of the spectators had never seen anything like it except in movies.

Ann Douglas, Savannah, Ga., Red Cross staff member who organized the ride, had plenty of trouble getting a cart. When she finally succeeded the owners insisted upon installing chairs. Eventually persuaded that these were not needed, they dispatched the cart with baled hay which had to be broken open and spread about cozily.

Among those riding were Sergts. John B. Galema, Boston, and John Schwartz, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Corp. Leo Kaye, Brooklyn; Privates Samuel Acudi, Lancaster, Pa. and William W. Schaeffer, Johnston, Pa.

Vice-Admiral Sir Goeffrey Blake, on behalf of the Admiralty, took American navy men on a ride on the Thames, visiting such historic spots as Hampton Court, Runnymede and Windsor where they were received by the king and queen.

At St. Paul's Cathedral half of the evening service was broadcast from there and the other half from Washington Cathedral in Washington, D. C. For the first time in the history of St. Paul's the clergy, choir and congregation heard a service coming from another church.

American troops were permitted to take British friends to Red Cross clubs, thus repaying their hospitality.

The day also was marked by a Communist party demonstration in Trafalgar Square where Paul Robeson's recording of "Ballad for Americans" was played before the speeches.

At the ancestral home of George Washington in Sulgrave, Northamptonshire, British and American flags were raised.

1ST SKY TRAIN SPANS OCEAN

Tows Vaccine For Russia 3,500 Miles Across Atlantic In 24 Hours

JUL -5 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, July 5—A freight-loaded glider recently was towed across the Atlantic in a successful test of a "sky-train" technique opening great new possibilities in air transport, the Air Ministry disclosed today.

The glider was loaded with vaccines for Russia, radio, aircraft and motor parts, and was towed by a twin-engined Douglas transport, a type which the British call Dakota. It completed the 3,500-mile journey in twenty-eight hours.

The glider chosen for the experiment by the RAF Transport Command had an eighty-four-feet wingspan with freight capacity of a ton and a half. Known as type CG4A, it was designed by the Waco Aircraft Company and built by a New York piano manufacturer.

Squadron Leader R. G. Seys, of the RAF, piloted the glider with Squadron Leader F. M. Gobeil, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, as copilot, while Flight Lieutenant W. S. Langhurst, a Canadian in the RAF, piloted the tow plane with Flight Lieutenant C. W. H. Thomson as copilot.

Experimental Hops

The flight was preceded by many months of experimental hops with the fully loaded glider. The major test was a triangular course flown to and from Montreal by way of Newfoundland and Labrador. The last stage of this flight carried 820 miles, setting a record for loaded glider flight by exceeding the American mark of 670 miles.

Some of the worst weather of fifty years beset these experimental runs—including a blizzard which forced the glider down in snowy mountains—but the Atlantic crossing starting from Montreal was hampered by bad weather only on the first leg.

On the first hop it took three hours to climb against headwinds to 9,000 feet in a vain effort to try to get over clouds. But the weather improved and the final day's run brought the "train" to its destination exactly on scheduled time.

NEW GERMAN UNIT HEADED BY RAEDER

'General Service' Military Branch Believed to Be an Anti-Invasion Force

ALL SERVICES DRAWN ON

Men From Air, Land and Sea Groups to Be Used, With Navy Predominating

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 4 (AP)—A Berlin dispatch to the newspaper Aftonbladet reported today that a new German "general service" military branch headed by Grand Admiral Erich Raeder had been created, apparently to combat any Allied invasion.

Admiral Raeder organized the new branch with four divisions—coast guard, submarine and light and heavy naval forces—the dispatch said. It was passed by German censors.

Units of the new branch indicated that it was principally a reorganization within the German navy, although personnel was drawn from the army and air force. The Aftonbladet correspondent said that "mystery" surrounded the reorganization but that the task of the new branch was apparently to combat the expected invasion.

He reported that no official announcement had been made on the task or purpose of the branch. From the complexion of the units, however, it appeared that they were designed primarily for operation around coastal areas that Germany must defend on an arc from the tip of Norway to Greece.

Admiral Raeder headed the German Navy from Oct. 1, 1928, until Jan. 30, when he was succeeded by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz in a step interpreted by Allied sources as meaning that Germany had decided on the intensification of submarine warfare as a main hope of winning the war. Admiral Raeder then became admiral inspector of the navy.

Admiral Raeder's new branch will supplement the present branches of the army, navy and air forces, the correspondent said. The personnel will be drawn from seasoned officers and men of the air force, submarine squadrons, the fleet, army heavy artillery and pioneers, the crack engineer units, he added.

There was no indication how much of Admiral Doenitz' naval personnel would be transferred to Admiral Raeder or how the overlapping of their naval forces would be coordinated. Stockholm observers speculated whether the organization of the new branch was intended to divert home-front attention from the failure of the submarine warfare that Admiral Doenitz launched when he took over the navy. The German Admiralty had promised that U-boats would cripple Allied invasion plans.

Hitler Suffers Nervous Breakdown, Is Rumor

Bern, Switzerland, July 4 (AP)—Lack of any recent mention of Adolf Hitler in the German press led today to rumors he had suffered a nervous breakdown compelling him to take a rest, but this could not be confirmed through Swiss sources.

Since Hitler called leaders of Axis satellites to a series of conferences at Berchtesgaden, the Fuehrer's name has not appeared in any news dispatches in the German press.

STOCKHOLM, July 4 (AP)—The "Goeteborgs Handels-Och-Sjoefartstidning" said today that a son of Field Marshal General Walter von Brauchitsch, one-time commander in chief of the German Army, had been arrested in Germany for circulating a letter written by his father which criticized the high command's conduct of the war. A number of officers also were arrested, the newspaper said.

LANDING ON GREECE IS HINTED BY KING

Monarch Tells Homeland Allies Will Drive Out Nazi Oppressors.

JUL - 5 1943

CAIRO, July 4—(AP) King George of Greece intimated tonight that an Allied landing on Greek soil could be expected.

He declared in a broadcast to the Greek people: "I know you in Greece are ready to play your part as soldiers and patriots ready to cooperate with those who will help you at last to fulfill your fondest dreams by landing on the shores of Greece and joining you to drive out the oppressor."

He also assured the people of his occupied homeland that "as soon as the security of our country is complete and when necessities of military occupation allow, free and general elections for a constituent assembly will be held."

The King declared that the 1911 Greek constitution would be maintained until the Greek nation has "expressed its sovereign will."

"As soon as the seat of government can be transferred to Greek soil, members of the present government will tender their resignations to me in order that a government fully representative of all parties and all currents of public opinion of the nation may be constituted—a government composed of personalities who will guarantee freedom and orderliness of these elections."

Gen. Yague Transferred From Morocco to Madrid

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, July 5.—Lt. Gen. Juan Yague, commander at Melilla, Spanish Morocco, has been transferred to Madrid, where he will become president of the Supreme Geographical Institute, a DNB dispatch said yesterday.

The German agency devoted considerable attention to the shift in an interpretive dispatch, recalling Gen. Yague's "anti-Bolshevik" zeal in the Spanish Civil War and even before that when he put down an uprising in Asturias. It said there had been "conflicts" between Gen. Yague and his superior, Lt. Gen. Luis Orgaz Yoldi, who is commander in chief in Spanish Morocco, but did not give this as a specific reason for his transfer under an official decree.

AXIS EXPECT RED OFFENSIVE

Russians Complete Troop Movements On Long Front, Berlin Declares

800 Germans Are Killed In Two Futile Charges, Soviet Communique Says

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, July 5—The Germans suffered 800 dead in two futile charges against an important height on the northwest front yesterday, Moscow announced early today, while the Berlin radio said Russian transport movements along the huge front had been complete and "a Soviet offensive now is to be expected almost any day."

Three German battalions of 2,400 SS elite troops, supported by seven tanks, "tried to retrieve an important height which our guards captured at the end of June, said the midnight Russian bulletin in describing the sharp fight which presumably occurred in the Velikie Luki sector, ninety miles from the Latvian border.

Strong Russian fire from all types of arms forced the enemy to retreat in the first attack. A second Axis attempt was met by a Red army counter-attack which "hurled the enemy back again with heavy losses." In addition to more than 800 enemy troops killed, the Russians said four of the seven Nazi supporting tanks were crippled.

Heavy Air Attacks

The bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor, also told of heavy Russian air attacks Friday night on Kerch and Temryuk, Crimean and Caucasian ports on the southern end of the long front.

Several German ships out of a collection of transports and motor barges were sunk at Temryuk, the Russians said, and all the Soviet planes returned to their bases.

The consistent raids on these ports in the Kerch strait area may foreshadow Soviet land operations aimed at smashing the narrow Axis bridgehead in the Caucasus where the German high command declared yesterday that Axis forces had advanced in the lagoon area below Temryuk "despite difficult terrain conditions and enemy counter-defense."

Threat Acknowledged

Moscow did not mention any land operations in the Caucasus, but Berlin radio commentators in broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press acknowledged that Soviet landing barges and flat-bottomed motor boats had been threatening Germany's rear communications leading back to the Crimea.

During the past week the Russians said their airmen and gunners had destroyed sixty-six German planes compared to eighteen Soviet losses. An enemy transport also was declared sunk yesterday in the Barents Sea.

This showed a sharp decline in the Red air force's operations, and tended to confirm Berlin assertions that the Russians were marshaling their forces for a big push after a one-hundred-day general lull.

Moscow, July 4 (AP)—Americans in Moscow observed the Fourth of July today at an open house given by their Ambassador, Admiral William H. Standley, after which a hundred-piece symphony orchestra played Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" in Philharmonic Hall.

They drank toasts of a concoction they called "Cuba librasky"—a Cuba libre with vodka substituted for rum.

Part of the musical program, which started with "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," was broadcast.

Natalia Schriller, Moscow opera prima donna, sang a group of folk songs. The Gershwin number, with Alexander Tzfasman, a popular band leader, as soloist, prompted tremendous applause from the large audience, which included many Russians.

RAILROAD BRIDGE IN BURMA BLASTED

Span at Myitnge, Near Mandalay, Destroyed by U.S. Bombers.

JUL - 5 1943

NEW DELHI, July 4—(AP) U. S. medium bombers knocked out the important Myitnge railroad bridge near Japanese-held Mandalay in Burma again yesterday, destroying the south span and smashing tracks and the embankment on the south approach, it was announced today.

The bridge, spanning the Irrawaddy river, had been damaged in an earlier American raid, but Japanese engineers apparently had made it usable again, a U. S. communique said.

"Many hits" were reported scored on the bridge yesterday, and photographs revealed the new damage.

Heavy bombers struck the industrial area of Myingyan Saturday, but clouds prevented observation of results, the communique reported. Nine tons of bombs were dropped on Friday bq B-24 bombers on an enemy railroad construction base at Tanbyuzayat, heavily damaging warehouses and tracks.

All the American planes and crews returned safely.

MME. CHIANG BACK SAFELY IN CHINA

Wife Of Generalissimo Ends 15,000-Mile Trip To U. S. And Canada

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, July 4—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek returned by plane to this war capital today for a reunion with her husband, the Chinese generalissimo, after an extended tour of the United States and Canada.

Weary and airsick, she landed at the airdrome here in a transport plane piloted by an American crew, ending her 15,000-mile journey which began last November 18.

The time of her arrival was kept so secret that not even the generalissimo was informed. Consequently he was not at the airport to greet her and only upon her arrival at their home here were they reunited.

Trip Home Took Less Than Week

In the United States Madame Chiang underwent weeks of medical treatment for an old injury, then toured that country and part of Canada to champion the cause of China.

The trip back to Chungking took less than a week and passed uneventfully, but the first lady of China found the strain of travel trying. She arrived as President Lin Sen lay gravely ill and China was only three days away from the beginning of the seventh year of the war with Japan.

A member of the party said she had been eager to be back in China for the anniversary.

Japs Repulsed By Chinese

Chungking, July 4 (AP)—Chinese forces have beaten back two Japanese counter-attacks in southern Hupeh province near Kungan, one of the bases from which the invaders launched their abortive drive on the upper Yangtze, the Chinese high command announced today.

CALLS MARTINIQUE TALK FAVORABLE

Vice-Admiral Hoover Returns To San Juan From Parley With Robert

JUL - 5 1943

[By the Associated Press]

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 4—Vice-Admiral John H. Hoover said today the chances of a settlement were "favorable" after his return from a Martinique conference with the Vichy French High Commissioner, Admiral Georges Robert, who had requested a discussion on terms for changing French authority in the island colony. The negotiations will continue, Hoover said.

Hoover went to see Robert after the High Commissioner had invited the United States Government to send a plenipotentiary to discuss the terms of such a change of rule, a decision Robert declared he had taken to "avoid bloodshed."

Last Vichy Link

Martinique is the last remaining French possession of any size in the Western Hemipshere which has not severed its allegiance to the Vichy Government.

Informed sources said Admiral Hoover merely planned to obtain Robert's conditions for relay to Washington, where it was assumed the decision would rest on what further action would be taken.

With American recognition of the French National Committee in Algiers, it was necessarily assumed that the United States would refer any proposed agreement to the French committee or its authorized representative.

MEXICAN OFFICIALS HAIL U.S. FREEDOM

MEXICO CITY, July 4—(AP) President Manuel Avila Camacho and Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla sent Independence Day greetings to President Roosevelt today and expressed hopes for an early peace based on democratic ideals.

BOMBERS BATTER JAPANESE ON KISKA

Many Hits on Enemy Installations Scored in Nine New Raids.

WASHINGTON, July 4 — (AP) American airmen, battering the Japanese Kiska garrison which seems ultimately destined for destruction, have scored numerous damaging hits in a new series of nine raids.

The Navy, reporting this today, said anti-aircraft positions and the camp areas on the rocky Aleutians island were struck by the heaviest loads of bombs. Some of the gun emplacements may have been knocked out and casualties could have been caused in the living quarters.

Direct Hit on House

It reported also, without explanation, that "one direct hit was made on a house." In view of the accuracy of American precision bombing it appears probable that the house was a chosen objective; it could have been a headquarters building for a part of the enemy's Kiska command.

JUL - 5 1943

Ventura and Mitchell medium bombers and Liberator heavy bombers carried out eight of the nine new raids on Kiska. They struck in waves on Friday at gun positions in the Gertrude cover area, the camps and the North head section on the island.

The Liberators went back alone the next day again to pound enemy positions, hitting this time at the main camp area. Fog and low hanging clouds, however, made it impossible to observe results of the attack.

Obviously a continuation of the aerial bombardment expected to soften up the Aleutians base for invasion, the raids were the heaviest reported since the general offensive started far away in the south and southwest Pacific.

EARLY INVASION FROM AFRICA SEEN IN ALLIED MOVES

JUL -5 1943

French Tunisia Looms as Base for One Thrust Against Europe.

WASHINGTON, July 4 — (AP) Even as the imagination-stirring offensive led by General Douglas MacArthur develops in the far Pacific, there are ever-sharpening portents of still greater Allied action on the ohter side of the world, in the historic Mediterranean sea.

Capped by Prime Minister Churchill's blunt disclosure to Parliament of steps taken jointly by the Washington and London governments to prevent any repercussions of French army or other controversies in Africa from delaying operations, the week's developments were significant.

Early Action Hinted

They all pointed to early action from French Africa against the Axis-held continent or its island bulwarks. While there may be action, too, from other African bases eastward, there can be no question that French Africa is a well prepared springboard or that Allied power so dominates the Mediterranean that it can be crossed in force.

The fight will come on the selected landing beaches or beyond them, not at sea. Evidence of that came from an unexpected quarter. Lloyd's, the great London marine insurance risk authority, is again authorizing rates for Mediterranean voyages. It has not done that since June, 1940. And these rates are even lower than those for the long Cape route around Africa to the Indian ocean which has been little threatened.

Full Control of Mediterranean

That means that Allied air power and naval forces are in complete control of the Mediterranean from end to end. And that means that the way to Sicily, to Sardinia, to the Italian boot itself is open whenever Allied forces are ready to jump off from Africa against them.

The time element is implicit in every Allied move by General Dwight D. Eisenhower to insure continued full control by General Henri Giraud of French forces in North and West Africa.

Whatever Washington's displeasure with Gen. Giraud's rival, General Charles de Gaulle, and London shares it to a very large extent, its primary basis is that his efforts to rearrange French command authority in the Africa operations zone and to reorganize the French army has caused or could cause delay in offensive strokes.

Gen. de Gaulle's intimates in Algiers are quoted as saying that his insistence on removing some French military leaders was based on the contention that many are too old and that others are former Vichyites who have lost the confidence and respect of their troops.

Philippines May Be Goal Of MacArthur's Campaign

Base on Mindanao Would Offer Chance to Cut Jap Supply Line.

JUL -5 1943

WASHINGTON, July 4 — (AP) Friends of General Douglas MacArthur said today that a week's development of the offensive in the south Pacific had reasonably well convinced them that Gen. MacArthur has finally launched the campaign by which he intends to return to the Philippines.

Months of fighting at least remain to be done, for the offensive now is in its earliest and simplest stage—the struggle for strategically placed bases from which to make the next wave of assaults on Japan's main south Pacific defense line.

Because of the time which must elapse before the MacArthur strategy can reach its climax, most emphasis now is being placed on other and more immediate triumphs expected.

However, military men do not minimize the importance strategically of a reconquest of at least the southern part of the Philippines. That would place American forces in position to harass and eventually to sever Japan's supply lines to her rich conquered territories in Malaya and the Netherland East Indies. Pushing the conquest of the Philippines northward would not only increase the potential damage to Japanese shipping but would also bring within range of attack the enemy base on Formosa island and probably make possible an aerial junction of Gen. MacArthur's forces with the Allied forces —American, Chinese and British— driving toward the Asiatic coast through southern China.

Here is the way the south Pacific situation shapes up almost a week after the start of the first real offensive against Japan:

MacArthur In Command

Gen. MacArthur with full strategic control of both his own forces and those of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., can turn the Allied striking power in any direction that seems most desirable. Generally his forces in New Guinea and Admiral Halsey's units in the central Solomons appear to be driving initially for bases from which to throw overwhelming air power against the Japanese base of Rabaul from two directions.

At this time, however, the conquest of Rabaul is not so important as is the engagement and destruction of Japanese air and naval forces. Even if no territorial advance were made but hundreds of planes and dozens of ships could be destroyed in the next few weeks of fighting, much progress would have been made toward victory.

But inevitably the destruction of enemy forces makes possible the deployment of our own troops, planes and ships on a wider and deeper front and thereby permits the enemy to be even more heavily and destructively engaged.

That increasing pressure is the reason for advancing. Mere acquisition of territory, aside from its strategic advantages, has no place in the Allied scheme of operation in the south Pacific.

The fight for Rabaul undoubtedly will force the Japanese to draw heavily on their planes and ships, even more heavily in proportion to what they can afford to use up than in the battles for Guadalcanal in the southeastern Solomons last year.

Beyond Rabaul American forces might logically be expected to strike at Truk island, lying about 1,000 miles to the north. Truk may and probably will be raided by long-range planes and carrier-based aircraft. It might even be shelled eventually by our naval forces. The real objective of the MacArthur strategy, however, is the Philippines. The island of Mindanao at the southern end of the chain is a likely striking point. For him to get there successfully, it may be necessary to take intermediate bases between Rabaul and Mindanao, which lies far to the west as well as to the north.

When the famous general withdrew from the Philippines under orders from President Roosevelt to take command in Australia more than a year ago, he promised himself and the valient troops that he had left behind that he would return at the earliest opportunity to drive the invaders out of the islands. A long way and long time lie between the first step and the last in carrying out that promise, but he has now made the start.

And military men here consider the advantages to be gained—in (1) destruction of enemy power, (2) the winning of strategic positions, and (3) and fulfilling of a heroic commitment—to be of enormous importance in winning the long and costly war in the Pacific.

COL. G. S. HARRINGTON, NOVA SCOTIA LEADER

Former Conservative Premier Served Overseas, 1915-18

HALIFAX, N. S., July 4 (Canadian Press)—Col. Gordon S. Harrington, former conservative Premier of Nova Scotia, died here today, after a long illness, in his sixtieth year. He served in the Canadian expeditionary force from 1915 to 1918, and was Deputy Minister for Overseas Military Forces of Canada from 1918 to 1920.

In 1925, when the province was in the grip of the worst coal-mining strike in years, Colonel Harrington led a group of conservatives from the inqustrial areas of the province into office to oust the Liberal party, which had been in power for forty-three years.

He leaves a widow, the former Katherine Agnes MacDonald of Glace Bay; a brother, the Rev. J. S. Harrington of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. C. B. Nickerson of Toronto and Mrs. A. H. Roberts of Dorset, England.

Colonel Harrington, who was born in Halifax, was a graduate of the Law School of Dalhousie University. He was Mayor of Glace Bay, 1913-15. In the Rhodes Cabinet of 1925 he received the post of Minister of Public Works, and was appointed Premier in August, 1930, when Mr. Rhodes entered the Dominion Cabinet. He resigned after the general election of 1933, in which the Liberals triumphed.

FINNS ARE BELIEVED TO BE SEEKING OUR AID

New Group in Helsinki Disregards German Pressure

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP)—An open Finnish bid for better relations with the United States, in disregard of German pressure on Finland, aroused interest in diplomatic quarters here today.

Organization of a Finnish-American society at Helsinki, composed only of Finns, was announced during the past week to "cultivate good relations between Finland and the United States." Its chairman is Juho Eljas Erkko, newspaper editor and former Foreign Minister.

Its organizers have long been considered pro-American. What interested Washington observers was the fact that they should announce such an organization while subject to German pressure.

Some regard it as a sign that Germany has weakened until the Finns no longer fear that country, and that the organizers of the society are confident of a United Nations victory. The group is generally believed to be motivated by a desire for American friendship during Finland's war with Russia and especially at the eventual peace table, when Finland's post-war status in Europe is decided.

No comment on the announcement of the new society has come from Germany, although Transocean, German news agency, reported it. This agency said the aim was to "acquaint the Finns with the industrial and cultural life of the United States, while in the United States knowledge of Finland is to be promoted."

The organizers included Uuno Hannula, former Minister of Education; members of Parliament, professors of the University of Helsinki and industrialists.

CONGRESS TO END WORK THIS WEEK

Appropriation Bills Awaiting Action to Boost Total to 130 Billions.

JUL -5 1943

WASHINGTON, July 4 — (AP) With total appropriations mounting toward the $130,000,000,000 mark, leaders are seeking to dispose of the perplexing subsidy controversy and get final approval of five money bills in time to send the irritated and weary 78th Congress home for a rest this week.

The subsidy question will be before the Senate tomorrow for action on a House-approved bill which would extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation for six months and increasing its borrowing power by $350,000,000 so as to carry on the administration's program of rolling back the retail prices of meat, butter and coffee.

The Senate Banking committee yesterday approved legislation for the six-months extension, but fixing a limit of $525,000,000 on the amount of subsidy money CCC could spend in that time.

Farm Group Protest

The proposed legislation brought a renewed attack on the administration's food subsidy plan by the so-called big four farm organizations, the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation.

The farm organizations declared the subsidy plan means passing on the current food bill to future generations and the "eventual breakdown of our entire economic system." They proposed that Congress wait until after the recess to consider the CCC extension "without the vicious subsidy program now entailed."

If the Administration wins a temporary victory on the subsidy issue, Congress probably will quit by mid-week with President Roosevelt's batting average on major legislation standing well over the .500 mark.

Topping the list of presidential demands on Congress in the last six months was the President's request for approval of $107,000,000,000 budget to run the war and keep the home front agencies operating.

A compilation showed today that total appropriations since this Congress convened will reach $130,418,000,000 if the five pending bills finally are approved with the mounts they now bear. This larger total is accounted for by deficiency appropriations to meet expenditures during this fiscal year that ended July 1, as well as the advance appropriations for amounts the government will spend in the new fiscal year.

To Act on 5 Billions

The bills yet to be acted upon finally include Labor-Federal Security, War Agencies, Agriculture, Interior and Deficiency bills carrying a total of more than $5,000,000,000.

Looking back over the months, members could count about as many issues on which President Roosevelt got what he wanted from Congress as those on which he struck out.

Besides the huge appropriations for which he asked, the President obtained extension of lend-lease, the reciprocal trade program, and treasury authority to continue operations of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

U. S. Troops In 2 Areas Praised For Behavior

Washington, July 4 (AP)—American soldiers in Britain are staying out of trouble, Brig. Gen. Lawrence H. Hedrick reported today.

Hedrick, just returned to Washington after serving since last July as judge advocate general in the European theater, said comments of typical citizens throughout the United Kingdom, as well as official British reports, convinced him that American troops "have earned the reputation of being well-mannered guests."

A similar report about American soldiers in the Middle East came to the War Department from Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, who said three officials of the Egyptian civil police had praised the discipline and good behavior of the men.

LAUNCH SHIP NAMED FOR GEORGE COHAN

20,000 Cheer at Baltimore Yard as Eddie Cantor Sings His Old Friend's Songs

BALTIMORE, July 4 (AP)—With the band playing "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and 20,000 persons roaring approval, the Liberty ship George M. Cohan, named for the late showman-songwriter who was born July 4, slid smoothly into the waters of Chesapeake Bay today.

Her prow still dripping champagne from the bottle wielded by Marjorie Cantor, eldest daughter of Eddie Cantor, lifelong friend of the songwriter, she was taken into tow immediately by tugs to be prepared for sea duty.

The launching was the climax of an Independence Day celebration and war bond drive calculated to stir the most passive American, what with Mr. Cantor singing such Cohan songs as "Harrigan," "Give My Regards to Broadway," "It's a Grand Old Flag" and "Over There," and high ranking naval officers present in large numbers.

Mr. Cantor paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Cohan not only in song but by saying:

"If there ever was one man who was a symbol of our great nation, that man was George M. Cohan. He always tried to project the spirit of America. His songs came from the pen and the heart. He waved the flag because he loved it. He gave it a 'permanent wave.'"

Also on hand to entertain the crowd of shipyard workers, members of their families and guests, was Zasu Pitts, of the stage and screen.

The George M. Cohan was the 161st Liberty ship launched at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards.

Two Destroyers Named For Men Killed In War

Kearny, N. J., July 4 (AP)—Two destroyers bearing the names of naval officers killed in the present conflict were sponsored by their widows in twin launching ceremonies today.

The first to slide from the Federal Shipyard way was the Hickox, christened by Mrs. Ralph Hickox, of Washington, who named the ship in honor of her husband, the late Commander Hickox, who died February 18, 1942, when the destroyer Truxton, which he commanded, was lost in a storm on the Newfoundland coast.

The second ship, the Healy, was christened by Mrs. Howard Raymond Healy, Roslindale, Mass., and Long Beach, Cal. The warship was named for her husband, the late Lieutenant Commander Healy, who went down with the aircraft carrier Lexington May 8, 1942, in Battle of the Coral Sea.

HOOVER ASSAILS SUBSIDY, URGES SINGLE FOOD HEAD

Ex-President Predicts Prices Will Be Higher and Food Scarcer.

JUL -5 1943

NEW YORK, July 4 — (AP) Former President Herbert Hoover declared here today the Roosevelt administration's food subsidy program "does not get at the heart of the food problem," and predicted that "in eight months prices will be higher and food scarcer."

In a speech broadcast over NBC, Hoover said of the subsidy program: "It only postpones, and will get worse in the end."

He reiterated a previous statement that "the food mess" would not be cleared up until a single Federal food administrator was appointed with full authority over all phases of the food problem.

The former President recommended formation of a national war council, which he said should be presided over by President Roosevelt and serve as a unifying force in the entire war effort.

"This whole American people," he declared, "is praying for more unity so we can win this war."

Sees Aid to Enemy

Hoover said he felt certain the enemy enjoyed a spiritual uplift from reporters of food shortages, race riots and strikes in the United States.

Many such reports represent "the creak and groan of democracy getting into action," Hoover said, adding that while there was no doubt that democracy would outlast any dictatorship, nevertheless the enemy got the impression America was "a disordered country, a declining country."

The heart of the food problem, he said, was to "secure more production, get more food to people, and eliminate black markets."

In answer to questions from the studio audience, Hoover said the armed forces and industry were doing "a magnificent war job" and the flow of raw materials was "pretty good," but that he thought the manpower and labor relations situations "weak spots" in the homefront.

Four Year War Hinted

Asked how long he thought the war would last, he said: "If we're wise, we will base our plans on a minimum of four years until the Axis is completely overcome."

In response to another question, Hoover declared the only hope for guarding against "inevitable famine" after the war lay in returning to cultivation 47,000,000 acres of land upon which he said crops had been restricted in the last 10 years.

Hoover said eight or nine million acres of these lands had already been recovered, but that the entire acreage, which he described as "a great potential asset," must be used for the 1944 harvest.

A great deal of manpower and machinery will be needed to re-cultivate this land, Hoover said, "but we must plant it or endanger our whole war effort."

The former President spoke on the "Wake Up, America" program sponsored by the American Economic Foundation.

Willkie Advocates End Of Narrow Nationalism

New York, July 4 (AP)—Wendell Willkie declared today in a special Independence Day broadcast that "our only hope of peace" after the war is "the creation of a world in which there shall be an equality of opportunity for every race and every nation."

America, he said, must choose one of these courses:

"Narrow nationalism, which inevitably means the ultimate loss of our own liberty and the certainty of recurring wars; international imperialism which means the sacrifice of some other nation's liberty and the same certainty of war; or the creation of a world in which there shall be an equality of opportunity for every race and every nation—our only hope of peace.

"I am convinced the American people will choose by overwhelming majority the last of these courses. To make this choice of equality, of opportunity for everyone everywhere, we must win not only the war—but also the peace, and we must start winning it now."

Barney Ro... Returned Pugilist, Receives Medal

New York, July 4 (AP) — For his heroic action at Guadalcanal last November 19, Marine Sergeant Barney Ross, retired world lightweight boxing champion, received the Silver Star Medal today during a Blue Network Independence Day radio program honoring American fighting men.

The medal was pinned over his heart by Capt. Lester L. Pratt, USN, commanding officer of the naval hospital at St. Albans, L. I., where Ross is attached while on sick leave.

The accompanying citation from Rear Admiral T. W. Wilkinson, USN, deputy commander, South Pacific area, read: "For conspicuous gallantry and itrepidity in action against the enemy while serving with a marine battalion on Guadalcanal, British Solomon Island, November 18-20, 1942."

95% of Men Wounded On Attu Are Back in U.S.

Some Arrived Before Enemy Resistance Was Overcome

SEATTLE, July 4 (AP).—American casualties in the battle of Attu reached the comfort and care of Pacific coast hospitals, the Seattle port surgeon disclosed today, even before final Japanese organized resistance on the island was overcome. Now nearly all of the wounded, Colonel Louis Brecheman jr. said, have been brought more than 3,000 miles back to the United States.

"I should say that close to 95 per cent of them are down here now," Colonel Brecheman said. "A few may remain in well-equipped garrison hospitals in the Aleutians, but most have been brought south, either on transports or flown down."

[The War Department announced at Washington on June 4 a total of 1,535 Attu casualties. They were: 342 killed, 1,135 wounded and fifty-eight missing.]

SUBMARINE FADES AS ENEMY THREAT TO ALLIED SHIPPING

Navy Announces No Losses in Atlantic in Three of Four Past Weeks.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The submarine, on the basis of announced sinkings, continued to lose force as a menace to Allied shipping and loss of life in the western Atlantic as the war entered its 201st week today.

For three of the last four weeks, there were no losses of merchant ships reported by the Navy. That left at 670 the Associated Press total of announced Allied and neutral merchantmen sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Supports Churchill Statement

It well bore out that the statement by Prime Minister Churchill in London that more than 30 U-boats were destroyed in May and that the "massacre" of one of Germany's most dependable weapons continued through June.

The Prime Minister declared that "since the middle of May scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the north Atlantic" and that June was the "best month we have ever known in the war."

At the same time Mr. Churchill said that American and United Kingdom shipyards were producing between seven and 10 times the amount of ships lost to the enemy in the month of June.

And from Washington came the news that American shipyards had delivered in the first six months of this year more tonnage than had been produced here in the entire record-breaking twelve months of 1942. Already 879 ships, totaling 8,818,622 deadweight ton, have come out of the shipyards as against last year's 747 vessels of 8,089,732 deadweight tons.

The announcement from London last Saturday that a great convoy recently crossed the Atlantic under continuous air protection — "the mid-Atlantic gap was filled by planes from a British carrier"—marked another step in the increased protection given to convoys.

A Stockholm dispatch said that the German admiralty had been forced to withdraw at least part of its underseas fleet from the Atlantic shipping lanes to learn new techniques to combat the latest Allied counterblows from carriers.

What's Behind The War News

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

Rome, by destroying harbor installations at Trapani and admitting that much-bombed Palermo "no longer exists," may be preparing the Italian people for the immediate loss of Sicily after only token resistance.

Observers watching the Allied bombing pattern, had been inclined to allow a little more time for start of an attack on Sicily. Either the Italians consider it more imminent, or they have other reasons.

Allied headquarters in North Africa said yesterday that the 5,000-foot quay at Trapani had been blown out in several places to make it useless for ships—meaning, of course, invasion ships. This destruction of ports is something not usually done, even when you know you can't defend them, until the enemy is on the way. Otherwise he is given time to re-arrange plans for that part of the action.

If Mussolini is resigned to the loss of Sicily (which means, of course, Sardinia and Corsica as well), there may be a thread of sanity running through this preliminary skirmish of announcements.

Mussolini may have decided, along with numerous observers, that, from the Allied standpoint, an invasion of Italy itself is not worthwhile—that he can retire to the mainland and make it appear, when the Allies do not follow, that he has pulled a masterful stroke by not suffering heavy losses in defense of the island. It might keep him in power just a little while longer.

As a matter of fact, if this should be the reasoning in Rome, it is not far ahead of eventualities. Too many Allied war vessels are in the Mediterranean for ordinary purposes. (Reports of their presence all come from the Germans, of course, but the Germans are notably correct in their announcements of what goes on around Gibraltar).

If the Allies do plan to use Sicily and Sardinia merely to cover the right flank of a drive into Europe by way of the Rhone, Mussolini, by not defending Sicily and maintaining an intact army at home, might have a bargaining power which no internal opposition would be able to meet. If, on the other hand, Italy is going to be invaded, he will have given away nothing except what he was about to lose anyway.

Maybe Mussolini thinks there is hope of losing the war to the United States without having Hitler descend on him in full force. He might do it, by getting himself bypassed while his home defenses are still intact.

LONDON (AND RUSSIAN)

THIS SAME BROADCAST INDICATED THAT THE BATTLE ON THE NORTHWEST FRONT, DESCRIBED BY MOSCOW, HAD OCCURRED NEAR VELIKIE LUKI. THE GERMAN VERSION REPRESENTED AN ACTION IN THAT AREA AS AN ATTACK BY THE RUSSIANS WHICH AFTER GAINING "SOME INITIAL SUCCESSES" WAS CHECKED BY GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS.

SCATTERED FIGHTING OF A MORE LOCAL NATURE WAS REPORTED BY THE RUSSIANS AT MANY OTHER POINTS. A GRINDING ARTILLERY DUEL OCCURRED ON THE SMOLENSK FRONT, BELOW VELIKIE LUKI, SNIPERS WERE ACTIVE ON THE LENINGRAD SECTOR, AND THREE GERMAN PLANES WERE DOWNED WEST OF ROSTOV. FOURTH AERIAL SEPARATE

A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN, JULY 4-(AP)-THE AMERICAN BOYS OF THE 8TH AIR FORCE CELEBRATED THE FOURTH OF JULY TODAY WITH A BOOMING ARRAY OF FIREWORKS--AND HITLER FOOTED THE BILL.

THE FIREWORKS--IN THE FORM OF THOUSANDS OF BOMBS--LAID WASTE TO AN AIRPLANE ENGINE PLANT AT LE MANS, FRANCE, REPORTS FROM RETURNING FORTRESS CREWS AT THIS STATION INDICATED.

BILLOWING SMOKE, FLAMES AND FLYING DEBRIS ROSE THOUSANDS OF FEET OVER THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA AFTER A STRONG FORCE OF HEAVY BOMBERS LAID A PERFECT DESTRUCTIVE PATTERN OF BOMBS ON THE FRENCH FACTORY AND ON NEARBY AIRDROMES, THE CREWS DECLARED.

THEY SAID THE WEATHER WAS SO CLEAR THAT THE FACTORY, TWO MILES FROM LE MANS, "STOOD OUT LIKE A BEACON" AND THEY ENCOUNTERED ONLY A FEW ENEMY FIGHTERS AND ONLY LIGHT FLAK. SPITFIRES ESCORTED THEM BACK

JUL -5 1943

FROM THE FRENCH COAST.

IT WAS THE SECOND TIME AMERICAN BOMBERS HAD BEEN TO LE MANS, HAVING HIT THERE ON JUNE 26.

AT THAT TIME HEAVY CLOUDS MADE VISIBILITY UNFAVORABLE FOR DAYLIGHT HIGH ALTITUDE PRECISION BOMBING SO THE SKY FREIGHTERS RETURNED TO THEIR BASES WITH THEIR EXPLOSIVES RATHER THAN DROPPING THEM INDISCRIMINATELY.

BUT IT WAS A DIFFERENT STORY TODAY. THE EXCELLENT RESULT WAS SUMMED UP IN COMMENT BY FIRST LIEUTENANT HARVEY H.WALLACE OF CARTHAGE, MISS., BOMBARDIER OF THE FORTRESS "AINT IT GRUESOME," PILOTED BY CAPTAIN CLINTON F.BALL OF SPOKANE, WASH., WHO LED THE BOMBERS FROM THIS STATION.

JUL -5 1943

SAID WALLACE: "WE'VE GOT ONE LESS TARGET TO BOMB NOW. THEY CAN CROSS THAT FACTORY OFF THE LIST. IT JUST ISN'T THERE ANY MORE."

JUBILANT BOMBER CREWS, STILL IN A FOURTH-OF-JULY MOOD, GAVE VENT TO THEIR EXUBERANCE BY GLEEFULLY SHOOTING OFF FLARES AS THEIR FORTRESSE CIRCLED THE FIELD ON THE RETURN. "THIS IS THE FOURTH OF JULY AND WE HAVE HAD SOME FIREWORKS," EXCLAIMED ENTHUSIASTIC FLYERS. "THOSE FLARES ALSO MEANT THAT EVERYTHING WAS HUNKY-DORY."

DESCRIBING THE DESTRUCTION OF THE FACTORY, WHICH WAS 1200 FEET LONG AND 300 FEET WIDE, SECOND LIEUTENANT J.P.SHAMES OF DE KALB, ILL., BOMBARDIER OF THE FORTESS "SPEED BALL" WHICH WAS PILOTED BY FIRS' LIEUTENANT WILLIAM E.PETERS, HIGHLAND PARK, ILL., SAID: "THOSE EGGS REALLY LAID. I WATCHED THEM ALL THE WAY TO THE GROUND. THEY EXPLODED ALL OVER THE TARGET."

JUL -5 1943

"DAMN GOOD BOMBING," SAID SECOND LIEUTENANT WALTER STOCKMAN, BROOKLYN, NAVIGATOR OF THE "CHEROKEE GIRL," PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUTENANT FRED HANSEN, ALSO OF BROOKLYN.

JUL -5 1943

"I SAW SEVERAL BIG FIRES STARTED IN THE FACTORY AND FLAMES SHOT HIGH IN THE AIR," STOCKMAN ADDED. "I DIDN'T EXPECT THE RAID, WHICH WAS MY 11TH, TO BE THIS EASY. THERE WERE ONLY A FEW FIGHTERS IN THE SKY AND THEY CONCENTRATED ON THE FORMATION BEHIND US, LEAVING US PRETTY MUCH ALONE."

JUL -5 1943

"IT WAS JUST A MILK RUN" WAS THE WAY THE RAID WAS DESCRIBED BY SECOND LIEUTENANT J.P.CARSON, HUGO, OKLA., CO-PILOT OF THE "BELLE OF BAYOU." "IT WAS AN EASY RAID. IT WAS SHELL PATTERN BOMBING.

"I SAW A HELL OF A LOT OF SMOKE RISING ABOUT FIVE THOUSAND FEET HIGH," COMMENTED SECOND LIEUTENANT BRADLEY E.SQUIRES JR., BELLEVILLE, PA., BOMBARDIER OF THE "SCREWBALL," WHICH WAS PILOTED BY SECOND LIEUTENANT E.J.NARDI OF HERALDSBURG, CALIF.

THE FORTRESS "SNOOZIN SUSIE" WHICH WAS PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUTENANT ROBERT H.JOHNSON, JAMESTOWN, N.Y., WAS ONE OF THE FEW BOMBERS FROM THIS STATION ATTACKED BY FIGHTERS. BUT THE TAIL GUNNER, SERGEANT RAYMOND C.STEWART, LOCKPORT, N.Y., A VETERAN OF NINE PREVIOUS SORTIES, MADE THE LUFTWAFFE ASSAULT COSTLY BY SHOOTING DOWN TWO FOCKE-WULFS.

"THE FIRST ONE CAME IN AT SIX O'CLOCK," HE SAID. "I KEPT FIRING AND FINALLY HE ROLLED OVER AND PLUNGED STRAIGHT DOWN IN FLAMES. TEN MINUTES LATER I GOT A SECOND ONE AT 700 YARDS. HE EXPLODED AND DISINTEGRATED IN THE AIR."

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM A.HATCHER OF DETROIT, STATION COMMANDER, SAID STEWART, WHO PREVIOUSLY WAS CREDITED WITH DESTROYING ONE ENEMY FIGHTER, WOULD BE RECOMMENDED FOR THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS IF THE CLAIM IS OFFICIALLY APPROVED.

JUL -5 1943

SECOND LIEUTENANT A.R.WESTHAFER OF LONG BEACH, CALIF., CO-PILOT, TOLD HOW IT TOOK SERGEANT ROBERT L.GELSLIECHTER, WILKES-BARRE, PA.,

30.24——5681

TOP TURRET GUNNER ON "BUCKSHOT," PILOTED BY FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES W.STROOSE, MOUNT PLEASANT, MICH., JUST TWO BURSTS OF 10 ROUNDS EACH TO SHOOT DOWN A FOCKE-WULF 190. OTHER CREWMEN SAID THEY SAW THE GERMAN CRASH IN AN OPEN FIELD.

BOMBARDIER SECOND LIEUTENANT GEORGE WYLIE, BISBEE, ARIZ., COMMENTED "BOMBING BEAUTIFUL. IT WAS A PERFECT WAY TO SPEND THE FOURTH OF JULY FOR WE SURE SAW A LOT OF FIREWORKS. I SAW SEVERAL BOMBS LAND SQUARELY ON THE FACTORY ROOF."

JUL -5 1943

SERGEANT TIM TOUCHIN, SAID TO BE THE ONLY FULL-BLOODED NAVAJO INDIAN IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER, WHO WAS THE TAIL GUNNER ON "BUCKSHOT," SAID, "AS WE TURNED OFF TOWARDS HOME I LOOKED BACK BUT COULDN'T SEE A DARNED THING OF THE TARGET EXCEPT SMOKE, FIRE AND EXPLOSIONS."

FLIGHT OFFICER DON R.JOYCE, ARKANSAS CITY, -4(., CO-PILOT WHO ACTEI AS TAIL GUNNER ON THE LEAD BOM

FLIGHT OFFICER DON R.JOYCE, ARKANSAS CITY, ARK., CO-PILOT WHO ACTED AS TAIL GUNNER ON THE LEAD BOMBER, SAID "NOT MANY FIGHTERS WERE UP AGAINST US TODAY, I DIDN'T HAVE ANYTHING TO DO EXCEPT WATCH THE BOMBING. OUR BOMBS SCORED MANY DIRECT HITS."

FIRST LIEUTENANT EDWIN S.BOYD, SANTA MONICA, CALIF., PILOT OF JENNY SAID HE SAW ONLY 10 FIGHTERS IN THE SKY. HIS CO-PILOT, SECOND LIEUTENANT JOSEPH C.PERKINS, CLEVELAND, O., COMMENTED, "BOY, WE REALLY CELEBRATED THE FOURTH OF JULY TODAY."

JUL -5 1943

"IT WAS A VERY SUCCESSFUL MISSION," SAID LIEUT.COL.CLEMENS K.WURZBACH, OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., A GROUP COMMANDER. "WE HAD VERY FEW ENEMY ATTACKS ON OUR OWN GROUP, BUT I BELIEVE THE FORMATION BEHIND US GOT PLENTY. THE SPITS BROUGHT US HOME AFTER MEETING US RIGHT ON THE SCHEDULED SECOND."

JUL -5 1943

COL.WURZBACH FLEW IN THE "YANKEE EAGLE," PILOTED BY CAPT.EARL F.RILEY, OF QUEENSBERG, IND., A VETERAN OF MANY MISSIONS.

"THE FOURTH OF JULY WAS AN IDEAL DAY TO ATTACK," CHUCKLED CAPT. RILEY. "THE TARGET SHOWED UP IN FIREWORKS."

THE VETERAN FORTRESS "HELL'S ANGELES" FLEW IN ONE OF THE FOLLOWING FORMATIONS OVER LE MANS, PILOTED THIS TIME BY LIEUT.RIPLEY W.JOY, OF SAN FRANCISCO, WHO SAID: "THERE WERE ONLY 35 OR 40 ENEMY FIGHTERS, AND THEY DIDN'T MAKE A DIRECT ATTACK ON OUR SHIP. IT WAS REALLY AN EASY DO."

JUL -5 1943

MAJOR LEWIS E.LYLE, SQUADRON COMMANDER FROM PINE BLUFF, ARK., A VETERAN OF 21 MISSIONS, SUMMED UP THE LE MANS RAID: "THE WEATHER WAS GOOD, THERE WAS A LITTLE FLAK AND THE BOMBS WERE WELL IN THERE."

CREWS RETURNING FROM LA PALLICE WERE OPTIMISTIC ABOUT THE RESULTS. CAPT.HARRY G.MUMFORD, OF SAN JOSE, CALIF., AN OBSERVER IN THE SOUTHERN BELLE, ASSERTED THAT "VISIBILITY OVER THE TARGET WAS GOOD AND WE HAD A GOOD BOMBING RUN. A HAPPY FOURTH TO THE GERMANS."

TAIL GUNNER STAFF SERGEANT JOHN A.BRADFORD OF COGGESHALL, R.I., WHO CELEBRATED BY GETTING HIS FIRST ENEMY FIGHTER SAID, "A FOCKE-WULF CAME RIGHT IN TOWARD THE TAIL AND IT LOOKED LIKE EITHER IT WAS HIM OR ME. ALL I HAD TO DO WAS POINT MY GUNS AT HIM AND LET GO. I STARTED FIRING AT ABOUT 500 YARDS AND GAVE HIM ANOTHER BURST WHEN HE WAS ONLY ABOUT 60 OR 70 YARDS AWAY. HE BLEW UP RIGHT IN MY FACE."

STAFF SERGEANT JOHN L.CREVISTON, MARION, O., SAID A FOCKE-WULF STARTED CHASING HIS "FLOWER THE SECOND" JUST AFTER IT LEFT THE TARGET BUT THE GUNNER ON ANOTHER FORTRESS GOT HIM.

JUL -5 1943

JUL -5 1943

"THE WEATHER WAS CLEAR FROM ABOUT 20 MILES OFF THE COAST," SAID FIRST LIEUTENANT ARVID S.DAHL, 24, FORMER COLUMBUS, MD., SCHOOL TEACHER AND NAVIGATOR ON THE FORTRESS "THIS END UP."

JUL -5 1943

TO STAFF SERGEANT JOSEPH P.RICKEY, ASHTABULA, O., 19, WAIST GUNNER ON THE SAME FORTRESS, LA PALLICE WAS "ANOTHER FLAK CITY."

STAFF SERGEANT HENRY J.GARDENER, 23, ROXBURY, MASS., TAIL GUNNER ON "LITTLE MINNIE," SAID IT WAS "THE BEST BOMBING I'VE EVER SEEN." FIRST LIEUTENANT KARL S.GROSS, 23, OF 1717 EAST 68TH ST., CHICAGO, BOMBARDIER ON "BLACK JACK," SAID HE SAW ONLY ONE ENEMY FIGHTER.

CAPT.WALTER D.FLAGG, 23, PILOT ON "WABBIT TWACK" AND FORMER SUSANVILLE, CALIF., STUDENT, SAID "THERE ISN'T ANY QUESTION IN MY MIND THAT WE SMACKED THE TARGET."

STAFF SERGEANT HARRY E.CLANTON, TULSA, OKLA., WAIST GUNNER, SAID HE SAW ONLY TWO FIGHTERS BUT THE TAIL GUNNER GAVE A COUPLE OF BURSTS AND THEY RAN.

CREWS IN THE NANTES RAID SAID THAT AS THEY TURNED FOR HOME AFTER THE BOMBING RUN APPROXIMATELY 25 FIGHTERS CAME AT THEM. THE FOCKE-WULF PILOTS WERE DARING, THEY SAID, AND TIME AND AGAIN CAME IN CLOSE TO PRESS THE ATTACK.

"I HAD A BEAUTIFUL, LONG BOMBING RUN," SAID CAPTAIN HUGH J.TOLAND OF PHILADELPHIA. SECOND LIEUTENANT ALEX M.ERGANIAN, ST.LOUIS, MO., PILOT OF "AVAILABLE JONES" SAID ALL WAS QUIET UNTIL THEY HIT THE TARGET AND THEN "ALL HELL BROKE LOOSE."

JUL -5 1943

FIRST LIEUTENANT ALFRED D.EVANS, SANTA FE, N.M., THOUGHT IT WAS GOOD TO GIVE THE GERMANS FIREWORKS ON THE FOURTH.

STAFF SERGEANT GORDON CHISHOLM, FLINT, MICH., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON "WILEYS WOLVES" SAID MANY ATTACKS WERE FROM THE REAR AND LOW "SO I GOT MANY CHANCES. I NEVER USED UP SO MUCH AMMUNITION AS I DID TODAY."

SERGT. MARSHALL R. CROW, OF WASHINGTON, GA., N TOP TURRET GUNNER OF FLOWER THE SECOND, COMMENTED THAT "THERE WAS CONCENTRATED SMOKE OVER THE TARGET."

JUL -5 1943

"IT LOOKED LIKE EVERY BOMB HIT IN THERE," HE SAID, "WE RAN INTO SIX ENEMY FIGHTERS AFTER LEAVING THE TARGET WHILE WE WERE OVER THE SEA. THEY WOULD COME IN AND THEN PULL OFF BEFORE GETTING WITHIN RANGE. IT WAS MY IDEAD OF A PERFECT MISSION."

MOSCOW, JULY 4--(AP)-- AN ARTICLE FROM THE MAGAZINE "WAR AND THE WORKING CLASS" ATTACKING AMERICAN ISOLATIONISTS FOR THEIR WAR VIEWS WAS REPRINTED TODAY BY THE COMMUNIST PARTY NEWSPAPER PRAVDA, INDICATING OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT BLESSING OF THE CRITICAL ATTITUDE.

AMERICAN ISOLATIONISTS "CONTINUE TO BELIEVE THAT THE UNITED STATES CAN REMAIN OUTSIDE THE WAR, (THAT IT) WAS NOT INVOLVED THROUGH ROOSEVELT, AND EVEN NOW CAN CONCLUDE A SEPARATE PEACE," SAID THE ARTICLE FROM THE TRADE UNIONS MAGAZINE.

IT DECLARED ISOLATIONISTS CONFUSED WAR AIMS WITH THE MORE COMPLICATED PROBLEMS OF POST-WAR REORGANIZATION, AND SAID THE ONLY WAR

JUL -5 1943

AIM SHOULD BE VICTORY AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. PREMATURE DISCUSSION OF DISPUTABLE POST-WAR QUESTIONS MIGHT HARM ANGLO-SOVIET-AMERICAN UNITY AND CONDUCT OF THE WAR, IT ADDED.

JUL -5 1943

"NATURALLY, THE LESS ACTIVELY A COUNTRY PARTICIPATES DIRECTLY IN THE WAR AGAINST THE ENEMY THE MOREFREE TIME AND ENERGY IT HAS TO TALK ABOUT WAR AIMS," THE ARTICLE SAID.

IT ALSO CRITICIZED THE WHEREVER U. S. STATE DEPARTMENT AND BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE FOR "WHERE "STIMULATING THE AMBITIONS OF SOME ROYAL EXILES AND POLITICIANS BY WH THE FAVORABLE ATTITUDE SHOWN TOWARD THEM."

(ADVANCE)-A BOMBER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA,-(AP)-THE BOYS WHO FLY LIBERATORS ARE PRETTY BROWNED OFF AT THE BOYS WHO FLY FLYING FORTRESSES.

OUT HERE IN THIS LIBERATOR COTE THEY THINK ITS UNFAIR WHEN THE NEWSPAPERS FEATURE FORTRESS RAIDS. THEY SAID THEIR LIBERATORS FLY FASTER AND HIGHER OVER LONGER DISTANCES AND CARRY HEAVIER BOMB LOADS THAN THE FORTS AND HALF THE TIME THEIR LIBERATORS AREN'T EVEN MENTIONED BY NAME IN COMMUNIQUES--JUST CALLED HEAVY BOMBERS.

LIEUT.DAVE COCHRAN OF 501 WOODBURY ROAD, GLENDALE, CALIF., PUT IT THIS WAY:

"FOR SOME REASON EVERYBODY IN AMERICA SEEMS TO THINK ANY HEAVY BOMBER IS A FORTRESS. WE DON'T LIKE THAT. WE AREN'T LOOKING FOR PERSONAL GLORY BUT IT DOES BURN US UP TO SEE THE WONDERFUL JOB THE LIBERATORS ARE DOING DAY AFTER DAY GO UNREWARDED."

AND HE HELD UP A NEWSPAPER SHOWING A PICTURE OF BOMBS FALLING

JUL -5 1943

AND SAYING "FORTRESS BOMBS SICILY." TWICE AS MANY LIBERATORS HAD BEEN OVER SICILY THAT DAY AS FORTS.

LIEUT.LEROY H.BENZEL OF 811 RICHARDS AVE., WATERTOWN, WIS., SAID "I GUESS THEY HAVE A BETTER PRESS AGENT THAN WE HAVE. EVERY MAGAZINE I PICK UP HAS ADVERTISEMENTS SHOWING FORTRESSES. YET IT IS THE LIBERATORS THAT DID NINE-TENTHS OF THE HEAVY BOMBER WORK IN AFRICA

"WE WERE THE FIRST TO CARRY FIRE TO ITALY. IT WAS LIBERATORS THAT MADE THE FIRST RAID ON NAPLES AND WE NEVER GOT ALL THE CREDIT COMING TO US FOR THAT RAID. IN THAT RAID WE SANK A CRUISER, CRIPPLED ANOTHER AND ALSO HIT A BATTLESHIP. THAT CRUISER IS STILL LYING THERE AND EVERY TIME WE GO THERE WE FLY RIGHT OVER IT. IT WAS BRAND NEW AND HAD JUST BEEN BROUGHT TO THE HARBOR TO HAVE GUNS FITTED WHEN WE BLASTED IT."

JUL -5 1943

THIS FEELING OF REGRET THAT FORTRESSES FLY HIGHER IN THE HEADLINES IS SHARED BY THIS ENTIRE BASE FROM COMMANDING OFFICER, COL.JOHN KANE, TO THE NEWEST ARRIVED ENLISTED MAN ON KP DUTY.

THIS OUTFIT HAS WON AS MANY DECORATIONS FOR GALLANTRY, HEROISM AND COURAGE UNDER FIRE AS ANY IN THE WORLD AND MORE THAN MOST. (GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER IS PREPARING THE GREATEST OF ALL ALLIED ARMIES FOR ITS ZERO HOUR, WHEN IT WILL BE THROWN AGAINST ADOLF HITLER "FORTRESS EUROPE." NOW HE IS CONSTANTLY AMONG HIS MEN, STRESSING DISCIPLINE AND MORE DISCIPLINE. THIS FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES TELLS HOW "GENERAL IKE" GETS READY FOR WAR.)

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 4-(AP)-THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE NORTH AFRICAN THEATER OF WAR IS A TOUGH MANY IN THE "DOG DAYS" BETWEEN CAMPAIGNS.

HE HAS WITH HIM THE LARGEST ALLIED FORCE LED BY ANY AMERICAN IN THE WORLD.

HE HAS IN FRONT OF HIM THE SEAGIRT SOUTHERN FLANK OF EUROPE. AND THE FULFILLMENT OF DESTINY.

NO ONE CAN SAY TODAY WHERE OR WHEN GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER WILL HURL HIS AMERICAN, BRITISH AND FRENCH ARMIES AGAINST THE CONTINENTAL FORTRESS OF THE AXIS.

JUL -5 1943

BUT THE CUE FOR THE GREATEST MILITARY EVENT OF 1943 WAS GIVEN THE OTHER DAY BY A PEERLESS ORACLE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

"VERY PROBABLY THERE WILL BE HEAVY FIGHTING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND ELSEWHERE," SAID PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, "BEFORE THE LEAVES OF AUTUMN FALL."

JUL -5 1943

FOR TWO MONTHS SINCE HIS WARRIORS OF MANY NATIONALITIES ACHIEVED COMPLETE VICTORY IN TUNISIA, THE STOCKY SQUARE-JAWED TEXAS-BORN GENERALISSIMO HAS BEEN STRESSING TOUGHNESS.

BY TOUGHNESS HE MEANS STRICT DISCIPLINE AND HARD TRAINING FOR COMBAT.

DIVISION AFTER DIVISION CAME BACK FROM TUNISIA TO REAR CAMPS, NOT TO LOLL AND REST BUT TO LEARN TO FIGHT WITH NEW WEAPONS UNDER NEW CONDITIONS. "GENERAL IKE" HAD ORDERED IT THAT WAY.

HARDLY ANY IMPORTANT EXERCISE OR MANEUVER HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT IN NORTH AFRICA IN RECENT WEEKS WITHOUT THE PRESENCE OF A TIRELESS, WATCHFUL OBSERVER WITH FOUR SILVER STARS ON HIS TAN OVERSEAS CAP.

THE GENERAL'S DESK ROUTINES HAVE BEEN TRIMMED TO A MINIMUM SO HE CAN BE IN THE FIELD AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE WITH HIS OFFICERS AND MEN.

HE STOOD OFF PANTELLERIA IN A BRITISH CRUISER THREE DAYS BEFORE THE ITALIAN GARRISON SURRENDERED UNDER THE AIR BLITZ JUNE 22. THEN HE MADE NUMEROUS TRIPS TOTALING THOUSANDS OF MILES TO SEE HIS ARMIES PREPARE THEMSELVES FOR TASKS GREATER THAN THEY EVER FACED BEFORE.

JUL -5 1943

FLYING AS HIS OWN PILOT, HE DROPPED IN THE OTHER DAY ON SEVERAL KEY TRAINING CENTERS. HE IS AN AIR ENTHUSIAST, HAVING RECEIVED HIS LICENSE SIX YEARS AGO WHEN HE WAS 47.

LANDING ON A ROAD IN FRONT OF A "LEADERSHIP SCHOOL," HE WAS INVITED BY THE COMMANDER TO ADDRESS EXTEMPORANEOUSLY THE HUSKY, ATTENTIVE PUPILS.

WHAT HE SAID WAS TYPICAL OF HIS FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS.

"IN THE HANDS OF JUNIOR OFFICERS LIES THE FATE OF AN ARMY," THE HIGHEST AMERICAN OFFICER IN AFRICA SAID. "YOU ARE IN DIRECT, IMMEDIATE COMMAND OF THE TROOPS. YOU ARE THEIR INSPIRATIONAL LEADERS.

JUL -5 1943

"ALL OF YOU ARE FIGHTING FOR THE RIGHT TO LIVE AS YOU PLEASE AS LONG AS YOU DON'T GET UNJUSTLY IN OTHER PEOPLE'S HAIR. YOU ARE FIGHTING AGAINST DICTATION AND DICTATORS.

"ONLY DISCIPLINE WILL WIN A WAR. VICTORIES COME FROM DISCIPLINE. AND DISCIPLINE COMES FROM THE EVERLASTING EFFORTS OF THE JUNIOR OFFICERS."

IT'S A RULE OF ALLIED HEADQUARTERS THAT NO OFFICER IN THE THEATER CAN BE PROMOTED WITHOUT A FAVORABLE REPORT FROM HIS IMMEDIATE SUPERI ON HIS RECORD OF MAINTAINING DISCIPLINE. GENERAL EISENHOWER IS AS FIRM IN THIS RESPECT AS WAS GENERAL JOHN J.PERSHING IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

WHEN HE PERSONALLY SEES INFRACTIONS OF DISCIPLINE, HE IS QUICK TO REPRIMAND, BUT NOT IN PUBLIC IF THIS CAN BE AVOIDED. AS A PROFESSIONAL SOLDIER HE HOLDS THAT "THE EVIDENCE OF DISCIPLINE IN A CIVILIAN ARMY IS THE SALUTING."

OF ASSIGNMENT."

RECENTLY WHILE DRIVING THROUGH AN AREA WHERE THE TROOPS APPEARED PARTICULARLY SMART, THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF SPIED A MILITARY POLICE SERGEANT IN A PERFECT SALUTE BESIDE THE ROAD AND STOPPED HIS CAR.

"HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN IN THE SERVICE?" HE ASKED.

"SEVENTEEN YEARS, SIR," SAID THE SERGEANT, HIS GAZE UNWAVERING AND HIS BACK RAMROAD STRAIGHT.

"ARE YOUR MP'S TOUGH ENOUGH FOR YOU?"

JUL -5 1943

"YES SIR."

"WELL, IF THEY'RE TOUGH ENOUGH FOR YOU THEY'RE TOUGH ENOUGH FOR ME."

THE GENERAL DROVE OFF LEAVING BEHIND THE PROUDEST NON-COM IN THE WHOLE AMERICAN ARMY.

FOR THE OPERATIONS AGAINST KIRIVINA AND WOODLARK HE SET UP ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS IN A PALM-THATCHED HUT BUILT WITH THE AID OF NATIVE LABOR.

SHORTLY AFTER HIS ARRIVAL IN AN ARMY BOMBER ESCORTED BY AIRACOBRA AND LIGHTNING FIGHTERS THE GENERAL MOVED IN. PREPARATORY TO THE ZERO HOUR HE VISITED A POINT ON THE NEW GUINEA COAST WHERE GREAT MASSES OF ARMS AND SUPPLIES WERE STORED. HE GAVE HIGH PRAISE TO THE MEN WHO MADE THE SUPPLY PREPARATIONS.

IMMACULATELY DRESSED EVEN IN THE FIELD, THE GENERAL HOWEVER DISCARDED THE BLOUSE WHICH HE USUALLY WEARS AT HIS AUSTRALIAN HEADQUARTERS. HE WENT AROUND DRESSED IN WELL-PRESSED KHAKI TROUSERS, KHAKI SHIRT BEARING THE FOUR STARS OF HIS RANK, A LIGHT TIE AND THE ELABORATE GARRISON CAP WHICH HE HIMSELF DESIGNED.

COMBAT TROOPS WHO LANDED AT KIRIVINA AND WOODLARK CARRIED NOT ONLY GUNS, SUPPLIES AND AMMUNITION BUT ALSO PRICE-LISTS OF NATIVE GOODS AS A PRECAUTION AGAINST BEING OVERCHARGED. THE LISTS, ISSUED TO EVERY MAN OUTLINED PEACETIME PRICES ESTABLISHED BY THE PAPUAN

MEANWHILE THE AERIAL PHASE OF THE OFFENSIVE ALSO COMMANDED ATTENTION. THE HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED MORE THAN 100 EN MAD BEEN ROUTEDMY

ATTENTION. THE HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED MORE THAN 100 ENEMY PLANES HAD BEEN ROUTED BY THE POUNDING OF WIDELY SEPARATED JAPANESE BASES FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

AIR OPERATIONS RANGED FROM RENDOVA, IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, WHERE THE DOWNING OF 11 MORE PLANES INCREASED ENEMY LOSSES TO 134, ALL THE WAY TO HIS AIR BASE AT KENDARI, DUTCH CELEBES, WHICH LIBERATORS PLASTERED WITH 16 TONS OF BOMBS.

CONSIDERING THE MILEAGE COVERED IN OVERWATER FLIGHTS BY LAND-BASED PLANES, THE WEIGHTS OF BOMBS DROPPED IN A CONTINUING ATTEMPT TO PIN DOWN JAPANESE AIR OPPOSITION WAS IMPRESSIVE.

THE 16 TONS LOOSED ON KENDARI ENTAILED A ROUND TRIP FLIGHT OF 1,900 MILES AND THE LIBERATORS MADE IT IN DAYLIGHT WITHOUT A FIGHTER ESCORT.

THE MOST LIKELY SOURCE OF ENEMY AIR OPPOSITION TO THE PACIFIC DRIVE, RABAUL ON NEW BRITAIN'S NORTHERN TIP, WAS BLASTED BY 22 TONS OF BOMBS AND SOME OF THE FIRES STARTED ON THE THREE AIRDROME RAIDED COULD BE SEEN 40 MILES AWAY. THAT MADE IT EXACTLY 100 TONS TO HIT RABAUL IN FOUR STRAIGHT NIGHTS OF RAIDING. AND RABAUL IS 500 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE ALLIES' AIR BASE OF PORT MORESBY, NEW GUINEA.

JUL -5 1943

FIVE HUNDRED MILES NORTHWEST OF DARWIN, MITCHELL TWO-ENGINED BOMBERS POUNDED THE PENFOEI AIRDROME AT KOEPANG, DUTCH TIMOR.

IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, WHERE AMERICANS SEIZED RENDOVA ISLAND WEDNESDAY IN A MOVE AGAINST THE JAPANESE AIR BASE OF MUNDA, ALLIED PLANES SCORED BOTH DEFENSIVE AND OFFENSIVE SUCCESSES.

DEFENSIVELY, SEVEN CORSAIR FIGHTERS PILED INTO 50 JAPANESE PLANES FRIDAY WHICH WERE BENT ON ATTACKING OUR RENDOVA POSITIONS, SHOT DOWN SIX AND CHASED THE OTHERS AWAY. THREE CORSAIRS WERE DOWNED BUT ONE PILOT WAS SAVED. SATURDAY, 10 AMERICAN LIGHTNINGS INTERCEPTED 50 MORE RENDOVA-BOUND JAPANESE RAIDERS, SHOT DOWN FIVE AND DISPERSED THE OTHERS AT A COST OF THREE PLANES.

THE 11 JAPANESE PLANES DOWNED WERE ADDED TO 101 SHOT DOWN WEDNESDAY AND 22 THURSDAY. THE SIX AMERICAN PLANES LOST WERE ADDED TO 25 PREVIOUSLY DESTROYED.

JUL.-5 1943

OFFENSIVELY, DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS SENT 28 TONS OF 1,000 AND 2,000 POUND BOMBS CRASHING ON JAPANESE TROOPS BIVOUACKED NEAR THE MUNDA AIR BASE WHICH THE ENEMY HAS NOT BEEN ABLE TO UTILIZE FULLY BECAUSE OF REPEATED ALLIED RAIDS BUT WHICH WOULD BE A DECIDED ASSET IN ALLIED HANDS.

DIVEBOMBERS ALSO ACTED IN COORDINATION WITH AMERICAN WARSHIPS WHICH SHELLED JAPANESE POSITIONS FRIDAY AFTERNOON NEAR VICKHAM ANCHORAGE ON THE SOUTH END OF NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. AMERICANS HOLD PART OF NEW GEORGIA, HAVING SEIZED VIRU HARBOR 30 MILES FROM MUNDA AT THE OUTSET OF THE NEW OFFENSIVE.

JUL -5 1943

AT NASSAU BAY, ON THE COAST BELOW THE ENEMY AIR BASE OF SALAMAUA, NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA, ANOTHER AIR BATTLE OCCURRED WHEN EIGHT JAPANESE BOMBERS, ESCORTED BY NINE ZEROS ATTACKED THE BEACHHEAD ESTABLISHED BY AMERICANS WEDNESDAY.

WITHOUT LOSS TO THEMSELVES, ALLIED FIGHTERS THERE DEFINITELY DESTROYED FOUR ZEROS AND ONE BOMBER AND PROBABLY DESTROYED A FIFTH ZERO.

THE GROUND PICTURE AROUND SALAMAUA WAS NOT COMPLETELY DEFINED BUT IT WAS STRESSED THAT THE PATROL ACTION COVERED IN TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE WAS MINOR IN NATURE. THIS ACTION OCCURRED AT ORODUBI, A NATIVE VILLAGE ON THE JUNGLE TRACK BETWEEN SALAMAUA AND MUBO, 12 MILES TO THE SOUTH. AUSTRALIAN PATROLS HAVE MOVED MACHINE-GUNS AND AUTOMATIC RIFLES TO POSITIONS COMMANDING THE VILLAGE.

PREVIOUSLY IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT AUSTRALIAN JUNGLE FIGHTERS AT MUBO HAD FOUGHT THEIR WAY EASTWARD TO A JUNCTION WITH THE AMERICANS AT NASSAU BAY AND THAT ALLIED PATROLS ARE OPERATING ON BOTH SIDES OF AS WELL AS BEHIND SALAMAUA.

(DISPATCHES FROM NEW GUINEA HAVE PLACED SOME PATROLS WITHIN SIGHT OF SALAMAUA BUT NONE HAVE INDICATED THE ALLIES ARE READY IN SUFFICIENT FORCE AS YET TO MOVE ON SALAMAUA ITSELF)

A NAVY COMMUNIQUE AT WASHINGTON YESTERDAY DISCLOSED THREE JAPANESE LIGHT CRUISERS AND FOUR DESTROYERS WERE DISPERSED BY AMERICAN WARSHIPS SATURDAY NEAR RENDOVA. THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT THE ENEMY SHIPS, SLIPPING UP IN THE DARKNESS OF EARLY MORNING, SUCCEEDED IN DROPPING SHELLS ON RENDOVA PLANTATION BUT CHARACTERIZED THE SHELLING AS INEFFECTIVE.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 4-(AP)-AMERICANS TODAY OBSERVED THEIR SECOND JULY 4TH IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, BUT THIS YEAR THEY WERE FIGHTING ON MORE AND WIDER FRONTS THAN EVER BEFORE WITH BULLETS SUBSTITUTING FOR FIRECRACKERS AND BOMBER FLARES REPLACING SKYROCKETS.

A YEAR AGO, VIRTUALLY ALL OUR TROOPS WERE MASSED IN AUSTRALIA; TODAY THEY SPREAD FROM DARWIN ON THE NORTH CENTRAL COAST OF THIS CONTINENT EASTWARD ACROSS WIDE WATERS TO BUNA, ORO BAY, MORORE, MASSAU BAY, MILNE BAY, IN NEW GUINEA; THE TROBRIAND AND WOODLARK ISLAND GROUPS AND IN THE SOLOMONS.

EVEN THEIR COMMANDER, GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR WAS IN NEW GUINEA DIRECTING OPERATIONS AGAINST THE JAPANESE OVER A FARFLUNG FRONT.

AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN BASEBALL TEAMS PLAYED HOLIDAY GAMES. AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN PILOTS FLEW IN THE SAME PLANES AND AT NASSAU BAY THE SOLDIERS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES WERE JOINED IN A NEW AND COMMON FRONT AGAINST THE JAPANESE AT SALAMAUA IN NEW GUINEA.

IN A RADIO ADDRESS, COL. LEWIS LANDES, FORMER NEW YORK CITY ATTORNEY, WHO COMMANDED THE FIRST NEGRO CONTINGENT TO ARRIVE IN THIS AREA AND CONSTRUCT A VITAL ROAD ACROSS THE COUNTRY TO DARWIN, THANKED THE AUSTRALIANS FOR THEIR "SPLENDID SPIRIT OF COMRADESHIP AMONG THE SERVICES AND THE CIVILIAN POPULATION."

JUL -5 1943

"WE FEEL THAT YOUR GOVERNMENT'S DECISION TO FLY THE UNITED STATES FLAG TOGETHER WITH THE AUSTRALIAN FLAG AND THE UNION JACK IS A DEMONSTRATION OF THE BROTHERHOOD THAT HAS DEVELOPED," COL. LANDES SAID. "OUR RELATIONSHIP WILL BECOME EVEN CLOSER."

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 29-(DELAYED)-(AP)-NEARLY 400 YOUNG AMERICAN MEN WORE BRIGHT, HIGHLY-POLISHED GOLD BARS OF A SECOND LIEUTENANT TODAY AFTER WINNING COMMISSIONS THROUGH THE OFFICERS CANDIDATE SCHOOL.

COMING UP FROM THE RANKS, MANY OF THEM WERE FROM THE 32ND AND 41ST DIVISIONS WHICH SAW ACTION IN NEW GUINEA. THEY KNEW FROM FIRST HAND EXPERIENCE THAT THE WARNING GIVEN THEM BY LIEUT. GENERAL ROBERT L. EICHELBERGER WAS TRUE--"DON'T UNDERESTIMATE THE JAPANESE SOLDIER."

MORE THAN SIX WEEKS OF CONCENTRATED STUDY AND TRAINING WAS BEHIND THE MEN WHEN THEY STOOD UNDER THE TREES AT AN AUSTRALIAN CAMP TO TAKE THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND RECEIVE THEIR COMMISSIONS.

GENERAL EICHELBERGER, WHO COMMANDED MANY OF THEM IN THE FIELD IN NEW GUINEA, TOLD THEM THAT A LONG, HARD ROAD WAS AHEAD. HE STRESSED THE TENACITY OF THE JAPANESE FIGHTING MAN AND SAID

JUL -5 1943

THAT IF THE JAPANESE HAD BEEN IN TUNISIA THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN NO MASS SURRENDER OF THOUSANDS OF MEN STILL ABLE TO FIGHT.

HGK:MPCW

BY WILLIAM F.BONI

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,JUNE 28-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS IS ADDRESSED, THOUGH NOT DIRECTLY BY THIS CORRESPONDENT, TO THE GIRLS BACK HOME OF THE BOYS OVER HERE, OVER THERE AND OVER EVERYWHERE BUT HOME.

IT IS, ACTUALLY, A LETTER WRITTEN BY AN AMERICAN GIRL TO HER YOUNGER SISTER. THIS GIRL, IN MORE THAN SIX MONTHS OF DUTY AT SEVERAL RED CROSS SERVICE CLUBS, HAS COME IN CONTACT WITH GI'S FROM PRACTICALLY EVERY STATE IN THE UNION. IN ITS WAY, IT IS HER REPORT TO THE NATION--TO THE FEMININE HALF, AND MORE PARTICULARLY THE YOUNGER FEMININE HALF.

JUL -5 1943

IT GOES LIKE THIS:

"THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY MONTH. YOU WILL BE TWELVE AND NOW, MORE THAN EVER BEFORE, YOU HAVE A SPECIAL IMPORTANCE FOR ME.

"YOU HAVE BEEN BORN AN AMERICAN WOMAN. TODAY THAT MEANS LITTLE TO YOU; IN FACT, AS LITTLE AS IT MEANT TO ME IN THE PAST, AND AS LITTLE AS IT MEANS TO MILLIONS OF AMERICAN WOMEN IN THE STATES TODAY.

"TODAY I FIND IT ONE OF THE BIGGEST HONORS I EVER HOPE TO HAVE --JUST BEING AN AMERICAN GIRL. I THOUGHT PEOPLE WOULD LIKE ME BECAUSE I WAS HEALTHY, HAPPY, RATHER PERSONABLE, HAD A GOOD SENSE OF HUMOR. THEY DO. BUT NOT BECAUSE IT'S ME--IT'S BECAUSE I SIGNIFY THE AMERICAN GIRL. AT FIRST I WAS BAFFLED, BUT NOW I AM BEGINNING TO UNDERSTAND.

"THEY ARE SO DEAR AND SWEET IN THEIR LOYALTY AND FAITHFULNESS. THEY WANT SO DESPERATELY TO COME BACK HOME AND TELL THOSE THERE NOW MUCH THEY REALLY LOVE THEM. BUT INSTEAD I TELL THEM GOODBYE KNOWING THAT I'M THE LAST AMERICAN GIRL SOME OF THEM EVER WILL SEE.

"PERHAPS YOU GIRLS BACK HOME WILL SAY THAT THEY FORGOT TO TELL YOU, AND MAYBE THAT WILL BE RIGHT. BUT SINCE THEY HAVE BEEN OVER HERE THEY HAVE COME TO REALIZE HOW VERY MUCH YOU MEAN. DON'T BLAME THEM TOO MUCH FOR NOT APPRECIATING YOU WHEN THEY HAD YOU--BECAUSE GOD ONLY KNOWS, THEY APPRECIATE YOU NOW.

FOLO LONDON

MONTREAL, JULY 4-(AP)-THE ANNOUNCEMENT IN LONDON OF THE SUCCESSFUL TEST OF A "SKY TRAIN" ON THE TRANS-ATLANTIC FERRY ROUTE WAS NO SURPRISE TO MANY MONTREAL ISLANDERS LIVING IN THE VICINITY OF THE NEARBY DORVAL BASE OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE TRANSPORT COMMAND.

FROM TIME TO TIME DURING THE LAST FEW MONTHS THEY HAVE SEEN BIG TRANSPORTS TOWING GLIDERS OVER THEIR ROOF-TOPS. THE TRANSPORT COMMAND, HOWEVER, WOULD NOT COMMENT ON THE DEVELOPMENT AND CENSORS WOULD NOT PASS FOR PUBLICATION EARLIER IN CANADA A STORY ON THE SUBJECT.

AT THE TIME WHEN THE GLIDER TRAINS WERE FIRST NOTICED IN THE SKIES OVER DORVAL IT WAS REPORTED AN "IMPORTANT EXPERIMENT" WAS BEING CONDUCTED AIMED AT AUGMENTING VITAL UNITED NATIONS SUPPLY LINES AND THUS OFFSETTING, TO SOME EXTENT, THE MENACE OF THE ENEMY U-BOAT.

THE GLIDER TRAINS SEEN IN THIS VICINITY HAVE SOMETIMES INCLUDED MORE THAN TWO MOTOR-LESS CRAFT STRUNG OUT BEHIND POWERFUL TRANSPORTS.

PILOT COLLISION

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,JULY 4-(AP)-THERE WERE 13 AMERICAN PILOTS BATTLING THE JAPS IN A DOGFIGHT, BUT IT WAS LIEUT.HENRY E.MATSON'S DAY, AND IT'S HIS STORY.

BECAUSE MATSON, THE ARMY REPORTED TODAY, SHOT DOWN ONE ZERO, COLLIDED HEAD-ON WITH ANOTHER AT 300 MILES AN HOUR, JUMPED FROM HIS BURNING PLANE, PARACHUTED THROUGH THE MIDST OF THE AIR BATTLE, AND WAS RESCUED.

FLYING A CURTISS P-40 WARHAWK, MATSON LEFT GUADALCANAL WITH THREE OTHER ARMY PILOTS ON A ROUTINE PATROL. THEY WERE WARNED OF APPROACHING JAPANESE PLANES, AND WENT UP TO 25,000 FEET TO GIVE BATTLE OVER THE RUSSELL ISLANDS.

JUL -5 1943

SEEING 15 ZEROS APPROACH AND DIVE ON THREE OTHER AMERICAN PLANES, THE FOUR P-40'S ROARED DOWN FOR AN ATTACK. MATSON GOT ON THE TAIL OF AN ENEMY PLANE, FIRED A BURST INTO IT. IT BLEW UP, AND AS HE SLID BENEATH THE WRECKAGE HE FOUND ANOTHER ZERO DEAD AHEAD. HE FIRED AND THE ZERO'S COWLING RIPPED AWAY AND FRAGMENTS FLEW FROM THE ENGINE IN THE SECONDS BEFORE MATSON COLLIDED WITH IT.

"IT REALLY WASN'T MUCH OF A SHOCK," HE REPORTED. "JUST A JOLT AND THEN THINGS BEGAN TO GET A LITTLE MIXED UP. IT WAS GETTING HOTTER ALL THE TIME AND MY COCKPIT MUST HAVE BEEN GETTING FULL OF FLAMES. I DIDN'T SEE ANY, HOWEVER. HAD MY EYES SHUT.

"I PULLED LOOSE THE SAFETY BELT AND WENT OUT INTO THE AIR LIKE A DRIVE THROUGH THE INFIELD. THE HATCH MUST HAVE BEEN KNOCKED OFF WHEN I CRASHED THE NIP, OR I NEVER WOULD HAVE GOTTEN OUT. WHEN I FELT THE FRESH AIR, I JERKED THE CORD AND THE PARACHUTE OPENED. I OPENED MY EYES AT THE SAME TIME AND SAID 'SAFE AT LAST.'

"THERE I WAS RIGHT ON THE 50 YARD LINE OF THE DARNDEST DOGFIGHT YOU EVER SAW. ZEROS AND AMERICAN PLANES WERE THICKER THAN FLIES AT SUPPER TIME. THEY WERE ALL SHOOTING--SEEMED TO BE SHOOTING AT ME. THE BURNS WEREN'T HURTING MUCH, BUT I WAS PRETTY SURE THEY WOULD AFTER A WHILE, SO I PULLED OUT MY FIRST AID KIT AND HAD MYSELF A SHOT OF MORPHINE. I WORKED MY WAY DOWN OUT OF THE DOGFIGHTS AND WAS READY TO SAY 'SAFE AT LAST' AGAIN WHEN THREE ZEROS CAME DOWN ON ME.

"I TELL YOU, THAT'S A TERRIBLE FEELING SWINGING THERE AS HELP-LESS AS A TURKEY WITH HIS NECK ON THE BLOCK. YOU FEEL LIKE YOU'VE GOT TARGETS PAINTED ALL OVER YOU. I WAVED VIGOROUSLY, JUTTING OUT MY TEETH AT THEM TO LOOK LIKE TOJO, AND MAKING OTHER GESTURES OF FRIENDSHIP AND VICTORY. I GRINNED AND JABBERED AT THEM."

WHETHER THE GESTICULATIONS HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH IT OR NOT, TH THREE ZEROS PULLED AWAY AND WERE CHASED BY FIVE AMERICAN PLANES. MA SON HIT THE WATER, INFLATED HIS RUBBER BOAT, CLIMBED ABOARD, PULLED HIS PARACHUTE OVER HIM--AND WENT TO SLEEP. AN HOUR LATER A CRASH BOAT PICKED HIM UP. TWO DAYS LATER HE WAS OUT OF THE HOSPITAL.

MATSON'S PARENTS, MR. AND MRS.J.R.MATSON, LIVE AT 76 LAKE ST., PERRY,N.Y. HE IS 23, AND ENLISTED IN THE AIR CORPS WHEN HE WAS 19, SHORTLY AFTER HIS GRADUATION FROM HIGH SCHOOL AT WELLSBORO,PA.

IN THE FLIGHT WITH MATSON WERE LIEUT.DOUGLAS V.CURREY, 1334-47TH ST., SACRAMENTO,CALIF., LIEUT.ROBERT T.HOLMAN, 1021 EASTSOUTH TEMPLE ST., SALT LAKE CITY, AND SECOND LIEUT.C.T.SACKETT, BOZEMAN,MONT., EACH CREDITED WITH DESTROYING ONE ZERO DURING THE ENGAGEMENT.

IN OTHER PHASES OF THE BATTLE, CAPT.R.B.WESTBROOK, 1213 KEYSTONE AVE., BURBANK,CALIF., AND LIEUT.JAMES E.PARKER, COMPTON, CALIF., EACH SHOT DOWN ONE ZERO AND PROBABLY ANOTHER; CAPT.WADE K.HARPER, WACO,TEX., AND LIEUT.WBMJ.CARGILL, AMBASSADOR HOTEL, KANSAS CITY,MO., TOGETHER ATTACKED A ZERO, WHICH CARGILL DAMAGED; LIEUT.JACK A.BADE, ELK RIVER,MINN., AND LIEUT. IN AN UNPRECEDENTED OUTPOURING OF FELICITY FOR THE UNITED STATES YESTERDAY (SUN) THE PEOPLES OF VIRTUALLY ALL THE UNITED NATIONS, TOGETHER WITH OTHER FRIENDLY COUNTRIES NOT ACTIVELY AT WAR, ADOPTED THE 167TH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE AS A SYMBOL OF THE ALLIED WORLD STRUGGLE.

WHEREAS IN PAST YEARS OBSERVANCE OF THE FOURTH OF JULY IN NATIONS OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES WAS LIMITED LARGELY TO SMALL GATHERINGS IN THE AMERICAN COLONIES OF FOREIGN LANDS, THIS YEAR THE DATE WAS EULOGIZED PUBLICLY IN MANY LANDS BY NON-AMERICANS THEMSELVES.

IN GREAT BRITAIN THE LONDON PRESS SALUTED THE UNITED STATES WITH LAVISH EDITORIAL PRAISE FOR THE BONDS OF COOPERATION EXISTING BETWEEN THE TWO NATIONS. THE WOMAN COMMANDER OF A SOVIET AIRCRAFT REGIMENT SENT "HEARTIEST FOURTH OF JULY GREETINGS TO THE OFFICERS AND PERSONNEL OF THE WOMEN'S ARMY AUXILIARY CORPS AND OTHER WOMEN'S SERVICES" OF THE UNITED STATES.

AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA THE FRENCH POPULATION WAS REMINDED BY FRENCH EDITORIALISTS OF THE HISTORIC PART PLAYED BY FRENCH ARMED FORCES IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. THE AMERICAN COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER, PRESIDED OVER FOURTH OF JULY CEREMONIES ATTENDED BY FRENCH AND BRITISH OFFICERS WHICH WAS PUNCTUATED BY A 48-GUN SALUTE TENDERED BY THE BRITISH NAVY.

ONE OF THE LIVELIEST DEMONSTRATIONS OF FRIENDSHIP OCCURRED AT RIO DE JANEIRO WHERE 4,000 STUDENTS GATHERED IN THE PLAZA BEFORE THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY TO SING THE BRAZILIAN AND NORTH AMERICAN NATIONAL ANTHEMS. UNSTINTINGLY FRIENDLY EDITORIALS WERE CARRIED IN EVERY RIO NEWSPAPER AND ELSEWHERE IN BRAZIL THERE WERE SPECIAL CELEBRATIONS.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

JUL -5 1943

THIS IS THE DATE WHICH THE GERMAN CONTROLLED PARIS RADIO HAS BEEN PERSISTENTLY PREDICTING WOULD PRODUCE THE ALLIED INVASION OF EUROPE--BUT TODAY, WITH THE INVASION STILL IN THE FUTURE, THE PARIS STATION SCOFFED AT THE ALLIES, SARCASTICALLY INTIMATING THAT THEIR PLANS HAD GONE AWRY.

IT WAS A PATENT EFFORT TO GET OUT FROM UNDER THE FORECAST WHICH THE STATION HAD BEEN DRUMMING FOR A WEEK.

CERTAINLY PROPHECY IS A TRICKY BUSINESS, CALLING EITHER FOR VAST RASHNESS OR GREAT CLEVERNESS. STILL, HAD THE PARIS BROADCASTER SINGLED OUT JULY 3 AS THE APPROXIMATE RATHER THAN THE SPECIFIC DATE -- AND ASSUMING THAT INVASION DOESN'T COME BEFORE MIDNIGHT TONIGHT -- HE MIGHT NOT HAVE BEEN SO FAR OFF AT THAT.

ONE SUSPECTS THAT THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND WOULD AGREE WITH HIM BROADLY, FOR INDICATIONS MULTIPLY THAT WE ARE CLOSE TO THE ZERO HOUR OF SOME SORT OF INVASION IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. AS PREVIOUSLY POINTED OUT, SICILY IS A GOOD BET, AND THE BIG SISTER ISLAND OF SARDINIA MIGHT BE COUPLED WITH THAT FOR A DOUBLE.

DISPATCHES FROM SPAIN REPORT HEAVY MOVEMENT OF ALLIED SHIPPING INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN. TWO CONVOYS OF TRANSPORTS ARE SAID TO HAVE CLEARED GIBRALTAR YESTERDAY, AND ANOTHER WAS STATED TO BE ARRIVING THERE FROM THE ATLANTIC. A CONSIDERABLE BRITISH NAVAL UNIT, INCLUDING THE WARSHIPS NELSON AND RODNEY, ARE REPORTED ANCHORED IN THE ROADSTEAD OF THE ROCK. MEANTIME THE ALLIES HAVE DESTROYED MORE THAN TWENTY ENEMY SHIPS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN DURING THE PAST WEEK

BOTH SICILY AND SARDINIA--PARTICULARLY THE FORMER--HAVE BEEN BLASTED WITH BOMBS TO A POINT WHERE THEY ARE IN DIRE STRAITS. "PALERMO THE HAPPY," CAPITAL AND CHIEF PORT OF SICILY, HAS BEEN BOMBED UNTIL AMERICAN AIRMEN OPERATING FLYING FORTRESSES HAVE REPORTED THAT THIS BIG CITY IS ABOUT "FINISHED." THE AIRFIELDS OF SICILY, WHICH CAUSED THE ALLIES SO MUCH ANGUISH DURING THE FIGHTING IN NORTH AFRICA, ALSO HAVE BEEN BLASTED UNTIL THE MOVEMENT OF AXIS WARPLANES FROM THEM IS SAID TO BE LIGHT. THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS POSSESS SUPREMACY IN THAT THEATRE.

JUL -5 1943

THE THREE THOUSAND YEAR OLD CITY OF MESSINA, WHICH IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT STRATEGIC SPOTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, HAS BEEN ONCE MORE TORN TO PIECES--THIS TIME BY BOMBS. IT WILL BE RECALLED THAT IT WAS DEVASTATED BY EARTHQUAKE IN 1908 WHEN MORE THAN 77,000 PEOPLE WERE KILLED AND NINETY PERCENT OF THE CITY WAS DESTROYED.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH BOMBERS HAVE PAID SPECIAL ATTENTION TO MESSINA BECAUSE ITS AMPLE HARBOR IS THE RAILWAY JUNCTION WITH THE MAINLAND. TRAINS ARE FERRIED ACROSS THE STRAIT OF MESSINA, WHICH AT ITS NARROWEST POINT IS ONLY TWO MILES WIDE. NATURALLY THE ALLIES WOULD NEED TO SEVER THIS COMMUNICATION, TO CUT OFF REINFORCEMENTS AND SUPPLIES, BEFORE ATTEMPTING INVASION OF SICILY.

INCIDENTALLY, THE STRAIT OF MESSINA IS A RACEWAY OF TIDES. IT'S HERE THAT SCYLLA AND CHARYBDIS USED TO TORTURE THE ANCIENTS. SCYLLA WAS A FORMATION OF ROCK AND CHARYBDIS WAS A WHIRLPOOL WHICH SWIRLED NEARBY. SHIPS IN TRYING TO AVOID SCYLLA FREQUENTLY WERE DRAWN INTO THE WAITING MAELSTROM AND LOST, AND IT STILL REMAINS A DIFFICULT PASSAGE FOR ANY CAPTAIN.

THE ANGLO-BRITISH FORCES ARE PROCEEDING METHODICALLY WITH THEIR PRELIMINARY BOMBARDMENT OF ITALIAN POSITIONS, GIVING INDICATION THAT THEY DON'T INTEND TO BE RUSHED. ONE WOULD EXPECT A SIMILAR PROCEDURE WHEN IT COMES TO INVASION OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND, IF INDEED THAT IS ATTEMPTED. WITH SICILY AND SARDINIA OCCUPIED, THE WAY WOULD BE CLEARED FOR BIGGER OPERATIONS, BUT IF THESE TWO BIG ISLANDS ARE THE FIRST OBJECTIVES, THE ANGLO-AMERICAN EXPEDITION QUITE LIKELY WILL PAUSE BEFORE ENTERING ANOTHER PHASE OF THE ATTACK.

American-Japanese Sea Battle Under Way In the Kula Gulf, North of New Georgia; Nazis Open Strong Offensive in Russia

JUL 6 - 1943

ACTION REPORTED AFTER U. S. FLEET SHELLS JAP BASES

JUL 6 - 1943

Brief Communique Reveals Contact With Enemy Warships in Kula Gulf.

SIZE OF FORCE NOT GIVEN

40 Zeros Engaged by U. S. Fighter Planes Over Rendova.

WASHINGTON, July 5 — (AP) The Navy said tonight it was indicated that a "naval battle" is under way in the central Solomons.

The communique issued at mid-evening said only that "brief reports from the south Pacific indicate that a naval battle is in progress in Kula gulf, north of New Georgia island" and that "no details of the action have been received."

Score of Fighting Not Revealed

Other than that the Navy used the expression "naval battle," there was little here to suggest the score of the engagement. One possibility was that light forces had encountered each other in the gulf and opened fire. In that case, there was the subsequent possibility that heavier forces might be summoned by both sides.

There also was the suggestion that the heavier — perhaps much heavier—units of the two sides had come together with the Japanese determined to stop the northward move of the Americans who have gained footholds at Viru harbor on New Georgia and on Rendova island, across a channel from the Japanese air base at Munda.

Warships Shell Foe

Earlier in the day, the Navy had reported that American warships were in Kula gulf on the night of July 4-5 (Solomons time) and had shelled Vila, another air base, on the island of Kolombangara, and Bairoko, an anchorage and supply base at the western end of New Georgia.

Several days ago the Japanese sent in a light force which fired on American positions on Rendova but United States vessels interceded and drove the enemy off in what apparently was a light naval skirmish.

The last previous heavy exchange between American and Japanese surface forces also resulted in repulse of the enemy. That engagement occurred shortly before the American landing on Attu island in the Aleutians. An American force, cruising west of the Aleutian chain, came upon Japanese ships, which included a cruiser and destroyers protecting cargo vessels apparently bound with supplies for Japanese positions in the Aleutians. This battle resulted in the enemy fleeing to the west.

Munda Nearly Encircled

The earlier report today of the American warships in Kula gulf suggested a noose was being tightened about the enemy's air base at Munda. Land troops captured Vura village, commanding the Wickham anchorage to the south while bombers roared overhead to blast the Munda field.

These movements by forces under the command of General Douglas A. MacArthur who has gone personally into the field to direct the Pacific offensive, virtually encircled the Munda base—principal enemy point of opposition in the Solomons.

The warships—not described, but presumably a task force of cruisers and destroyers—moved down the narrow channel of Kula gulf, the Navy reported today, to bombard the two enemy bases.

Only about eight miles wide, Kula gulf separates the northern end of New Georgia—site of Munda—from Kolombangara island. Pointing guns toward both shores of that narrow gulf, the warships sent shells screaming into Vila, itself an airbase, on Kolombangara; and Bairoko, an anchorage and supply base at the western end of New Georgia.

Troops Capture Vura

To the south and east, troops of Gen. MacArthur's command captured Vura village on the southern tip of Vanguna island, off the opposite end of New Georgia. The village commands Wickham anchorage, another point of major importance in the Japanese supply picture.

Approximately 300 Japanese were reported killed by land forces which took over the village, and the remainder of the garrison there fled into the jungles. American losses were relatively light, said a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

40 Japanese Zeros In Rendova Fight

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Tuesday, July 6. — (AP) American fighters battled a numerically superior force of 40 Japanese Zeros over newly conquered Rendova island Monday and downed two, increasing enemy plane losses to 157, the High Command announced today.

The communique on the Pacific offensive also repeated an announcement by the Navy in Washington that American warships in the Kula gulf between New Georgia and Kolombangara islands had shelled enemy positions on both islands. It made no mention, however, of a Monday night report from Washington indicating that a naval battle between American and Japanese warships was in progress there.

One Plane Lost

One American fighter was downed in the latest of the almost daily series of battles over Rendova but the pilot was saved. Despite American air successes there in downing 157 of the enemy as against losses of less than 30 planes, every communique has reported that the planes the Japanese sent over outnumbered those of the defenders.

Other air action, of a more limited nature than has been reported since the new Pacific offensive opened last Wednesday, included a torpedo bomber attack on the Japanese seaplane base at Rekata bay, Santa Isabel island.

Salamaua Raided

Just north of Nassau bay, below Salamaua, New Guinea, where the Americans landed June 30, Mitchell medium bombers heavily strafed Japanese positions while others raided the airdrome at Salamaua.

The communique said that the shelling by the warships in Kula gulf, which was coordinated with air attacks by dive bombers and Catalinas, started numerous fires at Bairoko anchorage and at the enemy air base of Vila on Kolombangara.

Today's noon communique from headquarters of Gen. MacArthur, who personally is in the field in New Guinea as supreme commander of the new offensive, mentioned limited operations in the vicinity of Salamaua where Americans landed at Nassau bay last Wednesday.

It said that two-engined bombers heavily attacked and set afire enemy buildings at Kela point while other medium bombers struck at an airdrome and jungle tracks—the only means of inter-village contact in many mountainous areas.

In the Arafura sea, two Japanese float planes unsuccessfully tried to bomb an Allied vessel. Saturday's communique had referred to an Allied "convoy" in that sea, which is between Australia and New Guinea and Sunday's had reported the driving off of enemy planes seeking to attack shipping there.

MACARTHUR INSPECTS U. S. BASES IN P-T BOAT

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) General Douglas MacArthur traveled in a motor torpedo boat during a recent inspection of New Guinea combat bases—his first ride in the small, swift craft since he left the Philippines.

NBC's Australian correspondent, Ed Wallace, told of the trip tonight in a broadcast. Wallace, who accompanied the general, said the PT boat was commanded by 22-year-old Frank Dean, Jr., of San Diego, Calif.

The boat was equipped with an anti-aircraft gun called "Balls of Fire" which its gunner, Ralph Mitchsani of White Plains, N. Y., said had sunk 14 Japanese barges while sub-hunting along the New Guinea coast.

8 MIDGET SUBS SUNK

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) The British radio reported tonight that at least eight Japanese midget submarines had been destroyed in the Solomons area. The broadcast was recorded by CBS. The period covered was not mentioned.

Operations in South Pacific Appear Favorable for U. S.

Attack on Islands Catches Japanese Garrison by Surprise.

By LEIF ERICKSON

HEADQUARTERS, SOUTH PACIFIC AMPHIBIOUS FORCE, July 1—(Delayed)—(AP) The Japanese knew we were going to do something—but they didn't know this was the day.

And that, in the words of the rear admiral who commanded the American amphibious invasion of the New Georgia islands, was the reason the enemy was caught in flat-footed surprise when our forces made a major invasion landing on Rendova island, and other landings at Viru harbor.

Operations Look Favorable

"Things looked favorable, so far," the admiral declared in his first press conference on yesterday's action in which landing boats delivered troops to the quarter-mile beach smoothly, and without air opposition, for more than seven hours, while large transports crowded into the narrow neck of Blanche channel, disgorging troops on Rendova.

"I don't look on New Georgia as an example of island-by-island war," the admiral stated. "New Georgia is quite an important place. If we are going to win the war a forward movement is essential. You can't go forward fast. You have to go step by step. x x x It will take planning—the assembly of forces and inch-by-inch advance, until eventually the whole war will collapse."

Japs Arrive Too Late

If the enemy had known the time and the place of this invasion our men would not have been landed without opposition from the air. As it was, attacking Japanese planes stormed over the area too late to interfere with the invasion landing, and our fliers ran up a score of 101 enemy bombers and fighters shot down, against loss of only 17 U. S. planes. Most of the Japanese planes dived out of the clouds an hour or so after our troops had landed and after the invasion convoy had started to its base.

The only convoy vessel hit was the one the admiral was on — the transport McCawley, the former Grace liner, Santa Barbara. A Japanese torpedo plane put a torpedo into her engine room. All non-essential personnel received instructions to abandon ship, and the sinking vessel was taken in tow. About a half hour later two submarine torpedoes struck the McCawley and she went down.

"We had two perfectly good ships trying to tow her, but we couldn't have saved her," the admiral commented. "They put two torpedoes into a sunken ship!"

An eye-witness account of the landing operation and of the enemy air attacks was given by Lieut. (j.g.) Frank W. Rounds of Norwell, Mass., 28-year-old former newspaper man now attached to the commanding admiral's staff.

Rain was pouring down out of the darkness as the convoy zigzagged through Blanche channel. Then, as they reached points of disembarkment soon after dawn, the rain stopped.

Land Boats Race to Shore

The landing boats hit the water with astonishing speed. They plowed back and forth from ship to shore like motorboats in a speed race. Soldiers, clad in camouflaged jungle suits, all carrying packs, packed each boat. The landing boats couldn't get up on the beach and the men waded ahore in water nearly waist deep, floating their packs to land.

The small Japanese shore force was cleaned up in about 90 minutes. Bill Shrout, Life magazine photographer, said later he saw the bodies of about 30 Japanese soldiers about 100 yards from the beach, in a thick palm growth.

Meanwhile a steady flow of guns and trucks and jeeps ranged onto the beach, while the guns from destroyers escorting the convoy dueled with the enemy shore guns on Munda point. One short battery was silenced quickly, but others continued shelling during the seven hours of unloading operations.

The landing place on Rendova was just across a narrow channel from the Munda point airfield.

It seems possible that but for an encounter with a lone enemy patrol bomber, our landing might have been made without any opposition. This plane was spotted by our fighter pilots skipping along the edges of the thick weather which helped cover the invasion fleet.

This Japanese plane was promptly shot into the sea, but evidently had radioed Kahili, the Nip base at the southern tip of Bougainville island.

20 Zeros Attack

Presently about 20 Zeros raced in. Our fighters in 20 minutes shot down at least 15. Then came a wave of medium and dive bombers. But they came after our landing operations had been completed. A large percentage of this wave was shot out of the skies, as were planes of a third wave. Simultaneously, flights of our Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers were striking the enemy field at Munda point, and also at the Japanese base on Kolombangara island to the northwest.

Meanwhile the gunners on our warships were giving the enemy everything they had with blazing anti-aircraft guns. And high in the skies Allied fighters were scrambling in a dogfight.

"Way up above," one witness said, "the planes were dropping like flies. You would see smoke then flame—then nothing."

Within a few hours all supplies and equipment had been unloaded and hidden in the jungle and most of the boats were well on their way back into safer waters. The commander of the occupying forces said that everything had gone like clockwork, and that the troops had landed and unloaded their equipment without a single casualty. There was not even a minor injury, and no loss of material of any kind.

From the time General Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief of this new Allied offensive, toured the camps at the take-off site before the departure until the troops began disappearing in the jungle on Kiriwina there wasn't a hitch in the operation.

After a long hike along a gorgeous jungle trail we approached a beautifully landscaped estate on which stood a big house with cool verandas, high paneled walls, polished floors and wicker furniture—luxurious quarters, where we had expected a rugged outdoor existence.

Lieutenant Whitehouse invited us to luncheon on roast wild pig, native sweet potatoes, carrots, tomatoes, huge slices of pacapaca and a great dish of tropical fruit salad with custard, topped off with cheese and mints. Barefooted and almost naked native waiters supplied us with iced water and hot tea. A herd of cows promises fresh milk, while a flock of hens assures us of plenty of eggs and chicken.

All the troops are delighted with their new assignment and agree that it is the finest place that they have yet visited. During hikes to scattered new camps soldiers passed through many picturesque native villages with thatched-roof huts. The natives had never seen troops in such large numbers before.

Naked children and men and women wearing only loincloths posed readily for pictures. They sold carved sticks and other souvenirs at prices far below those charged in New Guinea.

Use Army Jeeps

The Americans lost no time in landing their jeeps and trying them out on the level coral lanes. They were ideal after New Guinea's muddy, mountainous roads.

Supplies were carried to inland hideouts by the troops and several hundred well-trained natives. The troops, in green uniforms, carrying barracks bags and the long lines of almost nude natives, with boxes on their shoulders, made a colorful picture.

The island has countless gardens of tropical fruits, vegetables and flowers. The natives are expert in agriculture.

Until native supplies might be organized, the landing forces carried a good supply of tinned foods.

The correspondents, which included two Australians, came dressed in camouflaged green coveralls, carried hammocks and mosquito nets and expected to live at least the first weeks on army CCC rations, mainly corned beef and beans.

Major John Parman, Australian press agent, hit the jackpot, however. His friend, Lieut. Ernest Whitehouse, resident administrator of the islands since 1919, invited him to put us up at his house.

KIRIWINA ISLAND, Trobriand Group, June 30 (Delayed)—Green-clad American troops, highly trained in jungle warfare, occupied the strategically important Trobriand Islands today without a sign of enemy resistance. They found that they had taken what was virtually a tropical paradise, with tall, graceful coconut palms lining the shore.

Threading our way through the dangerously shallow waters surrounding the Trobriand group, we approached the landing beaches at dawn and drove our small ships right up against the coral shelf. Our troops filed off the ramps and went ashore.

I was one of two American correspondents chosen by lot to go with the occupying force. One Australian reporter and an Australian photographer were the only other members of the press party.

The occupation of Kiriwina is an all-American show by Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army. His staff includes such military experts as Col. George Decker of Catskill, N. Y.; Col. Horton White of Omaha, Neb.; Col. Clyde Eddleman of Lake Charles, La.; Col. Kenneth Pierce of Oscoda, Mich., and Lieut. Col. Richard Middlebrooks of San Antonio, Tex.

Many Villages on Island

The Americans found Kiriwina a flat, jungle-covered island forty miles long and two to eight miles wide. It possesses dozen of native villages, all connected by a network of three-lined trails averaging eighteen to twenty-four feet in width.

Several hundred well-trained natives helped the troops to carry supplies from the landing place to inland hide-outs. The seemingly endless lines of natives with boxes on their shoulders and the troops in their green uniforms, carrying barracks bags along the jungle trail, made a colorful picture.

Since the Trobriand natives are expert in agriculture, the island has countless gardens of tropical fruits, vegetables and flowers.

The landing forces carried a good supply of tinned foods, however, to tide us over until native supplies might be organized. The correspondents who landed with the force came dressed in camouflaged green cover-alls and carrying regular jungle equipment—hammocks and mosquito nets. We expected to live at least the first week on Army "C" rations, which have corned beef and beans as their chief constituents.

Living in Comfort

Major John Parman, Australian press relations officer in charge of us, "hit the jackpot," however. His friend, Lieut. Ernest Whitehouse, who has been resident administra-

BIG BATTLE RAGES ON 165-MILE FRONT SOUTH OF MOSCOW

Japs' Infiltration Tactics Are Adopted By Americans

First Use Reported Made Of Enemy's Methods In Offensive In Central Solomons

JUL 6 - 1943

By TOM YARBROUGH

[Associated Press Correspondent]

South Pacific Headquarters, July 5—American soldiers and marines are using infiltration tactics—the prime favorite of the Japanese—for the first time in the Pacific war.

A responsible person here disclosed use of the tactics in connection with the American offensive in the central Solomons, but gave no details. He said the offensive is proceeding according to schedule and in a very satisfactory manner.

It was also announced that the three Japanese light cruisers and four destroyers that bombarded American gun emplacements on Rendova Island on the night of July 3 tossed about one hundred shells around the harbor from long range. They were not effective and the Japanese warships fled when attacked by American naval units.

[This was announced in a Navy Department communique at Washington Saturday.]

The Japanese positions at Munda, on New Georgia island, only five miles from Rendova, are not particularly healthy and not very useful to the enemy. One of the aims of the five-day-old offensive is the capture of the Munda air base from the Japanese.

OTHER ATTACKS FAIL

Germans Press Drive in Orel-Kursk, Belgorod Sectors.

MOSCOW, Tuesday, July 6—(AP) The Germans launched their long-expected, long-overdue offensive yesterday morning.

The giant scale and fierceness of the attack, which raged along a 165-mile front in the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod sector, was indicated in a special Russian communique announcing that in a single day's fighting they had destroyed 586 German tanks and 203 German planes.

The Russians reported they repulsed all attacks, causing the Germans "great losses," but admitted that Hitler's armies had broken through in some places and had driven wedges into the Russian defenses.

Lull Broken in Russia

A special communique released at about midnight told in these words how the 96-day lull existing since the end of the Russian winter offensive on March 31 finally was broken:

"Since the morning of July 5 our troops in the Orel-Kursk and Belgorod direction have been fighting against large forces of enemy tanks and infantry supported by considerable planes which have launched an offensive.

"All attacks were repelled with heavy losses to the enemy.

"At individual points small enemy formations succeeded in wedging into our defenses.

"According to incomplete data, our troops in the Orel-Kursk and Belgorod directions in one days fighting disabled or destroyed 586 German tanks.

"They also destroyed 203 German aircraft which were shot down in air fighting and by anti-aircraft defenses.

"The fighting continues."

It is difficult yet to say with precision just what the German objective is, but the immediate aim seems to be to cut off the Russian bulge in the German lines around the Russian-held city of Kursk. It is not yet clear whether Hitler intends to try a drive on Moscow.

Reds Not Surprised

The Germans by today's action ended the great mystery of their intentions for the summer of 1943. It came as no surprise to the Russians, who not only expected an attack but expected it in the very area where it came.

Russian reconnaissance discovered that Hitler had the bulk of his panzer columns concentrated in the Orel sector as well as the strongest and most numerous part of his infantry. The Russians in turn concentrated important forces opposite the Germans in the Kursk area. The fact that each knew of the other's concentrations and judged them vitally important is shown by the repeated bombings in which either side indulged.

The Russians appear to be in a position today to say "I told you so" to strategists who have said the Germans were settling down to positional warfare on the eastern front, withdrawing the Luftwaffe and bending all efforts to pelling an expected Allied on the continent.

The Russians have been i ing they were all wrong—that offensive would come and com soon on the Russian front.

Mines Guard Nazi Lines

The Germans, at the same time, have been sowing vast minefields before their lines to forestall any Russian offensive. The Germans launched their 1941 offensive June 22 and their 1942 main offensive June 28, opening a preliminary drive a few days earlier. They were expected to begin earlier this year as weather conditions were favorable.

Speculation as to why they were delaying followed two main lines of thought—either they were waiting to see what the Americans and English were going to do in the west, or they were not ready as yet.

Military experts said Russian bombing has been highly effective disrupting Hitler's preparations for attack. Night after night Hitler's communications and supply lines have been harassed.

But now the attack finally has begun — as the Russians said it would. Hitler, in a desperate position where he is forced to attempt to reduce Russia with an all out offensive, may have to turn around and fight off the Anglo-Americans in the west.

Hitler's armies are not the same quality as those of 1941, but th Russians are not underestimating them. The Russians are confident but they are taking the enemy seriously.

Reds Bomb Nazi Bases

The Russians meanwhile continued the long-range bombing behind the German lines which has characterized the Russian-German air war in recent weeks. The Moscow radio reported that these Soviet bombers on Saturday night raided Gomel, Roslavl and Unecha, all important supply bases behind the sector where the big German attack was developing.

Enemy troop and ammunition trains and dumps were said to have been hit at Gomel, where 14 fires were started. Similar good results were claimed at Unecha and Roslavl. No planes were reported lost.

German Casualties Heavy

LONDON, July 5 (AP). — Heavy German casualties in men as well as equipment were reported today by the Russian communique announcing the opening of a new offensive by the Germans in the Orel - Kursk - Belgorod sector of the eastern front.

The Nazis were attacking w what the Soviet command called "large forces" of both infantry and tanks, covered by strong air support.

[The new German drive in Russia began later than those of 1941 and 1942. The Nazis invaded Russia on June 22, 1941, and their second offensive began on June 11, 1942, when they opened drives toward the Ukraine and the Caucasus from the area around Kharkov and Kursk.]

The German radio earlier had reported "an intense battle of local importance" in progress since early this morning on a six-mile front on the Donets River northwest of Belgorod.

The midday Soviet communique had told also of activity in the Belgorod area, announcing that the Germans were concentrating troops for an attack.

The Germans for their part declared over the Berlin radio: "The Soviets are continually bringing up reinforcements."

The German high command communique said that several weeks of fighting in the lagoon area of the Kuban in the western Caucasus "was ended yesterday by an action of an offensive nature" in which 2,000 Russians were declared killed or captured. The Germans asserted that 700 Russian boats were destroyed, captured or damaged.

Russians Keep Up Air Raids

The Russians continued the long-range bombing behind the German lines which has characterized the Russian-German air war in recent weeks. The Moscow radio reported that Soviet bombers on Saturday night raided Gomel, Roslavl and Unecha, important supply bases behind the sector where the big German attack was developing.

Enemy troop and ammunition trains and dumps were said to have been hit at Gomel, where fourteen fires were started. Similar good results were reported at Unecha and Roslavl. No Russian planes were reported lost.

Moscow's communique several times used the word "fierce" to describe the Nazi attacks in all three of the newly active sectors.

Announcing the repulse of assaults in the Orel and Kursk areas, other than the one slight advance conceded, it added:

"In the Belgorod area our arvance units by powerful artillery, mortar, rifle and machine-gun fire met the enemy, who passed to the offensive. Fierce engagements developed at the advance lines of Soviet defenses. Our men defended their positions staunchly and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans."

Aloft the battle was as furious as aground; a single Soviet unit reported the destruction of sixty-two German planes in combat.

On the Moscow front and in the far south, around Rostov, active reconnaissance was reported, and the Kalinin sector northwest of the capital also saw renewed activity—the recapture by the Russians of a populated front.

While there had been many reports recently that the German forces in Russia had been somewhat reduced by withdrawal to France, the Russians themselves have denied that there has been any decrease in the invader's strength.

Nazi Strength in Russia

Estimates of Axis strength in Russia vary from the statement last week of the Communist party newspaper "Pravda" that there were 211 enemy divisions in the country to the reports of independent foreign sources in London that withdrawals to reinforce western and southern Europe had left no more than 180 German divisions and less than twenty satellite divisions in Russia.

Before the start of last summer's offensive the British estimated that the Germans had marshaled 225 divisions in Russia.

British informants have declared that, regardless of the number of divisions now there, the offensive power of the Axis armies must have been greatly reduced due to loss of so many top-grade fighting men and replacement by poorer material.

Russian forces are believed substantially larger than those of the Germans—perhaps even twice as large, counting reserves and troops still in training—but on a front of such length the attacking force likely could gain superiority at the point chosen for the push.

German Offensive Reports Spur Invasion Speculation

JUL 6 - 1943

Possibility Seen That Allies May Speed Plans To Prevent Chance Of Soviet Collapse

Small British land forces raid Axis air bases on Crete....Page 3

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, July 6 — The Russian report of a sharp German offensive gave a quick lift to invasion talk today with the possibility that a large-scale Nazi drive might precipitate major American-British operations to forestall any chance of losing their Soviet ally at the last minute.

A new spark to invasion speculation was added also by disclosure of the British jab into Crete, which is one of the main bulwarks guarding the southern flanks of the Axis.

An Allied operation to relieve the Russians would also take advantage of any heavy Nazi commitment of forces to the Eastern front.

Almost certainly if the Germans maintain hard pressure against the Red army in their new move it will result in an insistent renewal of Soviet demands for opening a front in western and southern Europe—demands which have been reiterated in the past few weeks by the top men of Moscow.

While withholding news of the British Commando-penetration of the vaunted defenses of Crete and acknowledging only fighting of "local importance" in the East, German propaganda attempted to convince the invasion-menaced people of Europe that the Allies are losing planes at a prohibitive rate in a vain effort to soften Italy for landings.

A survey of the Mediterranean situation as put out by the Axis International Information Bureau and heard by the Associated Press reported 108 American and British planes had been shot down in the last forty-eight hours in raids on Sicily and on the Italian mainlands.

Fifteen Per Cent. Losses

This report declared that this was fifteen to twenty per cent. of the attacking forces and "it remains to be seen how long the Anglo-Americans will be able to sustain such losses."

The Allies have reported no such losses.

Calling the Allies "war of nerves" a "war of paper," the information bureau article boasted that Axis defenses were being strengthened greatly and reported that the German air chief, Baron von Richtofen, had joined Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring at the latter's headquarters in southern Italy, adding that Richtofen's reputation for collaboration with the army "should be given some room for thought."

Nothing Before July 14

Meanwhile the Paris radio, as heard by the Associated Press, said "we admit that nothing will occur before July 15—which will allow for the fourth French Republic created in Algiers to celebrate the storming of the Bastille on July 14."

Apparently referring to Prime Minister Churchill's recent promise of Allied action before autumn leaves fall, the broadcast said sarcastically that "the Allies have three months left to conquer Germany and Italy, to occupy their territories and liberate Europe." It added that "we may hear from London that the European picnic party has been again postponed."

GEN. SIKORSKI LOSES LIFE IN PLANE CRASH

Polish Premier And Head Of Armed Forces One Of Fifteen Killed

Bomber's Motors Failed Soon After Takeoff From Gibraltar

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 5—Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish Government-in-exile and commander of its armed forces, was killed in a plane crash off Gibraltar, which took the lives of fourteen other persons, including his only daughter and a member of the British Parliament.

While Polish authorities said they had not learned the cause of the accident, it was reported here that the plane—a four-engined Liberator bringing Sikorski back from the Middle East—crashed into the sea when its motors failed soon after taking off from Gibraltar.

The only survivor among the sixteen passengers and crew members was the pilot, said to be a Czech, who was injured seriously. It was not known here whether any of the bodies had been recovered.

300 Yards Off Shore

A Berlin broadcast of a trans-ocean propaganda agency dispatch said residents of La Linea, Spain, saw the plane crash in flames only 300 yards off shore. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said eyewitnesses noted that all four of the plane's engines stalled and added that searchlights were used all night in attempts to rescue the occupants.

The death of Sikorski, who had been in the Middle East to visit Polish armed forces, came at a time when the troops he had been organizing to fight for Poland's liberation finally were ready to participate in offensive operations.

His 29-year-old daughter, Mrs. Sophia Lesniowska, whose husband is reported to be a prisoner of war in Germany, was traveling with her father for the first time as liaison officer between the London headquarters of the Polish Women's Auxiliary Service, in which she was a second lieutenant, and the Middle East. Mrs. Sikorski is now in England.

Col. Cazalet Killed

Another victim was Col. Victor Alexander Cazalet, member of Parliament and political liaison officer to the General. Cazalet spoke Polish well, and sometimes served as interpreter of Sikorski's public speeches. A well-known British sportsman, he served in the last war and for two years was on the British staff in Siberia.

Others among those killed who have been identified were:

GEN. TADEUSZ KLIMECKI, chief of the Polish general staff.

COL. ANDRZEJ MARECKI, chief of the operational section and expert in military science.

COLONEL GRALEWSKI.

LIEUTENANT POBIEWSKI, Sikorski's naval aide.

ADAM KULAKOWSKI, the general's private secretary.

At a special session of the Polish Government, President Wladyslaw Racziewicz appointed Deputy Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk to serve as acting Premier pending the selection of Sikorski's successor, and placed Gen. Marian Kukiel, Polish Minister of Defense, in charge of Poland's armies.

Asked To Continue

A Government statement said President Racziewicz "has asked the Ministers to continue their duties until such time as a new Cabinet will be formed.

"The President has ordered national and military mourning," the statement said, "and has appealed to the nation to pay homage to the memory of General Sikorski by redoubling their efforts in the Polish cause."

"The tragic death of Sikorski is an enormous loss to us—an almost irreparable loss"—said Stanislaw Kot, Polish Minister of Information. "The general was not only the symbol but the real factor in our struggle and unceasing fight to recover independence."

Sent Fourth of July Message

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt received today a Fourth of July message sent by General Wladislaw Sikorski a short time before he was killed in an air accident at Gibraltar. It expressed faith in America and confidence in ultimate victory for the United Nations.

"I wish today, the Fourth of July, to pay my sincere homage to the great American nation," said the message, "especially as I am spending it as a guest of the Governor at Gibraltar, where I have met some of your officers. I am convinced that under you, Mr. President, the inspired leader of the American nation, and in close collaboration with Great Britain, the victory will soon come to the United Nations. This victory will not only crush the enemy but also bring into being your principles of freedom and justice."

ROOSEVELT PRAISES SIKORSKI'S DEVOTION

Message to Polish President Says Death Is Blow to Allies

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today the death of the Polish Premier, General Wladislaw Sikorski, killed in an air accident at Gibraltar, was "a severe loss to all freedom-loving people."

In a message to the Polish President, Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, Mr. Roosevelt recalled General Sikorski's several visits to Washington and said he had learned to admire "his integrity, his patriotism and those great qualities of leadership which so fully justified the confidence which you and the Polish people placed in him."

"His high sense of statesmanship and devotion to the cause of liberty and democracy," the message continued, "made him one of the outstanding leaders of our time. His passing represents a severe loss to all freedom-loving people."

Today President Roosevelt received a Fourth of July message General Sikorski had sent from Gibraltar before the fatal take-off, expressing faith in America and confidence in ultimate victory for the United Nations.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull sent a message of sympathy to the Polish Foreign Minister, Count Edward Raczynski, praising General Sikorski's sincerity of purpose, high-minded devotion to duty and outstanding statesmanship.

MANY NOTABLES DIED IN WARTIME CRASHES

Sikorski Was First Government Head to Be Killed

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—General Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish Government-in-exile, was the first head of a government killed in a war air crash, although he and other leaders, including Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, had flown hundreds of thousands of miles.

He is one of a long list of notables, however, who have lost their lives in wartime travel.

Only two months ago United States Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Methodist Bishop Adna Leonard, and high United States Air Force officers were killed in a crash in Iceland.

Three weeks later actor Leslie Howard was lost on a ferry plane from Lisbon, shot down by Axis warcraft which some thought might have been gunning for Mr. Churchill, who was en route from conferences in the United States.

The Duke of Kent, brother of King George VI, was killed in the crash of a Sunderland flying boat in Scotland when en route to Iceland Aug. 25, 1942, on military duty.

RAF BOMBERS ARE REPORTED OVER EUROPE

JUL 6 - 1943

Mission Seen As Followup Of July 4 Attacks By American Planes

Damage To Gnome-Rhone Plant Among Results Of Earlier Foray

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, July 6—British Bombers were reported over the Continent early today, presumably continuing the Allied air offensive which in a July Fourth American assault damaged much of the Gnome-Rhone Aero factory at Le Mans, France.

Two French radio stations and one in Germany went off the air after midnight, usually an indication that attacking planes are expected. The Berlin radio, as heard by the Daily Sketch, said a strong formation of British bombers had crossed the Channel and that German naval batteries shot down five of them.

Results Satisfactory

The assault on the Le Mans plant was made by eight Air Force bombers and United States Army headquarters announced that photographs showed that bombing results were "satisfactory."

Many hits were scored on an aircraft depot close to the Chateau Bougon airdrome near Nantes, one of the largest establishments in France for storage and repair of Heinkel 111s.

Direct hits were registered on a freight yard near the Gnome-Rhone works and at least four craters were left in the track bed. About ten freightcars were destroyed and several others were severely damaged or derailed.

100 Craters In Airdrome

More than a hundred craters were blown into the Le Mans-Arnage airdrome, including twenty-five on the main runway, the photographs showed. A U-shaped aircraft shelter was destroyed and another in a dispersal area was damaged.

At La Pallice a heavily-armed escort ship received a direct hit, dry dock installations were damaged, two bombs smashed into a large shed and there appeared to be other hits on a concrete shelter over a new lock, it was announced.

Capt. Raymond P. Ketelson of Houston, Tex., pilot of the "Inferno," the lead ship of one of the formations attacking Le Mans, said "We made a pile of bricks out of the factory."

"I bet they don't put out another engine for six months," he said.

Aircraft Depot Blasted

Second Lieut. Francis H. Exell of Nashville, Tenn., bombardier in a group which led the attack on Nantes, said "There was absolutely nothing left of the aircraft depot, because bombs covered the whole area. I don't think we'll have to go back to that target."

Fliers regarded the German fighters about La Pallice as battle shy.

Lieut. R. Ozier of Nashville, Tenn., bombardier on the "Rikki Tikki Tazzi," said he saw only four and of those only one started to come in.

"But our guns were too much for his liver, I guess, for he peeled away at 400 yards and took a powder," he said.

At the same time the Air ministry news service reported that photographic experts confirmed "heavy industrial damage" was caused in Cologne by the R.A.F. raids of June 28 and July 3.

Rail Station Damaged

In the first raid, when targets on the west side of the Rhine were attacked, the great Gereon railway yard, the main rail station and many industrial plants were "severely damaged," it said.

In the second raid the objectives were the Kalk and Deutz districts on the east side of the Rhine and large industrial areas were heavily damaged.

A reconnaissance pilot found the area still covered by clouds and black smoke yesterday.

The news service said these two raids on Cologne within a week unloaded "well over twice" the weight in bombs dropped in the 1,000-bomber attack and "devastation has been far greater."

A preliminary examination of photographs, it said, indicated that the "north transept of the Cathedral sustained some roof damage but the rest of the structure appears to be unaffected."

The two "huge factories" of Hunboldt-Deutz that made many of the Diesel engines for U-boats were reported damaged. Despite a pall of smoke over the larger factory, the photographs showed a "great many buildings" hit, while at the second works "heavy damage" could be seen plainly.

"The damage," said the bulletin, "makes it certain that at the very least, production at Cologne will have been seriously affected and this in turn must affect the whole U-boat program."

Many other factories were hit and "railway damage was "severe."

The Air ministry news service also reported Royal Air force Mustangs shot up six locomotives and attacked other ground targets including railway buildings, engine sheds and freight cars over northern France today.

Twenty to 30 German soldiers on bicycles who were fired on near Abbeville "fell off their bikes and several dived into a hedge," one pilot reported.

Two Spitfires on patrol off the French coast damaged a coastwise vessel.

Paul Patterson, Mark Watson And Lee McCardell View Ceremony

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 5—For the first time in history the United States flag was run up over the Press Association-Reuters building in Fleet street this morning in an Independence Day ceremony.

The flag was presented by the Associated Press to W. J. Haley, joint managing director of the Manchester Guardian and the Manchester Evening News and a director of Reuters and the Press Association, during his recent visit to New York.

On the roof top overlooking London's newspaper row and the vast bombed areas of the East End, the flag was raised by a color guard of United States forces in the presence of several British and American notables.

Began 9 Months Ago

The story of the presentation of the flag began nine months ago when the first parade of United States forces in London during the present war marched past the Press Association-Reuters building to a ceremonial luncheon at Guildhall.

James Bone, of the Manchester Guardian, telegraphed Haley "No Old Glory flying over PA-Reuters Building. Cabling Kent Cooper (executive director of the Associated Press). Stand from under."

When Haley inquired of Press Association directors why no American flag was purchased for the occasion they told him that a flag was unobtainable because Britain's three principal flagmakers had been bombed out.

Carried Union Jack

So Haley and C. J. Chancellor, joint general manager of Reuters, who were going to the United States, carried with them a Union Jack for presentation to the Associated Press. They received in return the American flag which was run up today.

While workers in near-by newspaper offices craned their necks out of windows, Paul Patterson, president and executive director of the Baltimore Sunpapers and a director of the Associated Press, and a group of British and American newspapermen watched the flag being raised.

Included in the party besides Haley and Chancellor, were:

ROBERT BUNNELLE, chief of the London bureau of Associated Press.

A. MCLEAON EWING, a director of the Glasgow Herald and of Reuters and the Press Association.

ROBERT T. LEWIS, managing editor of the Manchester edition of the London Daily Mail.

HENRY MARTIN, editor-in-chief of Press Association.

MARK S. WATSON, military correspondent, of the Baltimore Sun, and LEE MCCARDELL, Sunpapers correspondent.

EDWARD W. DAVIES, general manager of Press Association.

W. J. MOLONEY, joint general manager of Reuters.

NAZI DEPOT LEVELED BY FRENCH PATRIOTS

LONDON, July 5—(AP) A Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor said today that French patriots at Marseille recently blew up German military barracks, killing and injuring at least 80 Nazis.

The report, given out by the Soviet Information bureau, said that in other patriot attacks, a group halted a column of German trucks near Toulouse, killing 20 Nazis and destroying 11 vehicles.

In Haute Savoie a party of armed Frenchmen forced their way into a German arms depot, killing the guards and capturing a number of machine-guns, the broadcast said. They burned the building when they left.

Stranded Axis Ship Attacked ByBeaufighters

London, July 5 (AP)—A heavily loaded German supply ship stranded on a reef off the Norwegian coast was almost certainly destroyed last night by RAF Beaufighters guided to the spot by a Norwegian pilot, the Air Ministry News Service said today.

The Beaughters, diving through a heavy fire from anti-aircraft batteries ashore, loosed bombs and cannon shells upon the vessel and left her burning and listing heavily, it was announced. The victim was described as medium sized.

One aircraft is missing from the raid.

Greek Submarine Sinks Ship

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—The Greek Government-in-Exile announced today that the Greek submarine Katsonis had sunk a small Axis supply ship in the Mediterranean. "In Karlovasi harbor, off the island of Samos, she also attacked with a torpedo and probably hit a transport of large size," the communiqué stated.

Nazis Report Four Sinkings

LONDON, July 5 (AP).—The German radio asserted today that German submarines have sunk four Allied merchant ships totaling 21,000 tons in an attack "on a very strongly protected convoy in the Mediterranean." The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, was unconfirmed by any Allied source. The date of the asserted action was not given.

London, July 5 (AP)—For courage and skill in action, two Americans with the Royal Canadian Air Force have been awarded British flying decorations, it was announced today.

Flying Officer Thomas R. Wilby, 24, a native of Richmond, Va., was given the Distinguished Flying Cross for displaying "courage, fortitude and skill of the highest order" in air operations.

The Distinguished Flying Medal was conferred upon Sergt. Stanley Gaunt, 22, of Pascoag, R. I., the citation reading that he was captain of an aircraft hit repeatedly by anti-aircraft fire when illuminated by searchlights in an attack on Dortmund in May, but he flew his damaged machine back to Britain displaying "great courage, skill and coolness throughout."

Texan, Once A Private, Now A Brigadier General

London, July 5 (AP)—The promotion of Col. Frank S. Ross, of El Paso, Texas, organizer of transportation facilities for the United States Army in Great Britain and North Africa, to the rank of Brigadier General was announced by United States Army headquarters here today.

Ross, who has risen from the rank of private in the Texas National Guard since 1916, will continue in his present job, headquarters officials said. He was a lieutenant colonel in the general staff corps in Washington when war was declared and arrived in Great Britain as army transportation chief in May, 1942. His wife lives in Washington.

Would End Philosophy Behind Nazi War Power

London, July 5 (AP) — Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister, told the American Society at an Independence Day luncheon today that after the war "every possible step must be taken to prevent that awful and abominable philosophy which has actuated the war powers of Germany for so many years."

Behind the whole of that philosophy, Bevin said, "is cold-blooded calculated militarism."

Bevin's audience included United States Ambassador John G. Winant, who presided; Lieut. Gen. Jacob L.

Devers, commanding United States forces in the European theater; Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the Eighth Army Air Force, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, commanding the United States naval forces in Europe.

During her trip to the western hemisphere she visited with President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Pacific Drive Bolsters London Stock Exchange

London, July 5 (AP)—The Stock Exchange, which generally is not as quick to react to war news as is Wall Street, experienced its busiest day in nearly two months today with attention focused on shares bearing a Far East interest.

The American offensive in the Pacific was held responsible for the buying. Rubber and tin were particularly prominent and gains also were seen in Far East banking and oil shares.

ITALIAN LEAVES CANCELLED

'Twerps' Oust Col. Blimp As Britain's Chief Pain

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 5—That fumbling fuddy-duddy, "Colonel Blimp" of cartoon fame, has been pretty well run out of Britain, Admiral Sir Edward Evans told a youth rally today, adding that now it was up to youth to stamp out the "Twerps."

The London Regional Commissioner described the "Twerps" as "those who go on strike without justification, those who do nothing for the war effort but moan and those perfectly fit men who will not do fire watch."

JUL 6 - 1943

By BARBARA WACE,
Associated Press Correspondent.

LONDON.—"Isn't it lovely to live in a blitzed area, Duckie? You don't have to stand in a queue or anything."

An old London charwoman, bucket and brushes in one hand, here new combined ration book, identity card and clothes coupons clutched firmly in the other, trailed happily down the stairs of the Ministry of Food depot in Cheapside, in the district which London calls "the city."

Depots in the residential suburban areas had been besieged by hundreds of harried housewives. Queues and five-hour delays were the usual thing. But the handful of residents still in the sadly damaged "city" area between Fleet street, where the great newspaper offices can be found, to the Mansion House, home of the lord mayor, had no trouble at all. The depot had the leisurely, unhurried atmosphere of a village store.

Looking back on six hectic weeks of flat hunting, and a final, never-to-be-forgotten 10 days of wartime moving, I felt inclined to agree with the charwoman.

Finding a place to live in London had proved worse than in Washington, D. C., and that's saying something! On top of overcrowding, a large percentage of London's buildings are uninhabitable because of raid damage.

Worn Out by House Hunting.

My hunt had worn me out. My feet hurt, my head ached. I felt so hopeless that I had even started negotiations for a basement flat without bathroom or kitchen.

But something besides an urge for beer guided me into the "Clachan"—an inn off Fleet street—and I asked the buxom publican's wife if she could help.

"Nobody has lived in them two rooms on the third floor here since we came in 1940. You ring up the Brewers, dear, and see what they say. It would be nice to have somebody like you up there."

After weeks of having front doors slammed in my face, it seemed too good to be true.

Now I am settled, or as settled as one can be in wartime England, in No. 11 Old Mitre Court. One room looks towards Fleet street, and the friendly smell of beer floats up from below in the evenings ,and the fireguards gossip in the court which was once part of the yard of the famous Old Mitre Tavern in the 17th Century. The other room looks across what was once 7, 8, 9 and 10 Old Mitre Court to the Temple and the river. They have made a water tank of the remains of some of the houses, and the firemen practice working their hoses in the long summer evenings.

Living in the city really is rather like living in a village nowadays. The residents fought side by side against the fire of London in 1941. Everybody knows everybody else. How would they treat an outsider who hadn't been there?

I soon learned. It started with the telephone man. Getting a telephone usually is almost impossible. But a newspaper reporter has priority, and my telephone actually was in before anything else—long before.

Telephone Man Helpful.

But the telephone man did much more than that. He told me where I might get some curtain rods, which are almost unobtainable, gave me some tips on converting bedspreads into curtains to save coupons, and almost pursuaded me to grow tomatoes in a water tank in my bedroom.

The Brewers are good landlords, for they had the flat painted and washed, but it had to be beige. That was all the painters could get. And lucky at that.

It took a week, and visits to 11 shops, before I could get a latchkey cut.

I had to buy a geyser, a contraption for heating water with gas. Half of it came but the other half had to be got from a factory doing war priority work and it didn't arrive until 10 days after I moved in —10 days of trying to clean the place and myself with cold water. The cook stove was late, too, and when it did come it didn't fit, and had to go away again. But there's one in now.

Then the gas heater was put in, and looked fine to me, but when I came to light it I found the aged workman had left something out. So I got a cold.

It was then that I found the Rowells. Mrs Rowell, who used to live in Milwaukee, came back after her husband died, and went to live in Dr. Johnson's house in Gough Square, Fleet street, with her old mother and her daughter, Betty. The old house, which once belonged to the writer who was immortalized by Boswell, belongs to a trust formed by Lord Harmsworth which has made it the property of all English speaking people for all time. For 30 years Mrs. Rowell and her mother have shown tourists around the historic old house, and during the blitz she and her daughter fought the incendiary bombs which destroyed nearly all the nearby buildings.

'Edward' Solves Problem.

Mrs. Rowell found me standing hopelessly beside a sofa with the furniture movers, two aged men and an idiot. "It's no good, Miss," they insisted. "It won't go up the stairs."

"Nonsense," said Mrs. Rowell, "I'll send Edward round at once."

Edward came. He is Betty's husband. Large, florid, absolutely impurturbable, he took off his blue National Fire Service coat, got the movers working, and in five minutes the sofa was in the living room and the rest of the furniture following it. I lost him for a few minutes, and back he came with matches, a quarter of a pound of coffee and some bread. "You'd better have something for breakfast," he said firmly.

That was the beginning of a long series of neighborly actions. Mrs. Rowell and Betty washed the china —Edward laid the carpets.

One carpet was full of moths, because wartime warehouses can't give much attention. For three days at lunch time I combed the shops for some exterminator, with no luck.

"But what do you do?" I asked, "for you can't get them demothed at the cleaners under two or three months."

"I don't know, miss, I'm sure," replied the unconcerned shop assistant.

Ultimately mother sent some from my home on the southeast coast. These tip-and-run raided towns.

where the "little battle of Britain" is fought, have many things unobtainable in London. The population has dwindled and the shops still have old stocks.

I had sheets and crockery and supplemented my furniture by borrowing. If I hadn't I'd have had a hard time. You can't buy sheets now, except an odd pair occasionally —and the only ones I heard of were $50 a pair. Towels take coupons. So do curtains.

Things Hard to Get.

Things like scrubbing brushes are now three times the price they used to be. Carpets have a 100 per cent tax. A member recently told the House of Commons that furnishing a small house today costs $680, against $260 before the war. I couldn't buy a scourer for my one saucepan, and I used my soap ration getting the place clean to start with and must wait for next week to get soap flakes for my laundry.

It's hard to get a scrubwoman. I found one finishing the office stairs as I came in one morning and borrowed her when she was through. Down Fleet street we want, scrubbing brush, bucket, apron and all. And one of the office traffic men is going to fix my shelves when he comes off duty one morning. (In the Associated Press the men who operate and maintain the teletype machines are known as "traffic men.")

There are some other snags, too. Anybody who comes to see me has to shout up three stories from the court below, against the Fleet street traffic noise, as I have no doorbell yet. My landlord has promised, but it's slow coming. So far the office boy with a message gets top marks, for whistling piercingly through his teeth. He brought me running from the back room. A high-ranking officer came out worst. He had a definite complex about shouting outside pubs. But the firewatcher came to his aid and brought me down with a tremendous yell. He stayed there for half an hour while my Sunday teatime guests arrived, aided considerably by a small boy who thought it loads of fun.

"You all right?" came a friendly call across the court. "I don't mean to interfere, but you've gone to bed so early lately I thought there might be something wrong when I saw your flashlight." And sending a beam with his across the court in a friendly salutation, he added: "Let me know when you want a butler again to announce your guests!" And went on talking to the policeman on duty.

43 ENEMY PLANES BLASTED BY ALLIES IN RAID ON SICILY

JUL 6 - 1943

Axis Puts Up Desperate Resistance, Downing 13 U. S., British Aircraft.

FIVE AIRFIELDS HIT

Holiday Air Battles Among Most Bitter in Mediterranean Campaign.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 5—(AP) In a blazing struggle for air mastery over Sicily, American and British war planes smashed key enemy airfields and knocked 43 enemy fighters out of the sky during a great July Fourth aerial offensive.

Five of the big island's ten air bases shook under bombs despite frantic counterattacks against the resolute Allied raiders by possibly 200 German and Italian interceptors.

It was one of the bitterest days of the Mediterranean campaign, General Eisenhower's headquarters made clear today in a communique observing:

"The enemy resisted determinedly."

13 Allied Planes Lost

Allied losses were 13 planes in hotly concentrated operations by both arms of the Northwest Africa air force—strategic and tactical.

The destruction of an Italian seaplane off the coast and of an enemy float plane brought the total enemy losses to 45.

The Middle East air force based in Cairo joined the African wing in the action, R.A.F. heavy bombers centering their fire upon the railway yards at Catania, Sicily.

The North Africa force was over Catania, Gerbini, Sciacca, Comiso and Milo; Malta-based British fighters acted as escorts for some of the U. S. bombers.

Everywhere the Axis defense was desperate. At Catania, for example, Flying Fortresses smashed at least 18 enemy planes in combat as they drove in to attack the airdrome.

Fires Rage at Catania

At Catania fires were left raging; two conflagrations swept Sciacca field; at Milo it was the same story; at Comiso enemy aircraft caught on the ground were sprayed with fragmentation bombs; at Gerbini at least 20 enemy planes were destroyed in the sky by Mitchells, Lightnings and Marauders.

The Germans in particular were described as "very aggressive—" so said Major A. B. Hughes of Center, Tex.

(The Italian high command, in a broadcast from Rome, spoke of "fierce battles" aloft, acknowledging damage both in Sicily and Cagliari Province, but claiming that "in the last two days" 108 Allied planes had been shot down over Italian territory.)

The offensive against Sicily rose to a violence as great as those which crushed enemy air resistance in Tunisia in May and conquered Pantelleria in June.

Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, while drawing upon formations of R.A.F. heavy bombers from the Middle East for the Catania attack, sent Wellingtons from northwest Africa to smash at Trapani harbor and venture up the Italian mainland to within 15 miles of Rome for a raid on the seaplane base of Lido di Roma.

American Mitchells and R.A.F. Bostons attacked together in the bombing of Comiso airfield before dawn yesterday—the first reported night operation by American elements of the tactical air force.

The coming of daylight then brought a series of staggering blows against enemy air defenses by American Fortresses, Marauders, Mitchells and Bostons.

JUL 6 - 1943

In a single action—over Catania—the Axis attacked with a force of 75 fighters, but the American loss there was a single bomber.

American Warhawks defending Boston bombers over Sciacca fought off 30 Axis planes, destroying five there.

Shield For Defense

Sicily, a triangular shield for the Axis defense of southern Europe, represents the toughest assignment which the Allied air forces in the Mediterranean have yet undertaken.

To the enemy, Sicily is valuable as an unsinkable aircraft carrier. The mountainous island of 9,926 square miles and with a peacetime population of just under 4,000,000, commands one side of the bottleneck strait through which every Allied convoy from Gibraltar to Suez must pass.

COMMANDOS RAID CRETE AIRFIELDS, DESTROY PLANES

British Force Lands on Nazi-Held Island During Night

JUL 5 - 1943

OIL DUMPS SET AFIRE

Troops Withdraw Safely after Carrying Out Mission.

LONDON, July 5 — (AP) In a hard, quick thrust, small bodies of British troops landed last night on Axis-held Crete, raided enemy airfields, destroyed grounded planes and withdrew safely from that heavily - defended Mediterranean stronghold.

A number of oil dumps also were left blazing. The raiders were all British, many of whom had previously fought in Crete before Allied forces were beaten off the Greek island in 1941.

All Patrols Return

A Cairo communique announced today that "operations were successful" and that all British patrols—in all likelihood they were Commandos—had returned.

The strongest efforts were made, however, to make it plain that this was not the start of an invasion and the British Ministry of Information sent a special broadcast to the people of Crete urging them to remain quiet and not betray themselves by premature resistance.

The Axis was caught unaware by the landing, which was from shallow draft vessels such as might spearhead any invasion.

One of the first questions to arise was what had happened to the minefields which Axis propaganda had reported were sown so heavily along all shores menaced by the Allied armies. There was no official answer to that, and this and other circumstances obviously fitted into the general strategy of the war of nerves against the Axis.

Crete, captured by the Germans in May of 1941 but never wholly cleared of guerrilla resistance, has eight air bases, none far from the seashore and most of them stretching along the northern side of the island.

Nazis Silent on Raid

Late tonight, the Germans still had said nothing of the raid—an indication of great reluctance to add that fresh worry to the Nazi home front.

This was the broadcast to Crete:

"You have heard the communique which announces the raids on Crete by British forces. You know that these forces neither asked nor received any assistance from the local inhabitants.

"The Germans know this, too. They may try to spread the story that the British have landed and the invasion has begun. They want to drive you into exposing yourselves into premature action and into giving them an opportunity to wreak their savagery upon you.

"For the moment, resist these tricks and remain quiet and watch. The Germans will commit their usual crimes and you may expect their so-called reprisals on innocent persons. If this happens you must bear it knowing that the victims by their sufferings and calmness contribute to the longed-for purpose of the common struggle.

"Furthermore, the Germans know you have no responsibility for these raids. If they take any action against you they are committing a breach of international law. They know they will be punished for any outrages they commit. The day is coming when they will pay for all their crimes.

Invasion to Come

"This time, no action is required of you. This is not an invasion. The day is coming when the signal will be given for the warriors of Crete to fight side by side with the invasion forces to exact justice for your enemy's crimes.

"Until then stay in your places. Avoid giving provocation to the enemy. Await your moment."

Vague reports from Ankara quoted in a British broadcast said that rioting broke out in several of the Dodecanese islands which have been ravaged by starvation, dysentery and typhoid.

The Italian governor of Rhodes was said to have been killed, the unconfirmed report said.

GLOOMY FOURTH ENDS IN HIKE AND JOLLITY

British Officers Play Host to Americans in Africa

JUL 6 - 1943

AN OFFICERS' TRAINING CAMP in North Africa, July 5 (AP) —It was the Fourth of July in this joint British and American officers' training camp, and the day was not very old before the American quartermaster sergeant and the British stores sergeant were angrily comparing notes.

The American said that "some so-and-so busted into the storeroom last night and stole thirty pounds of sugar and a whole hell of a lot of bread and coffee!" The British sergeant replied sadly that "our whole month's ration of whisky has disappeared."

As the day wore on the American officers began to be a little disgusted, too. No announcement was posted about a Fourth of July celebration. The camp was to follow its usual routine. There would be a route march at 5 o'clock.

They fell in on the parade ground and started up the trail. They noticed that the American general was making the march, but they did not see any British officers. They murmured: "It's our holiday and they get the day off. Can you beat it?"

The trail led through a grove winding up and down the slopes of the mountain. The sun was nearly down when they emerged into a clearing.

Just ahead, in an open space among the trees, the British officers were lined up in two files. They were singing "The Star-Spangled Banner." An American flag waved above their heads.

Near by was a long table covered with dishes, glasses and large pitchers. When the anthem ended, they all crowded around the table and drank the first of many toasts to America's holiday.

A British officer said: "We had to steal some sugar from your stores last night—didn't have enough to make whisky sours for you." Then he apologized for making whisky sours with Scotch. "But that's all we had," he added.

U. S. FIGHTER SQUADRON BAGS ITS 100TH VICTIM

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 5—(AP) A United States Spitfire fighter group ran its score of enemy aircraft victim to 100 exactly a year from the day it came abroad and credit for the "century" went to Lieut. Charles T. O'Connor of Omaha, Neb.

Lieut. O'Connor sent a Focke-Wulf 190 crashing into the Mediterranean on July 1 for his first triumph.

The group is commanded by Major James S. Coward, 25, of Erwin, Tenn. In addition to 100 enemy planes definitely destroyed it is credited with 18 probably destroyed and many others damaged.

New Pilot Learns Germans Are Real —And They Shoot

By GEORGE TUCKER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

CAIRO, July 5.—I was on a desert landing field 1,000 miles from here with Maj. Harry Bowers of St. Louis when a new B-24 came in from California. We jumped into a jeep and went out to meet it.

A young man got out and introduced himself as Lt. James A. Deeds of Oakland, Calif.

"Tell me," said Lt. Deeds, who piloted the plane, "do they really see Germans around here?"

"I guess they do, son," said the major. "They come home sometimes full of bullet holes.

Maj. Bowers motioned toward a formation of bombers returning from a raid on ferry terminal installations at Messina. They were swinging our way and dropping. Maj. Bowers said:

"Ask them to tell you about it. They ought to know."

Lt. Deeds stared steadily at the formation. He knew that in a few days he would be coming back like that. He asked, "How many went out on that raid, major?"

All Planes Return.

Maj. Bowers said he thought there were about 40 and Lt. Deeds shot a quick look at the incoming planes and exclaimed:

"And only nine came back!"

"No, son," said the major. "That's only the first formation. The others will be along soon. They get strung out like that sometimes."

Soon a second formation appeared—then others and, finally, all the planes were back.

Lt. Deeds and his companions boarded a truck which took them to report to their new commanding officers. Maj. Bowers and I walked to one ship whose ground crew was making a check. I walked around her and saw two small holes in the fuselage. Ack-ack. I looked closely at the ship and suddenly discovered a yellow circle around her insignia.

Noticing my surprise, Maj. Bowers asked, "Didn't you know about that?"

"No," I said.

Insignia Changed.

"There are hundreds of planes in this desert and they've all got it," he said, explaining that the order had come about two weeks ago and that the insignia on every American plane in the Middle East had been changed.

Until then our insignia had been a big white star on round field blue. Now all the stars on the wings and fuselage are inclosed by a wide yellow band.

Reasons for the change were given as better visibility and security. Sometimes, in the peculiar light of the Mediterranean, insignia have been confused with German markings. The yellow circle makes things positive.

I was astounded that I hadn't noticed the new insignia before—they screamed out like circus posters.

"Stick around a while," said Maj. Bowers, "and I'll teach you some of the facts of life about this war."

GETS SOLDIER'S MEDAL

Sergt. Parmeter of Chillicothe, Ohio, Is Decorated in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt, July 5 (AP)—Sgt. Harry M. Parmeter of the United States Army Services of Supply, whose home is at Chillicothe, Ohio, received the Soldier's Medal today for saving the lives of three Indian guards who were trapped in a burning truck.

The presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Gilbert Cheves of the Services of Supply.

The citation said: "Parmeter's heroic action in helping save the lives of comrades of the Allied forces exemplifies the highest tradition of the United States Army."

Parmeter was burned severely in effecting the rescues.

GREEKS TO MAKE CHOICE ON POST-WAR REGIME

CAIRO, July 5.—(AP) The Greek government-in-exile of King George contemplates a program of free elections after the Axis conquerors have been expelled from the homeland whereby the Greek people may choose their form of government—either with or without a king—Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos declared today.

Elaborating on a broadcast by the King to the Greek people yesterday in which he assured them they would be permitted to elect a representative assembly as soon as military expediency warranted, Tsouderos said this meant the people would be free to choose a new form of government—whether it be a democratic monarchy or a republic.

U. S. WORKERS IN IRAN RUSH GOODS FOR REDS

AT AN IRANIAN PORT ON THE PERSIAN GULF, July 4—(Delayed)—(AP) One thousand American Army dock-wallopers and other soldier-workmen went on parade today—but the Fourth of July wasn't the only event they were celebrating.

They were celebrating, too, the fact that the tonnage of war supplies that had passed through to Russia was fast approaching seven figures for less than seven months, and they had official documents to prove it.

Major-Gen. Donald H. Connolly, commanding the Persian gulf supply command, announced the tonnage from the reviewing stand and called it "Uncle Sam's present to Uncle Joe Stalin."

Then he conferred hero's medals upon Corp. Hugh F. Menton of Crockett, Calif., for rescuing two native workmen from drowning, and Pvt. John P. Powers, of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., for saving 12 loaded cars on the Trans-Iranian railway which broke loose on a heavy grade and roared along out of control of 15 miles. He was a rear brakeman on the train. Menton formerly was a San Francisco longshoreman.

BURMA BASES HIT BY U. S. BOMBERS

Jetty Blasted at Akyab, Shweli Bridge Damaged.

NEW DELHI, July 5 — (AP) Four-engined Liberator bombers of the U. S. 10th air force bombed the jetty at Akyab and attacked the Shweli bridge in northern Burma yesterday, a communique announced today.

Medium Mitchell bombers also joined in the celebration of Independence day with heavy attacks on central Burma, dropping more than ten tons of bombs on the railway yards at Shwebo and scoring many direct hits on [illegible], rolling stock and ware[illegible] the communique said.

Many fires were left burning at Shwebo and one of them was accompanied by an explosion and black smoke indicating hits on oil storage tanks.

The Liberator crews reported damage to the Shweli bridge, but said clouds prevented observation of the destruction created by their bombs at Akyab.

Another formation attacked enemy barracks at Meiktila, where another ten tons of bombs were said to have burst in the target area. An enemy plane was shot up on a nearby air field at Kanguang.

Tenth air force headquarters also announced that bombs were dumped on the railroad yards at Prome Saturday. Hits were reported in the target area.

All planes and crews returned safely from the week-end operations, the communique said.

Hearn Made Major General

CHUNGKING, July 5 (AP).—Brigadier General Thomas G. Hearn, chief of staff to Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell, commanding United States forces in China, India and Burma, was promoted to the rank of major general today.

NEW SUPPLY ROUTE TO CHINA CROSSES SECTION OF RUSSIA

Overland Line Brings Needed Goods from Allied Bases in India.

CHUNKING, July 5—(AP) Plans for a new backdoor supply route to China by way of the Turkestan-Siberian railroad were disclosed today as China, battered but still defiant and confident, prepared to mark the sixth anniversary of the war against invaders who had boasted they would bring her to her knees in three months.

The circuitous railroad route to shunt supplies from India through Iran and Russia was announced by Chinese Minister of Communications Tseng Yang-Fu, who said it was hoped shipments would begin

"in the nearest future."

Overland Route Used

Tseng declared that an overland supply line from Siberia into China has been "actively utilized ever since the Chinese-Japanese war broke out," but that China had not received as much as she had hoped for by that route. The disappointing result, he said, was due to the huge distance—it is 3,125 miles from Alma Ata to Chungking—Russia's war with Germany, and motor transport difficulties.

(Russia has maintained strict neutrality in the Oriental conflict among the Allies and Japan, and Tseng's announcement that plans have been concluded for use of the Siberian railroad was taken in some quarters as indicating Soviet willingness to help China.)

Tseng said he believed the air supply route from India to China would be developed further, but "before Burma is recaptured heavy military supplies cannot be brought in."

The minister disclosed that China, with some 10,500 of her 12,500 miles of railroads now in Japanese hands, is building several new lines despite difficulties of terrain and war. One new road will run 450 miles between Luichow in Kwangsi province and Kwieyang in Kweichow, and 250 miles already are in use, he said, and another extends the Lung-Hai railway 100 miles westward from Paochi to Tiensui.

Jap Attacks Repulsed

Meanwhile on the warfront the Chinese High Command reported repulse of Japanese attacks on three different sectors, and said Chinese forces recovered two points in fighting in Kwangtung province near Swatow. Japanese thrusts, it said, were turned back southwestward of Paotow in Suiyan province, near Chucheng in eastern Shantung. Three hundred of the enemy were killed in the latter battle, headquarters said.

On Wednesday, China will observe the "double seventh,"—the seventh day of the seventh month—when Japan struck six years ago. The approach of the anniversary brought confident statements from many of China's leaders.

China "bides her times to launch a general offensive," declared H. H. Kung, vice premier and minister of finance. He termed China "the most convenient advance base from which the war can and must be carried into the enemy camp," and said Chinese troops still are pinning down "the flower of the Japanese army."

War Minister and Army Chief of Staff General Ho Ying-Chin said "extermination of Japan as a military power" was entirely assured," and estimated Japanese casualties at 3,000,000, included losses inflicted by United States and British forces. Japan, he said, is facing an acute manpower shortage, is weaker in sea strength, outmatched in the air, short of material resources and running into food difficulties.

Minister of Information Chang Tao-Fan declared that China asked of her Allies that fatal blows be dealt upon Japan by closer Allied cooperation and unified strategy, and that China receive more arms.

Sun Fo, president of the legislative Yuan, suggested destruction of the Japanese military machine by shooting all Japanese officers above the rank of major general, interning or imprisoning for life all above the rank of lieutenant, and sentencing all non-commissioned officers to exile and hard labor.

Taking War to Japanese, Curtin Says in Broadcast

Adds Japan Will Feel 'Dynamic Blows' in Tokio Itself

CANBERRA, Australia, July 5 (AP).—Prime Minister Curtin declared in a special Independence Day broadcast today to America that "the war Japan brought to us, we now are taking to Japan."

"Japan," he declared, "is going to feel the dynamic blows of American and Australian fighting men, which will have repercussions in Tokio itself.

"I pledge the unbreakable unity of our two nations against the enemy."

Looking to the post-war period, Curtin said: "I hope that in peace Australia and America will play a noble, associated part in Pacific affairs. We look to the future confidently, but we must think of those in the Pacific who have lost their independence.

"We pledge ourselves that nothing shall be left undone, not an hour lost until independence is universal in the Pacific again."

Australian Inquiry Begun

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 5 (AP).—A royal commission appointed by Prime Minister John Curtin began inquiries today into Labor Minister E. J. Ward's allegations that an important home defense document was missing from the files of Australia's Advisory War Council.

BUENOS AIRES, July 5 (AP)—Charges of illicit association were lifted from thirty-one leaders of the German Cultural Welfare Circle by Judge Ramon Vasquez today after a higher court held the accusations, brought by a Congressional investigating committee, had not been proved.

6 STATES GO TO THAILAND

JUL 6—1943

Japan Cedes Four From Northern Malaya And Two From Burma

Tojo In Bangkok Rewards Siamese For Opening Way For Invasion

[By the Associated Press]

New York. July 5—Premier Hideki Tojo of Japan has ceded six states of Malaya and Burma to Thailand in reward for that puppet kingdom's surrender, which laid open an easy path of Nipponese invasion of the British possessions at the start of the Pacific war.

Announcements of the agreement to cede the territory and of Tojo's presence in Thailand were made by the Tokyo radio in broadcasts recorded here by the Associated Press.

Four northernmost Malay states totaling 14,770 square miles and a million natives, and two Shan states of about 24,000 square miles were parceled to the Japanese-dominated kingdom. The Tokyo radio made it a gala occasion for propaganda featuring such words as independence, coprosperity, honesty of purpose, political reconstruction and the like.

Rich In Rubber And Tin

The Malay states were Perlis, Kedah, Kelantan and Trengganu. These are rich in rubber, tin and rice. The Shan states of Burma were Kengtung, of about 12,000 square miles, and Mong Pan, about the same size. The Burma states border China, Thailand and French Indo-China.

Tojo was in the Thai capital of Bangkok Saturday and Sunday, made known the decision in a joint communique issued with the Thailand Premier, Field Marshal Luang Bipul Songgram. Tojo then went to Singapore where he conferred with Field Marshal Count Hisaichi, supreme Japanese commander in the southern area.

Little Effect Now On War

The move was the latest in a series of maneuvers by which the Japanese apparently were trying to win favor among the peoples of East Asia for their so-called greater East Asia coprosperity sphere.

So far as the Allied cause is concerned, the juggling of the occupied British possessions meant little because all areas involved are under Japanese domination. The transfer may be aimed at facilitating the occupation of the areas, switching that responsibility to Thailand and relieving Japanese troops for a tion elsewhere.

The Japanese radio called the move "sensational," and said among other things that Premier Tojo had found occasion to assert again "that invincible positions of Greater East Asia have been established in spite of attempts of the United States and Great Britain to retrieve their desperate situation."

Thailand Annexes Four Malay States By Jap Agreement

By the Associated Press.

The Japanese radio announced today that Japan had agreed to Thailand's annexation of the four northernmost Malay states, Perlis, Kedah, Kelantan and Trengganu, and two of the Shan provinces of Burma, Kengtung and Mong Pan.

The announcement, in a Domei dispatch from Bangkok broadcast by the Tokio radio and recorded by the Associated Press, was made in connection with the disclosure that Japan's premier, Gen. Hideki Tojo, had arrived in Singapore.

The Malay States, Domei noted, contain the points where the Japanese made their original landings at the outbreak of the Pacific war and from where they swept down the peninsula to seize the British naval base at Singapore.

That campaign was sprung in part from Thailand, where the Japanese had been permitted to establish bases.

A communique said Gen. Tojo and Thailand's premier, Field Marshal Luang Bipul Songgram, met yesterday to review "the prevailing global war situation and relations between Japan and Thailand and exchanged views as to measures to be taken for the consolidation of Greater East Asia and for successful prosecution of the common war."

Japan's agreement to Thailand's annexation of the four Malay States and two Burmese provinces, it said, was announced in a joint Thailand-Japanese communique issued in connection with Gen. Tojo's visit.

The annexed Malay States, the Japan radio said, had an area of 14,770 square miles and "formerly belonged to Thailand previous to their seizure and incorporation into the unfederated Malay States under British rule." Their combined population was given as slightly more than 1,000,000. Their resources include tin, rubber and rice.

Burma's Kengtung Province has an area of about 12,000 square miles. It borders on Southwest China. Mong Pan, southwest of Kengtung, is on the Northern Thailand border.

Mussolini Calls War Life and Death Struggle

JUL 6—1943

Admits Lagging Industry, Defeatism in Speech That Was Suppressed 12 Days

Premier Benito Mussolini, in a speech made public yesterday, replying to the Fascist party directorate's bid for control of Italy declared that "this war is a life-and-death struggle—we must persevere."

The speech was made June 24, and Axis radios made no effort to explain why its publication had been suppressed twelve days and suddenly featured with the greatest prominence in radio programs recorded by The Associated Press and the Office of War Information.

"The capitulation of Italy would mean shame, collapse, disarmament, the destruction of industry and the loss of art treasure which the enemy could take in lieu of payment," Mussolini said.

His rambling discourse, unusually long for the Italian dictator, contained admissions of faulty bureaucracy, lagging industry, black-market operations and defeatism among some elements.

"There are, of course, negative and opposing elements," he said, "but you can expect that among a nation of 46,000,000 that there will be a thousand or a hundred thousand individuals who oppose the war effort for personal reasons, by reason of a weak, nervous system or a poor state of health."

About industry he said: "More has to be done regarding industrial production. We must have the courage to eliminate all industries that do not justify their existence, and we must have courage to remove all industrialists who do not live up to the situation."

Speaking of bureaucracy which the directorate had flayed, he said: "Bureaucracy has recently been strengthened by young elements. Nevertheless, reform will be necessary in order to make it speedier and quicker in its decisions, and accustom it in all its grades to treat the public with the maximum of kindness."

Mussolini defended his action in taking Italy into the war in these words: "This war was not to be avoided lest Italy be compelled to commit suicide and renounce its rank as a historically great power."

Il Duce Tells Fascists Italy 'Must Hold Out'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 5.—Belatedly, the German radio quoted Premier Mussolini of Italy today as having told his Fascist Party Council June 24 "we must hold out. That is the demand of honor."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Mussolini asserted the Italian people now were certain the war was a matter of life and death, remarking:

"The enemy must not be proved right in his despicable allegation that the Italians are unable to resist to the twelfth hour, but would give in at a quarter to twelve."

The Italian leader also confirmed reports that strikes had broken out in Italian industry during March, but shrugged them off as "short and based on economic grounds; nowhere was it possible to make a political case out of them," the German broadcast said.

He warned his party directorate, it was said, "either we win this war, as I myself believe we will, with all determination, together with comrades of the Axis and the tripartite pact, or Italy will have the peace of shame and will be pushed back to the rank of a fourth or fifth rate power."

The directors were reported to have presented a nine-point demand for a more rigorous prosecution of the war.

Mussolini was said to have agreed to demands for more severe measures against black market operators.

What's Behind the War News

By GLENN BABB

The death of General Vladislaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government in exile, in an airplane crash at Gibraltar is a very real loss to the cause of the United Nations. Not only was Gen. Sikorski's leadership chiefly responsible for the considerable and growing Polish military contributions to the alliance but on him depended largely the hope of an early solution of the Polish issue on which there is a dangerous lack of accord between the Soviet Union and the western Allies.

His death draws attention again to the tragic plight of his country. Not only has the Polish fatherland been overrun in one of history's most ruthless conquests, but the Poles today are still without assurance that the defeat of their conqueror will mean the rebirth of their nation in anything like the form they desire.

Most of them hope for the reestablishment of the Polish state within the boundaries it occupied from 1919 to 1939. There is no power able and willing to promise this. On the contrary the power on whose friendship their future most largely depends, Soviet Russia, has given notice that the eastern half of Poland as constituted by the treaty of Versailles is now considered an integral part of the Soviet Union.

Late in April the Soviet government, bitterly denouncing the Sikorski regime's stand on the so-called Katyn forest murders, broke off relations with it. Both before and since this rupture a situation has developed which further menaces the position of the London Polish government in exile, which has the recognition and support of the United States and Britain. Joseph Stalin, having withdrawn recognition from that government, has shown marked favor to a group inside Russia called the Union of Polish Patriots. This is headed by Wanda Wassilevska, a Polish Communist and wife of Alexander E. Korneichuk, a Ukrainian playwright who holds the post of vice commissar of foreign affairs in the Soviet government.

Moreover the Soviet authorities are aiding in the formation of a "Koscfuszko division" made up of

JUL 6 - 1943

Poles inside Russia, appaarently as an offset to the Polish army, some 100,000 strong, commanded by General Anders under direction of the Sikorski government. The Anders army, which has been training in the Middle East for more than a year and has been well equipped by the United States and Britain, is believed to have been allotted an important place in the American-British plans for the invasion of Europe, especially if there is a drive from the southeast.

But Moscow apparently has been grooming the "Kosciuszko division" for the return to Poland and the march on Berlin.

Thus the Poles find themselves in the unenviable position of standing between two elements of the anti-Hitler alliance, providing an issue that endangers the solidarity of that alliance and faced by the possibility that before the war is over there may be rival governments in exile recognized and supported by the Atlantic powers on one hand and the Soviet Union on the other.

When he was killed, Gen. Sikorski had been in the Middle East to visit General Ander's army, which he found, he said, "spoiling for a fight," eager to take part in the invasion. While he was in Cairo there were persistent reports that progress had been made toward healing the breach with Moscow. These were not confirmed but Gen. Sikorski's passing is a severe blow to hopes of an Allied accord on the Polish issue which were aroused by them. Among Polish leaders Gen. Sikorski was rated one of those farthest toward the left and it is doubtful whether any of those remaining in the London regime has as good a chance of regaining the sympathy and confidence of Moscow.

Meanwhile the Polish issue remains a constant threat to Allied solidarity. It must be remembered that Stalin's latest assurance of Russian readiness to aid in the "creation of a strong and independent Poland" were given to Madame Wassilevska's group, not the government recognized by the other Allies. Moreover Moscow never has defined its ideas as to what would constitute "a strong and independent Poland," what its boundaries would be or its form of government.

Russia's interests admittedly are paramount in the post-war settlement in eastern Europe. But the United States and Britain also are vitally interested. Primarily they are interested in maintaining a common front for the job of destroying Hitler and ensuring agreements after the war that will give peace and security. The friction over Poland is a grave menace to these fundamental interests.

GIRAUD TO DISCUSS MILITARY EVENTS

Non-Political Theme of Washington Visit Stressed at White House.

WASHINGTAN July 5 — (AP) The White House laid heavy stress today on the strictly military and non-political nature of the impending Washington visit of General Henri Honore Giraud, commanding French troops in North and West Africa under General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Neither the exact time of the French officer's arrival nor the length of his stay was indicated. While he is coming at the personal invitation of President Roosevelt, he will not be a resident guest at the White House. The conference schedule arranged for him accents the purely military character of his mission.

Leahy to Meet Giraud

In making this known, Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, said this would be "emphasized" throughout Gen. Giraud's visit. Mr. Roosevelt designated his own chief-of-staff, Admiral William D. Leahy, to meet the general on his arrival and conduct him to the White House. He will be lodged during his stay at the Blair mansion, used to accomodate distinguished official guests.

Mr. Early said Gen. Giraud would spend much of his time in Washington with General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and also confer with War Secretary Henry L. Stimson and "other officials."

In arranging quarters for him in the Blair mansion rather than the White House, the non-political aspects of the visit were further stressed. Normally only heads of friendly states are entertained by the President as house guests.

With every indication that Allied attacks from French Africa on continental objectives or island outposts are impending it seems probable Gen. Giraud's stay in Washington will be brief.

Will Return to Africa

Gen. Eisenhower's insistence to the French Committee for National Liberation that Gen. Giraud retain command, at this stage, of French elements in Allied armies in French Africa implies that his presence at the time of contemplated attacks is essential. He must be expected back from Washington in time for that.

The official precaution taken to surround Gen. Giraud's trip to Washington with military rather than political significance is in line with immediate Allied policy in Africa as stated both in London and Washington. It appears aimed at assuring partisans of Gen. Charles de Gaulle that no political commitment to recognize Gen. Giraud as representative of French sovereignty is involved but only discussion of ways and means of pressing the campaign against the common foe.

Gen. Giraud is said by informed officials here to have been eager to lead his French troops back to France itself at the earliest possible moment. That project may figure importantly in his Washington conferences although more limited objectives appear to govern immediate offensive plans in the western Mediterranean theater.

Committee Dooms Guffey Act, Wanted by Miners, Operators

JUL 6 - 1943

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The one big desire shared alike by oft-warring coal miners and operators—extension of the Guffey coal act to stabilize the bituminous coal industry—ran today into a 13-11 House committee rejection. President Roosevelt wanted it, too.

Enacted in 1937 to put a floor under prices at the mine and thereby to prevent unregulated competition in an industry which had long been on the sick list, the act now will expire Aug. 23, barring an overthrow of the action taken by the Ways and Means Committee in executive session.

The committee voted behind closed doors, and individual members' stands were not announced. Committeemen said party lines split.

Mr. Roosevelt's written recommendation for continuance failed to win the committee over. He said:

"There were some indications that proponents will try to induce the Rules Committee tomorrow to order to the House floor legislation extending the act until Jan. 1.

"The whole coal situation is so unsettled that it would be helpful if any phase of it could be definitely concluded . . . I am again concerned about the failure to extend the Guffey coal act, and I hope the Ways and Means Committee will find it possible to conclude its hearings and report the bill favorably."

Argued Representative Jere Cooper, Democrat, of Tennessee, on the purpose of the act:

"I ask you if the coal industry has been stabilized? There has been more trouble in this industry than in any other in the country."

Coal operators reported that the strike appeared to be nearing an end. There was a rush of miners into the pits today in response to union appeals and the lure of overtime pay on the Independence Day holiday. It was estimated that about 50,000 of the 100,000 miners reported still out last week had returned to the pits today, and it appeared probable that most of the holdouts would be back by Wednesday.

Opponents of the extension contended that since the government is now operating the coal mines, following the series of United Mine Workers strikes, the act no longer is necessary. They also said it caused higher prices for consumers.

The act sets up machinery for a system of minimum prices on a regional basis at the mines. Operators who said they spoke for 75 per cent of the industry's commercial production have testified that they like it because of its price-stabilizing features. Representatives of the miners also have asked continuance as helpful to their pay envelopes.

A one-cent-per-ton tax is levied under the law and the proceeds go to defray expenses of price control. The Bituminous Coal Division, which administers the law under the Interior Department, has about twelve hundred employees. Some 450,000 miners in about 12,500 mines are affected.

The committee voted after it had heard H. L. Findlay, Ohio coal operator, testify that failure to continue the act would result in "such a severe shortage of coal in this country it will very seriously hinder the war effort."

"It is needed as much in war time as in peace," Mr. Findlay said, adding that if the act is allowed to expire, "a great many mining companies will face bankruptcy." He said that only 5 per cent of the coal operators had appeared in opposition to the act.

JONES FLAYS BEW IN FORMAL REPORT

JUL 6 - 1943

Commerce Chief Writes 7,500-Word Denial of Wallace's Charges.

WASHINGTON, July 5 — (AP) Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones fired 7,500 words of denial tonight to Vice President Wallace's charges of stalling on the home front and accused his fellow high official of unscrupulous tactics filled with "malice, innuendo, half-truths, and no truths at all."

If anybody is guilty of delaying the stockpiling of strategic materials, said Secretary Jones, it is Mr. Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare and not Secretary Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Wallace Out of Town

Mr. Wallace was out of town tonight, but Milo Perkins, executive director of BEW, carried on the feud in his behalf by accusing Secretary Jones of throwing up a "smoked screen" and of using a "Rip Van Winkle" approach to the problem of acquiring vital war materials.

"He has not proved and cannot prove that he bought what the vice president charged him with not buying," Mr. Perkins said in a letter to the Senate Appropriations committee.

It all started June 29 when Mr. Wallace complained that the RFC had "failed dismally" in building up these stockpiles when it had the job and then adopted "obstructionist tactics" which hampered the BEW when it took over. Mr. Wallace said the RFC moved too slowly and cautiously for wartime.

Safeguarded Treasury

Secretary Jones said today, writing the Senate Appropriations committee:

"As for the charge which Mr. Wallace appears to regard as a major crime, that I have attempted to safeguard the taxpayers' money, I must plead guilty.

"Squandering the people's money even in wartime is no proof of patriotism. The RFC does not pay $2.00 for something it can buy for $1.00. Maybe no one does, but the point is that some men know when you can buy it for $1.00, some don't know, and some don't care as long as they are spending other people's money."

Secretary Jones at one point said Mr. Wallace was guilty of "a falsehood out of whole cloth." This, he said, was a charge that Secretary Jones had given the Byrd economy committee "certain misinformation" as to relations between BEW and the RFC with respect to purchase of materials from abroad.

But salted throughout his counter-attack were words almost as strong.

Attacks BEW

There were such phrases as "silly and ridiculous," a reference to a 100-man BEW mission to Brazil as doing "little more than get in each other's way," one remark about board methods "bordering on the hysterical," and in a discussion of contract delays this comment:

"Since Feb. 25, 1943 all negotiations are handled by BEW. More's the pity."

Secretary Jones' statement took up various specific charges lodged by the vice president, treated them in detail and went on to call them "maliciously false."

Then, switching to the counter attack, it said "Mr. Wallace seeks to give the impression that BEW has somehow accomplished the impossible." to Counteract that impression, the commerce secretary charged:

Discussions concerning a mahogany purchase program were begun by BEW in June 1942 but "out of seven contracts for a total of 47,000,000 board feet of mahogany, no mahogany has been delivered even at this late date."

Hits Slow Action

That the basic terms of a contract for buying Peruvian antimony metal were agreed on in February but BEW did not submit the final draft until June.

That BEW took six weeks to make minor changes in a draft of a contract for the purchase of cobalt ore.

An overall agreement the RFC had for buying strategic materials from Peru expired last September and, although the BEW undertook to renew it, "they are apparently still negotiating."

BEW took seven and a half months to negotiate a contract for 6,000,000 to 9,000,000 gallons of Canadian alcohol, whereas in 1942 RFC bought 90,000,000 gallons of domestic alcohol and during this year probably will buy 350,000,000 gallons.

Six months have elapsed without a contract BEW sought to get in January for the purchase of additional pig bristles.

Reports Imports Held Up

BEW held up all new imports of dressed horsetail and mane hair from December, 1942 to June, 1943 and "in consequence RFC must now release to the trade a substantial portion of its stockpile."

Negotiations by BEW for Canadian vinyl acetate, used in plastics and in place of rubber cement, took from early January to the middle of March, whereas a similar contract was taken care of by RFC in less than a week.

BEW informed the RFC in January it would prepare certain needed amendments to an old RFC contract for Turkish chrome but "to date they have not been submitted."

Not even the White House, in the person of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, has been able to head off the airing of the feeling between the two high lieutenants of President Roosevelt. Mr. Byrnes got them together last Wednesday but the meeting, while reportedly polite, brought no agreement. Mr. Wallace did make clear he was not reflecting on the patriotism of the Secretary.

Secretary Jones explained how he felt about it today, saying in his letter to the committee:

"In my eleven years as a government official, I have consisently refrained from any public criticism of other government departments, and reluctant as I am to burden the Congress and the public with a detailed reply to Mr. Wallace, his tirade is so filled with malice, innuendo, half-truths, and no truths at all, that considerations of self-respect and of common justice to my associates force me to expose his unscrupulous tactics."

RFC is Service Agency

Explaining that the RFC functions as a service agency and not as a war policy-making agency, its head listed these as the sources of recommendations on which it acts: The President, the War Production board and its predecessor agencies, the State, War and Navy departments, the rubber director, the Maritime commission, the petroleum coordinator and the BEW.

"A very significant thing in this controversy," wrote Secretary Jones, "is the fact that not one of these agencies has had reason to complain, nor has any except BEW ever complained, of RFC's performance in the war effort, which has involved the authorization of expenditures of more than $20,000,000,000."

Elsewhere he said:

"Mr. Wallace's statement that I have harassed administrative employes of BEW in their single-minded effort to help shorten the war by securing adequate stocks of strategic materials is as silly and ridiculous as it is false.

"It is completely refuted by the record, which reveals that of RFC foreign purchases and commitments totalling $3,500,000,000 made since the middle of 1940, not more than 10 per cent has been acquired under programs initiated since BEW entered the field, April 13, 1942, and that of $1,600,000,000 in foreign materials already paid for

30.24—5709

by RFC, less than five per cent has come from such programs; and this after 15 months during which time BEW has frantically sent at great expense many 'missions' composed mostly of inexperienced men to all parts of the world."

Uses Experienced Agencies

"RFC has felt, and it has learned, that production is best brought out and handled through established and experienced agencies and not be sending great groups of inexperienced men to overrun foreign countries.

"While generous prices are desirable and often necessary in the war effort, lavish prices do not always increase production.

"Our immediate efforts in the foreign field should be concentrated on war procurement needs, and not on post-war ideologies. Furthermore, it is the unspectacular rather than the spectacular methods, and the quiet rather than the noisy approach, which accomplish the most.

"Mr. Wallace speaks of sending a hundred men to Brazil alone, on a single program. It is our belief that those hundred men, hastily recruited as they were, and with little or no familiarity with the work they were to do, have done little more than get in each other's way, and substitute confusion for order. That program would be in better shape today if most of those hundred men had stayed at home.

"If the policy of the RFC in dealing with private business at home and abroad, when possible, subjects me to Mr. Wallace's criticism, that cannot be helped. It is my belief that government should seek to preserve private business, use it wherever possible in the war effort, and operate directly only when necessary."

MINE STRIKE ENDS WITH MOST MEN RESUMING WORK

JUL 6 - 1943

Union Appeals, Lure of Overtime Pay Brings Miners Back.

PITTSBURGH, July 5 — (AP) Two weeks after it started, the big coal strike was near an end today, United Mine Workers officials reported, as thousands more miners returned to work in response to union appeals and the lure of overtime pay on the Independence day holiday.

Incomplete reports indicated approximately a 50 per cent drop in the 100,000 miners who last week still refused the U.M.W. policy committee order to end their work stoppage. There were still scattered holdouts, mainly in Pennsylvania and a few in Virginia and Tennessee, but more back-to-work votes by union locals were scheduled and operators joined union leaders in predicting that operations would be near normal by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Best Gain in Pennsylvania

The work resumption movement made its largest advance today in Pennsylvania, where about 55,000 out of 200,000 miners remained idle, as compared with 89,000 last Saturday.

Anthracite production jumped 15 per cent in eastern Pennsylvania, whose large mines were operating for the first time in two weeks.

In western Pennsylvania, several captive mines were among those reopening. The Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation received its first coal since the strike started from two of its four mines in the Pittsburgh area.

The U. S. Steel corporation reported its mines in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Kentucky were producing considerable tonnage today—the first Independence day on which U.M.W. members have worked. About 1,000 of the company's 6,600 Pennsylvania miners were still idle, but a spokesman for the firm expected them to return soon.

"The outlook is very encouraging," he said, announcing that two more U. S. Steel blast furnaces returned to production in the Pittsburgh district, leaving only six still down.

A big movement was indicated in Alabama, with captive mines operating near normal and most of the state's 24,000 coal diggers reported back at work.

Many of the rest of the nation's 521,000 miners already back at the pits also worked today at the holiday rate of time and one-half.

Roosevelt Opposes Bill Revising Aviation Set-Up

Fears Reorganization Would Be Unwise at Present Time

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt has expressed opposition to legislation which would revise the present set-up of aviation agencies, it was learned today.

The Chief Executive's objections were expressed in a letter addressed to Clarence F. Lea, Democrat, of California, of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The bill is pending in both Senate and House. Among other things it would remove the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Civil Aeronautics Administration from the Commerce Department, make the board supervisor over the administration and establish an independent director of accident investigations.

The C. A. B. now issues certificates for air-line operations, fixes mail pay rates, investigates accidents and generally supervises commercial aviation. The C. A. A. supervises safety measures and has control over the airports and airways.

Noting that the present organization appears to be "working satisfactorily," Mr. Roosevelt was reported to have said that he felt a reorganization would be unwise "at least at the present time," when the services of the two agencies are so greatly needed by the armed forces.

He expressed concern that the changes contemplated "would so distract the attention of officials and employees of these agencies, and so impair their working efficiency, as to seriously interfere with the contribution which they could otherwise make in the interest of securing successful civil aviation in the conduct of the war."

Defects Caused Sinking of Only 2 Liberty Ships

JUL 6 - 1943

Investigator of Structural Failures Praises Record of Maritime Commission

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Of the more than 1,000 Liberty ships built under the Maritime Commission's war construction program, only two have been lost as a result of structural defects, Representative Henry M. Jackson, Democrat, of Washington, said today.

Mr. Jackson, chairman of the House merchant marine subcommittee studying the structural failure question, said today the first phase of the subcommittee's study had been completed and a formal report would be made public soon following its submission to committee members.

The J. L. M. Curry, built by the Alabama Drydock and Shipbuilding Company, Mobile, encountered structural difficulties at sea in enemy waters and was sunk March 6, 1943, by gunfire from friendly ships to prevent her falling into enemy hands, he said.

The Thomas Hooker, built by the South Portland, Me. Shipbuilding Corporation, was lost March 6, 1943, when she came apart and was abandoned at sea, he said.

In neither case were any lives lost, he said.

"As to structural defects," Mr. Jackson said, "there have been a number, some in the nature of minor failures and a few major ones necessitating drydocking. All cases so far as we know were related to welding practices and the committee has not found evidence of any case where defective material has been a direct cause."

The yard with the highest percentage of structural failures, Mr. Jackson said, was one on the Gulf Coast.

Speed of construction, he said, appears to have nothing to do with incidence of defects—for example, a vessel built by Henry M. Kaiser, launched in a little over four days and at sea in slightly more than seven, has had no trouble.

"It all appears to be a question of the welding procedure followed," he said. "When this became apparent, the Maritime Commission looked into the matter and required all yards to adopt new methods. Since that time no known defects have developed."

Much of the difficulty, he added, could be traced to the lack of trained supervisory personnel both in welding and other phases of ship construction to keep pace with the tremendous expansion of the industry.

Praising the Maritime Commission as "about the only agency having a substantial part in the war production program which has not only kept up with its program, but is ahead of it," Mr. Jackson said: "It is to be expected that when ships are turned out in such volume that some defects will be encountered, but the percentage is not higher than in any other industry."

U-Boat Threat Tapers To Low Point as War Enters 201st Week

By the Associated Press.

The submarine, on the basis of announced sinkings, continued to lose force as a menace to Allied shipping and loss of life in the Western Atlantic as the war entered its 201st week today.

For three of the last four weeks, there were no losses of merchant ships given by the Navy. That left at 670 the Associated Press total of announced Allied and neutral merchantmen sunk in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

It well bore out the statement by Prime Minister Churchill in London that more than 30 U-boats were destroyed in May and that the "massacre" of one of Germany's most dependable weapons continued through June.

The Prime Minister declared that "since the middle of May scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the North Atlantic" and that June was the "best month we have ever known in the war."

At the same time, Churchill said American and United Kingdom shipyards were producing between seven and 10 times the amount of ships lost to the enemy in the month of June.

And from Washington came the news that American shipyards had delivered in the first six months of this year more tonnage than had been produced here in the entire record-breaking 12 months of 1942. Already 879 ships, totaling 8,818,622 deadweight tons, have come out of the shipyards as against last year's 747 vessels of 8,089,732 deadweight tons.

The announcement from London last Saturday that a great convoy recently crossed the Atlantic under continuous air protection — "the mid-Atlantic gap was filled by planes from a British carrier"—marked another step in the increased protection given to convoys.

STIMSON PRESENTS DSM TO EMMONS

Pins to Uniform of General Award for Accomplishment in Hawaiian Command

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The War Department announced today the presentation of the Distinguished Service Medal to Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, former commander of Army forces in the Central Pacific and Military Governor of Hawaii, and disclosed that it had assigned him, at least temporarily, to duty in Washington.

Secretary Stimson pinned the medal to General Emmons' uniform in a ceremony at his offices in recognition of the general's accomplishments in the Hawaiian command, which he relinquished a month ago to Major Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr.

"The period of his command," said the DSM citation, "was marked by the highly efficient organization of the military defenses of the Central Pacific area and by the tactical development of the principle of unity of command in conjunction with the Pacific Fleet, resulting in signal success in combined Army and Navy action during the Battle of Midway. Under his military governorship the civilian life of the Territory was closely integrated into the total war effort."

At the same time Secretary Stimson presented to General Emmons the Air Medal, awarded for his achievement in pioneering flights to establish an air ferry route between the United States and Australia. He previously had received the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The Army disclosed that when General Emmons left Hawaii June 1 he was assigned to the Army Group, an organization in the War Department for officers detailed to headquarters, usually on a temporary basis. The exact nature of his present duties was not disclosed.

General Emmons was born in Huntington, W. Va., fifty-five years ago and was graduated from West Point in 1909. He was Chief of the Air Force Combat Command and served as air officer of the Hawaiian Department before he was designated commanding general of the department Dec. 17, 1941, ten days after Pearl Harbor.

Hibbs Is Made Major General

CAMP BLANDING, Fla., July 5 (AP)—Promotion of Brig. Gen. Louis E. Hibbs, commander of the Sixty-third "Blood and Fire" Infantry Division, to the rank of major general, was announced here today.

At the same time Colonels Frederick M. Harris and Edward J. McGaw, senior officers of the division, were made brigadier generals.

General Hibbs was graduated from West Point in 1916 and was wounded twice during the First World War. He won the French Croix de Guerre for gallantry in action.

He served as General Douglas MacArthur's adjutant when the latter was commandant at West Point.

General Harris has served in China, the Canal Zone and for some time was military intelligence officer in the Latin-American area.

General McGaw, chief of the division's artillery section, is a native of Philadelphia and a well-known amateur boxer.

Irwin Decorated For Gallantry In Action In Tunisia

JUL 6 - 1943

Washington, July 5 (AP)—The Silver Star was presented today to Maj. Gen. Stafford Leroy Irwin, of Washington, for gallantry in action as an artillery commander in Tunisia last February.

Then a brigadier general, Irwin was placed in command of all artillery support in the Thala sector of the Tunisian line February 21, arriving there after dark, without prior reconnaissance and with limited information about the situation.

"He established his command post and observation post in front of all support," the citation said, "and refused to quit his post even after twelve hours of terrific artillery shelling of his observation post. He accomplished the mission given him, and his coolness and ability gave the units confidence in themselves and contributed toward the success of the battle."

Irwin, a native of Fort Monroe, Va., was graduated from West Point in 1915.

By the Associated Press.

The appointment of Miss Jacqueline Cochran as director of women pilots in the Army Air Forces and special assistant to Maj. Gen. Barney M. Giles, assistant chief of air staff, was announced today by the War Department.

Since September Miss Cochran has been director of women's flying training of the Air Forces Flying Training Command and the program she devised already has graduated approximately 150 pilots, with hundreds more in training.

At the same time the department announced that Mrs. Nancy Harkness Love, organizer and senior squadron leader of the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron since last September, has been assigned as an executive to the staff of Col. William H. Tunner, commanding officer of the ferrying division, Air Transport Command, with headquarters in Cincinnati.

600,000 New WAC Goal; Mrs. Hobby Becomes Colonel

JUL 6 - 1943

Washington, July 5 (AP) — A goal of 600,000 members for the Women's Army Corps was set today by Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, as the corps' director, Oveta Culp Hobby, was sworn in as a colonel in the army—the first WAC officer commissioned.

Achievement of Marshall's goal would mean expanding the corps to virtually ten times the size of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, which has a strength of 65,000.

During the swearing-in ceremony for Colonel Hobby, atended by commanders of other women's units in the armed services, General Marshall praised the work of the organization as an auxiliary and said he expected "even greater efficiency and a tremendous contribution to the war effort" when it becomes an integral part of the army.

The $7,000,000 fund had already been approved by the House. Congress previously passed a resolution setting up the work relief program but providing no money.

The services will be conducted by Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, assisted by the Most Reverend John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore and Washington.

Born in Reykjavik, Bishop Gunnarsson will be the first native-born Icelander consecrated a Catholic bishop of the island since the sixteenth century.

Flier Turns Gunless Plane Into 'Buzz-Saw'; 6 Zeros Shun Fight With Propeller Blades

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Regaining consciousness in mid-air after a swarm of Japanese Zeros had wounded him in the head and blasted his guns out of action, Lieut. Jack Bade converted his weaponless plane into a flying buzz-saw and went after six enemy planes with his propeller blades, it was disclosed today.

In recounting the do-or-die daring of the 20-year-old pilot from Elk River, Minn., the War Department said Lieutenant Bade not only broke the nerve of the Japanese pilots by hurling his battered P-40 into the hail of their bullets but in doing so saved three large Navy dive bombers from their attack.

Then, on landing, he expressed concern that the Navy men in the dive bombers might not understand why he didn't shoot down the Zeros.

Lieutenant Bade's first tangle came at 23,000 feet over Bougainville Island in the Southwest Pacific one day last month. Outnumbered, he was shot in the back of the head and knocked out.

The ocean was only 400 feet below when he revived, pulled out of his dive and saw four float-type Zero planes on the water a mile ahead. He headed for them, but discovered his gun had been crippled by enemy fire. He was near the Japanese field at Ballale, a bad place to be alone, and without a gun. So he headed homeward, bleeding.

But at 5,000 feet up he saw a Zero chasing a slower Navy dive bomber and went to the resuce with nothing but his whirling propellers for a weapon.

He bore down, head-on toward the enemy guns spraying death. The Zero held its course for a while—then suddenly the Japanese pilot broke away, twisting his plane out of the P-40's path and darting for safety.

Once more Lieutenant Bade headed homeward, but 2,000 feet higher up two more American dive bombers streaked across the sky with five Zero's hammering at their tails.

Roaring in from the rear Lieutenant Bade pulled up beneath one Zero and tried to cut away its rudder with his propellor. That Zero scurried off and then there were four. Lieutenant Bade kept after them until there were none. All fled.

New York, July 5 (AP)—A report that the Governor of Rhodes had been killed and that riots had "broken out in several of the Dodecanese islands" was broadcast tonight by the London radio quoting an Ankara (Turkey) report.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, added that "the population of these same islands is starving and suffering from dysentery and typhoid fever."

The Dodecanese islands are Italian possessions in the Aegean Sea.

NORSE SHIP'S CREW SAVED NEAR AFRICA

41 Men Aboard Small Vessel Survive Attack by U-Boat.

BOSTON, July 5 — (AP) The entire 41-man crew of a small Norwegian merchant vessel escaped when the craft was torpedoed by an enemy submarine early in May off the west coast of Africa and the sailors have been landed in Boston, the Navy reported today.

The announcement said that after the torpedo hit the submarine surfaced and attempted with little success to obtain information from the ship's first mate who had escaped the sinking ship in a motor lifeboat. The mate professed he did not even know the whereabouts of his skipper "and the rest of the answers he gave his questioners was of little value to them," the Navy said.

The ship's personnel arrived at a North African port 12 hours after the sinking and later was brought to the United States.

McCormack Predicts Early Elimination Of Italy From War

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 5.—Elimination of Italy from the war "in the near future," with consequent relief to the Russian armies and the bringing of new aid to China was forecast today by Majority Leader McCormack.

In an address at an Independence Day observance in Faneuil Hall, "cradle of liberty," Representative McCormack declared that "whether Italy makes peace terms or not, every indication points to the fact that Italy's days of active participation in this war will be over in the near future."

As consequences. Representative McCormack predicted a weakening of the German position in the Balkans, the location of new air bases that would make possible destruction of industrial portions of Germany hitherto immune from air attack, the speeding of shipments of war weapons to Russia, China, India and elsewhere, and the release of great Allied naval forces—possibly for a move against the Japanese in Burma.

Withdrawals From Balkans.

"With Italy withdrawing from the war, it will mean 20 to 25 divisions of Italian soldiers withdrawing from the conquered Balkan states. * * * tions would force the German army to withdraw from some conquered parts of the Balkan Peinsula. * * *

"The probabilities are that the control of Italy by the United Na-

"It will enable us to locate air fields closer to the industrial heart of Germany and to more effectively bomb and destroy a great industrial part of Germany that heretofore has been practically immune from air attack. * * * The elimination of Italy from the war will ease the strain on Turkey, with probable favorable results to our cause.

Would Release Part of Fleets.

"But, above all, the elimination of Italy from the war will release a large part of the British fleet and a good portion of the American fleet now in that area, both of which are now engaged in protecting our lines of communication in the Mediterranean and in the watching of the Italian fleet. The elimination of Italy will enable a substantial part of the British fleet and of our own fleet in that area to be released for fighting in the Far East.

"This will also greatly assist our brave ally, China. * * *

"The recapture and reopening of the Burma road, affording the opportunity of land transportation to China, is generally recognized as a matter of primary importance. In any such future effort naval forces will have to play an important part."

Destroyer Gets Hero's Name As His 11-Year-Old Son Weeps

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., July 5.—Yesterday was the proudest—and saddest—Independence Day in the life of 11-year-old Don Lovelace.

You could see he was proud as he stared wide-eyed from the launching platform at the flag-bedecked destroyer escort the Navy named in honor of his daddy, who died a hero's death in the Pacific last year.

And though he fought hard to keep them back, you could see the tears come when the admiral related the exploits that won Lt. Comdr. Donald A. Lovelace the Distinguished Flying Cross for "heroic conduct in aerial combat" four months before he died in a plane crash.

You could see by the expression on Don's face that it's much better to have your daddy than a warship named in his honor. But just about that time the whistles blew, the band played, his mother smashed a bottle of champagne against the ship's bow and down the ways went the Navy's newest weapon against Axis submarines.

If you were watching Don's face instead of the ship splashing into the Elizabeth River, you saw the pride shining through the drying tears.

There was mixed pride and sadness, too, on the faces of other members of the hero's family—his widow, Mrs. Helen R. Lovelace of Coronado, Calif.; her 12-year-old daughter, Sally; Comdr. Lovelace's mother, Mrs. J. W. Lovelace of High Point, N. C., and the sponsor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rooney, Charleston, S. C.

Comdr. Lovelace, a native of Scottsburg, Va., was killed June 2, 1942, while commander of Fighting Squadron 2 aboard the aircraft carrier Yorktown. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1928 and served continuously in aviation assignments from 1930 until his death.

Miss Margaret Morrison of Rutherford, N. J., daughter of John Gordon Morrison, a Civil War United States Navy coxswain and hero, after whom the vessel was named.

TOKYO RAID CALLED 'PIONEER' OPERATION

Knox at Seattle Says Air Trail to Japan Was Opened

JUL 6 - 1943

SEATTLE, July 5 (AP)—The American air raid of April 18, 1942, on Tokyo, Navy Secretary Frank Knox said today, was a "pioneer raid" rather than a "nuisance raid."

"Just as did the early pioneers who settled this magnificent country, some of our men lost their lives," Mr. Knox said at an Independence Day celebration. "But where they pioneered, others followed.

"There is no doubt that when the next raid on Japan takes place, other Washington boys will volunteer. * * * Their fathers and forefathers followed the admonition, 'Go west, young man.' Today, it seems, this generation is raring to 'go west' from there—to follow the air trail blazed by the Doolittle raid."

Mr. Knox's only reference to the present Southwest Pacific offensive operations was that "these are proof that the United States Navy is on the move."

"Our fleets * * * are on the offensive and they are headed straight for Japan," he asserted.

Speaking at the launching of the destroyer Morrison last night at the Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding Corporation yard, Mr. Knox said that the Solomons-New Guinea actions furnished ample proof that President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill had made no idle boast when they asserted that the initiative had been wrested from the enemy.

GERMANS HAVE THROWN IN A HEAVY OFFENSIVE SECOND NIGHT LEAD RUSSIAN

BY ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

LONDON, JULY 5-(AP)-THE GERMANS HAVE THROWN IN A HEAVY OFFENSIVE IN THE OREL-KURSK-BELGOROD SECTOR, THE SCENE OF THEIR GREATEST EFFORT OF A YEAR AGO, AND VIOLENT FIGHTING IN PROGRESS SINCE THIS MORNING ALREADY HAS COST THE INVADER 586 TANKS AND 203 PLANES, THE SOVIET COMMAND ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

JUL 6 - 1943

MILITARY OBSERVERS HERE, WHO AS JUNE DRAGGED OUT WERE ADVI ING CORRESPONDENTS THAT A MAJOR OFFENSIVE SEEMED UNLIKELY, WERE CAUTIOUS ON THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE OUTBURST OF FIGHTING.

"IT MIGHT BE THE START OF A REAL OFFENSIVE INTENDED TO KNOCK OUT MOSCOW," ONE COMMENTED, "OR IT MIGHT BE MERELY LARGE-SCALE LOCAL ACTIVITY INTENDED TO KEEP UP THE MORALE OF THE ARMY IN THE EAST AND GIVE THE HOME FRONT SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT BESIDES BOMBING AND ALLIED INVASION THREATS."

JUL 6 - 1943

THE ONE GERMAN ADVANCE SPECIFICALLY DESCRIBED WAS A HALF-KILOMETER WEDGE DRIVEN INTO ADVANCED RUSSIAN LINES. RUSSIAN COUNTERATTACKS WERE SAID TO HAVE HALTED THE THRUST AT THAT POINT.

HEAVY GERMAN CASUALTIES IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT WERE REPORTED--IN A SINGLE SECTOR, FOR EXAMPLE, THE COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED THAT 3,000 NAZIS WERE KILLED.

THUS WAS ENDED THE HUNDRED-DAYS LULL ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT BY ACTION SO HEAVY AS TO INDICATE THAT THE GERMAN COMMAND PERHAPS HAD EMBARKED ON THE FULL EFFORT TO KNOCK THE SOVIET UNION OUT OF THE WAR.

THE OREL-KURSK-BELGOROD SECTOR APPEARED, ON THE BASIS OF THE INITIAL RUSSIAN ANNOUNCEMENT, TO BE TAKING ON THE ASPECT OF AN AREA OF DECISION; THE GERMAN LOSSES REPORTED WERE SO ENORMOUS AS TO INDICATE THAT ONE OF THE GREATEST OF ALL THE WAR'S STRUGGLES WAS GETTING UNDER WAY.

JUL 6 - 1943

THERE WAS IMMEDIATE SPECULATION AS TO THE MOTIVE OF THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND AND WHETHER IT HAD ARRIVED, RIGHTLY OR WRONGLY, AT THE CONCLUSION THAT MAJOR ALLIED ACTION AGAINST THE GERMANS ON THE WEST OR SOUTH WAS NOT IMMINENT.

WHILE THERE HAD BEEN OF LATE MANY REPORTS THAT THE VAST GERMAN FORCES IN RUSSIA HAD BEEN SOMEWHAT REDUCED BY WITHDRAWAL TO FRANCE, THE RUSSIANS THEMSELVES HAVE DENIED THAT THERE HAS BEEN ANY DECREASE IN THE INVADER'S STRENGTH.

JUL 6 - 1943

THIS OUTBREAK OF HEAVY ACTION, ANNOUNCED OVER THE MOSCOW RADIO IN A BROADCAST RECORDED HERE BY REUTERS, WAS IN THE SAME AREA THAT THE GERMANS LAST SUMMER BEGAN THEIR MAIN OFFENSIVE.

STRUGGLE AND UNCLEAR

AP LONDON - SIKORSKI

EARLY TONIGHT PRESIDENT RACZIEWICZ BROADCAST A MESSAGE TO POLISH CITIZENS IN THE HOMELAND OVER BBC, DECLARING THAT SIKORSKI HAD "JOINED THE RANKS OF THOSE WHV IN FALLPNG IN THE FIGHT FOR FREEDOM ARE LEADING US TOWARD A NEW LIFE."

JUL 6 - 1943

"CITIZENS OF THE REPUBLIC," THE PRESIDENT SAID, "I APPEAL TO YOU ALL, WHEREVER YOU MAY BE--IN POLAND, OCCUPIED BY THE ENEMY, OR IN EXILE, SCATTERED BY THE STORMS OF WAR THROUGHOUT ALL CONTINENTS, OR IN THE RANKS OF OUR FIGHTING FORCES--TO STRENGTHEN YOURSELVES IN UNITY AND IN INTENSIFIED WORK, EACH AT HIS POST UNTIL VICTORY IS WON, WHICH MUST BE FOR THE MOTHERLAND A TRIUMPH OF HISTORIC JUSTICE."

TWO CABINET MINISTERS AND OTHER HIGH-PLACED POLISH OFFICIALS WERE SAID TO HAVE ASKED SIKORSKI TO ABANDON HIS TRIP TO THE MIDDLE EAST BECAUSE OF THE DANGER INVOLVED.

ACTING PREMIER MIKOLAJCZYK WAS ONE OF THE-LEADERS OF THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY BEFORE THE INVASION. HE BECAME DEPUTY PREMIER AND MINISTER FOR HOME AFFAIRS IN 1941.

KUKIEL, A 58-YEAR-OLD DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY, IS A KEEN STUDENT OF MILITARY STRATEGY AND HAS AIDED SIKORSKI GREATLY IN REORGANIZING THE POLISH ARMY.

UNDER THE COALITION GOVERNMENT THE PRESIDENT MUST CHOOSE A NEW PREMIER ACCEPTABLE TO ALL FIVE MAJOR POLISH PARTIES--PEASANT, NATIONAL, DEMOCRATIC, SOCIALIST AND LABOR.

NEXT TO HIS TALENTS AS A STRATEGIST AND ORGANIZER, POLES SAID

JUL 6 - 1943

THAT SIKORSKI'S GREATEST CONTRIBUTION TO HIS NATION WAS THE POLITICAL SAGACITY AND MODERATING VIEWPOINT HE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON RUSSIAN-POLISH PROBLEMS.

ALTHOUGH HE REMAINED FIRM AND DETERMINED IN THE FACE OF RUSSIA'S RECENT RUPTURE OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS, IT HAD BEEN EXPECTED THAT HE WOULD CARRY THE MAIN BURDEN OF RESTORING FRIENDLY RELATIONS. THE RUPTURE FOLLOWED A CONTROVERSY OVER THE GERMAN PROPAGANDA STORY ALLEGING THAT 10,000 POLISH OFFICERS HAD BEEN SLAIN BY THE RUSSIANS AT KATYN.

JUL 6 - 1943

POLISH SOURCES SAID THE CONTENTS OF A LETTER WHICH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ADDRESSED TO SIKORSKI WHILE HE WAS IN THE MIDDLE EAST HAD NOT BEEN RELAYED TO MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT HERE.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA MACHINERY BEGAN TURNING OUT STORIES ON THE DIVIDE-AND-CONQUER THEME LESS THAN TWO HOURS AFTER SIKORSKI'S DEATH WAS ANNOUNCED HERE. IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, THE BERLIN RADIO QUOTED "POLISH EMIGRANT CIRCLES IN STOCKHOLM" AS SAYING THE PREMIER WAS "MURDERED" BY BRITISH SECRET SERVICE AGENTS "BECAUSE HIS DISPUTE WITH MOSCOW WAS FELT TO BE AN EXTREME NUISANCE FOR BRITISH-SOVIET RELATIONS."

A MESSAGE OF CONDOLENCE WAS SENT TO THE POLISH PRESIDENT BY KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND WHO SAID HE WAS "DEEPLY SHOCKED TO LEARN OF THE TRAGIC DEATH OF GENERAL SIKORSKI AND OF THOSE WHO WERE TRAVELLING WITH HIM ON HIS COUNTRY'S SERVICE."

AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR IN 1939 SIKORSKI PLACED HIMSELF AT THE DISPOSAL OF MARSHAL EDWARD SMIGLY RYDZ, THEN COMMANDER IN CHIEF, BUT HE WAS NOT CALLED AND DECIDED TO GO TO FRANCE AND ORGANIZE A NEW POLISH ARMY.

JUL 6 - 1943

AFTER THE RESIGNATION OF PRESIDENT IGNACE MOSCICKI AND THE DOWNFALL OF THE COUNTRY, SIKORSKI WAS NOMINATED PREMIER AND IN NOVEMBER, 1939, WAS APPOINTED COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF ALL POLISH ARMED FORCES.

FROM A HANDFUL OF TATTERED REFUGEES WHO FIRST STRUGGLED OUT OF FRANCE AND RUMANIA AFTER THE COUNTRY WAS OVERRUN IN SEPTEMBER, 1939, HE BUILT UP AN ARMY REPUTEDLY OF ABOUT 200,000 IN BRITAIN AND THE MIDDLE EAST, AN AIR FORCE WHOSE SQUADRONS FOUGHT THROUGH THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN AND WHOSE PILOTS ARE KNOWN AS AMONG THE BRAVEST IN THE UNITED NATIONS, AND A SMALL NAVY.

SIKORSKI LIVED SIMPLY IN A SMALL COUNTRY HOUSE NEAR LONDON, WITH HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER. HIS FAVORITE RECREATION WAS WALKING. SILENCE WAS ONE OF HIS CHARACTERISTICS.

ONE APPRAISAL OF HIM BY HIS COUNTRYMEN WAS THAT HE EVIDENCED CLARITY OF THOUGHT, QUICKNESS OF DECISION AND SPEED IN ACTION.

"THE MOMENT A DECISION IS REACHED, EXECUTION MUST FOLLOW," IT WAS SAID OF HIM. "WHEN THIS IS NOT POSSIBLE HE IS LIABLE TO BECOME IMPATIENT AND ABRUPT WITH THOSE AROUND HIM X X X."

HE DID NOT SMOKE, ALTHOUGH HE HAD NO OBJECTION TO THOSE ABOUT HIM SMOKING.

AS PRIME MINISTER AND COMMANDER IN CHIEF HIS TRAVELS TOOK HIM FROM LONDON TO IRAN, WHERE A LARGE BODY OF POLISH TROOPS WAS STATIONED, TO MOSCOW AND TO WASHINGTON.

SHORTLY AFTER CONFERRING WITH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND ARRANGING FOR POLISH FORCES TO TAKE OVER SCOTTISH DEFENSES IN 1940, HE WENT TO CANADA TO RECRUIT A POLISH LEGION, AND THEN WENT ON TO WASHINGTON IN MAY OF 1941, WHERE HE CONFERRED WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

ALMOST A YEAR LATER, IN MARCH 1942, HE RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES AND DISCUSSED POLAND'S POST-WAR BOUNDARIES--SINCE THEN A HOTLY CONTESTED POINT WITH SOVIET RUSSIA--WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT. AT THAT TIME HE PLEADED FOR FULL AID TO RUSSIA.

LAST DECEMBER HE MADE A THIRD TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES TO CONFER WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND ALSO VISITED PRESIDENT AVILA CAMACHO OF MEXICO.

THE LATTER PART OF JUNE MR.ROOSEVELT SENT HIM A SECRET LETTER BY THE HAND OF U.S. AMBASSADOR ANTHONY DREXEL BIDDLE, JR. THE CONTENTS HAVE NOT YET BEEN DISCLOSED. THERE WAS SOME SPECULATION IT MAY HAVE DEALT WITH THE POLISH - RUSSIAN BOUNDARY QUESTION.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER SIKORSKI ANNOUNCED THAT THE POLES WERE EAGER TO SEE ACTION AND HE REVIEWED THE STRONG POLISH CONTINGENT IN THE MIDDLE EAST ON A TOUR THROUGH THAT REGION.

JUL 6 - 1943

AS RECENTLY AS LAST APRIL 26, SIKORSKI WAS THE TARGET FOR A BITTER EDITORIAL IN MOSCOW'S PRAVDA, THE COMMUNIST PARTY NEWSPAPER.

BASIS OF THE RUSSIAN OUTBURSTS AGAINST THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE WAS THE POLISH REQUEST THAT AN INVESTIGATION BE MADE BY THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS OF THE GERMAN PROPAGANDA CHARGE THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DEATH OF 10,000 POLISH SOLDIERS WHOSE GRAVES THE GERMANS DECLARED HAD BEEN DISCOVERED IN KATYN FOREST, NEAR SMOLENSK.

THE POLISH GOVERNMENT LATER WITHDREW ITS REQUEST, BUT THE BITTER FEELING BETWEEN THE KREMLIN AND THE LONDON EXILE REGIME DID NOT ENTIRELY VANISH.

JUL 6 - 1943

SIKORSKI HAD CONFERRED SEVERAL TIMES WITH STALIN IN THE LAST FEW YEARS AND MUTUAL PLEDGES OF AID AND PREDICTIONS OF ALLIED SUCCESS WERE EXCHANGED.

AT ALL TIMES SIKORSKI, WHO HAS WRITTEN A NUMBER OF BOOKS ON MILITARY STRATEGY AND WAS CONSIDERED AN AUTHORITY IN FRENCH MILITARY THOUGHT, VOWED THAT GERMANY WOULD BE BEATEN.

IN HIS RECENT INTERVIEW, HE SAID THAT POST WAR EUROPE NEEDED A STRONG CENTRAL SLAVIC BLOC WITH POLAND AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AS ITS DOMINATING MEMBERS WORKING CLOSELY WITH RUSSIA, AND THAT EAST PRUSSIA MUST BE ELIMINATED AS A DAGGER POINTING AT THE HEART OF POLAND.

THIS WAS ANOTHER WAY OF RESTATING HIS THESIS OF A YEAR AGO, POLAND MUST HAVE FREE ACCESS TO THE BALTIC SEA.

LONDON, JULY 5-(AP)-STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, DEPUTY POLISH PREMIER AND LEADER OF THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY, WAS DESIGNATED TODAY AS ACTING PREMIER BY THE CABINET, PENDING SELECTION OF A SUCCESSOR TO THE LATE GEN.WLADYSLAW SIKORSKI.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, TUESDAY, JULY 6--(AP)---THE BRITISH WAR OFFICE DISCLOSED TODAY CONSTRUCTION DETAILS OF THE LAND MINE DETECTORS WHICH ENABLED SAPPERS TO CLEAR AWAY BURIED AXIS EXPLOSIVES SO EFFICIENTLY IN THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

THE DEVICE, WHICH IS THE INVENTION OF TWO POLISH OFFICERS, CONSISTS OF A BOX CONTAINING TWO ELECTRICAL COILS ON THE END OF A LONG BAMBOO POLE CONNECTED THROUGH AN AMPLIFIER TO A PAIR OF HEADPHONES.

THE CURRENT PASSES THROUGH THE COILS, WHICH SEND OUT MAGNETIC WAVES OVER SHORT DISTANCES. A METAL OBJECT SUCH AS A MINE INTERRUPTS THE MAGNETIC WAVES AND THE RESULT IS A HIGH-PITCHED NOISE THROUGH THE HEADPHONES WHICH WARNS THE OPERATOR THAT HE IS TREADING DANGEROUS GROUND.

LONDON, JULY 5--(AP)--THE AGING, PRO-ALLIED PRIME MINISTER OF SOUTH AFRICA, 73-YEAR-OLD FIELD MARSHAL JAN CHRISTIAN SMUTS, WILL SEEK A RETURN TO POWER FOR HIMSELF AND HIS UNITED PARTY WEDNESDAY IN THE UNION'S FIRST WAR-TIME ELECTION.

JUL 6 - 1943

SELF DESCRIBED AS "AN OLD HORSE IN HIS LAST RACE," SMUTS IS BELIEVED BY MOST OBSERVERS TO BE ASSURED OF RE-ELECTION OVER THE COMBINED OPPOSITION PARTIES HEADED BY D.F. MALAN, ANTI-BRITISH LEADER AND HEAD OF THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

COMING AS IT DOES SO SOON AFTER ALLIED MILITARY SUCCESSES IN NORTH AFRICA, THE ELECTION UNDOUBTEDLY FAVORS MARSHAL SMUTS WHO TOOK THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA INTO THE WAR AFTER DEFEATING THE GOVERNMENT OF THE LATE GENERAL J.B.M. HERTZOG IN 1939 BY 13 VOTES.

JUL 6 - 1943

SMUTS' PARTY HOLDS 72 OF PARLIAMENT'S 153 SEATS AND IT IS ALSO SUPPORTED BY THE DOMINION, LABOR AND NATIVE PARTIES WITH 15 SEATS. THE OPPOSITION, WHICH IN ADDITION TO MALAN'S PEOPLE'S PARTY INCLUDES THE NEW ORDER PARTY OF OSCAR PIROW AND THE AFRIKAANER PARTY OF N.C. HAVENGA, HAS 66 SEATS.

THE VOTES OF 160,000 SOLDIERS OUTSIDE THE UNION WILL BE CAST

IN THE ELECTION, A FACT WHICH PROBABLY WILL DELAY ANNOUNCEMENT OF

THE FINAL RESULT UNTIL JULY 23 BECAUSE OF THE COUNTING PROCEDURE.

SMUTS HAS URGED HIS SUPPORTERS NOT TO BE LULLED INTO COMPLACENCY

AND IN ADDITION THE MARSHAL HAD MALAN'S "WITHDRAW-FROM-THE-WAR" MANIFESTO

PRINTED IN THE SOUTH AFRICAN SOLDIERS' NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED AT CAIRO.

IF RETURNED TO POWER, SMUTS IS EXPECTED TO LEAVE FOR A TRIP

TO BRITAIN AND NORTH AMERICA SOMETIME IN AUGUST.

THE APPOINTMENT OF RAEDER BRINGS HIM BACK AGAIN INTO ACTIVE COMBAT DUTY. HE WAS HEAD OF THE GERMAN NAVY FROM OCTOBER 1, 1928, UNTIL JANUARY 30 OF THIS YEAR, WHEN HE WAS SUCCEEDED BY GRAND ADMIRAL KARL DOENITZ. RAEDER THEN BECAME ADMIRAL INSPECTOR OF THE NAVY. AT LEAST THREE OF THEM OWE THEIR LIVES TO THE QUICK THINKING AND STRONG TEETH OF THE PLANE'S CO-PILOT, LIEUT.ROBERT LENNHAUSEN OF (515 EAST ARMSTRONG) PEORIA, ILL.

LENNHAUSEN CHEWED THROUGH A ROPE HOLDING THEIR RUBBER DINGHY TO THE SINKING PLANE, SETTING IT FREE JUST IN TIME.

WITH LENNHAUSEN WERE LIEUTENANTS WILMER GARRETT, PILOT, (189 ECHO DRIVE) FRESNO,CALIF, AND CARL JOHNSON, NAVIGATOR, (1620 SHERBOURNE DRIVE) LOS ANGELES; AND SERGEANTS ADOLPH BRZOZOWHY (CQ), TURNERS FALLS, MASS.; MELVIN J.COLE, WATERBURY,CONN.; AND EDWARD R. WAITE, CHARLEROI, PA.

VALLETTA, MALTA, JULY 5-(AP)-THE HEROISM OF SECOND LIEUT. WILLIAM H.SHAW OF WATERLOO, IOWA, BROUGHT THE CREW OF A MEDIUM BOMBER SAFELY TO MALTA YESTERDAY AFTER THE SHIP'S PILOT WAS KILLED OVER SICILY AND SLUMPED OVER INTO SHAW'S LAP.

RECOVERING AT A HOSPITAL HERE FROM MINOR INJURIES, THE CREW SANG SHAW'S PRAISES ALOUD TODAY WHILE THE YOUNG PILOT, WHOSE LEFT ARM WAS WOUNDED BY A SHELL FRAGMENT, BLUSHED MODESTLY.

THE PLANE HAD JUST COMPLETED A SUCCESSFUL RAID ON THE GERBINI AIRPORT WHEN IT WAS JUMPED BY MESSERSCHMITT 109'S. TWENTY MILLIMETER CANNON SHELLS SLASHED THROUGH THE NOSE OF THE PLANE, KILLING THE PILOT INSTANTLY AND NICKING SHAW'S ARM.

"HE (SHAW) GRABBED THE WHEEL SO QUICK WITH HIS GOOD ARM THAT WE NEVER EVEN VEERED OUT OF FORMATION," DECLARED BOMBARDIER LIEUT.J.P.MCLEOD OF FLORENCE,S.C., AND AUGUSTA,GA.

JUL 6 - 1943

"I WAS HIT ON THE CHIN WITH A BIT OF SHELL WHICH KNOCKED A FEW TEETH LOOSE," SAID MCLEOD. "WHEN I MANAGED TO CATCH MY BREATH THERE WAS OLD WILLIE HANGING ON TO THE WHEEL AS COOL AS A CUCUMBER. HOW HE DID IT, I DON'T KNOW--BUT HE KEPT US FROM CRASHING."

JUL 6 - 1943

OTHERS IN THE CREW, WHO CAME THROUGH UNHURT, WERE SERGEANTS GILBER PERRY OF PADUCAH,TEX.; LOREN ANTHONY OF (ELMWOOD AV.) PROVIDENCE,R.I.; AND WALTER F.MOYNIHAN OF (152 NANATUCK ST.) HOLYOKE, MASS. THEY CONFIRMED MCLEOD'S ACCOUNT.

INSTRUMENTS ON THE PLANE WERE SMASHED, AND THE CREW PUMPED THE WHEELS DOWN BY HAND.

SHAW BROUGHT IT IN FOR A PERFECT LANDING.

"THAT GUY'S REALLY ALL RIGHT," SAID MCLEOD. "AND WE'RE ALL IN GOOD HEALTH BECAUSE OF HIM."

AN AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 5-(AP)- A GERMAN AIR FORCE TEAM BROKEN IN ACTION OVER SICILY WAS TAKING TIME OUT TODAY TO HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FOR AT LEAST 18 MEMBERS--FLIERS WHO WERE SENT UP TO INTERFERE WITH A FLYING FORTRESS CELEBRATION OVER CATANIA.

SOME OF THE GERMAN GROUP WERE FLYING THE LATEST TYPE MESSERSCHMITT 109S, BUT THEIR DARING AGGRESSIVENESS COST THEM THEIR LIVES--THEY CAME TOO CLOSE TO THE FORTRESSES.

THE ALLIED BOMBERS WERE ATTACKED FIVE MINUTES BEFORE THEY REACHED CATANIA. THEY FOUGHT THEIR WAY TO THE CITY, UNLOADED THEIR BOMBS, AND WITH ALL GUNS BLAZING CONTINUED THE RUNNING BATTLE UNTIL THEY WERE 50 MILES FROM THE SEA. THE CREW OF ONE FORTRESS UPON REACHING THEIR HOME AIRPORT TOOK STOCK AND FOUND THAT THEY HAD KNOCKED DOWN THREE FIGHTERS. ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE LEDGER THEY COUNTED A DOZEN GAPING HOLES--THE RESULT OF HITS FROM 20-MILLIMETER AERIAL BOMBS.

LATER AS THEY HUDDLED AROUND A SOLDIER WHO WAS DISHING OUT DOUGHNUTS, THE GROUP TOLD OF THE BATTLE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 5-(AP)-JAPANESE TROOPS ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS WERE THREATENED TODAY BY A STRONG PINCERS ACTION OF AMERICAN FORCES BEING DIRECTED PERSONALLY BY GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR.

JUL 6 - 1943

IN THIS ADAPTATION OF THE PINCER MOVEMENT TO AMPHIBIOUS WARFARE, NAVAL AND AERIAL UNITS FORMED THE NORTHERN LEVER OF THE NUTCRACKER, WHILE ISLAND-INVADING ARMY FORCES COMPRISED THE SOUTHERN AND WESTERN ARM.

THE AMERICANS CAPTURED THE STRATEGIC VILLAGE OF VURA ON VANGUNU ISLAND, JUST SOUTHEAST OF NEW GEORGIA ON SUNDAY, KILLING 300 JAPANESE.

THIS FOLLOWED THE SEIZURE ONE JUNE 30, AT THE OPENING OF THE VLATEST SOUTHWEST PACIFIC OFFENSIVE, OF A FIRM FOOTHOLD ON RENDOVA ISLAND, ONLY FIVE MILES FROM THE WESTERN SHORE OF NEW GEORGIA. THE AMERICANS THERE ARE WITHIN ARTILLERY RANGE OF THE JAPANESE AIR BASE AT MUNDA, ONE OBJECTIVE OF THE NEW SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ACTIONS.

BETWEEN THE AMERICANS ON VANGUNU AND RENDOVA WAS A THIRD FORCE OF UNITED STATES SOLDIERS AT VIRU ON THE SOUTHWEST COAST OF NEW GEORGIA. THE ENEMY BARGE BASE AT VIRU WAS CAPTURED IN ONE OF THE FIRST MOVES OF THE OFFENSIVE.

JUL 6 - 1943

(A NEW ATTACK ON THE JAPANESE ON NEW GEORGIA, THIS TIME AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE ISLAND, WAS ANNOUNCED BY THE NAVY IN WASHINGTON MONDAY. AMERICAN WARSHIPS STEAMED INTO THE NARROW KULA GULF BETWEEN NEW GEORGIA AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND AND BOMBARDED VILA, ENEMY BASE ON KOLOMBANGARA, AND BAR BAIROKO ON NEW GEORGIA.)

COMPLETION OF THE MOVES AGAINST NEW GEORGIA ISLAND WOULD GIVE THE AMERICANS A GOOD AIR BASE AT MUNDA, A STEPPING STONE TO RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, STRONGEST JAPANESE BASE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

MUNDA WAS ATTACKED BY TORPEDO AND DIVE-BOMBERS, WHICH DROPPED 1,000 AND 2,000 POUND BOMBS ON CAMP SECTORS AND HARBOR OUTPOSTS, THE MONDAY COMMUNIQUE FROM MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS DISCLOSED.

TWENTY ONE JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN OVER RENVOVA. THEY WERE PART OF TWO FORMATIONS OF 18 AND 16 PLANES THAT ATTEMPTED TO RAID AMERICAN POSITIONS ON RENDOVA.

LAST OCTOBER HE TOOK CHARGE OF THE CAMPAIGN THAT RESULTED IN THE CAPTURE OF BUNA, NEW GUINEA, AND ROUTED THE JAPANESE FROM THE PAPUAN PENINSULA.

NO ACTION WAS REPORTED FROM NASSAU BAY ON THE NORTHEAST COAST OF NEW GUINEA BELOW SALAMAUA WHERE THE ALLIES MADE A SUCCESSFUL LANDING IN THE OTHER BIG MOVE OF THE OFFENSIVE.

U.S.AIR HEADQUARTERS, GUADALCANAL, JUNE 30 (DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS LANDED TODAY ON RENDOVA AND NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, AND BUT FOR THE CHANCE INTRUSION OF A SINGLE JAPANESE MEDIUM BOMBER, THE OPERATION MIGHT WELL HAVE BEEN COMPLETED WITHOUT ENEMY INTERRUPTION.

THE BOMBER, OF A TYPE CALLED "BETTEY" BY THE AMERICAN FLIERS, EVIDENTLY WAS OUT ON PATROL AT THE TIME OF THE LANDINGS. IT WAS SPOTTED BY AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS SKIPPING ALONG THE EDGES OF THE THICK WEATHER WHICH HELPED CONCEAL OUR INVASION FLEET.

THAT WAS ABOUT 10:40 A.M. THE FIGHTERS PROMPTLY SHOT "BETTEY" INTO THE SEA, BUT NOT BEFORE THE BOMBER MANAGED TO RADIO KAHILI, THE ENEMY'S MAJOR AIRDROME AT THE SOUTHERN TIP OF BOUGANVILLE ISLAND, 150 MILES TO THE NORTHEAST.

TWENTY MINUTES LATER A FLIGHT OF APPROXIMATELY 20 ZEROS CAME DOWN FROM KAHILI. OUR FIGHTERS SCRAMBLED WITH THE ENEMY, AND IN

JUL 6 - 1943

20 MINUTES MORE SHOT DOWN AT LEAST 15 OF THE JAPANESE PLANES.

THE ENEMY NEXT SENT DOWN A WAVE OF MEDIUM AND DIVE BOMBERS, WHICH WERE INTERCEPTED ABOUT 3:15P.M., OR MORE THAN TWO HOURS AFTER THE INVASION CONVOY, ITS TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT UNLOADED, HAD STARTED BACK TO BASE.

AFTER ANOTHER 40 MINUTES A THIRD WAVE OF ENEMY PLANES--COMPOSED THIS TIME ENTIRELY OF "BETTIES"--ATTEMPTED TO STRIKE AT THE SHIPS OF THE CONVOY. A LARGE PROPORTION OF THESE PLANES, AS WELL AS OF THOSE IN THE SECOND WAVE, WERE KNOCKED OUT OF THE AIR BY THE AMERICAN FIGHTERS.

JUL 6 - 1943

BY THEN, RETURNING PILOTS REPORTED, THE JAPANESE HAD EXHAUSTED ALL THE USEFUL STRIKING STRENGTH THEY HAD AVAILABLE. BUT IN A FINAL, FUTILE FLIGHT THEY CALLED OUT ABOUT 20 PLODDING, TWO-WING FLOATPLANES FROM THEIR SEAPLANE BASE AT FAISI ON SHORTLAND ISLAND.

OUR FIGHTERS POLISHED OFF AT LEAST 14.

WHILE THE ENEMY WAS TRYING FOR BOMB-SHOTS AT THE CONVOY, FLIGHTS OF AMERICAN DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS AND AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS STRUCK THE JAPANESE AIRFIELD AT MUNDA POINT ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND BOTH MORNING AND AFTERNOON.

JUL 6 - 1943

THE DIVE BOMBERS AND TORPEDO BOMBERS ALSO HIT VIA AIRFIELD ON KOLOMBANGAR ISLAND NORTHWEST OF NEW GEORGIA IN THE MORNING RAID.

THE AMERICANS PROFITED BY A FREAKISH WEATHER ADVANTAGE BOTH IN THE LANDINF OF TROOPS AND IN THE OPERATION OF FIGHTER SQUADRONS. A STORM FRONT, WHICH AT POINTS WAS THICK AND SOLID FROM SEA LEVEL TO 10,000 FEET, BLACKED OUT THE JAPANESE LANDING GROUNDS IN THE AREA, BUT THE AMERICAN FIELDS ON BOTH GUADALCANAL AND RUSSELL ISLANDS HAD CLEAR WEATHER PERFECT FOR FLYING.

THROUGHOUT THE DAY HENDERSON FIELD ON GUADALCANAL AND ITS TWO NEARBY FIGHTER STRIPS WERE SWEPT BY MINIATURE DUST STORMS STIRRED UP BY THE PROPELLERS OF A CONSTANT STREAM OF PLANES.

HE RETURNED YESTERDAY FROM TALKS WITH ADMIRAL GEORGES ROBERT, VICHY FRENCH HIGH COMMISSIONER OF MARTINIQUE AND GUADELOUPE, WHO INVITED THE UNITED STATES TO SEND AN ENVOY TO DISCUSS A CHANGE OF "FRENCH AUTHORITY" IN THE ISLANDS.

JUL 6 - 1943

HOOVER DECLINED TO EXPAND ON HIS STATEMENT EXCEPT TO SAY THAT THE CONFERENCES WERE NOT CONCLUDED, BUT HE DID NOT INDICATE WHAT HIS NEXT STEP WOULD BE.

IT WAS BELIEVED HERE THAT HE HAD FORWARDED TO WASHINGTON THE RESULTS OF HIS CONVERSATIONS. IN ANNOUNCING THAT HOOVER WOULD FLY TO FORT DE FRANCE TO SEE ROBERT, THE NAVY HAD STRESSED THAT HIS ROLE WOULD NOT BE THAT OF AN ENVOY.

JUL 6 - 1943

IT WAS HELD PROBABLE THAT GEN. HENRI GIRAUD, CO-PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION NOW ENROUTE FROM ALGIERS TO THE UNITED STATES, WOULD STOP HERE TO VISIT ADMIRAL HOOVER.

San Jose, Costa Rica, July --(ap)--A long-range quinine producing program, established with a base of 2,000,000 cinchona seeds flown out of the Philippines by Lieut. Col. Arthur F. Fischer at the request of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in one of the last planes to leave those embattled islands, now is under development in this mountainous Central American republic.

JUL 6 - 1943

It is the same development mentioned recently by Vice President Wallace as one of the projects of his board of economic warfare, with both the army and defense supplies corporation holding interested hands.

But full credit for its existence apparently is due Colonel Fischer, who flew the seeds out to Australia and later took them by boat to the United States.

JUL 6 - 1943

With a group of experts, Fischer arrived here in mid-May for five weeks of rugged traveling, inspecting, locating and testing land suitable for cinchona development. He found what he was seeking and now is back in the united states with the actual planting here expected to begin soon.

JUL 6 - 1943

The entire development is NO short-range plan to supply quinine in this war, but a far-sighted project to commence cultivation of this vital drug in the Americas, insuring that never again with the United States be caught without a sufficient quantity and source of supply.

It will be four years at the soonest before it will produce--possibly longer.

The plans, carried through with the close help and cooperation of Costa Rican authorities, call for 25-year development under United States direction and supervision, after which it will revert to the Costa Rican government to control and continue.

30.24——5731

Meanwhile, planners like Louis R. Stadtmiller of Stamford, Conn., BEW man who will be the overall supervisor here, hope to interest Costa Rican farmers in the culture of cinchona, thus establishing it firmly throughout the area.

JUL 6 - 1943

Behind the entire program there is a fascinating story dating from 1916, when Fischer became chief of the forestry section of the Philippine government, to his present search for a suitable property for a cinchona plantation in Costa Rica. For it was he who introduced and developed cinchona in the Philippines and it is he who now is returning it to its original native habitat--the western hemisphere, from which it was taken long ago to the Netherlands Indies for cultivation.

JUL 6 - 1943

However, he is returning the fine Ledgeriana strain, developed by an Englishman named Ledger and superior to any other type. His seeds and seedlings now in the Glendale nurseries in Washington are proving extremely fertile. An excellent batch of some 200,000 seedlings, developed during the past year, already have been sent to Guatemala and other latin American countries where they are thriving.

JUL 6 - 1943

LAST YEAR'S MAJOR NAZI OFFENSIVE AGAINST RUSSIA BEGAN JUNE 13, NEARLY A MONTH EARLIER THAN YESTERDAY'S BIG ATTACK, WHEN THE GERMANS FLUNG THEIR MIGHT AGAINST A SMALL SECTION OF THE KHARKOV FRONT TO BEGIN A DRIVE THAT WON THEM RICH PRIZES--BUT PRIZES THEY COULD NOT HOLD.

ALTHOUGH THAT CAMPAIGN STARTED ON A COMPARATIVELY SMALL SCALE, IT SWELLED TO GIGANTIC PROPORTIONS WITH LIGHTNING-LIKE SWIFTNESS. TWO MONTHS AND FIVE DAYS LATER THE RUSSIANS SAID THE CAMPAIGN THAT FAR HAD COST THE ENEMY 1,250,000 MEN AND FABULOUS QUANTITIES OF EQUIPMENT, AS COMPARED WITH ONLY 606,000 SOVIET MEN LOST.

JUL 6 - 1943

IN YESTERDAY'S ATTACK, WHICH THE RUSSIANS SAID BEGAN IN THE MORNING IN THE OREL-KURSK-BELGOROD SECTOR--THE SAME VICINITY AS THE 1942 INITIAL ACTION, BUT A LITTLE TO THE NORTH--THE REDS SAID THE GERMANS WERE USING "LARGE FORCES" OF INFANTRY AND TANKS, WITH STRONG AIR SUPPORT. THE BATTLE BEGAN IN THE MORNING. BY NIGHT, THE SOVIET COMMAND REPORTED THAT AFTER VIOLENT FIGHTING THE INVADER ALREADY HAD LOST 586 TANKS, 203 PLANES AND THOUSANDS OF SOLDIERS. IN ONE SECTOR ALONE, 3,000 GERMANS LOST THEIR LIVES.

YESTERDAY'S ACTION CONCLUDED A COMPARATIVE SILENCE OF 100 DAYS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT, A MILD WEATHER INTERVAL FAR GREATER THAN THE NAZIS ALLOWED LAST YEAR OR THE YEAR BEFORE.

THIS YEAR, AS LAST, THEY HAD THEIR MAIN FORCES ARRAYED ON THE SAME FRONT.

BY JULY 7, 1942, THE NAZIS WERE POUNDING SAVAGELY AT THE CENTRAL RUSSIAN FRONT. FOUR DAYS AFTER THAT THEY CAPTURED KURSK, CROSSED THE DON AND OCCUPIED HALF OF VORONEZH. BY JULY 12 THEY HAD LISICHANSK, 200 MILES SOUTH OF VORONSZH, AND WERE GRAVELY MENACING THE NORTH CAUCASUS. THEN THEY BEGAN THEIR ADVANCE DOWN THE DON VALLEY BETWEEN THE DON AND DONETZ RIVERS.

THEY AIMED TO CAPTURE STALINGRAD, CUT COMMUNICATIONS IN NORTH

30.24——5735

AND SOUTH RUSSIA, THEN SPLIT INTO TWO FORKS--ONE TO SWING ON MOSCOW FROM THE EAST, THE OTHER TO SMASH THROUGH TO THE CAUCASUS OIL FIELDS.

BY JULY 14, THE GERMANS ON THE CENTRAL FRONT HAD RZHEV. IN THE NEXT FEW WEEKS THEY TOOK VOROSHILOVGRAD AND ROSTOV AS THEY DUG DEEPER INTO THE CAUCASUS, AND FINALLY THEY ARRIVED AT THE GATES OF STALINGRAD AND THE HISTORIC SIEGE BEGAN. THE OTHER GERMAN FORK SLASHED DEEPER UNTIL IT REACHED MOZDOK AND NALCHIK.

JUL 6 - 1943

THEY TOOK THE MAIKOP OIL FIELDS AND DROVE WITHIN 35 MILES OF THE GROZNY WELLS, BEING ABLE TO PARALYZE OPERATIONS FROM THE AIR. BY THIS TIME THEY WERE BUT 40 MILES FROM THE CASPIAN SEA.

SOON, HALF OF STALINGRAD WAS IN GERMAN HANDS, BUT THE RUSSIANS PUT UP THE GREAT DEFENSIVE WHICH AMAZED THE WORLD. THE GERMANS WERE CLOSING IN ON THREE SIDES AFTER HAVING OVERRUN THE KUBAN AND DON STEPPES. THEY CONTROLLED THE VOLGA AT STALINGRAD. THEY SEVERED VITAL RED COMMUNICATIONS FOR MILES ALONG THE RIVER.

THEN THE RUSSIANS' ALLY--WINTER--RETURNED, AND THEY SMASHED BACK.

FROM NOV. 10, 1942, TO MARCH 31, 1943, THE REDS RETOOK TOWNS IN THE CAUCASUS AND KUBAN AT A RATE OF A DOZEN A DAY, SHOVING THE GERMANS INTO A RAPIDLY ROLLING SNOWBALL OF RETREAT. THEY EVEN HAD TROUBLE KEEPING UP WITH THEM. THEY DROVE THEM COMPLETELY OUT OF STALINGRAD AND OTHER AREAS FAR TO THE WEST.

JUL 6 - 1943

THE RUSSIANS LIQUIDATED THREE ENEMY SPRINGBOARDS ON THE CENTRAL FRONT--RZHEV, GZATSK AND VIAZMA--AND BROKE THE BLOCKADE THE NAZIS KEPT FOR 18 MONTHS AT STALINGRAD.

IN FRONT OF MOSCOW, THE GERMANS WERE THROWN BACK 60 MILES.

THE RUSSIANS IN THEIR OUTER SMASH DROVE HUNDREDS OF MILES WESTWARD, REOCCUPYING THE GREAT DONETS VALLEY, RECAPTURING ROSTOV, KHARKOV AND KURSK, AND PUSHED NEARLY 200 MILES BEYOND THE KURSK-KHARKOV LINE TOWARD KIEV.

JUL 6 - 1943

THEN THE GERMANS FOLLOWED WITH A SHORT COUNTER-DRIVE IN WHICH THEY RECOUPED SOME OF THEIR LATEST LOSSES, DRIVING TO THE GATES OF KURSK AND RETAKING KHARKOV AND REOCCUPYING THE MAJOR PART OF THE DONETS BASIN.

ALONG THIS LINE THE GERMANS AND RUSSIANS HAD BEEN POISED FOR MONTHS--UNTIL MONDAY'S OFFENSIVE.

One United States cruiser was sunk.

The first big sea victory in the week-old Pacific offensive was scored the night of July 5 and in the early morning hours of July 6 in a narrow body of water between New Georgia and Kolombangara islands.

Classifications of the enemy ships was not immediately available in the first meager reports from the battle scene.

Beached Ship Destroyed

After the engagement was broken off, American medium torpedo and dive bombers carried on by blasting a beached Japanese destroyer with 500 pound bombs.

The battle occurred a day later but in the same sector where American warships on the night of July 4 and in the pre-dawn of July 5 bombarded Bairoko anchorage on New Georgia and the enemy base of Vila on Kolobangara, during which the U. S. destroyer Strong was sunk, according to advices from the Navy in Washington.

Japs Raid Darwin

The announcement of the naval victory was accompanied by reports of the successful dispersal of 48 raiders over Darwin, additional sky defeats for the enemy over the central Solomons, a 28-ton bomb attack on the Japanese airdrome of Balale in the northern Solomons and an unsuccessful 15-plane enemy raid on Nassau bay, New Guinea.

The communique of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is in the field in New Guinea personally directing the new offensive, gave this terse picture of the sea fight:

"Preliminary dispatches report that our naval surface units intercepted an enemy force of cruisers and destroyers in the Kula gulf during the night of the Fifth.

"Details are not yet available and a final assessment cannot be made but it is indicated that six enemy ships probably were sunk and four damaged.

"We lost one cruiser."

"One damaged enemy destroyer, beached near Sambera harbor, was attacked by our medium dive bombers which scored seven direct hits with 500 pound bombs, resulting in violent explosions and fires."

Drive Enters Second Week

The victory was announced by headquarters of Gen. MacArthur just one week to a day after the Pacific offensive opened with seizure of Rendova island in the Solomons and landing near Salamaua, New Guinea.

The Japanese air defeats also mounted, today's communique reporting that seven out of 48 enemy planes raiding Darwin were shot down while we also lost seven.

In air battles over Rendova and over the Kula gulf nine other enemy planes were downed.

Fifteen enemy planes raided Nassau bay near Salamaua where Americans established a beachhead a week ago.

The sea battle in a body of water 15 miles long and about eight miles across at its widest part had been preceded by the appearance on the night of July 4 and in the pre-dawn of July 5 of American warships which bombarded Bairoko anchorage on New Georgia, the point through which the enemy's menaced air base of Munda is supplied.

U. S. Destroyer Sunk

During the bombardment the United States destroyer Strong was sunk, the Navy reported from Washington. The sinking of the cruiser in the later Navy battle was the third ship announced as lost in the Solomons since the Pacific offensive opened June 30.

During the landings on Rendova island, the troopship McCawley was sunk by combined Japanese air and submarine action after it had discharged its troops.

Today's continuing air actions, in which the Japanese recognized the growing menace to their air bases in the north Solomons by persistently challenging American control of the skies, was foreseen in earlier reports from South Pacific headquarers (in which area the Solomons is located). Spokesmen at headquarters there said the Japanese would be forced to send over more and more of their planes.

The nine planes announced as shot down at Kula gulf and Kendova increased to 166 the number bagged over the Solomons area since the new offensive got under way.

Highlights of Offensive

In the first week of an offensive extending over a 700-mile arc from the Solomons to New Guinea, these were the highlights:

1. Rendova island within artillery shelling distance of the Munda air base on New Georgia seized and conquered in a single day.

2. Viru Harbor, on New Georgia across a narrow channel of water from Rendova, conquered.

3. Vangunu island just southeast of New Georgia, seized and completely occupied (an announcement made Tuesday from South Pacific headquarters.)

4. A beachhead established within 12 miles of the Japanese air base of Salamaua, northeastern New Guinea, at Nassau bay toward which Australians moved from points inland to effect a junction. Salamaua now is threatened from three sides by Australian and American patrols.

5. Japan's big air fortress of Rabaul, New Britain, pounded in repeated raids by 100 tons of bombs which have cut down the weight of air blows with which the enemy might parry the Allied drive.

6. Drawing out of elements of the Japanese navy with the resultant triumph in the Kula gulf.

(Dispatches from Washington placed total Japanese naval losses in the Solomons since the outbreak of the war at between 65 and 80 ships as against about 40 of ours.

For the fourth time within a week, the communique directed attention at Allied shipping in the Arafura sea between Australia and New Guinea.

Allied Convoy Attacked

Today's communique said three Japanese float planes and four medium bombers attempted to attack a small Allied convoy in daylight but were driven off by Allied fighters escorting the ships.

The raid reported on Darwin caused slight damage to ground installations. The seven enemy planes downed included five bombers and two fighters. Two other bombers were listed as probably destroyed and two damaged. Three of the pilots of the seven ships we lost were saved and three others were seen to bail out.

Four hundred miles northwest of Darwin, Allied medium bombers started fires and explosions on Penfoei airdrome at Koepang on Dutch Timor.

On Dutch New Guinea, the Japanese-held villages of Keaukwa near Kaukenau was bombed by two-engined raiders. Also on Dutch New Guinea, four-engined bombers struck at the airdrome on Babo in adverse weather.

Japs Raid New Guinea

In the New Guinea battle sector nine Japanese bombers and four fighters "ineffectively raided" the Bena Bena area 90 miles northwest of Lae. This inland area is known to have had emergency landing fields before the war but the infrequent raids made by the enemy there have been reported without elaboration.

Near Lae, above Salamaua, bombers struck at Labu Lagoon where the enemy has been known to secret supply barges.

Some five miles from Salamaua, patrol clashes were reported at Bobdubi.

Today's communique said the 15-plane enemy raid on Nassau bay caused no damage.

It also reported a raid, previously announced from Washington, of an attack by big Liberator bombers on the Japanese airdrome at Ballale island in the Shortland islands below Bougainville. The raiders dropped 22 tons of high explosives which started fires. Despite interception by the fighters, all returned safely.

Hits blanketing the ferry terminal installations in Messina was stated officially.

Middle East Flyers Attack.

More than sixty Liberator bombers based in the Middle East joined in the devastating raids, shaking Messina in Sicily with nearly 375,000 pounds of bombs, a communique of the United States Ninth Air Force declared.

30 Forts Bag 41 Axis Planes

Former Bodyguard of Morgenthau Shoots Down 7 in Battle Over Sicily.

JUL 7 - 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 6 (A. P.).—Allied air forces, spearheaded by United States Flying Fortresses which shot down forty-one enemy fighters over Gerbini, struck paralyzing blows at Axis resistance yesterday over Sicily and Sardinia.

It first was announced that the fortresses had shot down thirty fighters but tonight it was stated officially after complete checking and comparison of pilot's reports that the score was forty-one, sending Axis losses for twenty-four hours to a total of fifty-three.

Twelve Allied planes were lost.

The smashing aerial offensive against the Italian outpost islands went through its third straight day with bombers roaring over Gerbini, Marsala, Licata, Sciacca and Catania in Sicily and Villacidro in Sardinia—all of them bases for the defending Axis aerial fleets.

In twenty-four hours ending yesterday, forty-two enemy planes were shot down against a loss of twelve Allied planes, it "caused extensive damage," the communique said, and bombs were laid on railway tracks, a roundhouse, a warehouse, freight yards, oil tanks and barracks by the Liberators striking in three waves. One string of bombs "fell across the Lazaretto mole."

The Liberators downed three enemy planes and returned without loss themselves.

Only 30 Forts in Attack.

Flying Fortresses striking at Gerbini won what is considered one of the greatest single-mission victories of the entire Mediterranean campaign by knocking down thirty out of more than 100 German fighters attacking them. One of the greatest individual victories emerged, too, when Staff Sergt. Benjamin Warmer of San Francisco destroyed seven fighters.

Despite the spectacular and seemingly suicidal tactics of the Germans, the Fortresses successfully reached and bombed Gerbini, where they showered explosives over the main airfield and nine satellite fields.

Less than thirty of the big four-motored craft participated in the raid. Outnumbered about four to one, they shot down an average of one enemy plane apiece and destroyed an estimated twenty-five more parked on the ground. Three Fortresses were lost.

Expert Nazi Flyers.

The Germans made desperate and expert efforts trying to break up the formation of Fortresses heading for Gerbini, said Col. Fay R. Upthegrove of Olean, N. Y.

"They came right up through their own flak which was pretty heavy and started dropping aerial bombs on us from about 1,000 feet up," he said. "Then they dive-bombed us, and it looked like they used a pattern attack in an effort to knock out the leading Fortresses and disrupt our formations. Most of their bombs were time-fused to explode at our altitude.

"We went right ahead into the bombing runs with all our guns going. I heard later they were attacking me from directly above, but I was too busy at the time to notice.

"It's pretty evident those pilots were not amateurs. I have never seen fighters attack so closely before. It looked like they thought the bombs would scatter us so they could pick us off individually. That's where we outmaneuvered them.

Tactics of Foe Described.

"After the bombs were dropped some of the fighters attacked the formation in a line from the stern. They would fire on one element and dive under the fire at another, then zoom over and come in on another from the front. Others would ride alongside the formation, peel off and hit individually."

The colonel, who led his thirteenth mission, praised the deadly shooting of Sergt. Warmer, a 6-foot-6-inch 275-pound former athletic star, who downed seven planes. Sergt. Warmer was formerly bodyguard to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

But, Col. Upthegrove said there were others who accomplished an even greater feat and whose names may never be known—the gunners on the three Fortresses that were lost.

"Those boys were still firing away when their planes were burning all around them," he said. "I can't say enough for fellows who stay in there pitching like that. The ball turret gunner of one of the planes we lost got two fighters. The last the boys saw of him he was still firing away."

13 for One Fortress.

The crew of Sergt. Warmer's Fortress was credited with a total of thirteen victories—seven for Sergt. Warmer, three for Sergt. Emmett R. Worthey of Eldon, Mo., two for Sergt. Robert H. Creo of Pittsburgh, Pa., and one for Falvey G. Haynes, San Angelo, Tex.

The battle lasted only fifteen minutes, and the Fortresses' thirty victims all were registered within that time.

Their mission, which was to cascade hot steel and high explosive over the planes and installations at Gerbini, was accomplished with hardly less success. Bomb splinters tore through hurdles of planes sitting on the ground, destroying and damaging many. Hangars and administration buildings were hit and smoke was rising high when the big bombers left.

Besides the thirty victories officially attributed to Fortress gunners and five scored by Lightning pilots also over Gerbini, Allied headquarters announced that five planes had been destroyed by Malta aircraft and coastal squadrons had downed two more.

Discouraged the Nazis.

They handed the Germans such a savage mauling that throughout the rest of the day only about ten enemy fighters rose to meet succeeding bomber formations. Lockhead Lightnings downed five of these.

Bombers of the R. A. F. and South African Air Force, along with other groups of United States planes, ranged far and wide over Sicily and Sardinia. They reported meeting little fighter opposition, but some anti-aircraft fire. Villacidro, in Sardinia, and Catania, in Sicily, were raided by night bombers.

The forty-two enemy aircraft lost in twenty-four hours included only those shot down by planes of the Northwest African Air Forces.

[In contrast, the German communique as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press asserted the British-American air forces lost fifty-one planes, mostly four-engined bombers, "in repeated thrusts against the Sicilian coasts yesterday." The Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press, said the raids at Messina, Catania and Marsala caused "limited" damage and casualties. This communique reported an Axis raid on the harbor of Bizerte, a claim not immediately confirmed by Allied sources.]

At the eastern end of the Mediterranean, small bodies of British troops dashed on to the beaches of Axis-held Crete from shallow draft vessels Sunday night, raided airfields, destroyed grounded planes, left a number of oil dumps afire, and withdrew safely. The raid was announced last night in a Cairo communique.

In a broadcast to the Greek patriots on Crete, the British Ministry of Information in London quickly pointed out that "this is not an invasion" and cautioned them not to betray themselves by premature resistance.

"The day is coming when the signal will be given for the warriors of Crete to fight side by side with the invasion forces to exast justice for your enemy's crimes," the broadcast added. "Until then stay in your places."

The hard, quick thrust, which caught the Axis unawares, was described by the Cairo communique as "successful," made seven kills to establish what is probably an individual record for a foray's shooting. The sharpshooter was Staff Sergeant Benjamin Warmer 3d, of San Francisco.

Other Sicilian targets were Licata, Marsala, Sciacca, Catania and Messina and the objective in Sardinia was the air base of Villacidro.

12 Allied Planes Lost

A dozen Allied planes in all were lost.

The attackers flew against the Italian outposts from bases in French Africa, Malta and the Middle East and once again the Allied command pointed up the increased enemy opposition by calling it "vigorous."

The hardest fight was over Gerbini where the Germans tried everything including suicide tactics to block the Fortresses. The Americans fought through for 15 minutes to lay their explosives on the main and subsidiary airfields where additional grounded planes were destroyed.

Sergt. Warmer said at his home base: "I think we are quite capable of handling them the same way every mission if it becomes necessary. But I don't think they can stand it. In fact I doubt if they ever had a worse beating than they received today."

30 Fliers Lost

Thirty of his buddies were lost in the three destroyed bombers. One exploded during its bomb run and caught fire; a second went down in flames; the third was last seen heading toward the sea trailing smoke.

Reconnaissance photographs showed that the other 27 did their work well covering the target area throughout and leaving many parked planes afire.

U. S. Liberators from the Middle East delivered a heavy blow at the ferry terminal of Messina where nearly 375,000 pounds of high explosives were dropped in daylight by 60 planes in three waves a Cairo communique said.

Extensive damage was claimed at the terminal; railway tracks were ripped up; a roundhouse was exploded; the central station and oil tanks and barracks were left blazing. The Liberators all fought home safely after shooting down three and perhaps four and damaging five others.

Malta-based planes destroyed five Axis fighters and coastal patrols shot down two more.

British Wellington bombers attacked Villacidro and Catania which lies close to the towering volcano Mt. Etna.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 6.—A furious air battle developed over Gerbini yesterday during a Flying Fortress raid on that Sicilian airfield, Allied headquarters announced today, and the American gunners shot down 30 of approximately 100 attacking enemy fighters.

The communique described the resistance there as "vigorous."

The Fortresses striking at Gerbini won what is considered one of the greatest single-mission victories of the entire Mediterranean.

One of the greatest individual victories emerged, too, when Staff Sergt. Benjamin Warmer of San Francisco destroyed seven fighters.

Despite the spectacular and seemingly suicidal tactics of the Germans, the Fortresses successfully reached and bombed Gerbini, where they showered explosives over the main airfield and nine satellite fields.

Other Allied air squadrons inflicted damage on three other landing fields in Sicily—at Licata, Marsala and Sciacca, the war bulletin said.

Fires and Explosions.

A Cairo communique said fires and explosions dotted the harbor area at this vital enemy communications center. The railway station, supply depot, engine sheds and an infantry barracks also were hit. Three enemy fighters were reported shot down there.

The headquarters war bulletin reported that during yesterday and the night before the Northwest African Air Forces had knocked down 42 aircraft, including the 30 at Gerbini.

(In contrast, the German communique as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press asserted the British-American air forces lost 51 planes, mostly four-engined bombers, "in repeated thrusts against the Sicilian coasts yesterday."

Special Marauder Unit Is Created In Africa

An Advanced Bomber Base in North Africa, July 6 (AP)—A large unit made up exclusively of Marauder bombers has been created within Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Strategic Air Force after a long trial by combat in the North African theater.

The unit, believed to be one of the largest forces of Marauders battering Axis targets anywhere, has given this medium bomber a position of equal rank with its fellow-worker, the Mitchell, used in the raid on Tokyo.

In one thirty-three-day period since the fall of Tunisia, the unit made about fifty trips over enemy territory. During four days of operations against Pantelleria alone it dumped nearly 600 tons of bombs.

46 Fighters Downed

Forty-six enemy fighters which challenged the Marauders were shot down. A number of grounded spite of its oversized engines and many more were damaged.

Flyers said that figures such as these won respect for the plane in spite of its over-sized engines and short, stubby wings.

They said the plane has fulfilled a demand for a low-altitude bomber of medium range, able to carry sizable bomb loads and fly at high speed to protect itself. Improvements have been made on the newer models as the result of experience in combat, particularly in the South Pacific.

Called Good As Any

One of the operations officers here, Lieut. James E. Conlan, former professional baseball player, who has flown 300 hours of combat, said he believed the Marauder "is as good as any for bomb precision and area bombing at medium altitudes."

"It can handle about every job in the North African theater," he said. "I must admit that when you come down from flying formations you've done a day's work, but the men whose lives depend on the plane's performance consider it satisfactory."

Fort Gunner Tells Of Downing Seven Axis Planes Over Sicily

Former Morgenthau Bodyguard, In Attack On Gerbini, Probably Sets Record For One Mission

Staff Sergeant Warmer, of San Francisco, Cal., shot down seven enemy planes in an aerial battle over Gerbini, Sicily, yesterday, probably a record for a single gunner on one mission. Warmer is a former bodyguard of Secretary Morgenthau.

WARMER 3D

By STAFF SERGEANT BENJAMIN F. WARMER

A Flying Fortress Base in North Africa, July 6 (AP)—"Judge, I kept my word."

That's what I want to tell my father, Superior Court Judge Benjamin F. Warmer, of San Bernardino, Cal., because I promised to get a few planes for him when I came over here. I named my gun "the Judge" and it came through today in great shape.

JUL 7 - 1943

At Least Seven

I got at least seven planes and I believe I hit and damaged more.

We were told before the takeoff that we were hitting one of the toughest spots in Sicily, and we accepted it at its face value without losing confidence in our ability to come through. The warning turned out to be a bit of an understatement.

About five minutes off the target we ran into a howling anti-aircraft barrage, and coming up through their own flak were more enemy pursuit planes than we had ever seen. It had been their habit to lay outside their flak until it was over, but today they came right into their own fire.

Came In At Start

The first plane that I got a shot at came in at the start—a Messerschmitt peeled off from our right and leveled straight at us with his guns winking. I winked back until the German was fifty yards away, and then I saw him burst into flames and plough down under our Fortress. I signaled the left waist gunner to look out of his window and see if the plane went down. He nodded yes.

No 2 and No. 3 were daisies. Two Messerschmitt-109s made a run together at the Fortress. I got one on the way in. He peeled off in a roll. The other came on but broke his run at about fifty yards, and I opened up on his belly when he exposed it in a turn. The first plane slid off to the right for approximately 1,000 yards and the pilot bailed out. The second plane went down and the pilot also left it.

Meantime one of our own Fortresses had been set on fire.

Confirmed By Others

The next two victories I didn't even intend to claim, but the gunners in some other plane saw them parachuting down. There was a Messerschmitt making a run at our Fortress and I picked him up as he started his bank, held the trigger down until the plane began to smoke, and he started out of control like a leaf floating in the breeze.

The other one was making a run on a ship of ours—the one that was in trouble. The enemy had to pass within fifty yards of me, so I put approximately 200 rounds into him and the last I saw of him he was in a vertical dive and burning.

I got two more fighters, but didn't have time to identify them positively.

Banked For Run

They were both making passes at a Fortress behind us, and as they banked to make a run on her they had to pass me. The first tried dodging tactics when they saw my tracers, but he was too close for me to miss and he went down before he got to the plane he was after.

The other one was doing the same thing. He was just under our tail and below us and shooting at the ship behind us when one of my incendiaries made him explode in the air. He was number seven.

I passed up my chance for a commission in the army to become a gunner because I wanted to get some action, and today I had my hands full.

I knew every one of our boys who went down—we had been eating together, palling around together and living together for eight months. I only wish I could have gotten a plane for every one of them.

Mixed Emotions

We looked on those fellows who shot it out with us today with sort of mixed emotions. We respected them for their flying ability, because they are part of the German air force's flying circus.

I think we are capable of handling them in the same way on every mission if it becomes necessary, but I don't think they can stand it. In fact, I doubt if they ever had a worse beating than they received today.

I've just finished reading the synopsis of a book, "Queens Die Proudly," and it exemplifies perfectly just how I felt when I saw two of our Fortresses go down. One was burning from stem to stern as three fighters made passes at her. The ball turret gunner was still in position and he got all three in that one pass. Every gunner in the squadron will verify it. He went down with the Queen.

It isn't the machine alone—it's the combination of the men and the machine that makes the Fortress.

ALGIERS DISSOLVES DORIOT'S FACTION

Algiers, July 6 (A. P.).—The French Popular party, which had Nazi connections through Jacques Doriot, was dissolved by a decree of the French Committee of National Liberation today.

Meeting under the chairmanship of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the committee also abrogated all Vichy decrees establishing obligatory controlling "groupments" in production and commerce.

An official statement said the committee "examined the problems of French refugees in Spain and the measures to be taken regarding them."

In another forward step the of committee authorized the creation of an aviation school at Marrakech, Morocco, where "navigation and other officers will be trained to form a staff for air artillery units."

Three members of the committee are on overseas missions—Gen. Henri Giraud, en route to Washington to see President Roosevelt; Gen. Georges Catroux and Rene Massigli.

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Fighting French headquarters said today the Ministry of Information had suspended the French weekly newspaper Marseillaise printed in London. The reason was not stated.

1,009 NAZI TANKS WRECKED BY REDS IN TWO-DAY FIGHT

JUL 7 - 1943

Moscow Reveals German Gains on Southern Part of Front.

13,000 GERMANS SLAIN

Red Lines Hold Firm in Bitter Fighting at Kursk, Orel.

LONDON, Wednesday, July 7.—(AP) The big German offensive against central Russia drove into two populated places near Belgorod at the southern anchor of the 165-mile front Tuesday despite terrific losses which mounted to at least 13,000 German dead in two days of fierce fighting, the Russians announced today.

In the Belgorod area the Nazi war machine renewed its attacks early in the morning and at first was hurled back to its initial position by the strong Russian fire, but later in the day "strong forces of tanks" succeeded in capturing two unnamed villages, the Russians acknowledged with a loss of 100 tanks at that point alone.

Other Red Lines Hold

A special communique was issued announcing the Belgorod penetration, but it asserted that the German onslaught was held at all other points.

"In the Belgorod direction, at a cost of heavy losses, the enemy was able to advance somewhat in some sectors," said the bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Along the entire Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front the Russian defenders destroyed or disabled a total of 1,009 tanks in two days, 423 of them Tuesday, the bulletin declared. In addition, 111 more German planes were shot down, raising the two-day total to 314.

The 13,000 Nazis killed represented only a small part of the German casualties. The two special communiques issued in the first two days of the offensive have failed to mention casualties, and the 13,000 represents a total of Germans listed killed only in individual actions on scattered sectors.

The regular midnight communique elaborated on the Belgorod penetration as follows:

"In the Belgorod direction the Germans renewed their attacks on Soviet positions from early morning. Our troops met the enemy with strong fire from all kinds of arms and hurled them back to their initial positions.

Use Tank Forces

"In the second half of the day, bringing up strong forces of tanks, the enemy once again launched an offensive. In the fighting they lost more than 100 tanks. In one place the Hitlerites, at the cost of heavy losses, were able to capture two populated places."

On all other sectors, the communique said, the German onslaught was being held in "stubborn engagements" which left little doubt that terrific fighting was continuing.

The midnight communique added 3,000 German dead to a previously-reported total of 10,000 in the first 36 hours of the gigantic battle.

These 3,000 officers and men, the Russians said, were wiped out by one formation in the Orel-Kursk direction where a 400-tank German attack was stopped at a cost of 110 enemy tanks. German tanks and infantry attacked in this sector "constantly," the communique said.

As the Russians turned in their report on the second day of the Nazis' big summer offensive, it appeared, on the basis of acknowledged German gains, that Hitler's strategists may be attempting to turn the Russians' southern flank with the bloody power of the offensive's opening momentum.

Great Force Massed

From the Russian figures of Nazi plane and tank losses alone it seemed that the Germans were pushing with more than they ever had amassed at one point before.

The two-day Nazi tank toll of 1009 was more than enough to equip four German divisions. The destruction of 111 planes raised the two-day total to 314. The whole picture was one of the greatest wholesale destruction of mechanized war might in all history.

The special Russian communique stressed that the Germans were attacking "with large forces of tanks and infantry," supported by swarms of planes.

Nazis Play Down Battle

The Germans deprecated the magnitude of the battle in their propaganda broadcasts, although the High Command said the fight was extending and "assaulting even greater violence."

The fact that the Germans advanced in the Belgorod sector, suggested they were aiming at Voronezh on the Don and that possibly a crossing had been forced on the Donets on which Belgorod is located.

Previous German gains had been limited to a quarter of a mile, an earlier Russian communique issued at noon said.

In the Orel area where the Russians said enemy attacks were repulsed, the German news agency declared that the Russians almost scored a major break-through in a fierce attack but were finally thrown back by a counterattack.

Meanwhile large forces of Russian bombers kept pounding German troop concentrations in the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod sector. The Moscow radio reported a large number of tanks, motor vehicles, and artillery batteries were destroyed or damaged and said the Germans suffered heavy casualties.

Two Soviet planes were reported missing.

Sharp fighting was reported all along the upper reaches of the western front exclusive of the 165-mile sector where the main German effort was launched, and it appeared that the scale of battles was growing everywhere the Russians were in contact with the Germans.

The midnight bulletin reported two German attempts to retrieve an important height on the Kalinin front captured from the Germans near the end of June. Although the Germans succeeded in breaking through, the Russians said, a Soviet counterattack threw them back and wiped out more than a company of Germans as well as destroying five tanks.

In another sector, reconnaissance activities flared into hand-to-hand fighting during which Russian scouts "wiped out a group of Hitlerites and took prisoners. This was accomplished after the Red army men penetrated German barbed wire entanglements and "broke into his positions."

Penetrations Made By Enemy Only in Isolated Areas

(Map on Page A-6.)

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 6.—Vicious German thrusts by armored divisions and infantry have been flung back with heavy losses all along the 165-mile central front from Orel to Belgorod, the Russians reported today, as the long-expected Nazi summer offensive moved into its second day.

Despite terrific destruction to their armored units, amounting in some cases to as high as 50 per cent of total attacking strength, the Nazi Army kept boring into the heavily defended positions. In only isolated sectors, however, have they managed to penetrate the defense lines, Red Army leaders said.

The Russian midnight communique said that in the initial hours of the battle Red Army units destroyed 586 tanks and 203 planes.

152 More Tanks Knocked Out.

The midday communique reported an additional 152 tanks were knocked out of the fight, including a number of the new 60-ton Tiger tanks. In one sector alone in the Orel-Kursk area, the buletin said, Soviet troops destroyed 50 out of a German unit of 100 tanks. The communique also reported 4,000 Germans had been slain in this area and 2,000 more in one sector of the Belgorod front.

(The German communique reported heavy fighting in the Belgorod and Kursk areas and declared it grew out of "a successful local attack by German infantry" in the Belgorod sector followed by "strong Soviet counterattacks."

(The fighting has spread to the area north of Kursk and is "assuming ever greater violence," said the communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press.)

Start of Battle Described.

Dispatches reaching Moscow from the front told of the start of the battle just after dawn yesterday.

The Nazis, these advices said, used classic tactics—a smashing artillery barrage coupled with heavy air bombardment designed to destroy Russian men and guns and blast a path through the Russian line for the German infantry and armored divisions.

The Germans were firing with everything they had—long-range batteries, medium-range cannon, howitzers, multiple-barreled mortars and even short-range weapons were rolled out before the German front line.

Russian batteries countered with withering fire and as the artillery duels continued the Germans attempted various strategems—such as suddenly switching targets—in an effort to confuse the Russian troops. The various ruses failed and Soviet artillerists succeeded in silencing a number of German batteries, the Russians said.

During the artillery duels Red Army infantrymen crouched in dugouts and slit trenches. When the German tanks and infantry began their advance toward the Russian lines the infantry resumed their places along the firing line.

Nazi Attacks Fail.

The dispatches said the first wave to reach the Russian positions found that the heavy barrage designed to hack lanes through the Soviet lines had failed and that the Russian infantry was still there.

The succeeding steps in the assault apparently found the Germans employing the familiar pattern of attack by tank units, followed by infantry, with small groups of bombers supporting from the air.

The first enemy attack was begun early in the morning. A group of German infantry preceded by several tanks came out into no-man's land as the smoke from the artillery battle was rolling away. They were quickly repulsed by fire from the frontline Soviet detachments, the Russians declared.

Twenty minutes later, however, they said, it became obvious that this attack was only to divert attention from a large-scale thrust which began along a neighboring sector.

This time large German infantry forces rushed into the battle on a narrow sector of the front. Leading the way, frontline reports said, were more than 200 German tanks of all sizes and descriptions, including the heavy Tigers such as the Americans and British have already faced in Tunisia.

Sharp Land and Air Battle.

Low-flying groups of bombers numbering from 20 to 30 in a flight came ahead of the advancing ground forces.

The battle was joined and immediately developed into one of extreme sharpness and intensity both on land and in the air.

In the Orel-Kursk sector, the Russians said, 100 tanks broke through their defenses, but Soviet infantry barred the w[illegible] to oncoming Nazi foot troops while artillery in the rear shelled the tanks. The Germans were reported to have swung around and rolled into swift retreat after 38 of the 100 tanks were damaged.

The Russians admitted the Germans succeeded in occupying two settlements in one sector of the Belgorod front, but said they were dislodged by counterattacks and retreated, leaving hundreds of dead on the battlefield.

30.24 — 5739

Southwest of Mtsensk, which is about 50 miles northeast of Orel, the Russians reported that two regiments of German infantry captured Russian trenches in the vicinity of an important hill. At the day's end, however, the Red Army struck a counterblow which drove out the Germans and left them completely re-established, the midday communique said. It was estimated that the Germans lost 600 killed in the assault.

Drive Not Unexpected.

The offensive which began yesterday was not unexpected by the Russians. For weeks they have predicted that it was soon to come and even said that it would begin in the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod area.

Communiques for several weeks have told of large concentrations of troops, armored equipment and artillery in the sector and Red Army air power was used extensively in attacks on Nazi supply depots and railways behind the lines.

The offensive, the third summer drive of the Russian war, was launched at a later period than the previous two. Germany first attacked Russia June 22, 1941, but the attack stalled in the heavy winter snows and the Nazis were forced to retreat.

The 1942 attack was launched nine days earlier, on June 13, but the German army failed to smash Russian resistance and again found itself forced back during the winter months.

RAF FIGHTERS BAG 8 NAZIS IN SWEEPS

Spitfires Strike by Day Over French Coast From Dieppe to Dunkerque, Seeking Foe

NIGHT FLIER HITS A SHIP

Two German Planes Break the Lull in Air Over Britain by Machine-Gun Attack

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—Royal Air Force fighters on sweeps over Northern France and along the French coast from Dieppe to Dunkerque knocked down eight German fighter planes today. German reports of British bomber raids on Germany last night remained unconfirmed.

The Nazi fighters—Focke-Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109s—were destroyed by pilots of a Canadian and Polish wing forming a large Spitfire formation, the Air Ministry news service reported.

Five fell to the Poles and two to the Canadians. The commander of a Canadian squadron destroyed a Messerschmitt inland from Boulogne and then the motor of his plane cut out. He glided thirty miles back to England and landed safely at an airdrome. The weather was clear over Dover Strait.

A Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said British planes carried out "nuisance raids" over Western and Northern Germany during the night, but no announcement was made by the British concerning such activities.

During the night an RAF plane damaged a German armed ship of about 500 tons in a low-level attack off the Netherland coast, the Air Ministry news service said.

The Air Ministry reported that two Nazi fighter planes had flown for a short time this evening over a district in East Anglia, at one point wounding a small number of persons by machine-gun fire. [Up to last night no German bombs had been dropped on Britain for two weeks, Reuter noted.]

Allied Planes Again Raid North France; Germany Bombed

Photographs Reveal Le Mans Aero Plant Hit in Sunday Foray

JUL 7 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6. — Allied planes, including many squadrons of fighters, roared over the Channel toward the French coast in brilliant sunshine this morning as a Berlin broadcast was reporting raids on Germany last night by British bombers.

There were no immediate British announcements concerning any night activities over the Reich, but the Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said enemy planes had carried out "nuisance raids" over Western and Northern Germany.

The daylight squadrons, flying high in weather so clear the French shoreline was easily seen from the British side of Dover Strait, were observed heading for the area between Boulogne and Calais.

During the night an RAF plane damaged an armed vessel of about 500 tons in a low level attack off the Dutch coast, the Air Ministry News Service said.

Yank Raid Successful.

Meanwhile, United States Army headquatrers announced that photographs had disclosed "satisfactory" results in the Sunday bombing of the Gnome-Rhone aero factory at Le Mans, France, by 8th Air Force bombers.

The announcement said a considerable portion of the main building at the Le Mans factory was damaged.

In other raids on Independence Day, the American bombers scored many hits on a depot at the Chateau Bougon airdrome near Nantes, France, a direct hit was registered on a heavily-armed escort ship, and a dry dock and other installations were reported damaged. Eight bombers were lost in the three raids.

The Air Ministry News Service reported last night that photographic experts confirmed "heavy industrial damage" was caused by the June 28 and July 3 RAF raids on much-bombed Cologne in Germany.

Bomb Weight Doubled.

The news service said these two raids within a week sent down "well over twice" the weight of bombs delivered in the 1,000-bomber attack on that city a year ago.

The triple American attack Sunday was in the nature of an anniversary celebration, for it was just a year before that Americans first made an air attack on enemy Europe. On July 4, 1942, a handful of American pilots borrowed half a dozen Boston bombers from the RAF and raided German positions in Northern France.

Simultaneously with the Saturday night raid on Cologne, the British heavy bombers bombed Hamburg and other targets in the Ruhr. The night's operations cost the RAF 33 planes.

Churchill Calls Sikorski Death Blow to Allies

Tells Parliament Tragedy Is a Heavy Stroke, Says Poles Will Carry on Work

LONDON, July 6 (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the death of General Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish government-in-exile, who was killed Sunday in an air crash at Gibraltar, was "one of the heaviest strokes we have sustained."

At the same time, the House was advised that Brigadier J. P. Whiteley, a member of Parliament, was among the sixteen persons killed in the crash of a Liberator plane which was bringing Sikorski back here after an inspection of Polish forces in the Middle East. Whiteley, who was forty-five, was a veteran of the first world war and had been in Commons since 1937.

Representatives of the Polish government looked on from the galleries as the Prime Minister told the House that "we learned yesterday that the cause of the United Nations has suffered a most grevious loss."

"It is my duty to express the feeling of this House and pay tribute to the memory of the great Polish patriot and staunch ally, General Sikorski," Churchill went on.

Led Military Forces

Sikorski, who in addition to being Premier had served as commander in chief of the Polish armed forces, "commanded the devoted loyalty of the Polish people, now tortured and struggling in Poland itself," Churchill said.

"He personally directed the movement of resistance which has maintained ceaseless warfare against German oppression in spite of sufferings as terrible as any nation ever has endured. This resistance will grow in power until at the approach of the liberating armies it will exterminate the German ravagers of the homeland."

President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz met at noon today with the Polish Cabinet to pay homage to Sikorski, but there was no business transacted and it was believed unlikely that permanent appointments to the premiership and the command of the army would be made for some time.

Sikorski, meanwhile, lay in state today in the Roman Catholic cathedral at Gibraltar. Beside him lay General Tadeusz Klimecki, chief of the Polish general staff, who met death in the same accident. A guard of honor composed of Polish officers was posted at the cathedral, where a solemn pontificcal mass of requiem will be celebrated tomorrow.

The crash of the four-engined Liberator took the lives of thirteen other persons, including General Sikorski's twenty-nine-year-old daughter, Mrs. Sophia Lesniowska; Colonel Andrzej Marecki, chief of the Polish Army operational section and an expert in military science; Colonel Gralewski, Lieutenant Pobiewski, Sikorski's naval aide; Adam Kulakowski, the Premier's private secretary, and Colonel Victor Aleexander Cazalet, a member of the British Parliament.

Cause Not Determined

The only survivor of the crash, the cause of which has not officially been determined, was the pilot of the plane, said to have been a Czech, whose name was withheld by British authorities at Gibraltar.

It was reported at London that the mishap was due to an engine failure. A Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said that résidents of La Linea, Spain, saw the big bomber crash in flames only 300 yards offshore.

Immediately after word of Gen. Sikorski's death was received in London a special session of the Government in Exile was called by President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, who appointed Deputy Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk to serve as Acting Premier pending the selection of Sikorski's successor.

FREED POLAND, ANGRY PLEDGE BY CHURCHILL

London, July 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill pledged in Commons today that Poland's fight for freedom led by Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish Government-in-Exile who was killed Sunday night in an air crash near Gibraltar, would be carried on until it "will exterminate the German ravages of the homeland."

Two members of the House of Commons were included in the 15 persons killed in the crash of the B-24 Liberator aircraft bearing Sikorski home from the Middle East. They were Brig. J. P. Whiteley, 45, veteran of World War I, and Col. Victor Alexander Cazalet, expert on Middle European affairs, who was well known in the United States. Sikorski's 29-year-old daughter, Mrs. Sophia Lesniowska, died in the same accident.

Churchill told the House that Sikorski's death was "one of the heaviest strokes we have sustained."

Premier Sikorski, who also served as commander in chief of the Polish armed forces, "commanded the devoted loyalty of the Polish people, now tortured and struggling in Poland itself," Churchhill said.

The crash of the plane took the lives of 11 other persons, including Col. Andrzej Marecki, choef of the Polish army operational section and an expert in military science; Col. Gralewski, Lieut. Pobiewski, Sikorski's naval aid, and Adam Kulakowski, the Premier's private secretary.

The other British subjects who were killed in the crash were announced today as W. W Lock and a man named Pinder, who was otherwise unidentified. Lock was en route to England from the Persian Gulf area where he had been a representative of the Ministry of War Transport.

Churchill Looks To Complete Victory

London, Wednesday, July 7 (AP) Prime Minister Churchill told China's Generalissima Chiang Kai-shek in a message observing the sixth anniversary of the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese conflict today that the victories in North Africa and successes on the Yengtze gave "tangible evidence in the East and the West of what is to come."

Warning that "colossal difficulties" lie ahead, Churchill said however, that the "pattern of events is now becoming clear, initiative is being wrested from the grasp of the enemy and we can look forward with confident hope to the time when all over the world the aggressors are driven to unconditional surrender."

Spitfire Pilot Glides 30 Miles After Plane Engine Goes Dead

Canadian Brings Craft To English Base After Sailing Through Ack-Ack At Boulogne

JUL 7 - 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, July 7—R. F. McNair, leader of a Canadian squadron, brought his Spitfire home without a motor today after a sweep over northern France—gliding thirty miles, part of the way through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Air sources said the long glide undoubtedly was a record for an operational flight.

McNair, who holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, had just shot down a Messerschmitt 109 when his engine went dead. He was some distance inland at the time—but was well over 20,000 feet.

Takes Short Route

He decided to glide.

He took the shortest route, despite the fact that that meant flying directly over the strongly defended town of Boulogne.

McNair said he did not want to risk wasting height by going around the town.

As he approached the port he was greeted by heavy ack-ack fire. It burst all around him. In maneuvering, he said, he lost valuable height, but he managed to keep going toward the coast.

Followed At Base

His flight was followed at his base. When he was about halfway home, his headquarters asked how things were going.

"Oh, fine," came the reply. "It's a piece of cake."

McNair finally made the Channel, crossed it easily and came down smoothly on an airfield in southern England.

He made but one comment:

"It was wonderful flying alone, so peacefully, and without any noise."

McNair's home is at North Battleford, Sask.

SMUTS IS FAVORED

London, July 6 (A. P.).—The aging Prime Minister of South Africa, 73-year-old Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, will seek a return to power for himself and his United party Wednesday in the Union's first war-time elections.

Self-described as "an old horse in his last race," Marshal Smuts is believed by most observers to be assured of re-election over the combined opposition parties headed by D. F. Malan, anti-British leader and head of the People's party. Coming as it does so soon after Allied military successes in North Africa, the election undoubtedly favors Marshal Smuts, who took the Union of South Africa into the war after defeating the Government of the late Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog in 1939 by thirteen votes.

The votes of 160,000 soldiers outside the union will be cast in the election, a fact which probably will delay announcement of the final result until July 23 because of the counting procedure.

If returned to power, Marshal Smuts is expected to leave for a trip to Britain and North America some time in August.

DUTCH DOCTORS HELD

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Aneta, the Netherlands news agency, reported today that hundreds of Dutch physicians have been imprisoned in concentration camps by the Germans because they refuse to accept Nazi medical ideologies and practices.

The agency quoted reliable informants as saying that the physicians were being rounded up by German authorities in Holland and that their property was being confiscated. Many of them have gone into hiding, it was said, while health services are at an apparent standstill.

U. S. O. Official Reaches England on Transport

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Walter Rothschild, New York importer and a member of the U. S. O. executive committee, has arrived in Great Britain to inspect welfare work among United States troops here, it was announced today. He made the trip on a troopship to study welfare work as it is carried out at sea.

Provost Marshal Of England Resigns

London, July 6 (AP)—Major General Sir Percy R. Laurie today resigned as Provost Marshal General of England, to which he was appointed in 1940.

Sir Percy was convicted of alleged ration-book offenses on April 3, but appealed, and the conviction was quashed by the appeals committee in London Sessions on May 19. He had been suspended from his post pending the appeal.

JAMAICA GOVERNOR NAMED

Sir John Huggins Goes to Island From Washington Post

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—John Huggins, head of the British Colonies Supply Mission in Washington, has been appointed Governor of Jamaica, succeeding Sir Arthur Frederick Richards, recently appointed Governor of Nigeria, it was announced today. The new Governor entered the British colonial service in 1920 and has been a member of the Anglo-American Caribbean Commission.

Eden Congratulates U. S. On Food Conference

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, speaking in the House of Commons, congratulated the United States Government today on the successful outcome of the Hot Springs food conference, describing it as the first experiment of a comprehensive international discussion of postwar matters.

London, July 6 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio, quoting dispatches from Tokio, reported today that Japanese military authorities estimated the United States had lost between 10,000 and 11,000 men since the beginning of operations on Rendova Island in the Solomons as the result of continuous air attacks.

This Japanese claim was wholly unsupported by American reports from the scene of action, all of which have indicated that the initial landing on the island was accomplished without opposition and that Japanese air raids have been effectively countered.

1,000 British Miners Strike

LONDON, July 6 (AP).—One thousand miners employed in a Derbyshire colliery went on strike tonight against a new wage schedule.

Nazis Say Warcraft Have Quit Gibraltar

London, July 6 (A. P.).—A propaganda broadcast of the German radio said today that all battleships and aircraft carriers have left Gibraltar and there are forty-six merchant vessels in port ready for sailing.

The ship movements continue to indicate active military preparations, said the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

The German radio at intervals issues reports of alleged ship movements centering on the British naval base. These reports are unconfirmed.

German White Paper Accuses British of Attacks on Civilians

JUL 7 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—The Germans who laid waste to Warsaw, Rotterdam and Coventry climaxed their sympathy-seeking campaign against the bombing of their industrial cities with a Foreign Office white paper today charging Britain with "sole guilt" for what it termed attacks on civilians.

Without mentioning the 40,000 British civilians killed and the 120,000 wounded in German air raids on Britain, the white paper asserted that "German efforts have failed to affect the determination of the enemy to use air terror as a plan thought out in the last detail for the destruction of Europe."

The white paper charged that the "English wanted to 'take off the gloves' from the start. Thus the question of guilt in the bombing war has been unequivocally clarified."

Asserting that the destruction of towns and the deaths of thousands of women and children were a "flaming accusation against the two mainly responsible for the war—Churchill and Roosevelt"—the Nazi white paper threatened to exact "eye for eye, tooth for tooth" reprisals.

The white paper was described by DNB, German news agency, in a Berlin radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press. During the reading a ghost voice gave a running commentary asking, "Why is no white book published on Hitler's crimes and bararism?"

VON RICHTHOFEN REPORTED IN ITALY

London, July 6 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that Field Marshal Baron von Richthofen, commander of the German air fleet in the battle of Britain, has been dispatched to Italy to help bolster defenses against the mounting Allied aerial assaults.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said that von Richthofen would assist Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Axis air chief for southern Europe, in organizing a defense against assaults on possible invasion points in Sardinia, Sicily, and the Italian mainland. It was believed in London that von Richthofen had been given German air forces drawn from squadrons based on occupied France and the lowlands. This belief was given weight by a communique yesterday from Allied headquarters in North Africa, which spoke of heavy resistance encountered on raids.

The flying Field Marshal is a cousin of the late Baron Manfred von Richthofen, German ace of the last war.

Reuters said that the Berlin correspondent of the German-controlled Scandinavian telegraphic bureau reported in Stockholm that Richthofen's squadrons had been transferred from Russia to Italy where they will reinforce Kesserling's air force. This report conflicted with the theory advanced by observers here.

There was ample evidence, meanwhile, that Fascist officials were exerting every effort to kill any hopes of the bomb-shocked Italian populace that they might be able to withdraw from the war.

There was ample evidence, meanwhile, that Fascist officials were exerting every effort to kill any hopes of the bomb-shocked Italian populace that they might be able to withdraw from the war.

Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale d'Italia, again warned the Italians that there can be no thought of capitulation.

"The Italian nation rejects with indignant determination all British-American appeals for unconditional surrender," he said.

Sweden Will Continue Extensive War Games

Order Follows Recent Reports of Threat to Country

STOCKHOLM, July 6 (AP).—A Swedish communique announced today that military exercises will be conducted this summer on the same extensive scale as last spring and winter, with the air force participating in the concluding maneuver. The order followed recent statements by Swedish officials that Sweden still is in danger of being drawn into the war.

There was no indication of how many men would be involved in the exercises. Under complete wartime mobilization, Sweden could muster about 600,000 troops.

No dates have been announced for the maneuvers, but they will be held at a period when the nights—now only a few hours in duration—become longer and would permit surprise attacks.

JUL 7 - 1943

STOCKHOLM, July 6 (AP).—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockhold Tidningen quoted Maj. Otto Mossdorf, German military commentator, today as saying that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's South Pacific offensive "may be the beginning of a decided turn of events for the Japanese."

For the past six years, Maj. Mossdorf was reported as saying, the Japanese have failed to fulfill their promises "to finish the Chinese war quickly."

U. S. Prisoners Of Axis Wanted ParchesiGames

But Red Cross Finds Men Sought Dice, Not Boards, and Switches Its Orders

BERN, Switzerland, July 6 (AP).—"Please send more parchesi boards."

This odd request to the International Red Cross's war prisoners' relief center at Geneva, always coming from American doughboy prisoners in Axis camps, exhausted the supply within a few weeks.

The puzzled and curious camp workers, seeking a substitute game, investigated and found the men weren't interested in parchesi but only wanted the dice. Dice now are being supplied.

One American's letter to the International Red Cross, however, gives a more typical insight into the need for the work being carried on.

"The camp is full of happiness and noise as the arrival of one of your relief consignments has shown us that we are not quite forgotten by the world outside, that we are not abandoned to our fate."

Prisoners, both soldier and civilian, are writing such letters, always reflecting more desire to be remembered by the outside world than any need for material assistance, although it is through this material aid that the mental need is most effectively reached.

Food Distribution Improves

As the war drags on, with many prisoners approaching their fifth year of internment, letters from home, books, musical instruments and games are becoming more important to keep spirits high.

The Red Cross food distribution system in Europe is working especially well, say neutral visitors to the camps, to which 51,871 tons of foodstuffs were shipped in 1942 against 38,399 tons in 1941 and 3,001 tons in 1940. The increase is partly due to increasing numbers of prisoners, and partly due to improved packages.

For Americans, Miss Marguerita Strahler is the dynamo of energy, keeping the folks at home in touch with their boys interned, looking after their requests, rushing new prisoner lists to Washington. A Swiss, the daughter of a Swiss father and an American mother, Miss Strahler passed her girlhood in Yokohama, speaks and reads Japanese. Her family lives now in San Francisco.

The first prisoner list sent to the Red Cross by the Japanese was in Japanese script, and she alone could work out the names. The lists now are received in English, but the more or less phonetic spellings require careful study.

Soldiers Plead for Books

The prisoners' letters mostly ask for things to help pass the time. One prisoner wrote: "We are well enough cared for here but intellectually are starving. A few books would make all the difference."

The Red Cross Y. M. C. A., which bought the complete stock of two music stores in Geneva and regularly buys and distributes books, games, musical instruments and plays, is active in meeting this need along with several other relief societies.

Answers like this show that it is worth while: "The joy in this camp at the arrival of your promised case of books is truly indescribable. You cannot imagine what it means to us to receive at last some nourishment for the mind, for our distress in this respect has been great. We can now organize regular classes."

Letters from home are still the most valued gift. Americans can send them through their own Red Cross organization which in turn relays them to the International Red Cross in Geneva for distribution. By the same procedure, through the Red Cross, requests to trace those missing can be made by cable if urgent, or by letter.

8th Army Reported Shifted

BERN Switzerland, July 6 (AP).—A Sofia dispatch quoting the Italian newspaper "Il Giornale D'Italia" said today a great portion of the British 8th Army now was concentrated in Irak, Iran (Persia) and Syria, and said that General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, its head, was reported to be at Bagdad.

China Enters Seventh Year Of Warfare with Japanese

Chiang Sees Defeat of Enemy Within Two Years.

JUL 7 - 1943 MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Wednesday, July 7 — (AP) Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, marking today the sixth anniversary of China's bitter war with Japan, confidently declared that the time limit for utter defeat of the Japanese invasion armies "cannot exceed two years."

Linked with this pledge of victory by 1945, Gen. Chiang told the Chinese people.

"On land, the Japanese invader has been mired down in the China theater with no hope of extricating himself.

"On the sea, his naval and air force is weak and losses to his warcraft and transports are particularly heavy.

Japs Under Pressure

"Over his 8,000-mile front there is no place which is not feeling the increased pressure of the Allied offensiv."

Henceforth, he said, the Japanese could only defend a few isolated islands and once the Allies have launched a simultaneous attack on the enemy's positions, his painful experience on Attu island in the Aleutians, where the entire Japanese garrison was wiped out, would be repeated.

Gen. Chiang said the Japanese never dreamed that China would fight on for six years, "and now, although struggling hard to free himself from the quagmire in order to carry out his ambition of dominating the world, the enemy is no longer free to commit further crimes."

Offensive to Start

"In the seventh year of our war of resistance," he said, in an anniversary message, "an offensive that will deal crushing blows to the enemy will be started in various theaters of the world and there will be an unending stream of victories.

"The current year is the decisive year of the present world war, during which the foundation of the United Nations' ultimate victory will be laid.

"Our war of resistance and the world situation on this day have reached the highest peak in our uphill struggle.

"One step beyond will be smooth-sailing for us."

Gen. Chiang stressed the importance of the Allied conquest in North Africa, as related to the entire global conflict, declaring that as a result of that triumph by the British and American armies "from now on the lines of transportation between the Allies in the east and west will be kept open without interruption and the European and Asiatic war theaters will be merged into one.

"As things stand now," he said, "the initiative in the different theaters has passed into Allied hands.

"Henceforth the aggressor has no alterative but to await his doom. There is no longer any possibility of his making sneak attacks, and the time limit of his utter defeat cannot exceed two years."

The last High Command communique of China's sixth year of hostilities stated tersely: "There is nothing to report on the war situation."

CHINA NOW SEES VICTORY AHEAD

JUL 7 — 1943

Chiang Predicts Defeat of Japs in Two Years.

Chungking, July 6 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told China today on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the outbreak of the conflict with Japan that the time limit for utter defeat of the aggressor "cannot exceed two years."

"In the seventh year of our war of resistance," he said in his anniversary message, "an offensive that will deal crushing blows to the enemy will be started in various theaters of the world and there will be an unending stream of victories.

"Our war of resistance and the world war situation on this day have reached the highest peak of our uphill struggle," he went on. "One step beyond will be smooth sailing for us."

His message was one of a series of confident predictions from Chinese leaders of a complete Allied victory and elimination of Japan as a military power.

Hardest Stretch.

He cautioned that the present marks the beginning of the greatest trials and exhorted his countrymen to brace themselves up, defy all hardships, concentrate on their will and exert their utmost to enable China to join hands with her allies in negotiating the hardest stretch of the road to victory.

He emphasized the utmost importance to the entire war situation of the cleanup of Axis forces in North Africa.

"From now on the lines of transportation between the Allies in the East and West will be kept open without interruption and the European and Asiatic war theaters will be merged into one," he said.

"The initiative in the different theaters of war has passed into Allied hands while Allied military power, economic strength and war production are daily increasing.

"Henceforth the aggressor has no alternative but to await his doom. There is no longer any possibility of his making further sneak attacks and the time limit of his utter defeat cannot exceed two years."

It was the first time the Generalissimo ever had set such a time limit.

The military situation as a whole, he declared, is even brighter now and final victory is further assured.

"The current year," he said, "is the decisive year of the present world war."

The resistance of China's armed forces and civilians forced the Japanese invader to exhaust much of his war resources and retain a great part of his strength in the Chinese theater, he added. "At the same time our armed resistance has made it possible for our allies to carry out satisfactorily their production programs and strengthen their fighting power in various war theaters."

U. S. ACE IN CHINA KILLED IN LANDING

A United States Fighter Group Headquarters in China, July 1 (Delayed), (A. P.).—Major John Lombard, 23 years old, of Ionia, Mich., one of the most decorated fighter pilots in China and one of the youngest squadron commanders in the entire United States Army air forces, was killed at an advanced base in Central China yesterday when he attempted to make an instrument landing in extremely bad weather.

The accident occurred on the eve of Major Lombard's twenty-fourth birthday anniversary. He was one of nine fighter pilot aces in China, with seven confirmed victories and one "probable" to his credit. He was promoted to major last June 1.

Since his arrival in China on April 4, 1942, he had won the Distinguished Flying Cross with an oak leaf cluster, the Silver Star, the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters and the Purple Heart.

The Silver Star citation said that he had unusual offensive spirit. It gave as an example an aerial battle last July 31 in which he led two other P-40 Lightnings into a formation of twenty-seven Japanese planes. Major Lombard destroyed one of them before leading his comrades back to safety.

He was awarded the Purple Heart following a night battle last September in which he destroyed a Japanese bomber. He was wounded and had to bail out of his plane.

All told, Major Lombard had rolled up nearly 200 hours of combat flying, comprising 113 sorties.

His widow and their 19-month-old son live in Ionia.

Auchinleck Warns India

Calls Invasion Threat Still Serious, Tells of Work "to Turn Tide"

BOMBAY, India, July 6 (A.P.).—General Sir Claude John Eyre Auchinleck warned India today that she still faces a serious threat of invasion, but he said: "We are preparing to help turn the tide, preparing to help carry the war east to Japan."

The new commander in chief in India declared at a press conference that "since I was last in India a tremendous thing has happened . . . that is the appearance among us of large forces—air forces and land forces—from the United States."

Sea and Air Fighting Rage In Kula Gulf Area

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 6 (AP).—The Solomons area of the Pacific offensive flamed with continued action both on the sea, where American warships daringly moved above the ground front into Kula Gulf, and in the air over newly-seized Rendova Island, the high command reported today.

(The Tuesday noon communique from headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur made no reference to a naval battle, but did confirm an earlier announcement from Washington that American warships in the Gulf of Kula had shelled Japanese positions.

Fires at the enemy air base of Vila, Kilombangara Island, on the west side of Kula Gulf, and at Bairoko anchorage, New Georgia, on the east side, were set both by the shells of the warships and bombs dropped by Mitchell medium bombers the night of July 4 and in the predawn of July 5. Later, dive-bombers dropped 1,000-pound bombs on Bairoko which is above the menaced enemy air base of Munda, also in New Georgia.

Over Rendova, which is within artillery shelling distance of Munda, the Japanese sent 40 Zeros yesterday in a continued effort to balk expansion of American action in that sector. Outnumbered American fighter planes shot down two of the Zeros and dispersed the remainder while losing one plane, the pilot of which was saved. The Japanese now have lost 157 planes over Rendova in almost daily sky fights since the island was invaded June 30.

The Solomons arm of the offensive virtually monopolized developments reported in today's communique. At the other end of the 700-mile arc at Salamaua, New Guinea, the only action reported was bombardment of the Salamaua airdrome and air attacks on enemy positions between Salamaua and the Nassau Bay area, 12 miles down the coast, where Americans landed last Wednesday.

Another air strike in the Solomons area was directed by torpedo bombers at the enemy seaplane base of Rekata Bay, on Santa Isabel Island above New Georgia.

The communique made no mention of ground action, either in the Solomons or on Northeastern New Guinea.

Above Australia, a long-range fighter strafed and set afire an 80-ton enemy power barge near the Aroe Islands. In the Arafura Sea, two Japanese float planes attacked an Allied ship but missed with the single bomb dropped.

PRIEST OUTWITTED FOE IN SOLOMONS

Father Lebel 'Talked' His Way Off Warship Sent to Remove Him From Bougainville

AIDED RESCUE OF OVER 70

American, Now Safe at Pacific Base, Chafes at Quiet Life

JUL 7 - 1943

and Longs to Return

REMBERT T. JAMES

AN ADVANCED BASE in the South Pacific, June 23 (Delayed) (AP)—An American Catholic priest who for ten months outwalked and outwitted the enemy in the rescue of more than seventy priests, nuns and other white persons from Japanese-held Bougainville Island, at the north end of the Solomons, chafed today at the unaccustomed quiet and safety of his life.

"I want to go back," said the priest, Marist Father Albert Lebel of Brunswick, Me.

Father Lebel came off Bougainville several weeks ago with his Bishop. With them were others composing the last known group of free white people there.

The dark-haired, smiling 38-year-old missionary came out on the instructions of American military authorities.

To the Japanese he became a symbol of defiance, of the unafraid and unconquered white men on an island swarming with Japanese soldiers.

He was always in their hair, but never in their hands—not after they realized how badly they wanted him. Under his superior, he took an important role in gathering the clergy and the faithful in a secret rendezvous. He fed them and helped them to safety.

Surprises Mission Father

Once he took ten native boys and crept at night into a mission settlement at the northern end of Bougainville and rescued three priests and two semi-invalid nuns who were carried on stretchers into the hills.

A few nights later, and many miles away, the missionary boldly shoved his motor boat into a harbor under the guns of five Japanese warships moored at the pier. Then he walked up the main street and told an astonished mission priest to take some clothes and food and come along.

"The mission father almost couldn't talk from surprise at seeing me," Father Lebel related.

When the Japanese first arrived on Bougainville that April they were cocksure and casual. They weren't too sure of exactly what they wanted to do with the missionaries. Father Lebel, at his coastal mission, Tinputz Station, near the northern tip of the island, soon met them.

"It was the second day of Holy Week," the priest said. "I had been expecting them, and I had native boys posted to watch the sea.

"When the boys came in yelling that a ship was entering the bay, I went out with my field glasses and looked. It was a Japanese destroyer. A marine lieutenant and seventeen Japanese marines landed."

In spite of his protestations, Father Lebel found himself on board the destroyer and actually steaming out of the harbor a half hour later. But he talked them into turning back and putting him ashore.

"I told them I was harming no one, that I would only be another internee to feed, if they took me along, and that I had an ill and elderly French priest ashore to take care of.

Cites Examples of Cruelty

"The argument worked. I went back to my mission and to taking care of the elderly man. A month later some Japanese soldiers came and seized my radio. Then everything was quiet until August, when the Marines invaded Guadalcanal. The Japanese became inflamed with hatred and took their feelings out on helpless whites in their grasp."

Father Lebel said he knew personally of two instances on Bougainville in which white men died from Japanese cruelty.

"The first case," he said, "was that of a planter the Japanese tried to force into revealing the hiding place of some other white people.

"They seized him and prodded him into leading them over some trails into the hills. He was a fat man, none too physically fit. He tried to drink from a river, and in his exhaustion, fell in. They let him drown."

The other case was that of a middle-aged man who had been a storekeeper. A group of Japanese, on a march into the hills, grabbed him, put a rope around his neck and pulled the rope down between his legs, forcing the man's head down to the level of his knees.

"They made him trot along ahead of them like some great, clumsy dog on a leash," the priest said. "After they had gone about three miles, they got tired of the sport. One Japanese, in an offhand manner, took his sword and chopped off the man's head."

Japs Sat Entranced on Beach As Yanks Landed on Rendova

JUL 7 - 1943

By J. NORMAN LODGE

WITH OCCUPATION FORCES ON RENDOVA ISLAND, June 30—(Delayed)—(AP) Japanese soldiers, seemingly entranced at the sight of American doughboys wading ashore from invasion boats, sat on stumps and in trees today until the determined invaders started picking the Nips off with sharp shooting.

The Japanese seemed glued to their perches as the tiny boats slipped through the entrance to Renard harbor with so little clearance room on each side the sight resembled a motor boat race.

I was in the first boat that landed at Lumbari and waded ashore with the troops as they opened up on the enemy with tommy guns, rifles and pistols. More than 20 Japanese paid for the glory of their emperor within 50 feet of the shore. In this action we lost no men killed or wounded.

The divisional command post is now more than 1,000 yards inshore at the base of huge Rendova mountain, on the far side of which the few Japanese who are left for cleanup are now holed in.

Much credit for the beautifully executed landing maneuver is due the weatherman. Low hanging clouds obscured the approaching task forces and prevented the Nips from using the air. Rain fell steadily as the first small boats dashed for Renard, the entrance to Rendova. Then when most of the men and supplies was ashore the sun burned away the overcast, allowing our planes to cover our ships and land-based crews.

Meanwhile our destroyer craft began a minute by minute blasting of Munda point on New Georgia north of Rendova, and site of an enemy airbase which will be the objective of the invasion before this story reaches the United States.

Vangunu Falls to U. S.

South Pacific Headquarters, July 6 (A. P.).—American forces have gained control of Vangunu Island, southeast of New Georgia, in addition to Rendova Island, it was disclosed today.

[Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia announced yesterday that United States troops had captured important positions on Vangunu, but there has been no previous indication that Americans were in complete command of the island, an area of perhaps 200 square miles.]

Stubborn Jap resistance was encountered on Vanguna in contrast to the opposition on Rendova, which wilted after little more than an hour of land fighting on June 30.

Although the Japanese air force has suffered extremely heavy blows the last three weeks, it was believed still capable of producing a strong kick with several hundred planes based in the Solomons and more which can be flown step by step from other bases and from Japan itself. Powerful aerial opposition was expected to continue, since the Japanese are not inclined to give up anything without a fight.

area of the central Solomons, but there is no indication that the action was decisive in this respect. The Japanese may still get a few supplies through to such port villages as Vila, across Kula Gulf from Munda.

The American victory, however, reduced to some extent at least the number of ships which the enemy has on hand for bombarding American shore positions or for intercepting American surface vessels assigned to bombard Japanese defenses.

Japs Suffered Considerably.

The Navy did not give the exact extent of damage to either side, but made it entirely clear that the Japanese suffered much heavier losses than the well-equipped, hard-hitting squadrons of Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific command.

Here is what the communique said:

"On July 6, in the early morning, a United States surface task force engaged Japanese surface units in Kula Gulf off New Georgia Island (between New Georgia and Kolombangara).

"Sufficient details have not been received to give the results of this engagement, but it is believed that, while some damage was suffered by the United States force, considerable damage was inflicted on the enemy."

United States Destroyer Lost.

The communique also announced the loss of the 2,100-ton United States destroyer Strong, a ship commissioned less than a year ago and having a normal complement of about 250 officers and men. Under the command of Commander Joseph Harold Wellings of East Boston, Mass. the Strong was torpedoed and sunk on Sunday night while engaged with other American ships in the bombardment of enemy positions on New Georgia Island. The fate of the skipper was not reported and, in fact, the Navy disclosed that next of kin of the casualties had not been notified but would be as soon as possible.

On Monday evening, American Liberator bombers struck at Japanese installations on Ballale Island, in the Shortland Island area of the northwestern Solomons, and started five fires. Significantly the Navy reported that about twelve Zero fighters tried to intercept, but were driven off and no American planes were lost. The Japanese apparently were unwilling to press home the attack.

No Place for Big Ships.

Today's battle report from the Navy gave no clews as to the relative sizes of the forces involved in the Kula Gulf fight except that the action occurred within the limits of the gulf. This body of water is only about five miles wide at its mouth and half a mile or so wide at its head and not more than fifteen miles long. Thus, while it is very deep, it does not offer an area suitable for the maneuvering of large warships.

Speculation therefore was that the forces involved were relatively small, perhaps destroyer-cruiser groups and that the advantage lay with the side which got in the first licks with the most accurate shooting.

How the fight developed likewise was not indicated, but speculation on that point was that either the Japanese were attempting to intercept an American bombardment of their shore positions or else the Americans were attempting to intercept a Japanese supply convoy moving to Vila on Kolombangara or to Bairoko opposite Vila on the shores of New Georgia. Bairoko is a landing place for supplies moving to Munda.

2 to 1 for United States.

Both Vila and Bairoko were under bombardment by American surface forces Sunday night when the Strong was sunk. On Saturday night, a raiding Japanese surface force had shelled United States positions on Rendova Island southwest of Munda but had retired when American ships replied to the attack. Thus both sides have been active in this kind of sea warfare, characteristic of inter-island fighting.

The advantage so far lies with the American forces, whose record of past actions in the Solomons shows a score of about two to one over Japanese naval units and a far greater margin of successes over enemy aerial units.

Since the time that the Solomon Islands were first invaded last August the United States Navy has lost about forty ships of all types among the islands, while the Japanese have lost sixty-five to seventy-seven, the latter figure including about a dozen officially reported as "probably sunk."

Says Dies Committee Probe Fans Public Hatred Of Japs

WRA Director Fears It May Lead To Further "Maltreatment" Of Americans In Japan

JUL 7 - 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 6—Dillon S. Myer, director of the War Relocation Authority, charged today the Dies Committee's investigation of Japanese relocation centers has stirred up a public hatred of Japanese that may lead to "further maltreatment" of American prisoners and internees in Japan.

The investigation, Myer told the committee, has achieved "maximum publicity of sensational statements based on half-truths, exaggerations and falsehood."

He expressed fear that "misinformation floating around the country" is inflaming prejudice against Japanese citizens and that somebody might "kill a Japanese," furnishing the enemy an excuse for retaliation against American prisoners.

Accuses Committee

Facing Representative Costello (D., Cal.), chairman of the subcommittee making the inquiry, the gray-haired WRA director bluntly accused the committee and its investigators of "providing the enemy with material which can be used to convince the peoples of the Orient that the United States is undemocratic and is fighting a racial war."

While Myer was testifying before the committee, the Senate approved a resolution requesting President Roosevelt to direct the WRA to segregate disloyal from loyal Japanese in relocation centers.

The resolution, which does not require House approval, was recommended by the Military Affairs Committe following a subcommittee investigation of some centers.

Urges President To Act

The resolution also requested the President to direct the issuance of "a full and complete authoritative public statement" concerning "conditions in relocation centers," as well as plans with respect to their "future operation and the movement of persons of Japanese ancestry interned therein."

Myer told the Dies group the WRA is "leaning over backward" to protect the internal security of the country in its release of Japanese evacuees from relocation centers.

He declared that Robert E. Stripling, chief of staff of the Dies Committee, who was sitting five feet away, had issued a statement containing "absolutely no basis of fact," regarding the allegedly dangerous character of Japanese who have been released.

Not Released On West Coast

Myer said the Japanese are not being released on the West Coast because "the military forbids it."

Costello interjected that the WRA wanted to release them there, and Myer acknowledged that under certain circumstances he would favor allowing them to return to coastal areas.

Myer explained that at the insistence of the army, Japanese who are released are not permitted to live in the eastern defense area unless approved by a joint board which includes representatives of the army intelligence, naval intelligence, army provost general's office and WRA.

This led to an exchange with Representative Mundt (R., Mich.), who said "if a Jap is dangerous, he is just as dangerous in Omaha or Minneapolis as he is in Baltimore."

9 EDITORS NAMED ADVISERS TO OWI

JUL 7 1943

Palmer Hoyt, Domestic Director, Lists Newspapermen As His Aides

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 6—Palmer Hoyt, domestic director of the Office of War Information, today announced the appointment of nine newspaper editors and managing editors as an advisory committee.

Simultaneously Hoyt announced that OWI would "work entirely through the accepted media of information," and had suspended issuance of all pamphlets and posters, and had scrapped its field service entirely.

"OWI will not issue any printed matter directly to the public," he said.

Advisory Committee Named

The advisory committee, which will hold its first meeting in Washington, July 13, is made up of the following:

ROY ROBERTS, managing editor, Kansas City Star.

LAWRENCE L. WINSHIP, managing editor, Boston Globe.

GEORGE W. HEALY, JR., managing editor, New Orleans Times-Picayune.

PAUL BELLAMY, editor, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MARK ETHRIDGE, publisher, Louisville Courier-Journal.

GARDNER COWLES, JR., editor and publisher, Des Moines Register and Tribune.

FRED GAERTNER, JR., managing editor, Detroit News.

WILBUR FORREST, assistant editor, New York Herald-Tribune.

H. D. PAULSON, editor, Fargo Forum, Fargo, N. D.

"This is not a 'front' committee," Hoyt observed. "In fact, some of them, as you know, have been very critical of our operations."

Hoyt voiced the opinion that the group could "give OWI a lot of help" in getting out military and other news.

Tight Budget Cited

"Apparently Congress is going to give the domestic branch $2,250,000 to operate on, compared with our request of $8,800,000," Hoyt said.

"That is a pretty tight budget, in Government or in business. Some business firms spend $10,000,000 to tell the public what they are doing.

"Within the next ten days, therefore, we will discuss our problems with representatives of the press, radio, outdoor and car-card advertising, and with magazine and book publishers. We want to get their views on what we can do. Until we have completed these conversations, we can't tell what OWI's program will be."

ROLL BACK PLAN REJECTED AGAIN BY SENATE, 36-28

Revolt Against OPA Subsidy Program Breaks Out Anew.

BILL MOVES TO HOUSE

Conference Committee Begins Work on Compromise Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 6. — (AP)

30.24——5743

In a tumultuous session, the Senate revolted afresh against the Administration's price "roll-back" program today and voted 36 to 28 to ban any subsidies whatsoever to lower retail food prices.

Only last week President Roosevelt had vetoed a measure including a similar ban on the grounds that it was "an inflation bill, a high-cost-of-living bill, a food shortage bill."

Amendment to CCC Bill

As was the first, the new ban written into a measure to extend the life of the Commodity Credit corporation, important Administration farm agency. After the President's veto, which was sustained, the House had passed a simple resolution continuing the CCC as it now operates until Jan. 1 and increasing by $350,000,000 its present borrowing authority of $2,650,000,000.

When the resolution got back to the House today with the Senate's new subsidy ban attached, Rep. Cannon (D-Mo) sought an immediate vote on the question of approving the Senate amendment, but the House sent it to a conference committee. This committee, composed jointly of senators and representatives, is charged with working out a compromise.

George Leads Fight

The Senate attached the prohibition against subsidies to the resolution after a series of maneuvers in which it repeatedly reversed itself and after hearing an impassioned plea from Senator George (D-Ga) that it reject the whole idea of subsidies.

"The subsidization of consumers has been tried since the days of ancient Rome and has resulted invariably in nothing but destruction of the political institutions of the country that tried it," Senator George shouted.

"What is being done here is proposing that we put off the payment of our grocery bill until next year, then have Mr. Morgenthau pay part of it out of the United States Treasury."

In a series of votes, the Senate successively:

Approved, 32 to 31, an authorization for the Administration to spend $525,000,000 in the next six months to keep retail food prices down.

Reconsidered this provision and threw it out 33 to 31.

Voted, 36 to 29, to kill a resolution extending the life of the Commodity Credit corporation from June 30 to Jan. 1. (The subsidy provision was a part of this legislation.)

Reconsidered this decision on a voice vote.

Adopted the ban on subsidies by the vote of 36 to 28.

Approved the amended resolution on a voice vote.

Danaher Offers Plan

Senator Danaher (R-Conn) proposed first to ban only the use of any of the CCC's funds to pay subsidies—a prohibition which would not have invalidated the Administration's meat and coffee price "rollbacks" which are financed by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Senator Tydings (D-Md) urged that the ban apply to all government agencies.

"The Administration has advocated Congress changing its mind," Senator Tydings said. "I advocate the President changing his mind. This is a policy-making body up to now."

Senator Tyding's proposal was added to Senator Danaher's and it was in this form that the ban was adopted.

As it finally stood, there was nothing to interfere with the CCC's using its funds for payments to stimulate production of needed crops or to prevent the RFC from subsidizing transportation costs (as is now done on movement of petroleum products to the east coast), but neither agency, nor any other, may pay subsidies simply to push down retail food costs.

Administration Upset

When the session opened, Administration leaders had been confident of getting passage of the resolution with the restriction that no more than $525,000,000 might be spent on subsidies in the remainder of the year. This restriction, proposed by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), was approved by the Senate Banking committee and word circulated that it was agreeable to the Administration. The meat-butter-coffee "roll back" is estimated to cost about $4[illegible],000,000 a year.

The leaders credited Senator George's speech with swinging the Senate to the new expression against any subsidies.

Senator George, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, which with the House Ways and Means committee, has to find revenue to meet government expenditures, told his colleagues:

"We are definitely heading toward inflation. The mounting national debt, aided by subsidies, may shake faith in the American dollar—and when that time comes, you will know what inflation really means!"

Under the roll-back system, he said, the Treasury will have to sell more war bonds in order to pay part of the people's food bill. Additional taxes, he asserted, will have to come for the most part out of the incomes of the persons making $3,000 a year or less, for that represents the bulk of the country's income producers.

Subsidies to encourage production are one thing, Senator George said, and consumers' subsidies something quite different. He said he had seldom seen a course so "inexcusable and unwise" as the plan to subsidize coffee when according to the President, imports are increasing to the extent that it soon may be removed from the ration list.

Majority Leader Barkley said he had never been particularly fond of the idea of subsidies, but declared that the life of the CCC was at stake in the pending bill.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark), who lost a son in the North African theater, told the Senate he could not look returning soldiers in the eye if he supported the roll-back subsidy program.

"You'll not be able to defend it a year from now, or even tomorrow," he said.

WARNS AS TO PUERTO RICO

Tariff Commission Says Trade Benefits Should Be Extended

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—The Tariff Commission warned today that any reduction in trade or other benefits now given Puerto Rico by the United States would depress the already low living standards on the island.

The next result would be to check the growth of population and finally reduce the number of inhabitants, the commission stated in a report made to the Senate Territories Committee, which is considering a bill proposing independence for the island.

The report contained no recommendations and made no attempt to appraise the merits of programs which have been proposed for improving economic conditions there.

British Embassy Pickets Arrested

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Two women and one man were arrested here yesterday when they picketed the British embassy demanding "release for Gandhi and Nehru" and "1776 for India."

The picketers were charged with violation of a District of Columbia code which prohibits picketing of foreign embassies. They were Marjorie Kendrick, 22 years old, of Washington; Jane Fulton, 26, of Pittsburgh, and Harold R. Lefever, 26, of York, Pa.

'Falange' Probe Is Demanded On House Floor

Washington, July 6 (AP)—A Congressional investigation into the Western Hemisphere activities of "Falange," an organization which, he said, is carrying on "Hitler's work," was demanded on the House floor today by Representative Coffee (D., Wash.).

He declared the Falange Espanola, Traditionalista, "sole political party in Fascist Spain," has been under the direct control of "Nazi Gen. Wilhelm von Faupel" since 1935 and has branches in every Spanish-speaking country.

"These branches of the Falange have been doing Hitler's work since 1936." he said. "Their blue-shirted members receive military training, act as spies and propagandists for the Axis, and swear allegiance only to Franco—the sworn enemy of the United Nations."

Cuban Asserts Reds Foresaw Nazi Offensive

Envoy to U. S., Who Is Also Envoy to Russia, Predicts Drive Will Be Repelled

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The Soviet Union expected "all along" the current German offensive on the central front and was confident it would be thrown back, Cuban Ambassador Aurelio F. Concheso said here today. He is ambassador to both the United States and Russia.

Concheso, who paid a courtesy call on Secretary of State Cordell Hull this morning, following his return from Russia, where he presented his credentials as the first Cuban Ambassador to that country, declared at an interview that he found a strong spirit of confidence shown by Soviet officials and the man in the street.

Concheso, the first Latin-American diplomat received by Josef V. Stalin, said he found the Russian Premier a "very fine man."

GIRAUD WILL MEET CHIEFS OF STAFF

JUL 7 - 1943

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud will confer here with the British-American chiefs of staff on the war against the Axis.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early announced this today in emphasizing that the visit of Gen. Giraud, chief of French military forces in North Africa, will be of a military character.

"Gen. Giraud will discuss the conduct of the war against the Axis powers and consult with the combined chiefs of staffs in Washington on that subject," Mr. Early said. He did not announce when Gen. Giraud will arrive.

USED PROPELLERS IN ATTACK ON JAPS

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—Regaining consciousness in mid-air after a swarm of Japanese Zeros had wounded him in the head and blasted his guns out of action over Bougainville Island in the southwest Pacific, Lieut. Jack Bade converted his weaponless plane into a flying buzz saw and went after six enemy planes with his propeller blades.

In recounting today the daring of the 20-year-old pilot from Elk River, Minn., the War Department said Bade not only broke the nerve of the Japanese pilots by hurling his battered P-40 into the hail of their bullets, but in doing so saved three large Navy dive bombers from their attack.

On landing, he expressed concern that the Navy men in the dive bombers might not understand why he didn't shoot down the Zeros.

"They must think I'm a lousy shot," he exclaimed.

SAYS GERMANS PAID MONEY TO VIERECK

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—A former bookkeeper for George Sylvester Viereck, alleged Nazi propagandist, told a District Court jury today that his employer received thousands of dollars annually from the German Library of Information in New York, in addition to a regular salary of $6,000 a year from that institution.

The witness was Harry Abramowitz, who said he had known Viereck since 1927 and had set up a bookkeeping system for him. He explained in detail submitted income accounts for 1940 when, he said, Viereck received $500 a month from the library, plus a total of $22,871, entered variously as "special editorial work on books, literary services, white book, professional services."

Viereck is on trial a second time charged with violating the Foreign Agents Registration act. The Supreme Court reversed his conviction at the first trial.

Another witness, Eric Posselt, writer and translator, testified he was hired by Viereck in 1941 to do rewrites and translations on material for Facts in Review, weekly publication of the German library.

He identified a manuscript handed him by the prosecutor as a collection of speeches by former Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia, asserting Viereck had given him the manuscript to type and that he was given to understand it was to be printed in book form.

This brings to 27,034 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 8,209 dead, 4,734 injured, 10,498 missing and 3,594 prisoners.

HEMPSTEAD MARINE CITED

Navy Cross to N. A. Willox for Heroism on Guadalcanal

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—For extraordinary heroism during last September's bloody battle of Luga Ridge on Guadalcanal, the Navy Cross has been awarded to Private First Class Nicholas A. Willox, USMC, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Willox of 15 Moore Avenue, Hempstead, L. I.

His heroic conduct during this engagement won the young man promotion to his present rank and the following citation from Secretary of the Navy Knox, for the President:

"For extraordinary heroism while serving with the first marine raider battalion during combat against the enemy Japanese forces on Luga Ridge, Guadalcanal, Solomon Islands, on the night of Sept. 13-14, 1942. While the battalion was being subjected to ferocious assaults by the enemy and in spite of a change in position, Private Willox, serving as assistant gunner in a mortar section, kept up an accurate and almost continuous fire against the advancing Japanese.

"With utter disregard for his own personal safety, he courageously assisted in the evacuation of the wounded and the carrying of ammunition to the front-line units. In the closing hours of the battle he voluntarily joined these units and ably assisted them in stemming the assaults until he was injured by enemy grenades. His cool courage, devotion to duty, and indomitable fighting spirit were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Private First Class David P. Taber, USMC, 25, son of Mrs. Susie Taber of Oneida, N. Y., recently reeeived the Silver Star Medal for bravery in action on Guadalcanal. The young marine has received a special letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

Knox Says Japanese Got 'Damned Good Licking'

Says He Can't Reveal Details of Kula Gulf Battle News

BREMERTON, Wash., July 6 (AP).—Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, told a cheering crowd of shipyard workers today, "The Japs have taken another damned good licking."

"I've just been getting a little additional news about the latest shellacking we've been giving the Japs. I can't tell you all the details, but this much I can say: The Japs have taken another damned good licking," Mr. Knox said.

The Secretary did not expand upon his report.

He addressed an estimated 10,000 workers during the noon hour in concluding a three-day inspection of Navy installations in the Puget Sound area.

At a luncheon in his honor, he appealed for the removal of international relations from partisan politics.

"The Monroe Doctrine is the only international policy over which there has never been any controversy," he declared, "and for that reason it is stronger today than ever. We should put all our foreign relations on the same plane. Partisanship should stop at the nation's borders."

He expressed fear that one or both of the major parties might try to capitalize on foreign relations in the heat of the 1944 campaign. He said such action would create unfortunate uncertainties in the eyes of the nation's allies.

INDIA LEADER WARNS OF CHAOS, BLOODSHED

NEWTON, Mass., July 6 — (AP) Mahatma Gandhi will be repudiated and India and England will be plunged into "utter chaos and bloodshed" unless India's political aspirations are satisfied soon, India's Nationalist leader declared tonight.

Dr. Anup Singh stated that "if India's political aspirations are not satisfied soon, Gandhi will be repudiated in favor of someone more ruthless and violent, and that will plunge India and Britain into utter chaos and bloodshed for a long period x x x."

Discussing the Indian problem in a symposium at Andover-Newton Theological school, H. Duncan Hall, Australian official, asserted that Britain is moving to free India as rapidly as possible and that to give India self-government before Japan was defeated would be too great a risk for the United Nations armies.

19 SHIP WORKERS KILLED AS TUGBOAT CAPSIZES

HALIFAX, July 6.—(AP) Nineteen Halifax shipyards employes were killed today when the tug boat "Erg" was in collision with a freighter and sank in Bedford basin, company officials reported.

It was said that 23 men were aboard when the collision occurred. The craft had been running parallel. When they collided, the tug rolled over.

Bedford basin is an extension of Halifax harbor, used by ships for anchorage.

Toronto Army Registrar Seized

Admiral Robert Is Reported Ready To Yield to Force

JUL 7 - 1943

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Herald Tribune says that after a secret trip to Martinique, Camille Jean Fernand-Laurent, a former member of the French Chamber of Deputies, has reported that Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner for the Antilles, is seeking an honorable way to go over to the Allies.

The newspaper states that M. Fernand-Laurent, who was a Paris publisher, indicated in his report that Admiral Robert feels bound by oath to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and that the admiral would welcome force as an honorable solution of his problem.

M. Fernand-Laurent is quoted in the story as saying:

"Contrary to the secret wish of the admiral (who would welcome American attack as a glorious way out of the dilemma in which he finds himself) there is not hope of any intervention by the United States, which has decided, to use his own expression, 'to let him stew in his own juice.'"

The Herald-Tribune says M. Fernand-Laurent reported that the only force to which the admiral could yield would be French force and he volunteered for the job of representing the government of Algiers in the matter, saying:

"My definite opinion is that I can bring the two islands (Martinique and Guadeloupe) with the fleet intact to the Allies by persuading Admiral Robert to yield to the appearance of force."

M. Fernand Laurent, the newspaper said, escaped from France into Spain on December 31, 1942, and made his way to London and Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

JAPS CUT TRAINING TIME IN AIR FORCE SCHOOLS

NEW YORK, July 6 — (AP) An indication of Japan's severe losses in the air came tonight from Tokyo radio, which broadcast an announcement that the training period for Japanese air cadets has been cut from three years to a year and a half.

The broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors, said that youths who pass "health examinations" would be commissioned as air force second lieutenants in 18 months.

A Tokyo broadcast on May 4 said that 14 - year - old primary school graduates would be accepted in Japanese army training schools, including aviation, a reduction of one year in the minimum age limit.

Martinique Swings Over, French Told

New York, July 6 (AP) — The Morocco radio at Rabat declared tonight in a broadcast to French territories that "Martinique has rallied to the French Committee of National Liberation."

The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said an officer representing the "Fighting French forces at Santa Lucia in the Antilles" had received a message from the "deputy of Martinique" announcing the "enthusiastic rallying of Martinique to the French Committee of National Liberation and requesting the immediate designation of new authorities."

[Admiral Georges Robert, High Commissioner of Martinique, invited the United States last week to name an envoy to discuss a "change" in French authority on the island.]

Clare Luce Urges Repeal Of Chinese Exclusion Acts

New York, July 6 (AP)—Terming the Oriental Exclusion Acts a "gross insult to the Chinese people," Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) tonight urged their repeal "to promote better understanding between ourselves and the Chinese nation."

"Anti-Chinese laws put upon our statute books many years ago by Congress seem to have anticipated and given approval to the whole Hitler doctrine of race theology," the legislator said in an address prepared for delivery at a forum of the Institute of Arts and Sciences at Columbia University.

Repeal of the Exclusion Acts will be sought during the next session of Congress, she said, with Chinese being put under the quota system, which, she added, "would allow an entry of exactly 105 Chinese a year."

American Air Lines, Inc., Applies To CAB For 50 Per Cent. Expansion

Seeking To Add 10 States And 35 Cities To Its Present Schedules

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 6—American Air Lines, Incorporated, announced today it had applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for an expansion of its routes by about fifty per cent. as "the lead-off in the contemplated tremendous expansion of air transport after the war."

A. N. Kemp, air line president, said that through new routes, extensions of present schedules and the inclusion of additional cities American would add ten States and thirty-five cities to its present schedules which now include twenty-two States and fifty-two cities.

Kemp said American was prepared to inaugurate the new program whenever the release of equipment made it possible, but added that it was not believed many steps would be made in that direction until after the war.

Obligation To Expand

Charles H. Rheinstrom, vice president in charge of traffic, said that "American Air Lines, like other airlines in the United States, has a definite obligation to expand in order adequately to serve the public and bring the benefit of new transportation to new communities."

Kemp estimated the program called for about four times as much equipment as the line now uses. He said there would be a fifty per cent. increase in personnel.

Some Specific Requests

Among its specific requests to the CAB, American has asked for a route from Detroit and Cleveland to St. Louis by way of Toledo, Ohio; Fort Wayne, Muncie-Anderson and Indianapolis, Ind., and Springfield, Illinois.

Another application is for a route from Detroit to Miami with stops between which would provide the first direct air service from Ohio cities such as Toledo and Columbus to Florida and the Southeast.

In another application American sought extensions on both ends of its Cleveland (Ohio) - Nashville (Tenn.) route now including Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati and Louisville. It was proposed to extend north from Columbus to Toledo and Detroit, and south from Nashville to New Orleans, by way of Meridian, Miss.

Other Extensions

The proposed Detroit-Miami route would include Toledo, Columbus, Charleston, W. Va.; Roanoke, Va.; Winston-Salem and Charlotte, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Savannah, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla.

American asked the CAB for extensions of its routes into the Northwest. One would carry service from Chicago to Milwaukee, and another from Chicago to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

In addition, the company sought permission to place on existing routes several cities, including Wilmington, Del., and Richmond, Va., on the transcontinental route between Boston, New York and Los Angeles, and Pittsburgh on a route to provide direct service between Wilmington, Pittsburgh, Chicago and the West.

TREASURY RETAINS DATA ON FRENCH WHO AIDED NAZIS

JUL 7 - 1943

Collaborationists Listed for Reference When Foe Is Driven Out.

NEW YORK, July 6 — (AP) Agents of the United States Treasury are constructing a file of information on collaborationist activities of individuals and business establishments in present-day France, it was learned today.

The obvious implication, financial circles said, was of an intent to make, ahead of actual invasion, decisions which might facilitate stabilization of the French economy once the immediate upheavals of invasion were quieted.

Covers Pre-War Period

The questions asked go beyond general terms and deal with specific personalities, pre-war tendencies toward Nazi friendships, and details of transactions made with the Nazi occupation authorities.

Treasury representatives recently have conducted their search for data among banking men in the New York financial district, many of whom had a considerable degree of contact with, and some an intimate knowledge of, French business and finance.

From one analytical banking mind came this opinion:

A heavy majority of French business men and government leaders made their decisions and have continued to make them on the bases of self preservation, business preservation and national preservation, in that order.

These Frenchmen, however, and most of the people of France, apparently are weary of occupation. The Nazis have worn out what welcome they found.

A banker who declined to be quoted said French business has been operating under a domination by Nazi occupation authorities which approached "third degree" methods in severity. He based his statement on discussions with neutrals who have been able to maintain a semblance of business relationships in France.

Refuse To Guess on Dates

There was little inclination on the part of American bankers to guess at invasion dates or at the length of time necessary to straighten out the tangle of French business resulting from Nazi controls.

It was learned, however, that certain American business interests with former continental connections were taking steps which might be construed as indicating hope of resuming operations abroad in the not-too-distant future.

Discussing the French situation, these men pointed out that while France's finance has suffered a severe inflation as a result of German occupation charges, there exists in English and American vaults a sizable amount of gold which—once France were freed—could be used as a reserve to help stabilize the franc. Some degree of stability would be needed, they asserted, before American business safely could resume normal international trade.

MacArthur Rides P-T Boat, Recalling Earlier Escape

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur traveled in a motor torpedo boat during a recent inspection of New Guinea combat bases—his first ride in the small, swift craft since he left the Philippines.

NBC's Australian correspondent, Ed Wallace, told of the trip last night in a broadcast. Mr. Wallace, who accompanied the general, said the PT boat was commanded by 22-year-old Frank Dean, jr., of San Diego, Calif.

The boat was equipped with an antiaircraft gun called "Balls of Fire" which its gunner, Ralph Mitchsani of White Plains, N. Y., said had sunk 14 Japanese barges while sub-hunting along the New Guinea coast.

What's Behind The War News

By GLENN BABB

China's stand against Japan's aggression enters its seventh year today. It is surely one of history's finest examples of a struggle against almost hopeless odds. Not since Waterloo has any war lasted more than five years, but as China embarks on her seventh year of struggle her indomitable leader, Chiang Kai-Shek, warns his compatriots that victory may not come until the eighth.

Chinese resistance has been a tremendous contribution to the cause of the United Nations. Had China fallen, the task of beating Japan might have proved even beyond the vast war-making capacity of the United States and Britain. For China, while fighting for survival, also has fought to retain the continental bases from which Japan can be blasted from the air and ultimately invaded and crushed.

The sixth anniversary of the battle of the Marco Polo bridge—that manufactured "incident" outside Peiping which the Japanese army made the pretext for attacking the unoffending and peace-seeking Chinese republic—finds Chinese hopes at a new high. This is due to recent military victories, the turning back of the enemy on the approaches to Chungking; to the rising tide of United Nations fortunes throughout the world; to confidence that really effective help from the Allies, chiefly the United States, surely will arrive within the next twelve months.

China's plight still is extremely grave. Her sixth year of war has been the worst through which she has passed. The danger of disastrous collapse has been ever present, with economic misfortunes, social dislocations and natural disasters, famine and flood, added to the ravages of war. The cruel disappointment of the high hopes with which the Chinese people hailed the entry of the United States and Britain into the war against Japan was a damaging blow to popular morale. For nearly a year and a half after those two great powers had become China's allies it appeared that her fortunes steadily declined.

But the dark months of disappointment, frustration and despair seem to be over. Among the Chinese themselves and among their Allies there is confidence that the danger of a Chinese collapse is over. The splendid performance of the Fourteenth United States Army Air force in the China theater is a hint of what American aid will mean in a few more months: The time is approaching rapidly when China-based American bombers will be scourging the Japanese homeland day after day.

Six years of the China war have taken their toll of Japan, although less perhaps than was generally believed before Pearl Harbor. General Ho Ying-Chin, the Chinese chief of staff, estimates that the Japanese have suffered not less than 3,000,000 casualties since Marco Polo bridge, including those outside China. That figure probably is too high, but it is quite likely that the China fighting alone has trimmed at least 1,000,000 men from Japan's limited manpower resources, killed in battle or by disease, maimed or missing.

There was a time when the Japanese war machine used the China war as a useful instrument in the preparations for the greater adventure launched with Pearl Harbor. It provided a training ground for her armies, a testing ground for new weapons and especially a smoke screen behind which she was able to mobilize her people, her economy and her industry for still greater wars. There have even been suggestions that in 1940 and 1941, years in which the invader made virtually no progress, the Japanese warlords were in no hurry to end the China war. But if that was true they doubtless regret now that China's resistance was not ended in those days when she stood alone. Japan's commitments in China definitely weaken her ability to raise shields against the terrific blows the Allies are preparing against her. They are a strong factor in limiting her offensive power, in holding her to the strategic defensive.

There was a time when it appeared that China's very steadfastness was working to her disadvantage. It seemed, to outsiders at least, that the continuation of her resistance was taken so much for granted that her rescue was given a low place on the United Nations' list of priorities. There is a growing evidence that all that has been changed. The offensive launched last week in the Solomons and along New Guinea's coasts is the beginning of a pressure that is unlikely to be relaxed until Japan is beaten. The coming autumn should see the opening of a campaign to recover Burma, end China's isolation from her Allies and begin her liberation.

Nazi Radio Says Reds Murdered Ukrainians

JUL 7 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

The Berlin radio said last night that the graves of "some 1,000 murdered Ukrainians" had been found near the town of Winniza in the vicinity of Zhitomir—about 80 miles southwest of Kiev.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said it had been established that the graves were dug between 1938 and 1941 and contained the bodies of men, women and children.

The Nazi announcer said exhumations had begun and it would be "proven that the murdered all were victims of the OGPU," Russian secret police.

The broadcast recalled the earlier allegations of German propagandists that the bodies of 10,000 Poles, which they asserted had been slain by the Russians, had been uncovered in the Smolensk region. These charges led the Polish government-in-exile in London to request an investigation by the International Red Cross—a request which intensified Polish differences with Moscow and was a factor in the diplomatic breach which later developed between the two governments.

London, Wednesday, July 7-(AP)- The British news agency Reuters recorded tonight a broadcast of the Morocco staging:

"Martinique has just joined the French Committee of National Liberation."

(There was no confirmation of this report from other sources. Martinique's leader, Admiral Georges Robert, some days ago invited the U.S. to name an envoy for a discussion as to a "change" in French authority there.)

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 7-(AP)-IT IS NOW TWO WEEKS SINCE A BOMB HAS DROPPED ON BRITAIN--ONE OF THE LONGEST LULLS SINCE THE GREAT AIR WAR BEGAN THE NIGHT OF OCT. 9, 1940.

MILITARY OBSERVERS SAID IT WAS PLAIN THE GERMAN AIR FORCE WAS EXPERIENCING TERRIFIC STRAIN AND WHILE THE GERMANS HAVE ENOUGH BOMBERS BASED ON FIELDS FACING ENGLAND TO MAKE A STRONG ATTACK, THERE IS NO INDICATION THEY WILL BEGIN RAIDS HERE.

IT IS EVIDENT THAT THE GERMANS COULD NOT SPARE A SINGLE MAN OR PLANE AS CREWS AND AIRCRAFT WERE DIVERTED FROM THE CENTRAL POOL IN GERMANY TO THE EASTERN FRONT. IN ADDITION, OBSERVERS SAID, THE GERMANS APPARENTLY LACKED SPARE PARTS AND FUEL AS A RESULT OF THE BATTLE OF THE RUHR. THE GERMANS WERE ALSO BELIEVED TO BE CONSERVING STRENGTH FOR DEFENSE AGAINST AN INVASION FROM THE WEST.

THE AMERICAN DAYLIGHT RAIDS ON AXIS EUROPE WERE SEEN AS ANOTHER IMPORTANT FACTOR IN THE QUIET SPELL ENJOYED BY BRITAIN. FOCKE-WULF 190S WERE STAYING HOME TO WARD OFF THE FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS. MOST OF THE ATTACKS ON BRITAIN, UNTIL THE LULL BEGAN, WERE MADE BY THESE PLANES WITH BOMB RACKS FITTED UNDER THE WINGS.

THE LAST DAYLIGHT RAID WAS MADE JUNE 6 ON A SOUTH COAST TOWN WHEN THE GERMANS SENT OVER 14 PLANES. IN THE LAST NIGHT RAID ON JUNE 24, HULL WAS ATTACKED BY 15 PLANES.

ENEMY PLANES MACHINEGUNNED A DISTRICT IN EAST ANGLIA YESTERDAY BUT DROPPED NO BOMBS.

ABOARD A U.S.WARSHIP, PACIFIC AREA, JUNE 24-(DELAYED-(AP)-AFTER TWO YEARS IN THE NAVY, FRED APOSTOLI THINKS HE HAS ONE GOOD FIGHT LEFT IN HIS SYSTEM, BUT THAT UNLESS HE GETS INTO A RING PRETTY SOON HIS DAYS AS A BOXER ARE OVER.

"I'VE GOT TO HAVE A FIGHT IN THE NEXT TWO OR THREE MONTHS," SAID THE SAN FRANCISCO MIDDLEWEIGHT, ONCE A STRONG CONTENDER FOR THE CROWN.

"IF I LAY OFF ANY LONGER THAN THAT I'LL BE THROUGH -- AND BOY, DO I HATE THE IDEA OF QUITTING BOXING! ACTUALLY, I FEEL GREAT AND THIS NAVY LIFE IS GOOD FOR A MAN. BUT I'M 30 YEARS OLD."

JUL 7 - 1943

THE SAN FRANCISCO SAILOR -- HE'S A SPECIALIST, FIRST CLASS, WITH PROSPECTS OF QUICK PROMOTION TO CHIEF PETTY OFFICER -- WANTS TO TAKE ON ANYONE UNDER 175 POUNDS AND WILL FIGHT ANYWHERE -- IN THE SOUTH, SOUTHWEST, OR CENTRAL PACIFIC, FOR NAVY RELIEF.

THAT IS, IF THE NAVY IS WILLING. RIGHT NOW THERE SEEM TO BE LITTLE PROSPECT. BUT APOSTOLI HOPES THINGS MIGHT CHANGE.

HIS LAST IMPORTANT FIGHT WAS WITH SAILOR KEN OVERLIN, TOP-RUNG LOS ANGELES LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT, IN AUGUST, 1942, FOR THE NAVY RELIEF FUND AT NORFOLK,VA. IT WAS A DRAW. APOSTOLI FOUGHT AT 156 POUNDS, NINE POUNDS LIGHTER THAN OVERLIN. HE THINKS HE REALLY SHADED THE OTHER MAN.

JUL 7 - 1943

APOSTOLI ENLISTED IN THE NAVY TWO YEARS AGO UNDER COMMANDER GENE TUNNEY'S PHYSICAL TRAINING PROGRAM. AFTER A YEAR'S DUTY AS A BOXING INSTRUCTOR, HE WAS ASSIGNED TO ACTIVE SHIP'S DUTY AND HAS BEEN ON IT EVER SINCE.

UNITED STATES AIR HEADQUARTERS, GUADALCANAL, JULY 2-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES AIR COMMAND ACKNOWLEDGED TONIGHT THE JAPANESE PROBABLY WILL BRING LARGE PLANE REINFORCEMENTS INTO THE SOLOMONS WAR THEATER DESPITE THE THOROUGH SHELLACKING THEY TOOK FROM AMERICAN FIGHTERS DURING THE FIRST THREE DAYS OF THE NEW GEORGIA OFFENSIVE.

THE ENEMY APPEARED NOW TO BE RECOVERING FROM THE INITIAL SURPRISE OF THE OFFENSIVE AND PLENTY OF MORE TROUBLE WAS LOOKED FOR AS THE JAPANESE INCREASE THEIR EFFORT TO POUND AMERICAN GROUND TROOPS WITH BOMBS ON RENDOVA AND NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS.

A FAIRLY HEAVY BOMBING ATTACK WAS MADE ON THE RENDOVA LANDING FORCE THIS AFTERNOON. REPORTS TO AIR HEADQUARTERS HERE SAID ONE BOMB

HIT A SUPPLY DUMP AND CAUSED SOME DAMAGE.

FOUR MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS OF THE ARMY'S THIRTEENTH AIR FORCE COUNTERED BY SMASHING AND SINKING A CAMOUFLAGED JAPANESE CARGO SHIP OF ABOUT 2,500 TONS NEAR THE BEACH IN BAEROKO HARBOR, ON THE NORTHERN END OF NEW GEORGIA ISLAND. (THESE ACTIONS HAVE BEEN REPORTED PREVIOUSLY IN LESS DETAIL BY OFFICIAL SOURCES IN WASHINGTON AND AUSTRALIA.)

JUL 7 - 1943

THE JAPANESE APPARENTLY PRESSED TO GET SUPPLIES TO FORCES DEFENDING THEIR MUNDA POINT AIR FIELD, TRIED TO RUN THE SHIP INTO THE HARBOR ACROSS A NARROW PENINSULA FROM MUNDA.

REPORTS FROM INVADING GROUND TROOPS TO GUADALCANAL HEADQUARTERS WERE MEAGER BUT THE SITUATION AS THIS WAS WRITTEN WAS SUMMARIZED AS FOLLOWS:

RENDOVA ISLAND -- MAIN LANDING FORCE HERE WAS OPPOSED FOR LITTLE MORE THAN AN HOUR BY A SMALL JAPANESE FORCE WHICH SCATTERED INTO THE HILLS. A BATTERY OF GUNS WAS PUT INTO POSITION AND STARTED SHELLING MUNDA POINT, AROUND WHICH THE ENEMY HAD CONCENTRATED THE GREATER PART OF HIS NEW GEORGIA TROOPS. FRIDAY AFTERNOON'S BOMBING ATTACK WAS THE FIRST SETBACK FOR THE INVADING TROOPS ON RENDOVA.

JUL 7 - 1943

WICKHAM LANDING -- INFANTRY ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF VANGUNU ISLAND, SOUTHEAST OF NEW GEORGIA, MET STUBBORN RESISTANCE. A PROJECTED DIVE BOMBING ATTACK ON THE ENEMY FORCE SURROUNDED ON A SMALL PENINSULA AREA OF ABOUT 1,000 BY 400 YARDS WAS BALKED BY THICK WEATHERS THIS AFTERNOON. A DESTROYER, HOWEVER, WAS ABLE TO SHELL THE AREA. (ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA REPORTED JULY 5 THAT THE AMERICANS ON VANGUNU HAD CAPTURED VURA VILLAGE, COMMANDING THE APPROACHES TO WICKHAM LANDING.)

THE REVISED SCORE FOR THE JUNE 30-JULY 1 AIR FIGHTING OVER RENDOVA ISLAND AND BLANCHE CHANNEL STOOD TONIGHT AT A TOTAL OF 123 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED.

TWENTY-FIVE AMERICAN PLANES WERE LOST BUT AT LEAST 13 OF THE PILOTS WERE RESCUED. (SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THAT THE NUMBER RESCUED WAS 15.)

IN THE FIRST DAY OUR FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN 50 ZEROS, 30 MEDIUM BOMBERS, 20 FLOAT BIPLANES AND ONE DIVE BOMBER FOR A TOTAL OF 101. AMERICAN LOSSES FOR THAT DAY WERE 17 FIGHTERS.

DURING THE SECOND DAY, AMERICAN FIGHTERS BROUGHT DOWN 14 ZEROS AND EIGHT DIVE BOMBERS. EIGHT OF OUR FIGHTERS WERE SHOT DOWN.

IT WAS NOTABLE THAT UNITED STATES FIGHTERS COULD MAINTAIN SUCH A RATIO OVER THE ENEMY WHILE CARRYING THE OFFENSIVE TO HIM.

JUL 7 - 1943

YOUTHFUL BUT SKILLED AMERICAN PILOTS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO BUILD UP A RATIO OF EIGHT TO ONE IN DEFENDING GUADALCANAL AGAINST ENEMY AIR ATTACKS. IT WAS EXPLAINED THAT A FIGHTER PLANE OVER ITS OWN BASE CAN FIGHT FOR AN HOUR BUT THAT A FIGHTER PILOT ON AN OFFENSIVE MISSION HAS TO CONSIDER THE GASOLINE SUPPLY FOR GETTING HOME.

THE NUMBER OF RESCUES OF SHOT-DOWN AMERICAN PILOTS WAS REGARDED AS REMARKABLY HIGH AND THUS AN IMPORTANT MORALE FACTOR.

IT WAS CONSIDERED POSSIBLE THAT EVEN MORE THAN THE 13 OF 25 REPORTED RESCUED IN THE FIRST TWO DAYS OF THE NEW GEORGIA CAMPAIGN MAY BE RETURNED THROUGH THE HELP OF FRIENDLY NATIVES. JUL 7 - 1943

THE AGGRESSIVE SPIRIT OF THE AMERICAN PILOTS WAS PRAISED AT HEADQUARTERS AND LIEUTENANT COMMANDER C.H.OSTROM OF NEW YORK WAS CITED AS AN EXAMPLE. HE LED HIS SECTION OF GRUMMAN FIGHTERS THROUGH ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE FROM OUR OWN TRANSPORTS AND DESTROYERS DURING AN ENEMY TORPEDO PLANE ATTACK ON THE SHIPS IN BLANCHE CHANNEL.

"OSTROM DIDN'T THINK," THE COMMANDING ADMIRAL SAID, "THAT GOING THROUGH OUR SHIPS' ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE TO GET AT THE TORPEDO PLANES WAS UNUSUAL. AS A MATTER OF FACT OSTROM SAID THE TROUBLE WAS THAT THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE COULD HAVE BEEN STRONGER. NOBODY'S GOING TO LICK MEN WITH A SPIRIT LIKE THAT."

NIGHT LEAD SOLOMONS

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS,JULY 6 (AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS WERE IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF TWO ISLANDS OFF NEW GEORGIA TODAY BUT PLENTY OF TROUBLE IN THE FORM OF JAPANESE AIR RAIDS WAS EXPECTED BY THE AIR COMMAND.

THE CAPTURE OF ALL OF VANGUNU ISLAND, SOUTHEAST OF NEW GEORGIA, WAS DISCLOSED TODAY. THIS FOLLOWED PREVIOUS WORD THAT IMPORTANT POSITIONS WERE HELD THERE. RENDOVA, WEST OF NEW GEORGIA, THE OTHER ISLAND IN THE AREA UNDER AMERICAN CONTROL, WAS TAKEN SOON AFTER THE OFFENSIVE STARTED ON JUNE 30. JUL 7 - 1943

AMERICAN FORCES ON THESE ISLANDS AND AT VIRU HARBOR ON THE SOUTHWESTERN NEW GEORGIA COAST LOOKED FOR HEAVY AIR POUNDING FROM THE JAPANESE. THE AIR COMMAND ON GUADALCANAL ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE ENEMY PROBABLY WOULD BRING LARGE PLANE REINFORCEMENTS INTO THE SOLOMONS.

RENDOVA HAS ALREADY BEEN BOMBED TWICE. LIGHT DAMAGE WAS CAUSED IN THE FIRST RAID LAST FRIDAY WHILE YESTERDAY 40 ZEROS ATTACKED THE ISLAND. (ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA ANNOUNCED TWO OF THESE WERE SHOT DOWN.)

WHILE POWERFUL AERIAL OPPOSITION WAS EXPECTED TO CONTINUE IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN WHAT THE JAPANESE WILL RISK IN THE WAY OF WARSHIPS IN RESISTING THE AMERICAN EFFORT TO CAPTURE THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, INCLUDING THE IMPORTANT MUNDA AIRBASE ON NEW GEORGIA, ONLY FIVE MILES FROM RENDOVA.

(THE NAVY IN WASHINGTON REPORTED TODAY THAT UNITED STATES NAVAL FORCES APPARENTLY HAD CAUSED THE JAPANESE VERY HEAVY DAMAGE IN A BATTLE AT KULA GULF BETWEEN THE NORTHERN END OF NEW GEORGIA AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND, DETAILS WERE LACKING.)

LAND FIGHTING WAS LIMITED TO INFILTRATION AND HAD NOT REACHED THE POINT OF CONFLICT BETWEEN MASSED FORCES.

CASUALTIES WERE DESCRIBED AS LIGHT SO FAR.

BANIKA, RUSSEL ISLANDS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, JUNE 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO FOUR SERGEANTS FROM VARIOUS UNITS OF THE 26TH (YANKEE DIVISION) WERE SWAPPING SMALL TALK IN A TOWN ABOVE VILLER SUR MARNE, DURING A LULL IN THE CHATEAU-THIERRY DRIVE IN FRANCE.

JUL 7 - 1943 JUL 7 - 1943

TODAY, JUNE 20, THE FOUR MET AGAIN, SOME 15,000 MILES FROM THEIR LAST RENDEZVOUS. CONDITIONS WERE VASTLY DIFFERENT.

THAT DAY A GENERATION AGO THE FOUR WERE LISTED AS 1ST SGT.HAROLD BARKER OF THE 103D FIELD ARTILLERY; SGT.WILLIAM ROSE OF CO. G, 101ST INFANTRY; SGT.LEONARD F.WING OF THE 101ST AMMUNITION TRAIN, AND SGT.J.NORMAN LODGE, ALSO OF THE 101ST INFANTRY.

JUL 7 - 1943

TODAY'S REUNION BROUGHT TOGETHER BRIGADIER GENERAL HAROLD BARKER, RESIDENT OF PROVIDENCE,R.I.; BRIGADIER GENERAL LEONARD F.WING OF RUTLAND,VT., BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM ROSE, OF WORCESTER,MASS., AND J.NORMAN LODGE, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, FORMERLY OF METHUEN,MASS.

WING, 49, VETERAN OF THE GROUP, WAS HOST TO HIS FORMER YD (YANKEE DIVISION) BUDDIES OUTSIDE HIS QUARTERS ON BANIKA ISLAND, SERVING TROPICALLY HEATED BEER, AND REMINISCING. BARKER, 48, TOOK THE RIBBING, HAVING BEEN IN WHAT WAS FACETIOUSLY REFERRED TO AS THE "KAISER'S OWN" AMONG YD MEN SINCE 1918; ROSE, 45, WAS A KID SOLDIER, AS WAS LODGE, 44, THE BABY OF THE GROUP.

AND, AS A RED ALERT WAS SOUNDED, THE YOUNG "OLD" SOLDIERS SAT 'NEATH THE TROPIC MOON, WATCHED THE NIPS FLY BY, GUADALCANAL-BOUND, AT HEIGHTS THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN CONSIDERED FANTASTIC IN WORLD WAR ONE; THEY RAGGED EACH OTHER AS TO THE RESPECTIVE QUALITIES OF THEIR UNITS, THE HIGHER PHYSICAL STANDARDS AND THE I.Q. OF PRESENT DAY SOLDIERS, AND CURED THE ILLS OF THE WORLD.

JUL 7 - 1943

WING, THE ELDEST, HASN'T A GREY HAIR IN HIS RED-THATCHED TOP, NOR HAS HE A MIDDLE-AGE PAUNCH. BARKER, PREMATURELY GREY MANY YEARS AGO, HASN'T A WRINKLE IN HIS FACE AND IS AS STRAIGHT AS AN ARROW. ROSE, SLIGHTLY BALD AND NATURALLY CHUBBY, IS ALL MUSCLE. AND LODGE (WITH ALL MODESTY) HAS A CONCAVE STOMACH, RATHER THAN CONVEX.

MOSCOW--INSERT AFTER 4TH GRAF RUSSIAN X X X BELGOROD FRONT.

MILITARY EXPERTS SAID IT WAS TOO EARLY YET TO SPECULATE WHETHER HITLER AIMS TO TRY TO CAPTURE MOSCOW TO THE NORTH, THE CAUCASIAN OIL FIELDS TO THE SOUTH, OR BOTH.

OREL, AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE 165-MILE CENTRAL FRONT, IS ABOUT 200 MILES SOUTH OF MOSCOW. KURKS IS HALFWAY BETWEEN OREL AND BELGOROD, THE SOUTHERN TERMINUS WHICH LIES ABOUT 250 MILES NORTHWEST OF ROSTOV, RUSSIAN-HELD GATEWAY TO THE CAUCASUS.

ONLY THREE MILES FROM KURKS, IMPORTANT COMMERCIAL CITY HELD BY THE RUSSIANS, THE ARMIES ARE FIGHTING OVER THE RIVER SYSTEM OF THE DNIEPER. THE ENTIRE CENTRAL FRONT IS A REGION OF FIELDS AND FORESTS, ENDOWED WITH GOOD BLACK EARTH. HUNDREDS OF LUMBERING TANKS ALREADY HAVE FLATTENED MANY FIELDS OF RIPENING GRAIN.

THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE FEEL THAT THIS IS THE LAST GREAT TEST FOR THE RED ARMY. THEY ARE CONFIDENT BUT SOBERLY AWARE OF THE GREAT EFFORT INVOLVED.

JUL 7 - 1943

WAS THE GREATEST SINGLE VICTORY OVER GERMAN AND ITALIAN AIR POWER OF THE WAR.

"LESS THAN 30" WAS THE OFFICIAL NUMBER OF B-17'S WHICH STARTED OUT, AND IN THE FLAK-POCKED SKY OVER EASTERN SICILY THREE OF THIS LITTLE BAND FELL IN FLAMES.

JUL 7 - 1943

THEY FELL WITH SOME OF THEIR GUNNERS STILL BLAZING AWAY AT THE ENEMY.

FOR THE THREE FORTS DESTROYED, THE ENEMY PAID WITH 41 OF HIS FINEST PLANES--FOCKE-WULF 190'S, MESSERSCHMITTS AND MACCHI 202'S.

THE ENEMY TRIED EVERY TACTIC IN THE BOOK, INCLUDING BOMBING FROM ABOVE WITH TIME-FUSED EXPLOSIVES, TO BREAK THE TIGHT FORTRESS FORMATION THAT SOARED OVER THE TARGET AT GERBINI AIRFIELD.

YOU COULD ALMOST WRITE THE STORY OF AMERICA MERELY BY LISTING THE NAMES AND HOME TOWNS OF THESE YOUNG BOMBER CREWMEN WHO SHOT 41 ENEMY AIRCRAFT OUT OF THE SKY.

FOURTEEN STATES--NORTH, SOUTH, EAST AND WEST--CONTRIBUTED SONS TO THIS VICTORY. THEY GREW UP IN PLACES LIKE PENNSYLVANIA TOWNS, THE ARIZONA DESERT, ROARING MANHATTAN, THE NEBRASKA PLAINS...

AMONG THE GUNNERS WERE SOME WITH ANCESTRY THAT WAS ANGLO-SAXON OR TEUTONIC, LATIN OR SLAV. YESTERDAY, THEY WERE ALL JUST AMERICANS.

AS MORE THAN 100 ENEMY FIGHTERS MADE THE SUB-STRATOSPHERE AN ARENA OF BLAZING COMBAT PAVED WITH BLACK BURSTS OF ACK-ACK SHELLS, "LESS THAN 30" B-17'S CAME AND CONQUERED.

By Joseph Morton

An Advanced Bomber Base in North Africa, July 6-(AP)-A large unit made up exclusively of Martin Marauder bombers has been created within Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic air force after a long trial by combat in the North African theater.

The unit, believed to be one of the largest forces of Marauders battering axis targets anywhere, gives this medium bomber a position of equal rank with its highly touted fellow worker, the B-25 Mitchell, used in the raid on Tokyo.

In one 33-day action-filled period since the fall of Tunisia, the unit made about 50 trips over enemy territory. During four days of operations against Pantelleria alone it dumped nearly 600 tons of bombs, a performance comparable with flying fortresses.

Forty-six enemy fighters which challened the Marauders were shot down. A number of grounded enemy planes were destroyed and many more were damaged.

JUL 7 - 1943

Figures such as these won respect for the plane in spite of its over-sized engines and short, stubby wings. Fliers who stuck with the Marauder through thick and thin to prove its worth now wouldn't trade it for the most glamorized flying fortress in American.

The plane has fulfilled the demand for a low altitude bomber of medium range, able to carry sizeable bomb loads and fly at high speed to protect itself. Improvements have been made on the newer models as the result of experience in combat, particularly in the south Pacific.

One of the operations officers here, Lieut. James E. Conlan, former professional baseball player who has flown 300 hours of combat, believes the Marauder "is as good as any for bomb precision and area bombing at medium altitudes."

JUL 7 - 1943

JUL 7 - 1943

"It can handle about every job in the North African theater," he said. "I must admit that when you come dwwn down from flying formations you've done a day's work, but the men whose lives depend on the plane's performance consider it satisfactory."

CAIRO, JULY 6-(AP)-UNITED STATES HEAVY BOMBERS, OPERATING FROM BASES IN THE MIDDLE EAST, ATTACKED HARBOR INSTALLATIONS AT THE VITAL SICILIAN FERRY TERMINUS OF MESSINA AGAIN YESTERDAY AND RETURNED WITHOUT LOSS, A COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID FIRES AND EXPLOSIONS WERE CAUSED IN THE HARBOR AREA BY THE ATTACK, CARRIED OUT BY THE NINTH U.S. AIR FORCE. TH RAILWAY STATION, SUPPLY DEPOT, ENGINE SHEDS AND AN INFANTRY BARRACKS ALSO WERE HIT.

THREE ENEMY FIGHTERS WERE SHOT DOWN, THE WAR BULLETIN SAID.

THE ASSAULT CONTINUED THE STEADY POUNDING OF SICILIAN AIRFIELDS AND PORTS CARRIED OUT VIRTUALLY WITHOUT LETUP DURING THE PAST THREE DAYS BY ALLIED AIR POWER IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

(NEW ALLIED AIR ATTACKS ON SICILIAN OBJECTIVES, AMONG THEM MESSINA, CATANIA AND MARSALA, WERE REPORTED IN TODAY'S ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE AS BROADCAST FROM ROME AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THEY CAUSED "LIMITED" DAMAGE AND CASUALTIES.

(THE COMMUNIQUE ASSERTED 51 ALLIED PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN, 37 OF THEM BY FIGHTERS AND 14 BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES.)

(ADVANCE) MADRID, JULY 6-(AP)-NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN OFFICIALS OF THE SPANISH FOREIGN EXCHANGE INSTITUTE AND THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY HAVE RESULTED IN AN AGREEMENT TO LIQUIDATE AMERICAN COMMERCIAL CREDITS IN SPAIN DATED PRIOR TO THE BEGINNING OF THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR ON JULY 18,1936, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY.

JUL 7 - 1943

THE INSTITUTE, IT WAS LEARNED, HAS AGREED TO USE THE DOLLAR CREDITS IT HOLDS IN THE UNITED STATES TO FACILITATE THE LIQUIDATION OF THESE PRIVATE COMMERCIAL ACCOUNTS, WHICH COVER THE YEARS FROM 1931 TO 1936.

HOW MANY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS ARE CONCERNED IS UNKNOWN AT PRESENT BUT ALL PERSONS WITH DOLLAR CLAIMS IN SPAIN DATING FROM THAT PERIOD ARE EXPECTED TO REGISTER THEM FOR PAYMENT WITH THE NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL IN NEW YORK.

(THE NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL'S ANNOUNCEMENT TO BE MADE IN NEW YORK TOMORROW WILL SAY THAT APPROXIMATELY $3,000,000 OF FUNDS WILL BE MADE IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE BY SPANISH AUTHORITIES TO MAKE PAYMENTS ON THE FROZEN SPANISH COMMERCIAL DEBT, AND THAT NEGOTIATIONS WILL CONTINUE LOOKING TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF FURTHER PAYMENTS.

(THE COUNCIL DOES NOT STATE THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF THE CLAIMS INVOLVED.

(THE ACCOUNTS WHICH MAY BE REGISTERED WITH THE COUNCIL INCLUDE "BONA FIDE ACCOUNTS OF AMERICAN CREDITORS, OWING FROM DEBTORS IN THE SPANISH PENINSULA, BALEARICS, CANARY ISLANDS, CEUTA, MELILLA, SPANISH PROTECTORATE IN MOROCCO AND SPANISH COLONIES," THE ANNOUNCEMENT WILL SAY.

(BANKING AUTHORITIES IN NEW YORK SAID A STEADILY IMPROVING BALANCE OF EXPORTS FROM SPAIN TO THE UNITED STATES HAD PRESUMABLY BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR THE RESUMPTION OF PAYMENTS.)

CHINESE

BY SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, JULY 6-(AP)-CONFIDENT PREDICTIONS OF A COMPLETE ALLIED VICTORY AND THE ELIMINATION OF JAPAN AS A MILITARY POWER CAME FROM CHINESE LEADERS TODAY ON THE EVE OF THE SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE OUTBREAK OF WAR WITH JAPAN.

JUL 7 - 1943

DECLARING THAT THE SITUATION IN THE FAR EAST HAS CHANGED GREATLY FOR THE BETTER IN THE PAST YEAR, GENERAL HO YING-CHIN, WAR MINISTER AND ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF, SAID THAT THE OUTCOME OF THE STRUGGLE IS NOW ASSURED BEYOND ALL DOUBT.

WHILE THE UNITED NATIONS ARE GROWING STRONGER DAILY, HE ASSERTED, JAPAN IS FACING AN ACUTE MANPOWER SHORTAGE, IS FAR WEAKER IN SEA STRENGTH, HAS BEEN SURPASSED IN THE AIR, AND IS RUNNING INTO DIFFICULT MATERIAL AND FOOD PROBLEMS.

THE WAR MINISTER PLACED THE TOTAL NUMBER OF JAPANESE CASUALTIES AT AROUND 3,000,000 MEN, INCLUDING THE LOSSES INFLICTED BY UNITED STATES AND BRITISH FORCES.

ESTIMATING JAPAN'S FIRST LINE PLANES AT NOT MORE THAN 3,000, GENERAL HO DECLARED IT SHOULD NOT BE DIFFICULT FOR THE UNITED NATIONS TO WIPE OUT THE ENEMY AIR FORCE AND COVER A DIRECT ATTACK ON JAPAN WHEN THE TIME COMES.

CHINA WAS DESCRIBED BY H.H.KUNG, VICE PREMIER AND MINISTER OF FINANCE, AS "THE MOST CONVENIENT ADVANCE BASE FROM WHICH THE WAR CAN AND MUST BE CARRIED" TO JAPAN. CHINA, HE SAID, IS JUST BIDING HER TIME "TO LAUNCH A GENERAL OFFENSIVE."

"DURING SIX YEARS OF WAR," ADDED KUNG, "CHINA NOT ONLY HAS HELD HER OWN BUT HAS EVEN REGISTERED GAINS OF EPOCH-MAKING SIGNIFICANCE. UNDER THE INSPIRING LEADERSHIP OF GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK OUR FORCES IN THE FIELD CONTINUE TO KEEP THE FLOWER OF THE JAPANESE ARMY PINNED DOWN."

JUL 7 - 1943

SUN FO, FIERY CABINET MINISTER AND SON OF DR.SUN YAT-SEN, FOUNDER OF THE REPUBLIC, URGED THAT THE ALLIED NAVAL FORCES TRY TO KNOCK OUT THE MAIN JAPANESE BATTLE FLEET AND THEREBY OPEN THE FRONT DOOR OF CHINA TO AN ADEQUATE FLOW OF MATERIALS.

IN THE MATTER OF SUPPLIES FOR CHINA, TSENG YANG-FU, CHINESE MINISTER OF COMMUNICATIONS, DISCLOSED PLANS FOR A NEW BACKDOOR ROUTE BY WAY OF THE TURKESTAN-SIBERIAN RAILROAD. HE SAID IT WAS HOPED SHIPMENTS WOULD BEGIN "IN THE NEAREST FUTURE."

DR.WANG CHUNG-HUI, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE SUPREME NATIONAL DEFENSE COUNCIL, SAID HIS COUNTRY WAS PLEDGED TO "TOTAL VICTORY AND LASTING PEACE" AND GENERAL WU TE-CHEN, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE KUOMINTANG, (NATIONALIST PARTY), DECLARED NEW TREATIES RECENTLY SIGNED BY GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES WITH CHINA ASSURED THE LATTER A "NEW ROLE IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS."

THE ANNIVERSARY, JULY 7, IS KNOWN IN CHINA AS "DOUBLE SEVENTH DAY" BECAUSE IT FALLS ON THE SEVENTH DAY OF THE SEVENTH MONTH.

(IN A STATEMENT PREPARED FOR THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY, GEN.JOSEPH E.STILWELL, COMMANDER OF AMERICAN FORCES IN CHINA, PRAISED THE CHINESE FOR THEIR "BITTER AND HEROIC STRUGGLE" AND SAID THEIR "INDOMINATBLE SPIRIT HAS ALWAYS BEEN STRENGTHENED BY THEIR CONFIDENCE IN ULTIMATE VICTORY.")

JUL 7 - 1943

(ADVANCE)...CHUNGKING--INSERT AFTER 5TH GRAF NIGHT LEAD CHINA X X X THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE."

IN ANOTHER MESSAGE ADDRESSED TO THE PEOPLES OF THE UNITED NATIONS, THE GENERALISSIMO URGED AN IMMEDIATE LARGE-SCALE ALLIED OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPAN IN ORDER TO THWART THE ENEMY EMPIRE'S "DESPERATE EFFORTS" TO RE-GEAR AND REPLENISH HER WAR MACHINE AND ALSO TO REDUCE THE "TIME AND PRICE" WHICH MUST BE PAID FOR ALLIED VICTORY.

JUL 7 - 1943

NOW, HE DECLARED, IS THE OPPORTUNE MOMENT FOR THE UNITED NATIONS "TO REAP GREAT RESULTS WITHIN A RELATIVELY SHORT SPAN OF TIME."

"JUST AS GERMANY VAINLY HOPES FOR DISSENSION AMONG THE UNITED NATIONS, JAPAN IS PRAYING THAT THE UNITED NATIONS WILL DELAY THEIR BIG OFFENSIVE AGAINST HER," HE SAID.

"SHOULD WE LET HER HAVE FURTHER RESPITE TO COMPLETE IMPREGNABLE DEFENSES AND TO WAGE A LONG DRAWN-OUT WAR WITH US, THE TIME AND PRICE THE ALLIES WILL HAVE TO PAY TO DEFEAT HER WILL BE MANY TIMES LONGER AND HEAVIER THAN WHAT ARE REQUIRED TODAY."

SIGNIFICANTLY HE STATED: "WHAT DISQUIETS THE MINDS OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE IS NOT WHETHER THE UNITED NATIONS WILL WIN THE WAR BUT WHEN THEY ARE GOING TO WIN IT AND AT WHAT PRICE."

CHINA'S WAR LEADER DECLARED THAT "IN ONE SENSE SHE (JAPAN) IS AT HER WEAKEST AS HER READY RESOURCES ARE APPROACHING A POINT OF EXHAUSTION." ON THE OTHER HAND, HE SAID, IF JAPAN SUCCEEDED IN CONSOLIDATING HER CONQUESTS SHE "WOULD BE FAR STRONGER THAN AT THE TIME SHE FIRST CONQUERED THESE LANDS."

HE CALLED UPON THE PEOPLES AND LEADERS OF PUBLIC OPINION IN THE UNITED NATIONS "UNANIMOUSLY TO UPHOLD" THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL AGREEMENT THAT FROM NOW ON THE ALLIES WILL "WAGE THE WAR ON THE JAPANESE AND EUROPEAN FRONTS WITH EQUAL POWER."

"IN THE EXECUTION OF THIS STRATEGY," HE PROMISED, "OUR ALLIES CAN COUNT UPON THE DETERMINATION OF THE CHINESE ARMY TO CONTRIBUTE WHATEVER IS WITHIN THEIR POWER AND TO MAKE WHATEVER SACRIFICES NECESSARY X X X."

JUL 7 - 1943

CONCERNING THE FINAL STAGES OF THE WAR, THE GENERALISSIMO SAID:

"WHETHER WE ARE GOING TO WIN THE PEACE DEPENDS LARGELY UPON WHETHER THE UNITED STATES, SOVIET RUSSIA, GREAT BRITAIN AND CHINA, WHO ARE BEARING THE MAJOR BURDENS OF THE WAR, COULD BEFORE THE END OF THE WAR REACH A COMPLETE AGREEMENT OF POLICY AND BUILD A CONCRETE FOUNDATION FOR POST-WAR COOPERATION."

RULING OUT ANY "NEGOTIATED PEACE," HE SAID:

"THE FACT THAT THE LEADERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS HAVE CLEARLY AVOWED A DETERMINATION TO FIGHT UNTIL THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF JAPAN, GERMANY AND ITALY IS A SOURCE OF DEEPEST GRATIFICATION TO THE CHINESE PEOPLE."

SECONDLY, HE INSISTED THAT "FUTURE PEACE SHOULD BE A PEACE SEEKING EMANCIPATION OF ENTIRE MANKIND." HE URGED THE REACHING OF A THOROUGH UNDERSTANDING ON THIS POINT BEFORE THE END OF THE WAR--RESTORATION OF INDEPENDENT NATIONS OCCUPIED BY ENEMY COMMAND AND ALSO ASSISTANCE TO OTHER PEOPLES "WHO HAVE NOT ATTAINED COMPLETE FREEDOM." "THE RELATIVE SPEED OF EMANCIPATION MAY HAVE TO VARY ACCORDING TO THE DIFFERENT CULTURAL LEVELS OF DIFFERENT PEOPLES," HE NOTED.

"THIRDLY, THE UNITED NATIONS SHOULD SET UP AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT JOINT MACHINERY FOR THE WINNING OF THE PEACE AS WELL AS THE EFFICIENT PROSECUTION OF THE WAR.

"FOURTHLY, TO SAFEGUARD INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE AND COLLECTIVE SECURITY AND TO INSURE THE SUCCESSFUL FUNCTIONING OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENTS AFTER THE WAR, THERE MUST BE A POST-WAR WORLD ORGANIZATION WITH THE SOLID BACKING OF AN INTERNATIONAL FORCE."

IN THE ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE TO HIS OWN PEOPLE, THE GENERALISSIMO DECLARED THAT THE LONG CHINESE RESISTANCE HAS BEEN A GREAT SURPRISE TO THE JAPANESE WHO, HE SAID, HAVE BEEN FABRICATING STORIES OF CHINA'S MILITARY AND ECONOMIC COLLAPSE EVER SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR.

BUENOS AIRES, JULY 6-(AP)-THE STRONGLY PRO-ALLIED NEWSPAPER LA NACION DECLARED TODAY THAT FOREIGN MINISTER SEGUNDO STORNI HAD REFLECTED THE SENTIMENTS OF "AN IMMENSE MAJORITY" OF THE ARGENTINE PEOPLE WHEN HE PROMISED IN A SPEECH YESTERDAY THAT ARGENTINA WOULD COOPERATE WITH THE OTHER AMERICAN NATIONS IN THE INTERESTS OF CONTINENTAL SOLIDARITY.

STORNI MADE HIS ASSERTION BEFORE AN AUDIENCE OF MORE THAN 1,000 AMERICANS, BRITONS AND OTHER ALLIED NATIONALS, ASSEMBLED IN BUENOS AIRES TO CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE DAY.

"ARGENTINA," STORNI DECLARED, "WILL BE WITH THE NATIONS OF AMERICA IN ALL FIELDS WHERE IT IS CALLED BY ITS PLEDGED WORD AND ITS DUTIES FOR PAN-AMERICAN CO-OPERATION.

"ANY NATION OR ANY ENTITY WHICH TRIES TO HINDER OR OBSTRUCT OUR PROGRAM OF CONTINENTAL SOLIDARITY NOT ONLY IS NOT WITH ARGENTINA BUT ALSO AGAINST ARGENTINA," HE ADDED.

ABSENTEES ATTACHED SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE TO THE SPEECH BECAUSE THE OCCASION WAS EXCLUSIVELY A UNITED NATIONS PARTY AND IT WAS SEEN AS A HINT THAT ARGENTINA, LONE AMERICAN NATION STILL MAINTAINING RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS, WAS PLANNING AT THE PROPER TIME TO ALIGN HERSELF WITH HER SISTER REPUBLICS.

LA NACION, COMMENTING ON THE SPEECH, SAID "THERE NOW REMAINS NO ROOM FOR DOUBT OR UNCERTAINTY WITH REGARDS TO THE LIMITS WHICH OUR GOVERNMENT WILL GO IN CARRYING OUT ITS OBLIGATIONS TO CONTINENTAL SOLIDARITY."

JUL 7 - 1943

THE EDITORIAL ADDED: "THE FOREIGN MINISTER IN HIS SPEECH X X X PRONOUNCED THE MOST CATEGORIC WORDS THUS FAR IN DEFINING THE POSITION OF THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT. HE IS CORRECT IN THINKING THAT IN SPEAKING THIS WAY HE INTERPRETED THE THOUGHT OF AN IMMENSE MAJORITY OF ARGENTINES."

BY VAUGHN BRYANT

(ADVANCE) SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA, JULY 6-(AP)-A LONG-RANGE QUININE PRODUCING PROGRAM, ESTABLISHED WITH A BASE OF 2,000,000 CINCHONA SEEDS FLOWN OUT OF THEPHILLIPINES BY LIEUT.COL.ARTHUR F.FISCHER AT THE

JUL 7 - 1943

REQUEST OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN ONE OF THE LAST PLANES TO LEAVE THOSE EMBATTLED ISLANDS, NOW IS UNDER DEVELOPMENT IN THIS MOUNTAINOUS CENTRAL AMERICAN REPUBLIC.

JUL 7 - 1943

IT IS THE SAME DEVELOPMENT MENTIONED RECENTLY BY VICE PRESIDENT WALLACE AS ONE OF THE PROJECTS OF HIS BOARD OF ECONOMIC WARFARE, WITH BOTH THE ARMY AND DEFENSE SUPPLIES CORPORATION DEEPLY INTERESTED.

BUT FULL CREDIT FOR ITS EXISTENCE APPARENTLY IS DUE COLONEL FISCHER, WHO FLEW THE SEEDS OUT TO AUSTRALIA AND LATER TOOK THEM BY BOAT TO THE UNITED STATES.

WITH A GROUP OF EXPERTS, FISCHER ARRIVED HERE IN MID-MAY FOR FIVE WEEKS OF RUGGED TRAVELING, INSPECTING, LOCATING AND TESTING LAND SUITABLE FOR CINCHONA DEVELOPMENT. HE FOUND WHAT HE WAS SEEKING AND ACTUAL PLANTINGS HERE IS EXPECTED TO BEGIN SOON.

THE ENTIRE DEVELOPMENT IS NOT A SHORT-RANGE PLAN TO PROVIDE QUININE IN THIS WAR, BUT A FAR-SIGHTED PROJECT TO COMMENCE CULTIVATION OF THIS VITAL DRUG IN THE AMERICAS, INSURING THAT NEVER AGAIN WILL THE UNITED STATES BE CAUGHT WITHOUT A SUFFICIENT QUANTITY AND SOURCE OF SUPPLY.

IT WILL BE FOUR YEARS AT THE SOONEST BEFORE THE SEEDS SHALL PRODUCE --POSSIBLY LONGER.

JUL 7 - 1943

THE PLANS, CARRIED THROUGH WITH THE CLOSE HELP AND COOPERATION OF COSTA RICAN AUTHORITIES, CALL FOR 25-YEAR DEVELOPMENT UNDER DIRECTION AND SUPERVISION OF U.S. AUTHORITIES, AFTER WHICH THE PROJECT WILL REVERT TO THE COSTA RICAN GOVERNMENT TO CONTROL AND CONTINUE.

MEANWHILE, PLANNERS LIKE LOUIS R.STADTMILLER OF STAMFORD, CONN., NEW MAN WHO WILL BE THE OVERALL SUPERVISOR HERE, HOPE TO INTEREST COSTA RICAN FARMERS IN THE CULTURE OF CINCHONA, THUS ESTABLISHING IT FIRMLY THROUGHOUT THE AREA.

BEHIND THE ENTIRE PROGRAM THERE IS A FASCINATING STORY DATING FROM 1916, WHEN FISCHER BECAME CHIEF OF THE FORESTRY SECTION OF THE PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT, TO HIS PRESENT SEARCH FOR SUITABLE PROPERTY FOR A CINCHONA PLANTATION IN COSTA RICA. IT WAS FISCHER WHO INTRODUCED AND DEVELOPED CINCHONA IN THE PHILIPPINES AND IT IS HE WHO NOW IS RETURNING IT TO ITS ORIGINAL NATIVE HABITAT--THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE, FROM WHICH IT WAS TAKEN LONG AGO TO THE NETHERLANDS INDIES FOR CULTIVATION.

JUL 7 - 1943

HOWEVER, HE IS RETURNING THE FINE LEDGERIANA STRAIN, DEVELOPED BY AN ENGLISHMAN NAMED LEDGER AND SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER TYPE. HIS SEEDS AND SEEDLINGS NOW IN THE GLENDALE NURSERIES IN WASHINGTON ARE PROVING EXTREMELY FERTILE. AN EXCELLENT BATCH OF SOME 200,000 SEEDLINGS, DEVELOPED DURING THE PAST YEAR, ALREADY HAVE BEEN SENT TO GUATEMALA AND OTHER LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES WHERE THEY ARE THRIVING.

A RESERVIST, FISCHER BECAME MACARTHUR'S CHIEF OF INTELLIGENCE ON BATAAN AND LATER ON CORREGIDOR. WHEN QUININE WAS RUNNING LOW, LIEUT.GEN.JONATHAN M.WAINWRIGHT, NOW A PRISONER OF THE JAPANESE, DISPATCHED HIM TO THE CINCHONA PLANTATIONS ON PANAY AND MINDANAO TO EXTRACT QUININE FROM CINCHONA BARK AND RETURN TO THE BASE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

WHILE HE WAS AWAY CORREGIDOR FELL AND MACARTHUR THEN ORDERED FISCHER TO GATHER THE SEED AND COME TO AUSTRALIA.

HE FLEW OUT ABOARD ONE OF THE LAST PLANES FROM THE ISLANDS, RESTED

FINALLY, LAST WINTER, IT WAS DECIDED THAT THE BEW SHOULD HANDLE IT, AND PREPARATIONS WERE BEGUN FOR FINDING A SITE IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

THE SEED WAS BROUGHT DOWN FROM GLENDALE WHERE IT WAS BEING CAREFULLY TENDED FOR WITH CINCHONA COMPLETELY CUTOUT BY THE JAPANESE THESE PRECIOUS LEDGERIANA CANNOT BE REPLACED. THEY MUST BE PLANTED SUCCESSFULLY.

THUS, WHEN COSTA RICA WAS CHOSEN FOR A SITE, FISCHER ACCOMPANIED BY EXPERTS HAD TO MAKE EXHAUSTIVE STUDIES. HE NEEDED HIS OWN KNOWLEDGE OF FORESTRY AND CINCHONA AND THAT OF STADTMILLER AND FORESTRY EXPERT LIEUT.CHILDS OF NORFOLK, CONN., WHO ALSO HAD BEEN IN THE PHILIPPINES.

DR.JOHN PENDLETON, SOILS EXPERT, NOW IN NICARAGUA, BOTANIST OTTO DANKING, NOW IN GENEVA, N.Y., ALSO JOINED HIM AND THE PARTY FLEW LONG HOURS HUNTING LIKELY SITES. THEY TRAVELLED ON LAND BY JEEP, HORSE, MULE AND AFOOT, COVERING HUNDREDS OF MILES OF DIFFICULT TERRAIN.

THEIR PROBLEM WAS TO FIND AREAS WHERE WERE GROUPED ALL THE CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH CINCHONA GROWS. IT NEEDS HIGH ALTITUDE, A MINIMUM OF 3,000 FEET, AND CANNOT STAND FROSTS. IT NEEDS EVEN RAINFALL--NOT PERIODS OF DROUGHT AND PERIODS OF TORRENTIAL RAIN SUCH AS CHARACTERIZE MUCH OF LATIN AMERICA. IT NEEDS RICH SOIL.

IT WON'T BE A PLANTATION OF OPEN TREES IN LINE BUT RATHER THE FORESTS WILL BE THINNED AND THE TREES SET IN--TREES WHICH WILL GROW BIG, ACCLIMATE THEMSELVES AND YIELD RICHLY IN QUININE.

SPEAKING IN DEBATE ON THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT'S WAR APPROPRIATION ESTIMATES, HE SAID HE THOUGHT IT WAS "ALL TO THE GOOD" THAT UNITED STATES BUYERS SHOULD OBTAIN DAIRY ANIMALS LIKE THOSE BEING SOLD BY CANADIAN FARMERS WHO WERE TAKING ADVANTAGE OF HIGHER PRICES TO SELL THEIR STOCK AND RETIRE. HE SAID HE HOPED SUCH SALES WOULD CONTINUE AS LONG AS FARMERS AS A WHOLE KEPT AS MANY COWS AS BEFORE.

GARDINER, QUESTIONED ABOUT PROTECTION OF THE PRODUCER OF CATTLE IN RESPECT TO PRICES, SAID THAT ON LIVE CATTLE THERE SHOULD BE A SPREAD OF ABOUT A CENT A POUND BELOW THE CEILING ON BEEF.

"WE HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING THAT WE WILL BUY WHEN CATTLE GET DOWN TO THAT FLOOR," HE ADDED.

"THESE CATTLE ARE BOUGHT TO TAKE CARE OF ANY DEFICIENCIES IN THE COUNTRY OUTSIDE OF THE AREA WHERE THEY ARE BOUGHT. AFTER THE SUPPLY IN CANADA HAS BEEN TAKEN CARE OF, WE HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING TO SUPPLY ANY SURPLUS BEEF TO BRITAIN. THAT BEEF MUST BE FROZEN."

THE BERLIN RADIO REPORTED TODAY THAT AXIS TROOPS WERE SUCCESSFULLY MOPPING UP SCATTERED YUGOSLAV GUERRILLA FORCES AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS OF FIGHTING AND DECLARED THAT OPERATIONS ALSO WERE PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY AGAINST GREEK PATRIOTS.

JUL 7 - 1943

THE BROADCAST, WHICH WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID REMNANTS OF "STRONG SERBIAN-COMMUNIST PARTISAN GROUPS" HAD FLED INTO ROADLESS MOUNTAINS SOUTH OF MORAVA AND WERE BEING PURSUED AND ANNIHILATED BY GERMAN AND CROATIAN TROOPS.

"SERBIAN PARTISAN GROUPS UNDER THE COMMAND OF FORMER COL.DRAJA MIHAILOVIC LIKEWISE ARE NOW ALMOST COMPLETELY ANNIHILATED," THE BROADCAST SAID.

"MOPPING UP OPERATIONS IN GREECE ALSO SUCCESSFULLY CONTINUED DURING THE LAST FEW DAYS."

RECENT ADVICES FROM ALLIED AND NEUTRAL SOURCES HAVE TOLD OF HEAVY FIGHTING IN BOTH YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE. THE LATTER ADVICES, HOWEVER, HAVE INDICATED THE GERMANS WERE HAVING HARD SLEDDING IN THEIR EFFORTS TO STAMP OUT THE GUERRILLAS.

JUL 7 - 1943

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY

NEW YORK, JULY 6-(AP)-THE GERMANS' THIRD SUMMER OFFENSIVE AGAINST RUSSIA, ALTHOUGH LATER THAN ITS PREDECESSORS AND MORE LIMITED IN SCOPE, CAN STILL PRESENT A STRONG THREAT TO THE SOVIET UNION AND TO THE UNITED NATIONS.

THE DANGERS ARE DOUBLE--MILITARY AND POLITICAL.

MILITARILY, THE WEHRMACHT CAN MAKE A POWERFUL EFFORT TO DRAIN AT LEAST SOME OF THE OFFENSIVE STRENGTH OUT OF THE RED ARMY BEFORE THE GERMANS ARE CONFRONTED BY A SECOND LAND FRONT IN EUROPE.

POLITICALLY, THE NEW STRAIN IMPOSED UPON THE SOVIET UNION IS RENEWING RUSSIAN ANXIETY OVER THE ABSENCE OF THAT SECOND FRONT, AND MAY WELL BRING TO A HEAD A FRESH CRISIS AMONG THE UNITED NATIONS.

THE MILITARY TARGET IS A TREMENDOUS ONE. ON THE BASIS OF SOVIET ESTIMATES, THE RED ARMY HAS ALREADY LOST 4,200,000 MEN, DEAD OR MISSING. BUT, ON THE BASIS OF A POTENTIAL MOBILIZATION OF ONE-TENTH OF THE POPULATION, OR 19,300,000 MEN, THE RED ARMY STILL HAS 15,100,000 MEN, ALMOST FOUR TIMES AS MANY AS HAVE BEEN LOST, A HUGE RESERVOIR OF DEFENSIVE--AND OFFENSIVE--POWER.

THE POLITICAL QUESTION CAN NOT BE REDUCED TO FIGURES, BUT THE EDITORIAL CLAMOR FOR A SECOND FRONT, ALREADY ARISING IN RUSSIA, MAY EXCEED LAST YEAR'S POLEMICS WHICH BROUGHT PRIME MINISTER WINSTON

JUL 7 - 1943

CHURCHILL TO MOSCOW. THE VICTORY IN TUNISIA, IN RUSSIAN EYES, CAN NOT COMPENSATE FOR ANOTHER YEAR OF WAITING, SO FAR IN VAIN, FOR ANOTHER FRONT IN EUROPE.

THE DRIVE WHICH THE GERMANS OPENED YESTERDAY ON THE OREL-KURSK-BELGOROD FRONT COMES JUST TWO WEEKS LATER IN THE YEAR THAN THE FIRST GENERAL INVASION OF THE SOVIET UNION JUNE 22, 1941, AND THE MOVE LAST YEAR AGAINST STALINGRAD.

JUL 7 - 1943

THE LOSS OF THOSE TWO WEEKS OF SUMMER CAMPAIGN REPRESENTS THE PRICE THE GERMANS HAD TO PAY FOR THEIR LATE WINTER COUNTER-OFFENSIVE WHICH RE-TOOK KHARKOV, BUT WHICH FORCED A CHANGE IN THE ORIGINAL GERMAN PLANS, CONCENTRATIONS AND MOVEMENTS FOR THIS YEAR.

THE OFFENSIVE, HOWEVER, IS NOT TOO LATE TO BE SERIOUS. TWO FULL MONTHS OF HOT, DRY WEATHER--THE CONDITIONS MOST FAVORABLE TO GERMAN OPERATIONS--LIE AHEAD BEFORE THE SEPTEMBER RAINS COME. THAT IS TIME ENOUGH FOR THE STILL-POTENT WEHRMACHT TO DO A LOT OF DAMAGE.

THE FIGHTING FOLLOWS A PATTERN MADE FAMILIAR BY LAST YEAR'S CAMPAIGN. THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE LAST NIGHT, ANNOUNCING THE START OF THE BATTLE, CARRIED THE CUSTOMARY PHRASES REPORTING ATTACKS BY LARGE ENEMY FORCES AND ACKNOWLEDGING WEDGES IN THE RED ARMY LINES.

THE IMMEDIATE GERMAN OBJECTIVE, AS IT WAS A YEAR AGO, APPEARS TO BE A BREAK-THROUGH ON A COMPARATIVELY NARROW FRONT, FOLLOWED BY A SWIFT, KNIFING THRUST INTO THE DEPTH OF THE RED ARMY DEFENSES. DAYS OR WEEKS OF FIGHTING WOULD BE REQUIRED TO FORCE A PATH THROUGH THE DENSE RUSSIAN LINES, IF SUCH A PATH CAN BE MADE.

WHICH WAY THE GERMANS WOULD THEN TURN REMAINS THEIR OWN MILITARY SECRET. THEIR LOGICAL COURSE, IF THEY HOPE TO ENGAGE THE BULK OF THE RED ARMY, WOULD BE NORTH TOWARD MOSCOW, OR BY-PASSING THE CAPITAL.

MOSCOW HAS BEEN BREATHING EASILY SINCE THE WINTER OF 1941-42, WHEN THE GERMANS WERE THROWN BACK FROM ITS GATES. THE CITY HAS NOT BEEN BOMBED SINCE APRIL 9, 1942. IT MAY, ONCE MORE, BE IN FOR A HARD TIME.

JUL 7 - 1943

WHEN I LEFT MOSCOW IN FEBRUARY, AFTER THE BATTLE OF STALINGRAD WAS WON, THE RUSSIANS WERE ALREADY LOOKING AHEAD TO THE GERMAN SUMMER OFFENSIVE WHICH IS ONLY NOW DEVELOPING. THEY WERE LOOKING AHEAD WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE OF THE DANGERS INVOLVED, BUT WITH COMPLETE CONFIDENCE THAT A NEW CRISIS COULD BE SURMOUNTED.

NOW, I AM STARTING BACK TO MOSCOW, EQUALLY CONFIDENT THAT I SHALL GET THERE--AND THAT THE GERMANS WON'T.

NEW YORK, JULY 6-(AP)-A SWEDISH RADIO BROADCAST RECORDED BY U.S.GOVERNMENT MONITORS SAID TODAY THE STOCKHOLM LOWER COURT COURT HAD SENTENCED TWO MEN, ONE AN ARMY SERGEANT, TO 10 YEARS' HARD LABOR FOR ESPIONAGE IN BEHALF OF AN UNDISCLOSED "ALIEN POWER."

THE BROADCAST SAID ONE OF THE MEN, NAMED AS GOETTE ERLAND SIGVARD WALL, HAD ENCOURAGED OLAF ARTHUR SAMUELSSON, A SERGEANT IN AN ARTILLERY REGIMENT, TO SECURE INFORMATION REGARDING SWEDISH DEFENSES ON THE BORDER OF NAZI-OCCUPIED NORWAY. WALL WAS SAID TO HAVE CONTACTED A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE FOREIGN POWER.

THE OPENING OF THE HEAVY GERMAN OFFENSIVE ALONG A 165-MILE FRONT IN THE OREL-BELGOROD SECTOR--THE BLOODY COCKPIT IN THE RUSSO-NAZI BATTLE-LINE SOUTH OF MOSCOW--MAY SIGNAL THE BREAKING OF THE GREAT

JUL 7 - 1943

STORM WHICH HAS BEEN HANGING OVER EUROPE FOR WEEKS.

WHETHER THIS IS A FINAL ALL-OUT ATTEMPT BY A DESPERATE HITLER TO CRUSH THE RUSSIAN ARMIES ISN'T YET APPARENT. BUT IT'S A MAJOR OPERATION WHICH ALREADY HAS PRODUCED FIERCE FIGHTING, AND IT MIGHT EASILY DEVELOP INTO THE BIG SHOW-DOWN.

JUL 7 - 1943

IN SHORT, THIS MAY BE THE CRISIS WHICH SHOULD DISCLOSE IN THE NEAR FUTURE WHAT THE DURATION OF THE HITLERIAN PORTION OF THE WORLD WAR IS LIKELY TO BE. THE NAZI CHIEF WILL HAVE TO PUT HIS RESOURCES ON PARADE.

THE GERMANS PROBABLY HAVE BEEN IMPELLED TO UNDERTAKE THIS BELATED OFFENSIVE EITHER FOR THE PURPOSE OF FORESTALLING A RUSSIAN DRIVE--WHICH BERLIN HAS BEEN PREDICTING--OR BECAUSE THEY HAVE DECIDED THAT THEY ARE FAIRLY SAFE FROM AN IMMEDIATE ALLIED INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE. BOTH FACTORS MAY ENTER INTO THE SITUATION.

JUL 7 - 1943

PART AND PARCEL OF THIS ATTACK UNDOUBTEDLY IS THE PHENOMENON OF THE SUDDEN APPEARANCE OF FRESH NAZI AERIAL SUPPORT FOR THE ITALIANS IN THE BATTLE FOR SICILY. APPARENTLY HERR HITLER'S HARASSED INTUITION HAS DONE A SUDDEN BACK-FLOP AND MADE HIM REVISE HIS DECISION TO LEAVE IT ENTIRELY TO BENITO (SOFT-UNDER-BELLY-OF-EUROPE) MUSSOLINI TO STAND OFF THE ALLIED INVASION WHICH HAS BEEN BEARING DOWN ON HIM.

THE NAZI CHIEF'S RECENT ATTITUDE HAS BEEN THAT OF ABANDONING HIS PARTNER IN CRIME AS NO LONGER USEFUL TO THE AXIS CAUSE. HITLER'S CHANGE OF MIND, IF NOT OF HEART, IS EASILY UNDERSTANDABLE IN VIEW OF THE OPENING OF THE RUSSIAN DRIVE. HE HAS DECIDED TO IMPEDE THE ALLIED OPERATIONS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE WHILE HE IS ENGAGED IN RUSSIA.

GERMAN AND ITALIAN AIRMEN OVER THE FOURTH GAVE AMERICAN AND BRITISH SQUADRONS ATTACKING SICILY THE HEAVIEST OPPOSITION SINCE THE HEIGHT OF THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN. EVERYWHERE THE AXIS AIR DEFENSE STIFFENED STRONGLY AND THE NAZIS, AS WOULD BE EXPECTED, WERE PARTICULARLY ACTIVE AND APPARENTLY TAKING THE LEAD IN RESISTING THE FIERCE ALLIED BOMBING.

IT ISN'T YET CLEAR HOW MUCH AIR POWER HITLER HAS SHIFTED TO ITALY OR MAY BE PREPARED TO SEND THERE. HE HAS BEEN CONSERVING HIS LUFTWAFFE FOR EMERGENCIES. HE NOT ONLY HAS BEEN CONSIDERING THE FEASIBILITY OF INAUGURATING A FINAL GRAND OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE REDS, BUT HAS HAD TO FIGURE ON A PROBABLE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IF HE HIMSELF DIDN'T STRIKE FIRST. THERE ALSO HAS BEEN THE THREAT OF INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE BY THE ANGLO-AMERICAN FORCES.

JUL 7 - 1943

HOWEVER, HE UNDOUBTEDLY CAN SPARE A LIMITED AMOUNT OF AIR POWER TO HELP MUSSOLINI--PROVIDING HE IS SAFE FROM INVASION ACROSS FRANCE. THIS AID MIGHT CHANGE THE MEDITERRANEAN PICTURE CONSIDERABLY IN THAT IT WOULD MAKE THE ALLIED TASK OF INVASION TOUGHER THAN HAS BEEN ANTICIPATED.

A FAR MORE INTERESTING POINT IS WHAT REACTION THE NAZI OFFENSIVE IN RUSSIA MAY HAVE ON THE ALLIED PLANS FOR ULTIMATE INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE. WITH HITLER HEAVILY ENGAGED ON THE EASTERN FRONT WE HAVE A SITUATION WHICH RATHER INVITES ALLIED INVASION OF FRANCE. QUITE LIKELY PREMIER STALIN FORESAW THIS DEVELOPMENT WHEN HE RENEWED HIS APPEAL THE OTHER DAY FOR AN OPENING OF A SECOND FRONT IN THE WEST.

IN ANY EVENT, HITLER HAS OPENED THE GATES TO THE ARENA, AND WE ARE LIKELY TO SEE THE CONFLICT SWELL TO A FIERCE PITCH BEFORE BRITISH PREMIER CHURCHILL'S LEAVES OF AUTUMN BEGIN TO FALL.

MacArthur Communique Tells Of Juncture Of Two Groups—Details Of Naval Fight Show Enemy Craft Went Down In Few Minutes

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Thursday, July 8—American troops have landed at two points near the Japanese air base at Munda, on New Georgia Island, the high command said today.

The noon communique, in an elaboration of the naval battle in the Kula gulf above New Georgia, also announced that nine Japanese destroyers and cruisers were sunk there.

Munda Immediate Objective

The landings near Munda, which is the immediate objective of the central Solomons offensive were at Rice Anchorage, four miles northeast of Bairoko, and at Zanana, six miles east of Munda.

This account was given to the new landing operations:

"Our forces landed at Rice Anchorage, four miles northeast of Bairoko harbor, before dawn on the fifth. Operations were preceded by the bombardment of the enemy base in the Kula gulf by our surface units. (It was in this bombardment that the United States destroyer Strong was lost.)

Second Force Goes From Rendova

"During the same night, elements of our ground forces from Rendova secured a beachhead at Zanana, six miles east of the Munda airdrome. Patrols made contact along the Barike river."

The communique announcement in amplification of the Kula gulf naval engagement said the "enemy naval force was decisively defeated with the loss of at least nine warships."

JUL 8 - 1943

Destroyers Hit By Smashing Broadsides

"In the first phase of the engagement, four of five hostile destroyers were struck by smashing broadsides that within five minutes destroyed or set afire the entire group," it said.

"Three or possibly four enemy light cruisers were then taken under fire. All were either sunk or afire within fifteen minutes. One was beached.

"Later during rescue of survivors from the light cruiser Helena (the American warship lost) our destroyers intercepted and sank two of three enemy ships attempting to escape from the gulf and damaged the third."

Increase Over Earlier Figures

Yesterday's communique had reported that six enemy ships probably were sunk and four damaged as against the loss on our side of a cruiser, since disclosed to be the USS Helena.

The Munda air base, on which the Americans now have increased their pressure with the new landings, was first developed by the Japanese last December but they have been unable to make much out of it because of repeated poundings it has been given from the air.

In American hands, it would provide an airdrome within fighter-plane range of the big Japanese air and shipping fortress of Rabaul, New Britain.

The peril of Munda figured in the Kula gulf naval battle. American warships had gone into the narrow body of water in order to pound Munda's main source of supply at Bairoko anchorage, twelve miles above it. Munda previously had been cut off from any possible aid from south New Georgia by American landings at Viru harbor and seizure of the island of Vangunu.

In the latest attempt of the Japanese to challenge control of the air over Rendova, an unspecified number of bombers with an escort of fifty-six Zeros was intercepted and dispersed by our fighter patrols in a daylight action.

3 Bombers, 9 Fighters Downed

Three of the bombers and nine fighters were shot down against the loss of only one Allied plane, the communique said.

"Delayed dispatches indicate that on July 5 enemy bombers attempting to attack Allied shipping (at Rendova) were driven off with a loss of nine bombers," the communique added.

"No damage was caused."

Above the Kula gulf on Kolombangara Island, twenty-eight tons of heavy bombs were dropped on Vila by torpedo and dive bombers with a fighter escort, starting fires in the supply dump and bivouac areas. Medium bombers struck at the Japanese airdrome there, All our planes returned.

100 Tons Of Bombs Near Mubo

At the other end of the 700-mile battle arc where American and Australians hold positions near Salamaua, New Guinea, Allied planes dropped more than one hundred tons of bombs on Japanese positions near Mubo.

In addition to reporting the aerial bombardment at Mubo, which is twelve miles below Salamaua, the communique also announced the capture by Australians of an important hill there.

The Japanese continued to send more planes against Rendova Island, seized in the central Solomons June 30, within artillery shelling distance of Munda. In the latest raid they lost twelve bombers and fighters, the communique said. Japanese losses in this sector alone now approximate 180.

Island Of Selaru Raided

Three hundred miles above Australia, in the Tanimbar islands, two-engined Allied raiders bombed and strafed the enemy airdrome on the island of Selaru, attacked near-by villages occupied by the Japanese, started a fire in a fuel dump and silenced an anti-aircraft position.

In an amplification of the raid of enemy planes on Darwin, reported in yesterday's communique, it was announced that ten bombers and two fighters were destroyed out of a force of fifty-eight raiders and three bombers and a fighter were damaged.

It previously had been reported that seven defending Spitfires were lost, but that three pilots were saved and three others were observed bailing out.

Heaviest Fighting Since June 30

The fighting and air action in the area of Salamaua, northeastern New Guinea, was the most extensive reported since Americans landed at Nassau bay on the coast below Salamaua on June 30.

"In direct support of our ground forces, strong formations of attack planes, medium and heavy bombers executed coordinated bombing and strafing attacks on enemy positions on Observation Hill and in Kitchen and Guigap creeks (in the Mubo vicinity)," the communique said.

"One hundred and six tons of high-explosive and fragmentation bombs were concentrated on the target in less than four minutes. Results were reported to be excellent. Our ground forces attacked and captured Observation Hill and are consolidating."

Bobdubi Position Strafed

At Bobdubi, a village within five miles of Salamaua, Allied attack planes bombed and strafed enemy positions on a ridge.

Above the ground fighting scene in the central Solomons, a heavy raid on Japanese air bases at Kahili was reported. In an elaboration of the attack, previously announced by the navy in Washington, the communique said forty-five tons of high explosives were dropped by heavy bombers, causing large fires despite intense anti-aircraft fire thrown up by Japanese warships and shore batteries.

Two of our planes are missing.

Four large fires which sent smoke 4,000 feet skyward were started in a raid by four-engined bombers on Ballale airdrome, on the Shortland islands.

Ten Enemy Ships Sunk or Damaged; U. S. Cruiser Lost

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 7.—An American naval victory in the Solomons—probable sinking of six Japanese warships and damaging of four others out of a cruiser-destroyer force at a cost of one cruiser—was announced today, one week after the outbreak of the current Pacific offensive.

The victory, recorded by guns of American ships which flashed in darkness of July 5-6 in the Kula Gulf above New Georgia Island, was sketched in a communique from headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Although bearing out in clearer outline an earlier announcement from the Navy in Washington that the Kula Gulf battle definitely was an American triumph, today's communique left many details to be filled in, including how many of the enemy ships hit were cruisers and how many destroyers. One definitely was a destroyer, blasted by 500-pound bombs of American planes after it had been beached by damage suffered in the naval engagement.

(Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters, which has immediate direction of the Solomons operations, announced today that the Kula Gulf action has ended and that American forces continue to hold the initiative on land and in the air, as well as on the sea. Mopping up of Japanese resistance by ground troops was said to be still in progress on Rendova Island and Southern New Georgia.

("The Japs have taken another damned good licking," Secretary of the Navy Knox told cheering shipyard workers at Bremerton, Wash., yesterday.)

The communique also bore the assuring news that American forces on Rendova Island, seized at the outset of the new drive in the Central Solomons June 30, now have been reinforced and that frantic efforts of the Japanese air force to checkmate the offensive by fresh raids on Australia, New Guinea and American Solomons holdings have been broken up.

Defeat of the Japanese naval forces left imperiled the most immediate objective of the Solomons operations—the enemy air base of Munda on New Georgia.

Above it, Bairoko anchorage, main source of supply, had been battered by shells of American warships in a bombardment from the Kula Gulf the night before the naval battle. The United States destroyer Strong was lost during that action.

Below it, the reinforced American garrison on Rendova has been shelling it from 5 miles away. And on New Georgia American forces at Viru Harbor are in a position to move overland, having consolidated positions there.

Details Not Available.

"Preliminary dispatches report that our naval surface units intercepted an enemy force of cruisers and destroyers in the Kula Gulf during the night of the warship engagement," the Allied communique said.

"Details are not yet available and a final assessment cannot be made, but it is indicated that six enemy ships probably were sunk and four damaged.

"We lost one cruiser.

"One damaged enemy destroyer, beached near Sambera Harbor, was attacked by our medium dive bombers, which scored seven direct hits with 500-pound bombs, resulting in violent explosions and fires."

(A Japanese Imperial Headquarters communique asserted today that Japanese naval forces sank "one enemy cruiser" and set another afire Sunday night in Kula Gulf and that torpedo boats the following morning sank three war vessels.

(The communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, made no mention of Japanese losses. The Japanese for the first time admitted Allied landings on the island of New Georgia, saying troops came ashore there at several points.

(The Japanese war bulletin also asserted that Japanese naval planes shot down 10 planes Monday over Kula Gulf.)

Decisive Battle Still to Be Fought.

The fact that Kula Gulf is only 15 miles long and about 8 miles across at its widest point made it obvious that the battle was between limited and comparatively light sea armament.

(In Washington, unofficial comment was that "the decisive naval action of the present offensive in the South Pacific apparently is still to be fought," with neither side as yet throwing in its battleships and aircraft carriers.)

In air battles over the Solomons fighting scene, Allied headquarters reported seven more Japanese planes were shot down, bringing enemy losses there alone to 164. Eighteen raiders inflicted some damage yesterday on American positions at Rendova, but three were destroyed by ground defenses. The other four were bagged by planes over Kula Gulf as they attempted to break up the bombing of the beached destroyer.

Twenty-seven enemy bombers with an escort of 21 Zeros tried a daylight raid on Darwin, Australia, causing slight damage. Spitfires manned by Australians and British pilots downed five bombers and two Zeros. Seven Spitfires were lost, but three pilots were saved and three others were seen to bail out.

Japs Raid Naussa Bay Area.

Fifteen Japanese planes raided the Naussa Bay area, 12 miles down the coast from Salamaua, New Guinea, where Americans landed June 30 in another daylight stab, but the enemy planes failed to inflict either damage or casualties, the communique said.

In still another Japanese aerial effort nine bombers and four fighters went after the Bena Bena area, 90 miles northwest of the Salamau front, where the Allies perhaps possess landing fields known to have been built there before the war. The raid was characterized as ineffective.

The Allied air force also was busy. Flying 500 miles northwest of Darwin, Allied two-engined bombers set off explosions at the enemy airdrome of Penfoei at Koepang, on Dutch Timor. Other Allied planes struck at Lae, in the vicinity of the Salamau fighting, and at enemy bases far to the northwest on Dutch New Guinea.

ALLIES CONTINUE AIR ATTACKS ON SICILIAN BASES

Axis Opposition Dwindles as Gerbini Airport Is Blasted.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 7.—(AP) German fighter opposition dwindled precipitately on Sicily yesterday under the violent day and night hammering by Allied warplanes, indicating the enemy had lost most of his land-based aircraft on the island and was badly in need of reinforcements.

Flying Fortress and Liberator heavy bombers, medium and light bombers all joined in the round the clock effort to sweep the enemy entirely from above the Mediterranean island flanking Southern Italy.

The main target was the bomb-picked Gerbini airport and its four subsidiary fields in Southern Sicily.

Fifty Liberators attacked from Middle East bases, dumping more than 285,000 pounds of bombs on runways and dispersal areas, setting large fires. The Fortresses from French Africa hit ammunition dumps, administration buildings, hangars and five landing strips.

The only challenge mentioned was to the Liberators, which shot down one, probably bagged another and damaged two more.

British Wellingtons bombed Gerbini on Monday night.

Great Damage Claimed

Experts at headquarters, poring over reconnaissance photos which pictured the tremendous destruction, said the task of rubbing Gerbini's five air fields from the map was nearing completion.

Five Allied planes were lost yesterday; they shot down three. The score for the Northwest Africa Air Force since the fall of Pantelleria thus rose to 275 Axis craft destroyed at an expenditure of 83 planes. A headquarters informant said experience showed that more planes were destroyed aground than aloft in attacks such as the current ones on Sicily, meaning that the rate of attrition was six or seven to one in favor of the Allies.

Other targets were scattered airdromes in Sicily, including the Biscari and Milo fields, and railway installations at the east Sicilian port of Catania. The Italian radio said that Palermo, Trapani, Porto Empedocle and Marsala also were attacked and that 19 Allied planes were destroyed.

Port of Ostia Closed

The Algiers radio said the twice-bombed port of Ostia, near Rome at the mouth of the Tiber, had been closed to the public as a result of the raid Saturday night.

Headquarters was cautious not to claim air supremacy over Sicily, a prerequisite for invasion. But the sharp drop in enemy opposition, which for two days previous had been designated officially as vigorous and determined, meant that the Allied blows were hitting where they hurt most and that the American and British fliers were in a swift ascendancy.

Continuous pounding, such as the current series against Sicily, saps morale and reduces counter-measures by making a battle ground of each enemy base, it was pointed out.

(Middle East headquarters at Cairo amplified its account of the raid on Messina in Sicily Monday. The 85 American Liberators dropped a record of a half million pounds of bombs on the ferry terminal, two miles across the deep, swift channel to the Italian mainland.

("Aerial photography now indicates that damage to terminal facilities and railway facilities was even more extensive than first reported," it was stated.)

Allies Shower 285,000 Pounds Of Bombs on Sicilian Airfields

Effort to Knock Out Gerbini Sector Appears Nearing Completion

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 7.—Flying Fortresses from North Africa and Liberators from the Middle East Command poured hundreds of tons of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on Gerbini airdrome in Southern Sicily yesterday as the air siege of that vital enemy base continued through its 36th hour.

The effort to knock Gerbini and its four satellite fields from the map appeared nearing completion, photographs revealing terrific damage to administration buildings, hangars, parked aircraft and landing strips from the relentless poundings of the last two days and a night.

It was at Gerbini that Flying Fortress gunners of the Northwest African Command destroyed 41 enemy fighters Monday, and at least one more Axis plane was shot down during yesterday's double daylight blow.

50 Liberators in Raid.

A Middle East communique said approximately 50 Liberators participated in yesterday's smash, dropping more than 285,000 pounds of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on the Gerbini fields, covering runways and dispersal areas and leaving large fires burning. One enemy fighter was reported destroyed and two damaged while every Liberator returned safely.

Flying Fortresses from this base struck shortly after dawn and reported hits on an ammunition dump, administration buildings, hangars and five landing strips. Five planes of the Northwest African Force were reported missing from the day's operations, against two enemy aircraft destroyed.

During Monday night RAF Wellingtons hammered at Gerbini, starting five fires, while Biscari and Milo airfields were assaulted by South African Bostons and Baltimores and British Bostons. The same night heavy British bombers of the Middle East Comand pounded railway installations at Catania, Eastern Sicilian port.

Axis fighter opposition which reached a crescendo Monday, when more than 10 war planes attacked a single formation of 27 Flying Fortresses, dwindled yesterday to almost nothing, returning pilots reported. The fourth day of the concentrated attack on Sicily's airfields from here saw the score stand at 110 Axis craft destroyed against an Allied loss of 19.

Veteran observers cautioned against jumping to the conclusion that the Allies have won complete air supremacy over Sicily, but the sudden falling off in enemy fighter interception indicated the Germans had lost most of their Sicilian-based land planes and were in need of reinforcements.

Only one small group of enemy fighters approached an American bombing mission yesterday, and escorting Lighting drove them off.

American Mitchell Medium bombers struck in two formations against Biscari airfield in Southeast Sicly Monday night. Despite a furious anti-aircraft barrage, the bombers "hit the target right on the nose," observers reported. One bomb apparently scored a direct hit on an ammunition dump.

Smooth as Clockwork.

"Everything went as smooth as clockwork," one American pilot said. "Ten miles from the target we saw a large fire started by earlier bombers."

Besides continual bomber missions, yesterday's operations produced many effective fighter-bomber sweeps in which military targets of all kinds on Sicily were surprised and strafed. The bombings continued almost until dusk, with RAF Baltimores mauling Milo Airfield and Mitchells returning for another drubbing of Biscari.

A pilot said that the antiaircraft "looked like big wads of black cotton—they were putting it up thick and heavy."

The ceaseless, concentrated punishment of the enemy's frontline defenses hardly could be anything else than a tremendous headache to Nazi Field Marshal Baron von Richthofen, who was reported to have been transferred to Italy from Russia to stave off the Allied challenge for air mastery over Italy's southern territories.

Grounded Planes Destroyed.

Judged by past results achieved and verified during the North African campaign, an attack such as is being hurled against Sicily destroys more enemy planes on the ground than in the air. It saps the enemy's morale and hamstrings countermeasures by making a battlefield of each enemy air base.

Since the fall of Pantelleria on June 11 the Northwest African air force alone has destroyed 275 enemy aircraft in the air and has lost 83. Add to this the enemy planes wrecked on the ground—estimated by observers at several hundred—and the ratio of plane destruction goes up to 6-1 or 7-1 in favor of the Allies.

A dispatch from Cairo disclosed that 85 American Liberators took part in Monday's assault on Messina in Sicily and dropped a record total for the Middle East command of nearly 500,000 pounds of bombs on the big ferry terminal. It said that "Aerial photography now indicates that damage to terminal facilities and railway facilities was even more extensive than first reported."

An Italian communique today listed 40 persons killed and 6 injured yesterday in Catania Province, where the Gerbini airfield is situated. The brodacast said other points attacked on Sicily included Palermo, Trapani, Porto Empedocle, Catania and Marsala and asserted 19 Allied aircraft were shot down.

A broadcast by the Algiers radio, heard by the Associated Press in London, declared the port of Ostia, at the mouth of the Tiber, near Rome, had been closed to the public and to shipping as a result of an Allied raid last Saturday night.

Algiers Names Successor to Admiral Robert

Martinique Ruler Replaced by Gen. Henri P. Jacomy, an Adherent of De Gaulle

ALGIERS, July 7 (AP).—The French Committee of National Liberation, acting swiftly on unofficial reports that Martinique had rallied to its banner, named Brigadier General Henri Paul Jacomy tonight as commander of the French Antilles and French Guiana, succeeding the Vichy appointee, Admiral Georges Robert.

French observers said the communique announcing the appointment of Jacomy, a De Gaullist, made it clear that the French committee will not deal with Robert once the transfer is formally effected.

The committee also appointed Henri Etienne Hoppenot as delegate extraordinary to negotiate the return of the French Antilles "into the union of the French empire." Hoppenot is a member of General Henri Honore Giraud's French mission at Washington.

A communique issued by the committee said that no confirmation had yet been received of reports in the Algiers press this morning that Martinique already had aligned itself with the committee as the de facto provisional government of France.

BERGERET LOSES WEST AFRICA POST

JUL 8 - 1943

Algiers, July 7 (A. P.).—Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, who has been attached to the French Air Forces in West Africa, has been relieved of his duties by the French Committee of National Liberation, a decree published in the Official Gazette disclosed today.

Gen. Bergeret, who formerly commanded all French air forces under Gen. Giraud, was sent to West Africa when an accord was reached between Gen. Giraud and Gen. de Gaulle. The De Gaullists had accused him of holding strong Vichy ties and of being sympathetic toward officers of the French air force who remained loyal to Marshal Petain.

MARTINIQUE ENVOY NAMED BY ALGIERS

Algiers, July 7 (A. P.).—The French Committee of National Liberation today appointed Marcel Hoppenot, who now is in Washington, as a delegate with extraordinary powers to negotiate the return of the French Antilles to the unified empire, a spokesman said today.

The only portions of the French Antilles not siding yet with the committee are Martinique and Guadeloupe, whose administrator, Admiral Georges Robert, invited the United States last week to name an envoy to discuss a "change" in French authority there.

At the same time the committee appointed Brig.-Gen. Henri Jacomy commander of the French military forces in the Antilles and French Guiana.

Observers interpreted this to meaen that the committee would not consent to retaining Admiral Robert as Governor of Martinique regardless of the outcome of the negotiations. Also, the fact that a military commander has been named while the Antilles are still outside the committee's authority was seen as an indication that the committee expects that the talks will be successful.

M. Hoppenot's delegation will include Jacques Plonton, former head of the Fighting French mission at Accra; Col. Poerre Dechevigne, head of the Fighting French mission in Washington, and Commander Pierre Weitzel, former chief of the Fighting French merchant marine.

The French spokesman here said there was no confirmation as yet that Martinique has already joined the empire.

Crowds Of 15,000 On June 15 Are Said To Have Forced Governor's Hand

[By the Associated Press]

Port of Spain, Trinidad, July 7—Crowds 15,000 strong took possession of the streets of Fort-de-France, Martinique, for two days recently in demonstrations favoring the Fighting French leader Gen. Charles de Gaulle, it was reported here today. The demonstrations were said to have forced the action of the Government of the French island colony in seeking an agreement with the United States and a break with Vichy.

A report of the demonstrations received by the Trinidad Guardian said the public manifestations broke out June 24 with crowds shouting vive de Gaulle and singing the Marseillaise. They were unmolested by the gendarmerie sent to disperse them, the report added.

Three Leaders Released

Three leaders of the demonstrators, including the former deputy for Martinique and Mayor of Fort-de-France, were reported arrested but released shortly afterward when the crowd made it plain they intended to continue their demonstrations unless the leaders were freed.

A disagreement between Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy High Commissioner of Martinque, and the colonel commanding the island's troop garrison favored the demonstrations, the report added, because Robert refused to allow the soldiers to put down the uprising.

One youthful demonstrator was reported to have shouted mort au Boche (death to the Boche) which resulted in his arrest, but he was released two hours later. The director of the postoffice and telegraph service was said to have incensed the crowd by pulling down the French tricolor flying at half mast over the postoffice as a symbol of mourning and stamping on it.

AXIS USES 30 DIVISIONS

Berlin Claims Penetrations at Both Ends of Front in Advance of 24 Miles

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Thursday, July 8—A grinding German tank and infantry assault against savage Russian resistance was acknowledged to have driven yesterday into an additional "few villages" near Belgorod at the southern end of a raging 200-mile front, where the Nazis had captured two towns Tuesday. The Germans, however, were still unable to achieve a major breakthrough, the Russians announced today.

The German advance was made in a battle of great fury during which lines, trenches and even villages changed hands time and again. The Russians said their troops were counter-attacking late last night and "are now fighting to restore the position."

The Axis hurled thirty divisions, approximately 450,000 men against the Russians on the Orel-Kursk Belgorod front, but "did not catch our troops unawares," said a special Soviet announcement broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor here.

"Only in a few sections of the Belgorod area has the enemy, at the cost of enormous losses, succeeded in driving insignificant wedges into our defenses," said the Russians.

[Berlin accounts received in Stockholm said the Germans had achieved breakthroughs between Orel and Mtsensk and near Belgorod, at opposite ends of the line, pushing back the Russians as much as twenty-four miles.]

Huge Nazi Losses Listed

The German Army in three days has suffered the most staggering losses in its history—30,000 dead 1,539 tanks destroyed or damaged and 649 airplanes shot down, it was announced early today in Moscow.

The Germans asserted that their troops had made "deep penetrations" in the Orel sector as well as at Belgorod, despite the resistance of "400,000 crack Soviet troops supported by very strong tank and artillery forces."

Both Berlin and Moscow said the Germans were rushing reserves and matériel to the front line, including aircraft. The special Russian communiqué, recorded by the Soviet monitor here, said the Germans were supported by "large numbers of aircraft sent in from other fronts."

A German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press supported this statement, saying that "a very large air force" had been concentrated against the Russians and that "air force battles now going on over the Kursk region are surpassing in extent any violence everything hitherto experienced during the whole eastern campaign."

An example of the ferocity was given in a Moscow broadcast asserting that in a single attack near Belgorod the Germans hurled more than 100 tanks against the Red Army. Seventy-four of these were knocked out, said the broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

"The Red Army has before it the largest and most powerfully armed enemy army any country ever has faced," the Moscow announcer declared. In view of the enemy's ...ligal outpouring of men and ...achines, he added, "there should be no underestimation of the weight and desperate determination of the attack."

The announcer indirectly suggested the need of a "second front" in Europe, saying that Adolf Hitler "is throwing everything into the Russian front, leaving only skeleton armies to defend western Europe."

When the German attack began early Monday morning the Red Army line was believed standing forty miles west of Kursk, capital of the rich black-earth farming region of the same name. There was no hint in either Berlin or Moscow reports of the present disposition of the opposing forces.

The Soviet midnight communiqué, referring to the crucial Belgorod fighting, said the Germans, after hours of artillery preparation in the morning, had renewed their offensive. During the day they constantly threw in reinforcements and in one sector "advanced somewhat and occupied a few villages."

Northward along the line marking the Russian bulge in the German front through Kursk to Orel, the Russians reported, formations of German tanks constantly stormed Red Army fortifications in an endeavor to break the front, followed by "large forces of mechanized infantry."

"Our troops beat off all enemy attacks and held firmly to their positions," said the Soviet report.

Groups of German tanks in some instances crashed through fortifications on the Orel-Kursk front and plunged into the depths of the defenses, but by the end of the day, the Russians said, all that had broken through, including forty of the "Tigers," had been destroyed.

Behind the Orel-Kursk front Soviet bombers raided troop concentrations, tanks and truck convoys in the enemy rear.

On other fronts there was increasingly sharp action. Several German attacks on the Kalinin front were repulsed during the day and 300 Germans were slain. Two tanks and other war material were destroyed.

West of Rostov there was an exchange of artillery and mortar fire, in which the Russians said they silenced several German artillery and mortar batteries and blew up an ammunition dump.

'Few Wedges' in Red Lines Admitted; Germans Acnowledge Offensive.

MOSCOW, Thursday, July 8 — (AP) Soviet Russia claimed today that the Red army had dealt the Nazi war machine the greatest blow in its history and had thwarted for the moment the huge German onslaught on the central front by killing 30,000 Nazis, destroying or damaging 1,539 tanks and shooting down 649 airplanes in the first three days of fighting.

A special announcement said the Axis hurled 30 divisions, or approximately 450,000 men, against the Russians in a two-pronged drive against the bulging Kursk salient, one column driving from Orel south against Kursk while the other sought to hit northward from Belgorod against the same point.

Soviet troops were declared to have held firmly against the great offensive along the entire Orel-Kursk-Belgorod line except for a few "insignificant wedges" driven into the Red Army defenses near Belgorod at the southern end.

No Conclusion Yet

While telling of the enormous German losses, the announcement nevertheless said "it is too early to formulate a final conclusion concerning the outcome of the battles" and added, the German forces here are great."

"One thing is indubitable and clear," the special announcement added. "The Germans' resolute offensive commenced on July 5 yielded no success in the first three days."

In a breakdown of figures of the attacking forces, the Russians said the Germans were using six tank, one motorized and seven infantry divisions in the Orel-Kursk area and nine panzer divisions and seven infantry including some of their crack formations in the Belgorod area.

The total of 1,539 tanks destroyed or damaged and 649 airplanes shot down as given in today's summary is the total of figures previously given by the Soviet High Command in three special communiques. The Russians had announced 586 tanks destroyed Monday, 433 Tuesday and 520 Wednesday.

Prior to issuance of today's summary, foreign observers here had been adding to this total figures given in the regular daily communiques.

Few Villages Yielded

The regular midnight bulletin had acknowledged the German capture of an additional "few villages" Wednesday in the Belgorod sector at the end of the flaming 200-mile front where two villages already had been taken by the enemy during Tuesday's fighting.

The later Soviet announcement made no attempt to minimize the power of the German threat, but said flatly that "in the first three days the Germans, despite the size of their offensive had met with no success."

"Hitler headquarters' liars" also were taunted in this confident Moscow broadcast for their original assertion that the Red Army, and not the Germans, had launched an offensive.

Berlin broadcasts heard here last night made it clear that the Germans now were admitting their troops were engaged in another major offensive.

"Hitler could not afford to wait until Summer was over without any action on the part of the German army," said the Moscow announcement.

The German aim in starting the huge drive last Monday was the quick encirclement and annihilation of Russian forces holding the Kursk salient above Belgorod, the statement added, but it said that plan has been frustrated by the Red Army.

"It is clear that the Germans hoped to crush the Soviet defenses and achieve big operational successes in the first days of the offensive," said the announcer in commenting on Germany's silence at the outset of the drive.

Special Air Reinforcements

Two special bomber forces and a special fighter force were transferred from Western Europe to the Eastern front between June 9 and 29 to aid in the push, it was said. Axis plane strength elsewhere on the Russian front also was stripped to make possible the great concentration between Belgorod and Orel, the Moscow radio said.

Fifteen tank divisions, one motorized division, and fourteen infantry divisions are being used in the offensive, it added.

The German advance was made in great battle fury during which lines and trenches and even entire villages changed hands time and again. The Russians said their troops were counterattacking late last night and "are now fighting to restore the position."

Claims Germans Halted

The Russians said that elsewhere along the fiery front the Germans were stopped cold.

The loss of the "few villages" was acknowledged in the Soviet midnight communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor. Earlier, a special communique had told of the Germans' rushing up vast reserves and listed huge new Nazi tank and plane losses which staggers the imagination.

This was Gedmany's supreme effort to crush the Red Army—Hitler's third and perhaps final fling before an Allied invasion hits him from the West. Dispatches from both Berlin and Moscow made it clear that the Germans were drawing upon their air reserves from the remainder of Europe.

Until today the Germans had maintained that the Russians were launching the offensive, but late last night Berlin radio military commentators declared flatly that the Germans, "originally on the defensive," now were waging an all-out attack.

"For the third time at the Eastern front," said the Transocean military commentator Lieut. Kurt Jesserich, "the Germans have launched an offensive out of originally defensive positions."

"The battle of Kursk is on," said this commentator at another point, perhaps indicating the Nazis' first objectives for a possible wheeling movement toward Moscow itself.

RUSSIA HAS NEW OIL FIELD

Azerbaijan Area Said to Be Second Only to Baku's

MOSCOW, July 7 (AP)—The Government newspaper Izvestia announced today that new oil fields had been discovered in Azerbaijan that were expected to become second in importance only to those at Baku, capital of that republic.

The fields were said to be remarkable not only for the quantity but the quality of the oil, making them a valuable source of high-octane aviation gasoline.

Germans Paying Heavy Price for Gains in Russia

Reds Claim 1,271 Tanks, 314 Planes Within Two Days

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 7.—The German Army has paid a terrific toll in tanks and manpower as the price for the "insignificant gains" achieved in two days of bitter fighting in the 1943 summer offensive on the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front, the Russians said today.

While acknowledging the loss of two unidentified towns near Belgorod at the southernmost end of the revitalized 165-mile front, the Red Army announced last night that in two days its artillery had smashed 1,271 enemy tanks and shot down 314 planes while the German loss in dead exceeded 10,000.

The Russians counted the German loss in tanks at 586 for the first day's fighting. The midday communique yesterday boosted the figure by 152 and last night the Soviet Information Bureau added another 423 in a special communique.

Claim Russians Attacked.

The regular midnight communique later listed 110 German tanks destroyed in the Orel-Kursk sector.

Battlefront dispatches said that German armor battering forward in great weight on a narrow sector forced the Russians to evacuate two populated places, but that two hours later the Soviets counterattacked, halting any further enemy advance and somewhat restoring the Soviet positions.

No separate Russian noon communique was issued today and there was no immediate announcement as to the reason, or whether this marked a permanent new policy.

Advices from the front, however, pictured great battles taking a terrible toll in blood and armor. Four German infantry columns were reported to have attacked near Mtsensk, 30 miles from Orel, to be driven back with 600 men killed. One column won and held Russian trenches briefly before falling back in a Soviet counterattack.

Nazi Concentrations Hit.

Russian airplanes hammered again and again at German concentrations of men and supplies behind the lines and the Russians said the Germans, apparently husbanding their planes, used aircraft principally for direct support of infantry and tanks in battle and were not striking at the Soviet rear.

(The Germans, however, declared they had "effectively bombed" targets behind the Russian lines. One Nazi broadcast said the Soviets had been forced back 25 miles between Orel and Tula.)

(Continuing the theme that the Russians had begun the offensive, the German communique declared that heavy Soviet attacks in the Belgorod area "by very strong forces which had been concentrated for weeks, failed."

(German troops penetrated deeply into Russian positions, inflicting very heavy losses, said the communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press. The radio asserted that 300 Soviet tanks had been destroyed or put out of action, and said 637 Russian planes were destroyed Monday and Tuesday against loss of 41 Nazi aircraft.

(The Vichy radio said the German reserves had been rushed to sectors "particularly threatened by Soviet attacks," and that "fighting on a still larger scale must be expected soon.")

Nazis Attack in Force.

Advice from the front indicated the German high command was sending wave after wave of armored units and infantry against the strongly-defended Soviet positions, making no appreciable headway.

The attacks all along the front were strongly supported by the German air force and the Russians said they believed large numbers of German planes had been shifted from Western European bases for the drive.

The Russian midnight communique reported the destruction of 111 German planes and said 22 pilots had been captured. One of the prisoners was said to have told Red Army officers that he was a member of the 7th Detachment of the 1st Squadron of dive bombers and had been based in Yugoslavia prior to the start of the new German offensive.

Seek Weak Defense Spots.

The Russians said that despite the heavy reinforcements to the German Air Forces the enemy had failed to achieve air superiority and that in one sector alone 45 planes were downed.

Front line dispatches said the Germans were striking repeatedly in an effort to find weak spots in the Russian defenses. Tank divisions and infantry struck, then recoiled to be regrouped for a thrust again on the same front but in a different sector.

Principal factor in the success of the Soviet defense seemed to be the Red Army heavy artillery which rolled back the constant onrush of the heavy German tanks. As the armored divisions faltered and turned tail, Red Army infantry dashed from dugouts and slit trenches to engage the enemy in hand-to-hand combat.

The German Army, obviously planning for a major blow at the Russians, picked its battlefield with an eye to providing terrain most suitable for the massing of its armored strength. The land around Orel, Sevsk and Kursk is flat, similar to that around Bryansk about 90 miles to the west where the Germans sent their heavy equipment against the Russians a year ago.

The Germans put 300 to 400 tanks into the battle at one time only to have them smashed back by the Soviet artillery and low-flying Stormoviks, battlefront reports said.

Frequently on the Orel-Kursk front they would switch from frontal attacks to attempts at flanking operations. In one clash the Russians were said to have exterted pressure on the flank of attacking Germans sending them reeling away into a Soviet minefield where they lost 31 tanks and 600 men killed.

BERLIN REPORTS BREAK-THROUGH IN RUSSIAN LINE

JUL 8 - 1943

Reds Declare Germans Lost 1271 Tanks and 314 Planes in Two Days.

VIOLENT BATTLES RAGING

Front-line Dispatches Tell of Fierce Onslaughts Met by Strong Counter-attacks.

The Berlin radio quoted a German military spokesman as announcing today that the Germans had broken through the main Russian line at several points in the Kursk area, center of the Russian bulge below Moscow. No details were given, but it was stated that the breakthrough occurred during a German counter-attack.

The claim was made in a Transocean (German propaganda agency) dispatch broadcast by Berlin and recorded at New York by the Associated Press.

Earlier accounts of the battle said that the conflict was raging between Belgorod and Orel with the initiative "firmly held by the Germans." Kursk is midway between those two points.

"The salient of the Russian front northwest of Belgorod and south of Orel is now the scene of a battle continually increasing in violence," a military correspondent of DNB, the German official news agency, was quoted as writing. Tanks were playing an important role, it was said, while in the air the strongest air formations were being engaged in fights in the Kursk area.

The German High Command reported penetrations deep into the Russian positions, but did not say where.

Deny Offensive Is German.

The Berlin radio continued meanwhile to drum out the theme that the Germans had not begun their summer offensive but were simply reacting to heavy Russian attacks.

"The large number of airplanes and tanks employed by the Russians in the Kursk area, the present theater of major operations, confirm the fact that the Russians have gathered a whole offensive army in this sector," Berlin said. "Berlin military spokesmen do not go so far as to speak of preparations for the beginning of a Russian offensive, but express the opinion that the Russians, believing a German major attack was under way, were prompted to strike suddenly."

Berlin added that the Russian tanks engaged in the fighting included "completely new models, partly Russian and partly American in origin."

EDEN PLEDGES VICTORY OVER THE JAPANESE

Foreign Secretary Tells Chinese Rally Of Fixed And Grim Resolve

Being Near The Germans Preoccupies British, He Declares

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 7—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared today that the day would come when the accumulated weight of the Allied power would "flow eastwards and overwhelm the Empire of Japan."

Speaking at a "Salute to China" meeting in London's Royal Albert Hall, Eden said "there is in our hearts a fixed and grim resolve to teach Japan once and for all the lesson that coprosperity is not achieved by cruelty and oppression and that he who draws the sword shall perish by it."

Paying tribute to the Chinese people on the sixth anniversary of their war with Japan, Eden declared, "every thrust against the Axis in Europe brings us nearer to the day when the full force of the United Nations can be brought to bear against Japan. Our great bomber offensive is only a prelude to heavier blows."

Preoccupied With Germany

The Foreign Secretary said living next door to Hitler naturally led Britain to become preoccupied with the menace of Nazi Germany, but he reiterated the promises of other British leaders that the "completion of our task in Europe is only the beginning of the end."

Eden declared that if the defeat of Japan is to lead to a lasting peace, it must be more than the physical defeat of her armed forces, "which in itself will involve no mean effort."

"It must also be defeat of those ideas which for more than a decade have been cultivated in the minds of the Japanese by their militarist leaders, to the exclusion of everything that is reasonable and humane," Eden said.

Ground For Hope

At the same meeting, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to Great Britain, asserted 'there is ground for hope that it will not be very long before a large-scale plan of dealing deadly blows to Japan will unfold itself."

Ambassador Koo said the determination of the Chinese people to fight to the end is as "strong as ever," but that the need of the Chinese army for more planes, guns and other equipment is "great and urgent."

"The whole nation is eagerly waiting for the day when the Chinese army will be able to launch a general offensive against the enemy," Koo said.

The Ambassador praised the work of the United States Air Force in China, which he said helped the Chinese troops not only to check the recent advance of a large Japanese force in the direction of Chungking, "but to turn it into a complete route for the overconfident foe."

Greek Election Plans Indorsed by Eden

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that the British government indorsed the postwar aims of the Greek government outlined by King George II of Greece in a broadcast from Cairo Sunday.

The monarch told the Greek people that as soon as it was possible for the government-in-exile to return to Greek soil all members would resign in order that a fully representative government could be chosen which would guarantee "freedom and orderliness of elections."

Calling the speech a "far-sighted announcement," Mr. Eden said that "it provides for the constitutional evolution of Greek political institutions in accordance with the principles of democracy and the Atlantic Charter."

Franco Rebuff To Monarchist Plea Reported

Nazi Radio Says Deputies Who Backed Don Juan Have Been Disciplined

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The German radio said today that disciplinary measures had been taken against members of the Spanish Cortes (Parliament) who last month wrote Chief of State Generalissimo Francisco Franco asking that the monarchy be restored in Spain.

"Their offense is regarded as all the more culpable as it took place at a time when Spain, in view of the international situation, requires inner unity," said the broadcast, recorded here by The Associated Press.

All the twenty-five signers of the message to Franco were understood to have been members of the Spanish Cortes, whose duty it is to advise the Cabinet and Chief of State and who enjoy parliamentary immunity. Some, at least, were members of the National Council of the Fascist Falange, Spain's only party.

The petition to Franco asked that Don Juan, the son to whom King Alfonso XIII assigned the throne before his death in Italy, be returned from his present exile in Switzerland.

Nazi Radio 'Warns' Allies Of Mediterranean Defenses

Germans Fail to Mention Crete Raid; Guerrillas Press Fight.

JUL 8 - 1943

LONDON, July 7.—(AP) The German radio told a badly smashed homeland today that the Allied African chieftain, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, had concentrated more than 1,000,000 tons of shipping on the African coast for a leap across the Mediterranean into Europe.

This broadcast was tempered by an assertion that the Allies "cannot launch a real invasion" because of the so-called resolute defenses in Southern France and Italy. "Even an invasion under cover of battleships or other heavy units must be considered an absolutely deadly risk," said the Berlin radio.

To Allied observers these propaganda soundings, recorded by the Associated Press, followed the familiar pattern of touching both ends of the keyboard but not the middle. The Axis still had not mentioned the British commando attack on Crete, a successful invasion feeler carried out Sunday night on that important Greek outpost.

Boost of Defenses

In other words, Berlin was warning all Germans and the occupied nations that something was going to happen — a quite obvious fact from Allied statements — but was stressing reports of Axis ability to combat any stab along the thousands of miles of exposed coastline.

There was a hint of the British Crete operation in one German broadcast which said that a "sabotage attempt" against an airfield there had been frustrated by German guards. This, of course, left the impression that Greek guerrillas might have descended upon the airport.

Greek and Yugoslav guerrillas still are battling in the mountains of those two countries, and the spread of these operations were evident in Vichy dispatches to Madrid saying that American and British planes have been supplying French patriots for some time with parachuted arms, food, munitions, and money.

The Germans said Gen. Draja Mihaeilovic's Yugoslav forces "for the most part have been wiped out," and that "mopping up operations also made good progress in Greece in the last few days."

Spokesmen for those two governments here acknowledged heavier Axis concentration against their warriors, but said claims that they were wiped out were fantastic.

Greeks Battle Italians

Cairo dispatches quoted the Hellenic News Service as reporting a battle raging between the Italians and Greek Guerrillas in the Trikkala area on the slopes of the vital pass o nthe main east-west road from Yannina to Larissa.

This action followed the burning of two villages, the dispatch said, adding that the guerrillas had killed an Italian unit commander and captured 60 men as a result of which the Italians were reported to have burned 10 villages.

From Instanbul came word that German occupation authorities in Greece had attempted to answer the disorders, which flared in many Greek cities after United States air raids with a "last warning" that the death penalty would be inflicted ruthlessly in the event of renewed rioting.

Reliable reports filtering into Instanbul across the border from Nazi-dominated Bulgaria said a contingent of 200 German aviators had arrived in Sofia. The group was believed equipped with the latest fighter planes and was expected to take up defensive stations in the center of Bulgaria with the intention of defending the nation's communications system from Allied air attack.

A British Ministry of Economic Warfare spokesman said the Nazi armament industry has been striving to replace equipment lost at Stalingrad and in North Africa, and "probably is not keeping up with its losses in locomotives." But he said the flow of war goods, particularly defensive weapons, has been fairly well maintained.

At variance with this conservative view, however, was an Air Ministry news service report that two thirds of the central areas of Duesseldorf, Germany's third largest inland port and a vital railway and industrial hub, had been burned and smashed by RAF raids.

Nazis Seen Reinforcing Isles

Germans Reported Sending Fresh Troops to Dodecanese, Off Turkey.

London, July 7 (A. P.).—The Germans were reported by the Algiers radio today to have sent fresh troops to the Dodecanese Islands, off Turkey, and the Berlin radio declared that Yugoslav and Greek guerrillas were being wiped out in another step to strengthen the Axis defenses of Europe.

Gen. Draja Mihailovic's forces "for the most part have been wiped out" in Yugoslavia, Berlin said, and mopping up operations have also made good progress in Greece in the last few days. "Complete quiet now reigns throughout the whole southeastern area of Europe, apart from small local disturbances," Berlin added.

The Yugoslav and Greek governments in London acknowledged heavier Axis opposition against their guerrillas, but described as fantastic the idea that the guerrillas had been wiped out.

Keep Up Invasion Myth.

The Nazis, meanwhile, intensified their efforts to convince the German people that the Allies had been balked in the plans for invasion of southern Europe. In a dispatch broadcast by Berlin and recorded here by the Associated Press, DNB, the German official news agency, said that the Allies "cannot launch a real invasion" in the Mediterranean, that southern France and Italy are so well protected that even an invasion under cover of battleships must be considered an absolutely deadly risk.

The dispatch added: "Conditions are the same in Greece and the Ægean Sea, particularly so since the Luftwaffe is exercising effective control. A large-scale operation against the west coast of Greece or the Albanian coast has lost much of its attraction for the Allied general staff after the annihilation of guerrilla bands in Croatia and northern Greece."

Estimate Allied Shipping.

Late this afternoon the Berlin radio declared that Gen. Eisenhower had concentrated 1,000,000 tons of shipping of all kinds in North African ports in preparation for a leap across the Mediterranean.

Also today Berlin reported that ships leaving Gibraltar yesterday included four battleships, two cruisers, eight destroyers and two aircraft carriers, "so that now there are virtually no warships left in the port," though forty-one transports and hospital ships still remain.

On the other hand, the Germans have still made no announcement of Sunday night's British commando raid on airdromes in Crete. One broadcast, however, hinted at it by saying that a sabotage attempt against an airfield had been frustrated by German guards.

PILOT SAVES CREW, CRASHES TO DEATH

Gallantry of Florida Flier Revealed with Posthumous Award of D.S.C.

JUL 8 - 1943

LONDON, July 7. — (AP) The gallant story of First Lieut. John J. Howell of South Miami, Fla., who held his damaged plane level until the crew bailed out and then plunged to his death still at the controls was told today by headquarters of the European theater of the United States Army.

Howell has been awarded a posthumous D.S.C. for "extraordinary heroism."

He was flying a fast medium bomber on its first mission in the European theater—a rooftop height attack May 14 on the Velzen power plant. The area bristled with anti-aircraft guns.

Just after the plane released its load squarely into the target concentration, shells and bullets hit it. Oil covered the windshield, forcing Howell to fly blind. The control column was knocked out and Howell remarked to his co-pilot, First Lieut. Howard E. Short of Seguin, Tex., "Look at that son of a gun."

Short wiped the windshield instrument panel with a flying jacket and found the plane had been flying about 30 feet above ground. Regaining altitude they crossed the coast with coastal batteries firing on them.

Plane Disabled

A survey of the ship revealed that in addition to many shell and bullet holes the bomb bay doors would not close, the landing gear would not go down, one of the gas tanks was pierced and nearly empty. Although the pilot's control column was useless the co-pilot's was intact.

When the ship was over its own field, Howell ordered the crew to jump. Short stayed with him to help crash-land the plane which was all but falling apart.

"Short," said Howell, "we can't land this thing."

"I stood by the open bomb bay door," Short said. "Howell was flying the wreck by himself now. With his controls shot to shreds he was operating the pilot's rudder controls with his feet and leaning across the cockpit to reach the co-pilot's control column. He turned and waved to me and I jumped.

Bomber Crashes

"Just as my parachute opened," Short continued, "I saw the bomber swerve and the left wing go down. It recovered momentarily and then dove into the ground with Lieut. Howell still aboard."

Short explained it was easy to jump safely from a medium bomber on a level course but this plane was too nearly out of control to hold itself level, so for the last man the chance was slim. Howell knew this when he made his decision and ordered the co-pilot to bail out, Short added.

Falkenhorst Posts Appeal On Desertions in Norway

Nazi Commander Warns of Need for 'Highest Preparedness'

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Norwegian sources in London reported today that General Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, German commander in Norway, had posted notices in military camps taking cognizance of the "shameful and disgraceful" increase in desertions among the Nazi occupation forces. These sources said their information was obtained from an underground newspaper smuggled from Norway.

The notices were said to appeal to the German troops to remain at their posts and General Falkenhorst was quoted as saying "it is necessary for us to be in the highest degree of preparedness."

British Party Demands Socialistic Program

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—The Commonwealthy party which, with three representatives in the House of Commons, is the smallest in Britain, issued a manifesto today demanding the transfer of all land, utilities, mines, industries, banks and insurance companies to common ownership.

Other demands included self-government for the colonies, immediate independence for India, and a post-war council to control shipping, international trade and civil and military aviation.

The manifesto also called for an end of Britain's present electoral truce and offered full support to the Beveridge plan of social security.

Germans Claim Sinking Of Nine Allied Vessels

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—The Berlin radio reported today that German submarines had sunk nine Allied ships totaling 53,000 tons "in recent days," but failed to say where the alleged sinkings took place.

Failure of the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, to give any details concerning the claim made comparison with Allied reports of recent losses impossible.

BRITISH PRAISE YANKS' MANNERS

London, July 7 (A. P.).—The Daily Express said in an editorial today that the British people "praise the splendid bearing and good manners of the American armed forces in our midst" because "they take into full account our proprietorial rights."

"Officers and troops alike have won our deep respect and affection," the editorial added.

BRITAIN WEIGHING PAY-AS-YOU-GO TAX

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Reporting that the average Briton last year paid about one-third of his income to support the war, Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today that he hoped a pay-as-you-go tax plan could be devised for Britain.

Sir Kingsley, replying to demands inspired by the American example for pay-as-you-go taxation, promised a statement by early autumn.

He disclosed these tax facts at the end of a debate on a finance bill:

The budget expenditure this year will be eight times that of 1933-34.

Taxes last year took 10 per cent of all private income.

Taxes now are paid by 12,500,000 Britons, of whom 10,000,000 are small taxpayers.

The war expenditure already has doubled that of 1914-18.

Britain already has borrowed a sum more than double the size of the national debt before the war began.

The nation must borrow half the money it spends this year.

Ralph Assheton, financial secretary to the Treasury, reported that Britain's public debt now totals £17,700,000,000 ($70,800,000,000), compared with £8,163,000,000 ($32,652,000,000) at the outbreak of the war, and the nation is borrowing as much money every eight weeks as it borrowed during the ten years of the Napoleonic wars.

"Despite the size of the debt, there is no reason why our finances should not remain as satisfactory in the fifth year of war and if necessary in further years of war as they have been, provided the people continue ready to make sacrifices they now are making," he said.

Sir Kingsley said the British Government thus far had advanced £195,000,000 ($780,000,000) to Allied governments exclusive of the lend-lease aid it had provided.

RAF Bombers Lay Mines to Endanger German Shipping

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—RAF bombers conducted extensive minelaying operations in enemy waters last night while speedy Mosquitos manned by Canadian crews attacked railway targets in France, the Air Ministry announced today.

One bomber was lost in these forays, the announcement said.

Two enemy fighter planes flew over the East Anglia district early last evening, the Air Ministry announced, and at one point a few persons were wounded by machine-gun fire. There was no enemy activity over Britain after dark, however.

British planes carried out patrols during the night and one fighter was listed as missing. In the early evening, a communique said, Typhoon bombers escorted by fighters attacked enemy shipping at Boulogne. One Typhoon was lost from another force which damaged two mine sweepers and an armed trawler off the Dutch coast.

Spitfires destroyed eight enemy fighters over Northern France yesterday without loss, it was reported.

Center of Duesseldorf Ruined.

London, July 7 (A. P.).—Two-thirds of the central areas of Duesseldorf containing the chief business buildings have been burned and smashed by R. A. F. raids, the Air Ministry News Service announced today.

Duesseldorf is regarded as the leading commercial city of western Germany and the administrative center of scores of steel, heavy engineering and armament firms operating in the Rhine and Ruhr areas.

Photographs taken after the great raid of June 11 showed that among the buildings destroyed was the Stalhaus, the administrative headquarters of a large part of the German steel industry. The news service said its destruction would interfere seriously with the operation of plants throughout Germany.

Duesseldorf also ranks with Essen and Duisburg in the production of armaments, and forty-two of its factories were severely damaged including five plants "of the greatest importance," the news service said.

Scots Guards Trek 2,800 Miles

LONDON, Thursday, July 8 (AP)—A great twenty-eight-day, 2,800-mile trek by a battalion of Scots Guards from Syria to the Mareth Line was disclosed belatedly today by the War Office. The guards traveled by motor transport with other units and lost only seven or eight of their hundreds of vehicles en route. They arrived in Tunisia in time to play a leading role in the successful Medenine battle on March 6, the War Office said.

$2,400,000,000 Raised In British Drive

London, July 7 (A. P.).—More than $2,400,000,000 was raised in the Government's four-month "Wings for Victory" borrowing campaign, Lord Kindersley, president of the National Savings Committee, announced today.

Chiang Urges Immediate Blows Against Japanese

CHUNGKING, July 7 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek issued a call today to the United Nations to strike at once in force against Japan because now, he declared, is the opportune moment "to reap great results" in reducing the time and cost of final victory.

In a message to the people of the Allied Nations on the anniversary of the day six years ago that China was attacked, the war leader asserted Japan now "is at her weakest, as her ready resources are approaching a point of exhaustion."

"Should we let her have further respite to complete impregnable defenses and to wage a long drawn-out war with us," he added, "the time and price the Allies will have to pay to defeat her will be many times longer and heavier than what are required today."

(In anniversary greetings sent from London, Prime Minister Churchill told the generalissimo the successes in North Africa and on the Yangtze gave "tangible evidence in the East and the West of what is to come," and said "the pattern of events is now becoming clear.")

Gen. Chiang, who told his own people in another message that the time limit for utter defeat of the Japanese invasion armies "cannot exceed two years," urged full support of the Roosevelt-Churchill agreement to "wage the war on the Japanese and European fronts with equal power."

"In the execution of this strategy," he promised, "our Allies can count upon the determination of the Chinese Army to contribute whatever is within their power and to make whatever sacrifices necessary. * *"

Gen. Chiang ruled out any "negotiated peace," insisted it should be one "seeking the emancipation of entire mankind," and declared:

"The United Nations should set up at the earliest possible moment joint machinery for the winning of the peace as well as the efficient prosecution of the war.

"To safeguard international justice and collective security and to insure the successful functioning of democratic government after the war there must be a postwar world organization with the solid backing of an international force."

The Chinese war leader assured his own people that this would be "the decisive year" of the war, one in which the foundation of ultimate victory will be laid, and a start at least made toward driving out the invaders through "an unending stream of victories."

Allied Leaders Honored

CHUNGKING, July 7 (AP).—Allied military leaders in China received needlework pictures at a rally today of the All-China Troop Comforting Association.

Recipients included General Stilwell, Major General Claire L. Chennault, commander of the American 14th Air Force; General Ho Ying-chin, Colonel T.Y. Gubarevich, chief Russian adviser to the National Military Affairs Council, and Major General Gordon E. Grimsdale, head of the British military mission to China.

Chennault, who was unable to be present at the ceremony, was represented by Lieutenant Colonel John Neal, of Nashville, Tenn.

Gold flying eagles bearing a hero inscription and the victory V were bestowed on members of the 14th Air Force and the Chinese Air Force who shot down one or more Japanese planes. First Lieutenant Charles Tucker, of La Crescenta, Calif., received the eagles on behalf of his thirty or more comrades of the 14th Air Force, who were not present.

Stilwell, in a brief speech of thanks in the Mandarin tongue, said: "We feel it to be our entire responsibility to help China obtain final victory."

CHUNGKING, July 7.—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was decorated today as chief commander, Legion of Merit, by Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, United States commanding general for China, India and Burma, representing President Roosevelt.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin, Minister of War and chief of staff of the Chinese Army, and Gen. Shang Chen, director of the National Military Council, were made commanders of the Legion of Merit, while Gen. U Ta-wei, chief of ordnance, was made an officer of the legion.

UNREST REPORTED AT U-BOAT DOCKS

Stockholm Paper Hears Nazi Guards Assigned to Wharves at Kiel.

STOCKHOLM, July 7.—(AP) A Goteborg newspaper relayed a report today from "German opposition quarters" that Nazi Elite Guards had occupied wharves at the German submarine base of Kiel for two days last week because of disturbances.

The newspaper, the Handels-Och Sjofartstidning, said leaflets were circulated at Kiel reading: "The U-Boat war is also lost. Don't go aboard these floating coffins. End the war! Down with Hitler!"

(Admiral Luetzow, German naval commentator, the BBC said, admitted in a broadcast from Berlin tonight that the Allies now have the upper hand in the U-Boat war. His commentary was reported by the BBC whose broadcast of it was recorded by CBS.

("The battle the German U-Boats have to wage has become very, very hard and the enemy at present has the upper hand," the BBC quoted Luetzow as saying.)

London, July 7—Admiral Luetzow, German naval commentator, the BBC said, admitted in a broadcast from Berlin tonight that the Allies now have the upper hand in the U-boat war.

"The battle the German U-boats have to wage has become very, very hard, and the enemy at present has the upper hand," the BBC quoted Luetzow as saying.

Possibilities Of Italian Peace Are Discussed

Ankara, July 7 (AP)—The British jab against Crete has heartened Allied and neutral observers here.

The Istanbul newspaper Aksham, a quasi-official publication, today discussed the possibilities of a separate peace by Italy and said the Turks want Italy "to get out of Albania, break off relations with the Balkans and once and for all leave the islands near Turkey's shores."

The comment appeared to refer to the Dodecanese islands, which Aksham said must be ceded to an anti-imperialist power upon the condition that they be disarmed.

The report of the blow at Crete quickened interest in Turkey, being the nearest Allied offensive action to her shores, but there was no official comment and no indication it would affect Turkey's policy of neutrality.

CHINESE REDS SPLIT

CHUNGKING, July 7 — (AP) The dissolution of the Communist International, announced recently from Moscow, has caused a split in the Chinese Communist party, a government spokesman told a press conference today.

One group of Chinese Communists, he said, are inclined to accept entirely the authority of the Chinese central government while others "still hold to the Comintern school of thought," that is, favor retention of International Communist ties.

(Since Japan attacked China in 1937 the Communists have cooperated with and accepted the leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government, following 10 years of civil war, but the Communists have retained their own party organization and some friction has persisted.)

Red Star Praises Chinese

MOSCOW, July 7 — Praising Chinese resistance on this sixth anniversary of the Chinese-Japanese War, the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said today that the will of the Chinese people was unbroken and their faith in victory unshaken.

"The Chinese people continue to fight bravely for freedom and national independence," it said.

RENDOVA DEPICTED AS MUD AND BUGS

JUL 8 - 1943

Correspondent Says Landing Forces' Pup Tents Were Swimming In Water

By J. NORMAN LODGE

(Associated Press Correspondent)

With Occupation Forces on Rendova Island, July 1 (Delayed)—Our initial landing on Rendova Island and the immediate push into the jungles were made amidst the most despicable conditions this veteran war correspondent ever has seen.

In addition to stagnated, ankle-deep mud, there were weird varieties of ants, slugs, caterpillars, flying insects, horse flies as big as butterflies, bluebottles as large as beetles, lizards of every color in the spectrum, snakes, prickly undergrowth and plenty of rain.

Water Tastes Horrible

Landing forces took along only hardtack and hash field rations, and chlorinated water which tastes worse than castor oil.

Every pup tent was virtually swimming in water. Every piece of clothing was soaked. Yet the men continued to joke and, in fun, compared these conditions to those of the camps they left in North Carolina, for instance.

Units set to work today clearing coconut trees for our heavy artillery which will lay down a barrage on the Munda airfield. Smaller guns have been sending advance greetings to that important base since a few hours after the initial landing.

Jitters First Night

Sporadic fighting throughout last night perhaps was largely the result of jitters. Every leaf looks like a Jap to the fresh troops in their first night in the jungle.

Today's count of enemy dead is sixty-one. The boys are doing some nice shooting, but they won't be satisfied until they reach the main objective—New Georgia.

The Japanese show themselves to be a brave but foolhardy foe, refusing to surrender even though they have two strikes against them and a fast one is coming up. One Nip captain brandishing a sword charged our unit equipped with an automatic weapon. Suffice it to say he lost his head.

TWO NEW YORK BOYS WIN SILVER STARS

Marines Decorated for Heroic Deeds on Guadalcanal

The following story was written by Sgt. Joseph Alli of Buffalo, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, and distributed by The Associated Press.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, June 16 (Delayed)—First Lieut. George B. Gierhart of Yonkers, N. Y., and Pfc. Wesley C. Behland of Roosevelt, L. I., both of the United States Marine Corps, have received the Silver Star Medal for conspicuous gallantry in action against the Japanese on Guadalcanal last October.

Lieutenant Gierhart, in charge of a platoon during an attack on Henderson Field, inspired his men to great achievement in holding their section of an important tactical position for the protection of the field. Lieutenant Gierhart exposed himself to heavy enemy fire to observe enemy positions and direct mortar and artillery fire. He accomplished this with such accuracy that the enemy attack was halted. The citation says:

"At all times he displayed great skill and courage, and in one instance, when his platoon had suffered considerable casualties, he assisted in the manning of a 37 mm. gun."

On the night of the display of heroism by Private First Class Behland, a Marine regiment was under heavy shelling from a Japanese battleship and several fires were started. Says the citation:

"Private First Class Behland and two other marines, with complete disregard for personal safety, extinguished two fires, and fought a large fire in an adjacent area. This eliminated firing points for the enemy.

"During the shelling a dugout was hit, killing three men and wounding two others. Private First Class Behland and his comrades went to the assistance of those wounded, helping to remove them from the area. Further assistance was given when another unit which had just bivouacked that night came under the shelling. These three marines covered the area completely, offering assistance, and removing one wounded man."

Private First Class Behland, aged 22, is the son of Mrs. Bert Everis. He is a graduate of Hempstead High School, Long Island, where he was a member of the basketball and tennis teams. He enlisted on Feb. 16, 1942.

Lieutenant Gierhart, aged 22, is the son of Harry S. Gierhart. He was commissioned a second lieutenant on Feb. 1, 1942.

Australia's Message

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 7 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin in a message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on the sixth anniversary of China's war with Japan declared today:

"With the resolute maintenance of the spirit of resistance in your country and the increasing strength of the United Nations it is my fervent hope that the night of China's long ordeal will soon pass."

New Zealanders in Hudson Plane Destroy Big Vessel

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 6 (Delayed) (AP)—Prime Minister Peter Fraser announced today that a Hudson bomber manned by a New Zealand crew, operating from Guadalcanal in the Solomons, had sunk a large Japanese submarine.

There is reason to believe that an air attack on another enemy submarine also was successful, Mr. Fraser said.

Americans Forced Sea Fight

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, July 8 (Thursday) (AP).—The Japanese naval forces defeated in the battle of Kula Gulf were compelled to fight by a numerically superior group of American warships which surprised them there, it was disclosed today.

The triumph was so one-sided that, outside of the loss of a single American light cruiser (already identified as the Helena) not another warship on the American side even sustained damage, this source reported.

A large percentage of the lost cruiser's personnel was known to have been saved and possibly some of the others reached shore.

The American warships, also light cruisers and destroyers, caught the enemy units attempting to sneak out of the gulf, a body of water only fifteen miles long and about eight miles wide, between Kolombangara and New Georgia Islands.

The battle, necessarily fought at close range, opened at 3 a. m. as the enemy units moved north through the dark, squally night. The first phase lasted five minutes. In that time five Japanese ships were intercepted and all were left sinking or burning. (General MacArthur's headquarters identified this group as destroyers).

dium bombers countered by sinking a camouflaged Japanese cargo ship of about 2,500 tons near the beach in Baeroko Harbor, on the northern end of New Georgia Island.

Situations Summarized.

The Japanese, apparently pressed to get supplies to forces defending their Munda point air field, tried to run the ship into the harbor across a narrow peninsula from Munda.

Reports from invading ground troops to Guadalcanal headquarters summarized the situation as follows:

Rendova Island—Main landing force here was opposed for little more than an hour by a small Japanese force which scattered into the hills. A battery of guns was put into position and started shelling Munda point, around which the enemy had concentrated the greater part of his New Georgia troops. Friday afternoon's bombing attack was the first setback for the invading troops on Rendova.

Viru Harbor—At this landing point, half way down the Southwestern New Georgia coast, American forces met stiffer opposition from enemy outposts. But Japanese resistance was wiped out the afternoon of July 1, following a dive-bombing attack by Navy Dauntless bombers.

Destroyer Shelled Jeps.

Wickham Landing—Infantry on the southern coast of Vangunu Island, southeast of New Georgia, met stubborn resistance. A projected dive bombing attack on the enemy force surrounded on a small peinsula area of about 1,000 by 600 yards was balked by thick weathers this afternoon. A destroyer, however, was able to shell the area.

Youthful but skilled American pilots have been able to build up a ratio of eight to one in defending Guadalcanal against enemy air attacks. It was explained that a fighter plane over its own base can fight for an hour but that a fighter pilot on an offensive mission has to consider the gasoline supply for getting home.

The number of rescues of shot-down American pilots was regarded as remarkably high and an important morale factor.

It was considered possible that even more than the 13 of 25 reported rescued in the first two days of the New Georgia campaign may be returned through the help of friendly natives.

Spirit Is Aggressive.

The aggressive spirit of the American pilots was praised at headquarters and Lt. Comdr. C. H. Ostrom of New York was cited as an example. He led his section of Grumman fighters through anti-aircraft fire from our own transports and destroyers during an enemy torpedo plane attack on the ships in Blanche channel.

"Lt. Comdr. Ostrom didn't think," the commanding admiral said, "that going through our ships' antiaircraft fire to get at the torpedo planes was unusual. As a matter of fact, he said the trouble was that the antiaircraft fire could have been stronger. Nobody's going to lick men with a spirit like that."

U. S. To Get Chilean Copper

Santiago, Chile, July 7 (AP).—The Ministry of Commerce announced an agreement today to ship Chile's entire copper production, except a small quantity for national requirements, to the United States as a contribution to the war effort.

Ramirez Says Argentine Parties Were Corrupt

Buenos Aires, July 7 (A. P.).—President Pedro Ramirez, speaking last night at the annual army-navy dinner, expressed the hope that Argentina would join with other hemisphere republics in joint action on the "complex problems which the end of the war will bring to the world."

As for the present situation within his own country, the President declared that before Argentine political parties are permitted to return to power they must clean out the corruption which he said led the armed forces to overthrow the Government of Ramon S. Castillo last month.

New Canadian Naval Station to Graduate First Class Soon

JUL 8 - 1943

By the Associated Press.

H. M. C. S. CORNWALLIS, DEEP BROOK, Nova Scotia, July 7.—Canada's small but hard-hitting navy will soon get its first seamen, gunners and stokers from a new $12,000,000 naval training base established here early this year on the shores of the Annapolis Basin.

First recruits arrived at the station late in June to begin an intensive 10-week training course at the large tract which the Canadian government purchased from the estate of the late E. P. Morse for $26,000.

Although construction of the 80 buildings which will house the various schools is not yet completed, there were at the end of June 3,444 trainees, of which 147 were officer candidates and 60 WRENS taking specialized courses, in addition to 1,400 civilian construction workers.

Work on the base is rapidly nearing completion and when the school is filled to capacity it is expected to have a complement of 10,000.

Canada started the war with only a small number of ships, but has assumed an ever-larger share of patrol and convoy work in the North Atlantic, and the Department of Naval Services was hard pressed to train the volume of recruits needed to man the expanding navy.

Deep Brook was chosen as the site for a training station not only because of its climate and geographical position near the Bay of Fundy, but because the soil lent itself to economical construction.

Capt. J. C. I. Edwards, R. C. N., a Nova Scotian and graduate of the old Royal Naval College of Canada at Halifax, is commanding officer of the base. Comdr. E. A. Mount-Haes is in charge of the training program.

Warships Bombard Defenses at Kiska

JUL 8 1943

Japanese Batteries Fail to Reply; Cruiser Helena Lost in Kula Gulf.

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) Warships of the North Pacific force poured hundreds of shells into Japanese defenses on Kiska Island last night in an operation possibly preliminary to a drive to reconquer that Aleutians position.

A Navy communique, announcing the attack this afternoon, gave no details except that enemy shore batteries failed to return the fire. It left no doubt that the bombardment was heavy and prolonged and ran into hundreds of shells.

The assault came at a time when combined land, sea and air forces of the South and Southwest Pacific commands are putting heavy pressure on enemy positions in the Solomon Islands and New Guinea area. It thus put Tokyo on notice that American offensive power is not limited to one sector of the Pacific alone, and that powerful new blows must be expected at other points.

The communique, covering the actions in the south as well as the few outburst of naval warfare in the north, disclosed that the American ship lost in the battle of Kula Gulw in the Central Solomons in the pre-dawn darkness of July 6 was the 9,700 ton light cruiser Helena, commanded by Captain Charles Cecil of Louisville, Ky.

Loss of life on the Helena was not reported and, in fact, indications were that the Navy here did not yet have that information. The communique said that "the next of kin of the casualties aboard the Helena will be notified as soon as possible."

Following the naval battle in which the Japanese were reported to have had six ships "probably sunk," and "several" damaged, American planes continued their heavy attacks on Japanese bases.

The sinking of the Helena brought to 103 the total number of American combat ships lost so far in the war in all areas of conflict. The probable destruction of six Japanese warships plus the damaging of four others—a communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters had used that specific figure instead of the Navy's "several," — put the total of enemy combatant vessels sunk, probably sunk and damaged at 315.

The Helena had been in service since September 1939 when she was commissioned at the New York Navy Yard. Equipped to carry four aircraft for scouting and gunnery control purposes, she was armed with 15 six-inch guns and eight five-inch anti-aircraft guns in addition to lighter weapons.

There were unofficial reports that she had given valiant service in Pacific fighting since some time last year when she was repaired and returned to sea duty after being damaged in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

Besides the Helena two other American vessels have been lost in the offensive in the Solomons which began a week ago today with the invasion of Rendova Island flanking the Munda air base. The first of these ships was the transport McCawley which was damaged by an aerial torpedo and later sunk by an enemy submarine. The second was the destroyer Strong which was torpedoed and sunk while engaged in the bombardment of Japanese positions on New Georgia Island on the night of July 4-5.

Great interest was aroused in naval circles here by the bombardment of Kiska despite the dearth of information about the make-up of the American task force and the strategy which called for the shelling just [illegible] his time.

There was a possibility that battleships were among the attacking vessels. Capital ships participated in the naval support given the operations on Attu Islands several weeks ago and may still be assigned to North Pacific duty.

There was also considerable speculation as to why the enemy shore batteries did not return the fire. One theory was that if battleships were employed, the Japanese withheld their reply because they were outranged. Another theory was that the enemy did not wish to reveal the position of his defense batteries by firing.

This was the first time that Kiska had been bombarded by naval vessels since last August, when an attack on the enemy-held island was coordinated with the American invasion of the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area of the Southeastern Solomons. In the intervening attacked by air but recently bad weather has reduced the number of raids possible in one day and on some days has shut out air operations entirely. On July 2 the island was raided eight times and on July 3, the last aerial foray reported, bad weather cut the raids to only one.

Fog and darkness, however, are no insuperable obstacle to bombardment by naval vessels and shelling would serve the same purpose as aerial bombings in softening up Kiska's defenses preliminary to any invasion attempt.

Large-Scale Jap Air Attacks Expected by MacArthur's Men

By LEIF ERICKSON.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

UNITED STATES AIR HEADQUARTERS, Guadalcanal, July 2 (Delayed).—The United States Air Command acknowledged tonight that the Japanese probably will bring large plane reinforcements into the Solomons war theater despite the thorough shellacking they took from American fighters during the first three days of the New Georgia offensive.

The enemy appeared now to be recovering from the initial surprise of the offensive and plenty of additional trouble was looked for as the Japanese increase their effort to pound American ground troops with bombs on Rendova and New Georgia Islands.

A fairly heavy bombing attack was made on the Rendova landing force this afternoon. Four Mitchell me-

GENERAL GIRAUD ARRIVES IN U. S.

French Leader In Washington As Committee Acts To Relieve Robert

JUL 8 - 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 7—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud came to Washington today for military talks as the French Committee of National Liberation, headed by Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, acted to relieve Admiral Georges Robert from his command in the French West Indies.

From Algiers the committee invested Henri Etienne Hoppenot, now in Washington, with extraordinary powers to negotiate with Robert for the return of Martinique and Guadeloupe to "the Unified Empire," meaning their alignment in the fight against the Axis.

It also appointed Brig. Gen. Henri Jacomy to supersede Robert as commanding officer in French Guiana and the Antilles, which include Martinique and Guadeloupe. This indicated that the admiral is expected to surrender his rule of the two islands.

Busy With Giraud

Hoppenot, who has been Giraud's diplomatic representative here, was not available tonight for comment. He was busy with his chief, whom he met at Bolling Field. Others meeting Giraud included Philippe Baudet, acting chief of the Fighting French delegation, and high ranking United States Army and Navy officers.

Whether Hoppenot would go soon to Martinique was believed to depend on Robert's readiness to step out as the Vichy French High Commissioner there. Vice-Admiral John H. Hoover, United States naval commander in the Caribbean, visited Robert at Fort de France last week to obtain his views.

The result of his visit has not been disclosed, but an official who is following the situation closely said nothing had been received to indicate that Martinique already had come under the authority of the French committee.

Envoy Requested

Admiral Robert previously had requested that the United States Government send an envoy to negotiate a change of authority in Martinique, proposing two general terms—that French sovereignty be maintained there and that no foreign troops occupy the island.

The Washington authorities are understood to have taken the attitude that Robert must deal directly wih the Algiers committee. At the same time, it is believed here that they will avoid any commitment to keep American soldiers and sailors off the islands, not wishing to tie their hands in event of an unforeseen necessity to send them there.

[The German radio said today that the "French administration of Martinique has given up resistance to the United States Government. The island was cut off from supplies and stocks were exhausted."]

To Discuss Situation

General Giraud is expected to discuss the Martinique situation particularly with President Roosevelt, Admiral William Leahy, the President's chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and other officials.

While Giraud's visit is viewed here as a tacit acknowledgement that the United States supports him above de Gaulle as the French military leader, officials have emphasized that the trip is strictly military.

JUL 8 - 1943

No American diplomatic representative was at the army airfield when the French general stepped out of an American four-engined cargo plane. He is expected, however, at least to pay a courtesy visit to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

An erect 6-footer with grey mustaches, Giraud wore a cream-colored linen uniform. In his left hand he carried gloves and a cane as he briskly approached the American and French officials, lined up at attention to welcome him, while small field pieces fired a seventeen-gun salute.

Greets Officers In French

He saluted each officer in turn, shook hands and said a few words in French—he speaks no English—then reviewed the guard of honor, a company of air troops, after its band had played the French and American national anthems. A motor car then took him, with Admiral Leahy and General Marshall, to Blair House, the Government guest house.

Later he went to the White House for tea and a reception. Upon leaving, he told reporters only that he made "a wonderful jump over the ocean" without going to Martinique. Admiral Leahy said Giraud flew to Washington from Puerto Rico.

Navy Says Deal With Standard Would Save Oil

JUL 8 - 1943

Defends Canceled Contract, Denies Elk Hills Plan Gave Company Monopoly

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—The Navy, denying its contract with the Standard Oil of California granted the company a monopoly of the Elk Hills petroleum reserve, asserted today the transaction, now rescinded, would have conserved oil for the government.

In a statement to the House Public Lands Committee the Navy said its officials believed oil conservations laws of 1920 and 1938 had authorized the contract, whose legal provisions have been declared by Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell and Comptroller General Lindsay Warren to go "beyond" provisions of Teapot Dome contracts in the Harding administration.

The department said that under the contract Standard would give up "millions of dollars of profit" that it would otherwise make from its own property there.

Contending the transaction limited production from the reserve to 27,500,000 barrels during a five-year period, the Navy estimated Standard would have drilled 62,500,000 barrels of oil from its land alone during this period—double the amount allowed under the contract—if no limitation were placed. Of this, it continued, between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 barrels would have been drained from Navy's lands during the period.

Cites Loss to Standard

"Since Standard agrees to limit the production during such period to 27,500,000 barrels and to produce after such period only enough to cover its costs, the conclusion is inescapable that Standard by entering into this contract with Navy is giving up millions of dollars of profit that it would otherwise make in the operation of its own properties," the statement said.

The Navy said the contract prevented drainage from its lands and conserved the oil in the ground, and termed "misleading" Mr. Littel's statement that the contract terms allowing Standard to withdraw 27,500,000 barrels of oil during five years amounted to advancing the company more than $12,000,000.

"If the Navy should follow the recommendation set out in the Assisstant Attorney General's memorandum that the Navy proceed to condemn this property," it continued, "the loss of interest on the cash paid for the property in condemnation proceedings would be many times greater than the loss of interest on Navy's share of the net production during the five-year period."

Asserting Standard had assumed obligations under the contract which might be "very burdensome to Standard," the statement said the effect of the contract was to reserve he field to meet an emergency."

Readiness Navy's Concern

"The Navy's first concern," it declared, "is to be ready to meet such an emergency. It cannot foresee the distant future with any accuracy. It does not want to be confronted with the necessity of building additional storage tanks, pipelines and other facilities to get its oil to the markets and converted into usable products. Readiness is Navy's prime concern. That means it must have an assured and perpetual outlet for its oil.

"Standard assumed this responsibility," it continued, "and reasonably desired a reciprocal obligation on Navy to sell, so that it would enjoy any benefits from its perpetual duty to take should the time come to produce. After standing ready to take whatever the amount, for what may be a very long period, it does not seem inequitable to demand that the oil be sold to Standard instead of some one else who has assumed no such obligations to the Navy."

The statement also denied an assertion of Mr. Littell's that water encroachment had made uneconomical development of a section of Standard's land which had been included in computations.

Undrilled Area Protected

"Actually," it maintained, "this tract is potentially one of the most prolific areas in the eastern end of the field. Th area remained undrilled because it was protected by other adjoining Standard acreage, making it unnecessary for Standard to drill offset wells."

The Navy said it was "merely trying to follow the President's suggestion made after the cash negotiations had admittedly failed" when it signed the contract.

"Navy regarded the transaction as authorized under the act of 1928," it said, as a purchase and, if that could not be sustained due to the California property law, then as a "unit operation" contract under another section of the act.

An accompanying statement from Adlai Stevenson, special assistant to the Secretary of Navy, requested the department be allowed to state its case before committee members because of doubts raised during hearings on the abrogated contract "as to the competence of the Navy's stewardship of its petroleum reserves."

J. Harder Peterson, Democrat, of Florida, chairman of the Public Lands Committee, said he would request the House Rules Committee after the recess to grant his committee subpoena powers to continue its investigation of the transaction.

MOVE TO CONTROL PRESS AND RADIO CHARGED BY TAFT

Ohio Senator Blasts FCC, Hits Government for Associated Press Suit.

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) A new Congressional definition of the authority of the Federal Communications commission over broadcasting was demanded today by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who charged that an administration "passion for government control" threatens the freedom of both press and radio.

He cited the government's anti-trust suit against the Associated Press as an illustration of what he called "reckless disregard for freedom of the press" and asserted that it has been only "the ingrained insistence of our people that has prevented any great progress towards actual suppression of the freedom of newspapers and magazines."

He called radio "the blood brother of the newspaper as an instrument of free speech" and said the broadcasters had been brought under closer control than Congress had intended.

In a speech in the Senate, the Ohio Republican said that a recent decision of the Supreme court has been interpreted as augmenting the authority of the FCC to regulate chain broadcasting "far beyond any intent of Congress which can be read into the Federal Communications act by the average layman having some knowledge of its history."

He urged that the FCC suspend the exercise of these powers until Congress can act, declaring:

Says Congress Can Act

"If Congress feels that rules to prevent monopoly in the network field should be added, they should be made by Congress and not by a subordinate agency of the government. And by no means should such regulations be allowed to open the door of government control of radio, as the act of 1934 is now interpreted by the Supreme court."

"The present administration has shown no concern for freedom of the press at home," he said. "The suit brought against the Associated Press under the Sherman act shows the attitude of the administration that the press and distribution of news shall be subjected to the same kind of rules as the manufacturer or the chain store.

"Regardless of the legalities of the case, it is clear that the policy which directed the bringing of this suit is part of the general passion for government control, and those who brought it show a reckless disregard for freedom of the press. Those who drafted the Sherman act surely had no thought that it could ever be used for such a purpose."

"There is as yet," he added, "no Federal agency in control of the press, and there is as yet no Federal bureau which licenses the press. But what is true of the newspapers is no longer true of the radio—the blood brother of the newspaper as an instrument of free speech."

Urges Limit on Control

Taft said that radio regulations should be "limited to the essential rules necessary to prevent confusion in the air, decent expression and the affording of facilities to all points of view."

"We are governed by an administration which, however much it may be interested in abstract freedom in Europe and Asia, certainly does not seem interested in individual freedom in the United States," he declared.

"If speech is to be really free," he urged, "there must be freedom of every possible means of communicating ideas and views, and principles and hopes, from one citizen to another, from one section of the country to another. It is only by free means of communication that a people can remain free.

"There is no freedom if these means of communications are owned and operated by the government. Freedom of speech does not mean that only those in control of the government shall have the right to speak. The people must have the right and the means to speak to each other. The opposition to those in power must have the same right and means of speaking as the directors of government."

NELSON DENIES CURBS ON PRESS

No Censorship Aim in Newsprint Curtailment, WPB Head Says.

JUL 8 - 1943

WASHINGTON, July 7. — (AP) Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board today denied his agency exercises any censorship of magazines and books by withholding paper allotments, declaring such charges by Rep. Maas (R., Minn.) were based on misinformation.

"Nothing resembling censorship is practiced, directly or indirectly, by the WPB," Nelson stated. "The existing system of paper conservation orders has been devised purposely to avoid any possibility of censorship.

"We are faced with a diminishing supply of paper—what is printed on that paper is not within our province.

"Publishers of books, magazines, and newspapers all have a quota equal to approximately 90 per cent of the paper they have been using in the past. Under the published orders of the WPB they can print anything they choose on that paper."

When publishers need more paper than they are alloted, they may appeal for more on hardship grounds, Nelson pointed out, but when relief is granted it is done "without any consideration of editorial content."

Maas told the House yesterday that WPB's handling of newsprint quotas threatens the freedom of the press, and that WPB was using control of production "for censorship." He said he will seek legislation restricting WPB's activities.

HELENA DAMAGED AT PEARL HARBOR

Cruiser, Lost In Kula Battle, Took Active Part In Pacific War After Repairs

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 7—The 9,700-ton cruiser Helena, which was sunk in the Battle of Kula Gulf, in the central Solomon Islands, early July 6, was one of the ships which the Japanese damaged at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

She was subsequently repaired and returned to sea service and reportedly had an active career in the Pacific, although details of her accomplishments have not been made public.

The light cruiser, named for the city of Helena, Mont., was commissioned at the New York Navy Yard September 18, 1939. She was equipped to carry four aircraft and her armament included fifteen 6-inch guns and eight 5-inch anti-aircraft guns.

Skipper World War Veteran

The skipper, Capt. Charles Purcell Cecil, of Louisville, was a veteran of naval service. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1916 and saw escort duty during the World War.

Before the present conflict started, he was serving as executive officer of the naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., but was detached from that duty in June, 1941, to take command of a destroyer division at Honolulu. In March, 1942, he was given command of a destroyer squadron.

Cecil assumed command of the Helena in November, 1942.

Roosevelt Salutes Chinese

Sends Radio Greeting on Sixth Anniversary of Resistance to Japanese.

JUL 8 - 1943

Washington, July 7 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt sent a special short-wave radio greeting to the people of China today on the sixth anniversary of their resistance to Japanese aggression.

The message, read for the President in a transmission from San Francisco to Chungking, was followed by excerpts from former addresses by Mr. Roosevelt in his own voice.

"Our friends have long known what our enemies are learning today," the message declared, "that the promises of the United States are always kept and our pledges are always redeemed.

"The statements which follow have been made by me at various times since we joined hands with you in this war. It is good to know that the hopes and promises I expressed on these former occasions are all being borne out today.

"I send you, the people of China, the heartfelt greetings of your partners, the people of the United States."

There followed reproductions of past addresses by the President, in which he said:

"We are fighting on the same side as the brave people of China, those millions who for . . . years have withstood bombs and starvation and have whipped the invaders time and again in spite of the superior Japanese equipment and arms. . . .

"Chungking has been almost wiped out of existence—yet it remains the capital of an unbeatable China. That is the conquering spirit which prevails throughout the United Nations in this war. . . .

"No matter what advances the Japanese may make, ways will be found to deliver airplanes and munitions of war to the armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. . . .

"The common needs of all humanity are joining the culture of Asia with the culture of Europe and the culture of the Americas to form, for the first time, a real world civilization."

Chiang Decorated.

Chungking, July 7 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was decorated today as Chief Commander, Legion of Merit, by Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, United States commanding general for China, India and Burma, representing President Roosevelt.

The Generalissimo issued a call to the United Nations to strike at once in force against Japan because now, he declared, is the opportune moment "to reap great results" in reducing the time and cost of final victory.

In a message to the people of the Allied nations on the anniversary of the day six years ago that China was attacked, the war leader asserted Japan now "is at her weakest as her ready resources are approaching a point of exhaustion."

"Should we let her have further respite to complete impregnable defenses and to wage a long drawn-out war with us," he added, "the time and price the Allies will have to pay to defeat her will be many times longer and heavier than what are required today."

In anniversary greetings sent from London, Prime Minister Churchill told the Generalissimo that the successes in North Africa and on the Yangtze gave "tangible evidence in the East and West of what is to come" and said "the pattern of events is now becoming clear."

EIGHTH AIR FORCE REPORTS ON RAIDS

Yank Fliers Shoot Down 1,199 Enemy Planes Since July 4, 1942

JUL 8 - 1943

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) The Army reported today this summary of the first year's operations of the 8th Air Force over Europe —68 daylight bombing missions, 102 industrial targets, Naval bases and war plants destroyed or damaged by a total of 11,423 tons of bombs, and 1,199 enemy planes shot down.

Losses were 276 American heavy bombers. However, in addition to the enemy aircraft confirmed as destroyed, gunners of the 8th Air Force probably destroyed 525 more, and damaged 501.

The losses of American planes averaged only 3.91 per cent in 7,067 sorties against Germany and German-occupied Europe, a sortie being a single flight by one plane.

Operations A Year Old

American bombing operations in the European theater began July 4 last year when American crews manned six A-20 Boston (light bombers of the Royal Air Force and accompanied six R.A.F.-manned planes on a daylight attack against Nazi objectives in the Netherlands.

Twelve months later, on Indpendence Day this year, the operations had grown until formations of several hundred heavy bombers attacked Le Mans, Nantes and La Pallice, dropping 544 tons of bombs. In this operation they shot down 46 German planes, scored 35 probables, and damaged seven, while losing eight.

The first heavy bombardment mission by the 8th Air Force as such occurred last August 17, when fighter-escorted bombers dropped 18 1-2 tons of bombs on Rouen. The early missions of the 8th Air Force were confined to occupied France, and nine of them, all with fighter escort, were flown without the loss of a single bomber.

Attack on Germany

The organization's first mission against Germany proper was executed January 27 with an attack on the docks and naval base installations at Wilhelmshaven, which were blasted with 136 1-2 tons of bombs. This mission cost the 8th Air Force three planes, but 26 enemy planes were shot down, five were scored as probables and 10 damaged.

German fighter opposition has increased markedly as operations of the 8th Air Force have increased, the department related, but Major General Ira C. Eaker, commanding general of the force, reported that the morale of the bomber crews is as high as ever.

Camp Planned For Japanese Disloyal to U.S.

Dies Subcommittee Hears Segregation Center Will Cost About $1,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Dillon Myer, director of the War Relocation Authority, disclosed today that his agency hopes to set up soon a segregation camp for "disloyal Japanese."

Testifying before a Dies subcommittee on policies of his agency, Mr. Myer said the term "disloyal Japanese" includes "Americans of Japanese ancestry and Japanese aliens who wish to return to Japan or have refused to swear allegiance to the United States government."

Mr. Myer said that he "hoped" the Army would undertake the task of moving these persons from the ten agency relocation centers and that he thought it would "cost about $1,000,000." He said location of such a segregation camp had not been determined and that although other details had been worked out he did not wish to reveal them now.

Commenting upon the suggestion of Representative J. Parnell Thomas, Republican, of New Jersey, that he would like to see the Army take over the administration of W. R. A., Mr. Myer said "the War Department has already told the Senate Military Affairs Committee it does not wish to do so." Mr. Myer previously had said that decision on such a transfer rests with the President or Congress.

Mr. Myer told the committee "We have tried to conduct a sound, honest, open administration, and I believe we do."

Mr. Myer said that he hoped that persons being released from the relocation centers now and becoming scattered throughout the country would continue to live in various sections.

"Such will be best for the country and best for the evacuees," he said. "We want no more little Tokios."

He said there are about 130,000 persons of Japanese ancestry in this country.

Mr. Myer estimated 73,000 Japanese Americans or Japanese aliens over seventeen years old have been taken into the war relocation centers, and "10 per cent of the males have refused to pledge allegiance to the government of the United States." W. R. A. is teaching the evacuees judo (a form of Japanese wrestling), Japanese penmanship and goh (Japanese checkers). Mr. Myer said "$200 to $300 monthly is being spent in teaching judo."

"How much are you spending to teach them baseball?" Representative Karl E. Mundt, Republican, of Minnesota, asked. "I have the feeling these camps could be used to wean these people away from their Japanese customs."

Representative John M. Costello, Democrat, of California, remarked: "Judo carries with it ceremonies of Japan, such as bowing to the Emperor."

"That does not necessarily follow in the camps," Myer replied.

"I can't see how you inculcate Americanism by fanning the flames of Orientalism," Representative Mundt remarked. "I object to spending money to teach such games."

Chinese Internees Jailed After Row With Japanese

Seamen Refuse to Haul Down Flag at California Camp

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7(AP).—Forty-seven Chinese internees of a Federal detention camp at Sharp Park, denied the privilege of attending a San Francisco Chinese celebration, were taken to jail in Army trucks today in the climax of a Chinese-Japanese dispute.

Irving F. Wixon, United States Director of Immigration here, said the Chinese put up a Chinese flag in front of their barracks and refused to remove it as demanded by 172 Japanese internees. The Japanese became threatening, Mr. Wixon said, and he went to the camp to settle the matter.

Mr. Wixon said the Chinese refused to take down their flag unless permitted to attend the San Francisco celebration of China's sixth war anniversary, whereupon he called on the Army and had the Chinese removed to the Alemeda County jail.

The Chinese are all deportation cases, seamen, who have deserted their ships and have refused to return to sea. The Japanese have been interned there since the camp was established in March, 1942.

Soviet Official Freed On Fur Coat Theft Charge

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Municipal Judge Twain Michelsen yesterday dismissed a burglary complaint against Capt. Nicolai Habalov, 41, member of a Soviet government purchasing commission, who had been accused of theft of a $995 fur coat here.

Capt. Habalov, who said he formerly commanded the Soviet merchant fleet in the Baltic, was arrested two weeks ago in the early morning hours. He was carrying a silver fox coat. He told the arresting officers he had found the coat on the sidewalk and was taking it to police headquarters nearby. The coat carried a tag showing it came from a fur store, the window of which had been broken.

In dismissing the complaint, Judge Michelsen said that when Capt. Habalov's position and character was considered, the element of probable cause favored him. The jurist commented there was sufficient discrepancy in the case to lead to the conclusion that the captain's story was true.

Last week Secretary of State Hull sent a special representative from Washington to seek dismissal of the case.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

London reports that Berlin broadcasts are now acknowledging that a German offensive is under way in Russia underscores sharply the previous conflicting Russian and Nazi versions on the origin of the Orel-Belgorod battle.

Up to that time, the Russians claimed the Nazis had launched their third drive to knock the Soviet out of the war while the Nazis were picturing it to German public as a defensive action.

It is not yet clear whether the reported Berlin admission of an offensive means that the Nazis have made more progress than the Moscow reports have indicated and are becoming more confident.

But in any event, the significant thing about the Nazi's opening "defensive" propaganda is that it obviously reflected German uncertainty as to success and the effect another setback might have on the home front.

Certainly there is yet to come from Berlin any echo of the buoyant confidence of impending complete and final victory in Russia which was so marked in 1941 and 1942. That might mean that German military professionals, not Herr Hitler and his propaganda crew, are in the saddle this time.

Yet it also must reflect very grave apprehension on the part of the German High Command as to how the war-weary German public might take another military defeat piled on top of the Stalingrad disaster, the Tunisian debacle and the fact that Italy and Germany itself are being ripped by Anglo-American bombing attacks day and night on an ever rising scale with no more than feeble token reprisals by Axis air power.

Smash to Don

So far as developments on the Orel-Byelgorod front are yet recorded by either side, they lend full color to Russian insistence that another Nazi attempt to smash through to the Don or beyond is in progress. They tend to bear out reports that substantially half of the more than 200 Nazi and satellite divisions on the Russian front are concentrated on the southwest approaches to Moscow and the Orel-Kursk hinge between the central and southern fronts.

The attack seems a three pronged drive. Its left flank appears based on the Orel salient, its center pressing against the Kursk sector and its right surging eastward in the Byelgorod area. Some progress in each area is Russian-admitted or German-claimed.

What that looks like on the maps is a new and wide pincer move against Voronezh on the upper Don, the stumbling block to the last Nazi drive at the indicated hinge between Russian armies of the Moscow bastion in the center and those of the southern Soviet command. The Russian stand at Voronezh and along the general line of the Voronezh-Yelets railroad to the head waters of the Oka river east of Orel deflected the 1942 drive from Moscow and sent it down the Don valley to Stalingrad.

That Nazi break-through to the upper Don was made on a relatively narrow front between Kursk and Kharkov. This time the base seems to have been widened northward to Orel for the purpose of turning the Voronezh-Yelets-Oka front while the southern jaw of the pincers pushes forward in the Byelgorod sector.

The essential fact about this battle, however, is that on this July 7 the Nazi thrust is still more than 100 miles distant from the Don at its closest point on the anniversary of the Berlin claim that Voronezh had been captured. The north and south pincer jaws are even farther away, from 125 to 150 miles.

Only 12 Weeks Left

By any reckoning, there remain not more than 12 weeks of certain good fighting weather for the Germans in that section of South Central Russia.

That limits rigidly the time on which Nazi generals can count to gain any final results in Russia.

For that reason if no other, the Orel-Byelgorod drive cannot yet be set down as a full scale Nazi offensive, nor its real significance be appraised.

JUL 8 - 1943

LONDON, JULY 7-(AP)-A MINISTRY OF ECONOMIC WARFARE SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY THAT GERMAN PRODUCTION IN THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1943 HAD BEEN CUT BY ALLIED BOMBINGS AND DIFFICULTY OF OBTAINING RAW MATERIALS AND LABOR BUT THAT THE OUTPUT OF WAR GOODS HAD BEEN FAIRLY WELL MAINTAINED.

HE SAID THE FLOW OF WAR GOODS, PARTICULARLY DEFENSIVE WEAPONS SUCH AS FIGHTER PLANES, ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS AND ANTI-TANK GUNS, HAD BEEN MAINTAINED BY DRAWING ON RESERVES, CONCENTRATING ON A FEW BASIC TYPES OF WEAPONS AND SACRIFICING CONSUMER GOODS.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE SPOKESMAN DECLINED TO ESTIMATE THE PERCENTAGE OF THE OVER-ALL PRODUCTION DECLINE UNTIL FULL REPORTS ON THE DAMAGE TO THE RUHR HAVE BEEN RECEIVED. THESE INTELLIGENCE REPORTS COME BY DEVIOUS ROUTES AND FREQUENTLY ARE TWO MONTHS LATE, IT WAS STATED.

SUMMING UP GERMAN INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY FOR THE FIRST HALF OF 1943, THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE GERMANS HAD SUCCEEDED IN "HARDENING THE CURST" OF THEIR DEFENSIVE STRENGTH, BUT ONLY AT THE EXPENSE OF THEIR INTERIOR RESOURCES.

THE NAZI ARMAMENT INDUSTRY HAS BEEN UNDER A HEAVY STRAIN IN TRYING TO REPLACE EQUIPMENT LOST AT STALINGRAD AND IN NORTH AFRICA, HE ADDED, AND "PROBABLY IS NOT KEEPING UP WITH ITS LOSSES IN LOCOMOTIVES."

SOME PARTS OF THE RUHR ARE BEGINNING TO SUFFER FROM A WATER SHORTAGE AS A RESULT OF THE RAF'S BREACHING OF THE MOEHNE DAM, ACCORDING TO REPORTS REACHING THE MINISTRY OF ECONOMIC WARFARE.

THE MINISTRY ON MAY 21 HAD PREDICTED THAT A WATER SHORTAGE WOULD BE ONE OF THE MOST SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES OF THE LOSS OF MILLIONS OF GALLONS FROM THE RESERVOIR, AND SAID THIS WAS BORNE OUT BY AN APPEAL OF THE SOEST WATERWORKS TO SAVE WATER.

THE NOTICE SAID "THE WATER SUPPLY OF OUR DISTRICT CAN NOT BE CARRIED ON ENTIRELY AS IT WAS BEFORE THE MOEHNE CATASTROPHE," AND WARNED THAT RESTRICTIONS WOULD BE IMPOSED IF THE APPEAL FOR "UTMOST ECONOMY IN CONSUMPTION OF WATER" WERE DISREGARDED.

FOURTH NIGHT LEAD RUSSIAN

LONDON, THURSDAY, JULY 8-(AP)-THE GERMAN ARMY IN THREE DAYS HAS SUFFERED THE MOST STAGGERING LOSSES IN ITS HISTORY -- 30,000 DEAD, 1,539 TANKS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED, AND 649 AIRPLANES SHOT DOWN--AND HAS FAILED TO ACHIEVE A MAJOR BREAK-THROUGH IN ITS GIGANTIC GAMBLE IN RUSSIA, IT WAS ANNOUNCED EARLY TODAY IN MOSCOW.

JUL 8 - 1943

JUL 8 - 1943

THE AXIS HURLED 30 DIVISIONS, OR APPROXIMATELY 450,000 MEN, AGAINST THE RUSSIANS ON THE OREL-KURSK-BELGOROD SECTOR, BUT "DID NOT CATCH OUR TROOPS UNAWARES," SAID A SPECIAL SOVIET ANNOUNCEMENT BROADCAST BY MOSCOW AND RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR.

"ONLY IN A FEW SECTIONS OF BELGOROD HAS THE ENEMY, AT THE COST OF ENORMOUS LOSSES, SUCCEEDED IN DRIVING INSIGNFICANT WEDGES INTO OUR DEFENSES."

JUL 8 - 1943

THE REGULAR MIDNIGHT BULLETIN HAD ACKNOWLEDGED THE GERMAN CAPTURE OF AN ADDITIONAL "FEW VILLAGES" WEDNESDAY IN THE BELGOROD SECTOR AT THE END OF THE FLAMING 200-MILE FRONT WHERE TWO VILLAGES ALREADY HAD BEEN TAKEN BY THE ENEMY DURING TUESDAY'S FIGHTING.

THE LATER SOVIET ANNOUNCEMENT MADE NO ATTEMPT TO MINIMIZE THE POWER OF THE GERMAN THREAT, BUT SAID FLATLY THAT "IN THE FIRST THREE DAYS THE GERMANS, DESPITE THE SIZE OF THEIR OFFENSIVE HAD MET WITH NO SUCCESS."

"HITLER HEADQUARTERS' LIARS" ALSO WERE TAUNTED IN THIS CONFIDENT MOSCOW BROADCAST FOR THEIR ORIGINAL ASSERTION THAT THE RED ARMY, AND NOT THE GERMANS, HAD LAUNCHED AN OFFENSIVE.

BERLIN BROADCASTS HEARD HERE LAST NIGHT MADE IT CLEAR THAT THE GERMANS NOW WERE ADMITTING THEIR TROOPS WERE ENGAGED IN ANOTHER MAJOR OFFENSIVE.

"HITLER COULD NOT AFFORD TO WAIT UNTIL SUMMER WAS OVER WITHOUT ANY ACTION ON THE PART OF THE GERMAN ARMY," SAID THE MOSCOW ANNOUNCEMENT.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE GERMAN AIM IN STARTING THE HUGE DRIVE LAST MONDAY WAS THE QUICK ENCIRCLEMENT AND ANNIHILATION OF RUSSIAN FORCES HOLDING THE KURSK SALIENT ABOVE BELGOROD, THE STATEMENT ADDED, BUT IT SAID THAT PLAN HAS BEEN FRUSTRATED BY THE RED ARMY.

JUL 8 - 1943

"IT IS CLEAR THAT THE GERMANS HOPED TO CRUSH THE SOVIET DEFENSES AND ACHIEVE BIG OPERATIONAL SUCCESSES IN THE FIRST DAYS OF THE OFFENSIVE," SAID THE ANNOUNCER IN COMMENTING ON GERMANY'S SILENCE AT THE OUTSET OF THE DRIVE.

TWO SPECIAL BOMBER FORCES AND A SPECIAL FIGHTER FORCE WERE TRANSFERRED FROM WESTERN EUROPE TO THE EASTERN FRONT BETWEEN JUNE 9 AND 29 TO AID IN THE PUSH, IT WAS SAID. AXIS PLANE STRENGTH ELSEWHERE ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT ALSO WAS STRIPPED TO MAKE POSSIBLE THE GREAT CONCENTRATION BETWEEN BELGOROD AND OREL, THE MOSCOW RADIO SAID.

FIFTEEN TANK DIVISIONS, ONE MOTORIZED DIVISION, AND FOURTEEN INFANTRY DIVISIONS ARE BEING USED IN THE OFFENSIVE, IT ADDED.

THE GERMAN ADVANCE WAS MADE IN GREAT BATTLE FURY DURING WHICH LINES AND TRENCHES AND EVEN ENTIRE VILLAGES CHANGED HANDS TIME AND AGAIN. THE RUSSIANS SAID THEIR TROOPS WERE COUNTERATTACKING LATE LAST NIGHT AND "ARE NOW FIGHTING TO RESTORE THE POSITION."

THE RUSSIANS SAID THAT ELSEWHERE ALONG THE FIERY FRONT THE GERMANS WERE STOPPED COLD.

THE LOSS OF THE "FEW VILLAGES" WAS ACKNOWLEDGED IN THE SOVIET MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE RECORDED HERE BY THE SOVIET MONITOR. EARLIER, A SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE HAD TOLD OF THE GERMANS' RUSHING UP VAST RESERVES AND LISTED HUGE NEW NAZI TANK AND PLANE LOSSES WHICH STAGGERING THE IMAGINATION.

JUL 8 - 1943

DURING WEDNESDAY ALONE, THE RUSSIANS SAID, THE GERMANS LOST 520 TANKS AND 229 PLANES, MAKING A THREE-DAY TOTAL OF 1,681 TANKS AND 649 PLANES. THE NUMBER OF GERMANS KILLED, WHICH THE RUSSIANS ARE NOT

JUL 8 - 1943

30.24——5783

ATTEMPTING TO TOTAL, IS MORE THAN 13,000 LISTED IN SCATTERED SECTORS.

WEDNESDAY'S NAZI TANK TOLL INCLUDED 40 OF THE CRACK 60-TON "TIGER" TANKS, THE GERMANS' LATEST LAND BATTLESHIPS.

JUL 8 - 1943

THIS WAS GERMANY'S SUPREME EFFORT TO CRUSH THE RED ARMY--HITLER'S THIRD AND PERHAPS FINAL FLING BEFORE AN ALLIED INVASION HITS HIM FROM THE WEST. DISPATCHES FROM BOTH BERLIN AND MOSCOW MADE IT CLEAR THAT THE GERMANS WERE MAKING A MAJOR ATTEMPT, DRAWING UPON THEIR AIR RESERVES FROM THE REMAINDER OF EUROPE.

UNTIL TODAY THE GERMANS HAD MAINTAINED THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE THE ONES LAUNCHING THE OFFENSIVE, BUT LATE LAST NIGHT BERLIN RADIO MILITARY COMMENTATORS DECLARED FLATLY THAT THE GERMANS, "ORIGINALLY ON THE DEFENSIVE," NOW WERE WAGING AN ALL-OUT ATTACK.

"FOR THE THIRD TIME AT THE EASTERN FRONT," SAID THE TRANSOCEAN MILITARY COMMENTATOR LIEUT.KURT JESERICH, "THE GERMANS HAVE LAUNCHED AN OFFENSIVE OUT OF ORIGINALLY DEFENSIVE POSITIONS."

"THE BATTLE OF KURSK IS ON," SAID THIS COMMENTATOR AT ANOTHER POINT, PERHAPS INDICATING THE NAZIS' FIRST OBJECTIVES FOR A POSSIBLE WHEELING MOVEMENT TOWARD MOSCOW ITSELF.

THE RUSSIANS ADMITTED THAT GERMAN TROOPS HAD "MADE SOME LITTLE PROGRESS" TODAY IN THE BELGOROD SECTOR, WHERE PREVIOUSLY THE SOVIETS SAID THAT AXIS TROOPS HAD CAPTURED TWO VILLAGES. BUT ALONG THE REMAINDER OF THE FRONT, PARTICULARLY IN THE KURSK AND OREL SECTORS TO THE NORTH, THE RUSSIANS SAID "ALL ENEMY ATTACKS FAILED."

THE GERMANS, HOWEVER, ASSERTED THAT THEIR TROOPS HAD MADE "DEEP

JUL 8 - 1943

PENETRATIONS" IN THE OREL SECTOR AS WELL AS AT BELGOROD DESPITE THE RESISTANCE OF "400,000 CRACK SOVIET TROOPS SUPPORTED BY VERY STRONG TANK AND ARTILLERY FORCES."

JUL 8 - 1943

BOTH BERLIN AND MOSCOW SAID THE GERMANS WERE RUSHING RESERVES AND MATERIEL TO THE FRONT LINE, INCLUDING AIRCRAFT. THE SPECIAL RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE, RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR, SAID THE GERMANS WERE SUPPORTED BY "LARGE NUMBERS OF AIRCRAFT SENT IN FROM OTHER FRONTS."

A GERMAN BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SUPPORTED THIS STATEMENT, SAYING THAT A "VERY LARGE AIRFORCE" HAD BEEN CONCENTRATED AGAINST THE RUSSIANS AND THAT "AIR FORCE BATTLES NOW GOING ON OVER THE KURSK REGION ARE SURPASSING IN EXTENT AND VIOLENCE EVERYTHING HITHERTO EXPERIENCED DURING THE WHOLE EASTERN CAMPAIGN."

"THE GERMANS," SAID THE TRANSOCEAN REPORT, "ARE THROWING MORE AIRCRAFT INTO ACTION THAN THE ANGLO-SAXONS EVER DID IN THE FIGHT FOR TUNISIA."

GERMANY APPEARED TO BE MAKING A DANGEROUS GAMBLE WITH HER WAR EQUIPMENT. THE SPECIAL RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT IN YESTERDAY'S FIGHTING ALONE THE AXIS HAD LOST 520 TANKS AND 229 PLANES. ON THE BASIS OF PREVIOUS SOVIET ANNOUNCEMENTS THIS PUT THE TOTAL AT 649 PLANES AND 1,681 TANKS--A PROHIBITIVE TOLL FOR A NATION FEARFUL OF IMPENDING ATTACKS IN THE WEST.

"NEVER BEFORE WERE GERMAN SOLDIERS BETTER TRAINED OR BETTER EQUIPPED WITH THE LATEST ARMS THAN THOSE TROOPS NOW FIGHTING THE BATTLE OF KURSK," SAID THE BERLIN BROADCAST WHICH FINALLY ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE GERMANS WERE GOING OVER TO THE OFFENSIVE.

THIS CONFIDENT GERMAN COMMITMENT ON THE STRENGTH OF ITS FORCES WAS

JUL 8 - 1943

THREADED WITH NOTES OF CAUTION, HOWEVER.

"THE SOVIETS, ON THEIR PART, ARE ALSO SENDING INTO ACTION TANKS OF A NEW TYPE," THE NAZI WAR REPORTER SAID. "THE BATTLE OF KURSK THEREFORE MEANS THE FIRST CLASH OF NEW GERMAN AND NEW SOVIET WEAPONS. THE EFFICIENCY OF THESE NEW WEAPONS WILL SHOW ITSELF IN DUE COURSE."

MANY AMERICAN TANKS AND PLANES WERE BEING USED BY THE RUSSIANS TO COMBAT THIS NEW ONSLAUGHT, BERLIN SAID.

JUL 8 - 1943

AN EXAMPLE OF THE FEROCITY WAS GIVEN IN A MOSCOW BROADCAST WHICH SAID THAT IN A SINGLE ATTACK NEAR BELGOROD THE GERMANS HURLED MORE THAN 100 TANKS AGAINST THE RED ARMY. SEVENTY-FOUR OF THESE WERE KNOCKED OUT, SAID THE BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR.

"THE RED ARMY HAS BEFORE IT THE LARGEST AND MOST POWERFULLY ARMED ENEMY ANY COUNTRY EVER HAS FACED," THE MOSCOW ANNOUNCER DECLARED. IN VIEW OF THE ENEMY'S PRODIGAL OUTPOURING OF MEN AND MACHINES, HE ADDED THAT "THERE SHOULD BE NO UNDERESTIMATION OF THE WEIGHT AND DESPERATE DETERMINATION OF THE ATTACK."

THE ANNOUNCER INDIRECTLY SUGGESTED THE NEED OF A "SECOND FRONT" IN EUROPE, SAYING THAT HITLER "IS THROWING EVERYTHING INTO THE RUSSIAN FRONT, LEAVING ONLY SKELETON ARMIES TO DEFEND WESTERN EUROPE."

WHEN THE GERMAN ATTACK BEGAN EARLY MONDAY MORNING, THE RED ARMY LINE WAS BELIEVED STANDING 40 MILES WEST OF KURSK, CAPITAL OF THE RICH BLACK FARMING REGION OF THE SAME NAME. THERE WAS NO HINT IN EITHER BERLIN OR MOSCOW REPORTS OF THE PRESENT DISPOSITION OF THE OPPOSING FORCES.

THE MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE ELABORATED ON THE CRUCIAL BELGOROD FIGHTING THIS WAY:

JUL 8 - 1943

"IN THE BELGOROD DIRECTION THE GERMANS, AFTER HOURS OF ARTILLERY PREPARATION IN THE MORNING, RENEWED THEIR OFFENSIVE. THE FIGHTING WAS EXTREMELY INTENSE INSCHARACTER AND SOME POPULATED PLACES AND ADVANTAGEOUS LINES AND TRENCHES CHANGED HANDS SEVERAL TIMES.

"DURING THE DAY THE GERMANS CONSTANTLY BROUGHT UP REINFORCEMENTS TO THEIR MAULED UNITS AND HURLED THEM INTO THE ATTACK. IN ONE SECTOR THE ENEMY IN THE COURSE OF THE DAY ADVANCED SOMEWHAT AND OCCUPIED A FEW VILLAGES. OUR TROOPS COUNTERATTACKED AND ARE NOW FIGHTING TO RESTORE THE POSITION."

NORTHWARD ALONG THE LINE MARKING THE RUSSIAN BULGE IN THE GERMAN FRONT THROUGH KURSK TO OREL THE RUSSIANS REPORTED THAT FORMATIONS OF GERMAN TANKS CONSTANTLY STORMED RED ARMY FORTIFICATIONS IN AN ENDEAVOR TO BREAK THE FRONT FOLLOWED BY "LARGE FORCES OF MECHANIZED INFANTRY."

"OUR TROOPS BEAT OFF ALL ENEMY ATTACKS AND HELD FIRMLY TO THEIR POSITIONS," SAID THE SOVIET REPORT.

GROUPS OF GERMAN TANKS IN SOME INSTANCES CRASHED THROUGH RED ARMY FORTIFICATIONS ON THE OREL-KURSK FRONT AND PLUNGED INTO THE DEPTHS OF THE DEFENSES, BUT BY THE END OF THE DAY ALL THE TANKS WHICH HAD BROKEN THROUGH, INCLUDING 40 OF THE TIGER MACHINES, HAD BEEN DESTROYED.

IT WAS ALONG THE KURSK FRONT THAT A GERMAN MILITARY COMMENTATOR SAID THE NAZIS HAD PENETRATED THE RUSSIAN LINES AT SEVERAL POINTS.

BEHIND THE OREL-KURSK FRONT SOVIET BOMBERS RAIDED TROOP CONCENTRATIONS, TANKS AND TRUCK CONVOYS IN THE ENEMY REAR.

ON OTHER FRONTS THERE WAS INCREASINGLY SHARP ACTION. SEVERAL

JUL 8 - 1943

GERMAN ATTACKS ON THE KALININ FRONT WERE REPULSED DURING THE DAY AND 300 GERMANS WERE SLAIN. TWO TANKS AND OTHER WAR MATERIAL WERE DESTROYED.

JUL 8 - 1943

IN ANOTHER SECTOR, SOVIET RECONNAISSANCE PATROLS SURPRISED A KEY ENEMY POSITION AND WIPED OUT THE GERMAN GARRISON, LEAVING 60 NAZI DEAD ON THE BATTLEFIELD. PRISONERS AND WAR MATERIAL WERE CAPTURED.

WEST OF ROSTOV THERE WAS AN EXCHANGE OF ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE AND THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY SILENCED SEVERAL GERMAN ARTILLERY AND MORTAR BATTERIES AND BLEW UP AN AMMUNITION DUMP.

THE COMMUNIQUE CREDITED ONE GROUP OF SOVIET SNIPERS WITH KILLING 472 GERMANS IN SIX WEEKS.

THE SOVIET INFORMATION BUREAU IN ITS COMMUNIQUES DOES NOT ORDINARILY ADD GERMAN TANK AND PLANE LOSSES TO GIVE TOTALS FOR ANY PARTICULAR DRIVE OR OFFENSIVE. EACH COMMUNIQUE SIMPLY REPORTS FIGURES FOR THE PERIOD SINCE ISSUANCE OF THE LAST PREVIOUS COMMUNIQUE.

THE THREE-DAY TOTAL OF 1,681 TANKS INCLUDES 586 MENTIONED IN THE MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE ISSUED EARLY TUESDAY, 152 FROM SCATTERED FRONTS RECORDED IN THE TUESDAY NOON COMMUNIQUE, 423 IN THE MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE ISSUED EARLY WEDNESDAY AND 520 IN THE COMMUNIQUE ISSUED EARLY TODAY.

THE NOON COMMUNIQUE WAS NOT ISSUED WEDNESDAY AND HENCEFORTH IS TO BE DISCONTINUED.

JUL 8 - 1943

RUSSIAN DISPATCHES SAID WAVE AFTER WAVE OF THE TOUGHEST GERMAN TANKS AND THE STOUTEST GERMAN TROOPS WERE BUTTING AGAINST AN UNYIELDING WALL OF CANNON AND RESOLUTE MEN AND THAT THE BATTLE WAS GROWING MORE GRIM AND VIOLENT.

AT THE NEAREST POINT, THE BATTLE IS 200 MILES FROM MOSCOW AND IF

30.24—5785

THE GERMANS COULD EXPLOIT THEIR INITIAL SUCCESS, THEY MIGHT ATTEMPT TO OUTFLANK THE CAPITAL BY CURLING AROUND ITS REAR.

THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE INSISTED THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD FIRST ATTACKED, BEEN FRUSTRATED AND THAT THE NAZIS NOW WERE ADVANCING IN A SUCCESSFUL COUNTERATTACK.

JUL 8 - 1943

"IN THE BELGOROD SECTOR AND SOUTH OF OREL YESTERDAY, HEAVY SOVIET ATTACKS, MADE WITH EXCEEDINGLY STRONG FORCES HELD IN READINESS FOR WEEKS, WERE FRUSTRATED," THE HIGH COMMAND SAID OVER THE BERLIN RADIO. "OUR TROOPS, EFFECTIVELY ASSISTED BY THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, STARTED TO COUNTER-ATTACK. THEY SUCCEEDED IN PENETRATING DEEP INTO ENEMY POSITIONS, INFLICTING THE SEVEREST LOSSES ON THE ENEMY."

THE GERMANS SAID THEY KNOCKED OUT 300 TANKS, MOST OF THEM AMERICAN-MADE AND DESTROYED 637 PLANES IN TWO DAYS AGAINST 41 NAZI CRAFT LOST. THIS CONTRASTED SHARPLY WITH THE OFFICIAL RUSSIAN VERSION WHICH CLAIMED DESTRUCTION OF 1,271 TANKS, 314 PLANES AND 13,000 MEN BY LAST MIDNIGHT. FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE WAR, THE RUSSIANS ISSUED NO COMMUNIQUE AT NOON.

THE BERLIN RADIO BROADCAST AN ANALYSIS OF THE BATTLE BY THE DNB AGENCY'S MILITARY CORRESPONDENT, WHO FOLLOWED THE LINE OF THE COMMUNIQUE. HE ADDED THAT THE GERMANS "FIRMLY HELD THE INITIATIVE;" THAT THE BATTLE WAS "GIGANTIC AND OVER A WIDE AREA."

THIS ANALYST SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD MASSED HUGE FORCES IN THE DISPUTED REGION AND WERE PLANNING A DRIVE TO THE DNIEPER RIVER TO LIBERATE THE UKRAINE. THE RUSSIAN COMMAND WAS SAID TO HAVE MISTAKEN A "POWERFUL GERMAN RECONNAISSANCE ACTION EARLY MONDAY FOR A GERMAN THRUST AGAINST THE MASSES OF RUSSIAN TROOPS."

HE FOLLOWED THE GERMAN PROPAGANDA LINE IN DENYING THAT THE BATTLE WAS AN OFFENSIVE, AND SAID RUSSIAN CRIES THAT IT WAS A GERMAN OFFENSIVE WERE INTENDED TO PROD THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN INTO

JUL 8 - 1943

ESTABLISHING A SECOND FRONT.

RUSSIAN DISPATCHES SAID THAT THE FIGHTING WAS MOST VIOLENT; ENGAGEMENTS FREQUENTLY WERE HAND TO HAND; THAT MANY A GERMAN DIED IMPALED ON RUSSIAN BAYONETS. THE FLAMING BATTLE FIELD WAS DECLARED ENVELOPED IN AN EAR-SPLITTING DIN OF TANK ENGINES, PLANE MOTORS, BURST SHELLS, AND STACCATO RATTLES OF MACHINE GUNS. GREAT CLOUDS OF SMOKE HUNG OVER THE SCENE.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE FIGHTING WAS AS INTENSE AT NIGHT AS IN THE DAY, FOR THIS IS THE TIME OF THE WHITE SUMMER NIGHTS WHEN BROAD DAYLIGHT COMES BY 3 A.M. THE ARMY MASSES FOUGHT IN IDEAL WEATHER AND IN A SETTING OF LEVEL COUNTRY, PERFECT FOR TANK WARFARE.

DESPITE THE USE OF HOARDED RESERVES, THE GERMAN AIR FORCE WAS SAID TO HAVE FAILED TO ACHIEVE SUPERIORITY AND WAS SUFFERING IMMENSE LOSSES. THE RUSSIANS SAID LARGE FORCES HAD BEEN SHIFTED FROM WESTERN EUROPE. RUSSIAN STORMOVIK PLANES WERE DECLARED EFFECTIVE AGAINST GERMAN TANK CONCENTRATIONS, BREAKING UP MANY BEFORE THEY REACHED THE FRONT. AT PLACES, HOWEVER, THE GERMANS CHARGED BEHIND AS MANY AS 300 OR 400 TANKS.

THE REPORTS FROM THE BATTLE SCENE EMPHASIZED THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE WELL PREPARED FOR THE THRUST AND THAT THEIR WELL ORGANIZED LINES HAD WEAKENED THE ENEMY BEFORE HE REACHED THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES. RUSSIAN CANNON WERE SAID TO BE TAKING AN ENORMOUS TOLL.

MOSCOW ADVICES PIECED TOGETHER A MORE COMPLETE STORY OF THE START OF THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE, WHICH PICTURED IT AS SIMILAR TO WORLD WAR I STRATEGY.

JUL 8 - 1943

REVERTING FROM SOLE RELIANCE ON THE SWIFT PUNCHING TANK-PLANE TEAM, THE RUSSIANS SAID THE GERMAN ATTACK WAS OPENED BY A DRUMFIRE ARTILLERY BARRAGE. ONLY AFTER LENGTHY CANNON PREPARATION WAS THEIR AIR FORCE CALLED IN. AND AFTER THE PLANES HAD WORKED, THE TANKS CAME AND THEN THE INFANTRY.

THE GERMAN AIR FORCE DISPLAYED CHANGED TACTICS, TOO. THEY ENGAGED THE RUSSIAN SQUADRONS HOTLY OVER THE BATTLEFIELD, BUT DID NOT ATTEMPT TO RAID CONCENTRATIONS AT THE SOVIET REAR OR ATTEMPT TO BLOT OUT RUSSIAN AIRDROMES, MOSCOW SAID. FOREIGN OBSERVERS SAID THIS PRUDENCE HAD BEEN DICTATED BY THE WANING STRENGTH OF THE LUFTWAFFE. #

LONDON--ELIMINATE SOVIET MIDDAY COMMUNIQUE. REBROADCAST MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE.

JUL 8- 1943

THE AP

LONDON NOW ADVISES THAT IT APPEARS THAT THE SOVIET INFORMATION BUREAU IN MOSCOW HAS OMITTED ITS USUAL MIDDAY COMMUNIQUE AND THAT A RESUME OF THE MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE WAS BROADCAST INSTEAD. IT IS SUGGESTED THAT THE LONDON STORY QUOTING THE SOVIET MINOTOR ON OVER-NIGHT DEVELOPMENTS ON THE FRONT (A42) BE WITHHELD FROM PUBLICATION PENDING A FURTHER CHECK.

(ADVANCE) LEEDS, ENGLAND, JULY 7-(AP)-H.V.EVATT, AUSTRALIAN ATTORNEY-GENERAL AND MINISTER FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS, SAID TODAY A SEPARATE ATTACK ON EVERY JAPANESE-HELD ISLAND IN THE PACIFIC WOULD BE "PREPOSTEROUS" AND UNNECESSARY.

EVATT, WHO ARRIVED IN BRITAIN THREE WEEKS AGO, DECLARED, HOWEVER, IT IS ESSENTIAL TO ATTACK AND REOCCUPY "SOME ISLANDS OF CRUCIAL IMPORTANCE" AND THEN APPLY PRESSURE ON JAPAN FROM ALL DIRECTIONS, INCLUDING CHINA AND THE PACIFIC.

SPEAKING AT A CEREMONY IN WHICH HE RECEIVED THE FREEDOM OF LEEDS, THE AUSTRALIAN OFFICIAL REFERRED TO THE SUCCESSFUL "ISLAND HOPPING" IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND SAID "IT OBVIOUSLY IS DESIRABLE IN THE CASE OF SOME ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC."

"IN THE PACIFIC AS WELL AS IN AFRICA AND EUROPE PROGRESS IS UNMISTAKABLE--ALL THE WORLD CAN SEE IT," EVATT DECLARED. "THROUGH IT ALL THE COOPERATION OF YOUR PRIME MINISTER AND THE PRESIDENT OF

JUL 8 - 1943 JUL 8 - 1943

THE UNITED STATES HAS BEEN A SOLID FOUNDATION FOR FUTURE VICTORY."

DISCUSSING THE POSTWAR YEARS, HE SAID:

"OUR FUTURE IS INTERWOVEN WITH YOURS. OUR PROSPERITY IS DEPENDENT UPON YOURS. IT IS THE SAME WITH THE UNITED STATES. THE TRUTH IS WE ARE MEMBERS OF ONE ANOTHER--IN PEACE AS WELL AS IN WAR.

"ONLY ON ONE CONDITION CAN WE ADVANCE TO ECONOMIC SECURITY WHILE RETAINING THE MAXIMUM POSSIBLE INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY.

"THE CONDITION IS THAT ALL BRITISHERS IN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AND EMPIRE MUST STICK TOGETHER WHILE MAINTAINING THE CLOSEST COOPERATION WITH THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES WHO HAVE HELPED US SO MUCH IN THE WAR."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA--THIRD ADD MEDITERRANEAN (END ADVANCE FOR USE AT 6:30 A.M., EASTERN WAR TIME, TODAY, JULY 7) (TOP ON AYE) X X SATURDAY NIGHT.)

IT LATER WAS DISCLOSED THAT TARGETS OF AMERICAN FIGHTER-BOMBERS RANGING OVER SICILY INCLUDED RAILWAY STATIONS AND ROAD TRANSPORT AT MARSALA, LICATA AND PORTO EMPEDOCLE.

ONE FORMATION LED BY MAJOR W.B.WHISONANT OF VINELAND,N.J., SCORED HITS ON MILITARY OBJECTIVES ALONG THE PORTO EMPEDOCLE JETTY AND BLEW UP AN AMMUNITION SHIP AND BARGE.

OTHER PILOTS IN THE FORMATION REPORTING GOOD RESULTS WERE CAPT.H.C.HENRI OF WALSDALE,PA., AND CAPT.JIMMY A.ISBELL,JR., OF HASKELL,TEX.

TWO WAVES OF AMERICAN BOSTON BOMBERS AUGMENTED THE RAF BALTIMORE RAID ON MILO AIRDROME.

BY RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 7-(AP)-THE CRIPPLED BOMBER NOSED OVER AND BEGAN FALLING STRAIGHT DOWN IN A SCREAMING DIVE FOR A THOUSAND FEET OR MORE AS THE CO-PILOT, AN AUSTRALIAN, FOUGHT TO BRING HER OUT OF IT.

JUL 8 - 1943

SOMEHOW HE DID.

TURNING TOWARD THE AMERICAN PILOT'S VOICE--HE COULD BARELY MAKE OUT THE WORDS AGAINST THE SPUTTERING ROAR OF THE ENGINES--HE HARD THE PILOT SAY, "WHEN WE GET HOME I'M GOING TO GET YOU A BOOK ON HOW TO FLY."

"IT WAS LIKE THAT ALL THE WAY HOME," SAID LIEUT. NOEL COFFEY, OF SIDNEY, AUSTRALIA. "HE KIDDED ME ABOUT THE TROUBLE I WAS HAVING."

THERE WAS PLENTY OF TROUBLE ABOARD THE MITCHELL BOMBER.

OVER SICILY MESSERSCHMITTS AND MACCHIS HAD JUMPED ON THE SHIP AND SHOT AWAY BOTH ELEVATORS, SHREDDED THE TAIL ASSEMBLY, AND MADE SIEVES OF THE WING FLAPS. THE PILOT WAS WOUNDED.

INSIDE THE BOMBER, MEMBERS OF THE CREW WERE SWEATING, BUT THEY STUCK TO THEIR GUNS EVEN WHEN THE SHIP WAS DROPPING LIKE A DEAD DUCK. THEY KEPT THE TRIGGERS GROUND DOWN HARD, WITH THE GUNS POURING OUT BULLETS.

TWO HAD THE FIERCE SATISFACTION AND THE THRILL OF BRINGING DOWN TWO MESSERSCHMITTS WITH THEM. THEY WERE STAFF SERGT. EDGAR MITCHELL OF NEWPORT NEWS,VA., THE TAIL GUNNER, AND ELVIN LUDWIG OF JOHNSTOWN, PA., THE TURRET GUNNER, BUT THE DIFFERENCE WAS THAT THE GERMANS KEPT ON DROPPING AFTER COFFEY HAD STRAIGHTENED OUT THE B-25.

P-38S THEN DISPERSED THE REMAINDER OF THE ENEMY FIGHTER PLANES

ATTACKING THEM, BUT THERE WAS STILL THE PROBLEM OF GETTING BACK ACROSS THE SEA AND SETTING THE SHIP DOWN SAFELY, WITH VIRTUALLY NO CONTROLS.

THE PLANE YAWED AND SLEWED AROUND IN THE AIR, LOST ALTITUDE AND REGAINED IT, AND SPUTTERED AND TREMBLED OVER MILE AFTER MILE. COFFEY SAID HE COULDN'T SEE HOW ANY SHIP COULD TAKE SUCH PUNISHMENT AND STILL STAY ALOFT.

JUL 8 - 1943

"AND ALL THE WAY ALONG THE PILOT KEPT KIDDING ME," HE SAID. "HE TREATED IT AS A GREAT JOKE."

HE STOPPED KIDDING WHEN COFFEY MADE A BELLY LANDING ON TUNISIAN SOIL. THEN HE SAID, "NOT BAD, COFFEY, OLD KID. YOU'RE GOING TO BE A FLIER YET."

CAIRO, JULY 7-(AP)-A STRONG FORMATION OF AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST AIR COMMAND ATTACKED ENEMY AIR FIELDS YESTERDAY AT GERBINI IN SOUTHERN SICILY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

DURING THE PREVIOUS NIGHT BRITISH HEAVY BOMBERS RAIDED RAIL INSTALLATIONS AT CATANIA, EASTERN SICILIAN PORT.

BOTH FORAYS WERE COMPLETED WITHOUT LOSS OF A PLANE, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. AT GERBINI, WHERE FLYING FORTRESSES FROM THE NORTH-WEST AFRICAN COMMAND SHOT DOWN 41 ENEMY FIGHTERS MONDAY, AT LEAST ONE MORE WAS DESTROYED YESTERDAY, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

RUNWAYS AND DISPERSAL AREAS AT THIS MUCH-BOMBED OBJECTIVE WERE WELL COVERED BY BOMBS, THE MIDDLE EAST ANNOUNCEMENT SAID, AND A NUMBER OF FIRES WERE STARTED. HITS WERE OBSERVED BY THE BRITISH FLIERS IN THE AREAS OF THE RAILWAY STATION AND ASSEMBLY YARDS AT CATANIA.

AS A SIDE ISSUE, THE RAF NIGHT BOMBERS TOOK A CRACK AT THE ENEMY'S ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSE POSITIONS IN THE CATANIA AREA.

JUL 8 - 1943

(OTHER EXTENSIVE RAIDS ON SICILIAN OBJECTIVES YESTERDAY, POSSIBLY BY AIRCRAFT FROM FRENCH NORTH AFRICA AND MALTA, WERE REPORTED IN THE ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST FROM ROME AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

JUL 8 - 1943

(LISTED BY ROME AS ATTACKED WERE PALERMO, TRAPANI, PORTO EMPEDOCLE, CATANIA, MARSALA AND SEVERAL OTHER MINOR LOCALITIES BOTH IN SICILY AND ACROSS THE MESSINA STRAIT IN CALABRIA PROVINCE. THE COMMUNIQUE ASSERTED 17 ALLIED PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. TWO FOUR-ENGINED BOMBERS WERE REPORTED VICTIMS OF AXIS FIGHTERS.

(ROME ALSO SAID AN ALLIED SUBMARINE WAS SUNK IN THE MEDITERRANEAN BY ITALIAN AND GERMAN NAVAL UNITS.

(THE ITALIANS SAID 40 PERSONS WERE KILLED AND SIX INJURED IN CATANIA PROVINCE WHILE AT OTHER PLACES CASUALTIES RANGED DOWNWARDS FROM FIVE KILLED.)

ALGIERS, JULY 7-(AP)-EUROPEAN REPORTS TO THE FRENCH PRESS IN NORTH AFRICA DECLARED TODAY THAT ITALIAN AUTHORITIES HAD BECOME ALARMED AT THE POSSIBILITY OF AN ALLIED LANDING AT OSTIA, SEAPORT ONLY 10 MILES FROM ROME ITSELF.

AS A RESULT, THE REPORTS SAID, ALL COMMUTERS TRAINS BETWEEN ROME AND OSTIA HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO RETURN EACH NIGHT TO THE CAPITAL INSTEAD OF REMAINING OVERNIGHT AT OSTIA, AND THE NUMBER OF SUCH TRAINS REDUCED FROM 40 TO TWO DAILY.

ALGIERS, JULY 7-(AP)-THE FRENCH COMMISSARIAT OF INFORMATION ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT A DEPUTY SEVERE OF MARTINIQUE HAD SENT A MESSAGE ASSERTING THAT THE ISLAND HAD "RALLIED ENTHUSIASTICALLY TO THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION AND DEMANDED THE IMMEDIATE DESIGNATION OF NEW AUTHORITIES."

bern, july 7-(ap)--The swiss federal council today dissolved two organizations, the rassemblement federal and the nationale gemeinschaft schafhausen, and forbade the publication of their respective newspapers, die front and der grenzbote.

JUL 8 - 1943

Directors of the two groups, several of whose members have been condemned to death for espionage, were warned during the past year to purge their memberships of undesirables.

Announcement of their dissolution said it was "clearly indicated" that the organizations had not eliminated the traitors from their ranks and that their policies were contrary to switzerland's neutrality.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 7-(AP)-NORWEGIAN SOURCES, QUOTING AN UNCENSORED LETTER FROM GERMANY TO NORWAY, SAID TODAY THAT 3,000 PERSONS LOST THEIR LIVES AND THREE COMMUNITIES -- NIEDERENSEE, HIMMELPFORTEN AND HACHEN -- WERE "WIPED OFF THE MAP" BY FLOOD WATERS WHICH RUSHED FROM THE MOEHNE RESERVOIR AFTER THE RAF BREACHED IT MAY 16.

IT WAS SAID THAT 850 OF THOSE KILLED WERE RUSSIAN PRISONERS OF WAR.

STOCKHOLM, THURSDAY, JULY 8-(AP)-ADVICES FROM DENMARK TODAY SAID COPENHAGEN POLICE HAD ISSUED A PROCLAMATION URGING THE PUBLIC TO REFRAIN FROM ANY ACTS WHICH MIGHT CAUSE DISTURBANCES OR RIOTING FOLLOWING INCIDENTS IN WHICH FOUR PERSONS WERE WOUNDED.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE INCIDENTS WERE SAID TO HAVE TAKEN PLACE TUESDAY IN THE MAIN SQUARE OF THE DANISH CAPITAL. WHILE DETAILS WERE LACKING, THE REPORTS STIRRED SPECULATION HERE THAT DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST GERMAN OCCUPATION AUTHORITIES OR NAZI SYMPATHIZERS MIGHT HAVE BEEN INVOLVED.

(ANOTHER REPORT BROADCAST BY THE MOSCOW RADIO AND RECORDED BY CBS SAID THAT DISTURBANCES HAVE BROKEN OUT AMONG THE SEAMEN AT THE ITALIAN NAVAL BASES OF BRINDISI AND LA SPEZIA WHERE THE MEN DEMANDED THAT THE NAVY BE RID OF GERMAN CONTROL. NUMEROUS ARRESTS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN MADE.)

ANKARA, TURKEY, JULY 7-(AP)-THE BAYONET-LIKE JAB OF BRITISH FORCES AGAINST THE THIN ISLAND OF CRETE WHICH LIES AS A HEAVILY FORTIFIED BASTION GUARDING THE SMALLER ISLAND STEPPING STONES TO THE BALKAN PENINSULA HAS HEARTENED ALLIED AND NEUTRAL OBSERVERS HERE.

THE GERMANS APPEAR TO HAVE CENTERED THEIR DEFENSE ON CRETE, SUPPORTED BY A CRESCENT OF OUTER ISLANDS FROM RHODES TO THE GREEK MAINLAND AND MAKING A CONTINUING DEFENSE LINE WITH FORTIFICATIONS ALONG THE ADRIATIC COAST.

THE INNER ISLANDS OF THE AEGEAN ARE LIGHTLY GARRISONED BY TROOPS WHICH IN SOME CASES ALREADY ARE SHOWING UNMISTAKABLE SIGNS OF SHATTERED MORALE. FOR THE BRITISH DELIVERY OF THE FIRST BLOW, IN WHAT MANY HERE BELIEVE MAY BE THE OPENING OF A MAJOR CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE HEART OF GERMAN DEFENSES, WAS A SURPRISE.

UNOFFICIAL STRATEGISTS PICTURED THE DRIVE AS BEGINNING WITH AN ATTACK ON RHODES WITH A QUICK MOP-UP OF THE DODECANESE AND THE INNER AEGEAN WHICH INITIALLY WOULD BY-PASS CRETE BUT QUICKLY OPEN IT FOR A

JUL 8 - 1943

30.24—5791

MANY-SIDED ATTACK.

ONLY AFTER THAT ISLAND'S DEFENSES HAVE BEEN NEUTRALIZED CAN THE ALLIES SWEEP ON INTO THE VALLEYS OF THE VARDAR AND STROUMA TO STRIKE AT THE HEART OF THE GERMAN-INFECTED BALKANS.

THE GERMANS HAVE ATTEMPTED TO MAKE CRETE IMPREGNABLE WITH DEEP DEFENSES ALONG ITS WHOLE 160-MILE LENGTH AND A GARRISON WHICH PROBABLY NUMBERS AT LEAST 10 DIVISIONS. THE ISLAND HAS BEEN CONSTANTLY REINFORCED SINCE THE GERMANS CAPTURED IT IN 1941 AND NEW UNITS PROBABLY HAVE BEEN SENT THERE IN RECENT WEEKS. ALTHOUGH THREE-FIFTHS OF THE ISLAND'S SOLDIERS ARE ITALIANS, THERE IS A GERMAN OFFICER IN COMMAND.

JUL 8 - 1943

RHODES IS LESS HEAVILY DEFENDED AND EVEN LARGER PROPORTIONS OF THE DEFENDERS ARE ITALIANS, BUT REPORTS SAY MUCH DEFENSE WORK HAS BEEN DONE RECENTLY ON THE ISLAND WHICH NESTLES CLOSE TO NEUTRAL TURKEY'S SHORES.

IN THIS CONNECTION THE ISTANBUL NEWSPAPER AKSHAM, A QUASI-OFFICIAL PUBLICATION, TODAY DISCUSSED THE POSSIBILITIES OF A SEPARATE PEACE BY ITALY AND SAID THE TURKS WANT ITALY "TO GET OUT OF ALBANIA, BREAK OFF RELATIONS WITH THE BALKANS AND ONCE AND FOR ALL LEAVE THE ISLANDS NEAR TURKEY'S SHORES."

THE COMMENT APPEARED TO REFER TO THE DODECANESE ISLANDS WHICH AKSHAM SAID MUST BE CEDED TO AN ANTI-IMPERIALIST POWER UPON THE CONDITION THAT THEY BE DISARMED.

THE REST OF THE DODECANESE ARE FOR THE MOST PART POORLY GARRISONED BY TROOPS SICKENED OF LONG ASSIGNMENTS TO SMALL ISLAND POSTS. SOME OF THE SMALLER ISLANDS HAVE A FEW HUNDRED TROOPS AND MANY SUCH GROUPS ARE SAID COMPLETELY TO HAVE LOST CONFIDENCE OF BEING ABLE TO WITHSTAND AN ALLIED LANDING.

ON OTHER INNER ISLANDS ITALIAN SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN REPORTED TRADING THEIR RATIONS TO IMPOVERISHED GREEK POPULATIONS FOR ODD SCRAPS OF CLOTHES IN WHICH THEY HOPE TO ESCAPE AS CIVILIANS IN CASE OF AN ALLIED INVASION.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE KEY DEFENSES ARE STILL TIGHTLY CONTROLLED BY THE GERMANS AND THERE HAVE BEEN FEW REPORTS OF COLLAPSING MORALE AMONG THEM.

THE REPORT OF THE BLOW AT CRETE QUICKENED INTEREST IN TURKEY, BEING THE NEAREST ALLIED OFFENSIVE ACTION TO HER SHORES BUT THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL COMMENT AND NO INDICATION IT WOULD AFFECT TURKEY'S POLICY OF NEUTRALITY.

ANKARA, JULY 7-(AP)—WHAT IS INTERPRETED AS AN AXIS PRESS AND RADIO CAMPAIGN ATTEMPTING TO EMBROIL TURKEY IN A CAMPAIGN TO CONSOLIDATE ALL PEOPLE OF TURKISH BLOOD IN EUROPE AND ASIA INTO A SINGLE NATION WAS ANSWERED IN THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY BY FOREIGN MINISTER NUMAN MENEMENCIOGLU TODAY WITH A STATEMENT THAT TURKEY "WISHES ONLY HAPPINESS AND RRRRRX PROSPERITY TO ALL TURKS LIVING BEYOND THEIR BORDERS OF TURKEY." IN REPLY TO AN ATTEMPT APPARENTLY AXIS-INSPIRED TO EMBROIL TURKEY IN A CAMPAIGN TO CONSOLIDATE ALL PEOPLE OF TURKISH BLOOK IN EUROPE AND ASIA INTO A SINGLE NATION.

"ALL OUR POLITICS AND ALL OUR TURKISM IS LIMITED TO THE TURKS WITHIN THE FRONTIERS OF OUR COUNTRY," THE FOREIGN MINISTER SAID IN AN UNUSUAL STATEMENT OF NATIONAL POLICY BROUGHT XXXXXX UP BY XXXXX A DEPUTY WHO ASKED HIM TO COMMENT ON A RECENTLY PUBLISHED

PAMPHLET "THE GREATEST DANGER" WHICH DEALT WITH TURKISH NATIONALISM.

THE PAMPHLET HAS BEEN THE SUBJECT OF MUCH CONTROVERSY IN THE TURKISH PRESS AND MUCH OF IT HAS BEEN REPRINTED IN MOSCOW'S COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA.

JUL 8 - 1943

MEANWHILE A FIRM REMINDER THAT NEUTRAL TURKEY WOULD REFUSE TO BE IGNORED IN ANY POSTWAR SETTLEMENTS WAS CONTAINED IN AN EDITORIAL IN THE NEWSPAPER YENISABAH SCORNING A RECENT GREEK CLAIM TO THE DODECANESE ISLANDS.

"AT THE PRESENT MOMENT HEX OF GENERAL CRISIS WHEN ONLY MILITARY CONSIDERATIONS ARE IMPORTANT WE HEAR THAT GREEKS NOW IN EGYPT IN AN ORGANIZED MEETING HAVE DEMANDED THAT THE DODECANESE ISLANDS BE RETURNED TO GREECE," SAID YENISABAH.

JUL 8 - 1943

" ONE REMEMBERS THAT THE DODECANESE WERE TURKISH TERRITORY UNTIL 1911 WHEN, UNDER PRESSURE, THEY WERE OCCUPIED BY ITALY. TURKEY, BEING FIRMLY DETERMINED TO MAINTAIN HX HER NEUTRALITY, IS FOLLOWING MILITARY DEVELOPMENTS WITHOUT ADVANCING TERRITORIAL CLAIMS.

"AS WE POSSESS AN OVER-SUFFICIENT STRENGTH TO DEFEND, AND MAINTAIN IF NECESSARY, OUR TERRITORIAL AND POLITICAL INTEGRITY NOTHING WILL MAKE US NERVOUS. WE WOULD LIKE, HOWEVER, TO REX RECALL PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S DEFINITE ADVICE DURING THE POLISH-SOVIET CONTROVERSY THAT DISCUSSIONS REGARDING FRONTIERS SHOULD BE POSTPONED UNTIL THE END OF THE WAR.

JUL 8 - 1943

" IT WOULD BE MOST APPROPRIATE IF THOSE GATHERED AT CAIRO AND WHO ARE LOUDLY RECLAIMING TERRITORIES, WOULD FOLLOW THAT ADVICE."

UNDATED CHINESE ANNIVERSARY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHILE GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK URGED HIS ALLIES TO SMASH IN FORCE AGAINST JAPAN AT ONCE, PRAISE FOR CHINA AND CONFIDENCE IN HER ULTIMATE VICTORY WERE UTTERED IN MANY PARTS OF THE WORLD BY UNITED NATIONS LEADERS YESTERDAY (WED) -- THE SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SINO-JAPANESE CONFLICT.

FROM WAR-SCARRED BUT UNYIELDING CHUNGKING, THE LEADER OF CHINA SENT FORTH AN ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE TO THE UNITED NATIONS PEOPLES IN WHICH HE DECLARED THAT THIS WAS THE OPPORTUNE TIME "TO REAP GREAT RESULTS" IN REDUCING THE TIME AND COST OF FINAL VICTORY.

HE SAID JAPAN AT PRESENT WAS "AT HER WEAKEST AND HER READY RESOURCES ARE APPROACHING A POINT OF EXHAUSTION."

FROM WASHINGTON, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT GREETED THE CHINESE IN A SPECIAL SHORT WAVE BROADCAST, SAYING "OUR FRIENDS HAVE LONG KNOWN WHAT OUR ENEMIES ARE LEARNING TODAY -- THAT THE PROMISES OF THE UNITED STATES ARE ALWAYS KEPT AND OUR PLEDGES ARE ALWAYS REDEEMED."

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, IN A GREETING FROM LONDON, TOLD THE GENERALISSIMO THE SUCCESSES IN NORTH AFRICA AND ON THE YANGTZE GAVE "TANGIBLE EVIDENCE IN THE EAST AND THE WEST OF WHAT IS TO COME," ADDING THAT "THE PATTERN OF EVENTS IS NOW BECOMING CLEAR." JUL 8 - 1943

ALSO IN LONDON, BRITISH FOREIGH SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN DECLARED THE DAY WOULD COME WHEN THE ACCUMULATED WEIGHT OF THE ALLIED MIGHT WOULD "FLOW EASTWARDS AND OVERWHELM THE EMPIRE OF JAPAN."

THE CHINESE RESISTANCE WAS PRAISED BY THE SOVIET ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR WHICH DECLARED THAT THE WILL OF THAT PEOPLE WAS UNBROKEN AND THEIR FAITH IN VICTORY UNSHAKEN.

LIEUT.-GEN. JOSEPH W. STILWELL, COMMANDER OF UNITED STATES FORCES IN CHINA, INDIA AND BURMA, TOLD A CHUNGKING RALLY "WE FEEL IT TO BE OUR ENTIRE RESPONSIBILITY TO HELP CHINA OBTAIN FINAL VICTORY."

GEN. HO YING-CHIN, CHINESE MINISTER OF WAR, TOLD THE RALLY "THE CHINESE ARMY IS GROWING GREATER AND STRONGER EVERY DAY, ON THE THRESHOLD OF A UNITED NATIONS VICTORY."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JULY 7-(...)-A DOZEN AMERICAN OFFICERS AND MEN WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES FOR THEIR COUNTRY WERE AWARDED THE AIR MEDAL FOR THEIR SKILL, COURAGE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY IN COMBAT MISSIONS BEFORE THEY WERE KILLED.

POSTHUMOUS AWARDS OF THE AIR MEDAL WERE ANNOUNCED BY LIEUT.GEN. GEORGE C.KENNEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED AIR FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. THOSE CITED INCLUDED:

SGT.JOHN SALEMI, NEXT OF KIN, MRS.PAULINE SALEMI, MOTHER, 3719 W.55TH PLACE, CHICAGO, ILL.; CORP.RICHARD W.BAKER, 1457 STATE ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

LIEUTENANT SCHULTZ' CITATION WAS FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT WHILE PARTICIPATING IN AN AERIAL FLIGHT OVER KAVIENG HARBOR, NEW IRELAND, IN APRIL.

"THIS FLYING FORTRESS BOMBER OF WHICH LIEUT.SCHULTZ WAS BOMBARDIER, WAS ENGAGED IN AN ATTACK ON ENEMY SHIPPING," THE CITATION SAID. "BECAUSE OF POOR VISIBILITY, THE CREW DESCENDED FROM AN ALTITUDE OF 4500 FEET AND SEARCHED THE AREA FOR 45 MINUTES AT ALTITUDES OF 100 TO 300 FEET. ENEMY SEARCHLIGHTS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WERE SUCCESSFULLY EVADED UNTIL A CRUISER WAS SIGHTED.

"A LOW-LEVEL ATTACK WAS MADE AND FOUR BOMBS WERE DROPPED. THE ENEMY CRUISER BURST INTO FLAMES AS A RESULT OF DIRECT HITS, AND THEN EXPLODED. WHEN LAST SEEN THE VESSEL WAS IN A SINKING CONDITION. THE SKILL, COURAGE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY DISPLAYED BY SCHULTZ ARE IN KEEPING WITH THE FINEST TRADITIONS OF THE SERVICE."

SERGEANT BRIGGS WAS CITED FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT WHILE SHADOWING THE JAPANESE CONVOY IN THE BISMARCK SEA LAST MARCH AND FOR LEADING BOMBERS IN AN ATTACK WHICH BROUGHT THE ANNIHILATION OF THE 22-SHIP INVASION FORCE.

JUL 8 - 1943

"IMMEDIATELY AFTER LEAVING ITS BASE, THE CREW ENCOUNTERED UNFAVORABLE WEATHER WHICH MADE IT NECESSARY TO DESCEND TO A LOW ALTITUDE TO PREVENT THE ENEMY FROM ELUDING OUR RECONNAISSANCE," THE CITATION SAID. "THE ENEMY CONVOY WAS SIGHTED THROUGH A BREAK IN THE CLOUDS FROM A LOW ALTITUDE AND THE ENEMY'S POSITION WAS RADIOED TO THE BASE.

"THIS CREW WAS INSTRUCTED TO SHADOW THE HOSTILE VESSELS UNTIL FRIENDLY BOMBERS COULD REACH THE TARGET AREA. WHEN THE FLIGHT OF FLYING FORTRESS BOMBERS ARRIVED OVER THE CONVOY, THIS AIRCRAFT GUIDED THEM INTO POSITION FOR THE BOMBING RUN. IT THEN REM INED AT A LOW ALTITUDE TO DRAW ENEMY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, IN ORDER THAT THE BOMBERS COULD REACH THE AREA WITHOUT OPPOSITION. THIS CREW REMAINED IN THE TARGET AREA FOR OVER TWO AND ONE HALF HOURS CONTINUING THE RECONNAISSANCE WHICH CONTRIBUTED GREATLY TO THE ANNIHILATION OF THE ENEMY CONVOY. THE COURAGE, ABILITY AND DEVOTION TO DUTY DISPLAYED BY THESE COMBAT CREW MEMBERS ARE IN ACCORD WITH THE FINEST TRADITIONS OF THE SERVICE."

HANSEN, ZUNWALT AND STUCKEY, MEMBERS OF A FORTRESS CREW, WERE CITED FOR MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT DURING A BOMBER ATTACK ON ENEMY SHIPPING AT KAVIENG LAST APRIL. ON REACHING THE TARGET AREA THEY SIGHTED ONE LIGHT AND ONE HEAVY CRUISER.

"DESPITE THE DANGERS FROM THE VESSELS' ANTIAIRCRAFT BATTERIES, A LOW-LEVEL BOMBING RUN WAS MADE ON THE HEAVY WARSHIP, SCORING FOUR DIRECT HITS AND SINKING THE VESSEL WITHIN 15 MINUTES," THEIR CITATIONS SAID. "DURING THE ATTACK, THE GUNNERS OF THIS CREW STRAFED GUN POSITIONS ON THE CRUISER AND ENABLED THE AIRCRAFT TO COMPLETE THE BOMBING RUN WITH ONLY A FEW HITS FROM THE ENEMY ANTI-

SALEMI AND BAKER WERE CITED FOR "MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT WHILE PARTICIPATING IN 100 HOURS OF OPERATIONAL FLIGHT MISSIONS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA DURING WHICH HOSTILE CONTACT WAS PROBABLE AND EXPECTED. THESE FLIGHTS INCLUDED LONG-RANGE BOMBING MISSIONS AGAINST ENEMY AIRDROMES AND INSTALLATIONS AND ATTACKS ON HOSTILE NAVAL VESSELS AND SHIPPING. THROUGHOUT THESE OPERATIONS, THESE COMBAT CREW MEMBERS DISPLAYED OUTSTANDING ABILITY, COURAGE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY."

STUCKEY WAS AWARDED THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER IN LIEU OF A SECOND AIR MEDAL.

REPEATEDLY DECLINED TO ACCEPT IN THE PAST.

I STOOD ON THE CAPTAIN'S FIGHTING PLATFORM OF A UNITED STATES CRUISER IN THE NARROW GULF BETWEEN KOLOMBANGARA AND NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS ONLY A FEW WEEKS AGO AND WATCHED GUNFIRE SPLIT THE NIGHT AS SHELLS POURED INTO ENEMY POSITIONS.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE NIPPONESE FLEET, WHICH THE NAVY DEPARTMENT AND GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR HAVE ANNOUNCED TOOK A BEATING IN THE GULF JULY 5-6, WAS SIGNIFICANTLY ABSENT DURING THE BOMBARDMENT I WITNESSED MAY 13. OUR SHIPS WERE CHALLENGED ONLY BY SHORE BATTERIES AND TORPEDO BOATS WHICH FLITTED INEFFECTIVELY THROUGH THE DARKNESS.

NOR HAD THERE BEEN ANY SIGN OF ENEMY WARSHIPS ONLY A WEEK EARLIER -- ONE NIGHT OF MAY 6 AND 7 -- WHEN I WENT WITH THE SAME TASK FORCE WELL NORTH OF THE PRESENT FIGHTING ON A SCOUTING EXPEDITION EARLY TO THE ENEMY'S SHORTLAND AND BOUGAINVILLE ISLANDS BASES.

THE MAY 13 BOMBARDMENT, IN FACT, WAS THE FOURTH CARRIED OUT VIRTUALLY UNOPPOSED SINCE JANUARY. ON THAT SAME NIGHT OTHER UNITS OF THE SAME TASK FORCE SHELLED MUNDA AIRFIELD, 20 MILES SOUTH OF THE GULF, FOR THE THIRD TIME AND WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

IT IS NOW CLEAR THAT IN ALL THOSE NIGHT FORAYS, OUR NAVY WAS SOFTENING UP THE JAPANESE BASES AT VILA ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND, AT BAIROKO ON NEW GEORGIA BETWEEN VILA AND MUNDA, AND AT MUNDA FOR THE PRESENT OFFENSIVE ON THE MIDDLE SOLOMONS POSITIONS.

JUL 8 - 1943

THE ACTUAL OFFENSIVE FINALLY BROUGHT THE JAPANESE FLEET UNITS DOWN FOR BATTLE -- AN EVENT WHICH THE SAILORS ON OUR SHIPS HAD PRAYED FOR EACH TIME THEY WENT UP THE SOLOMONS' "SLOT" TO POUR SHELLS INTO JAPANESE SUPPLY DUMPS, AIR FIELD AND BIVOUAC AREAS UNDER THE COCONUT PALMS OF THE VILA STARTHMORE PLANTATION.

AT LAST, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS, THE MIKADO'S IMPERIAL NAVY HAS CHALLENGED OUR GROWING WARSHIP POSS S. SES '9758 PACIFIC FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE FIGHTING LAST FALL.

IT WAS RECALLED THAT THE JAPANESE REFUSED TO RISK A FLEET BATTLE EARLY IN FEBRUARY, WHEN OUR NAVY STOOD BY IN FORCE TO ENGAGE THEM IN ANY ATTEMPT BY SEA TO SAVE THEIR TOTTERING POSITION ON GUADALCANAL.

(ADVANCE)(AB) SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, JUNE 20-(DELAYED)-CAPTAIN ROBERT B.FRASER OF (27 PROSPECT STREET), GENESEO, N.Y., COMMANDED A SQUADRON OF TEN FIGHTERS AND DIVE BOMBERS WHICH INTERCEPTED 35 JAPANESE ZEROS AND SIX ENEMY BOMBERS, KNOCKING OUT 16 ZEROS AND FIVE BOMBERS.

THE ENEMY PLANES, STALKING TWO AMERICAN SHIPS LAST FEBRUARY, WERE SURPRISED NEAR SAVO ISLAND, A REPORT TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT SAID. CAPTAIN FRASER AND HIS TWO WINGMEN KNOCKED OFF FIVE BOMBERS, AND THE SIXTH, CAUGHT BETWEEN FIRE FROM THE CAPTAIN'S AND WINGMEN'S GUNS, MADE A SUICIDE DIVE INTO A DESTROYER, SINKING IT.

IN THE SAME ACTION, LIEUT.JAMES G.PERCY, 21, OF SAN FRANCISCO, ONE OF THE MARINE CORPS YOUNGEST ACES, SHOT DOWN FOUR ZEROS IN FIVE MINUTES.

THE JOB OF FERRETING OUT THE SNIPERS CONTINUED TODAY, AND AS I SAT ATOP A CORAL OUTCROPPING, BALANCING MY TYPEWRITER ON MY KNEES BECAUSE OF LACK OF A MORE SUITABLE PLACE, THERE WAS AN OCCASIONAL ZING OF A JAPANESE .25 CALIBRE BULLET GOING THROUGH THE COCONUT TREES.

NO ONE PAID MUCH ATTENTION. GENERALS SAT WITHOUT STEEL HELMETS, HARDLY BREAKING THEIR CONVERSATIONS.

MAJOR MARTIN F.CLEMENTS, CHIEF OF THE ARMY'S SOLOMONS GUARDS, AND LIEUTENANT F.A."SNOWY" RHOADS REPORTED COMING ONTO ONE KITCHEN WHERE THE JAPANESE HAD LEFT THEIR BOILING RICE.

THE TWO OFFICERS AND THEIR NATIVE GUARDS ACCOUNTED FOR AT LEAST 25 JAPANESE MARINES IN THE SECTOR OF THE ISLAND THEY INVADED.

THEN THERE WAS LIEUTENANT ELLIS SATTERTHWAITE WHO, INVESTIGATING A CRUDE HUT, HEARD A NOISE IN THE DOORWAY. HE TURNED AND SAW A JAPANESE STARING IN. THE YOUNG OFFICER, THE QUICKER ON THE DRAW, FIRED AND THE ENEMY SOLDIER FELL.

LIEUTENANT SATTERTHWAITE SAID HE DIDN'T KNOW WHO WAS MORE SURPRISED -- HE OR THE JAPANESE. "I THOUGHT I WOULD FIND SOME SOUVENIRS INSIDE," HE SAID, "BUT I'M SATISFIED AS IT IS."

LIEUTENANT COLONEL DAVID M.ROSS OF 10 WONAINE COURT, BEREA, KY., WAS LEADING HIS REGIMENT IN AN ASSAULT WHEN ONE BULLET NIPPED HIS UPPER ARM AND ANOTHER RUINED HIS CANTEEN. HE REFUSED TO RETIRE AND CALMLY PUT ON HIS FIRST AID BANDAGE HIMSELF. THEN HE CONTINUED FORWARD.

JUL 8 - 1943

WHILE UNITS OF ALL SERVICES PARTICIPATED IN THE VARIOUS STAGES OF THE RENDOVA OCCUPATION, THE ACTUAL STORMING AND FIGHTING WAS THE ARMY'S SHOW.

TROOPS PARTICIPATING WERE EXCELLENTLY TRAINED FOR JUNGLE FIGHTING. THEIR MORALE WAS HIGH AND THEY HAVE REASON TO HATE THE ENEMY.

THEY ARE IN COMPLETE COMMAND OF RENDOVA ISLAND, LOOKING FORWARD TO THEIR CHANCE TO DRIVE ON TO NEW GEORGIA AND EVENTUALLY INTO TOKYO.

ARMY GROUND TROOPS, WITH THE SOLID AIR COVER THUS PROVIDED, WERE CONSOLIDATING EASILY SEIZED POSITIONS ON RENDOVA AND NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS. UP TO NOW THE LAND FORCES ON RENDOVA HAVE BEEN SUBJECTED TO ONLY ONE AIR ATTACK.

(A COMMUNIQUE JULY 7 FROM GEN.DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA REPORTED, HOWEVER, THAT THE JAPANESE HAD RETURNED TO THE AIR ASSAULT UPON RENDOVA THE PREVIOUS DAY AND INFLICTED SOME DAMAGE. BUT THE ENEMY CONTINUED TO PAY A HIGH PRICE FOR WHAT RESULTS HE MANAGED TO OBTAIN. HIS TOTAL PLANE LOSSES IN THE SOLOMONS FOR THE WEEK ENDED JULY 6 -- THE FIRST OF THE NEW ALLIED OFFENSIVE -- REACHED 164.)

THE COMMANDING GENERAL WHO ACCOMPANIED ARMY TROOPS MAKING THE RENDOVA ISLAND LANDING JUNE 30 TOLD CORRESPONDENTS TODAY THE INVASION WAS PROGRESSING ENTIRELY SATISFACTORILY.

HE POINTED OUT THAT ONE IMPORTANT SUCCESS IN THE INITIAL PHASE WAS QUICK EMPLACEMENT OF HEAVY ARTILLERY BATTERIES ON THE NORTH SHORE OF RENDOVA AND SMALL RENARD INLET ISLANDS. THESE BATTERIES HAVE BEEN BLASTING MUNDA POINT AND COVER THE WATERS BETWEEN RENDOVA AND MUNDA.

"OF COURSE," THE GENERAL SAID, "OUR PLAN DIDN'T HINGE ON GETTING THIS ARTILLERY IN BUT IT'S CERTAINLY A NICE THING TO HAVE."

THE FIGHTER PLANE PILOTS PROTECTING THE OPERATION, HE SAID, "HAVE DONE ONE GREAT JOB. THEY ARE THE ONES WHO HAVE BEEN FIGHTING MOST OF THIS THING SO FAR."

JUL 8 - 1943

TWO JAPANESE BOMBERS WERE ABLE TO SNEAK IN UNDER THE LOW CLOUD COVER FRIDAY AND HIT OUR POSITIONS ON RENDOVA. SOME CASUALTIES WERE ACKNOWLEDGED BUT THERE WERE NO HITS ON SUPPLIES OR SHIPS.

THAT NIGHT THE ENEMY FOLLOWED UP WITH THEIR ATTEMPT TO BRING UP WARSHIPS TO SHELL NEWLY WON AMERICAN POSITIONS BUT THE SHELLING BY THE FOUR DESTROYERS, WHICH SLIPPED INTO BLANCHE CHANNEL BETWEEN RENDOVA AND NEW GEORGIA, WAS INEFFECTIVE.

ABOUT 25 ZEROS APPROACHED HIGH OVER RENDOVA FRIDAY AFTERNOON BUT TURNED BACK, WITHOUT ATTACKING, IN AN APPARENT MANEUVER TO DRAW OUR FIGHTERS INTO A SCRAMBLE.

JUL 8 - 1943

IF THE TACTIC WAS INTENDED TO OPEN THEHWAY FOR A BOMBER ATTACK IT FAILED BECAUSE ONLY ARMY LIGHTNINGS FLYING OVER TOP COVER ENGAGED THE ENEMY. IN THIS HIGH SKIRMISHING FIVE ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN, WITH A LOSS OF THREE LIGHTNINGS.

A CAMOUFLAGED JAPANESE CARGO SHIP WAS HIT FRIDAY AFTERNOON IN BAIROKO HARBOR, NORTH OF MUNDA, BY BOMBS FROM ARMY MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS. THEY MADE RUNS A LITTLE MORE THAN 100 FEET ABOVE THE TARGET AND SCORED FIVE HITS ON THE 2,500-TON SHIP.

AT LAST, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS, THE MIKADO'S IMPERIAL NAVY HAS CHALLENGED OUR GROWING WARSHIP POWER IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE FIGHTING LAST FALL.

IT WAS RECALLED THAT THE JAPANESE REFUSED TO RISK A FLEET BATTLE EARLY IN FEBRUARY, WHEN OUR NAVY STOOD BY IN FORCE TO ENGAGE THEM IN ANY ATTEMPT BY SEA TO SAVE THEIR TOTTERING POSITION ON GUADALCANAL.

NOW THE WAR SCENE HAS SHIFTED SOME 200 MILES NORTH, HALF WAY UP THE SOLOMONS "SLOT," WITH OUR NAVY PRESSING ITS CHALLENGE.

THE TROPICAL WEATHER IN THE AREA VARIES BUT LITTLE, WITH RAIN SQUALLS USUALLY DRIFTING AROUND. NIGHTS ARE ALWAYS WARM AND THE SEA, WITH A TEMPERATURE OF AROUND 86 DEGREES, IS USUALLY CALM.

THE NIGHT I WAS THERE IT TOOK THE BOMBARDING WARSHIPS ONLY 20 MINUTES TO MAKE THE CIRCLE OF THE EIGHT-MILE WIDE GULF AND POUR THE HUNDREDS OF TONS OF SHELLS AT THE TARGETS.

JUL 8 - 1943

THAT ATTACK HAD BEEN TIMED SO THAT THE HALF MOON, WHICH HAD BEEN STEADILY SINKING TOWARD THE HORIZON, RESTED FOR A MOMENT ON A 5,000 FOOT EXTINCT VOLCANO ON KOLOMBANGARA AND THEN SLID OUT OF SIGHT AS THE SHIPS SLIPPED INTO THE GULF.

THE ISLANDS -- KOLOMBANGARA TO THE NORTH AND WEST AND MOUNTAINOUS NEW GEORGIA TO THE SOUTH AND EAST -- WERE DARK MASSES.

DURING THE NEXT 15 MINUTES, JUST BEFORE 1 A.M., ALL EYES WERE STRAINED FOR ANY EVIDENCE THAT THE ENEMY WAS AWARE OF THE APPROACHING DANGER. NONE WAS OBSERVED.

THEN THE JAPANESE GAVE THEMSELVES AWAY. OBVIOUSLY UNAWARE OF GUNS POINTED AT THEM ONLY A FEW THOUSAND YARDS OFF SHORE, THEY SWITCHED ON A BATTERY OF AERIAL SEARCHLIGHTS.

THE LIGHTS WENT OFF AGAIN ALMOST IMMEDIATELY AS THE BOMBARDMENT STARTED, WITH SOME SHIPS FIRING IN TIMED SALVOS AND SOME ALMOST CONTINUOUSLY. SHIPS REPEATEDLY WERE ILLUMINATED AGAINST THE NIGHT BY THE FLAMES OF THEIR OWN GUNS. DECKS SHOOK AND BULKHEADS BATTLED. MEN BRACED THEMSELVES AGAINST THE CONCUSSION.

AS THE BOMBARDMENT ENDED, THE SHIPS SPED OUT OF THE GULF, EVERY LOOKOUT WATCHING FOR ANY INTERCEPTING ENEMY FORCE.

BUT THE JAPANESE WERE NOT THEN READY FOR THE RISK WHICH NOW FINALLY THEY HAVE TAKEN.

NAZI 'HOSTAGES' SLAIN BY BELGIAN PATRIOTS

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP) The British radio, quoting a Belgian underground newspaper, reported today that Belgian patriots had executed 16 Germans in reprisal for the slaying of eight Belgians by Nazi occupation officials.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, quoted the paper as saying: "Eight Belgian hostages were murdered in Charleroi in February in retaliation for the execution of the Fascist Mayor Teufel. Then the Nazis were informed that the crime would be avenged.

"Now the promise has been fulfilled. For each of the murdered Belgian hostages, two Germans were executed."

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S DECLARATION OF FAITH IN ALLIED VICTORY OVER JAPAN--THE OUTSIDE LIMIT FOR WHICH HE DARINGLY SETS AT TWO YEARS--IS PLEASING TO READ ON THIS SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE START OF THE CHINO-JAP CONFLICT, ESPECIALLY COMING AS IT DOES FROM ONE OF THE GREATEST LEADERS OF OUR TIME.

HOWEVER, THIS STATEMENT WOULD BE DANGEROUSLY INCOMPLETE WITHOUT THE GENERAL'S ACCOMPANYING CAUTION

JUL 8 - 1943

TO HIS PEOPLE THAT THE "PRESENT MARKS THE BEGINNING OF THE GREATEST TRIALS." THE ALLIES HAVE BEFORE THEM "THE HARDEST STRETCH OF THE ROAD TO VICTORY."

AS MATTER OF FACT, WHILE SUCH ENCOURAGEMENT IS LEGITIMATE FOR THE HEAVILY BURDENED CHINESE PEOPLE, IT'S DOUBTFUL WHETHER IT IS PARTICULARLY BENEFICIAL FOR SOME OF CHINA'S ALLIES. IT'S LIKELY TO INSPIRE OVER-CONFIDENCE, AS WITNESS THE COMPLACENCE WHICH HAS DEVELOPED IN SOME PARTS OF THE UNITED STATES SINCE THE ALLIED VICTORY IN TUNISIA.

WE HAVE AN ECHO OF THIS SELF-SATISFACTION, I BELIEVE, IN WPB CHAIRMAN DONALD NELSON'S STATEMENT OF DECLINES IN THE OUTPUT OF GROUND ORDNANCE, MISCELLANEOUS MUNITIONS AND MERCHANT VESSELS, WHICH HE CHARACTERIZES AS A "VERY SERIOUS MATTER." ONLY THE OTHER DAY LIEUT. GENERAL BREHON SOMERVELL, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE ARMY SUPPLY FORCES, REPORTED IN THE MAGAZINE MILL AND FACTORY A SHOCKING SHORTAGE

OF WEAPONS AND MATERIEL FOR THE ARMY. HE ATTRIBUTED THIS IN PART TO OVER-CONFIDENCE DUE TO FAVORABLE NEWS FROM THE BATTLE FRONT.

THIS COLUMN HAS MAINTAINED THAT THE AMERICAN PUBLIC COULD STAND GOOD NEWS WITHOUT BECOMING COMPLACENT. PASSAGE OF TIME, HOWEVER, CAUSES ONE TO WONDER WHETHER THIS JUDGMENT IS CORRECT. MAYBE THE PROPAGANDA EXPERTS WHO INSIST THAT IT'S NECESSARY TO FEED THE PEOPLE BAD NEWS IN ORDER TO KEEP THEM IN FIGHTING MOOD, AREN'T SO FAR WRONG, ABHORRENT AS THE IDEA MUST BE TO MOST FOLK.

JUL 8 - 1943

ANYWAY, AS REGARDS CHINA WE ARE TELLING NOTHING LESS THAN THE COLD TRUTH WHEN WE POINT OUT THAT HER MAIN ASSET AT THIS MOMENT IS THE MAGNIFICENT SPIRIT OF HER PEOPLE WHO FOR SIX YEARS HAVE ENDURED SUFFERING WHICH WOULD HAVE BROKEN MANY NATIONS. THIS WILL TO WIN, PLUS VAST REACHES OF TERRITORY TO SWAP WITH THE INVADERS FOR TIME, HAS ENABLED THEM TO HOLD OUT.

WE MUST RECOGNIZE THAT CHINA'S ABILITY TO ASSUME MAJOR OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS, OR EVEN WITHSTAND ENEMY ATTACKS, DEPENDS ON THE ASSISTANCE WHICH AMERICA AND THE OTHER ALLIES CAN GIVE HER. GENERAL CHIANG HAS COMPARATIVELY FEW RESOURCES AT HIS DISPOSAL, EITHER TO MAKE WAR OR TO SUSTAIN ANYTHING LIKE NORMAL LIVING CONDITIONS IN THE UNOCCUPIED REGIONS.

THERE'S NO REASON TO DOUBT CHIANG'S VIEW THAT HIS GREAT COUNTRY WILL HOLD OUT AND PARTICIPATE WITH THE OTHER ALLIES IN VICTORY. AT THE SAME TIME WE SHALL BE STARRY-EYED INDEED IF WE DON'T SEE THAT HE MUST BE BANKING ON ALLIED AID TO TURN THE TRICK.

THE THING THE UNITED NATIONS HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT IS WHETHER THEY CAN MAKE THEIR HELP EFFECTIVE SOON ENOUGH TO SAVE CHINA FROM COLLAPSE.

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG TODAY ISSUED AN APPEAL TO THE UNITED NATIONS

JUL 8 - 1943

TO STRIKE IN FORCE AT JAPAN IMMEDIATELY BECAUSE HE FEELS THIS IS THE OPPORTUNE MOMENT "TO REAP GREAT RESULTS" IN REDUCING THE TIME OF FINAL VICTORY. HE DECLARES NIPPON NOW "IS AT HER WEAKEST AS HER READY RESOURCES ARE APPROACHING A POINT OF EXHAUSTION."

GENERAL HO YING-CHIN, CHINESE WAR MINISTER, ALSO ESTIMATES THAT JAPAN HAS SUFFERED 3,000,000 CASUALTIES AND SAYS SHE IS FACING AN ACUTE MANPOWER SHORTAGE. HE FURTHER ASSERTS THAT NIPPON IS FAR WEAKER IN SEA STRENGTH, HAS NOT MORE THAN 3,000 FIRST LINE WARPLANES AND HAS BEEN SURPASSED BY THE ALLIES IN THE AIR, AND HAS DIFFICULT MATERIEL AND FOOD PROBLEMS.

JUL 8 - 1943

AS THOUGH TO EMPHASIZE THE STATEMENTS OF THE GREAT CHIANG AND HIS WAR MINISTER, WE GET THE REPORT OF ANOTHER AMERICAN NAVAL TRIUMPH OVER THE JAPS IN THE SOLOMONS. MEAGER DETAILS INDICATE THAT, AS SECRETARY OF THE NAVY KNOX PUTS IT, "THE JAPS HAVE TAKEN ANOTHER DAMNED GOOD LICKING." APPARENTLY WE HAVE TORN A FURTHER GREAT HOLE IN THE FLEET WHICH REPRESENTS MUCH OF JAPAN'S STRENGTH IN THE PACIFIC.

ALL THIS IS ENCOURAGING TO THE ALLIES, BUT THE FACT REMAINS THAT WE HAVE BEFORE US A TITANIC JOB OF BLASTING THE JAPS OUT OF THEIR HOLD ON CHINA AND OTHER OCCUPIED COUNTRIES. TIME IS OF VAST IMPORTANCE.

THE LINE IS SO FINELY DRAWN THAT ANYTHING WHICH CAUSES GREAT DELAY IN THE EXECUTION OF OUR PLANS MIGHT PRODUCE A DISASTER. COMPLACENCE HERE AT HOME MIGHT EASILY DO IT.

EXCEPT FOR WASHINGTON'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE LOSS OF A CRUISER AND OF THE 2,100-TON U.S. DESTROYER STRONG SUNDAY NIGHT THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OF THE JAPANESE CLAIMS.

THE JAPANESE WAR BULLETIN ALSO ASSERTED THAT JAPANESE NAVAL PLANES SHOT DOWN TEN AIRPLANES MONDAY OVER KULA GULF.

Japs Raid Rendova

The only attempts by the Japanese to loosen the tightening American squeeze on the Munda area yesterday were a light air raid on Rendova island, held by United States forces within artillery shelling distance of the air base, and a futile effort by a small party of Japanese to land from a barge on Dugiri islet, just off Rendova's northeast coast.

The battle for control of the air over New Georgia, where enemy losses to date approximate 190, slackened in intensity yesterday but the American planes maintained punishing blows against Munda's sources of supply and air support on bases in the islands above it.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Destruction of 10 Japanese transport and supply ships, important to the enemy's sprawling Pacific empire, was announced today by the Navy.

The ships were sunk by American submarines which also damaged four medium sized cargo vessels. The latest undersea blows to be reported against the enemy's merchant fleet raised to 283 the total number of enemy vessels which have been reported sunk or damaged by United States undersea craft in the Pacific since the war started.

This total consists of 200 ships sunk, 29 probably sunk and 54 damaged.

Transports Among Victims

Today's Navy communique described the ships destroyed as a large transport, a medium sized transport, two medium sized cargo vessels, one large and one medium sized tanker, one large cargo ship, one medium sized passenger-cargo ship, one small cargo vessel and one small schooner.

This communique came a little more than a week after the last previous war bulletin on American undersea operations against Japanese supply lines. The previous report was made by the Navy on June 28. There was no official comment as to whether the short time interval indicated a stepping up of the submarine campaign.

Secretary Knox said recently that the undersea force in the Pacific was being augmented steadily rather than by spurts and indicated that the increase had been quite substantial as a result of a steady buildup in American production.

The Navy gave no details of the operations in which these Japanese ships were destroyed.

U. S. Troops Battle 3 Miles from Munda

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, July 9—(AP) American Marine and Army ground patrols pushed forward Thursday from the landing beachheads they established on New Georgia to feel out the Japanese defense perimeter toward the Japanese air base of Salamaua, New Guinea, for the second time in as many days a great weight of bombs blasted a path for the jungle fighters. Mitchell bombers dropped nearly 50 tons of high explosives on enemy troops, buildings and on jungle tracks connecting outlying villages with Salamaua. Only the day before 58 tons of bombs were concentrated on a jungle area, facilitating the capture of an important hill position.

Allied bombers struck at the sources of supply for Munda by dropping 21 tons of bombs on Vila, on Kolombangara island, and 23 tons on the Buin-Faisi sector of the northern Solomons.

Five Japanese Zeros were destroyed over Kopenag, Dutch Timor, and over the Bena Bena area 90 miles northwest of Lae, New Guinea.

Two of the Japanese Zero losses were sustained among 10 intercepted by Allied fighters over the Bena Bena area. The interceptors had no losses.

Vila is the main supply depot for Munda, across the Kula gulf on New Georgia.

The bombs for the Buin-Faisi sector were delivered upon the Kahili airdrome of the enemy which is on the southern tip of Bougainville. One of our heavy bombers in the raid failed to return.

The communique added no further details to the Navy victory in the Kula gulf above Munda July 5-6 in which the Japanese were reported to have lost at least nine and possibly 11 destroyers and cruisers at a cost to the United States of the 9,700 ton cruiser Helena.

Closing of the pincers on Munda would cut that air base off from Bairoko and the Japanese supply depot at Vila plantation, across Kula Gulf on Kolombangara island.

This would force the Munda garrison to fight with supplies on hand only or risk the costly task of supplying the base by sea.

Allied Planes Clearing Path To Salamaua For Jungle Fighters

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Friday, July 9—American marine and army ground patrols pushed forward yesterday from the landing beachheads they established on New Georgia to feel out the Japanese defense perimeter around the Munda air base.

While the main forces which landed north and east of Munda on Monday were consolidating positions, advanced patrols beat off the Japanese in a clash which occurred near Elelo, only three miles east of the Munda airfield. Its seizure would give the Americans a base within fighting range of the enemy air fortress of Rabaul, New Britain.

Allied bombers struck at the sources of supply for Munda by dropping twenty-one tons of bombs on Vila, on Kolombangara Island, and twenty-three tons on the Buin-Faisi sector of the northern Solomons.

KULA GULF CLASH DESCRIBED

Foe Caught in Trap—Halsey's Gunners Shattered Fleet in 15 Minutes.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 8 (A. P.).—United States jungle fighters battled today within six miles of the Japanese air base on Munda from two new landing points on New Georgia Island, in the central Solomons area, where the enemy's hold has been weakened by a crushing naval defeat.

The new landings were disclosed today by Gen. MacArthur in a communique which also contained the news that in the warship engagement during the darkness of July 5-6 above Munda, in the Kula Gulf, at least nine, and possibly eleven, Japanese cruisers and destroyers were sunk against the loss of the cruiser U. S. S. Helena.

[A dispatch quoting sources at the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey said no other American warship even sustained damage in the engagement and that most of the more than 800 reported aboard the cruiser Helena were saved.]

The growing weight of the Pacific offensive began to tell against Japan at the other end of the 700-mile arc as well. Gen. MacArthur announced that in the jungle fight on the approaches to the Jap air base of Salamaua, New Guinea, Australian troops captured Observation Hill, between Salamaua and Mubo after its Jap defenders had been killed or demoralized by 106 tons of bombs dropped in less than forty-five minutes by Boston attack planes, Mitchell and Liberator bombers.

The land situation in the New Georgias was described today as very satisfactory, United States forces were still shelling and bombing Munda and making normal strikes against targets on Kolombangara, Ballale, Shortland and Kahili Islands.

Munda Is Bracketed.

The new landings, which increased the peril to Munda, were made Monday, today's communique disclosed. After American warships in the Kula Gulf had shelled Munda's supply base at Bairoko Anchorage before dawn Monday, the troops swarmed ashore at Rice Anchorage, four miles northeast of Bairoko. That landing point is above Munda.

Monday night, other American forces stormed ashore at Zanana, six miles east of Munda. They fanned out in patrols and latest reports were that some of them were fighting the Japanese along the Barike River.

It was before dawn the following morning that American warships made contact in the Kula Gulf above the scene of the latest landing operations with a Japanese cruiser-destroyer force. The surprised enemy was struck swift and telling blows by the guns of our warships, today's communique said.

"In the first phase of the engagement, four or five hostile destroyers were struck by smashing broadsides that within five minutes destroyed or set afire the entire group," it related. "Three or possibly four enemy light cruisers were then taken under fire. All were either sunk or afire within fifteen minutes. One was beached."

Later while the cruiser Helena's survivors were being rescued, "our destroyers intercepted and sank two of three enemy ships attempting to escape from the gulf and damaged the third."

[The dispatch from Admiral Halsey's headquarters said American warships trapped a numerically superior enemy force in the narrow gulf at close range and forced them to fight.]

While American Corsair fighters were in the air yesterday patrolling above Rendova Island, which we seized on June 30 with in artillery shelling distance of Munda, and over our landing forces at Zanana, they encountered Jap bombers escorted by fifty-eight Zeros. The resultant dogfights increased to approximately 190 the number of planes the enemy has expended trying to wrest mastery of the skies over the central Solomons from the Americans.

Out of that latest force of raiders, the Corsairs shot down three bombers and nine Zeros at a cost of only one of their own.

Our own planes got in some heavy blows. Above the Kula Gulf on Kolombangara Island, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless divebombers, escorted by Wildcat fighters, blasted the Japanese air base area at Vila with twenty-eight tons of bombs. Later Mitchell medium bombers, escorted by Lightnings and Warhawks, expanded the attack.

MARINES DRIVE JAPS OFF HIGH CLIFF INTO SEA

JUL 9 - 1943

Spectacular Capture Of Strategic Viru Harbor Is Described

Yanks Spring Surprise Rear Attack After Jungle March

By J. NORMAN LODGE

(Associated Press Correspondent)

With American Invasion Forces in New Georgia, July 5 (Delayed). United States Marines borrowed a page from the bloody Japanese notebook marked "Singapore" to capture strategic Viru harbor.

The Marines sprang a rear attack on Japanese troops around the harbor area after four days of a circuitous, slogging march through the jungles to reach their objective.

Then screaming Leathernecks drove undetermined numbers of the enemy off a 130-foot cliff into the sea and sent others fleeing into the jungle.

Harbor Made Safe

That's how they made the harbor safe for the New Georgia invasion.

The captain leading the marine force admitted that had he known the difficulties he never would have attempted the coup.

He also disclosed that the Marines spearheaded the direct invasion of New Georgia by landing at Segi June 20 and remained inactive until the full central Solomons offensive got under way a week later.

Surprised Japs

They were charged with the responsibility of the attack on Viru harbor from the rear and by this move surprised the defending Japanese, who were prepared for a frontal attack.

The surprise attack — copying the method by which the Japanese overwhelmed Singapore—came after the marines had made a heart-breaking jungle trip.

During the 30-mile trek the leathernecks were harrassed by snipers and occasionally ran into machine-gun nests, which they wiped out in short order.

Sergt. Howard Biggerstaff, combat correspondent from Cincinnati, described the tortuous trip.

"Our two companies left the night of June 27 in rubber boats for a native village north of our landing point and we reached there four and a half hours later.

Harried From The Rear

"Early the next morning the hike began. During the first day, a group of from 20 to 40 Japs began hitting our rear and we dispatched a detachment to take care of them. We killed eighteen of their men.

"The last platoon of our column charged up a hill in the face of machine-gun fire, throwing grenades and routing nests.

"One kid was shot in the right knee during the fracas. He stumbled, fell sideways, breaking his right ankle. But, in spite of intense pain, he insisted on continuing.

Kept Going Three Days

"We bandaged his knee and ankle and he kept going for three more days with the help of a couple of native guides, and participated in the final assault.

"We constantly fought off Jap snipers during June 29 and 30.

"We were scheduled to reach Viru the thirtieth but constant fighting held us up until July 1, when we reached the jungle behind Viru.

"The Japs occupied native villages at both sides of the harbor. It took a couple of platoons to gain the lesser objective, while the main body stormed the opposite side of the harbor.

Terrific Din

"It was shortly after 8 A. M. when we struck.

"The din was terrific—machine-gun fire, grenades, automatic weapons; our men swearing, yelling and Japs shouting 'banzai.'"

Biggerstaff estimated there were more than one hundred Japanese at Viru. Sixty-odd were killed.

"Our men," he continued, "encountered two machine-gun nests on a hill slope and wiped out one and routed the crew of the other.

Trees Felled, Snipers And All

"We charged up the slope 800 yards from the harbor amid the main Jap defenses, consisting of a dozen machine-gun nests covered by trees, which hid snipers.

"A special demolition squad took care of most of the nests, and felled trees, snipers and all.

"We reached the village shortly after noon. Firing ceased at 1.15 P. M. The village was piled high with dead Japs.

Army Troops Land

"Army troops began landing from ships in the harbor that afternoon. Jap shore batteries were destroyed by our dive-bombers.

"The main battle was over, but next morning a marine patrol encountered a solitary Jap, who took one look and jumped off a 130-foot cliff, screaming as if a million banshees were after him.

"The rest of the Jap troops—possibly more than 100—took to the hills, trying to reach Munda. We chased them. Many more took the cliff route out, preferring to lose life rather than face."

During the capture of Viru an unidentified marine sergeant passed a presumably dead Japanese. But he got a chill as he noticed that one eye of the fallen foe was following him. Taking no chance, the devil dog drew his pistol and fired twice, just in case the Japanese was feigning.

The invading force coming from the sea was delighted that threatening Japanese guns had been wiped out and readily opened their seabags to supply the marines with razors, soap, towels, clothing, smokes and hot food.

Jap Warship Losses Rise to Nine

2 Others Possibly Sunk in Kula Gulf Trap Set by American Navy

SPENCER

By The Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 8.—United States jungle fighters battled today within six miles of the Japanese air base on Munda from two new landing points on New Georgia Island, in the Central Solomons area where the enemy's hold has been weakened by a crushing naval defeat.

The new landings were disclosed today by General Douglas MacArthur in a communique which also contained the news that in the warship engagement during the darkness of July 5-6 above Munda in the Kula Gulf at least nine and possibly 11 Japanese cruisers and destroyers were sunk against the loss of the American cruiser Helena.

A despatch quoting sources at the South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey said no other American warship even sustained damage in the engagement and that most of the more than 800 reported aboard the cruiser Helena were saved.

Weight Begins to Tell

The growing weight of the Pacific offensive began to tell against Japan at the other end of the 700-mile arc as well. General MacArthur announced that in the jungle fight on the approaches to the Japanese air base of Salamaua, New Guinea, Australian troops cauptred Observation Hill between Salamaua and Mubo after its Japanese defenders has been killed or demoralized by 106 tons of bombs dropped in less than 45 minutes by Boston attack planes, Mitchell and Liberator bombers.

The new landings which increased the peril to Munda were made Monday, today's communique disclosed. After American warships in the Kula Gulf had shelled Munda's supply base at Bairoko Anchorage before dawn Monday, the troops swarmed ashore at Rice Anchorage, four miles northeast of Bairoko. That landing point is above Munda.

Monday night, other American forces stormed ashore at Zanan, six miles east of Munda. They fanned out in patrols and latest reports were that some of them were fighting the Japanese along the Barike River.

Enemy Was Surprised

It was before dawn the following morning that American warships made contact in the Kula Gulf above the scene of the latest landing operations with a Japanese cruiser-destroyer force.

The surprised enemy was struck swift and telling blows by the guns of our warships, today's communique said.

"In the first phase of the engagement, four or five hostile destroyers were struck by smashing broadsides that within five minutes destroyed or set afire the entire group," it related.

"Three or possibly four enemy light cruisers were then taken under fire. All were either sunk or afire within 15 minutes. One was beached."

Later, while the cruiser Helena's survivors were being rescued, "our destroyers intercepted and sank two of three enemy ships attempting to escape from the gulf and damaged the third."

The despatch from Admiral Halsey's headquarters described this phase of the battle by saying that two American destroyers blocked the path of a light cruiser and two destroyers attempting to sneak to safer waters. Our ships definitely sank the cruiser and one destroyer and damaged the second destroyer, it added.

Bombed Ships Explode

After daylight U. S. Army and Nav fliers found two damaged enemy destroyers stranded off Kolombangara and attacked them heavily, the despatch continued. Medium and dive bombers scored several direct hits on each destroyer. The two craft burned furiously and then exploded. They are a total loss.

The Japanese force was numerically superior to the Americans, the despatch declared, and were trapped in the narrow gulf at close range and forced to fight our warships.

Previously, General MacArthur's headquarters had listed the enemy's Kula Gulf losses as six ships probably sunk and four damaged.

While American Corsair fighters were in the air yesterday patrolling above Randova Island, which U. S. forces seized June 30 within artillery shelling distance of Munda, and over American landing forces at Zanana, they encountered Japanese bombers escorted by 58 Zeros. The resultant dogfights increased to approximately 190 the number of planes the enemy has expended trying to wrest mastery of the skies over the central Solomons from the Americans.

Shot Down 12 Jap Planes

Out of the latest force of raiders, the Corsairs shot down three bombers and nine Zeros at a cost of only one of their own. The communique today did not make clear whether the raiders succeeded in breaking through to their targets.

American planes got in some heavy blows. Above the Kula Gulf on Kolombangara Island, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive bombers, escorted by Wildcat fighters, blasted the Japanese air base area at Vila with 28 tons of bombs. Later, Mitchell medium bombers, escorted by Lightnings and Warhawks, expanded the attack.

Over the New Guinea jungle front, in addition to the aerial bombardment of Observation Hill, Allied planes bombed and strafed the Japanese at Bobdubi, within five miles of Salamaua, and raided the supply barge sector of Labu lagoon above Salamaua near Lae.

Details on Raids Added

Elaborating on a Navy announcement in Washington, the communique said that four-engined Liberators and Fortresses have struck at the Japanese behind-the-lines air force in the Buin-Faisi area in the Northern Solomons. They dropped 45 tons of bombs while enemy warships and shore batteries fired at them, then fought off Japanese fighters on the way home. Two bombers failed to return. The bombs started fires at the Kahili-Ballale airdromes which sent up heavy clouds of smoke, some rising 4,000 feet.

In later reports of a Japanese air raid in force made ineffectively on Darwin, Australia, Tuesday, ten bombers and two fighters out of the 58 which came over were listed as destroyed and four other planes damaged. It previously was disclosed that seven intercepting Spitfires were downed but a majority of the pilots was saved.

18 Japanese Captured By Trobriands Natives

Survivors of Bismarck Sea Battle Outwitted by Chief

KIRIWINA ISLAND, Trobriand Group, July 8 (AP).—Outsmarted by the ruling chieftain of the Trobriand Islands, eighteen Japanese were captured here by Kiriwina natives and turned over to the Australian Army, it was disclosed today.

The Japanese were survivors of the battle of the Bismarck Sea and landed on Kiriwina last March. The natives brought them to Omafkana, the capital of the Trobriand Islands and headquarters for Chief Mitakata.

The chief ordered the Japanese fed and then advised them they probably would be apprehended by the Australians unless they split into smaller parties of three each. The natives led the Japanese parties on separate tracks. Native police boys then captured and took them to the Australian administrative officer, the only white man on the island, at Losula Government Station.

Mitakata, one of the few Kiriwinas boasting the luxury of a harem and a food house containing twenty tons of vegetables, now has American troops camped on all sides.

Asked through an interpreter how he happened to divide the Japanese survivors into small parties, the chief cannily replied that he knew his men couldn't overpower eighteen at once but could take on three at a time without any trouble.

Tokio Offers Its Version

The Tokio radio, in a broadcast heard yesterday by the National Broadcasting Company said that in the six-day battle of Rendova Island and New Georgia thirty enemy warships had been sunk or damaged, and 120 enemy planes shot down. It listed the ship toll as follows: sunk, two cruisers, three warships, five destroyers, one torpedo boat, eight transports and ten "military" vessels; damaged, two cruisers, one destroyer, one torpedo boat and four transports.

NAZIS DRIVE NEW WEDGE IN BELGOROD LINE

Red Army's Position Declared Improved In Orel-Kursk Areas

JUL 9 - 1943

1,843 German Tanks And 810 Planes Destroyed In 4-Day Battle

McGAFFIN

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Friday, July 9 — The fourth day of the powerful German offensive closed last night with the Nazis still struggling on the outer rim of the Kursk salient, although the Soviets officially announced that the German had driven still another tank wedge in the Belgorod sector below Kursk.

The Russian communique also said that Soviet counter-attacks had improved the Red army's position in the Orel-Kursk sectors, and that 304 more German tanks were destroyed or damaged during the day and 161 planes shot down, bringing the toll for four days to 1,843 tanks and 810 planes.

5,000 Nazis Die In One Sector

Five thousand Germans killed in one sector alone boosted the enemy's casualties to at least 35,000 on the basis of still incomplete reports.

These losses were not as large as in the first three days of the gigantic tank, plane, and infantry battle, but military experts said this was understandable because the Germans could not afford to continue to take the big losses they did at the reckless beginning of their big push.

The important news here were indications that the situation remains virtually unchanged despite the enformity of the Nazi effort.

Reds Pound Foe's Rear Lines

Russian bombers continued to pound the enemy's rear lines behind Orel, Kursk and Belgorod. An official announcement said that on Wednesday night the bombers "caused heavy losses to the enemy" in attacks on his troop trains, tanks, and trucks and at river crossings without the loss of a single raider.

In a single narrow sector of the Kursk-Orel front the Russians said the Germans had hurled 90,000 men against Red army positions without achieving a break-through. It was in this fight yesterday that the Germans lost more than 5,000 men, 120 tanks, 33 guns, 150 machine guns and hundreds of trucks in three futile charges, the communique said.

In the Belgorod sector, the Russians said their troops had allowed the Axis tanks to get through, cutting off the enemy infantry and "inflicting devastating blows on them," while Russian anti-tank gunners and tank crews began whittling down the enemy armor in the wedge.

Hope Of Wiping Out Nazi Wedge

This statement offered some hope that the German wedge soon would be wiped out in this sector, where the Germans have advanced four times in as many days.

In the Kursk-Orel sector, Russian counter-attacks were said to have "dislodged the enemy from a number of populated places occupied during the first day of the offensive." This was the first Soviet admission that the Russians ever had been pushed back in that area.

Nazi Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge was said to be using nearly 500,000 men, supported by thousands of tanks and airplanes, in his ambitious effort to crush the central Red army.

Focal Points Of Battle

[German propaganda accounts—which, incidentally also told of the appearance of "secret new weapons"—placed the focal points of the swaying battle twelve miles south of Orel and thirty-seven north of Belgorod. German columns striking southward and northward were trying to pinch off the middle point of Kursk.

[One Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press acknowledged that the Russians still hold their deep Kursk salient, but said that the Germans had expanded the "depth of their break-through on a wide front."

[The Kursk salient, the Germans admitted, still runs as far west as Sevsk, eighty-five miles from Kursk. They are hitting it on the northern and southern sides.

Hitler's "Super Tiger" Tanks

[German announcers broadcast dispatches saying the Germans were using "super tiger" tanks superior to the sixty-ton Mark VI machines, and also a "projector" artillery weapon whose fire leveled a forest and made "the whole terrain look as if a giant steam roller had gone over it."]

The Russians made no mention of encountering any such new German weapons, reporting bluntly:

"The Germans are suffering enormous losses in manpower and equipment. Hundreds of disabled and burned out enemy tanks are left on the battlefield as well as many smashed trucks and German planes."

Nazi Version Of Soviet Losses

[The German high command said the Russians had lost more than 400 tanks in Wednesday's action, and later Berlin broadcasts asserted that Soviet losses were several times greater than those of the Germans.

[Berlin said the American General Shermans, "the strongest United States tank type," had not yet appeared on the battlefield, but that the Russians were using the older Grant and Lee models.

[German and Russian accounts termed the violent struggle for 7,500 square miles of flat, blackland farms forming the Kursk bulge the greatest tank battle the world has known. The sky fight aloft raged with similar fury.]

Russian figures of German losses in machines and men approached the ten per cent. mark, at which an army's morale often begins to sag.

Reds Rally in Orel And Kursk Sectors

Raise Foe's 4-Day Losses to 35,000 Men, 1,843 Tanks and 810 Planes

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 9 (Friday).—German tanks drove still another wedge into the Soviet lines in the Belgorod sector south of the Kursk bulge yesterday, in history's greatest armored conflict, but Moscow declared early today that the Red Army stood firm elsewhere and even had recovered some lost ground to the north.

Russian fire on Thursday smashed 304 more German tanks and downed 161 more enemy planes for a four-day toll of 1,843 tanks and 810 planes, said a midnight communique broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor at London.

German losses in men had passed the 35,000 mark, the Russian communique said. Five thousand enemy troops fell Thursday in a single narrow sector on the Kursk-Orel front, where the Germans hurled 90,000 men against Red Army lines without achievin a break-through, it said.

Reds Cut Off Nazi Infantry

In the Belgorod sector, the Russians said, their troops allowed Axis tanks to get through, cutting off the enemy infantry and "inflicting devastating blows on them," while Russian anti-tank gunners and tank crews began whittling down the enemy armor in the wedge.

This statement offered some prospect that the German wedge soon would be destroyed in that sector, where the Germans have advanced four times in as many days.

In the Kursk-Orel sector Russian counter-attacks were said to have "dislodged the enemy from a number of populated places occupied during the first day of the offensive." It was the first Soviet admission that the Russians had been pushed back in that area.

The Russians made no mention of encountering any such new German weapons, stating definitely: "The Germans are suffering enormous losses in man power and equipment. Hundreds of disabled and burnt-out enemy tanks are left on the battlefield, as well as many smashed trucks and German planes."

The German high command communique issued Thursday and recorded here from the Berlin radio said rather vaguely that German forces had pierced the Russian lines, but the extent and the locations were not given.

"In the Belgorod sector and south of Orel, fierce tank battles were fought yesterday in the course of which anti-aircraft artillery, fighter bombers and squadrons of the tactical air force destroyed more than 400 Soviet tanks," the communique said. "The deeply echeloned enemy defense system was broken through by German forces after stubborn fighting in wooded territory and in villages."

German accounts said that both sides were hurling reserves into the fight. One Berlin broadcast said: "Our air reconnaissance shows that the Russians are determined to employ all their troops to master any possible threat." Another commentary by the German Transocean Agency's military correspondent, Lieutenant Kurt Jeserich, said the Russians were fighting a defensive form of warfare in which "they are masters."

Nazis Bolster Plane-Tank Drive East

JUL 9 — 1943

Rush up more Troops after Russians Kill 30,000 in 3 Days

McGAFFIN

By The Associated Press

Moscow, July 8.—Fresh Nazi reserves were reported pushing through smoke and dust along paths marked by wrecked machines and the dead today to bolster the Kursk plains o ffensive which the Red Army, fighting more brilliantly than ever before, has limited to small gains in the Belgorod sector.

Russian forces slew 30,000 Germans, destroyed or damaged 1,539 tanks and shot down 649 planes during the first three days of the battle, it was announced officially.

Nazi air force squadrons are attached constantly to the invasion armored columns under a new German plan of attack by which Hitler's high command hopes to pinch off the 60-mile-deep Soviet salient extending westward from Kursk. The immediate assignment of the Germans obviously is to attempt to push north from Belgorod and south from Orel, 165 miles apart, to a junction somewhere behind the Russian-held rail city.

Greatest Tank Battles

[A Berlin military spokesman declared in a radio broadcast that tank battles yesterday in the area of Belgorod and south of Orel were "the greatest ever fought on the eastern front."]

Only on the southern end of the fiercely blazing 165-mile front between Orel and Belgorod, some 200 miles south of Moscow, have the Germans made any gains, the Russians asserted.

Near Belgorod, said a special communique issued this morning, the concentrated German strength has "succeeded in driving a wedge, to an insignificant distance, into our defenses," enveloping several villages at a cost of tremendous losses.

[In a DNB broadcast a German propaganda agency, the International Information Bureau, asserted the Nazi forces had destroyed 400 tanks and knocked down 193 planes in the Belgorod and Orel sectors. The broadcast, recorded by the Assooiated Press, also said that deeply echeloned Russian positions had been broken.]

Greatest Single Blow

While the German losses in men and material were regarded here as the greatest single blow ever inflicted upon the German war machine, the Russians warned against undue optimism.

"It would be wrong for us to underestimate the strength of the German troops conducting the big offensive," said the communique. "German forces here are great. Today it is too early to formulate a final conclusion concerning the outcome of the battles."

The special announcement reported the Germans had hurled approximately 450,000 men, or 30 divisions —14 tank divisions, one motorized, and 15 infantry—into the attempt to capture Kursk, one prong driving southward from the Orel region and another northward from Belgorod.

"It is sufficient to glance at the map to understand the operative plan of the German command," the communique pointed out. "It envisaged the engagement and annihilation of our troops stationed along the arc of the Kursk salient."

Line Bulges West

At the start of the heavy attack the morning of July 5, the stalemated line bulged westward in a great semi-circle from Orel around Kursk and back to the Belgorod area.

[In a Berlin broadcast heard in London last night by The Associated Press, Lieutenant Kurt Jeserich, Trans-Ocean military commentator, described the fighting as "the Battle for Kursk," and made the first German admission that the Nazis had launched an offensive. Nazi propaganda previously had held to the line that it was the Russians who opened the attack the morning of July 5.

[The Germans asserted they had made gains in the Orel sector at the northern end of the line as well as at Belgorod despite resistance of "400,000 crack Soviet troops supported by very strong tank and artillery forces."]

Air Reinforcements Move Up

The Russians, reporting that "the Red army has before it the largest and most powerfully armed enemy any country ever has faced," declared the Germans had brought up air reinforcements from western Europe and Yugoslavia as well as from other sectors of the eastern front.

Both sides said great air battles were raging.

[In fact, said the Trans-Ocean commentator in last night's broadcast, "the Germans are throwing more aircraft into action than the Anglo-Saxons ever did in the fight for Tunisia."]

Fierce tank clashes added great clamor to the din of the battle line.

The Russians said the Nazi armor, operating mostly in units of about ten but at some places charging 300 to 400 strong, constantly stormed Soviet fortifications, with mechanized infantry following.

But the Red forces, employing Stormovik planes, artillery and tanks of their own, were said to be holding steadily against the wall of enemy armor.

GERBINI IS HIT IN 19 ATTACKS

Fighter Opposition Described As Reduced In Sicily And Sardinia Raids

JUL 9 — 1943

Secret Italian Radio Appeals To People For Overthrow Of Mussolini

MORIN

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 8—The Allied commanders sent heavy aerial squadrons across Sicily and Sardinia yesterday, throwing in nineteen assaults on the Sicilian airdrome network of Gerbini alone and meeting no fighter opposition over that area.

Bomb attacks were reaching the scope of an unending storm—above Gerbini itself there had hardly been a moment in the past twenty-four hours when the sky was clear of Allied raiders—and as this storm came closer to the Italian mainland there were increasing indications that Mussolini was having difficulty in maintaining Italian unity.

Monitors of the Tunis radio disclosed that a clandestine Italian station calling itself "Radio Italo Balbo" had been for three successive nights appealing to the people to overthrow the Duce.

Appeal To Catholics

"The perverted Italians of the present Fascist party are doomed to die in disgrace," said one of these broadcasts.

"Italians, this group of faithful disciples of the great Marshal Balbo appeals to your morality as Catholics. The scandals that soil our people must cease and the criminals must be punished."

Marshal Italo Balbo was killed on a flight over Libya in 1940.

Yesterday's air attacks against airdromes and enemy communications cost a total of five Allied planes lost. Ten enemy planes were destroyed.

Other Points Hit

Aside from Gerbini, other points hard hit included Palermo, Sciacca, Borizzo, Milo, Comiso.

Enemy fighter opposition was officially described as on a "reduced scale."

American Warhawk fighters over Borizzo airfield for almost an hour scored the biggest single victory, shooting down six enemy craft.

The Italian command, in a communique broadcast from Rome, asserted that Italian torpedo planes had hit and in all likelihood sunk two Allied steamers aggregating 13,000 tons. It was claimed also that a total of nineteen Allied planes had been shot down.

Sicily Blasted for Fifth Day

Gerbini Airfields Hit 19 Times—10 Axis Planes Shot Down—Allies Lose 5.

JUL 9 — 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 8 (A. P.).—The relentless Allied air assault against Sicily and Sardinia went through its fifth consecutive day yesterday with heavy bombings of airfields and other military targets, it was announced officially today.

Enemy fighter opposition was reported to have been on a reduced scale but nevertheless Allied fighters shot down ten Axis planes for a loss of five of their own.

Gerbini in eastern Sicily, scene of an air battle between American Flying Fortresses and more than 100 enemy planes on Monday, was battered nineteen more times yesterday by Fortresses, Mitchells and Marauders, and they did not encounter a single enemy aircraft.

American Warhawk fighters escorting R. A. F. Baltimore bombers in a raid on Borizzo in western Sicily gained six of the day's ten victories They hovered over Borizzo airfield for almost an hour.

Gerbini Feels Main Weight.

While all of western Sicily felt some of the weight of the bombardment—Warhawks even went down to strafe isolated military targets in the countryside—the great network of airfields in and around Gerbini was the main theater of Allied operations.

Following the day raids, R. A. F. Wellington bombers carried the assault into the night with attacks on Palermo and Sciacca. Returning crews reported the weakness of ground fire over Palermo indicated that the defenders were being swamped by bombs.

Nineteen times within twenty-four hours Allied planes were over Gerbini. Bombs tore up runways on all of Gerbini's ten airdromes, smashed revetments and ploughed dispersal areas. The swarm of Axis fighters that rose to fight the Flying Fortresses [illegible]e days ago were nowhere in

One of the victorious American pilots in the battle over Borizzo was First Lieutenant Walter B. Walker, of Stamford, Conn. He had the unusual experience of "blacking out" while dueling with a German Messerschmitt, waking up to find his enemy directly behind him—and living to tell the tale.

"We dived at the same time and I blacked out," Walker said. "When I came to I was in a turn, with the Messerschmitt turning right behind me and firing. He wasn't turning sharply enough for his tracers to reach me, though. I began firing again when he slow-rolled and I saw my tracers hit his engine. I saw his ship plunge into the sea."

The Warhawk squadron which racked up the six combat victories over Borizzo was led by Major Robert L. Baseler, of Lake Columbia, Conn.

Royal Air Force Baltimores had to dive through a layer of clouds to bomb Milo airfield, Sicily, but once they found the field, they did a thorough job, causing one large fire that the crews thought was from a fuel dump.

Rail Centers Blasted

Soon after that raid American fighter-bombers attacked a rail center and warehouses at Mazara on the coast of Sicily. Captain Paul A. Striegel, of Springfiel, Mo., said: "At least eight of our bombs plunked into the same warehouse beside the railroad yards."

Other fighter-bombers went out twice on "hunting trips." They machine-gunned a train and saw four freight cars burning fiercely as they left. Not far away American Mitchells were unloading thirty tons of bombs on the Biscari airfield and other fighter-bombers were raking the battered air base at Sciacca.

Later in the day, fighter-bombers scored direct hits with 500-pound bombs on military targets at the Port of Empedocle. One flyer, Lieutenant John T. Bask, of South Orange, N. J., said: "Just as I was ready to let go my load I saw two bombs from the plane ahead smack square on the target, so I just let mine go in the same place to add to the general confusion."

The Italian command, in a communique broadcast from Rome, asserted that Italian torpedo planes had hit and in all likelihood sunk two Allied steamships aggregating 13,000 tons. It was reported also that a total of nineteen Allied planes had been shot down.

FRENCH TOWN IS EVACUATED

Sete, On Mediterranean, Classified By Germans As "Threatened City"

[By the Associated Press]

Algiers, July 8—German occupation authorities in France have classified the French Mediterranean coastal town of Sete as "an urgently threatened city," the French Commissariat of Information said tonight, and the civilian population is being forcibly deported from there.

A copy of orders issued by the Germans has reached French authorities here. Similar ordinances were said to have been applied to Hendaye, St. Jean de Luz, Bayonne and Biarritz in southwestern France along the Atlantic near the Spanish border.

West Of Marseille

Sete is west of Marseille, about midway between that big port and the Spanish border. Only persons described as "essential elements of the population" are permitted to remain in their homes, the French said here.

Latest information received from all parts of France indicates that the morale of patriots has skyrocketed with news of increasing Allied pressure on Italy, and a belief that France itself may be invaded at any moment.

One report said that of 278 youths in the central Allier district, summoned to report at police stations presumably for labor service in Germany, only eight showed up.

2 U. S. GENERALS WIN FRENCH CITATIONS

Juin Praises Roosevelt and Allen for Aid in Tunisia

ALGIERS, July 8 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Terry Allen and Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., were cited today in dispatches for conspicuous service by Gen. Alphonse Juin, military commander of French Africa.

Referring to Maj. Gen. Allen, who commanded the first U. S. Infantry division in the Tunisian campaign, Juin's order said:

"He rushed his division onto the Ousseltia Plain and brought to French troops there on the 29th, 30th and 31st of January decisive support in spite of difficulties of terrain.

"He gained, in a few days, initiative over the enemy and then blocked all further advance of the enemy.

"By his coolness, his tactical sense and his personal actions he built between French and American troops placed under his orders a tested solidarity and comradeship."

General Juin's citation of Brigadied General Roosevelt said:

"As commander of a Franco-American detachment on the Ousseltia plain in the region of Pichon in the face of a very aggressive enemy, he showed the finest qualities of decision and determination in the defense of his sector.

"Showing complete contempt for personal danger, he never ceased, during the period of Jan. 28-Feb. 21, visiting troops in the front lines, making vital decisions on the spot, winning the esteem and admiration of the units under his command and developing throughout his detachment the finest fraternity of arms."

Flying Fort Gunner Weds WAC At Algiers

Algiers, July 8 (AP)—A Flying Fortress gunner married a WAC in Holy Trinity Church here today, and as a veteran of fifty bombing missions he is expected to leave for the United States soon after a three-day furlough-honeymoon.

In the first overseas wedding of a WAC to an American soldier, Staff Sergeant Virgil E. Major, of Ridgeway, Mont., and Auxiliary (first class) Marjorie A. Wilson, of Berkeley, Cal., were married by Chaplain Cecil B. Lawter, of Atlanta, Ga.

Two Russian Awards Go To Designer Of Boiler

Moscow, July 8 (AP)—Professor Leonid Ramzin has been awarded the Order of Lenin and the Stalin prize of 150,000 rubles for designing a "uniflow" boiler which is reported to save from twelve to fourteen per cent. in fuel, it was announced today.

[Editor's Note: The ruble has a "nominal" value of about 19 cents, but its true purchasing power can not be determined accurately because there is no free market.]

Ramzin designed the "uniflow" boiler in 1931, while serving a prison sentence incurred while he was leader of the "Prom" industrial party. Later on he was rehabilitated and is now chief of the "uniflow" boiler department of the Commissariat of Heavy Industry. The boiler has been ordered into serial production.

VON KLUGE HEADS NAZI PUSH

Russians Assert Field Marshal Directs 3-Day-Old Offensive

London, July 8—(AP)—Despatches from Moscow report that Field Marshal General Guenther von Kluge is commanding the three-day-old German offensive on the Russian front, but thus far there has been no word as to who is directing the Russian defense.

According to last reports, Colonel General F. I. Golikov, who directed the Russian offensive against Kharkov last winter, was in command of Soviet forces on the Voronezh front and Colonel General Max Andreivitch Reiter was in charge in the Orel sector to the north.

Whether there has been any recent change in these assignments was unknown here, however.

NAZI LEADERS FEAR ALLIED ATTACK TO AID RUSSIAN ARMY

JUL 9 - 1943

Germans Report Arrival of U. S. Warships in Mediterranean.

LONDON, July 8—(AP) Fear of Allied invasion sent a new alert to Axis outposts tonight along the gun-studded rim of Europe as the Germans reported menacing activity by Allied warships in the Mediterranean and inferentially expressed anxiety that Britain and the United States would coordinate their impending blows with those of the Red army.

"A synchronization of the Allied command with Moscow at the present moment would be a ... gerous experiment," said a G... broadcast.

U. S. Fleet Units Arrived

The Nazis, in a broadcast by their "international information bureau," a propaganda agency, declared that American cruisers and aircraft carriers had arrived to bolster the Allied Mediterranean fleet and that several hundred thousand tons of Allied shipping had been concentrated there.

This report dovetailed with dispatches telling of heightened unrest and defense preparations in the eastern Mediterranean, especially in Greece and Crete.

A Vichy broadcast recorded by the British news agency Reuters said that the Axis defenders of Crete "are always ready for the zero hour" and that Axis naval forces off Crete were "ready for the attack at a moment's notice." German air fields were reported dispersed all over the island coasts.

Study Resources

Dingle M. Foot, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry for Economic Warfare, did nothing to ease Axis nerves with the statement in Commons that the ministry had been assessing the resources of various parts of Europe for use of invading Allied armies.

"For the last 12 months at least our work in this direction has been mostly concerned with certain areas on the continent of Europe," he observed.

A German broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said the Allies had 44 infantry divisions and 15 to 20 tank formations between Morocco and Syria along the southern shore of the Mediterranean and that parachute troops and airborne divisions were standing by to force "one or more bridgeheads."

The Morocco radio, recorded by Reuters, quoted roundabout reports that German troop reinforcements were constantly arriving in southern Greece and the Dodecanese islands.

Foot, reporting the destruction of large quantities of Axis supplies, asserted that enemy blockade-running had been brought to a virtual standstill and that 700,000 tons of enemy shipping had been sunk since the occupation of North Africa.

Illustrating the effectiveness of Allied air attacks against Germany proper, he remarked that the Flying Fortress raid of last month on the Huls synthetic rubber plant would keep it out of operation for many months.

He said it appeared from recent information that the Germans were taking all moveable equipment from the Ruhr.

"If this is so," he said, "it is extremely significant because it shows that they themselves know that the battle of the Ruhr is lost."

NAZIS AGAIN TELL OF ALLIED FLEET

Report Great Sea Force has Left Gibraltar for Invasion Blow

By The Associated Press

London, July 8.—The Berlin radio reported today that battle units of the Allied Mediterranean fleet, reinforced by recently arrived American cruisers and aircraft carriers, had left Gibraltar, leading "to the supposition that the American Allied commander is preparing for an attack against Europe."

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, declared that the Allies, in addition to strong concentrations of warships and transports, have 44 infantry divisions and 15 to 20 tank formations poised between Morocco and Syria.

These forces were said to include parachute battalions and airborne troops whose task, the broadcast declared, "would be to create at first one or more bridgeheads."

'Locally Tied Down'

"At first sight," the German radio said, "these figures would appear considerable, but at least half of the Allied forces are regionally and locally tied down," in Algeria, Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Cyprus and elsewhere.

Other forces also are held down by a complicated supply system, while "it is an open secret that General Eisenhower's American divisions have still to be thoroughly overhauled as regards training," the broadcast said.

The available effective forces, therefore, it added, constitute only a fraction of the total Allied troops tationed in the Mediterranean.

Tells of 2 Battleships

The broadcast, by the propaganda agency known as the "international information bureau," declared that among the fleets units leaving Gibraltar were two British battleships of the King George class—which includes the King George V, Duke of York, Anson and Howe.

Several hundred thousand tons of merchant shipping still remain concentrated at Gibraltar, the Germans said.

The broadcast reports concerning Allied naval movements and manpower were totally without confirmation from any Allied source.

RAF NIGHT BOMBERS RESUME OPERATIONS

Planes Heard Over Channel—Day Patrols Harry Coast

LONDON, Friday, July 9 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers in some strength were heard crossing the English coast toward the Continent late last night—the first time they have been out in sizable force in five nights.

The last heavy raid was July 3 when the Kalk and Deutz districts of Cologne were battered.

The weather over the English Channel was reported cool and clear after a day of thunderstorms.

R.A.F. PLANES RAID CITIES IN GERMANY

Strong Force of Bombers Heads East Across Channel.

JUL 9 - 1943

LONDON, Friday, July 9—(AP) R.A.F. bombers returned to the assault on Germany last night after a four-night lull in the Allied aerial offensive against the Reich, the British announced today.

As usual, the preliminary announcement did not disclose the specified target of the British raiders. There were indications, however, that the attack was carried out in some strength, observers on the British southeast coast reporting that considerable numbers of bombers were heard heading eastward across the channel last night.

The operation was favored by favorable weather, the skies clearing last evening after a day of thunderstorms.

It was the R.A.F.'s first assault on Germany since last Saturday night, when Cologne, Hamburg and objectives in the Ruhr were subjected to a heavy attack.

British Report on Air Toll

LONDON, July 8 (AP).—British naval and merchant ships and aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm have shot down a total of 1,004 Axis planes in the last three and a quarter years, the Admiralty announced today. In addition, the Royal and merchant navies probably destroyed an additional 321 planes and damaged 593, the announcement said.

Also Destroys Nazi Plane and Damages Minesweeper

LONDON, July 8 (AP).—Royal Air Force Typhoons and Mustangs carried out offensive patrols over northern France and the Low Countries this afternoon, it was learned authoritatively today.

The planes were reported to have destroyed one German aircraft and damaged several locomotives and a minesweeper. One RAF plane was missing.

ALLIED BLOCKADE RESULTS ARE TOLD

London, July 8 (A. P.).—Dingle M. Foot, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Economic Warfare, told the House of Commons today that during the past year the Axis lost at sea 30,000 tons of rubber, 5,000 tons of tin, 25,000 tons of edible oils and considerable quantities of quinine and tungsten. Since the Allies occupied North Africa, 700,000 tons of Axis shipping have been sunk and 300,000 tons severely damaged, Mr. Foot added.

In the spring and summer of 1942 several ships were able to run the blockade between Germany and Japan, but this has been virtually halted in the past eight months., and with the blockade of Europe at last working effectively it will not be relaxed to give food and other relief to the peoples of the occupied countries, because any such relaxation would inevitably be exploited by the enemy, Mr. Foot declared. "Undoubtedly there are acute shortages of certain kinds of foodstuffs in the towns and cities," but it would be a mistake to suppose that famine prevails generally in the occupied countries, he continued.

Nogues, reported to be one of fifteen alleged pro-Vichy officials whose elimination from French North Africa affairs was demanded by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, was ousted from his Moroccan post on June 7 and was succeeded by

[By the Associated Press]

A United States Bomber Station in England, July 8—The secret of the superiority of the Flying Fortress over Nazi fighter planes and the "black box" sighting device which helps United States gunners take a big toll of the enemy were made public today for the first time.

The device—a Sperry automatic computing sight — automatically compensates for such variables in aiming as bullet drop and deflection (lateral sweep of bullet from speeding plane) and the distance of the target.

The gunner, instead of sighting along his barrel, looks into a peephole in his sighting machine, which resembles an over-size news camera.

Bracketing the image of his target—the enemy plane—in the viewfinder are two vertical white lines known as "light gates."

Quick Adjustments

The gunner can make necessary adjustments with thumbscrews in a second or two. The machine, which is set in advance for the width of German planes and the average deflection, and automatically compensates for the swing of the turret, both horizontally and vertically, instantly "adds" in adjustments and reflects the answer by the moving of the two white "gate" lines closer together or farther apart.

When the lines touch the wing tips of the enemy plane in the image the gunner knows that if he presses his trigger he will hit the plane.

The top and ball turrets are the two busiest pairs of the ship's dozen guns, since they cover a complete circle.

Fortresses have a fundamental advantage over fighters in a shooting duel, group operations officer Major Robert C. Williams, of Flint, Mich., said, in that fighter pilots, having fixed guns, have to aim the whole plane, which is not effective at much closer than 400 yards.

Effective 600 Yards

The swinging Fortress guns, however, are effective at 600 to 800 yards so that the bombers can get in their lethal bursts ahead of the enemy, the officer said.

Up to a couple of weeks ago, Williams added, seventy to seventy-five per cent. of the recent German fighter attacks were from the front. Against this the Americans had been "stacking" another group of bombers below and slightly back of the lead formation, he explained.

Thus, when the Germans zoomed in head-on, fired and rolled over quickly and then plunged downward to escape the lead group's guns, they fell right into the range of the lower group.

Two Athens Officials Resign

LONDON, July 8 (AP).—The Algiers radio reported today that the Minister of Public Works and Chief of Police at Athens have resigned as a result of street demonstrations by Greek patriots following upon American air raids on landing fields near Athens and Salonica two weeks ago. The broadcast, heard by The Associated Press, said the Axis occupation authorities had declared martial law in Greece.

Gen. Wood Gets Air Supply Post

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—United States Army Headquarters announced today that Brig. Gen. Myron R. Wood had been appointed Chief of the Supply Division of the Eighth Air Force Service Command. The announcement said that General Wood, 50-year-old native of Boulder, Colo., was one of four officers who organized the service command. He will be in charge of supplying the thousands of items necessary for the repair and maintenance of all United States aircraft in the European theatre of operations.

Nazi [illegible]jor Said To H[illegible]e Made 7 Trips To England

Stockholm, July 8 (AP)—The Berlin correspondent of Stockholm Aftonbladet today told of a mysterious German major called "EX" who was purported to have made seven trips to England since the war began to scout in advance of alleged German commando raids.

Aftonbladet's correspondent said the officer, described as not of German birth, was believed to have landed in England at various times by submarine, by motor boat and as a parachutist.

The dispatch said that Nazi commando raids on England so far has been rare, but said reliable German quarters predicted they would increase in the near future.

(There have been no Allied reports of any Nazi commando-type raids on England.)

Goebbels Takes Over Theaters

Stockholm, July 8 (AP)—Berlin dispatches said today Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels had taken over the operation of all German theaters from private operators because of dissatisfaction with the programs. The reports indicated he believed the programs were not attuned to the Nazi war effort.

Sikorski's Papers Recovered

Gibraltar, July 8 (AP)—Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski's dispatch case, containing state paper and presumably a recent letter to him from President Roosevelt, has been recovered from the wreckage of the passenger plane in which the former Polish leader crashed to his death here last Sunday night, it was reported today.

Madrid, July 8 (AP)—A Cifra (Spanish news agency) dispatch from Algeciras said tonight that Polish destroyers with the body of Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski left Gibraltar for Britain. The Polish Premier crashed to his death in a passenger plane taking off from Gibraltar.

Chinese Report Figures For Sixth Year Of War—Four Big Battles Fought

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Friday, July 9—The Japanese suffered more than 187,860 casualties in the sixth year of the Chinese war, a Chinese army spokesman reported today in an annual review.

The spokesman said that during that year, which ended Wednesday, there were four major battles, 71 important engagements, 3,034 minor engagements and 1,043 guerrilla clashes.

The Chinese took 2,209 Japanese prisoners and captured considerable quantities of war material, the report said.

Passed From Defensive

Gen. Chen Cheng, hero of the recent victory over Japanese forces on the upper Yangtze, told his troops today that China had "passed from the defensive to the counter-offensive stage" and exhorted them to complete their mission.

"As the hour of victory draws nearer our responsibilities will be increased correspondingly," he reminded his men in an order of the day.

CHINESE ROUT FOE NEAR BURMA LINE

Force General Retreat From Mengting in Yunnan—Remnants Rounded Up

CHUNGKING, China, July 8 (AP)—Chinese troops have driven the Japanese from Mengting, a Burma-Yunnan Province border town which the invaders occupied a week ago, and started them on a general retreat westward, a High Command communiqué said today.

Several hundred casualties were reported inflicted in a brisk Chinese counter-attack begun last Saturday.

"Those [Japanese] remaining are being rounded up, while retreating troops were waylaid and attacked by Chinese forces at Huipien," the communiqué said.

NEW DELHI, India, July 8 (AP)—United States medium bombers damaged Japanese-controlled tracks, rolling stock and warehouses yesterday in attacks on railroad yards at Shwebo and eight other points in Central Burma, a communiqué announced today.

"One flight also bombed a large river boat near Mandalay, leaving the boat in a sinking condition," the bulletin said.

From both these American forays and related British attacks, all planes returned.

Royal Air Force dive-bombers loosed explosives yesterday in the center of a Japanese Army camp at Thaungdara, near the Mayu River, twenty miles north of Rathedaung, followed up with machine-gun attacks and left a fire burning, a British communiqué announced today.

Hurricanes escorted the dive-bombers on this mission.

Beaufighters shot up Irrawaddy River shipping and, at Naunghla, they set an oil storage tank afire, it was announced.

Despite heavy clouds and rains of the monsoon season which restricted operations during the past six days, a number of attacks have been made on enemy supply craft and troop positions and every RAF plane has returned, the communiqué said.

Medals Given To Crew Of Mme. Chiang's Plane

Chungking, July 7 (Delayed) (AP). Seven crew members of the American air transport on which Mme. Chiang Kai-shek returned to China Sunday were decorated with the Chinese Standard of Clouds medal today.

The airmen were Madame Chiang's guests at luncheon in the generalissimo's residence.

They are Capt. C. N. Shelton, First Officer J. B. Connor, Second Officer C. S. Sorge, Navigator R. D. Alderman, Flight Engineer K. M. Blossom, Second Engineer K. J. Gurney and Radioman E. W. Korf.

U. S. BOMBS CANTON BASE

One of 20 Raiders Shot down, Berlin Radio Reports

London, July 8—(AP)—Twenty American fighter-bombers attacked the Japanese base at Canton on the South China coast yesterday, the Berlin radio quoted advices from Tokyo as saying today.

The broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press, said one of the raiders was shot down.

Argentine Move Held Hint Of Break With Axis

Montevideo, July 8 (AP)—Foreign Minister Segundo Storni, of Argentina, today informed the Emergency Committee for Political Defense of the Hemisphere that Argentina would study cooperation in hemisphere defense. Pro-democratic circles in Buenos Aires welcomed the announcement as opening the road to an eventual break with the Axis.

Storni in a letter to the chairman, Vice-President Alberto N. Guani, of Uruguay, said the new Argentine Government would set up a permanent inter-ministerial committee to deal with the Montevideo emergency committee's proposals.

As an additional indication of Argentina's willingness to cooperate with its neighbors, its delegate, Guillermo de Achaval, attended for the first time a meeting of the emergency committee.

SMUTS HAILS POLL

Johannesburg, July 8 (A. P.).—The Prime Minister, Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, declared in a statement today that "there is every indication that the people rallied to the support of the Government and the war effort" at South Africa's general election yesterday.

The vote was heavy and Marshal Smuts's Coalition Government probably doubled its majority, which was 22 in the old Parliament, observers said. They estimated that about 100 pro-war candidates were elected, against fifty isolationists. The official returns will probably not be tabulated, however, for two weeks.

Smuts's chief opponent, Dr. D. F. Malan, Nationalist party leader, campaigned on the promise that "if we gain power, our policy is to cease active participation in the war."

NELSON CITES VAST OUTPUT OF MATERIEL

Says This Continent Is Producing Twice That Of Axis

JUL 9 - 1943

WPB Head Declares Gigantic Battles Are Coming Soon

[By the Associated Press]

Toronto, July 8 — "Gigantic battles in which unheard of quantities of war materiel will be consumed" are coming soon, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the United States War Production Board, told Canadians today, but the Allies are getting the materiel, he added.

"This one continent," he said in an address at the Canadian Club, "is producing the materials of war at a rate enormously higher than anything that the Axis could show at the peak of its strength.

"This year, in this continent alone, we will produce almost twice as much in combat munitions as the Axis."

Cites Accomplishments

He admonished that "this is no time to speak of easing up in our efforts" while giving these figures on accomplishment by the United States and Canada alone:

Since the outbreak of the war, almost 115,000 planes have been produced and "before the end of this year we will be producing a completed plane every four and two thirds minutes."

More than 175,000 larger caliber guns for ground armies alone have been finished and more than 1,500,000 machine guns and 6,000,000 rifles and submachine guns have been manufactured.

More than 200,000,000 rounds of artillery ammunition (not counting naval) have been made.

About 25,000,000,000 rounds of small-arms ammunition—"enough to let us fire over 1,500 bullets at every soldier in the Axis armies"—have been turned out.

Close to 60,000 tanks, more than 1,600,000 trucks and nearly 70,000 scout and other combat vehicles have rolled off the assembly lines of the two nations. Canada supplied about one third of the truck total and close to 20,000 of the scout cars.

Production of ocean-going merchant vessels now has reached 20,000,000 deadweight tons and the annual rate of production now is 22,000,000.

Not counting mosquito craft and auxiliaries, naval vessels totaling 2,000,000 displacement tons have been completed and and "these fast, modern fighting boats will be joined every month by sister ships totaling an average of 200,000 tons.

He emphasized that to these United States-Canadian figures must be added the vast production totals of England, Russia and the other Allies.

"Voice Of Doom," He Says

"If the Nazi and the Jap warlords are not completely insane," they will recognize that the sound they make "is the voice of doom," he said.

"I would be the last to attempt to minimize the serious effect of the spasmodic strikes and riots on the war production program . . . (but) for the first five months of 1943 . . . only 7-100 of one per cent. of production was delayed by these strikes," Nelson said.

"We plan to produce an umbrella of safety and put it over the heads of the fighting men of the United Nations. We plan to lay down a barrage of safety before them as they advance. . . . We cannot satisfy ourselves that we have done enough, until we have done everything that we can do to conserve their young lives for the peacetime world to come."

North America To Double Foe's '43 War Output

Nelson Tells Canadians Axis Is Doomed by Allies' Rising Industrial Might

TORONTO, July 8 (AP).—The North American Continent alone will outproduce the Axis in munitions this year by nearly 2 to 1, Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board reported today to the Canadian people.

Before the year's end, Canada and the United States will be producing a plane every four and two-thirds minutes around the clock, Nelson said in a speech prepared for the Canadian Club, and already they have turned out enough small arms ammunition to fire 1,500 bullets at every soldier in the Axis armies.

All the United Nations this year will make three times the Axis output of arms, and next year four times, the United States production chief declared.

"These figures speak to the world in a big voice," Nelson said. "And if the Nazi and the Jap warlords are not completely insane, they will recognize that the voice is the voice of doom."

For the second time this week, Mr. Nelson spoke guardedly of impending vast military developments, to underscore a plea for renewed production effort "to defeat the enemy so crushingly that his spirit will be broken and the day of his unconditional surrender hastened."

"You will shortly see gigantic battles in which unheard of quantities of war materials will be consumed," he said. "No one familiar with the situation dares to indulge in the luxury of concentration on personal problems. On the contrary, the times call for a co-operative war production effort of increased pace and magnitude, matching the military effort."

Mr. Nelson said he would warn the enemy "not to take to much comfort from the so-called sagging of the home front in the United States in recent days."

"I woud be the last to attempt to minimize the serious effects of the spasmodic strikes and riots on the war production program," he said. "On the other hand there is a tendency to exaggerate the implications of these disturbances. The great bulk of war producers, both managers and workers, in the United States, have not been diverted from the essential tasks. For the first five months of 1943, for example, only 7/100ths of 1 per cent of production was delayed by strikes.

"These difficult and trying situations which arise are in my judgment temporary though spectacular eddies in the main stream of American production."

"We plan to produce an umbrella of safety and put it over the heads of the fighting men of the United Nations," he went on. "We plan to lay down a barrage of safety before them as they advance.

"We plan to carry them safely through all the waters of the globe on their way to the fighting fronts. We cannot satisfy ourselves that we have done enough until we have done everything that we can do to conserve their young lives for the peace-time world to come."

Mr. Nelson flew to Toronto for an inspection of Canadian war plants and was scheduled to attend a meeting of the Combined (United States-Canadian-British) Production and Resources Board at Ottawa tomorrow.

SENATOR J. E. MURRAY FOR DOUBLE PLANNING

He Links Domestic Affairs to World Policy in Toronto Talk

MONTREAL, July 8 (AP)—Senator James E. Murray, Democrat of Montana, declared today that the planning of domestic and of international policy should run concurrently "always with the object of fitting domestic policy into the broader scheme of a world economy."

"It is most desirable, therefore," he said in an address to the Kiwanis Club of Montreal, "that a central council for national planning should be formed. It is only by such means that the world can be saved from a trend toward the unilateral policies which wrought such confusion and havoc in prewar years in the field of international commercial relations.

"For the most part, this work of coordination must be entrusted to our governments, in collaboration with those of other nations. In the final analysis, it is to the governments of the United Nations that we must look for economic peace. This, however, should not preclude some form of representation for industry through the creation of national and international industrial councils."

The competitive system must be preserved, Senator Murray said, "but not in the reckless form it took in the interval between the two wars."

He declared that the threat of monopoly control of business and industry will become more apparent during the post-war period.

"Some way," he said, "must be found to check the growing concentration of economic control and the extension of monopolistic practices."

Giraud to Visit Canada

OTTAWA, July 8 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King today told the House of Commons that he expects General Henri Honore Giraud will visit Canada within the next week or ten days.

GEN. GIRAUD TALKS WITH ROOSEVELT, MILITARY LEADERS

French Commander Lunches at White House with President, Marshall.

WASHINGTON, July 8. — (AP) General Henri Honore Giraud talked today with President Roosevelt and high military officers who are as eager as he is to see his French fighting men armed and equipped to take a full share in driving the Germans from France.

The French commander, who shares the leadership of the French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers with General Charles de Gaulle, lunched at the White House with President Roosevelt, General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff who formerly was ambassador to Vichy France. During the afternoon he called on Lord Halifax, the British ambassador.

Martinique Move Near

The bringing of Martinique into the war effort against the Axis, by displacing Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy French high commissioner in the Caribbean, was described in naval quarters meanwhile as well on the way toward accomplishment.

This was reflected in the appointment of Captain Robert Lambert by Vice-Admiral R. A. Fenard, chief of the French naval mission here, to take charge of the three French warships and eight or more merchant ships at Martinique for eventual recommissioning. Captain Lambert is commander of the battleship Richelieu which has been in New York for refitting.

Several days at least are expected to elapse before Henri Etienne Hoppenot, delegate of the French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers, will be able to go to Martinique for negotiations with Admiral Robert, perhaps after General Giraud completes his visit here.

United States agreement with the steps of the Algiers committee to negotiate the change of authority at Martinique was indicated in French quarters.

Hull to Review Post-War Relief Pact Procedure

Vandenberg Says Secretary Will Consider Whether Allied Plan Is a Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, told the Senate today that Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, has agreed to reconsider a projected agreement for participation in a United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration, in view of questions whether it constitutes a treaty.

Declaring he had no quarrel with the subject matter of the draft agreement published recently by the State Department, Senator Vandenberg asserted the question is whether the Senate should pass on the proposed pact, as it is required to do with treaties.

Senator Vandenberg reported that a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee conferred with the Secretary yesterday, and as a result the Senator's resolution calling for an investigation of the procedure "is under mutual consideration."

Foresees Agreement Soon

Mr. Hull expressed belief today that a final agreement on post-war relief and rehabilitation machinery would be reached among the United Nations without serious delay.

In a note to the State Department last week, the Netherlands government stated that the plan for a four-power central committee of the United States, Great Britain, China and Soviet Russia did "not seem compatible with democratic principles."

Asked about the effect of such observations on plans for a United Nations conference on the subject, Mr. Hull said he did not think any such serious or difficult questions were being raised as would seriously delay a final agreement.

He added that several weeks would be required for the governments to formulate their comments and any suggestions that might occur to them.

For "Offensive Against Need"

BALTIMORE, July 8 (AP). — A "world offensive against suffering and need" must follow close on the heels of Allied victory, Francis B. Sayre, Deputy Director for Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, told a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club here today.

Armies now poised for victory offensives against the Axis must be prepared, he said, to undertake the immediate task of feeding hungry populations liberated wherever the enemy is driven out.

It will not be possible to feed them well during this emergency period, he explained, but it is hoped to provide enough food for Europeans to insure them a general average of 2,000 calories a day—somewhat less than two-thirds of the pre-war diet.

After the emergency relief operations by Army personnel, with Army supplies and under Army direction, the responsibility will pass from military to civilian authorities and the task of restoring normal life in the liberated areas will begin, Mr. Sayre said, adding that in this phase precautions must be taken against attempts to use relief for political ends.

"The liberated areas," Mr. Sayre asserted, "will doubtless become hotbeds of bitterly striving and opposing factions many of them bent on selfish power. Political intrigues will fill the air. From all such factional strife America must resolutely hold aloof. Our only objective is to bring help to human beings in distress and assist them, once they are able, to set up the governments of their choice, so long as these do not rest upon the tyranny of force. . . .

"Through the relief and rehabilitation of Europe and Asia lies our only pathway toward peace and security. . . . Indeed, upon success or failure in the rehabilitation of the stricken peoples of the world depends our own future prosperity or adversity. The United States can not remain prosperous in a world of bankrupt customers."

U. S. PRODUCING SECRET PLANE

WPB Says Fighter Meets New Combat Conditions.

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—New super-secret fighter planes designed to meet up-to-the-minute combat conditions have started rolling off assembly lines to take their place in the stepped up aerial offensive of the Allies.

Disclosure that new fighter types are in production was made by Charles E. Wilson, executive vice-president of the War Production Board, who declined to reveal any details whatever.

Asked at a press conference late yesterday whether the new sky battlers are entirely new models or modifications of existing ones, Mr. Wilson replied with a laconic, "Both."

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said it was these changes in types, necessitated by combat experience, that presented the greatest single obstacle to greater volume production.

"There are lots of changes," Mr. Nelson said. "When they come they upset the dollar volume."

Mr. Wilson expressed confidence the new fighters would prove effective in battle "or we wouldn't be producing them."

When all present production facilities reach their maximum, he predicted this country will be able to turn out in excess of 10,000 planes monthly. This peak will not be reached until some time in 1944. Plane production in May exceeded 7,000, the highest so far announced.

Mr. Nelson said surveys now are being made to find all the reasons why over-all munitions production failed to increase in May over April, despite new records in planes and ships.

"We're not satisfied with the May figures; we're not satisfied with the June figures," Mr. Nelson said, but he predicted that it still would be possible to meet the 1943 production goals. He previously estimated that in the first six months 44 per cent of the year's merchant shipbuilding program was achieved, with the following percentages for the other major programs: Naval vessels and equipment, 40 per cent; Army ordnance, 40 per cent, and aircraft, 35 per cent.

To meet the year's goals, production in the last half must be nearly 50 per cent greater than in the first half.

There were no materials shortages "of any consequence" in May or June, Mr. Nelson said. He added, however, that manpower is becoming an increasing problem in many plants.

CONGRESS BEGINS SUMMER RECESS

Legislators to Have Holiday Until Sept. 14—Senate Kills Subsidy Ban.

WASHINGTON, July 8 — (AP) With a swift burst of activity, Congress wiped its calendar clean of major pending legislation and recessed tonight until Sept. 14—the first lengthy vacation it has taken since the war's outbreak.

The legislators, in clearing the way to go home, swiftly approved $4,302,120,234 in appropriations and dropped a half dozen controversies including the quarrel with the Administration over whether subsidies should be paid to "roll back" retail food prices.

House Votes Last

At 5:49 p.m. the Senate approved the resolution to recess and at 6:22 p.m. the House followed suit, voting amid cheers and whistles. There were only a few scattered "noes." The resolution actually took effect at 6:33 p.m., when the House knocked off work, the Senate having done so some minutes earlier.

It was agreed that the members could be called back to Washington at any time by President Roosevelt, congressional officers, or the Democratic and Republican legislative leaders.

The Senate had to yield point after point to the House in order to get the vacation which already had been delayed a week by disagreements between the two chambers.

First of all, the Senate abandoned by a vote of 34 to 33 its demand for inclusion of a ban on food subsidy payments in a resolution continuing the Commodity Credit corporation until Jan. 1. The House had refused to accept this Senate amendment and leaders had warned it would bring a veto from President Roosevelt. The resolution was then speedily sent to the White House.

Kills Crop Insurance

Next the Senate bowed to House wishes and dropped its insistence on continuing government crop insurance. This permitted final passage of a $253,256,000 "catch-all" deficiency appropriation. This carried money for over-time payments to Federal workers, emergency funds for President Roosevelt's use in conducting the war, and $15,000,000 for loans to rehabilitate farm lands damaged by this year's floods.

Meantime, the House Agriculture committee got rid of another controversy by simply pigeon-holing a Senate-approved bill to raise the ceiling price on corn from $1.07 to $1.40 a bushel, Chicago basis. Here again, an expectation the President would veto such a bill figured in the decision, reached on a 9 to 6 vote.

Finally, the Senate dropped its demand that it be allowed to pass on the qualifications of any employes of war agencies who are paid $4,500 a year or more. Sponsored by Senator McKellar (D.-Tenn.), this would have required nomination and Senate confirmation of such employes. Its backers asserted that the war agencies are full of policy-making officials on whom the Senate should have a chance to pass. Opponents said it was a patronage grab.

House Rejects Compromise

The House not only rejected the proposal but voted down, 260 to 69, a proposed compromise to set the salary figure at $5,500 and apply the provision only to newly-hired employes.

The Senate's recession from its demand cleared the way to the White House for a $2,911,697,224 appropriation to run the war agencies in the 12 months beginning July 1. The bulk of the big appropriation is for the merchant shipbuilding program, but funds also are included to run such agencies as the Office of Price Administration and the Office of War Information.

It set a precedent, too, for the Senate to withdraw a similar amendment it had attached to the $1,137,167,010 Labor-Federal security supply bill. When this was done the measure was shot on to the White House, clearing the congressional calendar of all major appropriations bills.

Senate Votes 34 to 33

By a one-vote margin, the Senate retreated from its stand that Congress once again should send President Roosevelt a bill forbidding subsidies to "roll back" retail food prices.

A ballot of 34 to 33 removed the prohibition from a resolution extending the life of the Commodity Credit corporation until Jan. 1.

The House had refused to accept a Senate amendment attaching the ban to the resolution, and Senate leaders had warned that President Roosevelt would surely veto the resolution, if the prohibition was included, just as he disapproved an earlier measure which contained an anti-subsidy provision.

Reluctantly, some senators opposing subsidies agreed to removal of the amendment in order to get the resolution to the White House. In addition to giving the CCC a new lease on life, the resolution increases by $350,000,000 the agency's present borrowing authority of $2,650,000,000. It is intended as a stop-gap measure pending enactment later in the session of legislation continuing the CCC for a longer period.

Victory for Roosevelt

The Senate retreat gave President Roosevelt a complete victory, for the time being, in his controversy with the legislators over the Administration's program of using subsidies to push down food prices. Major items to which this has been extended include meat and butter on which prices have been "rolled back" three and five cents a pound respectively.

Most Congress members anticipated, however, that the issue would bob up again once they return from a seven weeks summer recess.

Senator Maloney (D., Conn.) made the motion for the Senate to recede from its amendment.

Senator Danaher (R., Conn.), author with Senator Tydings (D., Md.) of the subsidy ban, had reported there was no prospect that the House would yield to the Senate view.

Senators appointed to confer with a group of House members and adjust differences, he said, were unable to win agreement to any compromise. They suggested, he related, that an anti-subsidy provision be included in the resolution as a congressional declaration of policy rather than a prohibition, but the House conferees were opposed unanimously to that also.

Nevertheless, Senator Danaher voted against the motion to strike out its amendment, backing to the end his opposition to the "roll back" subsidies.

OIL DEAL VIOLATED ROOSEVELT ORDER, OFFICIAL CHARGES

JUL 9 - 1943

Report to House Says President Instructed Navy to Condemn Land.

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) A Justice department official said today that the Navy department's report on the Elk Hills oil contract "rises to the proportion of a major deception" in its discussion of instructions from President Roosevelt regarding the contract.

Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell, in a statement filed with the House Public Lands committee, asserted that the Navy had avoided the "clear instructions" of the President to condemn the Elk Hills petroleum reserve. The Navy report, he asserted, failed to emphasize the President's instruction that "if satisfactory arrangements cannot be promptly concluded with the owners (Standard Oil Company of California) then you are authorized to institute condemnation proceedings through the Department of Justice."

Violated Instructions

On the contrary, Mr. Littell charged, the Navy made a contract with Standard that was "in no respect in compliance with the President's instructions." The contract has been cancelled.

The Navy's statement that Standard would have lost millions of dollars under the contract was, Mr. Littell asserted, "incredibly naive."

"In other words," he continued, "the contract was executed by Standard in the spirit of sheer public service and philanthropy. At one point in my report I described a provision of the contract as 'naive.' Let me describe this present statement as 'incredibly naive.'

"If Standard got nothing from this contract but the monopoly granted by Navy of oil production from the reserve, that alone would have meant incalculable advantages and profits to Standard, but Navy actually says that the obligation to take all of Navy's production 'may be very burdensome to Standard.' This might be true—but only when we have split the atom and no longer need oil as the principal energizing force."

Mr. Littell contended that the report did "not even contemplate that what it describes as great losses of oil, due to drainage from government lands to Standard's properties, could be stopped tomorrow by condemnation.

"Why," he queried, "this tenderness about condemning Standard's property when the Navy department itself has condemned the homes and businesses of thousands of private citizens throughout the land?"

GEN. BRETT HONORED

WASHINGTON, July 8 — (AP) The honorary rank of knight commander, Order of the Bath, military division, has been conferred upon Lt. Gen. George H. Brett, commander of the Caribbean Defense command, by the British government, the War department announced tonight. The award was in recognition of Gen. Brett's services in the southwest Pacific as commander of Allied air forces.

Medals to 4 Submarine Men

Stapleton, S. I., Sailor Honored; Craft Rammed Enemy Gunboat

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—Four men who served on a submarine which rammed and probably sank a Japanese gunboat have received the Navy and Marine Corps medal, the Navy Department announced today. Among them is William Wagner, chief quartermaster, son of Mrs. Christina Wagner, 15 Pleasant Court, Stapleton, S. I.

The four were members of the crew of the submarine commanded by Commander Howard W. Gilmore, who sacrifice his life rather than endanger the safety of his vessel when it was under heavy fire from the gunboat. The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded posthumously to Commander Gilmore.

Oppose Mexico's Silver Bid

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—A Treasury spokesman disclosed today that high government authorities had discouraged Mexican officials from pursuing a request for United States silver for monetary purposes, assertedly to permit the sale of Mexican free silver to American industry. Declining to be quoted by name, the spokesman said the proposal "doesn't make sense" because Mexico wanted the United States silver on a lend-lease arrangement but in turn desired to sell its own silver to this country. He added that this government has no lend-lease agreement with Mexico.

"Through the relief and rehabilitation of Europe and Asia lies our only pathway toward peace and security. Indeed, upon success or failure in the rehabilitation of the stricken peoples of the world depends our own future prosperity or adversity. The United States cannot remain prosperous in a world of bankrupt customers."

Mr. Sayre emphasized that all countries able to help must participate in the rehabilitation plan.

precautions must be taken against attempts to use relief for political ends.

"The liberated areas," he asserted, "will doubtless become hotbeds of bitterly striving and opposing factions, many of them bent on selfish power. Political intrigues will fill the air. From all such factional strife America must resolutely hold aloof. Our only objective is to bring help to human beings in distress and assist them, once they are able, to set up the governments of their choice, so long as these do not rest upon the tyranny of force.'

Says 'Offensive Against Suffering and Need' Will Follow Allies' Victory.

JUL 9 - 1943

Baltimore, July 8 (A. P.).—A "world offensive against suffering and need" must follow closely on Allied victory, Francis Bowes Sayre, deputy director for foreign relief and rehabilitation operations, told a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club here today.

Armies poised for victory offensives against the Axis must be prepared, he said, to undertake the immediate task of feeding hungry populations liberated wherever the enemy is driven out. It will not be possible to feed them well during this emergency period, he explained, but it is hoped to provide enough food for Europeans to insure them a general average of 2,000 calories daily—somewhat less than two-thirds of the pre-war diet.

Struggle for Power.

After the emergency relief operations by Army personnel with Army supplies and under Army direction, the responsibility will pass from the military to civilian authorities and the task of restoring normal life in the liberated areas will begin, Mr. Sayre said, adding that in this phase

Maryland Will Use Ickes Farm Hand to Teach Judo

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Fred Kobayashi, 24, will give up poultry-raising on the Maryland farm of Secretary Ickes to join the University of Maryland's physical education staff next week as an instructor in judo, the Japanese "science of personal combat."

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, said that Mr. Ickes had consented to release the Japanese-American. He added that the War Manpower Commission had approved Kobayashi's transfer out of farm work.

New York News Editor Indicted As Secret Agent Serving Japs

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP) Frederick Heizer Wright, identified by a Federal grand jury as a New York Daily News copy editor, was indicted today on charges that he acted as a paid agent for the Japanese government without notifying the State department of his employment.

U. S. Attorney Howard F. Corcoran, who obtained the indictment which also contains a conspiracy count, said "there was no evidence that Wright's superiors on the newspaper had any knowledge of the activities complained of in the indictment."

Mr. Corcoran said the indictment, charging Wright with acting as a Japanese agent from January 1931 to Dec. 6, 1941 in violation of a 1917 statute, was obtained after an investigation conducted by naval intelligence and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the FBI's New York office, said "The investigation by the FBI failed to reveal that the offices of the New York Daily News were cognizant of the activity of Frederick Wright."

Named in the indictment as co-conspirators but not as defendants were the Imperial government of Japan and Shintaro Fukushima, press attache of the Japanese embassy in Washington, as well as several Japanese vice consuls.

Violation of the 1917 statute, which requires a foreign agent to notify the State department of his employment as an agent as distinguished from the 1938 law requiring an agent of a foreign power to register, is punishable by a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment and a fine of $5,000. The conspiracy count carries a maximum prison penalty of two years and a fine of $10,000.

The indictment charged that Wright, in his capacity as an agent of the Japanese government, investigated and obtained information concerning the China Defense Supplies corporation and the nature and quantity of the materials and supplies which had been and were to be shipped to China by the United States.

It also alleged that Wright, in return for his salary and payment of expenses, edited the speeches and correspondence of Japanese consuls and vice consuls in a territory that extended along the East coast from Maine to Georgia, and that he also conducted an investigation of Communist activity in the United States and prepared reports which he submitted to the Japanese on the personal backgrounds of various individuals supposed to be Communists.

Under the conspiracy count, it was alleged that Wright and the Japanese government were agreed that Wright would cause articles concerned with Japanese subjects to be published in the Daily and Sunday News but that Wright's employment as a Japanese agent would be kept secret from the Daily and Sunday News.

Wright, described in the indictment as a former contributing columnist and assistant night telegraph editor of the News, joined the paper in 1927 after working on various newspapers and news services, Mr. Corcoran said.

During the early years of Wright's employment on the News, Mr. Corcoran said, he became acquainted with Walker Gray Matheson, then a fellow employe. Matheson is serving a seven-year prison sentence on a conviction of failing to notify the State department that he became an agent of Japan in 1936, subsequent to his employment on the News.

The U. S. attorney said that Wright told Matheson that he would like to do publicity work here for the Japanese and that the latter suggested Wright see Kensuke Horinouchi, then Japanese consul in New York and later ambassador at Washington.

Wright entered into an agreement with the consul, Mr. Corcoran related, and opened an office in his father's name across the street from the Japanese consulate. The father, Robert Wright, who is not involved in the case, registered as an agent of Japan with the State department in 1938, Mr. Corcoran said.

The Japanese government paid for the upkeep of the office, Mr. Corcoran related, and paid the defendant from $300 to $400 a month for his services as an agent.

In February, 1935, Mr. Corcoran said, Wright obtained a leave of absence from the News and went to Japan where the U. S. attorney said, he was to have received a position as an "advisor on American public affairs" in the Japanese Foreign office. The position failed to materialize, Mr. Corcoran said.

The Japanese government paid all Wright's expenses on the trip, and in January, 1936, he returned to the Daily News, the U. S. attorney said. Three years later, Mr. Corcoran added, Wright became assistant night telegraph editor, a position he held until the spring of 1942 when he was reassigned to the copy desk.

Federal officials would not disclose Wright's present whereabouts but the News said he worked until he was taken into custody. Exactly when that was, was not revealed.

NEW YORK URGES STATES TO PLAN POST-WAR RELIEF

JUL 9 1943

Welfare Program Essential, Executive Conference Declares.

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP) The executive conference of the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation called upon the 48 states today to formulate immediately programs designed to cope with post-war welfare and relief problems.

In line with such plans, the conference at its opening session unanimously adopted a report recommending that the committee call a regional conference in cooperation with the Council of State Governments, a collective organization of corresponding bodies in other states.

The report, prepared by the subcommittee on social welfare and relief and read by State Senator Earle S. Warner, (R., Ontario county) specified that the regional conference should focus attention on questions of settlement laws, residence requirements for relief, supervision of relief in interstate cases, and assistance to veterans.

Pointing out that war conditions had accentuated the normal migration of families, the report warned that excessive migrations might inspire local authorities to attempt to gain protection by legislation increasing residence requirements which, it said, "ultimately will retard any attempts to gain uniformity and progress in this field."

The report also recommended that a New York state conference be called for a joint meeting of representatives of the legislative committee, representatives of the association of towns, the department of social welfare, and the conference of mayors and municipal officers.

The conference would deal with similar state-wide problems, the report added, and should devise plans to prevent legislation increasing residence requirements, or abolishing residence and settlement requirements.

Nazis Tell of Gigantic Fights.

In statements broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded today by the Associated Press, a German military spokesman declared that yesterday's tank battles in the area of Belgorod and south of Orel were the greatest ever fought on the eastern front; and a German propaganda agency.

DNB, the German official news agency, said that the Germans had destroyed 862 Russian tanks and 847 aircraft in the last three days, that fortifications of the Belgorod area were overcome in great depth, and that the Russians southeast of Orel were thrown back on their own mine fields.

Transocean, the Nazi propaganda agency said that air forces were used on both sides in masses hardly ever before witnessed, and that both Germans and Russians are employing tanks in unexampled numbers. The German High Command, on the other hand, announced that Army units, artillery, fighter-bombers and tactical air forces destroyed more than 400 Russian tanks and 193 planes yesterday, and that "the deeply echeloned enemy defense system was broken through after stubborn fighting in wooded territory and in villages."

Martinique-Vichy Break Near, Berlin Radio Says

New York, July 8 (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today in a Vichy dispatch that the French Foreign Ministry was drawing up a communique "which likely will announce officially the secession of Martinique from Vichy."

The broadcast report was recorded by the Associated Press.

It said it was expected that Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy high commissioner at Martinique, "within a few hours will have to yield to pressure from dissidents and troops."

"One thing is certain, that tension between Admiral Robert and the United States Government has been further aggravated by unrest which has broken out on the isles," the broadcast said.

Demonstration Reported

Street demonstrations at Fort-de-France in favor of the French Committee of National Liberation were declared to have verged upon open revolt.

"The fort, which contains gold reserves of the Bank of France, reportedly has been occupied by insurgents," it was stated.

Dispatches from the island were quoted as saying that "the position of Admiral Robert has been rendered extremely difficult by the attitude of the troops, which here and there fraternized with insurgents against whom they were sent."

Nazis Are Using New Tanks

German military circles were quoted in a Transocean News Agency dispatch broadcast from Berlin Thursday as saying that Nazi tanks of a new design and even heavier than the sixty-ton Mark VI Tigers were being sent into the Battle of Kursk. Details of these super Tigers are still treated as a military secret," said the broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Whatever the real Nazi objective in the new and stupendous battle in Russia is, the fighting is raging under circumstances tending to forbid any present Japanese intervention to aid her fellow conspirators in Germany and Italy.

Russia has small need to fear a stab-in-the-back attack from Japan at this stage. American offensive moves in the south and southwest Pacific and in Aleutian theaters make it all but inconceivable that Tokyo could be dragooned by Berlin into striking at Siberia.

The Japanese war lords are definitely confronted today with what Prime Minister Churchill so recently called the "supreme challenge" of American sea power. He had a hand in Washington high strategy councils in the shaping of events in the Pacific calculated to lure the Japanese main fleet to decisive action.

It probably would be going much too far to say that the American Pacific offensives are actually coordinated with expected developments in Russia. That they were timed in relation to what was being prepared against the Axis for delivery this year from Africa and the British isles is obvious.

Taking the weight of Axis pressure off Russia was an officially stated prime purpose of the Washington-revised strategy directives, however. And included in that pressure as Moscow must view it has been the possibility of a Japanese blow at Siberia timed, as was the attack on Pearl Harbor, to meet Axis needs in Europe.

A global war calls for global strategy, even if there is much to indicate that Anglo-American leadership to its regret has not yet succeeded in integrating its own and Russian operational planning.

It is permissible, therefore, to assume that the Pacific offensives which are tying down Japan are a part of what General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, calls the "pattern of victory" followed by the United Nations. They are an integral part of what Moscow and Berlin now stress as "the battle of Kursk," remote as they are geographically.

And that Berlin phrase, contained in a non-official broadcast which for the first time admitted it was an offensive, not a defensive fight the Nazi armies in Russia are waging, still leaves doubt as to its strategic or tactical objectives. It implies that it is only reduction of the Kursk salient, thrusting deeply westward between Orel and Belgorod that is aimed at.

The Kursk salient, last indicated as extending from 40 to 60 miles west of the important rail center from which it takes its name, is dangerous to the Germans. It gravely threatens the main rail and road communication network via Bryansk, Smolensk and Vitebsk upon which depends the whole south flank of the Nazi front in Russia to Tagonrog on the Azov seacoast.

To remove that threat, or perhaps to open the way for another lunge at Moscow or to the Don and beyond to the Volga again, Berlin has committed its forces to major action. The breadth of the base line of the attack, nearly 200 miles from Orel to Belgorod, tends to refute the suggestion that it is merely elimination of the narrow Kursk salliant that is being attempted.

Yet Russian resistance, even by Berlin admission, is so stout that more and more Nazi reserves are being poured in. The moment is nearing when German forces will be engaged so deeply and on a scale so great that breaking off the action would be impossible without disaster. And that moment may have much to do with the timing of Allied trans-Mediterranean second front attacks from Africa.

Axis Anticipates 'Secession'—Giraud at White House, Plans Visit to Canada

Admiral Georges Robert, Vichy High Commissioner of Martinique, said in a communiqué broadcast by the Martinique radio last night that he had been "officially notified" that Henri-Etienne Hoppenot had ' 'been designated as High Commissioner to the Antilles" and had "requested that he come as soon as possible."

M. Hoppenot, delegated by the French Committee of National Liberation at Algiers to negotiate, is now in Washington with Gen. Henri-Honoré Giraud.

The communiqué, broadcast in French to the Antilles and recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said that "the notification of the designation of M. Hoppenot indicates that he will in particular be charged with immediate assumption of the government."

The text of the communiqué follows:

"Here is a communiqué from the High Commissariat:

"The admiral has been officially notified that M. Hoppenot, at present in the United States, has been designated as High Commissioner to the Antilles.

"The notification of the designation of M. Hoppenot indicates that he will in particular be charged with immediate assumption of the government.

"The admiral requested that he come as soon as possible in order to hand over the services and to regulate with him, among other questions, the one dealing with civilian and military persons who intend to remain faithful to the Marshal."

Ackerman Bids Roberts Resign From O. W. I. Advisory Board

By The Associated Press

Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, urged yesterday Roy A. Roberts, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, to withdraw as a member of the Office of War Information's advisory committee because "as president of the A. S. N. E. your judgment and opinion should be above the influence of official pressure."

Mr. Roberts immediately replied that "acting in an advisory, not an administrative, capacity should not circumscribe or limit independence of action," but that "if the time ever comes when giving all possible service to the war effort is incompatible with the presidency of the A. S. N. E., then the God-given right of every American to resign, tell why and raise hell remains."

The discussion was made public in the form of an exchange of telegrams between Dean Ackerman, a member of the A. S. N. E., and Mr. Roberts, who is managing editor of "The Kansas City Star."

Mr. Roberts and eight other prominent editors and publishers were named as an O. W. I. advisory committee Tuesday by Palmer Hoyt, domestic director of O. W. I., on leave from the editorship of "The Portland Oregonian."

"This is not a 'front' committee," Mr. Hoyt observed in announcing the committee. "In fact some of them have been very critical of our operations."

In his message to Mr. Roberts Dean Ackerman said: "As president of the A. S. N. E. you occupy one of the most important journalistic trusteeships in the world. This is not a political office. As a trustee the president of the A. S. N. E. should hold this office above and beyond any possible influence from any government temporarily in office, or any political party, or any pressure group inside or outside of government which may seek to use the press for propaganda purposes.

"The propaganda interests of any government in war or peace are incompatible with the complete freedom of news and of opinion which editors should maintain. The time will come when you will have to make a choice between government propaganda and the freedom of news."

Roberts Puts War First

Mr. Roberts replied: "If the war isn't won, there won't be any free press or independent journalism. That's our first job. The war will be won and a free press maintained, but it won't be by every one locking himself up in an ivory tower and refusing to cooperate."

"I haven't agreed with many policies of the O. W. I. and have not hesitated to say so. I won't in the future. But in time of war I feel the government has the right and duty to call upon a[illegible] to perform such service a[illegible] as a contribution to the national effort. . . .

"As to O. W. I., I have felt its activities shoud be confined to freeing, not freezing, news. There should be no propaganda whatever in it. More, I am not happy about the government's relations with the press generally. . . .

"Whether we like or don't like how the show is going, we still must make any contribution we can to victory. I agree with you that the presidency of the A. S. N. E. is an important journalistic trusteeship. But acting in an advisory, not an administrative, capacity should not circumscribe or limit independence of action.

"If it does, the obvious thing to do is to end such service with the committee or terminate official position with the society. That I will do should such a situation arise, but I will not prejudge any war effort in advance as all bad."

Ackerman Raises Question

In urging that "officers of the A. S. N. E. should maintain complete independence with respect to the government," Dean Ackerman raised this question: "If peace should come within the year of the current appropriation for the O. W. I., that agency would be obliged to carry out governmental directives. Suppose the government decided on a policy of excluding the press at the peace conferences, or suppose it opposed freedom of international communications, how could you as president of the A. S. N. E. serve both the government and the press?"

Mr. Roberts, in his discussion of relations between government and press, said: "Elmer Davis's (Director of O. W. I.) recent speech in Boston criticizing Washington correspondents was not only unfair but a mistake. How can we have national unity necessary for a healthy home front when the President of the United States unjustly uses the press of this nation as a whipping boy to met an upheaval in administration?"

Mr. Davis in a Boston speech June 14 said that a few papers had given an impression that Washington is a synonym for "muddle, confusion and bickering," an impression "deliberately created." Another factor in the situation, Mr. Davis said, was "routine reporting, routine editing, a conviction that what was big news and good circulation five years ago is big news and good circulation still."

(President Roosevelt in a press conference June 29 said newspaper writers had stirred up some of the controversies among officials and agencies of his administration.)

"I feel as strongly as you unquestionably do on these matters," Mr. Roberts continued. "Yet if I know my America there is a strong and insisten[illegible]ng up from the people de[illegible]n an end to all this selfish [illegible]ness on all sides, with a mandate to get on with the real job of winning the war."

The other members of the O. W. I. advisory committee are:

Lawrence L. Winship, managing editor of "The Boston Globe"; George W. Healy jr., managing editor of "The New Orleans Times-Picayune"; Paul Bellamy, editor of "The Cleveland Plain Dealer"; Mark Ethridge, publisher of "The Louisville Courier-Journal"; Gardner Cowles jr., editor and publisher of "The Des Moines Register and Tribune"; Fred Gaertner jr., managing editor of "The Detroit News"; Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, and H. D. Paulson, editor of "The Fargo Forum," Fargo, N. D.

[illegible] Committee Progresses Despite Turmoil in Algiers

Members Already have Achieved a Great Deal for Unity; No Party Lines Shown in Voting

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent

New York, July 8.—The turmoil in Algiers does not mean that the French Committee of National Liberation, set up two months ago as a central governing body over all liberated Frenchmen, with Generals Giraud and de Gaulle as joint and alternating presidents, has fallen or failed.

The committee, despite the storms which have broken at its meetings, has already achieved a great deal toward unity and toward setting an empire-wide war effort on the road to liberation of the mother country.

It is not the two generals who make up the committee, nor do they control it. There are five other members, General Alphonse Georges and Jean Monnet, named to it by Giraud; Rene Massigli and Andre Philip, designated by de Gaulle, and General Georges Catroux, accepted by both.

Each of the five has a vote which counts as much as those of the joint presidents. The nominees of both Giraud and de Gaulle have voted contrary to the man who named them on many issues. They are not sticking to any party line.

General Catroux, though mouselike in appearance, has cracked down firmly on both Giraud and de Gaulle at times. It was he who did more than anyone else to bring them together to form the committee when he warned:

"France will never forgive two generals who in times like these stood in the way of unity for personal reasons."

Catroux, though not a type to excite much popular enthusiasm for himself, has certainly gained in prestige since the formation of the committee, and is today regarded as one of the stablest influences on it.

Monnet behind his soft brown eyes, Massigli behind his thicklensed spectacles, and Philip behind that black cabbage which passes for a mustache, are all able men and there is no question that they are working sincerely for the unity of all Frenchmen, and an all-out French effort to redeem their country. Nor is there any doubt that they favor the return of France to democratic Government after the war.

The storms at Algiers seem less serious if it is realized that French politics are always turbulent and marked by periodic crises. The labor pains attending the birth of the Fourth Republic have so far been not nearly as serious as those which preceded the establishment of the first, second and third. Of course, they may get worse, and there may be some blood let before the new regime is finally set up in France.

The root of the dissension between de Gaulle and Giraud is de Gaulle's conception of himself as the symbol of pure and uncompromising resistance, as the one man who gave the clarion call when events were blackest, and as the jealous champion of the full sovereignty of France, even when fallen.

A great many of the French in Africa so regarded him and are loyal to him, and there is little doubt that many in France also see him as such a symbol. That is his trump card and he plays it over and over again. But most of those who have to deal with him, even those in his own ranks, find him difficult.

Giraud's story is fully as romantic as de Gaulle's, but he seems unable to attract the popular following de Gaulle has. His military record in the battle of France is good. His escape from the fortress of Koenigsburg, across Germany and France and the Mediterranean is one of the most thrilling of the war. Yet he is known in Algiers as "Papa Snooks."

On his arrival in North Africa, Giraud thought he should be made commander-in-chief of the Allied forces, but after brief dispute with the Allied command, agreed to head only the French forces and the North African civil authority. A French army was put in the field under General Juin and fought extremely well.

With Allied help, the civil situation was improved, and relations between Giraud's establishment and Allied headquarters were generally good.

One explanation of the troubles among the French is that the very illness which led to the collapse of France is present, to an extent, in the French factions trying to redeem France. The French fell because they were a sick people and the illness is not yet entirely cured. But there are signs of healing, and they are seen not so much among the politicians, as on the battlefield.

The fact that both de Gaulle's Fighting French and Giraud's North African army fought well in the African campaign is the best indication of new vigor among the French.

VICTORY ALL ALONG THE 700-MILE ARC OF THE PACIFIC OFFENSIVE WAS REPORTED AS THE DRIVE ENTERED ITS SECOND WEEK. AS AUSTRALIAN JUNGLE FIGHTERS SEIZED A VITAL HILL ON THE APPROACHES TO SALAMAUA, NEW GUINEA, AFTER THE BEWILDERED JAPANESE DEFENDERS HAD BEEN POUNDED FROM THE AIR BY 106 TONS OF BOMBS AND ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES DEALT MORE CRUSHING BLOWS AGAINST CHALLENGING JAPANESE AIR FORCES OVER THE SOLOMONS.

IN A PINCERS MOVEMENT ON MUNDA, AMERICAN TROOPS LANDED ABOVE IT AT RICE ANCHORAGE BEFORE DAWN JULY 5, IT WAS DISCLOSED, THE SAME DATE THAT AMERICAN WARSHIPS WERE SHELLING THE NEARBY BAIROKO ANCHORAGE. OTHER AMERICAN TROOPS LANDED AT ZANANA SIX MILES EAST OF THE MUNDA AIRDROME AND NOW HAVE CONTACTED THE ENEMY ALONG THE BARIKE RIVER.

LATEST ACCOUNTS OF THE KULA GULF VICTORY ACCENTED THE LIGHTNING CHARACTER OF THE BLOWS DEALT THE JAPANESE SHIPS IN THE DARKNESS OF JULY 5-6. WITHIN FIVE MINUTES AFTER FOUR OR FIVE JAPANESE DESTROYERS WERE ENCOUNTERED, ALL OF THEM EITHER HAD BEEN DESTROYED OR SET AFIRE. FIFTEEN MINUTES AFTER OUR WARSHIPS CAME UPON LIGHT ENEMY CRUISERS, THE GROUP, ESTIMATED AT THREE AND POSSIBLY FOUR WERE "SUNK OR AFIRE," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE HEAVIEST ATTACK EVER UNLEASHED IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA ON A GROUND TRAGET PRECEDED THE CAPTURE OF OBSERVATION HILL WHICH LIES BETWEEN MUBO AND SALAMAUA. THE 106 TONS OF BOMBS BURST AMONG THE JAPANESE DEFENDERS IN A 45 MINUTE PERIOD.

AMERICAN TROOP LANDINGS AT RICE ANCHORAGE FOLLOWED IMMEDIATELY. AT THE SAME TIME, OTHER TROOPS SECURED THE ZANANA BEACHHEAD WITH PATROLS FANNING OUT QUICKLY TO FIND JAPANESE FORCES AND ENGAGE THEM.

JUL 9 - 1943

THE NIGHT AFTER THESE OPERATIONS, JAPANESE NAVAL FORCES MOVED INTO THE KULA GULF AND WERE DECISIVELY DEFEATED WITH THE ONLY AMERICAN LOSS THE LIGHT CRUISER HELENA.

MANY HITS WERE SCORED ON BUILDINGS AND NUMEROUS FIRES WERE STARTED. THE ATTACKS WERE MADE DESPITE RAIN AND POOR VISIBILITY.

JUL 9 - 1943

ON TIMOR, MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS STARTED FIRES IN A NIGHT ATTACK ON THE JAPANESE AIRDROME OF PENFOEI AT KOEPANG. SOME OF THE FIRES APPEARED TO BE BURNING PLANES.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, THURSDAY, JULY 8-(AP)-THE JAPANESE NAVAL FORCES DECISIVELY DEFEATED IN THE BATTLE OF KULA GULF, IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS, WERE COMPELLED TO FIGHT BY A NUMERICALLY ~~SUPERIOR~~ overwhelming GROUP OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS WHICH SURPRISED AND TRAPPED THEM THERE, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

THE TRIUMPH WAS SO ONE-SIDED THAT, OUTSIDE OF THE LOSS OF

JUL 9 - 1943

A SINGLE AMERICAN LIGHT CRUISER (IDENTIFIED BY THE NAVY AT WASHINGTON AND FROM HEADQUARTERS OF GEN.DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR AS THE U.S.S.HELENA) NOT ANOTHER WARSHIP ON OUR SIDE EVEN SUSTAINED DAMAGE, THIS SOURCE REPORTED.

A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF THE LOST CRUISER'S PERSONNEL WAS KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN SAVED AND POSSIBLY SOME OF THE OTHERS REACHED SHORE.

THE JAPANESE LOSSES CONSERVATIVELY WERE PLACED AT EIGHT WARSHIPS DEFINITELY SUNK AND TWO DAMAGED.

JUL 9 - 1943

(A COMMUNIQUE TODAY FROM GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR SAID AT LEAST NINE AND POSSIBLY 11 ENEMY CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WERE SUNK)

OUR WARSHIPS, ALSO LIGHT CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, CAUGHT THE ENEMY UNITS ATTEMPTING TO SNEAK OUT OF THE GULF, A BODY OF WATER ONLY 15 MILES LONG AND ABOUT EIGHT MILES WIDE, BETWEEN KOLOMBANGARA AND NEW GEORGIA ISLANDS.

THE BATTLE, NECESSARILY FOUGHT AT CLOSE RANGE, OPENED AT 3 A.M. AS THE ENEMY UNITS MOVED NORTH THROUGH THE DARK, , SQUALLY NIGHT.

THE FIRST PHASE LASTED FIVE MINUTES. IN THAT TIME FIVE JAPANESE SHIPS WERE INTERCEPTED AND ALL WERE LEFT SINKING OR BURNING. (GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IDENTIFIED THIS GROUP AS DESTROYERS)

JUL 9 - 1943

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, JULY 8-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES NAVY'S SMASHING VICTORY OVER THE JAPANESE IN KULA GULF JULY 6 WAS REPORTED RELIABLY TODAY TO HAVE BEEN ACHIEVED AT NO COST WHATEVER IN AMERICAN SHIPS OTHER THAN THE LOSS OF A LIGHT CRUISER.

AN INFORMED SOURCE AT THIS BASE, WHICH DIRECTLY SUPERVISES THE SOLOMONS CAMPAIGN, SAID FLATLY THAT ASIDE FROM THE CRUISER, NOT ONE OF THE AMERICAN WAR VESSELS ENGAGED -- LIGHT CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS -- WAS SO MUCH AS DAMAGED IN THE BRIEF BUT FIERY PRE-DAWN ACTION IN THE NARROW WATERS BETWEEN NEW GEORGIA AND KOLOMBANGARA ISLANDS.

JUL 9 - 1943

THE CRUISER (IDENTIFIED BY OFFICIAL SOURCES IN WASHINGTON AND AUSTRALIA AS THE U.S.S. HELENA) WAS SENT TO THE BOTTOM AT AN UNDISCLOSED STAGE IN THE RUNNING BATTLE, BUT THE INFORMANT HERE SAID A CONSIDERABLE PROPORTION OF ITS CREW WAS RESCUED AND OTHERS MAY HAVE MADE THEIR WAY SAFELY TO SHORE.

AGAINST THESE MODERATE LOSSES WERE POSED, ON THE BASIS OF REPORTS MADE AVAILABLE HERE, THE DESTRUCTION OF AT LEAST TWO OTHERS. (GEN. DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA SET THE FIGURE AT NINE SHIPS KNOWN SUNK AND POSSIBLY 11 DESTROYED.)

THE AMERICANS, MATCHED AGAINST A SIMILAR ENEMY FORCE OF LIGHT CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN OUTNUMBERED IN TOTAL UNITS ENGAGED BUT NEVERTHELESS TO HAVE MAINTAINED THE INITIATIVE FROM THE START AFTER THEY CAUGHT THE JAPANESE TRYING TO ESCAPE NORTH-WARD FROM THE GULF UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS AND HEAVY WEATHER.

THE FIRST SALVO WAS FIRED AT 3 A.M. TWO HOURS LATER NOT A SINGLE ENEMY WARSHIP REMAINED ON THE SCENE.

THE SOURCE HERE GAVE THIS ACCOUNT OF THE ACTION, WHICH HE SAID WAS DIVIDED INTO THREE PHASES:

THE FIRST PHASE SAW FIVE JAPANESE SHIPS INTERCEPTED AS THEY WERE LEAVING THE GULF. WITHIN FIVE MINUTES, ALL FIVE WERE SUNK OR BURNING.

JUL 9 - 1943

SHORTLY AFTERWARD, OUR FORCE PICKED UP A SECOND GROUP OF ENEMY WAR VESSELS, CONSISTING OF THREE OR FOUR LIGHT CRUISERS OR

JUL 9 - 1943

LARGE DESTROYERS. IT IS BELIEVED ALL WERE DESTROYED OR CRIPPLED.

LATER TWO OF OUR DETROYERS BLOCKED THE PATH OF A LIGHT CRUISER AND TWO DESTROYERS ATTEMPTING TO SNEAK TO SAFER WATERS. OUR SHIPS DEFINITELY SANK THE CRUISER AND ONE DESTROYER AND DAMAGED THE SECOND DESTROYER.

AFTER DAYLIGHT OUR ARMY AND NAVY FLIERS FOUND TWO DAMAGED ENEMY DESTROYERS STRANDED OFF KOLOMBANGARA AND ATTACKED THEM HEAVILY. MEDIUM AND DIVE BOMBERS SCORED SEVERAL DIRECT HITS ON EACH DESTROYER. THE TWO CRAFT BURNED FURIOUSLY AND THEN EXPLODED. THEY ARE A TOTAL LOSS.

THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID ASAHI CHARACTERIZED THE LAND, SEA AND AIR FORCE ATTACKS AGAINST THE JAPANESE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC AS "VERY STRONG" AND URGED THE PEOPLE AT HOME TO UNITE TO SUPPORT THE "HARD FIGHTING ON THE FRONT."

THE NEWSPAPER WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT THE ALLIED ATTACK HAD "REACHED A CLIMAX BY CARRYING THE FIGHT TO NEW GUINEA."

NO DIRECT TOKYO BROADCASTS CONCERNING THE FIGHTING WERE RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS YESTERDAY, BUT THE BERLIN BROADCASTS, QUOTING DISPATCHES FROM TOKYO, MADE SUCH OF A REPORTED JAPANESE VICTORY OVER AUSTRALIAN TROOPS.

JUL 9 - 1943

THE AUSTRALIANS WERE REPORTED BY ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA LAST WEEK TO HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY FROM THE INLAND MUBO AREA OF NEW GUINEA TO JOIN AMERICAN TROOPS WHO HAD LANDED AS NASSAU BAY, SOUTH OF THE JAPANESE BASE OF SALAMAUA. A JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE, WHOSE TEXT WAS NOT GIVEN, WAS QUOTED BY THE BERLIN BROADCAST AS SAYING THAT THE JAPANESE ATTACKED AND DEFEATED A GROUP OF AUSTRALIANS NEAR BOBUTABI MONDAY AS THE AUSTRALIANS WERE MOVING FROM WAU TO NASSAU BAY.

ASAHI, THE BROADCAST WENT ON, SAID THAT AT NASSAU BAY, THE JAPANESE TACTICS AIMED AT CUTTING OFF SUPPLIES FROM OVERSEAS. THE NEWSPAPER CLAIMED THAT JAPANESE BOMBERS HAD SUCCESSFULLY ATTACKED TRANSPORTS DOCKED IN THE AREA.

JUL 9 - 1943

INDIA'S FOOD SHORTAGE, WHICH I REPORTED TO YOU EARLY THIS YEAR MIGHT DEVELOP INTO A SERIOUS SITUATION FOR THIS GREAT SUB-CONTINENT OF 400,000,000 POPULATION, IS NOW SAID TO HAVE REACHED A CRITICAL STAGE.

WORD FROM NEW DELHI, THE CAPITAL, IS WHAT THE GOVERNMENT HAS

JUL 9 - 1943

CALLED A CONFERENCE, REPRESENTING ALL PARTS OF THE COUNTRY, TO DEVISE MEANS OF BRINGING EMERGENCY RELIEF. THIS ACTION FOLLOWS WIDESPREAD APPEALS FOR FOOD, AND ALMOST DAILY REPORTS OF LOOTINGS OF GRAIN STORES.

JUL 9 - 1943

IT'S ESTIMATED THAT 125,000,000 INDIANS--MORE THAN A QUARTER OF THE POPULATION--ARE SUFFERING FROM MALNUTRITION. PRICES OF FOOD HAVE ZOOMED UP THREE TO EIGHT TIMES ABOVE PRE-WAR LEVELS.

SUCH A CRISIS IS PARTICULARLY GRAVE AT ANY TIME FOR A COUNTRY LIKE INDIA, WHERE THE MAJORITY OF THE PEOPLE ALWAYS ARE HUNGRY. I REALIZE THAT'S A STRONG STATEMENT, BUT IT'S THE OUTCOME OF PERSONAL INVESTIGATION ON THE GROUND. UNTOLD MILLIONS NEVER KNOW WHAT IT IS TO HAVE A FULL STOMACH.

WHEN I LEFT INDIA IN FEBRUARY, OBSERVERS WERE APPREHENSIVE LEST THE ALREADY BAD FOOD SHORTAGE WORSEN. THEY WERE FEARFUL THAT DESIGNING PEOPLE MIGHT CONTRIVE TO MERGE THIS CRISIS WITH THE GRAVE POLITICAL SITUATION WHICH HAD GROWN OUT OF THE INDIAN LEADERS' REJECTION OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSALS FOR DOMINION STATUS AFTER THE WAR.

JUL 9 - 1943

SHOULD THIS HAPPEN THERE WAS NO TELLING WHAT THE RESULT MIGHT BE. ALREADY THE BREAK-DOWN OF NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE BRITISH AUTHORITIES AND THE INDIANS HAD BEEN FOLLOWED BY WIDESPREAD RIOTING, BLOODSHED AND DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY, AND THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE WERE IN JAILS.

HOWEVER, AT THAT TIME I WAS AUTHORITATIVELY INFORMED THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAD THE LID WELL CLAMPED DOWN ON DISTURBANCES AND THERE WAS NO FEAR FOR THE FUTURE. THE FOOD SHORTAGE LIKEWISE WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN PROVIDED FOR, WITH GRAIN ORDERED FROM CANADA AND AUSTRALIA. THERE WAS UNOFFICIAL TALK AMONG BUSINESS MEN THAT THE UNITED STATES ALSO MIGHT BE CALLED ON TO SEND FOOD.

NATURALLY ANYTHING WHICH AFFECTS INDIA IS A MATTER OF PARTICULAR CONCERN TO THE UNITED NATIONS, FOR THAT GREAT COUNTRY NOT ONLY IS THE ARSENAL OF THE ORIENT BUT IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT OF THE ALLIED BASES. IT IS FROM INDIA THAT THE ALLIES WILL HAVE TO INVADE BURMA TO OUST THE STRONGLY ENTRENCHED JAPS AND THUS OPEN UP A ROUTE THROUGH WHICH SUPPLIES CAN BE SENT TO HARD-PRESSED CHINA. INDIA MAY BE THE KEY TO VICTORY OVER THE BARBARIANS OF THE RISING SUN.

ONLY DAY BEFORE YESTERDAY GENERAL SIR CLAUDE AUCHINLECK, THE NEW BRITISH COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN INDIA, SHOWED A PRESS CONFERENCE HOW VITAL THAT COUNTRY IS TO THE ALLIED CAUSE. SAID HE:

"WE ARE PREPARING TO HELP TURN THE TIDE, PREPARING TO HELP CARRY THE WAR EAST TO JAPAN."

NIGHT LEAD UNDATED TANKS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN BROADCASTS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTED YESTERDAY (THURS) THAT THE GERMANS WERE EMPLOYING TWO NEW WEAPONS IN THEIR DRIVE ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT--A NEW DESIGN TANK AND A VAGUELY-DESCRIBED ARTILLERY WEAPON CALLED A "PROJECTOR."

THE TANKS WERE SAID TO BE HEAVIER THAN THE 60-TON MARK VI TIGERS AND "DETAILS OF THESE SUPER-TIGERS ARE STILL TREATED AS A MILITARY SECRET," SAID ONE BROADCAST. IT QUOTED GERMAN MILITARY CIRCLES AS REPORTED BY TRANSOCEAN AGENCY.

ANOTHER BROADCAST SAID A GERMAN WAR CORRESPONDENT, HANS LUDWIG MEYER, TRANSMITTED THE FIRST MENTION OF THE "PROJECTOR" PERMITTED BY THE CENSORSHIP.

JUL 9 - 1943

HE SAID "PROJECTOR" BATTERIES TOOK PART IN THE ARTILLERY PREPARATION FOR AN ATTACK AND GAVE THIS DESCRIPTION OF THE EFFECT OF THE NEW WEAPON:

"THE WOODY COUNTRY THROUGH WHICH WE ARE NOW ADVANCING IS NO LONGER FOREST. SMALL STUMPS OF TREES SHOW THAT THIS WAS ONCE MAGNIFICENT FOREST. THE WHOLE TERRAIN LOOKS AS IF A GIANT STEAM ROLLER HAD GONE OVER IT. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE THAT THERE IS STILL A HUMAN BEING ALIVE HERE. WE STUMBLE OVER THE FIRST-KILLED SOVIETS. THERE IS NOT ONLY ONE CRATER BUT MORE THAN A HUNDRED IN A SMALL AREA. THE AIR PRESSURE OF THESE INNUMERABLE IMPACTS MUST EXTINGUISH ALL LIFE."

GERMAN MILITARY CIRCLES WERE QUOTED IN A TRANSOCEAN AGENCY DISPATCH BROADCAST FROM BERLIN TODAY AS SAYING THAT NAZI TANKS OF A NEW DESIGN AND EVEN HEAVIER THAN THE 60-TON MARK VI TIGERS WERE BEING SENT INTO THE BATTLE OF KURSK.

"DETAILS OF THESE SUPER TIGERS ARE STILL TREATED AS A MILITARY SECRET," SAID THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

THE TRANSITION FROM OREL TO KURSK IS MARKED BY A GRADUAL DISAPPEARANCE OF HILLS, AND THE APPEARANCE OF PLAINS.

IN TERRAIN AND CLIMATE, THE REGION IS A GRADUAL CHANGE BETWEEN CENTRAL RUSSIA AND THE ..HERN PLAINS OF THE SOVIET UKRAINE, WHICH IT TOUC..ES. This jumpoff to the big Italian island went a long way toward cleaning up the Mediterranean. With Africa in the hands of the Allies, Sicily undergoing man-to-man attack and Sardinia so close, it scarcely could escape a blow soon a large area of the "soft underbelly" of Axis-held Europe was under direct fire.

Nevertheless, the possibility if not probability of spirited resistance by Sicily's defenders existed.

German-Italian forces had been reinforced in southern Italy and its outposts recently, with an anti-invasion army of perhaps as high as 300,000 highly trained men poised for the test.

Washington, Saturday, July 10—The invasion of Sicily by English, American and Canadian forces under the command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was announced early today by the War Department.

A brief communique from advance headquarters said the landings were preceded by air attack while naval forces escorted the ground troops and bombarded the coast defenses during the landing operations.

The text of the announcement:

"Anglo-American-Canadian forces, under command of General Eisenhower, began landing operations in Sicily early this morning (July 10, North African Time). Landings were preceded by an air attack. Naval forces escorted the assault forces and bombarded the coast defenses during the assault."

Under Steady Bombardment

There was no additional information concerning the scale of the landing assault on Sicily, which is separated from Tunisia by only a narrow straight.

The island has been under steady bombardment by the Northwest African Air Force since the Axis forces in Tunisia collapsed and surrendered in May.

The communique supplied the first information that Canadian troops had joined the British and American forces under Eisenhower in North Africa.

In connection with the landings in Sicily General Eisenhower broadcast an announcement to the people of France telling them the invasion of the island off the toe of the Italian boot was "the first stage in the liberation of the European continent," but warning them not to expose themselves to reprisals by premature action based on any assumption that an invasion of France was imminent.

Translation Of Broadcast

The translation of this broadcast from North Africa, supplied by the War Department, follows:

Warns Against Enemy Rumors

"I call on the French people to remain calm, not to allow themselves to be deceived by the false rumors which the enemy might circulate. Keep on listening and never heed rumors. Verify carefully the news you receive.

Sicily Lashed Sixth Day In Row

JUL 10 1943

Cairo, July 9 (AP)—A United States Ninth Air Force communique said today that crew members who bailed out of two Liberators of a force which attacked Catania, Sicily, yesterday, "were machine-gunned by enemy fighters."

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 9—Hundreds of Allied planes shuttled back and forth across the Mediterranean yesterday for the sixth consecutive day to bomb Sicilian airdromes and ports which constitutes Italy's first line of defense, it was announced today.

Heavy and medium bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters from northwest African bases, Malta and the Middle East joined in the mission of destruction.

Road Convoy Caught

Triphammer blows were loosed upon familiar targets, and the lighter craft also went on free-lance missions across the length and breadth of Sicily, shooting up trains, radio stations and troops. One Axis troop convoy was caught on a road.

The aircraft nests above Gerbini were blasted again by day and by night, whispered from the southwest and the southeast. Catania, Comiso, Sciacca and Cap Passero, the latter at the southeast tip of Sicily and only sixty-five miles from the RAF base at Valletta, were hit anew.

21 Axis Planes Bagged

Northwest African, Valletta and Middle East communiques told of the shooting down of twenty-one Axis fighters and the destruction of other enemy planes on the ground, against the loss of eleven Allied aircraft.

Cairo bulletins announced that United States Ninth Air Force Liberators dumped 250,000 pounds of high explosives on Catania in a two-wave attack yesterday, this following up a flame-setting raid upon Axis barracks at that city by RAF heavy bombers the preceding night. A United States communique pictured the destruction as follows:

"Many hits were observed in the vicinity of the telephone and telegraph building, while other bombs fell in the railroad marshaling yards.

JUL 10 1943

Bursts Cover Tracks

"The railway tracks were completely covered by bursts. The central railroad station was hit and set afire, as were also the freight depot and a large warehouse. An enormous fire was started among oil-storage tanks, and the whole industrial area was solidly covered by bursts."

Eight enemy fighters were destroyed in this action and five others were damaged, it was announced. Four of the five reported damaged may have been destroyed.

(The Italian high command said in a Rome-broadcast communique that eighty-one persons were killed and 209 injured at Catania in repeated raids, which ruined buildings and started fires in the heart of the city. It declared twenty-six raiders were shot down over Sicily.)

More Gerbini Damage

Belatedly, Cairo authorities also announced that Ninth Air Force Liberators had broken landing surfaces, started fires and damaged grounded planes in attacks Wednesday on airfields about Gerbini, which have been the targets of frequent raids from Northwest Africa.

Malta-based Spitfires of the RAF assisted in escorting American bombers over Sicily, shot down three fighters of a German formation which was attempting to land at Comiso, and then turned their guns upon the field, already marked by the wrecks of burned-out or damaged planes.

Enemy opposition was scattered. Some crews reported meeting fairly strong forces. Others said they saw no Axis fighters.

Close To Air Mastery

This indicates the Allies have won almost complete mastery of the air over Sicily. Their numbers and the scope of the attacks are too vast for the enemy to meet them in strength at all points.

The airfields of Gerbini were attacked repeatedly by Fortresses, Mitchells, Marauders, Bostons and Baltimores of Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's command in a saturation-type assault.

The Fortresses encountered between fifteen and twenty fighters on one raid, and a group of Baltimores and Bostons met nearly forty later in the day, but the opposition was brushed aside.

Gunfire Sinks Schooner

Mitchells, Bostons and Baltimores cooperated with Ninth Air Force Liberators in the attacks upon Catania and also raided Comiso and Sciacca. Lightnings swooped on an Axis schooner offshore and sank her with gunfire.

Mitchells returning to Comiso for the sixth time in six days found nine huge fires raging there as a result of an assault by South African Bostons and Baltimores, which had just left.

Another group of Mitchells had a similar experience at Biscari Airfield, where they found fires still blazing in administration buildings. They blasted the buildings again and laid four patterns of bombs across the airfield and near-by installations.

Munitions Believed Hit

Reporting on the results, Lieut. W. D. Ho[illegible]ks, of Richmond, Utah, said it looked like an ammunition dump went up at Comiso. There was a tremendous explosion."

Lieut. T. B. Howard, of Alton, Ill., mapped two huge fires at Biscari.

Night-flying RAF Bostons went in over Sciacca and when they left, Baltimores, Bostons and Warhawks replaced them. They reported sighting a big explosion in an olive grove near the field, causing belief that ammunition or gasoline had been hit.

Forty Axis Planes Engaged

About forty fighters, the majority of them Messerschmitts, engaged the Warhawks, which shot down three.

These new attacks followed a virtual bomb blanket spread the length and breadth of Sicily and Sardinia on Wednesday, with nineteen assaults on the Sicilian airdrome network of Gerbini alone.

Eighty-one persons were killed and 209 injured in an Allied raid on Catania, Sicily, the Italian High Command stated in a bulletin broadcast from Rome.

The Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press, said that twenty-six raiding planes were shot down.

Three Allied merchantmen, totaling 40,000 tons, were reported to have been sunk by Axis torpedo planes operating off the North African coast, and a fourth, of 3,000 tons, was declared heavily damaged. These claims were without confirmation from Allied sources.

SICILIAN RAIDS KEPT UP FOR NEARLY WEEK

Allied Planes Of All Types Hit Airdromes, Ports And Industries

JUL 10 1943

Twenty-One Of Enemy's Fighters Shot Down Over The Island

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 9—The Allied aerial assault on Sicily neared the end of a full week today without letup and spread from primary targets to secondary objectives deep in the interior of the island.

Allied planes of all types from the three bases in the Mediterranean theater—Northwest Africa, Middle East and Malta—went out in the hundreds yesterday against Sicilian airdromes, ports, communications and war plants, shooting down twenty-one enemy fighters and destroying a considerable number on the ground. In all these operations eleven Allied planes were lost.

The Gerbini network of airdromes was hit from two directions; British and American heavy bombers in separate raids covered Catania with fire and steel. The long-bombed air centers of Comiso and Sciacca were hit again, as was a less familiar target—Cap Passero, lying within sixty-five miles of the RAF Malta base.

Catania Hit Hard

Catania was particularly hard hit. Liberators from the Cairo command threw 125 tons of bombs down on the city, going in over the fiery destruction left a few hours before by RAF bombers. They knocked down eight enemy fighters for certain and probably five others.

The damage was reported heavy—the railroad yards sprayed with bombs; the main railroad station hit and set aflame; freight yards and warehouses smashed; "an enormous fire" set off among oil storage tanks; the entire industrial area covered with bomb bursts.

Gerbini was attacked almost steadily. British headquarters in Cairo told of a previously unannounced attack on Wednesday in which three of Gerbini's airdromes were hit by "a good concentration of bombs" which tore up the fields, set off fires and smashed three enemy planes on the ground.

Spitfires Attack

The British communique from Malta mentioned that "in the intervals between escorting American bombers over Sicily" Malta's Spitfires had gone in to attack Comiso airdrome, and added:

"They were there in time to catch a number of German fighters preparing to land. Three of the enemy landed rather more quickly than they intended, for the Spitfires shot them down. . . ." A number of enemy planes were burned out on the ground as well.

[The Italian command in a communique broadcast from Rome reported that eighty-one persons were killed and 209 injured at Catania; that Allied raids had been repeated and had left fire and destruction in the heart of the city. The Italians claimed that twenty-six Allied planes were destroyed over Sicily.]

R.A.F. Bombers Blast Cologne For 119th Time

JUL 10 1943

Drop Tons of Explosives on Battered City; Nazi Flyers Raid London Area

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 9.—The Royal Air Force dropped more than 1,000 tons of bombs on battered Cologne last night, ending the temporary relief which storms had given Germany this week from wholesale Allied air raids. The blasting of the Rhineland industrial center was smaller in scale than the last two British attacks on that city on June 28 and July 3, but still constituted a heavy assault.

[An Associated Press dispatch from London dated Saturday said that for the second successive night Royal Air Force bombers roared over Germany Friday night.]

The new aerial battle mounted today as the Germans gave London its first raid alarm since June 27. Ten Nazi aircraft approached the capital, dropping bombs in the greater London area, while others caused damage and casualties at scattered points in southeast England.

Fighter formations stepped up the pace of the new offensive today, sweeping over the English Channel toward northern France soon after the big bombers returned from their mission.

An Air Ministry communique said that Typhoons attacked enemy shipping off Cherbourg while Mitchells escorted by fighters bombed enemy airfields at St. Omer this morning. One Typhoon was missing, and one enemy fighter was destroyed. In the afternoon, Mustangs on offensive patrol attacked transport targets in northern France.

Casualties Acknowledged

The Nazis described last night's bombing of Cologne as a "terror attack," acknowledging casualties and devastation in civilian sections and reporting the Cologne Cathedral was again hit.

The German communique claimed six of the Cologne raiders were brought down, while the British reckoned a loss of eight bombers from the Rhineland visit and simultaneous mine-laying missions.

Aerial photographs of the German North Sea naval base at Wilhelmshaven, meanwhile, showed that the United States heavy bomber assault there June 11 spread explosives along the entire length of the harbor and hit several vital structures.

Naval Docks Hit

These included naval docks, two minesweeper depots, barracks, oil storage tanks and a shipbuilding yard assembly shop.

Flying Fortresses were credited with destroying eighty-five German fighters on this flight, losing eight American bombers.

The Cologne raid was the RAF's first sally over Germany since Saturday night, when the same industrial center was a target, together with Hamburg and Ruhr valley cities.

The RAF's insistence in returning repeatedly to bomb-wrecked Cologne, which has now been blasted 119 times, was taken here as a sign of British determination to keep that city on the industrial defensive, to disrupt rebuilding there and break its morale.

Enough Planes Now

Informed sources said Britain now had sufficient aircraft to carry out this technique, whereas last year she was not in a position to follow up the initial success gained in the first 1,000-bomber attack on Cologne May 30, 1942.

British aerial scouting showed that, by the end of 1942, much of the damage caused by the first mass raid had been repaired. An important blast furnace works, for example, had been severely damaged, it was disclosed, but subsequently rebuilt.

The Omya-Mahlwerk chemical plant of Cologne had been not only repaired, but even enlarged, aerial photographs showed, while most of the damaged public buildings had been restored or were undergoing reconstruction.

Accounts For Attacks

This intensive rebuilding, an informed source said, indicated the Germans could not afford to abandon the Rhineland-Ruhr area, and accounted for the RAF's repeated return to such targets.

The vast extent of Cologne's industrial area offered further explanation for the persistent attacks, covering twenty-seven square miles of thickly built-up quarters.

The RAF estimated more than 1,000 acres of this area were already devastated, but some sections have still escaped.

[illegible]logne

London, July 9 (AP)—German raiders dropped high explosives on a town in southeast England and a southeast coast resort today, while others gave London its first daylight alert since June 27.

Casualties were expected to prove heavy at the southeast town, where a large theater was hit and three adjoining business buildings, with apartments above, burned. One raiding plane crashed in flames south of Croydon. The two occupants were killed.

[By The Associated Press]

London, July 9 — The RAF, returning to the assault on Germany after a four-night lull in the Allied aerial offensive, made a heavy attack on the Rhineland industrial center of Cologne last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Eight bombers were lost in the raid, the announcement said.

The attack on Cologne was the one hundred and nineteenth on that city.

JUL 10 1943

Goebbels In City, Report

The Vichy radio, in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press, said today that Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Minister of Propaganda, had arrived at Cologne to examine the damage caused by Allied raids on that city.

Mines also were laid in enemy waters during the night and British fighters on intruder patrols simultaneously attacked enemy air fields and railway targets in France and northwest Germany. Three German minesweepers were reported damaged along the French coast.

By returning relentlessly to such prime targets as Cologne, the RAF hopes to destroy industrial shops which might have been missed on previous sweeps, wreck reconstruction work and rasp the nerves of workers to the point where their efficiency will be seriously impaired.

Damage Repaired

Six months after the 1,000-bomber raid upon Cologne last year, aerial reconnaissance showed that much of the damage had been repaired. Subsequent attacks took care of that, but again restorations were attempted. Well-informed sources said this indicated the Germans could not afford to abandon the Ruhr-Rhineland area and that British attacks there necessarily would continue.

The heavy British bombers had scarcely returned from their night foray when formations of Allied fighters swept out across the Channel in the direction of northern France to continue the offensive by daylight.

Skies Cleared

A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, following the usual line taken by Nazi propagandists, described last night's assault on Cologne as a "terror raid" directed against residential areas.

JUL 10 1943

The broadcast indicated that other targets in the Rhineland were hit in addition to Cologne, however.

The RAF night raiders were favored by good weather, the skies clearing last evening after a day of thunder storms.

The attack on Cologne was the 119th on that bomb-battered city, target of the R. A. F.'s first great 1,000-bomber raid a year ago. The center had been attacked twice before within the past two weeks—once on June 28 and again last Saturday night. Both assaults were highly concentrated.

The German High Command communique gave this version of the R. A. F. night raid:

"British bombers again carried out a terror attack on Cologne and its environs last night. There were casualties among the population as well as devastation in residential quarters. Cologne Cathedral was again attacked and hit."

The communique claimed that six of the raiders were shot down.

The Vichy radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said that Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Minister of Propaganda, had arrived in Cologne to examine the damage caused by Allied raids on that city.

Bomb Traps British Children

LONDON, July 10 (Saturday) (AP).—German raiders planted a bomb yesterday on a southeastern English town motion-picture theater where hundreds of children were watching a cowboy film and after all-night frantic rescue work hope was abandoned for many of the children buried in the debris.

Early reports said at least twelve persons were killed but casualties were expected to be higher. Acoustic apparatus was used to listen for sounds in the wreckage and all hope was abandoned of recovering any more people alive. It was not announced how many had been rescued and it was expected to be several days before the full death roll became known.

As rescuers, including parties organized by Canadian and British military authorities, toiled in the wreckage R. A. F. fighters patrolled overhead to prevent the raiders coming back. Among the victims was a baby in a perambulator whose father had wheeled her to the show. Both were killed.

FORTRESS DIVES TO AVOID AIR CRASH

A United States Bomber Station in Britain, July 9 (A. P.).—Five miles up, the crew of the Flying Fortress Mason's Morons stood on their heads as the pilot, Lieut. Robert C. Mason of Buffalo, N. Y., suddenly dived straight down to avoid a crash with a Focke - Wulf 190 running wild at 400 miles an hour. With her pilot apparently killed, the Focke-Wulf careened wildly, as the American bombers headed home from the attack on Kiel on June 13, it was disclosed today.

"I didn't see the Focke-Wulf until he was almost on top of us," Lieut. Mason said. "I had to dive vertically. . . . He just barely missed us. And then, as soon as we dropped out of formation, enemy fighters began closing in on us from all directions. . . .

But my boys poured it into them. We got four Germans."

Even during the dive, some of the Fortress's gunners clung to their triggers and kept blazing away, and the tail-gunner, Sergt. Robert Bickford, blasted one red-nosed enemy out of the sky.

As the crew were thrown violently about, Sergt Merton D. Ohm of Buffalo, a waist-gunner, was hurled against the fuselage ceiling and knocked unconscious. The impact tore off his oxygen mask. He was deathly white as the other waist-gunner, Sergt. Jack McKee of Pittsburgh, removed his own electrically heated gloves, turned on the emergency oxygen system and readjusted the mask to Sergt. Ohm's face. Sergt. McKee's hands were frostbitten in the 25-below-zero temperature.

U. S. 'BUNGLING' HIT BY BRITISH

Three Liberal Weeklies Criticize Handling Of French Political Situation

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 9—Three liberal British weeklies today termed the American State Department's handling of the French political situation clumsy and sharply criticized Britain because, they said, she allowed the United States to dictate the Allied policy toward France.

These criticisms appeared before President Roosevelt indicated that the United States could not recognize the French Committee of National Liberation nor any other organization as the governing power of a Nazi-controlled France.

Giraud In Washington

Meanwhile, there were reports that Gen. Henri Giraud, now in Washington, might visit London on his way back to North Africa.

"At the moment, American interests pipe the tune and British policy dances accordingly," asserted the Tribune, Leftist labor publication.

The Spectator said the political situation in North Africa was one which would have perplexed even the most experienced European diplomat and "unfortunately its solution has been entrusted to a people who are either not European or not diplomatic."

The American invitation to Gen. Henri Giraud to visit Washington was called a "maladroit act" by the New Statesman and Nation, which said "it makes Giraud look, however little he may deserve this suspicion, like the nominee of a foreign power."

All three contended that American and British leaders had failed to give recognition to the French underground, which the New Statesman said was mainly "drawn from Socialist, Communist and Radical parties and trade unions."

Delicacy Of Methods

The Tribune complained that workers and peasants had not been given sufficient representation on the French National Committee.

Parliament member Harold Nicholson, writing in The Spectator, said he did not question the motives and purpose of the United States Government, but "what I question is the accuracy of their information and delicacy of their methods. Our own policy in this island owes a debt of honor to Gen. Charles de Gaulle."

The New Statesman said that "the record of the State Department in its dealings with France—and the same thing is true, we fear, of Italy and Spain, makes sense only on the assumption that it was afflicted by the haunting dread of radicalism, and tries to buttress property even at the risk of sacrificing political democracy. If it continues in this course it probably will, by its clumsiness, defeat its own ends."

To Issue Monthly Reports

LONDON, Saturday, July 10 (AP)—Great Britain and the United States today outlined a new procedure whereby only approved statements on the U-boat war would be issued on the tenth of each month.

A statement issued at 10 Downing Street said President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill were "concerned" at the number of statements being made by public persons and the press on the anti-submarine war, because "the enemy, by piecing together portions of these statements, may glean more information than is desirable about these affairs."

The text of the statement relating to the concern of Allied leaders said:

"The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain have been concerned at the number of statements which are being made from time to time by public persons in the press on both sides of the Atlantic about the anti-U-boat war and methods and devices employed in it.

The enemy, by piecing together portions of these statements, may glean more information than is desirable about these affairs. It has therefore been decided that a monthly statement approved by the President and the Prime Minister shall be issued on the tenth of every month and that apart from specially authorized announcements or statements by the President or Prime Minister, or duly censored accounts of particular incidents and actions, this monthly statement will be the only one to be made on behalf of the British and American Governments.

All departments have been so instructed. It is hoped that the press will go so far as possible and cooperate in keeping the technical discussions of the U-boat warfare within the limits of the official announcements generally leave the enemy in his present state of doubt and anxiety upon this most important aspect of our successful warfare at sea.

Cripps Asks Top Production

London, June 9 (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, minister of aircraft production, declared today there might be a great intensification of the Allied air war "at almost any moment," in calling on aircraft workers to give their maximum production and to stop absenteeism and strikes.

The assault on the Axis powers in Europe and the Pacific would be a "costly task and our casualties inevitably will be heavy," Cripps said in a broadcast over BBC, but he added that the heaviest possible air attack would help to keep those losses down.

"During the past few months," he continued, "we have been planning and preparing for every maximum effort. We have passed through a time of difficulty as regards raw material, but that, I hope, is largely past."

Telling the workers that there still is "too much voluntary absenteeism in our factories," Cripps said, "We must fill the skies with Allied planes wherever the enemy is to be fought. We must outdo all our own past records."

Seyss-Inquart's Home 'Veritable Fortress'

London, July 9 (AP)—Aneta, Netherlands news agency, quoted a Dutch underground newspaper received here today as saying that the Clingendaal estate near The Hague, favorite residence of Reich Commissar Arthur Seyss-Inquart, had been converted into "a veritable fortress."

A moat has been built around the place, which has been proclaimed a separate municipality with its own burgomaster, town hall, post-office and hospital, Aneta said.

Nazi Tank Output Rises, Berlin Says

London, July 9 (AP)—A German production report, widely at variance with Allied declarations that heavy bombings have cut down Reich factory operations, asserted today that both tank and ammunition output have increased.

Production of heavy tanks, said a Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, increased 200 per cent, in the six months ended with May, while ammunition turned out during that month more than equaled the output for a six-month period in 1941.

Mikolajczyk Reported Out

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—Differences over future Polish policy were reported reliably today to have resulted in the resignation of Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who has been acting Premier of the Polish government-in-exile pending selection of a successor to General Wladyslaw Sikorski, who was killed in an airplane accident at Gibraltar on Sunday.

Mikolajczyk was reported to have submitted his resignation yesterday after a discussion of the question as to who would succeed Sikorski as commander in chief of the Polish armed forces.

Dunkerque Hero Dies a Captive

LONDON, Saturday, July 10 (AP)—Brigadier Claude Nicholson, the man who detained the Germans long enough at Calais in 1940 to permit the British evacuation from Dunkerque, died in a German prison camp early in June, according to word received here today. With a British brigade and some French troops Brigadier Nicholson stopped two German armored divisions for four days at Calais.

Emmons Arrives in London

LONDON, July 10 (Saturday) (AP).—Lieutenant General Delos C. Emmons, until recently commander of the Hawaiian Department of the United States Army, has arrived in London, it was announced officially today. He will confer with Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, United States Forces in the European Theater, but his future plans were not disclosed. General Emmons relinquished his Hawaiian command June 1.

NAZIS SHIFT ATTACKS TO OREL AREA

JUL 10 1943

Russians Report All Attacks On North Beaten Off

List German Dead So Far In Offensive At 40,000

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, July 10—The Russian armies of the center beat off savage German attacks all along the Orel and Kursk fronts yesterday, held their own in the Belgorod sector to the south, and destroyed 193 Nazi tanks and ninety-four planes in the great battle of attrition, the Soviet command announced early today.

The German dead, in two battle areas specifically mentioned, were nearly 5,000 for the day, Moscow declared in the regular midnight communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor, thus bringing to about 40,000 the total German casualties for five days of violent action.

JUL 10 1943

Tank Total Up To 2,036

German losses in materiel also were rising to tremendous proportions: yesterday's destruction raised to 2,036 the number of enemy tanks thus far listed as knocked out, and to 904 the number of Nazi planes smashed since the beginning of the offensive.

In the Orel-Kursk sector, said the bulletin, the Nazis, after four days of heavy losses, had "gained no success" and had been forced to shift the weight of attack to other areas, reinforcing their "battered troops" by nine infantry divisions and one tank division.

A score or more of German attacks were beaten off—thirteen of them in a single area of action—and fighting at times was hand to hand.

Fifteen hundred Nazis were wiped out in these actions, said the Soviet command, as was most of a German battalion in a near-by action.

No Further Nazi Progress

About Belgorod—scene of four previous German penetrations against which the Russians battered all day—no further Nazi progress was reported, although it was declared the invaders were "bringing into battle all their reserves, striving at any cost to achieve success."

In the Bolgorod sector, 2,000 Germans were killed during the day; in a near-by action 1,000 more fell. But it was in the Kursk-Orel sector where the supreme Nazi efforts were being made.

The Germans themselves, in a long broadcast propaganda report, spoke of "ferocious fighting" south of Orel where Nazi troops "could gain ground only inch by inch."

Further German advances — these, too, without confirmation— were reported about Belgorod.

Claim 1,100 Red Tanks

This German propoganda report put total Russian tank losses at more than 1,100 and Soviet plane losses at 1,000.

Soviet bombers pounded German troop, tank and convoy concentrations all along the whole front in day and night attacks. One Moscow broadcast declared that in Thursday night's attacks the enemy "suffered heavy casualties" and the Red air force emerged without loss of any aircraft for the second night in succession.

Russian dispatches said that six Nazi divisions were lunging at a narrow sector south of Orel, but that "the Hitlerites failed to achieve success." Three of the attacking divisions were infantry; three were tank.

Loses None Of Savagery

Although the focal point of fighting shifted to south of Orel, on the basis of Tass reports, the combat around Belgorod, 125 miles south, lost none of its critical savagery.

Slightly inside the Russian lines, the famous fifty-ton Klim Voroshilov tanks were slugging it out with the sixty-ton German "Tigers."

Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said: "The enemy experiences great strain in the Belgorod area owing to heavy losses he has suffered. However, the Germans replenish their losses in equipment and manpower and try to increase the weight of their strength. They are bringing into play fresh tanks, infantry and aviation reserves."

Violence Of Fighting Reported Increasing

JUL 10 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, July 9 — German armored columns led by sixty-ton Tiger tanks battered again today at the Belgorod end of the Kursk salient, where they succeeded yesterday in driving a wedge into Russian defenses at a terrific cost.

Reports from the front tonight said the battle on the debris-strewn steppes of Kursk was growing in violence. Otherwise, little was known of the fifth day's fighting in the new German offensive.

Nazis Use Fresh Troops

Both in the Belgorod area and against the unyielding northern sector of the Soviet line the Germans were said to be throwing fresh troops and new tanks into the battle.

The Russians also were bringing up large numbers of fifty-ton "KV" tanks to combat the mammoth German Tigers in a deadly struggle which already has reached history-making proportions for the high German losses and spectacularly low gains.

But as the German forces in the Orel-Kursk sector tried vainly to imitate the example of their comrades at the Belgorod end, the Russian army newspaper Red Star warned against underestimating the strength of the German armies.

"Germany Frightened"

The Germans continue to fight desperately because Hitler has to try to offer the people "if not a real victory at least an ersatz victory," Red Star said. "Germany can't wait. It is frightened by the offensive spirit of the Red army and the war preparations of the United States and England."

Red Star declared that the powerful Nazi tank columns in the Orel-Kursk region had changed the direction of their attack several times in a desperate effort to find a weak point in the deep Russian positions.

Claim Lost Area Retaken

In that northern section the Russians said their troops regained lost ground in a succession of counter-attacks yesterday while holding firm against a mighty stab by some 90,000 Nazi troops against one narrow area.

The Nazis returned to the attack at 8 A. M. yesterday on the Orel-Kursk sector. On the narrow front where the 90,000 German forces were engaged, the battle had reached its peak by 2 P. M. The Pravda correspondent said one unit, however, withstood thirteen subsequent attacks.

Nazi Air Attempts Futile

Dispatches from the front declared the German air force had failed in all its attempts to win supremacy over the battlefield. One batch of Russian pilots was said to have shot down 110 German planes during eighty-one dogfights.

A Moscow communique reported an additional 304 German tanks were destroyed or damaged in yesterday's fighting and 161 planes were shot down, raising the four day enemy losses to 1,843 tanks and 810 planes. Nazi casualties were reported as at least 35,000.

Struggle Continues, Says Berlin

(The Friday German high command communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, declared that "the big struggle in the Belgorod-Orel area goes on with undiminished ferocity."

(It claimed that "since the day before yesterday a gigantic tank battle has been raging in the rear of pierced Soviet positions in which the Soviets are making every effort to check our tempestuously advancing armored spearheads."

(It said the Russians lost "another 400 tanks" and sustained high casualties. The German war bulletin also reported that the Russians lost 117 aircraft yesterday.)

(A later German broadcast estimated that the Russians had lost nearly 1,000 planes in air combat during the past four days and declared that, according to Berlin opinion, the "offensive backbone" of the Red Air Force "has been broken, regardless of the far-reaching preparations the Soviets made before the battle started.")

Sky Dark With Planes

The sky above Kursk was overcast with dog-fighting planes. By day, Russian fighter - bombers brought down Junkers-52s and giant gliders flying badly needed reserves to the Belgorod area. Russian heavy bombers struck for the fourth consecutive night at vital German concentrations directly behind the Kursk salient.

Despite the enormity of the German effort to pinch off the Kursk bulge by drives from the north and the south, the situation of the defending Russian forces was regarded here as generally unchanged.

Gains Conceded First Time

The communique acknowledged indirectly for the first time the Germans had made some gains along this northern section of the line. "By counter-attacks our troops dislodged the enemy from various places which he took on the first day of the offensive," the war bulletin said.

Front dispatches said swift maneuvers of German tanks frequently were defeated by Soviet engineers who rushed out and planted mines in their path at the last minute. One Russian unit repelled an attack by 150 tanks, including many of the Tigers.

Tenacity Is Urged

A Red Star editorial, observing that the enemy had succeeded in advancing in spots, declared:

"It is the duty of our troops to halt the enemy at any cost. . . . Our troops can and must hold all lines."

Feint attacks are the main enemy trick to guard against, the paper said.

In a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, Transocean, the Nazi propaganda agency, declared that the Germans succeeded today in widening the break-through in the deeply echeloned Russian defense system and that the innermost Russian line was falling before the attacks of Nazi infantrymen. German armor was declared to have broken through from Belgorod thirty-six miles toward the north in the direction of Kursk.

This dispatch indicated that Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky, a Soviet hero of the battle of Stalingrad, commanded the Russian defense. It said that the Russians threw fresh armor into the battle and that it was assumed in Berlin "that Gen. Rokossovsky has even greater tank reserves at his disposal in the Belgorod sector."

Irish Parliament Hears Of 1940 Invasion Plan

Minister Accuses I. R. A. of Harboring 2 Chutists

DUBLIN, July 9 (AP).—The story of a plan, presumably German, to invade Eire in 1940 was told to the Dail Eireann (Parliament) today by Gerald Boland, Minister of Justice, in a criticism of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"In 1940, when things were looking very bad," he said, "it became known that a parachutist had landed here. He was not captured himself, but in his paraphernalia we found plans which, as far as we could see, were plans for invasion of this country.

"It took up to eighteen months to capture that man, and during that time he was in touch with the same group of people. Is that no indication of the wish of these people to involve this country in war?"

Violators Of Zagreb Curfew Ordered Shot

Bern, Switzerland, July 9 (AP)—Budapest dispatches to the Basler Nachrichten said today that Axis night patrols had been ordered to shoot anyone found on the streets of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, or its suburbs between 10.30 P. M. and 5 A. M., as new restrictions were imposed in an effort to check sabotage.

The dispatches said fifty Communists were executed in Zagreb on June 22, when the deadline expired for the apprehension of guerrillas who blasted a section of the railroad. They were picked from hundreds held by the occupation authorities as hostages, the reports said.

Munich Student Unrest Grows

JUL 10 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, July 9—Reports of recent rebellious demonstrations among students at Munich, cradle of Nazidom, were augmented today by the Swiss paper Die Nation with an account which it said had been obtained from an eyewitness.

The first disturbances, according to this source, broke out in January among women students when they were criticized by Gauleiter Giesler for lack of enthusiasm for Adolf Hitler's total-mobilization program.

Some of the girls were said to have started to leave the auditorium in protest, whereupon the Gauleiter halted his speech and ordered members of the Gestapo—who were in attendance—to close the doors.

Some Reported Arrested

Some of the girls were arrested, the account said, and the following day students staged a demonstration at police headquarters demanding their release. Only the intervention of high army officials was said to have prevented an open fight between the students and the Gestapo.

Later, following announcement of the German defeat at Stalingrad, anti-Nazi slogans were painted in large letters on many buildings in Munich and in other German cities, the article declared.

A Serbian student was reported executed in Munich for photographing the inscriptions, which were attributed to students.

Shower Of Leaflets

In March a number of student leaders were said to have been arrested in Munich for releasing a shower of critical leaflets in a lecture hall. Warnings were issued that any further demonstrations would be countered with stern measures.

Despite these warnings, a concierge who summoned police after the leaflet episode was found slain several days later and a new crop of signs appeared on walls urging the students to revolt, the Die Nation informant said.

4 Nazi Seaplanes Use Fish Boats As Shields In Battle

Lisbon, July 9 (AP)—Newspaper dispatches from Sines, sixty miles north of Lisbon, reported that four large German seaplanes took refuge beside several Portuguese fishing trawlers today when attacked by three Allied fighters.

The correspondent said the air battle was watched by hundreds of villagers and fishermen who saw the Germans jettison their bombs and alight beside the ships. The fighters, realizing they could not continue the attack without injuring the fishermen, broke off the battle.

The German bombers were reported to be badly damaged and some of their crews killed and wounded, but they took off again when the fighters disappeared.

Goering Reported Improved

STOCKHOLM, July 9 (AP).—The Goeteborg newspaper "Handels-Ochsjoefartstidning" said today reliable informants reported that Reich Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, described last week as very ill from a nervous breakdown and heart attack, is now out of danger.

DODECANESE AID BY NAZIS IS SMALL

JUL 10 1943

Istanbul, July 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—German reinforcements which have been reported moving into the Italian-held Dodecanese Islands consist principally of artillery, coastal defense and signal corps troops, according to a naval informant here.

No considerable German defense garrisons have yet appeared on the islands, this informant said, and new arrivals have come simply to bulwark Italians who make up the islands' main defenses.

The informant said the Italians are very jealous of their position on the islands, which became Italian territory in 1911, and had warded off an effort by the Germans to take over the main defenses despite the heightening nerve strain and the prospect of an Allied attack.

The new Allied air offensive in the Ægean Sea is seriously undermining the strength of the Dodecanese, another military informant said.

Says Lands Japs Took Must Be Reconquered

Cairo, July 9 (AP) — The Netherlands Admiral Sir Conrad Helfrich, commander of all Dutch naval forces east of the Red Sea, said in a press conference today he believed it would be necessary to recapture one by one the territories conquered by Japan.

He declared that simply to cut the communications of Japanese garrisons would, of course, isolate them from ammunition and arms, but would not cut them off from food supplies.

"It will not be a short war—there's no room for wishful thinking," he commented.

As to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's new South and Southwest Pacific offensive, the admiral said, "It's a move I've always supported."

Andre Philip Leaves Algiers

Algiers, July 9 (AP) — Andre Philip, French Commissioner of the Interior, has left Algiers for London, where Rene Massigli, French Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, is conferring with members of the British Government, it was announced today.

Shift Of French Corps To De Gaulle Reported

Algiers, July 9 (AP)—The Franc D'Afrique Corps, which fought alongside the American Ninth Division in the coastal drive on Bizerte and captured more than 20,000 Axis prisoners, will be transferred from Gen. Henri Giraud's command to that of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, it was reported today.

The corps is composed of de Gaulist sympathizers who volunteered for front line service soon after the Allied landings in North Africa. During the Tunisian campaign it saw action under Giraud's field commander, Gen Alphonse Juin.

Arrangements for the corps' transfer to de Gaulle's forces was reported agreed upon by the French permanent military committee.

Pilot's Luck Not So Tough

By Relman Morin

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 9—The flyers and the ground crew crowded around Second Lieutenant Jig Buster, Jr., of Selma, Ala., lifted him gently and said: "Tough luck, Jig. That's really is a tought break."

Jig had just landed his Boston bomber on Pantelleria Island after a bombing raid on Trapani. He had to make a belly landing because the bomber's hydraulic system had been damaged by German fighters.

Sprains Knee

He made the landing safely and started to climb out of the cockpit, when he fell and sprained his knee badly.

"It's a bum break, Jig," his mates said as they carried him away.

And then they came back and looked at his damaged ship. Their eyes popped and their jaws dropped.

A full load of bombs was still in the bomb bays and the doors were slightly open.

Jig Buster never knew that the deadly "eggs" hadn't dropped. He knew the ship had been hit by anti-aircraft fire over the target, but he thought the bombs had gone and then he had come back with his hydraulic system damaged to make a belly landing on Pantelleria.

Belly-Landing Safe

With enough explosives hanging beneath the ship to blow everything near by to little pieces he had belly-landed the Boston.

(There was no mention in this dispatch of other members of the crew. The Boston normally has a three-man crew.)

Staff Sergeant Fred C. Elkins, of West Los Angeles, Cal., and Ernest Mealy, of Akron, Ohio, went back to Lieutenant Buster and told him about it.

"Who said you had tough luck?" they asked.

SpaatzLaudsBritishAirMarshal

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 9 (AP).—Praise for the work of his coastal air force in protecting Allied convoys in the Mediterranean Sea from enemy planes was sent to Air Vice-Marshal Sir Hugh P. Lloyd today by Lieutenant General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Northwest African Air Forces.

A-36 IS NEW TYPE OF ALLIED PLANE

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 9 (A. P.).—A speedy new fighter-bomber developed from the North American P-51 Mustang, has taken its place along side Lightning and Warhawk explosive carriers in the attacks upon Sicily it was disclosed today. Officially it is called the A-36.

The A-36 is fundamentally a fighter but is equipped with bomb racks and dive brakes an authority said. It can be usel both for dive-bombing and glide-bombing and was described as able to protect itself, whether on fighting, bombing or strafing missions.

This dispatch, passed through Allied censorship did not touch upon the armament, armor or speed of the new craft. The Mustang, which resembles Britain's Spitfire, is a single-seat, low wing monoplane. Its three-bladed propeller is driven by a 1,150 horse power Allison engine.

Planes Reducing Italy's First Defenses

JUL 10 1943

By Joseph Morton

[Associated Press Correspondent]

An Advanced American Air Base in North Africa, July 8 (Delayed). Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, of the Mediterranean air command, is slowly reducing Italy's first-line defense—the ports and air fields of Sicily.

Operating from bases in northwest Africa, Malta and Libya in the Middle East, the great Allied air force is now in the fourth stage of its campaign, which since December has dealt destruction and chaos to important objectives.

American Bombers

First-line American bombers—Flying Fortresses, Liberators, Mitchells, Marauders, Bostons and Baltimores—backed up by night-raiding Wellington bombers and Lightning, Warhawk and Spitfire fighters, have had a part in the long-range attack.

The initial stage opened late in November with raids on west Scilian ports feeding supplies to the German Africa Corps and other enemy forces in Tunisia. Attacks on eastern Sicilian ports, principally Catania and the vital train ferry terminus at Messina, came second, followed by the bombardment of airports in western Sicily.

In the fourth or present stage Sicilian air bases are receiving the hardest punch.

No Time To Rest

The campaign is being advanced without giving any key objective a rest or a chance to rebuild. Besides the pounding by bombers, fighter-bombers are skipping treetops far and wide and strafing everything from radio installations to locomotives.

Fighter opposition has ranged from none at all on some days to more than one hundred planes on other days. Allied bombers and their escorts destroyed more than one hundred planes in the air and on the ground during the past four days. Since the fall of Tunisia several hundred have been knocked out.

Harbor Installations

Palermo, Marsala and Trapani, all in northwestern Sicily, were the first big targets. Heavy and medium night bombers concentrated on harbor installations, severely curtailing the shipment of supplies to North Africa and contributing greatly to the Allies' victory in Tunisia. Bombardment of these parts is being followed up periodically—just to make sure they are not restored.

After the western ports came the interruption of the Messina train ferry—again with regular follow-ups—until four or five ferries operating across the seven-mile stait to Italy were damaged. That blow all but cut the only line of rail communication between the mainland and the island, disrupting the fastest and most satisfactory method of getting supplies to the island.

Catania Hit Hard

The No. 2 eastern port of Catania was hit nearly as hard, the bombers destroying a number of merchant vessels in the process and curtailing the operation of several ferries and armored barge-type craft, each capable of carrying a considerable tonnage of material and personnel.

The western airports suffered next, first from fragmentation bombs blowing up with deadly effect against buildings and grounded aircraft. After them came demolition bombs, filling the runways with craters. Both types were dropped in patterns—the bombers scarcely could miss.

Castelvetrano was hit the hardest and raids were conducted recurrently against Bocca di Falco, Sciacca, Trapani, Milo, Borizzo, Licata and Porto Empedocle.

Gerbini Target

In the fourth stage of the bombing campaign Sicily's great eastern air base at Gerbini, a large field with several smaller stations grouped around it, has been attacked both by day and by night, despite the strongest fighter resistance that has been mustered at any single point.

The important airfields at Comiso, Biscari and Catania also were hit hard, along with smaller bases at Syracuse, Mazara del Vallo and Catanzaro. Italy is still using these fields, but the attempted restoration of bomb-pocked runways is far from satisfactory.

Americans Bomb Burma Base

NEW DELHI, India, July 9 (AP).—Medium bombers of the United States 10th Air Force blasted rolling stock at Thazi Junction, eighty miles south of Mandalay yesterday, continuing their attacks against Japanese rail installations in Burma.

Heavy damage was reported both at Thazi Junction and on another concentration of rolling stock near the Mu River bridge, a communique said. Railway tracks at both places were wrecked.

Other formations of fighter bombers bombed and machine-gunned enemy supply dumps at Kamaing and Seton, in northern Burma. One large storage building was seen to explode, with flames rising to a height of 800 feet.

All planes and crews returned safely from these missions, the communique reported.

British bombers, dive-bombers and fighters attacked Japanese troop and supply targets in western Burma yesterday, shooting up the objectives with machine guns immediately after bombs had been dropped.

One fighter was reported missing after the day's widespread operations.

Japanese Open New Offensive In North China

Attack Positions inTaiheng Heights; Tokio Reports U. S. Raid on Haiphong

CHUNGKING, July 9 (AP). — Japanese troops have made a fresh attack on Chinese positions in the Taiheng Mountains to open the first major action of the seventh year of the Chinese-Japanese war, it was announced today.

A high command communique said fighting for the Chinese-held heights on the border of Shansi and Honan Province developed after more than 10,000 invasion troops massed in that area. The war anniversary was July 7.

The Chinese believe the Japanese wish to convert the mountains into a major base.

MUNDA HIT BY SEA, AIR, ARTILLERY

Three-Way Attack Seeks To Soften Jap Base For Troops

Ground Forces On New Georgia Consolidating Positions

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Saturday, July 10—More than one hundred American bombers teamed with destroyers and artillery Friday in giving the Japanese air base at Munda and its perimeter of defenses on New Georgia Island a three-way pounding.

The heavy attacks were intended to soften up that key base in the central Solomons for our ground forces which already have landed on New Georgia on two sides and now are consolidating positions prior to applying a pincers.

Drop 2,000-Pounders

Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive-bombers in great force loosed more than seventy tons of bombs, ranging up to 2,000-pounders, on Japanese bivouacs and supply dumps.

The destroyers maneuvered in treacherous waters just off Munda base before dawn yesterday, subjecting the Japanese to an intensive shelling.

On the ground our patrols, filtering through the jungle, frequently were in contact with the Japanese on the Munda side of the island and to the north near Rice Anchorage where one of our two landings was made.

Rendova Raiders Routed

The rout of forty-five Zeros seeking to raid our positions below Munda on Rendova Island, Allied aerial pounding of bases above Munda which might supply it air support, and continuous bombing of Japanese jungle positions before Salamaua, New Guinea, were other highlights of today's reports from the battlefronts.

The softening-up process against the Munda area started shortly after dawn yesterday, flight after flight of Avengers and dive-bombers swept over jungle positions to drop all types of bombs.

General MacArthur's spokesman termed it the heaviest bombing made thus far against Munda—a base which has been pounded so repeatedly from the air that it has been of little service to the enemy in recent weeks.

Protected By Wildcats

The raiders encountered ack-ack from the anti-aircraft artillery positions they pounded, but received protection from any possible Japanese interception by accompanying Wildcat fighters. No Japanese plane showed up.

The artillery shelling came from Rendova Island, which is about five miles across water from Munda. The shells were aimed at anti-aircraft positions.

Meanwhile, other dive-bombers roared down on targets at Bariroko and Enogai Inlet to the north of Munda.

Dispersed By U. S. Fighters

Over Rendova Island, which is a short distance below Munda, our fighter planes dispersed forty-five Zeros seeking to raid American positions, destroying four enemy planes.

At the other end of a 700-mile battle arc on northeastern New Guinea, the Japanese made an ineffective attempt to dive-bomb our landing base at Nassau Bay, twelve miles down the coast from Salamaua.

Japanese positions before Salamaua were pounded for the third straight day by Mitchell medium bombers.

Renew Raids On Timor

For the second straight day, Allied planes raided the island of Timor, 400 miles northwest of Australia, this time striking on the north coast at Dili. A large fire was started in the dispersal area of the airdrome. The previous raid was on the airdrome at Koepang, Dutch Timor.

Other Allied units continued to deal blows in the northern Solomons at Japanese bases which might aid Munda. In a night raid, our four-engined bombers attacked the Kahili airdrome on the southern tip of Bougainville and also raided Buin and Poporang.

Strafe New Guinea Villages

In the Mitchell raid near Salamaua, "our medium units in direct support of ground troops bombed and strafed enemy positions along Bobdubi ridge, starting fires," the communique said. Bobdubi is a jungle village only five miles below Salamaua.

The enemy village of Malolo, which is above Salamaua, also was strafed as was Busame.

The enemy dive-bomber attack on Nassau Bay was made after dawn. American troops landed on Nassau Bay at the outbreak of the new traffic offensive June 30 and since have been joined by Australians fighting toward the coast from the Mubo area.

Helena's Finish Dramatic

Another name—that of the fighting cruiser Helena—can be added to the list of warships famous in American history.

The dying moments of the ship that went down with guns still firing on the enemy were the most dramatic of the decisive American naval victory over the Japanese in the pre-dawn darkness of July 6 in Kula gulf—a victory that played an important part in the apparent early doom of the base at Munda.

Prevented Reinforcement

That victory prevented large-scale reinforcements from reaching the Japanese, now menaced at Munda on two sides by American invaders.

[J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press correspondent in the South Pacific, reported that the Helena sank at least two crusiers and two destroyers before it was sunk. Lodge's reports indicated that the Helena sank one of the destroyers after its own bow had been blown off.]

U. S. Forces on New Georgia Tighten Pincer Grip on Munda

JUL 10 1943

Allied Warplanes Heavily Bomb Jap Bases in Solomons and New Guinea—Foe Loses 200 Planes in Week.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 9 (A. P.).—Only three miles from Munda, United States invaders are attacking Japanese defenses of that New Georgia Island air base and over both the Solomons and New Guinea Allied planes have dealt new blows with nearly 100 tons of bombs, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

On the other hand, the hard-hit Japanese air force, having lost nearly 200 planes over the Solomons within a week, has diminished the weight of its punches.

The pincers which American Marines and soldiers began applying on Munda July 5 by landing both above and east of it pressed nearest at Elelo, on the east, where advanced patrols clashed yesterday with Japanese and defeated them. It was a feeling-out encounter with the big push obviously in abeyance while the main forces which stormed ashore above Munda at Rice Anchorage and east of it at Zanana consolidate positions. The intrenched Japanese at Munda are believed to be in considerable strength, prepared to offer a bloody defense.

Above New Georgia on Kolombangara Island, Munda's big supply depot at Vila was set afire and torn by twenty-one tons of high explosives unloaded by Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers.

Further up the Solomons, the Kahili airdrome from which the Japanese might offer Munda's defenders aerial support, was raided at the southern tip of Bougainville Island by big American Liberators last night. One Liberator was lost.

On northeastern New Guinea, where Australian and American patrols are moving toward the enemy air base of Salamaua, the Allied planes continued to blast a path through the jungle with their bombs.

Other formations of Mitchells bombed and strafed Japanese while Australian ground patrols maintained pressure of enemy units between Mubo and Salamaua, points twelve miles apart.

Australian-flown Hudsons and American-manned Liberators yesterday fought off fourteen Zeros, destroying three for certain and possibly two others as they bombed the enemy airdrome of Penfoei at Koepang on Dutch Timor.

Japanese air efforts yesterday were the weakest reported since the outset of the new Pacific offensive June 30.

Photographer Aboard Helena Tells How Cruiser Went Down

JUL 10 1943

Guns Blew Up Jap Destroyer but Then Something Hit U. S. Craft and It Was Abandoned—Over 600 Survivors.

Allied Headquarters in Australia, July 9 (A. P.).—The 9,700-ton United States cruiser Helena just had turned her guns on a Japanese destroyer and watched it go up in a blinding flash in the Kula Gulf of the central Solomons when "something hit her," but more than 600 aboard the Helena were saved from the oil-covered waters, war correspondents reported today from the South Pacific.

[The Helena was the only American warship lost in the Navy battle fought in the predawn darkness on July 6, earlier dispatches have reported, against the certain loss of nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers. The number of Helena survivors had not been stated previously. A cruiser of her type normally carries between 700 and 800 men.]

The story of the cruiser's destruction as related by Alan Jackson, American picture pool photographer who was aboard her, was sent to Australia by Osmar White, Australian correspondent. Mr. White estimated the number of survivors rescued at 600.

Photographer's Story.

Mr. Jackson, a photographer for International News Photos, gave this account of his experience:

"We were told early in the evening we were going to intercept the Tokio Express (nickname first applied to Japanese ships supplying Guadalcanal forces and in this case ships above New Georgia Island, presumably bringing aid to the menaced Munda air base) and to expect action at midnight.

Order to Abandon Ship.

"I went flying to the bridge. Approximately at 1:30 A. M. (July 6) targets were reported.

"We closed and the whole force opened a terrific salvo. After six minutes of continuous firing two Jap cruisers disappeared.

"we saw a Jap destroyer standing in and fired a salvo at her, which hit with a blinding flash. Then something hit us. The order to abandon ship was given. It was pitch dark and everything was covered with oil from the ship's vitals.

"I got my camera and went to the quarterdeck. The sailors were slashing rafts loose and jumping overboard and I went over the side. The water was thickly covered with oil.

"I paddled five minutes and reached a raft on which were thirty other men. There wasn't room for me so I clung on lifelines in the water.

"I looked back and saw the ship like a great ghost against the gun flashes. She was sinking and seemed to be dragging us back. We paddled and rowed madly. One man was crying out, 'Come on, sailors, give it hell!'

"We cleared her and she settled quietly and disappeared.

"I heard fellows calling for help all around, but there was little I could do. We sighted another raft and lashed both together. All the while, we felt the concussion of shells exploding in the water as the battle continued.

"Some one saw the outline of a ship and rafts started flashing lights all over the place. Then the officer called out: 'Douse the lights, they may be Japs.'

"We saw searchlights. We were afraid of going ashore on Kolombangara (island on the Kula Gulf above New Georgia) and paddled seaward. A destroyer's boat passed us, picked up an officer and said it would be back. The men started to shout 'Hip, hip hooray.' They cheered in unison to attract attention.

Lights Go On.

"We flashed the lights again. The whole sea was a mass of bobbing, floating lights. A destroyer passed within fifty yards and we called 'Are you coming back?' Some one replied, 'Take it easy, we will be back.'

"A half hour later a destroyer came up and we climbed the rope to the deck. She immediately put on speed and started firing. At dawn we ran into a Jap cruiser and gave her hell. I saw flames and smoke gushing from her. One hero was the whaleboatman who volunteered to stay back and pick up more survivors. We left him."

Mr. White said that prior to the battle, planes spotted four cruisers, five destroyers and several supply ships coming down from the north and the American force hit them after they turned into the Kula Gulf, which is only sixteen miles long and flanked by dangerous reefs.

Jap Landing a Possibility.

The action was broken off at daybreak when the main American force retired, leaving two destroyers to pick up the cruiser survivors. These two destroyers broke off the rescue work three times to engage scattered remnants of the enemy.

After daylight, planes reported that the gulf was spotted with floating wreckake, with Japanese clinging to rafts and spars amidst great oil slicks.

Mr. White said that while the Japanese force was completely broken, some ships may have succeeded in landing troops for the reinforcement of Vila, on Kolombangara.

Helena Sank Two Cruisers.

At an Advanced Invasion Base, South Pacific, July 6 (Delayed). (A. P.).—At least two Japanese cruisers and two destroyers were sunk by the cruiser Helena before it went down with colors flying in the decisive American naval victory in Kula Gulf early today.

LOST CRUISER SANK FOUR IN LAST FIGHT

Helena Got Two Cruisers and Two Destroyers in Kula Bay Encounter

AT AN ADVANCED INVASION BASE, South Pacific, July 6 (Delayed)—At least two Japanese cruisers and two destroyers were sunk by the cruiser Helena before she went down with colors flying in the decisive American naval victory in Kula Gulf early today.

JUL 10 1943

30.24——5835

The Helena was the only American ship lost when a small number of United States warships topped the Japanese Navy's bid to reinforce Vila on Kolombangara Island and Munda on New Georgia Island, central Solomon objectives of the powerful offensive against the enemy in the south Pacific.

The naval battle, which resulted in the loss of at least nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers, came after the Japanese, thinking they were omnipotent and undetected, steamed boldly into Kula Gulf, an eight-mile channel between New Georgia Island and its northern neighbor, Kolombangara.

Our naval forces, under the orders of the admiral commanding the action, were ready and waiting for a fight. As the Japanese steamed down the channel our light cruiser task force opened fire.

The cruiser Helena loosed her 6-inch guns upon two of Hirohito's best cruisers. Both were sunk. Then she sank at least two destroyers before going down herself.

Other Japanese Ships Hit

Alan Jackson of Oakland, Calif., International News Photos photographer, who was aboard the Helena, corroborates the fact that the Helena had hit her third target when her bow was blown off.

[Apparently the cruiser's gun crews remained at their posts aboard the doomed ship and sank the fourth Japanese warcraft after a torpedo had shattered the Helena's bow.]

In the meantime other cruisers of our task force were lobbing over shells which sent other Japanese cruisers and destroyers to the bottom while our destroyer escort took time to engage enemy vessels when not picking up survivors.

The participatio of the destroyers in this engagement was so great that the admiral recommended immediate promotion to the next higher rank and Navy Crosses for both commanders.

Jackson, who lost at least $1,000 worth of equipment and all films taken during the action, plus personal property, said that the Helena had been firing for six minutes and was on its third target when it was hit.

He said the majority of the crew of 1,200, except those in the engine rooms, went over the side of the ship into the ocean and were picked up by destroyers.

[In dispatches to Australia, Osmar White, Australian correspondent, estimated the number of survivors at 600. The number in the crew as reported by Jackson was much larger than the 700 to 800 men usually carried.]

Port Rendered Useless To Japs

JUL 10 1943

By J. Norman Lodge

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Occupation Force in New Georgia Island Jungle, July 6 (Delayed) (AP)—Fighting through almost impenetrable jungle and soaked by four days of torrential rain, the combined American forces today had gained every objective in their drive toward Munda airport—key to the tottering Japanese hold in the central Solomons.

The heavy weather, not anticipated in this normally dry season, slowed down the invasion thrusts at places, but the entire offensive was reported very little behind schedule.

Harbor Taken

(Dispatches of July 9 from Allied headquarters in Australia said marine and army patrols, moving on Munda in a pincers advance from two landings on northwestern New Georgia, were within three miles of the Japanese airfield.)

Bairoko harbor was taken by the marines and army July 5. The march on Munda was being pressed from there.

(This harbor is on Kula Gulf near Rice Anchorage, where one of the pincer movement landings was made.)

Next Objective Secret

The next objective of the offensive, after Munda is occupied, remained a secret which could give the Japanese plenty of cause for worry. It might be enemy bases on Bougainville, the northernmost of the Solomons or Rabaul, the important Japanese base on New Britain Island.

Munda has been rendered useless for enemy planes by repeated air bombings and naval shellings but the Japanese entrenched there were expected to make their customary battle to death.

The American victories to date have taken their toll for the invaders.

There was the heavy bombing which our forces took after the landing June 30 on Rendova Island, spearhead of the entire mission.

American units had cleaned up scattered enemy outposts by afternoon when the Nipponese planes came over in a strafing raid that held up dispersal of troops for two hours. Then rain and darkness intervened.

The troops spent the night in hastily-dug foxholes, while unloading of invasion ships went forward under the cover of darkness. Working in nearly knee-deep mud, the boys struggled like beavers to get a camp in some semblance of military order.

By noon of July 2 our heavy artillery was set up and was pouring shells on Munda, five miles away. But trees had to be cut down for a fire lane and again the enemy planes came over and the guns were stilled for a time.

The camp was finally moved to a more protected position by July 4, just before another air raid. This time our fighters, although unable to turn back the entire line of raiders, caused them to drop their bombs in a helter-skelter fashion and beat a hasty retreat.

Struck By Wreckage

Many of our men were struck by bits of Japanese plane wreckage, but declared they would be glad to receive any such wounds. Rendova seemed to be the center of the Japanese air attacks and several times foxholes proved better than a ticket back to the United States.

Meanwhile, landings had been made at Segi, opposite Vangunu Island; at Viru harbor on New Georgia and at Wicham Landing, where heavy opposition t emporarily kept our troops from maintaining a position.

It was reported about 400 or 500 Japanese defended the landing and of these 300 were killed. The remainder fled.

Other troops landed on New Georgia proper and started a long trek through the jungles toward Munda, while our naval units pounded airports on Kolombangara and Bougainville Islands.

Outfought Enemy

Our soldiers outfought the tricky Nipponese in their own type of jungle fighting and quickly gained every objective set for them. What few mistakes were made were honest mistakes and not repeated.

The only request of the men fighting through the drippi soggy jungle is for dry clothing and a chance to scrape the mud from their shoes, "

No complaint was heard at the food, and it was the first ti in my experience in two wars that hot coffee has been ready at every mealtime during a battle.

Tokio Reports New U. S. Landing

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—A Tokio dispatch broadcast from Berlin today quoted Japanese headquarters as announcing that "units of the Japanese air force attacked enemy troops which were attacking on the island of Rubiana" on Wednesday.

[Rubiana is a densely wooded island off the New Georgia coast a short distance southeast of Munda Point. There was no Allied confirmation of any action there.]

"Numerous large fires were caused," the Japanese report said. "Thirty-one enemy planes were brought down over the enemy positions."

Judgment On Storni Note Reserved In S. A.

JUL 10 1943

[By The Associated Press]

Montevideo, July 9 — Diplomatic circles reserved judgment today on a communication from Argentine Foreign Minister Segundo Storni informing the Emergency Committee for Political Defense of the Hemisphere that his government was studying the problem of closer cooperation with the other American nations.

While the communication was welcomed here as a possible indication of Argentine policy, informed circles in general adopted the attitude that deeds rather than words ar required to demonstrate the new Aires government's intenti o pursue a program of practica Pan-Americanism.

Answer To Note

Storni's message was delivered in answer to a note sent the previous Argentine government May 13, asking its opinion on the Montevideo com ee's recommendations concernin methods whereby Argentina m contribute to hemisphere d e.

In hi onse, Storni said his governm was setting up a permanent inisterial cabinet to deal with e Montevideo committee's ls. He added that the new inisterial committee "may con er the possibility of issuing new orders" in conformity with recommendations of the Montevideo committee.

Official Delegate

As an additional indication of Argentina's desire to cooperate with her neighbors, she was represented at a meeting of the emergency committee for the first time yesterday by an official delegate.

The delegate, Guillermo De Achaval, was understood to have told the closed meeting that Argentina would cooperate in the best manner possible with other American nations, but circles close to the committee said his statement did not hold forth any promise of a radical change in Argentine policy.

Mackenzie King Hails Raids On Italy And Sicily

Ottawa, July 9 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today that the aerial and Commando assault against Italy, Sicily, Sardinia and Crete "are parts of a single strategy which the immediate future may be expected rapidly to unfold."

Opening a review of recent world developments, the Prime Minister described the new German offensive in Soviet Russia as "a place of new beginning in the war in Europe."

Edmonton, July 9 (AP)—A United States Army cargo plane with a three-man crew has been missing since June 16 officials of the Air Transport Command announced today. The plane was returning on a routine cargo flight from Alaska and has not been heard from since it reported to a field on the Canadian side of the northern border.

New York, July 9 (AP)—The London radio, in a broadcast recorded here by CBS, said tonight that on next Wednesday, Bastille Day, "a nation-wide demonstration will be held in France."

"The people of France will leave their homes and go out into the street as a proof that they are undeterred by Germany tyranny. The demonstration has been called for by the French underground organizations."

Giraud Pledges French War On Japs

JUL 10 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 9—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, disclosing that President Roosevelt had promised to equip a French North African army of 300,000 men, pledged today that French forces would help fight the Japanese after defeat of the Axis powers in Europe.

Giraud told a room full of correspondents, gathered in Secretary of War Stimson's conference chamber:

"I give you the following pledge:

"France will be at your side to liberate the Pacific from Japanese domination, even as she will remain with you to build a peace that will be lasting and just, but also realistic."

Politics Avoided

General Giraud spoke in French to the press conference. He avoided discussion of the political situation in North Africa, where he shares the chairmanship of the French Committee of National Liberation with Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The conference was held under War Department auspices, and at its beginning the department handed correspondents the following statement:

"The member of the French Committee for National Liberation (General Giraud) does not wish to take a political position that might involve the whole committee."

Visits U. S. Shrines

General Giraud opened the conference by reading a prepared statement, followed by an informal summary of his impressions on a visit this morning to Mount Vernon.

He also noted his visits to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Lincoln Memorial, and then answered questions.

An American army captain translated the general's remarks, the questions and his replies.

Giraud promised that when his forces have been given planes, tanks, trucks and other equipment, "they will know how to use them effectively."

Stoutly Lauds Morale

Asked about reports of a weakening morale in the French Army, he answered vigorously:

"The morale of the French army of tomorrow will be that of the army of yesterday. When an army has lost 15,000 out of a total of 70,000 men, one can be sure tomorrow that army will be able to carry on the fight."

He previously had explained that the French forces in Tunisia had lost a total of 15,000 men, 2,500 of them killed, in helping rout the Germans and Italians from North Africa, although the French were poorly armed—fighting, as he expressed it, "with wooden sabers and guns of straw."

300,000 For Invasion

Giraud said he had 75,000 adequately armed men. He estimated that the equipment promised by Mr. Roosevelt would put into the field a French expeditionary corps for the invasion of Europe totaling

JUL 10 1943

300,000 men "not including other effectives for the protection of the colonial areas."

The expeditionary corps will be limited, he said, only by the fact that officers and technically trained personnel, necessary to build a modern army with modern weapons, are limited in a colonial country.

Declaring that his men "will go forth to fight with absolute confidence and irresistible drive as soon as they have those weapons in hand," the hero of French resistance to the Axis added:

"I am certain that they shall have them."

Material Arranged

In reply to questioning, General Giraud concluded the conference with a statement that he had arranged with the President for materiel to equip 300,000 men with American armament.

"If Great Britain wants to give more, I will take it—for I am a beggar and will take anything that is good," he added, with one of his rare smiles.

In reply to another question, Giraud said the 300,000 men would include the forces of General de Gaulle.

Visit Has One Purpose

In his prepared statement, Giraud said his visit "has no other purpose but to carry forward" with President Roosevelt the cooperation "based on mutual confidence, which will be so useful in bringing the French war effort to a maximum and insuring the equipment and rearmament of all French forces."

Giraud called for French unity, declaring that "Frenchmen who have the good fortune of being away from the enemy's yoke must show their unity to their fellow countrymen subjected to the odious presence of the Germans, the Germans, that they spare neither their efforts or their blood to help in the liberation of their country."

"As copresidents of the French Committee of Liberation," he said, "General De Gaulle and I have established as our sole aim the defeat of the Axis forces, the liberation of France, the return of a political structure in conformity with the natural aspirations of our country."

Pledging France's continued aid against the Japanese, Giraud said the French people "know that the defeat of Italy and Germany will not bring an end to the fighting."

U. S. RECOGNITION IS DENIED FRENCH

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—As long as the French people are under German domination, President Roosevelt indicated today, the United States cannot recognize the French Committee for National Liberation or any other organization as the governing power of France.

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference he did not think the question of recognizing the Committee for National Liberation had come. He observed that currently there is no France except about 5 per cent which is outside of the occupied France in Europe.

To a request for comment on reports in the press that the American attitude toward Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-chairman of the committee, was "unduly interfering with French political affairs," Mr. Roosevelt said he could assert only that he supposed 95 per cent of France was under the heel of the Germans in France.

As for his talks here with Gen. Giraud, the President said he and the General had talked at lunch yesterday about various military problems. He offered no elaboration.

SUB SINKINGS HIT NEW LOW

JUL 10 1943

Allied Losses In June Lowest Of Last Nineteen Months, Joint Report Says

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 9—In the war's most optimistic report on the battle against U-boats, the British and American governments jointly announced tonight that Allied ship losses in June were the lowest in nineteen months and U-boats so scarce on convoy routes that the hunt for them was turned to Axis home waters.

"Sinkings of Axis submarines were substantial and satisfactory," it was added.

The joint announcement was supplemented by a London statement issued at 10 Downing street which said:

"The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain have been concerned at the number of statements which are being made from time to time by public persons in the press on both sides of the Atlantic about the anti-U-boat war and methods and devices employed in it.

Monthly Statement

"The enemy, by piecing together portions of these statements, may glean more information than is desirable about these affairs. It has therefore been decided that a monthly statement approved by the President and the Prime Minister shall be issued on the tenth of every month and that apart from specially authorized announcements or statements by the President or Prime Minister or duly censored accounts or particular incidents and actions, this monthly statement will be the only one to be made on behalf of the British or American governments.

"All departments have been so instructed. It is hoped that the press will go so far as possible and cooperate in keeping the technical discussions of the U-boat warfare within the limits of the official announcements and generally leave the enemy in his present state of doubt and anxiety upon this most important aspect of our successful warfare at sea."

Victory Not Claimed

The Washington announcement refrained from saying that the anti-submarine war is won, but after reciting the June record it observed that "anti-submarine vessels and aircraft are coming into service in considerable numbers."

Coming on top of a highly successful record of anti-submarine operations in May, tonight's announcement made it clear that in any event the war against U-boats is going so well that the Allies can substantially increase the flow of weapons from the North American Continent to the armies poised around Europe.

In a recent speech to Parliament, Prime Minister Churchill, discussing the May record, said "more than thirty U-boats were certainly destroyed" in that month, and in the last half of May "scarcely a single merchant ship" was sunk in the North Atlantic.

Effect In June

Tonight's announcement said the heavy May toll of U-boats showed its affect in June when main trans-Atlantic convoys were "pracitcally unmolested" andfewer targets were offered to the Allied ships and aircraft searching for the Axis submersibles.

Navy announcement of the sinking of only two United Nations merchant ships in the Western Atlantic last month presented a sharp contrast with the situation that prevailed a year ago. In June, 1942, when the U-boats were swarming through the shipping lanes, 111 Allied and neutral merchant vessels were reported sunk in Western Atlantic waters alone.

While there is no doubt the Allies have made substantial progress in the battle against the U-boats, there has been varied speculation as to just how hard the enemy has been hit. Naval men have emphasized that owing to the characte rof U-boat operations it is never possible to be sure that submarines have been licked.

Perhaps Cabled Home

One suggestion, on the speculative side, has been that Hitler has called his submarines back to home waters to guard the invasion coasts.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, at a recent press conference, said the relatively small number of U-boats in operation probably was due to some change in German plans, and implied that a new outburst in U-boat warfare might be expected at any time.

Several factors enter into the increasing Allied success in operations against this major German weapon of the seas.

1. All types of anti-submarine ships, destroyer-escorts, corvettes and frigates, are becoming available to the Allies in increasing numbers.

Secret Weapons

2. New and secret anti-submarine weapons have been introduced. Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, chief of the Naval Bureau of Ordnance, said last spring that there were more and better weapons than depth charges for combating submarines.

3. Air patrols have been increased. Churchill disclosed recently that the British are employing what he termed "very long range" bombers to extend land-based patrols further to sea. There also have been hints of greater employment of carrier-based planes.

4. Finally, there is the immeasurable effect of the bombing attacks carried out on Axis submarine bases which undoubtedly have made it difficult for the enemy to repair damaged submarines.

Subs Get Jap Ship A Day

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Submarines, slicing through Pacific waters in ever-mounting numbers, are knocking off Japanese ships at the rate of one a day.

This terrific toll of what Japan needs most—ships to link her far-flung outposts of stolen empire—has prompted the navy to issue three special bulletins in little more than a month on the activities of its undersea arm. Ordinarily, the doings of submarines are related only after long periods of silence maintained for security reasons.

33 Vessels Since June 1

Since June 1 the American submarine packs, which Navy Secretary Knox declared were augmented steadily, have blasted to the bottom thirty-three Japanese supply vessels, many of them big transports, and tankers, and three destroyers. Probably sunk were two more—a transport and a tanker. Nine more ships, including a destroyer, were listed as damaged.

Sometimes vessels seen from a periscope only as being damaged sink later, but submarine commanders long have adhered rigidly to the rule of calling them just as they see them. The submarine most likely to be back for another try at the enemy is the one that gets out of there without waiting for too much observation as soon as an attack has been pressed home.

Hence, the toll of ships sunk announced in navy communiques is the very minimum.

Won't Ask Lewis To Sign Pact: Roosevelt

JUL 10 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, July 9—President Roosevelt gave a clear indication today that he has no intention of asking John L. Lewis to sign a new agreement with coal operators, as the mine union chief has been ordered to do by the War Labor Board.

What good would it do, Mr. Roosevelt asked at a press conference, if he sent Lewis a note in longhand on pink paper asking him to please conform with the WLB order, and Lewis did not sign?

Reaffirmation Mentioned

Reporters informed the President that the board apparently felt it needed "some governmental reaffirmation" of its order, presumably from him.

After all, the Chief Executive remarked, that was action by a quasi-judicial body and speaks for itself.

Question For Question

"What happens if Lewis does not conform?" a newsman inquired.

The President shot back: What would you do?

"I don't know," his questioner responded. "I'm not President."

It would be awfully difficult, the President asserted, if he ordered anyone to sign his name to something and got a refusal. He said he knew of no law that could compel any signing and that an awful lot of rot had been printed about the whole matter.

No Sanctions On Miners

Reminded that Montgomery Ward and Company had signed a labor contract after he had ordered the firm to do so, presumably because of fear of Government sanctions, Mr. Roosevelt said sanctions existed there in the form of authority to take over the firm, which he obviously did not want to do. But he said he doubted if there was similar authority for taking over Lewis' United Mine Workers.

To a question whether he felt he needed additional sanctions to "deal with recalcitrant unions," Mr. Roosevelt replied by suggesting that the press look at the first eight sections of the new anti-strike law.

Truman Expected to Rap Planes

JUL 10 1943

Committee Report, Awaited This Week End, Believed Strongly Critical.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—A formal report criticizing the nation's military forces for permitting continued production of planes they consider obsolete is expected to be issued this week end by the Truman war investigating committee.

JUL 10 1943

The report, the authoritative person said, will lash at what it terms failure of the military men to reduce the number—said to be sixty—of various types of fighting, transport and trainer planes now under construction.

In addition, he said, the report will charge that one of the largest aviation manufacturing companies handling military contracts has spread management too thin, with inefficient production of war planes at a result.

The committee findings also are expected to deal with a sub-committee's investigation of reports that defective parts have gone into some aircraft engines being manufactured for the armed forces.

The report will follow a wide inquiry into manufacturing, inspection and record keeping activities in the aviation industry. It is said to be so strongly critical of some of the policies of the military forces that Lieut.-Gen. William S. Knudsen, the Army's production trouble shooter, argued at a closed session yesterday that the language of its conclusions was too severe. The informant said that the committee declined to alter its findings despite Gen. Knudsen's protests.

In connection with its demand for a reduction in the number of types of planes now on the production line, the committee is said to be critical of a decision to continue construction of certain fighters it believes should give way to newer types.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, recently told the Senate Appropriations Committee that the Army had decided to concentrate on four models of fighters instead of the six previously in mass production, and was constantly improving the performance of its planes. Since then there have been announcements that new types of super-fighters are in production, without any disclosure of the performance of these ships.

$114,000,000,000 Congress Sets Pace for War Spending

JUL 10 1943

Money Appropriated in Six Months Would Aim $7000 Worth of Bullets at Each Axis Soldier.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—The Seventy-eighth Congress in six months appropriated $114,000,000,000 in new money—enough to aim $7,000 worth of bullets at each Axis soldier.

The total approved by the lawmakers from the time they convened in January until the start of a summer recess yesterday was $33,000,000,000 short of the previous high in congressional spending for one session. However, the actual direct appropriations to the armed forces was a record.

Direct appropriations for the War Department were $59,034,839,673, exclusive of $12,472,839,200 in reappropriation of funds provided in previous years but not spent. The Navy's share was $31,473,402,317. Last year the Navy got $25,558,982,181 and the Army $42,820,006,365 plus a carry-over of $29,900,000,000 in money previously appropriated.

$107,000,000,000 for War.

For other services connected with the war but not directly tied in with the War and Navy departments, Chairman Cannon (D.-Mo.) estimated the 1944 appropriations at $17,000,000,000. Added to the $90,000,000,000 for the armed services, this put the war outlay for the six-month session at approximately $17,000,000,000, with non-war items accounting for the remaining $7,000,000,000 appropriated.

During the entire first world war, Mr. Cannon estimated the Army spent only $23,000,000,000.

Committee experts estimated that $25,000,000,000 was earmarked this year for airplanes alone. Of this, $20,426,545,830 was allotted to the War Department, whose spokesmen told the committee this would pay for 99,740 Army planes expected to be built and delivered by July 1, 1944—the end of the current fiscal year.

The Navy's plane appropriations totaled about $5,000,000,000 for 27,642 new craft, while its ship construction program received $9,535,120,000.

Break Down of Total.

For war and defense purposes alone, since July 1, 1940, committee records showed, Congress has appropriated $322,000,000,000.

Here's how the various agencies shared in distribution of direct appropriations made since January 1, 1943:

War Department, $59,034,839,673; Navy, $31,473,402,317; War Agencies, eighteen departments, including OPA and WPB, $2,911,697,224; independent offices, $2,621,[illegible]879; defense aid, including lend-lease, $6,273,629,000; Agriculture, $848,295,883; Interior, $104,608,921; Labor-Federal Security, $1,137,167,010; District of Columbia, $55,466,565; Legislative-Judiciary, $40,894,478; State-Commerce-Justice departments, $221,405,400; Treasury-Post Office, $1,100,691,275; civil functions of the War Department, $63,657,098; farm labor supply, $26,100,000; deficiency and supplemental items, $4,532,606,340.

Roosevelt Intervenes for FCC

JUL 10 1943

Orders War and Navy Departments Not to Co-operate With Cox's Committee.

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—By direction of President Roosevelt, the War and Navy departments refused today to co-operate in an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission undertaken by a special House committee headed by Representative Cox (D.-Ga.).

Both departments notified the committee that they would not permit the appearance of officers whom the committee desired to question, nor produce documents it had requested in an effort to support charges that thes FCC interfered with intelligence operations of the armed services.

Mr. Cox's chairmanship of the committee has been attacked by members of the FCC on the ground of prejudice. Clifford J. Durr, a member of the commission, filed an appeal with the House seeking Mr. Cox's replacement. He recalled that Mr. Cox had received $2,500 for legal services rendered a Georgia radio station which had a case pending before the FCC. Mr. Cox said the money went to charity.

Roosevelt's Order Quoted.

Mr. Cox made public letters from Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, and James V. Forrestal, acting Secretary of the Navy, giving their departments' views. Mr. Forrestal told the committee:

"I must decline to permit the appearance of the naval officers, active or inactive, before your committee as such appearance would be incompatable with the public interest.

"The President of the United States authorizes me to inform the committee that he, the President, refuses to allow the documents described in your letter to be delivered to the committee, as such delivery would be incompatible with the public interest."

Mr. Patterson's letter was similar.

Budget Director Refuses Also.

Harold Smith, director of the Budget Bureau, likewise refused to testify, asserting that the President had issued "specific instructions" that bureau files relating to the proposal to transfer FCC intelligence activities to the armed services should not be made public.

"Proposals of this character relate directly to the military program and their disclosure would not be in the interest of that program," Mr. Smith said.

Fly Again Bars Use of Files.

James L. Fly, chairman of the FFC, repeated on the witness stand his previous written refusal to give the committee files and documents it had requested.

Eugene L. Garey, committee counsel, said the files requested deal with the consideration by the Board of War Communications (BWC) of charges against Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Mr. Garey said the committee had information that the BUC had ordered an investigation of charges that Mr. Miller "was alleged to have published confidential matter" pending before a board committee of which Mr. Miller was a member. The BWC's law committee, he added, dismissed the charges—which Mr. Garey said had been made "to punish Mr. Miller for his opposition" to Fly.

Mr. Fly told the committee his refusal to produce the documents was based on a decision of the board, of which he is chairman, that they were confidential and belonged to the board and not to the FCC. The board, he said, felt that public disclosure of the records would "adversely affect the national security or injure the national prestige."

President Roosevelt withheld today his reasons for withdrawing his nomination of George Henry Payne for reappointment as a member of the Federal Communications Commission, a step which resulted in severing Mr. Payne's connection with the agency.

The President told a press conference that he had seen various guesses about Mr. Payne, and so far all had been wrong. Asked whether he would supply the right one, he said he did not think so.

Mr. Payne's renomination was sent to the Senate last week and the President withdrew it the next day, without comment.

Subsequently, James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the FFC, told a press conference that he had not requested the withdrawal. He said he had visited the White House by request on the morning of the day Mr. Payne's name was withdrawn, but stated the action had been taken before he saw the President. He added that this visit was devoted to "an entirely different matter."

Mr. Payne, a New Yorker, has served on the commission since 1934.

Roosevelt Tells Poland Hour of Freedom Nears

In Message to Raczkiewicz, He Asserts Victories Are Herald of Deliverance

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt told Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, Polish President-in-exile in London, that he fully shares the view that "our increasing victories are bringing closer the hour of deliverance for the nations of Europe struggling against the brutal invader."

Replying to a message from the Polish President on American Independence Day, the President declared that "the Polish people may be certain that their sufferings and unceasing contributions to our common cause will not be forgotten when their hour of liberation strikes."

Mr. Roosevelt said he was fully cognizant of what the loss of General Sikorski, Polish Premier, means to the people of Poland and that he was confident they would carry on "with redoubled efforts their fight against Nazi tyranny, secure in the thought that the high principles of integrity, justice and statesmanship laid down by General Sikorski will be carried on by other leaders."

General Sikorski was killed in the crash of an airplane taking off from Gibraltar.

Dual Citizenship Is Hit By Korean

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A Korean recommended to a House committee today that the United States disfranchise all Japanese-Americans who have not renounced Japanese citizenship.

Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the Korean National Front Federation, urged this action in a statement given to the special House Committee on un-American Activities, headed by Representative Dies (D., Texas).

This group is studying administration of war relocation centers for Japanese, and members said after a lengthy conference today with officials of the War, Navk and Justice Deartments that they probably would make a report with recommendations in about two weeks.

The War Department recommended in 1941 that those of dual citizenship be disfranchised, Haan said, but Congress took no action.

JAP-AGENT CH... DENIED BY W...

New York Daily News Copy Editor Released On $5,000 Bail After Pleading Innocent

[By the Associated Press]

New York, July 9 (AP)—Frederick Heizer Wright, 40, copy editor of the New York Daily News, was released in $5,000 bail today after he pleaded innocent to an indictment charging he worked as a paid agent of the Japanese Government for ten years preceding Pearl Harbor without notifying the State Department.

Federal Judge John W. Clancy, who fixed the bail, scheduled the case for trial August 9. Wright was arraigned without counsel after voluntarily surrendering at the office of Howard F. Corcoran, United States Attorney.

"I will have my day in court and I would prefer not to say anything until that day," Wright said at his arraignment.

JUL 10 1943

12 Years Maximum Term

If found guilty on both counts of the indictment, Wright would face a maximum penalty of twelve years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Sylvic J. Mollo, Assistant United States Attorney, told the court that Wright "kept the fact that he was acting as a Japanese agent from the Daily News, and violated his trst as a newspaperman. His actions as such an agent while working for a newspaper between 1931 and 1941 cannot be justified."

Corcoran, who obtained the indictment, said "there was no evidence that Wright's superiors on the newspaper had any knowledge of the activities complained of in the indictment."

Conspiracy Charged

The indictment charged that Wright failed to notify the State Department of his employment by the Imperial Japanese Government and that he conspired with Japanese officials in this country to keep his connections a secret from his newspaper.

Corcoran said the Japanese Government paid for the upkeep of an office which Wright maintained across the street from the Japanese Consulate, and asserted that he received from $300 to $400 monthly for his services as an agent.

Supplies To China

The indictment charged that Wright attempted obtain information concerning materials and supplies being shipped to China by the United States in 1940 while representing himself as a newspaper reporter, that he edited the speeches and correspondence of Japanese consuls and vice-consuls in the East Coast area, and that he submitted to the Japanese reports of his investigation of Communist activities in this country.

TACIT CODE BARS STRAFING OF PILOTS

JUL 10 1943

Hamilton Field, Cal., July 9 (A. P.).—Lieut. Arthur O. Beimdick Jr., an American hero fighter pilot and veteran of the African campaign, told today of an unwritten law of combat, under which neither American nor German flyers strafe pilots forced down. He said:

"When an American pilot was shot down and belly-landed on the ground, the German would circle him for about five minutes before coming in to strafe his grounded plane. I have seen quite a few of our pilots belly-land and get out of their ships and run like hell.

"There was no place to hide, no holes to jump in, no trees to use for concealment. The German would swoop down and strafe the plane and would never take a shot at the stranded American. We never did it to them, and until it is violated it will probably exist as it is now."

Lieut. Beimdick holds the Air Medal and two clusters for fighting in Africa. He formerly lived in Webster Groves, Mo., and is living with his wife in San Rafael, Cal., now.

BROADCAST FROM ALGIERS WHICH GAVE THE BARE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE MOMENTOUS STEP.

CANADIAN, BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS COMPRISED THE INVASION FORCES.

JUL 10 1943

GENERAL EISENHOWER TIMED THE BOLD THRUST WITH AN ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE PEOPLE OF AXIS-DOMINATED FRANCE THAT THEIR TURN WAS COMING. HE SAID THIS WAS THE FIRST STAGE IN THE "LIBERATION OF THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT" BUT EMPHASIZED IN A BROADCAST THAT THE DOWNTRODDEN FRENCH WOULD BE WISE TO LAY LOW AND NOT EXPOSE THEMSELVES TO REPRISALS.

THIS JUMPOFF TO THE BIG ITALIAN ISLAND WENT A LONG WAY TOWARD CLEANING UP THE MEDITERRANEAN. WITH AFRICA IN THE HANDS OF THE ALLIES, SICILY UNDERGOING MAN-TO-MAN ATTACK, AND SARDINIA SO CLOSE IT SCARCELY COULD ESCAPE A BLOW SOON, A LARGE AREA OF THE "SOFT UNDERBELLY" OF AXIS-HELD EUROPE WAS UNDER DIRECT FIRE.

FIRST LEAD SICILY INVASION

JUL 10 1943

WASHINGTON, JULY 10-(SATURDAY)-(AP)-ALLIED FORCES LEAPED ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN FROM AFRICA BASES TODAY AND CLIMAXED WEEKS OF AERIAL POUNDING WITH THE FIRST INVASION OF ITALIAN SOIL..THE ISLAND OF SICILY OFF THE ITALIAN BOOT.

POWERFUL AIR FORCES, AIDED BY NAVAL BOMBARDMENTS, PRECEDED THE LANDING OF SOLDIERS ON THE BIG ISLAND WHICH HAD BEEN SOFTENED UP BY PRECISION AND AREA BOMBINGS MOUNTING IN INTENSITY OVER WEEKS.

THE UNITED STATES WAR DEPARTMENT ISSUED A 50-WORD COMMUNIQUE TO DRAMATICALLY DISCLOSE FIRST DETAILS OF THE DRIVE BY FORCES UNDER GENERAL DWIGHT DAVID EISENHOWER. THE ANNOUNCEMENT COINCIDED WITH A RADIO

NEVERTHELESS, THE POSSIBILITY IF NOT PROBABILITY OF SPIRITED RESISTANCE BY SICILY'S DEFENDERS EXISTED.

GERMAN-ITALIAN FORCES HAD BEEN REINFORCED IN SOUTHERN ITALY AND ITS OUTPOSTS RECENTLY, WITH AN ANTI-INVASION ARMY OF PERHAPS AS HIGH AS 300,000 HIGHLY-TRAINED MEN POISED FOR THE TEST.

ALTHOUGH ALLIED POSSESSION OF SICILY WOULD VASTLY IMPROVE THE MILITARY SITUATION IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, TROUBLE SPOTS STILL ECIST.

ONE OF THEM IS THE AXIS-HELD ISLAND OF CRETE NEAR THE EASTERN END OF THE SEA. SEIZED WHEN THE AXIS SURGED SOUTH THROUGH THE BALKANS AND SENT AIR-BORNE TROOPS OUT TO PLAY A MAJOR PART IN THE SEIZURE OF THE ISLAND, CRETE HAS BEEN HEAVILY FORTIFIED BY THE AXIS.

A BRITISH RAIDING FORCE, HOWEVER, LANDED ON THE ISLAND RECENTLY, DESTROYING ENEMY AIRCRAFT AND INSTALLATIONS AND THEN RETIRING. IT IS QUITE PROBABLE THAT IN ADDITION TO THE DEMOLITION WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY THIS FORCE, THE BRITISH TROOPS PROCURED VALUABLE INFORMATION

TO BE USED WHEN CRETE COMES WITHIN THE SCOPE OF THE ADVANCING INVASION LINE.

JUL 10 1943

THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE INFORMATION CONCERNING THE AREAS SELECTED BY EISENHOWER FOR THE LANDING ASSAULTS ON SICILY, BUT EXPERT OPINION HAS FAVORED THE SOUTH AND WEST COASTS, PLUS THE GREAT PORT OF PALERMO ON THE NORTHWEST, AS OFFERING THE BEST CHANCE OF SUCCESS. LANDINGS AT MARSALA ON THE WEST COAST AND IN THE VICINITY OF PORTO EMPEDOCLE ON THE SOUTH, BOTH EASILY ACCESSIBLE FROM TUNISIA, COULD LEAD TO THE GREAT CENTRAL PLAIN OF THE ISLAND, WHERE PRESUMABLY THE BULK OF THE AXIS FORCES ARE CONCENTRATED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SATURDAY, JULY 10-AP)-ALLIED FORCES STORMED THE ROCKY SHORES OF SICILY TODAY TO OPEN THE SECOND EUROPEAN FRONT.

THE LIGHTNING-QUICK INVASION WAS LAUNCHED IN GOOD WEATHER BY A LIGHT MOON AS TROOP SHIPS ESCORTING WARSHIPS DEFIED MINEFIELDS AND STRONGLY PLACED ENEMY GUNS TO REACH THE OBJECTIVE.

ITALIANS, BULWARKED BY ELITE GERMAN TROOPS, WERE EXPECTED TO OFFER BITTER RESISTANCE DESPITE WIDESPREAD DISCONTENT AMONG THE ITALIAN POPULATION ON THE ISLAND WITH THE COURSE OF THE WAR.

THE ITALIANS ALREADY HAD ENGAGED IN A SCORCHED EARTH PROGRAM, DESTROYING HARBOR INSTALLATIONS AT TRAPANI, WHICH IS THE CLOSEST IMPORTANT SICILIAN PORT TO AFRICA.

JUL 10 1943

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE LANDINGS DID NOT SPECIFY THE NATIONALITIES OF THE ALLIED FORCES ENGAGED IN THE ATTACK, NOR DID IT DISCLOSE WHO WERE THE FIELD COMMANDERS.

THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE SCALE OF THE ALLIED SUCCESS. ALLIED WARPLANES X X X SECOND GRAF PV.

ALLIED WARPLANES BOMBARDED SICILY'S COASTAL DEFENSES PRECEDING THE LANDING OF GENERAL EISENHOWER'S ALLIED TROOPS AND WARSHIPS POUNDED THE ENEMY FROM OFF-SHORE AS THE FIRST LANDING CRAFT SPED UP TO THE ISLAND'S BEACHES.

JUL 10 1943

A SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE FROM ADVANCE ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED IN TERSE TERMS THAT FORCES UNDER GENERAL EISENHOWER'S SEASONED COMMAND BEGAN A LANDING OPERATION ON SICILY EARLY THIS MORNING, ADDING:

"THE LANDINGS WERE PRECEDED BY AN AIR ATTACK. NAVAL FORCES ESCORTED THE ASSAULT FORCES AND BOMBARDED THE COAST DEFENSES DURING THE ASSAULT."

THE ACTION CAME ON THE HEELS OF SIX DAYS OF ALMOST CONSTANT, SLAMMING BY ALLIED AIR MIGHT OVER THE ISLAND WHICH ROCKED UNDER THE POWERFUL BLOWS BY DAY AND BY NIGHT.

(THE ALGIERS RADIO IN A BROADCAST TO NORTH AMERICA, RECORDED BY U.S. GOVERNMENT MONITORS, SAID THE ALLIED FORCES HAD LANDED ON THE ROCK-STUDDED WESTERN TIP OF SICILY, 260 MILES FROM ROME.)

THE INVASION, LAUNCHED ACROSS THE 90-MILE WIDE SICILIAN STRAIT, CAME JUST EIGHT MONTHS AFTER THE ALLIED FORCES FIRST LANDED IN NORTH AFRICA AND TWO MONTHS AFTER THEY HAD CRUSHED RESISTANCE BY A QUARTER OF A MILLION AXIS TROOPS IN TUNISIA.

BY PUBLISHED ENEMY ACCOUNTS OBSERVERS ESTIMATED THAT POSSIBLY TWO GERMAN DIVISIONS WITH TANKS AND AT LEAST THAT MANY ITALIAN

JUL 10 1943

DIVISIONS WERE GARRISONED ON SICILY, WITH ITS 500-MILE COASTLINE.

THE TRIANGULAR-SHAPED ISLAND OFFERED FEW ACCESSIBLE BEACHES, TO THE INVADERS, EXCEPT ALONG THE 180-MILE SOUTHWEST SIDE. THE APPROACHES WERE GROUNDED BY MINEFIELDS LURKING, SUBMARINES AND STRONG COASTAL BATTERIES, AND THE NEARNESS OF ENEMY BOMBER BASES ON THE MAINLAND ARE AMONG THE GREATEST HAZARDS CONFRONTING EISENHOWER'S SMASHING AMPHIBIOUS OFFENSIVE.

JUL 10 1943

ALTHOUGH THE MESSINA STRAITS, WHICH ARE LESS THAN TWO MILES ACROSS AT THE NARROWEST POINT, DIVIDE SICILY FROM THE "TOE OF THE BOOT," IT IS OTHERWISE A GEOGRAPHICAL PART OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA.

SUCCESSFUL ALLIED INVASION ARMIES, OBSERVERS BELIEVED, MIGHT HAVE NO MORE DIFFICULTY CROSSING THE SLIGHT EXPANSE OF WATER TO THE MAINLAND THAN THE JAPANESE HAD IN SPANNING THE JOHORE STRAITS TO SINGAPORE.

DENSELY POPULATED WITH 4,000,000 INHABITANTS IN PEACETIME, SICILY HAS BEEN REGARDED BY THE ENEMY AS THE LIKELIEST POINT OF AN ALLIED ATTACK AND DEFENSE MEASURES WERE PUSHED DESPERATELY THIS YEAR.

INVASION

LONDON, JULY 10-(AP)-THE ATTACK ON SICILY EARLY TODAY CAME WHERE THE AXIS HAD EXPECTED, AND MILITARY OBSERVERS HERE SAID IT WOULD BE A TOUGH STRUGGLE.

THE LONG-AWAITED ASSAULT CAME AS GERMANY FACED A TERRIFIC LIFE AND DEATH BATTLE ON THE EASTERN FRONT AGAINST RUSSIA.

JUL 10 1943

IN THE FIERCELY-BLAZING RUSSIAN BATTLE THE GERMANS APPEARED TO BE THROWING EVERYTHING THEY HAD. AND IT WAS THE VIEW OF SOME QUARTERS HERE THAT THE NEW GERMAN OFFENSIVE WAS A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO GET THE SOVIETS TO SIGN A SEPARATE PEACE.

THE MOSCOW RADIO AND EVEN STALIN HIMSELF IN RECENT WEEKS REPEATEDLY WARNED AGAINST POSSIBLE NAZI PEACE OFFENSIVES, SAYING OVER AND OVER THEY WOULD FAIL.

JUL 10 1943

INVASION

LONDON, JULY 10-(AP)-GERMAN RADIO BROADCAST MADE NO MENTION EARLY TODAY OF THE ALLIED INVASION OF SICILY.

ONLY A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE ALLIES STRUCK, HOWEVER, GERMAN OVERSEAS BROADCASTS DECLARED THAT "THE BIGGEST ENTERPRISE IN HISTORY MAY BEGIN AT ANY MOMENT," ADDING THAT ALLIED PREPARATIONS FOR THE INVASION OF EUROPE HAD BEEN COMPLETED.

ADD LONDON - ALERT

THE LONDON-BOUND RAIDERS WERE HEADED OFF SHORT OF THE METROPOLITAN AREA, THE BRITISH REPORTED.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS WERE IN ACTION IN TWO DISTRICTS OF THE HOME COUNTIES SURROUNDING LONDON AND PLANES WERE HEARD OVERHEAD, DIVING AND TWISTING OUT OF THE FIELD OF FIRE AND THEN HEADING BACK TOWARD THE COAST.

THE LONDON ALL-CLEAR CAME 18 MINUTES AFTER THE WARNING. THE ALERT WAS LONDON'S 650TH OF THE WAR. (EDS: NO PICKUP. MAY BE INSERTED IN BRITISH AERIAL.)

A WOMAN LIVING OPPOSITE THE THEATER SAID SHE SAW A JUNKERS BOMBER SKIMMING THE ROOFTOPS.

JUL 10 1943

OTHER PERSONS WERE INJURED AND KILLED IN ADJACENT SHOPS.

ONE OF THOSE WHO ESCAPED WAS JOHN PARSONS, 13, WHO WENT TO THE MOVIE RIGHT FROM SCHOOL. HE WAS SITTING IN THE FRONT ROW.

"THE VERY FIRST THING I KNEW WAS A SORT OF CRACKLING WHICH RAN ALONG THE CEILING OF THE CINEMA," HE SAID. "THE EXIT LIGHTS AND THE FILM WENT OUT AT THE SAME MOMENT AND THE PLACE WAS IN COMPLETE DARKNESS

"BITS OF DEBRIS STARTED FLYING ABOUT. I GOT ON THE FLOOR IN FRONT OF A ROW OF SEATS AND CRAWLED ALONG IN FRONT OF THEM, THEN JUMPED AND RAN TO AN EXIT.

JUL 10 1943

"JUST AS I WAS GOING UP THE STEPS THERE WAS AN EXPLOSION. IT WAS A SECOND BOMB. I DID NOT HEAR THE FIRST BOMB EXPLODE AND I LAY DOWN ON THE STEPS WITH OTHER PEOPLE COMING OUT. THEN I FELT A PAIN IN MY FACE AND FOUND I HAD BEEN CUT. WHEN I CAME OUT THERE WAS A SOLDIER AT THE TOP OF THE STEPS. I HEARD MACHINE GUN FIRE AND STEPPED INSIDE AGAIN. WHEN I CAME OUT I WAS TAKEN TO A CLINIC."

LONDON, JULY 10-(SATURDAY)-(AP)-EVEN WHILE ALLIED FORCES WERE STRIKING INTO SICILY IN A BOLD MEDITERRANEAN BLOW, BRITAIN-BASED RAF BOMBERS BLASTED TARGETS IN GERMANY ONCE MORE LAST NIGHT IN A PARTIAL DEMONSTRATION OF THE ALLIED POWER PRESSING AXIS EUROPE FROM ALL SIDES.

JUL 10 1943

THE BRIEF ANNOUNCEMENT EARLY TODAY THAT THE BIG BOMBERS AGAIN WERE OVER THE REICH GAVE NO INDICATION WHERE OR IN WHAT FORCE THEY STRUCK.

IT WAS THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE NIGHT THE RAF HAD BEEN OVER EUROPE. ON THE PREVIOUS NIGHT MORE THAN 1,000 TONS OF BOMBS WERE CASCADED ON BATTERED COLOGNE.

JUL 10 1943

LONDON, JULY 9-(AP)-THE VICHY RADIO IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAID TODAY THAT PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, NAZI MINISTER OF PROPAGANDA, HAD ARRIVED IN COLOGNE TO EXAMINE THE DAMAGE CAUSED BY ALLIED RAIDS ON THAT CITY.

LONDON, JULY 9-(AP)-H.FREEMAN MATTHEWS, 43, BALTIMORE, IS GIVING UP HIS POST AS COUNSELLOR OF THE AMERICAN EMBASSY IN LONDON TO BECOME CHIEF OF THE EUROPEAN SECTION OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON, EMBASSY OFFICIALS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

IN WASHINGTON HE WILL SUCCEED RAY ATHERTON, NEWLY APPOINTED MINISTER TO CANADA. MATTHEWS FORMERLY WAS ATTACHED TO THE AMERICAN EMBASSY IN VICHY.

LONDON, JULY 9-(AP)-TWO YOUNG SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE, STILL EAGER FOR ACTION AFTER TWO YEARS WITH THE FIGHTING FRENCH AIR FORCE IN THE MIDDLE EAST, HAVE ENLISTED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCES AND BEEN DISPATCHED TO A TRAINING CENTER TO BECOME HEAVY BOMBER GUNNERS.

ALTHOUGH A VETERAN OF SEVEN OPERATIONAL MISSIONS AS A BLENHEIM BOMBER GUNNER -- INCLUDING ATTACKS ON TOBRUK AND CASTEL ADOLFO IN LIBYA -- FLIGHT SERGT. JOSEPH FLORY, 30, SON OF EMILE FLORY, OAKLAND, CALIF., DISMISSES HIS ADVENTUROUS TRAVELS THROUGHOUT AFRICA AND THE MIDDLE EAST AS "JUST A PRETTY GOOD COOK'S TOUR."

"I'D LIKE TO SEE SOME REAL ACTION -- AND NOW," HE SAYS, ADDING THAT

JUL 10 1943

HE WOULD PREFER TO SERVE ON A FLYING FORTRESS BUT WOULD WELCOME ASSIGNMENT "TO ANY KITE THAT'S GOT A GUN."

GEORGE TUNGKVIST, 22, OF MANILA, PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, THE OTHER YOUNG SOLDIER OF FORTUNE, SAYS HE HAS ALWAYS BEEN "JUST ONE JUMP AHEAD OF ACTION."

JUL 10 1943

"I JOINED THE FIGHTING FRENCH AND LEFT HOME LOOKING FOR ACTION," HE RECALLS. "TWO MONTHS AFTER I SAID GOOD-BYE TO THE PHILIPPINES CAME PEARL HARBOR. IT MADE ME FEEL PRETTY BADLY TO KNOW THAT MANY OF THE FRIENDS I HAD JUST LEFT WERE FIGHTING OR HAD BEEN KILLED BY JAPS.

"TWO WEEKS AFTER I LEFT SINGAPORE THE JAPS BEGAN TO BOMB THAT PLACE. FIGHTING SEEMS TO BREAK OUT AT THE PLACES I'VE JUST LEFT. AFTER ALL THIS TIME I STILL HAVEN'T HAD ANY COMBAT EXPERIENCE."

FLORY SAYS HIS OPERATIONAL FIGHTS IN THE MIDDLE EAST WERE "DUCK SOUP" COMPARED TO THOSE BEING MADE BY BRITAIN-BASED BOMBERS.

IN ALL HIS COMBAT EXPERIENCE, WHICH INCLUDED 10 MISSIONS WITH THE FRENCH AIR FORCE AGAINST REBELLIOUS TRIBESMEN IN MOROCCO IN THE EARLY THIRTIES, FLORY HASN'T SHOT DOWN A SINGLE ENEMY PLANE AND HIS OWN AIRCRAFT HAS SUFFERED ONLY MINOR NICKS.

FLORY WAS BORN IN FRANCE AND MOVED WITH HIS PARENTS TO CALIFORNIA WHEN HE WAS 12. FROM SCHOOL HE WENT TO WORK IN THE OAKLAND AND ALAMEDA SHIPYARDS.

JUL 10 1943

RETURNING TO FRANCE IN 1931, FLORY ENLISTED IN THE AIR CORPS. HE SERVED THREE YEARS IN MOROCCO AND THEN RETURNED TO AMERICA. EARLY IN 1941 HE WORKED HIS WAY TO ENGLAND ON A NORWEGIAN SHIP AND JOINED THE FIGHTING FRENCH AIR CORPS. WITH A CHUCKLE FLORY RECALLS THAT A MEMBER OF HIS DRAFT BOARD ACCUSED HIM OF LEAVING THE COUNTRY SO HE WOULDN'T HAVE TO FIGHT.

JUL 10 1943

B34

"FROM ENGLAND I SENT HIM A POSTCARD SAYING 'THIS IS FROM THE LAD WHO'S AFRAID TO FIGHT'. THAT'S ALL, EXCEPT IT HAD MY FIGHTING FRENCH AIR CORPS ADDRESS ON IT," FLORY SAYS.

HE WAS FIRST SENT TO SYRIA AND THEN TO LIBYA, WHERE HE SERVED IN THE AIR AND LATER ON A GROUND CREW.

TUNGKVIST IS THE SON OF AN ESTONIAN MOTHER AND A BELGIAN FATHER. FOLLOWING HIS FATHER'S DEATH IN CHINA IN 1923, HIS MOTHER, MRS. HELEN TUNGKVIST, TOOK HIM TO MANILA WHERE SHE OPERATED A DRESS SHOP. THE SON WORKED AFTER SCHOOL REPAIRING HER CUSTOMERS' RADIOS.

TUNGKVIST HASN'T HAD ANY WORD OF HISMOTHER SINCE HE LEFT MANILA ON OCT.19, 1941. JAPANESE AUTHORITIES NEVER HAVE ANSWERED FREQUENT APPEALS THROUGH THE RED CROSS FOR INFORMATION, HE SAYS.

ENLISTING AS A CADET PILOT, TUNGKVIST WENT TO SINGAPORE AND THEN DAMASCUS FOR TRAINING. HE LEARNED RADIO OPERATION AND BECAME A GUNNER AS WELL AS A PILOT.

TUNGKVIST AND FLORY FIRST MET AT DAMASCUS LAST SEPTEMBER AND LATER AT DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA, WHERE THEY BOARDED THE SAME SHIP FOR ENGLAND.

ALTHOUGH NEITHER IS A NATURALIZED UNITED STATES CITIZEN, BOTH CONSIDER THEMSELVES AMERICANS.

"WE'VE LIVED UNDER THE AMERICAN FLAG MOST OF OUR LIVES AND BEEN BROUGHT UP AS AMERICANS," THEY SAY.

JUL 10 1943

FLYING PEACEFULLY HOME, THE CREW WAS STARTLED BY A FRANTIC SHOUT OVER THE INTER-PLANE PHONE SYSTEM BY SERGT. JOHN E. TIERNEY, PENACOOK, N. H., RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER: "HEY, TWO LIVE BOMBS WITH US!"

TWO BOMBS HAD DANGLED FROM THE BOMB BAY RACKS. THE SPINNER FUSES WERE REVOLVING FURIOUSLY--AND WHEN THEY SPIN FREE THERE IS DANGER OF AN EXPLOSION FROM THE SLIGHTEST JAR.

JUL 10 1943

SLIPPING OFF HIS PARACHUTE, JOHNSON SQUEEZED THROUGH THE NARROW CATWALK TO THE BOMB BAY, PLACED ONE X FOOT IN THE COMPARTMENT DOORWAY AND TOLD SERGT. GEORGE J. SHAMAS OF BRISTOL, GA., WAIST GUNNER, TO GRASP HIS ANKLE AND HOLD THE DOOR CLOSED AGAINST IT.

THEN, AS THE JAWS OF STEEL BIT PAINFULLY INTO HIS LEFT LEG, HE SLID HEAD-FIRST DOWN INTO THE BOMB BAY AND RELEASED THE BOMBS.

Bern, Switzerland, July 9-(AP)-A Rome dispatch to the St. Galler Tagblatt said today that students, professors and intellectuals were falling before a fascist drive to put all Italians resisting the fascist xxx regime behind prison bars.

Two thousand persons have been arrested recently, the dispatch said. It added that the reasons for arrest usually are xx given as black market violations, attendance of banquets or moral dereliction in any field but "in reality, chiefly the method is the bring under surveillance xxx any person NOT trusted 100 per cent by the fascist regime. Those arrested include students, professors, intellectuals and xxxxxxxxxxxx businessmen--in fact people of all classes."

Since Carlo Scorza became fascist party xxx secretary there has been a "real wave" of arrests, the dispatch said. Those arrested were xxx turned over to special tribunals or sent immediately to concentration camps, it was said.

JUL 10 1943

Fascist newspapers the past few days have been full of such announcements. At the same time the cleaning out of lukewarm elements in fascist ranks continues. Its extent was indicated by Premier Mussolini's speech before the fascist directorate June 24 and given to the Italian people two weeks later, xxxxxxx in which he expressed the belief that the party membership still would be imposing even after the "necessary selection and purging are completed."

Mussolini's pessimistical speech also indicated that he will be less patient with Italian youth failing to keep step with the fascist program. "I have always been of the opinion that it is necessary to make way for youth x x x but NOT those who are only young x x x," he said. "They must also have intrinsic qualities. It is clear that if a man of 18 is stupid his case is aggravated by the fact that he is 18 and will remain stupid another 50 years." JUL 10 1943

Another Rome dispatch said 40 persons had been arrested at Naples because they went bathing for amusement instead of for reasons of health. Severe measures were said to have been taken against producers for failing to deliver produce to government stations. At Milan a group of textile importers and merchants were arrested for illegal preparation of export permits after which they sold the goods in Italy at high prices, it was said.

A dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve reported that a functionary in the ministry of armament production and a high industrial official at Milan had been ousted from the party. JUL 10 1943

Bern, Switzerland, July 9-(AP)-A Budapest dispatch to the Bern newspaper Der Bund said today that nazi authorities shot 50 hostages in Zagreb June 22 in retaliation for an attack on a railroad May 13 in which five persons were killed.

GOERING WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN UNDER THE CARE OF TWO SPECIALISTS AS LATE AS LAST THURSDAY NIGHT WHEN HIS CONDITION TOOK A TURN FOR THE WORSE. HOWEVER, THE NEWSPAPER, QUOTED ITS INFORMANTS AS SAYING, THE HEART ATTACKS NOW HAVE CEASED. JUL 10 1943

BECAUSE OF THE RUMORS REGARDING HER HUSBAND'S ILLNESS, GOERING'S WIFE, EMMY, MADE HER FIRST PUBLIC APPEARANCE IN SOME TIME AT THE RUHLEBEN HORSE RACES ON JULY 4, THE NEWSPAPER SAID. SHE WAS DESCRIBED AS BEING IN GOOD HUMOR.

ON THE SAME DAY, JULY 4, THE NAZI-CONTROLLED CALAIS RADIO SAID THAT REPORTS OF GOERING'S ILLNESS WERE "COMPLETELY FALSE," AS WELL AS RUMORS THAT ADOLF HITLER ALSO HAD SUFFERED A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 9-(AP)-RAF HEAVY BOMBER PILOTS ARE HAVING SO MUCH SUCCESS IN LOCATING TARGETS BY THE LIGHT OF "FLARE BOMBS" THAT GERMAN AUTHORITIES HAVE ORDERED AIR RAID PRECAUTION FORCES TO CONCENTRATE ON EXTINGUISHING FLARES, THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE STOCKHOLMS TIDNINGEN SAID TODAY.

FIRST THE GERMANS THOUGHT THE FLARES WERE INCENDIARIES. NOW THEY HAVE FOUND THAT THERE ARE 60 FLARES IN EACH OF THESE "BOMBS" WHICH ARE DROPPED DURING NIGHT RAIDS.

THE "BOMBS" EXPLODE 400 TO 800 YARDS ABOVE THE GROUND, SCATTERING THE FLARES, EACH OF WHICH ILLUMINATES AN AREA OF MORE THAN 100 YARDS IN DIAMETER WITH SUCH BRILLIANCE THAT THE GLOW CAN BE SEEN BY PILOTS THROUGH THICK CLOUDS, THE GERMANS SAID.

MOSCOW, SATURDAY, JULY 10-(AP)-IVAN MAISKY, SOVIET AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN, ARRIVED IN MOSCOW TODAY. HE WAS WELCOMED AT THE AIRDROME BY HIGH-RANKING RUSSIAN OFFICIALS.

MOSCOW, JULY 9--(AP)---THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA TODAY DESCRIBED THE LATE PREMIER/GEN. WLADYSLAW SIKORSKI AS AN EMINENT STATESMAN AND SOLDIER IN A STATEMENT TOUCHING UPON THE BREAK IN RELATIONS BETWEEN SOVIET RUSSIA AND THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE.

JUL 10 1943

THE NEWSPAPER SAID SIKORSKI, WHO WAS KILLED IN A PLANE CRASH AT GIBRALTAR LAST SUNDAY NIGHT, REALIZED THE [redacted] VALUE OF THE SOVIET STRUGGLE AGAINST GERMANY, "BUT FINALLY GAVE WAY TO THE PRESSURE OF CIRCLES WHICH [redacted] STROVE TO CONTINUE THE NOTORIOUS (JOZEF) BECK POLICY OF HOSTILITY TO THE SOVIET UNION."

"We regret that his determination to strengthen the friendship and collaboration between the soviet union and Poland was broken by these circles," the newspaper added.

"Close soviet-polish collaboration [redacted] is essential, but is conceivable only with a Polish government which assimilates the truth that [redacted] a strong and independent Poland is creatable NOT along the lines of anti-soviet policy but along the lines of friendship and alliance with the soviet union."

SOME OF THE DAY'S FIERCEST FIGHTING DEVELOPED AMONG THE HILLS OF ONE NARROW SECTION OF THE OREL-KURSK FRONT. THREE GERMAN TANK AND THREE INFANTRY DIVISIONS BEAT AGAINST THE SOVIET POSITIONS IN THREE CONSECUTIVE ATTACKS, THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCED, BUT THE DEFENDERS WITHSTOOD THEM ALL AND KILLED SOME 5,000 OF THE ATTACKING FORCE OF APPROXIMATELY 90,000 MEN.

THE COMMUNIQUE ACKNOWLEDGED INDIRECTLY FOR THE FIRST TIME THAT THE GERMANS HAD MADE SOME GAINS ALONG THIS NORTHERN SECTION OF THE LINE. "BY COUNTERATTACKS OUR TROOPS DISLODGED THE ENEMY FROM VARIOUS PLACES WHICH HE TOOK ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE OFFENSIVE," THE WAR BULLETIN SAID.

A22

THE GERMAN GAIN IN THE BELGOROD SECTOR, THE FOURTH REPORTED BY THE RUSSIANS IN AS MANY DAYS, WAS ATTAINED ONLY AFTER DAY-LONG FIGHTING IN WHICH THE SOVIET TROOPS INFLICTED HEAVY LOSSES AND HURLED BACK ENEMY ASSAULT COLUMNS ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS.

GREAT AIR BATTLES RAGED ALONG AND BEHIND THE FRONT. THE RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE SAID SOVIET BOMBERS "CAUSED HEAVY LOSSES TO THE ENEMY" IN ATTACKS WEDNESDAY NIGHT ON TROOP TRAINS, TANKS AND TRUCKS.

RED ARMY FORCES HAVE DESTROYED MANY ENEMY TANKS, THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCED, BY THE TECHNIQUE OF ALLOWING THEM TO PASS THROUGH THE LINES, THEN CLOSING UP THE GAP WITH INFANTRY WHILE ARTILLERY AND ANTI-TANK GUNS BLAST THE TANKS.

"UNDER THE BLOWS OF OUR TROOPS," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, "THE GERMAN TROOPS ARE SUFFERING ENORMOUS LOSSES OF MANPOWER AND EQUIPMENT. HUNDREDS OF DISABLED AND BURNED OUT ENEMY TANKS ARE LEFT ON THE BATTLEFIELD AS WELL AS MANY SMASHED TRUCKS AND GERMAN PLANES."

THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST BY BERLIN AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID:

THE REPORT CLAIMED THE GERMANS HAD ADVANCED 36 MILES NORTH FROM BELGOROD IN THE DIRECTION OF KURSK AND WERE WIDENING THEIR BREACH TOWARD NOVY OSKOL.

THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY HAD KILLED 35,000 GERMANS, DESTROYED 1,843 TANKS AND 810 PLANES IN THE FIRST FOUR DAYS IN THE TANK BATTLE OF UNEQUALLED FURY. THE GERMANS ASSERTED THEY HAD KNOCKED OUT 1,000 PLANES AND 862 TANKS, INCLUDING SCORES OF AMERICAN GRANT AND LEE MODELS, BUT NOT THE GENERAL SHERMANS, WHICH THEY MET WITH REGRET IN NORTH AFRICA.

WHILE AT NO POINT ALONG THE 165-MILE ACTIVE FRONT WAS THERE A LULL, IT WAS AT OREL THAT NAZI MARSHAL GUENTHER VON KLUGE PERSISTED IN HURLING BATTERING RAMS OF STEEL AT NARROW SECTORS IN HOPES OF A MAJOR BREAKTHROUGH.

AT THE BELGOROD END OF THE 7,500 SQUARE MILE BULGE IN THE FLAT, KURSK STEPPE, THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY WERE COUNTERING GERMAN TACTICS WITH "FIRE BAGS." THE HEADS OF THE BATTERING-RAM COLUMNS WERE ALLOWED TO PENETRATE THEIR LINES, THEY SAID, AND THEN WERE SUBJECTED TO CONCENTRIC FIRE OF TANK-BUSTERS, MORTARS, AND CANNON WITHIN THE FIRE BAG. ONE UNIT WAS SAID TO HAVE WRECKED 74 TANKS IN TWO DAYS; ANOTHER BURNED 20 TIGERS IN A SINGLE ENGAGEMENT, MOSCOW REPORTED.

THE VIOLENCE OF AIR FIGHTING CONTINUED OVER ALL THE FRONT. THE RUSSIANS SAID ALL GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO GAIN AIR SUPERIORITY HAD FAILED; THE GERMANS ASSERTED THAT "THE OFFENSIVE BACKBONE" OF THE RED ARMY AIR FORCE HAD BEEN BROKEN. RUSSIAN PLANES WERE SAID BY MOSCOW TO HAVE DESTROYED FOUR RIVER CROSSINGS, PROBABLY ON THE UPPER DONETS NEAR BELGOROD, IN ADDITION TO 76 TANKS, 227 TRUCKS AND OTHER MATERIEL.

VILA UNDERWENT A POUNDING BY BOMBERS THURSDAY. TWENTY-ONE TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES WERE DROPPED ON THE BIG ENEMY SUPPLY DEPOT. FURTHER NORTH ALLIED PLANES RIADED THE KAHILI AIRDROME ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND IN AN EFFORT TO PREVENT JAPANESE AERIAL SUPPORT FOR THEIR DEFENDERS AT MUNDA.

OTHER ALLIED AIR RAIDS HIT THE JAPANESE 700 MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST AT THEIR AIRBASE OF SALAMAUA ON NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA, WHERE GROUND PATROLS CONTINUED PRESSURE ON THE ENEMY BETWEEN MUBA AND SALAMAUA, 12 MILES APART.

IN THE MEANTIME JAPANESE AIR ACTIVITY WAS THE LIGHTEST SINCE THE START OF THE NEW AMERICAN OFFENSIVE ON JUNE 30. ENEMY PILOTS DROPPED TWO BOMBS, WITH ONLY SLIGHT DAMAGE, ON AMERICANS AT RENDOVA ISLAND WHO HAVE BEEN SHELLING THE NEARBY MUNDA AIRBASE. THEY ALSO MADE AN UNSUCCESSFUL RAID ON AN EMERGENCY LANDING FIELD 90 MILES FROM SALAMAUA IN THE JUNGLES.

BY AFTERNOON THE ARMY COMMANDER IN CHARGE OF THE INVASION FORCES REPORTED ALL ENEMY RESISTANCE HAD BEEN WIPED OUT.

"IT WAS A PLEASURE TO GO AFTER A NEW TARGET BESIDES MUNDA AND VILA WHERE WE HAVE BEEN GOING DOWN THE THROATS OF AMTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS FOR WEEKS," COUSINS SAID.

JUL 10 1943

TALL AND BLUE EYED, COUSINS WON THE NAVY CROSS IN THE CORAL SEA BATTLE.

LT.CMDR.HOYT D.MANN OF ROANOKE, ALA., LED HIS SQUADRON OF 18 DIVE BOMBERS IN THE SATURDAY MORNING STRIKE ON JAPANESE TROOPS THAT WERE PINNED TO JUNGLE COVERED BEACH POSITIONS BY ARMY GROUND FORCES.

"OUR DIVEBOMBING IS THE ONLY ACCURATE WAY TO POLISH OFF A PIN POINT TARGET LIKE THAT," MANN DECLARED. "OUR TROOPS COULD HAVE BULLED THEIR WAY THROUGH, BUT COORDINATION OF GROUND AND AIR ATTACKS MAKES THE WHOLE JOB A LOT EASIER FOR THE GROUND FORCES. IT CERTAINLY MAKES THE WHOLE JOB A LOT EASIER FOR THE GROUND FORCES. IT CERTAINLY CUTS DOWN CASUALTIES."

MANN RELATED HE COULD SEE NOTHING OF THE TARGET AFTER MAKING HIS DIVE EXCEPT BLOWN DOWN TREES AND DEBRIS.

JUL 10 1943

DIVE BOMBER PILOTS MAKING THE STRIKE AT WICKHAM WITH MANN INCLUDED LT.TONY SCHNEIDER OF HILLSBORO, MO., WHO WAS SHOT DOWN IN THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY, BUT PICKED UP FROM HIS RUBBER BOAT, AND LT. HARRY WOOD OF NOBLE, ILL. WOOD WAS SHOT DOWN IN THE CORAL SEA BATTLE AND RESCUED AFTER SPENDING THREE LONELY WEEKS ON A SMALL ISLAND IN THE LOUISADES GROUP SOUTHEAST OF NEW GUINEA.

TYPICAL OF ALL FIGHTING SQUADRON LEADERS, MANN IS EXCEPTIONALLY PROUD OF HIS OUTFIT AND ITS AIRPLANES. HE DEMANDED TO KNOW FROM ME WHY THE DAUNTLESS DIVE BOMBERS (SBDS) HADN'T BEEN GIVEN THEIR DUR CREDIT BACK HOME.

"YOU READ ALL THE TIME ABOUT LIBERATORS, FLYING AND FORTRESSES," MANN SAID. "HELL, THE SBDS HAVE BEEN FIGHTING THE WAR OUT HERE. THE SBDS WON THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY AND SANK THE JAPANESE CARRIERS WE FINISHED OFF IN THE CORAL SEA."

ITALY--LAND OF THE UNHAPPY WARRIOR WHO ONCE DREAMED OF A PROUD EMPIRE--FOR MONTHS HAS TREMBLED UNDER THE SHADOW OF ALLIED INVASION, AND WORKED FEVERISHLY TO THROW UP POWERFUL DEFENSES. SICILY HAS BEEN ONE OF HER MAIN BULWARKS AGAINST ANY SEABORNE FOE.

LONG BEFORE THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN BEGAN ITS FINAL DEBACLE, MUSSOLINI WITH GERMAN AID AND PERHAPS EVEN SUPERVISION WAS HASTILY BUILDING FORTIFICATIONS ALL ALONG ITALY'S 2,000-MILE PENINSULAR COASTLINE, AND TURNING THE ISLANDS OF SICILY, SARDINIA AND OCCUPIED CORSICA INTO AIR-SEA FORTRESSES, THE WHILE WITH A WORRIED EYE UPON THE FINAL AXIS STAND FOR TIME IN AFRICA.

EVEN THEN ALLIED HEAVY BOMBERS HAD ALREADY BEGUN THE PRELUDE TO INVASION, POUNDING CEASELESSLY AT ITALIAN AIRFIELDS AND NAVAL BASES AND FACTORIES TO BLEED HER ARTERIES OF WAR.

TO RESIST ATTACK, ITALY IS HEAVILY DEPENDENT UPON GERMAN HELP, AND THOUSANDS OF NAZI TROOPS AND HUNDREDS OF GERMAN PLANES AND MACHINES HAVE TAKEN UP BATTLE STATIONS ON ITALIAN SOIL TO TRY TO PREVENT ANY CRACK IN THE EUROPEAN FORTRESS.

JUL 10 1943

ITALY HERSELF, COMPETENT SOURCES ESTIMATE, HAS 60 TO 70 DIVISIONS UNDER ARMS, 30 OF THEM STATIONED RECENTLY IN THE BALKANS AND THE DODECANESE ISLANDS. HER THREE ARMORED DIVISIONS HAVE BEEN LOST IN LIBYA AND TUNISIA ALONG WITH MUSSOLINI'S AFRICAN EMPIRE. SHE IS REPORTED TO HAVE ABOUT 2,000 AIRPLANES, BUT THEY ARE NOT OF EQUAL CLASS WITH ALLIED AIRCRAFT, AND HER AIRPOWER HAS BEEN CLOSELY INTEGRATED WITH THE GERMAN AIRFORCE. THAT MEANS THAT ITALY COULD NOT ORGANIZE QUICKLY AND EFFICIENTLY FOR AERIAL WAR IF GERMANY DESERTED HER AND LEFT HER PARTNER TO FIGHT ALONE.

DESPITE FEARFUL SEA LOSSES, ITALY IS ESTIMATED STILL TO HAVE FOUR BATTLESHIPS, 20 CRUISERS, 60 DESTROYERS, AND 60 TO 100 SUBMARINES.

IN GIRDING FOR DEFENSE, MUCH OF THE ITALIAN---AND ALLIED--- ATTENTION WAS CONCENTRATED UPON THE ISLAND OUTPOSTS FLANKING ANY SEA APPROACH TO THE MAINLAND OF ITALY. UPON SICILY AND SARDINIA WITH THEIR AIRFIELDS AND NAVAL BASES MUSSOLINI PINNED MUCH OF HIS HOPE FOR DEFEAT OF AN INVASION THRUST. SOME STRATEGISTS ARGUED THAT THE ALLIES WOULD HAVE TO REDUCE THEM OR AT LEAST ONE OF THEM FIRST, PERHAPS BY PARACHUTIST ATTACK, BEFORE ITALY PROPER COULD BE INVADED SUCCESSFULLY.

SICILY, A BULWARK LYING BETWEEN ITALY AND TUNISIA, WAS TRANSFORMED INTO A HUGE AIRDROME, AND EVERY TOWN, BY FASCIST ACCOUNT, WAS

JUL 10 1943

NOT SEEN

MADE "A FORT." CIVILIANS AND SOME ESSENTIAL INDUSTRIES WERE EVACUATED TO THE MAINLAND, AND SUCH MAJOR BASES AS MESSINIA, PALERMO, CATANIA AND TRAPANI ALONG SICILY'S 600-MILE COASTLINE WERE HEAVILY FORTIFIED.

JUL 10 1943

SARDINIA TO THE NORTHWEST WAS STRENGTHENED WITH BIG GUNS, UNDERGROUND FUEL AND STORAGE CHAMBERS, WITH NEW AIR BASES, AND LIKEWISE WAS PRONOUNCED AN AREA OF MILITARY OPERATIONS. THIS ISLAND, 160 MILES LONG BY 68 WIDE, OFFERS EASIER CONQUEST THAN SICILY, AND HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE U.S. AIR FORCES AND THE RAF BEGAN DEVOTING EARLY ATTENTION TO IT AND ITS PRINCIPAL BASES AT CAGLIARI AND LA MADDALENA.

SMALLER CORSICA, TAKEN FROM THE FRENCH, ALSO WAS MADE AN ISLAND FORT TO PROTECT THE SOUTHERN COAST OF FRANCE AND ITALY'S LIGURIAN COAST.

ALONG THAT VULNERABLE, COASTAL SOUTHERN EXPOSURE OF FRANCE AND ITALY THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS ERECTED A REDOUBTABLE BARRIER OF PILL-BOXES AND CASEMATES, AND EXTENDED THE STUDDED LINE OF FORTIFICATIONS DOWN THE BROKEN COASTLINE OF THE FASCIST MAINLAND TO ITALY'S TOE. THIS PENINSULAR COASTLINE IS NATURALLY FORMIDABLE IN VAST STRETCHES, WITH STEEP MOUNTAINS RISING FROM THE SHORES, AND WITH FEW GOOD HARBORS AND BEACHES FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF AN INVASION TOEHOLD.

REPORTS FROM A DIPLOMATIC SOURCE IN THE SPRING SAID THE GERMANS WERE BUILDING A FENCE OF FORTIFICATIONS ACROSS ITALY FROM SPEZIA, NAVAL BASE ON THE WESTERN COAST, THROUGH BOLOGNA TO RAVENNA ON THE ADRIATIC, THUS INDICATING THAT SOUTHERN ITALY MIGHT BE ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS FOR A MAIN STAND IN THE MOUNTAINS TO THE NORTH.

KNOCKING ITALY OUT OF THE WAR AND SLICING OFF THIS WEAKER MEMBER OF THE AXIS WOULD GO FAR TOWARD ACHIEVING EUROPEAN VICTORY. ITALY WITH HER LONG BACKBONE OF THE APPENINES AND NORTHERN ALPINE BARRIER OFFERS NO DIRECT INVASION ROUTE TO GERMANY EXCEPT THROUGH THE FORMIDABLE BRENNER PASS. BUT CONQUEST OF ITALY WOULD GIVE THE ALLIES A SPRINGBOARD FOR INVASION OF THE BALKANS, OR OF SOUTHERN FRANCE, AND IT WOULD SUPPLY CLOSER BASES FOR PULVERIZING AIR ATTACKS UPON GERMAN INDUSTRY.

JUL 10 1943

A CHAIN OF MOUNTAINS LEAVES ONLY A NARROW STRIP ALONG THE NORTH COAST, AND THE ENTIRE SOUTHEASTERN SECTION IS NOT ONLY MOUNTAINOUS EXCEPT IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF SYRACUSE,
BUT WOULD BRING THE WAVES OF ASSAULT TROOPS UNDER THE THREAT OF AXIS AIR ATTACK FROM BASES IN SOUTHERN ITALY.

THE ROCKY NATURE OF THE ENTIRE ISLAND, AND THE CONCENTRATION OF THE POPULATION--ESTIMATED TO TOTAL 4,000,000--IN TOWNS WHICH THE AXIS IS REPORTED TO HAVE FORTIFIED STRONGLY INDICATE THAT THE INVASION FORCES MAY FIND THEIR PATH BITTERLY CONTESTED.

A LANDING AT PALERMO COULD HARDLY BE FOLLOWED BY AN ADVANCE INLAND FROM THAT AREA BECAUSE OF THE HIGH AND RUGGED MOUNTAINS, BUT IT WOULD GIVE THE ALLIED FORCES THE USE OF THE ISLAND'S FINEST HARBOR.

MARSALA, THE ONLY PORT OF ANY SIZE ON THE WEST COAST, IS SHALLOW--VESSELS OF MORE THAN 18 FEET DRAFT CANNOT ENTER IT.
THIS, HOWEVER, WAS THE SCENE OF THE LAST INVASION OF THE ISLAND, WHEN THE ITALIAN LIBERATOR GARIBALDI CAME ASHORE IN 1860 WITH A SMALL FORCE.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON JUL 10 1943

ASSUMING THAT SIGNFICANT NATIONAL HOLIDAYS HAVE PSYCHOLOGICAL VALUE EVEN IN THE EYES OF HARD-HEADED MILITARY FOLK - AND THEY HAVE - AXIS INVASION NERVES SHOULD BE ON EDGE NEXT WEEK.

WEDNESDAY NEXT, JULY 14, IS BASTILLE DAY. FOR 154 YEARS THAT HAS BEEN THE DATE SYMBOL OF THE BIRTH OF DEMOCRACY IN FRANCE; THE DAY FRENCHMEN HAVE SALUTED AS AMERICANS DO THE FOURTH OF JULY.

NO DAY IN ALL THE YEAR COULD BE MORE FITTING FOR A BEGINNING TO BE MADE FROM WITHIN AND WITHOUT UPON THE GRIM BUSINESS OF LIBERATING FRANCE AGAIN FROM TYRANNY AND OPPRESSION. NO DAY COULD SO APPEAL TO FRENCH AND AMERICAN HEARTS ALIKE AS SANCTIFIED BY THEIR FAITH IN GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE.

WITHIN SIGHT ALMOST OF WASHINGTON WHERE NEW PLANS FOR FRENCH LIBERATION ARE BEING BREWED IN CONFERENCES WITH GENERAL HENRI GIRAUD, THE GREAT KEY OF THE BASTILLE IS ENSHRINED AMONG THE MEMENTOS OF THE FIRST AMERICAN PRESIDENT AT MOUNT VERNON. IT WAS PRESENTED TO WASHINGTON BY THE LIBERTY LOVING PEOPLE OF FRANCE.

THEY HAD SMASHED OPEN THAT DARK FORTRESS PRISON OF MONARCHIAL RULE IN FRANCE, THE BASTILLE, THE SAME YEAR, 1789, THAT HAD SEEN WASHINGTON SCORN A CROWN TO ACCEPT THE FREELY TENDERED OFFICE OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE AT THE CALL OF HIS COUNTRYMEN. NOTHING WITHIN THE GIFT OF THE PEOPLE OF FRANCE SO TESTIFIED TO THEIR FAITH IN THE EXPERIMENT IN FREE DEMOCRACY A-BORNING ACROSS THE ATLANTIC AS THEIR PASSING OF

OF THAT ALL BUT HOLY TOKEN OF THEIR OWN YEARNING FOR LIBERTY, EQUALITY AND FRATERNITY.

AXIS INVADERS ARE WELL AWARE OF THAT. NEXT WEEK AS THE PEOPLE OF FRANCE, STIRRED TO HIGH HOPE BY THE BELL, BIGGEST THUNDER OF BATTLE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND THE DEVASTATING RUMBLE OF ALLIED BOMB BLASTING OVER THE ISLAND OUTPOSTS OF ILL-OMENED ITALY, KEEP TRYST ANEW WITH BRAVE MEMORIES THEIR AXIS WARDERS WILL BE ALERT EVERYWHERE FOR UPRISINGS.

THEY WILL BE ALERT, TOO, ALL ALONG THE MEDITERRANEAN SHORE LINE FOR THE ANGLO-AMERICAN INVASION THRUSTS THEY KNOW ARE COMING BUT NOT WHEN OR JUST WHERE. JUL 10 1943

WHAT IS BEING TRIED OUT OVER THE ITALIAN ISLANDS IS A CONCEPT OF AVIATION'S FUNCTIONS IN COMBINED OPERATIONS WHOLLY DIFFERENT FROM THE GERMAN TECHNIQUE. IT HAS DICTATED AMERICAN COMBAT PLANE CHARACTERISTICS AND EMPLOYMENT AND, TO LESSER EXTENT, BRITISH PRACTICE.

SUPPORT AVIATION, THAT ELEMENT OF AIR POWER ASSIGNED TO HELP GROUND FORCES REACH THEIR OBJECTIVES WITH MINIMUM CASUALTIES, DOES NOT IN THE AMERICAN CONCEPTION, MEAN DIVE BOMBING CLOSE OVER THE HEADS ADVANCING TROOPS. IT MEANS PRELIMINARY CONCENTRATED ATTACK FIRST TO SWEEP ENEMY PLANES OUT OF THE AIR, WRECK OR EVEN OCCUPY ITS ADVANCE FIELDS, BLAST AT ALL ROUTES OR AVENUES BY WHICH ENEMY GROUND REINFORCEMENTS COULD BE RUSHED UP TO THE ZONE OF ATTACK, DESTROY SUPPLY AND MUNITION DUMPS.

THAT IS WHAT IS NOW GOING ON OVER SICILY AND SARDINIA. HOW FAR THIS PRELIMINARY AIR SOFTENING-UP PROCESS IS TO BE CARRIED CAN

JUL 10 1943

ONLY BE CONJECTURED. IT IS QUITE CLEAR, HOWEVER, THAT THE PANTELLERIA RESULTS HAVE ALREADY INFLUENCED THE PLANS OF GENERAL DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER AND HIS STAFF, PERHAPS LED TO SOME DEFERMENT OF PREVIOUSLY SCHEDULED INVASION DATES WHILE THE EFFICACY OF AIR POWER TO PAVE THE WAY FOR MAJOR AMPHIBIAN EXPEDITIONS AND GREATLY CUT THE CASUALTY POTENTIAL IS TRIED OUT FULLY.

WARSHIPS SHELL ISLAND

Vessels Move Across Mediterranean Unhampered by Air or Sea Raids.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 10 — (AP) The Allied forces invading Sicily landed along 100 miles of the big island's southeast coast, overcame enemy resistance in three hours, and 90 minutes later began advancing inland under a powerful aerial cover, Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced triumphantly tonight.

An Allied communique officially pronounced the opening blow at Europe a success.

Hitting the precipitous southeastern coast, the Allied troops appeared to be aiming northward along the coast to isolate the major ferry terminals linking Sicily with the Italian mainland.

Success Assured

"By 6 a. m. this morning," said the first detailed official account, "enemy opposition had been countered and the success of all landings was already assured."

The mighty invasion armada first struck the coast at 3 a. m.

The warships of six United Nations, stretching for miles over the Mediterranean, turned the muzzles of their guns shoreward and fired the first terrific blast against the Italian-German fortress.

"By 7:30 a. m." the communique said, "our troops were advancing and our artillery was being put ashore."

"Fighting continues and more troops, with their guns, vehicles, stores and equipment, are being landed by the royal and U. S. navies."

A dispatch from Noland Norgaard, Associate Press correspondent at an Allied command post, said the initial landings were made without the loss of any ships. Neither submarine nor aerial attacks were encountered in the push across the sea to Sicily.

Crucial Tests Remain

Veteran military observers here were elated at the news but warned: "It's much too early for unlimited optimism." They said the crucial tests still were ahead — when the enemy counterattacks. Enemy counterblows, although not reported up to late tonight, are expected at any moment.

(Many "splendidly equipped" American and British parachute troops were dropped behind Axis positions in Sicily, the Rome radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by NBC. The Italian station declared that they landed in well-fortified areas and either were wiped out or captured. There has been no Allied statement on the use of parachute troops.)

One returning airman—of the hundreds also aloft during the assault—compared the naval salvoes to "a valcanic eruption," said the entire ocean path to Sicily was clogged with Allied shipping of all kinds, and declared that the enemy's air power appeared to be paralyzed.

May Sweep Along Coast

The direction of the Allied land attack, and the quick landing of motor vehicles and artillery suggested this strategy:

A northward movement along the eastern coast of Sicily toward the big ports of Syracuse, Catania and finally Messina. The latter is only [illegible] from the Italian mainland across the Messina strait. A good 90-mile-long coastal road runs between Syracuse in the south and Messina in the north.

A spearhead driven along this coast would seal off Sicily from Italian mainland arsenals and make it ripe for quicker conquest.

The Allied communique did not state how much resistance was met, but indicated that a considerable number of troops and much equipment already had been put ashore during the day.

One airman said that at one point the American troops who jumped [illegible] apparently did not encount[illegible]y enemy gunfire, told o[illegible]g the Americ[illegible] ploy, ready for action. "After a brief pause they moved on ahead," he said.

Little Loss in Landing

(The landing was effected "without serious loss," said Edward Gilling, representing the combined British press, in an Algiers dispatch).

This triumphant news came at the end of a day of official silence which had shrouded the outcome of this most delicate part of an operation which opens the battle of Europe.

Other offensives may be in the offing.

Under cover of the big guns of the British and American navies, which laid down a terrific bombardment, the shock troops of three nations swarmed ashore to successfully pave the way for thousands of their comrades crouched in landing barges out to sea.

Land on 100-Mile Line

Tonight's communique said of the area of the assault:

"The many beaches and landing places used for these first assaults extended over a distance of 100 miles."

This approximated about two-thirds of the southern Sicilian coast, but there was no official word on all the precise areas invaded.

Royal Indian, Dutch, Polish and Greek naval units aided the 90-mile strike across the Mediterranean, herding the invasion barges into shore and shattering the enemy's first line of defenses with a concentrated fire.

Hundreds of Allied planes patrolled over the beachheads, and attacked "the few airdromes still being used by the enemy." Roads and communications throughout Sicily also were battered by the American and British airmen.

It was stated officially that both infantry and aerial operations were "proceeding according to plan."

The Allied airmen met only negligible opposition, it was said officially.

This meant that Axis fighters and bombers—among the most feared weapons in an operation of this type—had been kept away effectively from the landing points where heavy equipment was being unloaded.

No mention was made in the official bulletin of the degree of resistance met by the invading Allies. Large Italian forces are known to be on the island, including supply service and headquarters troops.

Nazi Troops on Island

The Germans, too, have been steadily building up their ranks on this key 10,000-mile-square island which, once conquered, can provide the base for punishing air blows on all Italian armament and rail centers. It also would serve as a springboard for another short amphibious push into Italy which is separated from the northeastern tip of Sicily by only several miles of water.

This brilliant first day of invasion, going off like clockwork, promised a chance for ever greater successes for the khaki spearhead driving into the European fortress.

The American, British and Canadian assault forces are veterans of the fighting in Tunisia and Libya.

They successfully scaled some of the precipitous and rocky coastal shoulders back from the beaches to fan out and secure their beachheads.

Overhead screamed the shells of the naval guns, tearing up roadways along which the Italians and Germans must bring up their counter forces.

Reinforcements Arrive

Seamen of the United Nations aided in the debarkment of artillery and other heavy weapons for this unique operation, and also landed the waves of reinforcements.

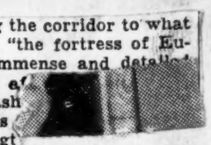
Allied naval strength appeared to guarantee that over the sea the supply lines to the invasion army would be kept open at all costs, as it had battered the enemy coastal batteries over which the Allied troops swarmed at three o'clock this morning.

They landed in the early hours before the dawn—landed on what is politically and actually Italy itself—in the grandest amphibious attack in history, springing from shallow vessels that had been cast out from the convoys lying just offshore, struggling with heavy packs up the harsh and rocky coastline and fighting then through the sharp and bloody jungles of enemy barbed wire and gun pits toward the inland objectives.

Among the first of these objectives were Sicily's ten major airfields—bases for the Nazis, as well as the Italians—at the throat of the Mediterranean.

It was an operation in many respects without precedent in all the story of martial men—an operation of many a red and blue and varied banner; covered over by airmen from every part of the English-speaking world, carried forward under the thin, proud and glistening guns of English and American ships of the fleet, thrust home by dogged and sweating infantry marshalled here from across half the circle of the world.

General Eisenhower sent them forward—the forces of liberation now assaulting the corridor to what the Nazis call "the fortress of Europe"—after immense and detailed planning and a crushing smash Sicily's sources military strengt ers, fighter bo alike.



Big Drive Reported Going Along On Schedule

JUL 11 1943

London, July 10 (AP)—The Rome radio said in a broadcast tonight that very violent fighting still was going on in Sicily. It gave no details. The broadcast was recorded here by the Associated Press.

By Daniel De Luce

(Associated Press Correspondent)

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 10—Allied armies invaded Sicily today and with warplanes and warships in support, battled through coastal mine fields, barbed wire and gun emplacements in an effort to consolidate bridgeheads for the second European front.

American, British and Canadian forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's command struck from landing barges by night, opening the big push they had awaited since they cleared North Africa of the Axis two months ago. American and British warships formed part of the invasion spearhead.

(An Algiers broadcast at 6 P. M. —Noon Eastern Wartime—recorded in London by Reuters, said: "Everything is going according to plan.")

Swarms of Allied bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters—engaged only yesterday in the final massive blows of an aerial offensive that had rocked Sicilian targets for weeks—roared across the Mediterranean Narrows at dawn and formed an aerial umbrella for the fighting men aground.

U. S. Warships Help

The British navy carried the main burden of transporting the military forces to the island and guarding supply lines from African base, but some United States warships sailed with the invasion fleet, it was disclosed.

General Eisenhower was believed by observers to have drawn on veteran units of the Tunisian campaign for a share of the invasion force, but the presence of the Canadians, who were last officially reported in Britain, may have surprised the Axis.

Zero Hour 3 A. M.

The zero hour of invasion was 3 A. M. (9 o'clock Eastern Wartime last night.)

(Axis broadcasts said the Allies, spearheaded by parachute units and strongly supported by sea and air, landed on both the southern and eastern coasts of the bomb-battered island which is a segment of metropolitan Italy. The Italian high command said "Axis armed forces are decisively counter-attacking."

(A German dispatch implied that the invasion was mounted from Malta and Pantelleria, saying the heaviest of the Allied concentrations between Gibraltar and Cyprus had been observed at those islands in the Sicilian Strait.)

Naval Guns Cover Landing

Naval bombardments covered the snub-nosed, shallow-draft landing vessels as they slipped from convoys a mile or more offshore and headed for the rocky, precipitous coast.

Through wire and hot machine-gun fire the Allied forces cut out their bridgeheads and then, with hardly a moment's pause, began battering their way toward the interior of the island.

Ten Air Bases At Stake

Official details of the first phase of the invasion were expected to be issued later.

Ten major air bases of Sicily are among the military prizes immediately at stake in the Allied invasion.

As many as 300 enemy aircraft once rose from these fields in a single day to dispute the Allied challenge for air domination, but continued raids trimmed that number considerably.

(London quarters said the Italian communique's report that the landing parties struck at southern and eastern coasts suggested two zones of operation might be the large Catania plain and the Anapo plain.

Most Favorable Areas

(The Anapo plain lies southwest of Syracuse. The Catania plain centers about the port of the same name forty miles off the toe of the Italian boot. It is one of the most favorable areas on the island, which is ridged from east to west by mountains.

(The southern wing of the invasion may have to depend on beaches as supply inlets for a while, since the five best harbors—Trapani, Palermo, Messina, Catania and Syracuse—are all on the other coasts. Licata is suitable only for small vessels and Gela provides anchorage only.)

JUL 11 1943

Axis Boasts Mobile Reserves

The Axis in the past has boasted of mobile reserves kept at central points to be hurled into any threatened breach in Hitler's "fortress of Europe." In connection with this, Reuters in a report from North Africa to London said the Axis rushed heavy reinforcements from southern Italy across the Messina Strait last night to meet the invaders.

Close friends say General Eisenhower has always considered an amphibious attack the toughest problem a general could face because the weather was added to all other uncertainties. But the weather in the western Mediterranean proved favorable.

Competent military strategists said that in an amphibious invasion the first three days—not the first three hours—are the critical period. The physical act of getting troops ashore is a lesser phase, they say, and the success or failure of the whole attempt really depends on deepening of bridgeheads so services of supply and airfields can be established behind the fighting men.

The Italians, for the first time since World War I have been forced on the soil of their native land. Whether this would stiffen their courage and induce them to surpass their record in Africa was a question which only further combat could answer.

15 Enemy Planes Downed

Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's Northwest African Air Forces destroyed fifteen enemy planes in combat yesterday and lost ten.

The United States Liberators of the Middle East Command, which blasted targets on Crete as well as Sicily, accounted for five enemy fighters and damaged five others while losing one.

The heavy-hitting strategic air force again concentrated on Gerbini, while the tactical air arm raided the fields at Sciacca, Biscari, Milo and Cancatti.

Informs Occupied Countries.

Gen. Eisenhower, the American commander in chief of this first major land blow to crush enemy Europe, informed the peoples of the occupied and enemy countries of the attack in a statement read from the Algiers radio.

The announcer followed up the statement with these dramatic words:

"The battle of Africa is over; the battle of Europe has begun."

Gen. Eisenhower's message to the French said:

"The United Nations armed forces have today launched an offensive against Sicily.

"It is the first stage in the liberation of the European continent. I call on the French people to remain calm and not to allow themselves to be deceived by false rumors which the enemy might circulate.

"When the hour of action strikes we will let you know. Until then help us by following our instructions. That is to say, be calm, keep calm, conserve your strength. We repeat: When the hour of action strikes we'll let you know."

FEW AXIS PLANES SEEN

Fliers Describe Historic Scenes as Drive Against Island Begins.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 10—(AP) Allied heavy, medium and fighter bombers attacked roads and communications throughout invaded Sicily and operations were proceeding according to plan, it was announced officially tonight.

A communique, the first air bulletin to be issued for the entire Mediterranean command, said the bombers continued attacks against the "few airdromes still being used by the enemy" on the island.

Meanwhile, the first reports came from aviators who were over the beaches of Sicily at the moment when the landings were taking place and returned to their bases to give sharp descriptions of the scene.

Lieut. James J. Armstrong of Muskogee, Okla., said John A. Doughboy was sure doing a job over there this morning."

Planes Fill the Skies

The flying eye-witness said "hundreds of aircraft" filled the sky with thunder as the invasion barges nosed into the sandy shore. Allied airplanes were patrolling "in strength," the aviator said, and only negligible opposition was encountered.

This meant that the Axis fighters and bombers, one of the most feared weapons in an operation of this type, were effectively kept away from the landing force during the critical hours.

Col. Samuel J. Gormley, Jr., of Alhambra, Calif., one of the group commanders, said "The coastal waters of Sicily were black with invasion barges and supporting naval craft. All the water between Sicily and Tunisia was as full of ships shuttling back and forth as San Francisco harbor in the good old days before the ferries."

Lieut.-Col. Joseph C. Thomas of Pomona, Calif., also a group commander to whom the job of covering the invasion was his 50th mission, said, "It seemed to be coordinated and going along smoothly."

Men Crowd onto Beaches

Describing the actual landings, Capt. Roscoe Johnson of Chicago, Ill., a pilot, said, "It looked like a million flies crawling in on the beaches. It was a really beautiful sight."

Second Lieut. Donald Justier of Saint Albans, N. Y., added "The ships came rolling up in waves and our boys were simply pouring over the beaches. It is hard to see how the Italians could do much fighting with so many aircraft pounding them from above."

The majority of the pilots covering the powerful forces that went ashore reported they encountered few fighters and light anti-aircraft fire.

Reconnaissance photographs of Axis strong points were brought back by Lieut. Armstrong, and inside of an hour they had been developed and studied and a group of pilots, flying the new American A-36 fighter-bomber, were taking off to attack them.

Three Trains Hit

Lieut.-Col. John A. Stevens of Laramie, Wyo., reported seeing direct hits on a locomotive and two trains during his fighter-bomber sweep and it is known that another 40-car train received square hits.

The fighter bombers also accomplished their assignments without interference from enemy fighters.

A Marauder pilot, 2nd Lieut. Nathaniel B. Robins of Wappinger Falls, N. Y., described the scene as the invasion fleet swept in toward shore as "the biggest thing I've ever seen."

"There seemed to be at least 40 miles of boats of all sizes out there in the sea," he said. "On the edges were the destroyers zig-zagging and in the middle were invasion barges followed by merchant ships. The great mass of craft clogged the sea in a solid path."

First Lieut. Guay F. Dore of Monson, Me., a Navigator, said "We were just coming home from a raid on Sicily when we saw the naval force. It was lined up in battle order and it seemed to extend all over the Mediterranean. It stood out just like a big group of islands.

"Just after we passed over it the whole naval force opened fire and it seemed like a volcanic eruption."

Planes Fly Into Night

Scores of Allied pilots took off in the darkness in order to provide an air shield for the landings or to continue the attack on the islands and airdromes. Some were assigned to reconnaissance and many "went hunting," cannonading and strafing any target that appeared.

They left their bases roaring down improvised flare paths lined with empty gasoline tins in which a gasoline-soaked cloth was burning.

Again it was the same powerful force that struck some of the heaviest blows at those Axis airdromes from which fighters were still rising. They went back to the familiar target of Gerbini.

Fortress crews said they saw only two enemy fighters and they gave the big B-17s a wide berth.

All the statements of the returning airmen seemed to agree—the Axis airpower was largely neutralized, at least during the critical hours when the troops were coming ashore and the tremendous armada of their supply ships was potentially within the range of Axis bombers.

Observers' views coincided with the belief that the powerful aircover contributed heavily to the success of the operation.

Fading light on the night preceding "D" day brought no interruption in the pulverizing bombings that had started a week ago.

What was officially described as "one of the biggest formations of R.A.F. Wellingtons ever to leave North Africa" smashed at Sicily's seacoast towns, forts and strong points. Wave after wave of the big bombers kept pounding and blasting the same targets up until almost the moment that the first troops were wading into shore.

Slightly ahead of the landing barges were large groups of R.A.F. Bostons, South African Bostons and Baltimores and American Mitchells. Their mission was almost identical with that of the Wellingtons. The Mitchells alone headed inland to attack Castelvetrano airfield, the others launched their bombs at towns and road systems.

In one of the few cases where determined enemy air resistance was encountered it was very serious for four Warhawks escorting Mitchells. More than 20 Messerschmitt-109s jumped the quartet but they managed to shoot their way out, destroying two German fighters.

Thousands Take Big Part In Invasion

JUL 11 1943

London, July 10 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Washington said today that "all indications here support the belief that General Eisenhower is making his first extensive use of glider-borne troops to overcome bitter resistence in Sicily."

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 10—The greatest assault force Canada ever has assembled as such went into action today on the shores of Sicily with American and British troops.

There was no immediate announcement of the exact size of this section of the Allied battering ram. Russ Munro, Canadian Press correspondent, said, however, in a delayed dispatch written in England as the fighters embarked, that "thousands and thousands of Canadian and British troops rolled to the docksides." Transmission of the dispatch was forbidden until today by censorship.

First Action Since Dieppe

It was the first time the Canadians had been in battle formation since the attack on Dieppe last August, and it gave them an opportunity to avenge the losses suffered there.

The Allied headquarters communique announcing the start of the invasion was the first public mention that Canadian troops had moved into the Mediterranean, although it was reported yesterday that Canadian Wellington bombers were in action there.

For three years the Canadians have formed a major part of the forces guarding Britain, and during every day of that time they have trained for the day they would jump into Europe.

If ever troops could be classed as experts at coastal assault, these men could so qualify.

That impression long had been so general that virtually everyone had been saying the Canadians would spearhead the invasion when it came.

Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton, Canadian army commander, prepared his men for just such an eventually. The difficult lessons of the Dieppe raid were used as a guide and combined operations went a long way toward developing new tactics.

Troops Trained Through Winter.

London, July 10 (A .P.).—Announcement that Canadian troops participated in the invasion of Sicily by Allied forces today followed by but a day the announcement that Canadian Wellington bomber squadrons had been shifted to the Mediterranean area.

Canadian troops had been primed through the winter around British shores in the latest assault tactics. Preparations for movement of these men from Britain were known to be proceeding for several weeks.

There was every indication that the presence of Canadians in the offensive had caught the Axis by surprise for they had not been mentioned in any of the long stream of Axis broadcasts which made assorted forecasts anent the invasion zero hour.

STRONG FORCE OF CANADIANS USED IN ATTACK

Says Role of Britain's Defenders Was Thrust Upon Them After Dunkirk.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada, in a statement made in Ottawa early today and distributed here, declared that the "war for liberation of the conquered and enslaved countries of Europe has just entered upon a new and vital phase" with the Allied invasion of Sicily.

"Armed forces of Britain, the United States and Canada are now in the forefront of an attack which has, as its objective the unconditional surrender of Italy and Germany," he said.

"All Canada will be justifiably proud to know that units of the Canadian Army are a part of the Allied force engaged in this attack.

"A communique just received reports that early in the morning of July 10, which has already dawned in Europe, Allied forces, under the command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, began landing operations in Sicily. The landings were preceded by air attack. Allied naval forces escorted the assault forces and bombarded the coast defenses during the assault.

Praises Canadians.

"After Dunkirk, the Canadian army became a living shield of defense against the threatened invasion of Britain. When the British Expeditionary Force which survived Dunkirk reached England's shores it had lost large numbers of men, and practically all its weapons, munitions and equipment. Almost the only land forces in the United Kingdom, at that time equipped to meet an invader, was the first Canadian division.

"The role of defenders of Britain was thrust in this way upon the Canadians. As successive divisions and reinforcements crossed the Atlantic from Canada, they were fitted into that role. For three years since, the Canadian army in Britain has helped to maintain the security of the world's citadel of freedom.

"This has been in accordance with the strategy planned by those who have had the supreme direction of the war. The news we have received marks for Canada the beginning of a new phase of the war."

JUL 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, July 10—Striking at Sicily and Crete in waves nearly one hundred strong, American Liberator bombers yesterday smashed the general headquarters and "nerve center of Axis Sicilian defense forces" at Taormina in a mighty pre-invasion blow, a United States communique said today.

In an unusual description of bomb havoc, the bulletin from the United States Ninth Air Force declared that the target area in Taormina on the east coast of Sicily was "reduced to rubble and left in smoke and flame."

Headquarters Demolished

"The San Domenico Hotel, in which the general headquarters was housed, and the general postoffice, in which were concentrated all telephone, telegraph and other communications facilities, were completely demolished by a concentration of direct hits.

"Wreckage and debris were thrown high in the air and huge fires broke out. Bursts were also seen on railway tracks."

In the busiest day they have had, the Liberators based in the Middle East rained approximately 275,000 pounds of high explosives on the Comiso airdrome in Sicily, and also visited the Maleme airdrome in Crete.

One Bomber Missing

Large numbers of enemy planes were believed to have been destroyed on the ground at Maleme. There was heavy fighter opposition over the Crete base, but American gunners accounted for five enemy pursuits for certain and damaged five more.

One American bomber was missing from all the day's operations.

A fire was started near fuel installations at the Comiso airdrome, an earlier communique from Middle East headquarters said. It reported one stick of bombs fell on the field's main runways and others around hangars and in dispersal areas.

Aircraft Seen Burning

"An uncounted number of enemy aircraft was seen burning on the ground," at Comiso, the United States communique said.

Smoke and clouds obscured full observation of results at Maleme airdrome, the largest in Crete, it added.

The Northwest African air forces, paving the way for Allied landings in Sicily by heavy bombing, encountered increased enemy fighter opposition and shot down fifteen enemy planes. Others destroyed on the ground. The Allies lost ten planes.

All Types Participate

All types of bombers and fighters in the North Africa air force participated in the day's attacks. The strategic air force concentrated on Gerbini airfield and its satellite land strips while the tactical forces bombed Sciacca, Biscari, Milo and Cancatti.

A-36 fighter-bombers were over Sicily all day bombing and strafing communications, troop concentrations and scoring direct hits on coastal batteries.

Gen. Guzzoni Leads Defense

JUL 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 10—An Italian general in Sicily apparently leads the defense of that island against the Allied invasion, military sources said today, with two German field Marshals possibly sharing in the general command from the mainland of Italy.

Italian forces in Sicily are commanded by Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, 74, who led Italian troops in the Albanian campaign of 1939.

He was appointed Under Secretary of the War Ministry and Vice-Chief of Army Staff in November, 1940, when Mussolini shook up his government in an effort to cover the humiliation of Italian reverses in the war with Greece. He resigned both appointments six months later.

Strict Disciplinarian

Formerly Vice-Governor of Eritrea, Guzzoni is reputed to be an able officer and one of the strictest of disciplinarians.

The two German officers mentioned most often in connection with Italy's defenses are Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring and Field Marshal Baron von Richthofen.

Only four days ago both were reported by the German radio to have been sent to southern Italy to cope with the increasingly violent Allied air attacks.

Kesselring Removal

Soviet reports last November said Kesselring had been dismissed as air chief in the Mediterranean for failure to foresee the Allied invasion of North Africa. He was first put in command of the German air force in Sicily in March, 1942.

With Richthofen, he directed German aerial operations during the battle of Britain and earlier played an important role in the Polish and French campaigns. Richthofen was sent to Russia in 1941.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been reported in command of German troops in southern France, but there is nothing to indicate that he is again matching wits in the Sicilian campaign with Allied forces which brought disaster upon his armies i Tunisia.

FIERCE RESISTANCE TO SICILY ATTACK REPORTED BY AXIS

Nazis Prepare People for Loss of All Mediterranean Islands.

LONDON, July 10.—(AP) Fierce fighting in Sicily, where American, British and Canadian troops smashed ashore early today, was reported tonight by Axis broadcasts while the Nazi press prepared the people for the loss of all of Italy's Mediterranean islands before the summer's end.

As expected, the long-awaited blow at southern Europe sent the Axis propaganda machine into frenzied action. Nazi propagandists belittled the importance of the invasion and insisted that it came as no surprise to them.

Tell of Defense Measures

At the same time, however, the Berlin radio clogged the air waves with broadcasts telling of elaborate preparations for Sicily's defense and declaring that Germany and Italy are facing the threat with confidence that the Allies will not realize their aims.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Transocena's military correspondent, said in a dispatch broadcast by Berlin 12 hours after the invasion that "in all probability the Allied High Command will launch one or several diverting actions against the southern continent of Europe in order to worry Axis powers and force them to split up their forces."

Although 12 hours had elapsed, Capt. Sertorius said it was "hardly possible to form a clear idea of developments" on Sicily but he declared that "heavy fighting is still in progress."

More Landings Hinted

For the time being, the broadcast continued, most of the fighting seems to be going on in the southeastern coastal stretch. "This, however, does not mean that the enemy is actually concentrating his attacks against this sector of Sicily. In fact it is quite possible that further and stronger landing attempts will be made presently against other parts of the island."

Capt. Sertorius, differing somewhat from other Berlin commentators, said there was no tendency on the part of German military circles to underestimate the importance of the Allied thrust.

"The enemy has many useful bases at his disposal in North Africa," he said, "while the enemy navy is holding supremacy in the Mediterranean. Allied air force formations, although having suffered heavy losses lately, are probably still numerically superior to the Axis air force in the Mediterranean.

Large Forces Available

"Furthermore it seems that Anglo-Saxon troops concentrated in North Africa and the Near East are strong enough to permit simultaneous offensive operations against other points of the European southern front."

Not until 1 p. m. (Rome time) were the Italian people told that the triangular island just off the toe of their mainland had been invaded by the Allies.

Then the Rome radio broadcast a brief communique saying only that "violent fighting" was in progress in southeast Sicily after an Allied attack by air forces and parachute troops supported by naval units.

Swiss dispatches meanwhile told of stories appearing in German newspapers which hinted that all of the Italian islands were marked for assault.

Papers appearing before the first announcement of the Sicilian landing expressed a belief that the Allies, instead of making a large scale invasion of Europe, would concentrate on smaller targets, especially the Mediterranean islands, this summer.

400,000 Defending Sicily; Invaders Put at 450,000

JUL 11 1943

London and Berlin Estimate Opposing Forces —Few Germans Believed Among Foe Facing Eisenhower.

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower has thrown into the invasion of Sicily a formidable force evenly divided between battle-tried American and British units, with a Canadian force moved in since the battle of North Africa.

London sources estimated the Axis forces on Sicily as totaling 400,000 men.

Berlin reports, via Switzerland, gauged Allied strength in the Mediterranean as including 4,000 planes, 2,500 of them in the western central sector, "a considerably strengthened fleet," forty-four infantry divisions and fifteen to twenty armored divisions. In addition, there were parachute troops of two air divisions, smaller armored groups, and two Polish and assorted Czech, Yugoslav and Greek units.

Berlin, according to these advices, believed the Allies would use half of their available troops for invasion while "the others must be left for strong occupation forces in North Africa and the Near East."

Thus, if half the Allied forces were in use against Sicily, at least thirty divisions — involving perhaps 450,000 men—have been thrown into the invasion, together with 2,000 planes and heavy naval support.

Germans Absent.

The following are among the impressions emerging from a round of talks with military men in London:

There is no indication of strong reinforcements of German land forces in Sicily and the Nazis may not make any great fight short of northern Italy. However, the Italians are in Sicily and southern Italy in considerable strength and may fight hard.

The invasion started on a schedule worked out weeks ago and was not moved up by the fresh outbreak of fighting in Soviet Russia.

United States units which were announced as having fought in Tunisia—the First, Ninth and 34th Infantry divisions and the First Armored—may possibly be assumed to be taking part in the offensive.

So far, according to these impressions, it does not appear that the bulk of the American Fifth Army, the British Eighth or French forces are being called upon—so they remain, along with the British Ninth and Tenth as major menaces to other Mediterranean points.

It was assumed that the American Navy participated much more fully in the attack than it did in the latter stages of the Tunisian campaign. Amphibious units trained extensively along the American East Coast were believed to be a substantial part of the American naval contribution.

Italy's Fleet.

The Italian Navy which so far has avoided a major battle is built around three modern battleships of the Littorio class, last reported at La Spezia, and four old but rebuilt and reasonably efficient battleships of the Cavour class, based somewhere east of the Messina Strait. One of these hit in the British air attack on Taranto may still be out of commission. The Italians have no more than one or two of the original seven heavy cruisers left, naval sources said. Light cruisers number six to eight, destroyers probably less than fifty and submarines probably between sixty and eighty.

The combined British and American naval strength was believed adequate to deal with the Italian fleet.

Fighting Back, Rome Says

[By the Associated Press]

[illegible], July 10—The Italian high command announced today that fighting was in progress "along the southeastern coast of Sicily" as the Axis defenders engaged Allied invasion forces spearheaded by parachutists and strong air and sea formations.

The high command communique, broadcast from Rome, was recorded here by the Associated Press.

Along Coastal Strip

"Fighting is in progress along the coastal southern and eastern strip," the communique said in part:

The text of the enemy summary:

"The enemy started last night, with support of strong air and sea formations, and with dropping of parachutist units, the attacks against Italy.

"Axis armed forces are decisively counter-attacking the enemy's action. Fighting is in progress along the coastal southern and eastern strip."

U. S. FIFTH ARMY IN SICILY ACTION

London, July 10 (A. P.).—A Reuters dispatch from Washington said today it was presumed there that the bulk of the United States Fifth Army, which has been training in Algeria, was engaged in the Allied invasion of Sicily, along with units of the British First Army.

There was no indication thus far, the Reuters dispatch said, that air-borne troops had been employed.

First reports reaching Washington, the dispatch said, indicated the operations were going according to plan.

WAR'S FINAL PHASE OPENING, SAYS FDR

JUL 11 1943

President Hints Invasion of Italy, Double Attack to Free France.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP) President Roosevelt told the world today that the invasion of Sicily means the war against Italy and Germany has entered its final phase with the complete destruction of Nazism and Fascism as the objectives directly ahead.

"I think you can almost say," he declared, "that this action x x x is the beginning of the end."

The chief executive's comments on the historic military development suggested that German forces in France will be attacked both across the channel from Britain and northward from the Mediterranean area.

Hint of Drive on Italy

There was a strong hint, too, of an invasion of Italy although there were no definite commitments in the President's remarks.

Mr. Roosevelt's views on the military situation in Europe, as a result of the latest Allied progress, were given out in two ways. First, his press secretary, Stephen Early, released excerpts from an impromptu talk which the President made last night at a White House dinner honoring the French General Henri Honore Giraud.

A little later, the White House issued the text of a message to Pope Pius XII in which the President assured the leader of the Roman Catholic church that "throughout the period of operations the neutral status of Vatican City as well as of the papal domains throughout Italy will be respected."

Will Destroy Fascism

The message had opened with a reference to the landings in Sicily and a statement by the President that "our soldiers have come to rid Italy of Fascism and all its unhappy symbols, to drive out the Nazi oppressors who are infesting her soil."

The chief executive advised the Pope that in the fighting to come churches and religious institutions would be spared the destructions of war to the extent "that it is within our power."

The recital of events at last night's dinner proved it to be one of the most dramatic state functions held at the executive residence in many a month. Mr. Roosevelt and his guests, French and American military, naval and civilian officials, sat down to dinner about 8:15 p. m., and the affair went routinely until about 9 o'clock. Then Mr. Roosevelt received word that landings actually had been made on Sicily.

The President was sitting with General Giraud on his right and General George C. Marshall, the American chief of staff, on his left. Across the table were Secretary of State Hull, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff; and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet. Possibly no item of news could have been more exciting to these men and no subject more heavily on their minds at that time than the Sicilian operation.

Kept Secret An Hour

But with his sense of the dramatic, Mr. Roosevelt kept his information to himself until the concluding stage of the dinner about 10 p. m., at that time he rose to propose a toast and thrilled his assembled guests with these words:

"I have just had word of the first attack against the soft underbelly of Europe."

At that point the President moved into a very brief description of the invasion of Sicily after pledging his heroes to keep secret all he told them until midnight. This pledge was necessary because simultaneous release times had been fixed for Washington, London and North Africa.

"The operations have begun," the President said. "We won't get definite news until later but the news will be coming in from now on."

Mr. Roosevelt hailed the operation as a outstanding example of carefully accomplished planning and of cooperation between American and British forces. Similar cooperation, he said, has been achieved with the French forces in North Africa.

The operation against Europe's "soft underbelly" has a great many objectives, Mr. Roosevelt declared, although "of course the major objective is the elimination of Germany."

"Last autumn, (when North Africa was invaded)," he went on, "the prime minister of England called it 'the end of the beginning.' I think you can almost say that this action tonight is the beginning of the end."

"We are going to be ashore in a naval sense—a military sense—military. Once there, we have the opportunity of going in different directions and I want to tell General Giraud that we have not forgotten than France is one of the directions.

"One of our prime airs, of course, is the restoration of the people of France and the sovereignty of France. Even if a move is not directed at this moment to France itself, General Giraud can rest assured that the ultimate objective—we will do it and in the best way—is to liberate the people of France, not merely those in the southern part of France but the people in northern France—Paris—and in this whole operation, I should say rightly, that in the enormous planning we have had the complete cooperation of French military and naval forces in North Africa—gradually the opposition has cooled and the older regime is breaking down. We have seen what has happened or is happening at the present moment in Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Would Rearm French

"That is a very major point toward the big objective.

"We haven't won the war yet, but one of the happy things is that with the help of General Giraud we have a unified military situation that goes a long way.

"We want to help rearm those French forces (Early explained the President referred to the forces in North Africa) and to build up the French strength so that when the time comes from a military point of view when we get into France and throw the Germans out, there will be a French army and French ships working with the British and ourselves.

"It is a great symbol that General Giraud is here today that he has come over to talk to us about his military problems, to help toward the same objective that all of the United Nations have—the freedom of France and with it the unity of France."

Spoke Extemperaneously

The President spoke extemporaneously. Early said that the quotations which he gave were on the basis of notes and did not represent the President's complete remarks.

Direct quotations on Giraud's reply were not given out, but Early summarized it in this manner:

The general first thanked the President for support of France and expressed his deep gratitude for the fact that through America's assistance rearmed soldiers of France would have their share in the liberation of their country.

The French leader then lifted his glass, gave his fellow-diners the health of the President and the glory of the United States, and described this country as the great nation through which peace and freedom would be restored.

LONDON CHEERED BY FIRST NEWS OF SICILIAN INVASION

JUL 11 1943

Attack Is First of Many to Hit Axis, Observers Say.

LONDON, July 10—(AP) The Allies' solid smash into the underbelly of the Axis on Sicily was hailed in London today as the first in a rain of invasion blows designed to batter the enemy to his knees.

Military observers believed that the Allies now are strong enough to drive heavy blows home in swift succession.

"General Eisenhower landed a solid left on Sicily," one military man said, "but his forces there comprise only one of the Allied fists in the Mediterranean. Our right menaces the Balkans and we have other fists in the west, so that the enemy cannot throw everything into countering this punch."

Fierce Fighting Seen

While assuming that the invasion of Sicily will succeed, British and American officers joined in warning against any idea that the island will fall without the fiercest kind of fighting and heavy casualties.

None was willing to predict whether the campaign to subdue Sicily would require weeks or months.

With operational reports still scanty late today, these seemed to emerge as significant facts:

General Eisenhower has struck with what probably is the best trained, best equipped and one of the largest amphibious assault forces ever sent into action.

Face 400,000 Axis Troops

His American, British and Canadian troops are hitting an island strongly defended by a mixed Italian-German force which may total as high as 400,000 men, backed by an unknown number of planes—probably at least several hundred.

It may well be a day or two before the course of battle becomes clearly enough defined to say accurately how it is going.

The vaunted British Eighth army, though well rested, apparently is not in these operations, but is standing by along with the bulk of the American First Army in Algeria and the British Ninth and Tenth armies in Iran and Iraq.

Thus it is assumed that the Allied forces not participating in the attack on Sicily greatly outnumber the present striking force. They remain as major menaces to other Mediterranean points.

Should Hitler and Mussolini decide to make an all-out fight for Sicily and bring in reinforcements from southern Italy or southern France, they would expose those areas to blows from other powerful Allied contingents waiting for the signal to hit.

Similarly, any Axis planes flown in to oppose the assault on Sicily would have to be withdrawn from bomb-scarred western Europe or the Russian front. Military observers doubted Hitler could afford to weaken his aerial forces at either of these points.

While there was no indication that the Mediterranean attack was directly coordinated with the renewal of heavy fighting in Russia, military men agreed that the two campaigns inevitably would complement each other.

More Landings, Heavy Losses Foreseen

[By the Associated Press]

London, July 10—The invasion of Europe now under way through Sicily should not be regarded as "the only landing, nor even as the landing" planned by the Allies, a British observer told correspondents today.

He also warned that "hard and prolonged fighting must be expected against the island's total defense forces, estimated at 400,000.

Deployment of the Allied striking power along the upper coast of North Africa suggested a strong possibility that the assault on Sicily might be accompanied at any moment by coordinated moves elsewhere along the Mediterranean front, it was said.

Allied Strength Undisclosed

This possibility also was strengthened by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement in his personal message broadcast to Europe that the "Battle of Europe" had now begun.

The total strength of the Allied forces in the Mediterranean area has never even been suggested by Allied sources.

Axis estimates, however, indicated that a mighty host of at least thirty Allied divisions — perhaps 450,000 troops — had been thrown into the invasion, together with 2,000 planes.

Evenly Divided

London sources pictured the attack as being evenly divided between battle-hardened American and British troops, supported by Canadian forces moved into the Mediterranean since the Battle of Africa ended last June 10.

Sicily's importance, both to Italy and as the gateway to Europe, was emphasized long ago when Garibaldi issued his famous proclamation: "Here we make Italy or we die."

Warned Of Setbacks

London sources declined to comment on the chain of command under General Eisenhower, although there had been no indication of any change in the team which swept Tunisia clean. This had Gen. Sir Harold Alexander in charge of ground forces and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder commanding in the air.

British newspapers warned readers to prepare for heavy losses and possible setbacks before Sicily is taken.

"Working For Something"

Workers in war factories cheered announcement of the invasion news over loud-speaker systems.

"This new [illegible] heart, know we [illegible] working something now," was a typical remark.

Selection of Sicily for the first assault was no surprise, for a clean-up of the Mediterranean islands had been plainly hinted as the Allies' next step.

"Sicily is the only target in the Mediterranean against which the full weight of Allied material superiority could be brought to bear upon the enemy," said the Evening Standard's military correspondent.

With dozens of other Allied divisions standing by between Morocco and Syria, it was emphasized in London that this landing is not likely to be the only one of the summer.

Unofficial hints from Washington, reported by Reuters, tended to confirm London correspondents' estimates that neither the veteran British Eighth Army nor the eager American Fifth Army had been thrown into the Sicily assault. There was nothing to suggest that the French army—75,000 of whom are reported fully equipped—had joined the attack, and the British Ninth and Tenth armies also are standing by in the East.

The threat of action from these forces is likely to deter the Axis from heavily reinforcing the Sicilian garrison from either Italy or the Balkans.

Russian Fight Cited

"Even larger forces" than those of the Mediterranean were disclosed by Prime Minister Churchill to be gathering in Britain, and on June 30 he disclosed that "very probably there will be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean and elsewhere before the leaves of autumn fall."

As with the landing in North Africa eight months ago, the Sicilian offensive coincided very closely with renewal of heavy fighting on the Russian front, but it was regarded as questionable that such timing had been intended. London sources said the time of the Sicilian landings had been fixed long before the renewal of the Russian front struggle.

But the Allies are working ever more closely together and there is no doubt that they will make the most of the relationship between their two campaigns.

Hitler's Problem

sented for the first time with the reality of a second front on European soil.

An Evening Standard editorial declared that "our invasion brings the war of coalition to a new point, . . . a point at which all the United Nations are engaging every enemy and all Allied resources are converging on Hitler's fortress."

London awaited the reaction not only of Russia but neutral countries and forces within occupied countries. The first official Vichy French reaction was the summoning of the cabinet by Marshal Petain and the Swiss radio.

First U .S. Landing

The Algiers radio remarked that "British soldiers have set foot on Italian soil for the first time since the Napoleonic wars in the nineteenth century."

For Americans, it was the first opposed landing in force they have ever attempted against European territory.

"There must be no deluding ourselves with the hopes of a speedy occupation of Mussolini's front-door island," cautioned the Star. "For though this is Italy it also is Hitler's outer gateway and the Nazis have shown every determination to hold it.

"Hazardous Adventure"

"We must be prepared for losses."

The Evening Standard commented:

"We are committed to an historic and hazardous adventure in which there will be setbacks to mourn as well as successes to praise and from which there can be no turning back."

The News said that "no easy victory lies ahead" and added:

"This is a stern business of invading a large country well defended, alive to the prospect with which it now is faced. It is a hazardous and complicated duty."

Newsmen Told Of Attack Plans Month Ago

JUL 11 1943

By Relman H. Morin

(Associated Press Correspondent)

Air Force Headquarters in North Africa, July 10—This was "D" day

And now that it's come more than one hundred American and British correspondents in North Africa have a sensation of a heavy weight being lifted from their shoulders and hobbles taken off their tongues.

You can speak openly now about the landing on Sicily.

Hidden References

For a month whenever the subject was mentioned at all—which was seldom—correspondents called it "That Thing" or "The Magoo" or, simply, "It."

In the middle of June Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower called a press conference at his headquarters.

These conferences are held fairly regularly. You get information straight from the horse's mouth there. Some of it you can use and most of it you can't. But just knowing helps to interpret events as they arise.

Shocking Announcement

The Allied commander in chief was speaking generally of the situation as developing.

Suddenly, without the slightest warning, he said that overseas operations would be undertaken within the month. The room seemed to freeze.

Time And Place

It became as still as a picture and there was a sensation of glassy unreality. Nothing moved except the commander in chief's icy blue eyes which went slowly from face to face.

He said the attack would be aimed at Sicily.

And if there was surprise before it was sheer numbing shock now. You're accustomed to hearing or learning military information of a highly confidential nature but none of the khaki-clad newsmen in Eisenhower's conference room that day ever expected to be given the place and the approximate date of the operation that will go down as one of the decisive events in history.

Eisenhower said the Allies might be "riding for a bloody nose" but that he thought the job could be done.

The picturesque simile seemed to break the thread of tension. Almost in unison the correspondents drew a deep breath, blinked, shifted in their chairs and lit cigarettes. They asked a few questions and Eisenhower answered, disclosing some details of the coming operation.

Warned Not To Talk

Before the conference ended he warned listeners not to talk. It was more than a warning.

An edged, steely quality came into his voice. Eisenhower smiles continually when he talks. His forehead wrinkles and his eyes dart around rapidly. He wasn't smiling at that moment.

Something in his voice struck deep. It was cold and hard. It felt like small splinters of ice riding down your spine. He told us not to talk. It was an order delivered by a man who knows how to utter orders. It hit hard.

Responsibility Heavy

After the conference one correspondent murmured: "I almost wish he hadn't told us. I have never been so conscious of a responsibility."

And so, through the next weeks you occasionally heard elaborately casual references about the "Magoo" and that "thing."

One morning a few days ago a British colonel attached to the press relations branch made a brief announcement. He said: "I would advise all of you to telephone me every night at midnight from now on." He gave three telephone numbers where he could be reached.

Orders for operations on "D plus 2" may be concerned with follow-up assignments.

An Allied Force Command Post in North Africa, July 10 (AP)—With Allied soldiers landing in Sicily today carrying the latest death-dealing weapons, went war correspondents and photographers carrying typewriters, notebooks and cameras.

They will give the people of the United Nations first-hand accounts in words and pictures of the first direct thrust into Hitler's European stronghold.

A total of fifty-four American, British, Canadian and Australian correspondents accompanied the combat forces. At least twenty of them were scheduled to land with the troops fighting their way first on the beaches and then inland.

Twenty-nine others were assigned directly to naval forces particpating in the operations, and the remainder to the field headquarters of commanders.

LOSSES ARE LIGHT IN SICILY LANDING

Speed of Operation Is Tribute to Gen. Eisenhower's Staff.

ALGIERS, July 10—The successful landing without serious loss of the big Allied force on the beaches of Sicily early today was another great tribute to the combined staffs that serve under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

For some time before the successful conclusions of the Tunisian campaign, planning was begun for the invasion of Sicily by various British and American naval, military and air force experts at Allied headquarters. That the Allies have been able to launch an attack of this size less than two months after the end of the Tunisian campaign gives some indication of the excellence of the planning.

In the field, British and American troops fight side by side, while air forces of the two countries no longer are divided by nationality. Pilots of both nations are mixed in groups suited to the particular functions they have to perform.

Some British pilots fly American-made machines while some Americans fly British-made aircraft.

Invasion Base Points at Italy Like a Cannon

JUL 11 1943

Its Ammunition Is Ships, Shells and Supplies and It Is Loaded to the Mouth

By Relman Morin

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 10 (AP).—The harbor was like a pot-bellied cannon aimed at Italy, and they loaded it to the mouth. That was in the last days before the invasion.

The harbor is a rough crescent and the hills rise steeply around. The streets of the town terrace the hillside, one above the other.

Convoys came, freighters and tankers and empty transports riding high in the water. Then clean, gray warships slid in past the seawall, British warships and American. Before long the harbor was so full that you could scarcely see gleaming blue water.

It looked like a solid mass. But at close range you could see invasion barges smacking the waves with their square noses as they passed between ships. Here and there an officer's launch, glistening white in the hot African sun, arrowed swiftly through the narrow lanes of water. A floating crane with great crooked arms waddled cautiously past three black cylinders that were huddled together—submarines.

As far as you could see, for miles and miles to the right and left, the black pattern of spars and masts and funnels was etched against the sky.

Trains groaned along the docks and endless chains of trucks, big six-wheeled trucks and trucks pulling trailers. All were heavily loaded. As they were emptied, pyramids of boxes rose and mounds of coal. Machines were ranged in enormous blocks. Steel gird... were p...d like p...

sticks and there were long walls of steel drums filled with oil or gasoline. They looked like toys from the hillside above, toys scattered there by a petulant giant.

It was a spectacle that drew thousands and thousands of people to the walls above the docks. They stood there for hours, leaning their elbows on the walls and watching the small segment that they could see of this preparation for the first assault on the fortress of Europe.

Sooner or later the thought crossed every mind, "What a targ... for an aid raid!"

General Stayed With Staff at Headquarters to Follow Invasion Progress

Naval and Fighter Command Rooms Get Attention of Allied Force Leader

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 10 — Gen. Dwight D... nhower, Commander in Chief ... Allied forces, spent last night like a perfectly confident and unworried father awaiting the birth of a healthy baby. As his aide expressed it, "The boss has had children before."

After dinner, General Eisenhower went to a lonely vantage point and waited in the moonlight for Allied aircraft to begin their historic mission. Surrounded by a few staff members, the General gave them a salute and a prayer.

There is a natural period of tenseness as any long-prepared operation reaches a climax, particularly if it is an amphibious operation wtih stakes as enormous as the liberation of Europe and the winning of the war. The emotion is subtle, one of watchful waiting compounded with confidence and inevitable worry that something may go wrong at the last minute.

It si an amalgam of curiousity, uncertainty, and intense yearning that everything will really go according to plan.

General Eisenhower returned to headquarters, dispatched several messages and stayed up until midnight. The last moments are the most trying—those moments when you know that your assault troops have landed but before you get definite information of what has happened.

The dark beaches of Sicily are far away and no one human being could know whether success or failure had attended this adventure until the first actual messages came through. The experience is almost like waiting for election returns—an election on which the future of mankind rests.

The general left his own headquarters and went to naval headquarters a few minutes before midnight. He visited the Fighter Command room and the naval war room because the Admiralty was in charge of this kind of operation until the landings had been achieved and the Navy has the best and quickest channels of information.

Thus the general got the whole picture, then quietly went to sleep on a cot in the naval headquarters next to the war room. His naval aide answered the telephone and let him sleep, at first, then awakened him when news came through that the operations were moving in accordance to plan. The general got up at 4:30 A. M. and had morning tea.

He says: "This tea habit is not so bad." Anyway, he had ... tea, because someone had ... his carefully guarded can of ... dered coffee.

He probed around the war room, returned to his normal sleeping place and changed clothes, then went back to headquarters for breakfast at 8:15 A. M., listened to the British Broadcasting Corporation news and heard his own message that the first stage of the invasion of the Continent had begun.

When it was apparent that the news was good, the general chuckled, recollecting that before turning in he had carefully and conscientiously rubbed his lucky coins. He always carries seven lucky coins, including one silver dollar, one five-guinea piece and one French franc.

Eisenhower Rut ...ven Luck-Pieces As Allied Invasion ...eet Approaches Sicily

By EDWARD GILLING
Representing the Combined British Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 10 — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower always carries in his pocket seven old coins, including a gold five-guinea piece.

As the Allied invasion fleet approached Sicily last night to begin the great assault on Europe, the General gave them a good rub for luck. In fact, as one of his aides said, he gave them several good rubs.

In the early hours of the morning the General heard that the landing had been made and that everything was going according to plan. General Eisenhower spent all night at headquarters, except for one brief period when he drove out to the coast with a small party of his staff to watch an Allied air fleet leaving.

Climbing out of his car, he stood in moonlight with his hand raised to salute the air armada. The period of waiting between the planning of the assault and its realization was over.

Returning to headquarters, General Eisenhower went at once to the naval section, where he joined his staff in following closely the movement of the operations on charts. He spent some time in the Fighter Command room, from which the air umbrella covering the operations was controlled.

At 1:30 A. M. General Eisenhower, apparently satisfied with the progress of operations, went to bed on a cot in a room next to the war room. He slept soundly for three hours until awakened at 4:30 A. M. by an aide who informed him that assault troops had landed and that everything was going according to plan.

The Royal Navy served the General with a cup of hot tea and he then returned to the war room, where reports were now coming in regularly. He remained there until he heard the British Broadcasting Corporation broadcast his message telling the people of France that this was the first stage of the invasion of the Continent, which would be followed by others.

General Eisenhower then left the war room, but only for a change of clothes. He returned soon to follow with his commanders the progress of operations.

Tough Fight Expected

London, July 10 (AP)—The attack on Sicily early today came where the Axis had expected, and military observers here said it would be a tough struggle.

The long-awaited assault came as Germany faced a terrific life-and-death battle on the Eastern front against Russia.

The Germans appeared to be throwing everying they have into the fiercely blazing Russian battle, and it was the view in some quarters here that the new German offensive was a desperate attempt to get the Soviets to sign a separate peace.

The Moscow radio and Stalin have warned repeatedly in recent weeks against possible Nazi peace offensives, saying over and over they would fail.

REDS LEARN OF INVASION

MOSCOW, July 10 — (AP) The Russians were told of the Allied invasion of Sicily today by the Russian radio which gave first place on its news program to the communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

INVASION THRILLS CHINA

CHUNGKING, July 10—(AP) The capital of China was thrilled today by the Allied invasion of Sicily. Chinese reaction was typified by Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek who, when asked what she thought about the invasion of Sicily, said "I think it is all to the good. The more we can attack, the shorter the war will be."

RUSSIANS ELATED BY SICILY LANDING

Moscow, July 10 (A. P.).—The Russian people joyously welcomed news of the Allied landing on Sicily today.

Even before the newspapers had time to comment editorially the people entered into excited discussions, calling the new offensive "a fine gift" for the Red Army, now striving to block the summer offensive of the Nazis.

"It is not the second front, of course," they were saying. "But it is another important blow to the Axis.

The public apparently recognizes the potent possibilities of the Sicilian landing as another step toward a continental invasion and as an important action in making the Mediterranean still safer for Allied shipping. The Russians are vitally interested in any development which can increase and quicken the supply ships of the Allies.

Nazi Press Prepares Readers For Loss of Italy's Islands

Alibi for Defeat Is Ready—Lack of Ships for Supply Lines—Berlin Radio Tells of Parachutists Wiped Out.

JUL 11 1943

Berne, July 10 (A. P.).—The Nazi press began to prepare the people for the loss of Italy's Mediterranean islands today as dawn found Allied forces invading Sicily in the first big push against European territory.

Even before Europeans learned of the Sicilian landing German newspapers told readers they believed the Allies would make no large scale invasion of the continent but would limit the fighting this summer to smaller targets, especially the Mediterranean islands.

Then they added that the Axis was confident of Italian and German defenses—"if fighting on the mainland is not again thrown onto an endangered sea connection as was the case in North Africa." In other words, the Nazis have prepared an out if the islands are lost—transport.

The Germans are confident they can equal Allied opponents "providing they have normal transport facilities for supply lines," the Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung wrote.

The German High Command itself, in its communique, said merely: "On the night of July 9, the enemy with the support of strong naval and air forces began an attack on Sicily. The enemy immediately encountered strong defenses on the ground and in the air. Fighting is still progressing."

The Italian people were told of the invasion of Sicily at 1 P. M. (Rome time) in a brief broadcast communique which said that "violent fighting" is in progress.

Berlin Tells of Parachutists.

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Military circles in Berlin presented initial details of the Allied invasion of Sicily to the German people at noon today in a broadcast which said the operation was launched with "considerable forces" and that it began with "the support of strong naval and air force formations."

By now Allied forces have landed in the southeastern part of Sicily, said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press. It added that fighting was proceeding but said it could not be stated whether attempts to land at other points on the island had been made.

"The invasion forces were immediately engaged in heavy fighting which proved extraordinarily costly for them," one Berlin broadcast said, quoting a dispatch of the International Information Bureau, a German propaganda agency. "The parachutists were encircled and rendered harmless.

"Coastal batteries and Axis bombers sank a number of landing transport manned with troops and laden with material. Thirty-three enemy aircraft so far have been brought down in aerial combats. Enemy parachutists who bailed out during the dawn were wiped out."

Only a few hours before the Allies struck, German overseas broadcasts declared that "the biggest enterprise in history may begin at any moment," adding that Allied preparations for the invasion of Europe had been completed.

Italy Prepares Its People.

The invasion came as the Italian press was intensifying its campaign to prepare the people for an Allied assault.

Mario Appelius, prominent Rome editor, wrote that Allied troops had been waiting aboard ships off North Africa for the past few days and the only big question was why the invasion was being postponed.

Stockholm's afternoon newspapers printed extras telling of the invasion. Morning papers had given prominent display to Reuters reports from Washington that the Allies would strike soon in the Mediterranean or against Norway.

London observers pointed out that the Germans have made elaborate anti-invasion preparations in Norway the past several weeks.

Other Stockholm dispatches pointed out that reports in recent days said large bodies of German troops have been moving toward Italy and the southern coast of France.

Although short on details of the day's events in Sicily, the Berlin radio kept up a stream of commentary concerning the latest Allied blow, devoting thousands of words to assurances that the Axis was fully prepared for defense.

"Let weapons speak," said a spokesman of the Wilhelmstrasse in a broadcast declaring that the new development was accepted in Berlin with cool headedness and tranquillity.

He emphasized that "the fight of our Italian ally is also our fight, especially in the present hour."

No Surprise to Axis.

Another Berlin broadcast said the Allied landing "in no way came as a surprise to Axis troops." It declared that Axis reconnaissance had established that concentrations of Allied troops and landing craft were in Allied ports from Gibraltar to Cyprus and reminded listeners that "for weeks Sicily has been the focal point of British and American air attacks."

But, the broadcast declared, "supremacy in the skies over this southernmost point in the central Mediterranean is held by ... and German air defenses, ... rounds."

Still another broadcast ... of Berlin asserted that the Italian people could not possibly have been taken by surprise by the invasion, because they had been "thoroughly prepared for such an eventuality by the press."

At an hour when the Italian public had not yet been informed of the landing operation, the broadcast went on, Popolo di Roma wrote: "The zero hour has struck already for us. It is the hour which the enemy has selected at which his convoys, protected by naval units and aircraft and preceded by landing parties, must ... the sea to approach ou... s. No matter where it may be—Sicily, Sardinia, Calabria or Apulia — we are ready."

Defense Plans Worked Out.

One German broadcast quoted Guenther Weber, correspondent of the Transocean Propaganda Agency, as writing from Sicily before the attack began that "The German and Italian staffs have jointly worked out defense plans, one subordinating itself to the other as circumstances demand."

Madrid dispatches called attention to a story in Spanish morning newspapers, apparently written in Berlin last night, saying that the German international information office ventured the opinion that the British "will occupy the eastern sector of the Mediterranean while the western section will be reserved for the Americans.

This guess apparently was based on German information that British units in Tunisia and French Africa had been moved to Egypt and near eastern bases while American forces had been reinforced.

Since Sicily generally is considered to be the dividing line between the east and west sections of the Mediterranean, observers in Madrid speculated that Berlin's worries were increased.

An Ankara dispatch, written yesterday, said reports in that neutral capital pointed to a strong possibility that the approaching week end might see a new flare-up of activity in the Balkans.

As the Berlin radio made its first announcement of the Sicilian landings, a ghost twice interrupted with this foreboding remark:

"Beware! The invasion of Europe has begun."

RUHR WAR PLANTS BLASTED BY R.A.F.

Air Fields in France Attacked During Day by Flying Fortresses.

LONDON, July 10. — (AP) Resources of the Axis war machine, straining to break through the Russian armies and to stand off Allied invasion in the Mediterranean, were whittled down today by fresh bombing of factories in the Ruhr and air fields in France.

Big British bombers executed a "very heavy attack" on the central Ruhr valley of Germany last night. Among the targets was Gelsenkirchen, oft-battered oil refinery, iron and steel center, authorities announced.

Both United States Flying Fortresses and R.A.F. light bombers pressed the offensive today, attacking enemy fighter bases at Caen and Abbeville, in western France, where direct hits were observed.

Ten British bombers were lost during the night raid, and three Flying Fortresses from the daylight operations. The comparatively small toll was seen here as a possible indication of weakening of enemy fighter forces under the strain of three-front aerial warfare.

An Eighth air force headquarters statement said that the Caen airfield is one of the airdromes used by Reichsmarshal Goering's crack squadrons and that the attack came at a time "when enemy reserves are sorely pressed on diverse fronts."

The American heavy bombers, which thundered over the English channel a few hours after the R.A.F. made the night assault on the Ruhr, encountered adverse weather and thick clouds in the attack on Nazi air force headquarters at Caen and the Abbeville fighter field.

Returning crews said they met surprisingly little enemy opposition in an area where they usually run into swarms of Reichsmarshal Goering's "yellow nose" Focke Wulf squadrons, flown by ace pilots.

No enemy formation was contacted over Abbeville.

A number of Nazi fighters was destroyed, however, by another group of Flying Fortresses which had considerable opposition, and turned back without bombing its target, obscured by clouds.

American P-47 Thunderbolt and British Spitfire fighters escorted the heavy American bombers.

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Strong formations of American heavy bombers and flights of British light bombers attacked German fighter bases in France today. Flying Fortresses bombed the airfields at Caen and Abbeville and a joint announcement of United States Army Headquarters and the British Air Ministry said that bomb bursts were observed on both targets.

Another formation of fortresses, finding their target in France obscured by heavy clouds, refrained from bombing the objective but experienced persistent fighter opposition.

A considerable number of German fighters were destroyed by the heavy bombers, which were escorted by squadrons of Royal Air Force fighters and American Thunderbolts. The fighters knocked down one enemy plane.

The R. A. F. bombers, escorted by Spitfire and Typhoon fighters, attacked the enemy air fields at St. Omer and Maupertus.

The joint announcement said three bombers were missing from all these daylight operations.

Later this evening a statement issued by Eighth United States Air Force headquarters said that all three of the bombers lost were Flying Fortresses. It added that Caen Airfield is one of the airdromes used by Germany's crack squadrons and that the attack was timed "when enemy reserves are sorely pressed on diverse fronts."

R. A. F. Batters Central Ruhr.

The daylight foray followed a very heavy attack on the central Ruhr last night by four-engined bombers of the R. A. F.

It was the second successive night that the R. A. F. had been over Europe. On the previous night more than 1,000 tons of bombs were cascaded on battered Cologne.

It added that Caen airfield is one of the airdromes used by Reichsmarshal Goering's crack squadrons and that the attack was timed "when enemy reserves are sorely pressed on diverse fronts."

An Air Ministry communique said Gelsenkirchen, twenty-seven miles west of Dortmund on the Duisburg-Hamm railway, was among the Ruhr targets hit.

The German high command communique, as broadcast from Berlin and recorded here by the Associated Press, said British bombers had attacked Bochum, a few miles southeast of Gelsenkirchen. Buildings were said to have been damaged and fires started.

Ten of the big RAF bombers were listed as missing in the Ruhr raids.

One Of Biggest Forces

Among the great forces of daylight raiders heading out across the Channel were many heavy United States bombers and fighters.

Several hundred planes passed over one district alone, and observers declared that the formations might constitute one of the greatest daylight-attacking forces from Britain.

Thus, the combined British and American aerial might concentrated at bases in Britain kept going an air offensive which helps provide proof of the ring of powerful armament the Allies are forging around Europe—a ring that landing forces bent inward against the shores of Sicily this morning.

Gelsenkirchen has been hit forty-two times previously, last on June 25. The town is an oil refinery center, and also has iron furnaces, and tin, steel and boiler works. Three coal mines are in the neighborhood.

GERMANS ADVANCE ON BELGOROD FRONT

Reds Disclose Breach in Lines, Say Foe Is Being Cut Up.

LONDON, Sunday, July 11.—(AP) Large reserves of Nazi mechanized legions, hurled into the violent Belgorod sector of the Russian central front in an attempt to extend earlier breaches, broke through more Soviet defenses Saturday but the advances were paralyzed by tremndous losses inflicted in savage Soviet counterattacks, it was announced in Moscow early today.

Elsewhere along the 165-mile front extending from Orel southward to Belgorod through the Russians' Kursk salient, repeated enemy tank and infantry assaults, sometimes numbering as many as ten a day, were beaten off by Russian defenders who hurled flaming incendiary bottles at onrushing giant Tiger tanks, the Soviet midnight communique, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said.

German Losses Mount

The cost to the Germans in their bid to flatten the Kursk bulge meantime mounted to something over 42,000 killed, 2,338 tanks destroyed or damaged and 1,037 planes lost—with yesterday's toll alone 2,000 killed, 272 tanks hit or burned out and 83 planes downed.

The communique described in this manner the tremendous struggle at Belgorod where what breaks the Germans had made were being sealed off and liquidated by the Red army's elastic defense:

"The Germans brought into the battle large reserves and are attempting to develop the offensive. Where the enemy tanks were able to break through our defenses, our troops by determined counterattacks are paralyzing the enemy and inflicting tremendous losses on him."

Nazis Halted

The communique announced that the Nazis were held at a standstill again in the Kursk-Orel fighting in the northwestern part of the bulge despite as many as 10 attacks in a single salient in one day. The Germans lost 1,500 men in the day's fighting in this sector alone.

In the cone of fire about Belgorod, some positions changed hands time and again during the day; field dispatches told of Russian withdrawals followed by savage counter-attacks, of a line that bent and re-formed again and again.

The Russians, claiming the destruction up to today of 2,036 German tanks and 904 planes, had studded the plains with camouflaged tanks dug into the soil, forming ambushes they called "fire bags," and in a single one of these grim traps they announced that 40 or more German tanks had been destroyed before the enemy was able to extricate his column.

Russian aviation was playing a strong part in the defense; dispatches from the front reported that the German air force had suffered such attrition that in some cases it was fighting with reduced squadrons, some of them made up of obsolescent types of planes.

Artillery Moved Quickly

Russian artillery, long the one point of unquestioned superiority over the armament of the Germans, was being moved about with extraordinary speed as the exigencies of battle develpoed.

While the defense appeared to be generally firm, Soviet dispatches said the Nazis were attacking with "crazy stubbornness," and were still bringing up reserves on every road leading to the front.

The Russian people, preoccupied with Belgorod-Kursk-Orel, nevertheless turned their attention momentarily to the Allied attack on Sicily.

Before the Moscow newspapers themselves had time to comment, said dispatches, civilian comment was along these lines:

"A fine gift (to the Red army.)"

"It is not the second front, of course, but it is another important blow to the Axis."

Additional data for the battles of Friday, the midnight communique said, revised the number of Nazi tanks destroyed that day from 193 to 223, and enemy planes shot down on the same date were 144 instead of 94 as previously reported.

Red aircraft continued to strike heavy blows at formations of advanced German troops and at the same time protected their own ground troops from enemy attack.

BITTER FIGHTING MARKS GERMAN BELGOROD DRIVE

JUL 11 1943

Nazis Battle Furiously to Widen Wedge Into Red Army Line.

FOE AGAIN PAYS HEAVY PRICE

Russians Ambush Forty Tanks as Large Scale Offensive Goes Into Sixth Day.

Moscow, July 10 (A. P.).—German and Russian troops remained locked in a series of bitter battles last night on the Belgorod front as attacking Nazi forces fought frantically to expand the slim wedge they had driven into the Russian lines two days ago.

Dispatches from the front said today that in the last twenty-four hours some positions in the sector at the foot of the 200-mile Belgorod-Kursk-Orel bulge had changed hands several times in the course of heavy fighting. In some sectors, the Russians said, separate Red Army detachments were forced to withdraw only to launch vigorous counter-attacks on the arrival of [illegible] reserves.

(The German high command communique, recorded by the Associated Press, claimed the attacking forces had won "considerable territorial gains" north of Belgorod against the embittered resistance of Russian reserves newly thrown into the great battle.

Claims More Destruction

(It raised the number of Soviet tanks claimed to have been destroyed or captured since July 5 to 1,227 and declared that 119 Russian planes were shot down yesterday.)

(Transocean, German news agency, said that fighting both on the ground and in the air was "continuing with extraordinary fierceness" and that the scope of the struggle was spreading both in the Orel and Belgorod sectors.)

Stationary tanks, dug into the Russian plains and camouflaged into perfect ambush, were reported to have knocked out forty German tanks, including eighteen of the new sixty-ton Tigers in one sector.

The attacking Germans were paying for their latest frenzied effort with the same reckless expenditure of armored strength and man power as in past major offensives, the Russians said.

Report Nazis Weakening in Air.

Stationary tanks which had been dug into the Russian plains and camouflaged into perfect ambush, were reported to have knocked out forty German tanks including eighteen of the new sixty-ton Tigers in one sector as Field Marshal Guenther von Kluege pushed his all-out assault into its sixth day.

With grim satisfaction, the Russians noted that the German Air Force was so shaken by the first days of battle that it is now fighting with reduced squadrons, often composed of obsolete planes. The Russian planes, maintaining the initiative, bombed the German rear for the fifth successive night.

Reds Reverse Battle Tactics.

The Red Army reversed usual battle tactics to smash back the latest German attacks, converting its armored divisions into rock-like strong points and hitching its artillery to mobile conveyors so that they could be speeded from point to point when the German columns threatened, Soviet dispatches said.

The Russian "fire bag" technic—nothing more than an ambush which has trapped advancing Nazi tank columns—was said to have been extremely successful on the defense. At one point an ambush was created to head off a German flanking movement and twenty Nazi tanks were set afire in the first few minutes after they had plunged into the bag.

The Russians said that everywhere along the front the battle was continuing on a large scale. They said the Germans had been rebuffed as firmly as on the first day, but declared that the Nazis were pressing the attacks with "crazy stubbornness." The Russian defense was said to be characterized by "high activity and maneuverability."

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Polish President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz today designated Stanislaw Mikolajczyk Prime Minister of the Polish Government in Exile, succeeding the late Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, thus apparently ending the disagreement which caused Mikolajczyk to offer his resignation as acting Premier earlier this week.

At the same time, the Polish Telegraph Agency said the President had announced appointment on Thursday of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski as commander in chief of Polish forces. This confirmed previous unofficial reports.

Gen. Sikorski, killed last Sunday in an airplane crash at Gibraltar, was both Prime Minister and military commander.

It was after the appointment of Sosnkowski that the new Prime Minister offered to resign as acting Premier. The action was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that Mikolajczyk felt that Sosnkowski, as a representative of the pre-war ruling clique, was acquiring too prominent a position in the new Government.

Heavy Jap Warship Losses Noted in New Naval Volume

'Jane's' Reports Tokyo Navy Has Suffered Fatal Blow.

LONDON, July 10.—(AP) Losses which "may well prove fatal" to Japan's navy are noted along with an amazing increase in United States naval power in the latest issue of "Jane's Fighting Ships," which is being released by its publishers on Monday. (The volume went to press before announcement of the losses inflicted on the Japanese fleet in the recent fighting in the Solomons.)

The naval reference volume for 1942 also reports that the Germans are sacrificing the safety features of double-hull construction in submarines in order to speed up production, and it discounts rumors of mysterious new motors capable of driving U-boats at great speeds while submerged.

Navy Cut in Half

Discussing the Italian navy, the book's foreword says, "Its losses in destroyers, in seagoing torpedo boats and submarines are suspected to amount to about 50 per cent of its pre-war strength x x x probably only one out seven heavy cruisers is left afloat x x x.

"Altogether, therefore, the Italian navy is in a parlous state and the remnants of what was once considered a fine, modern fleet seem likely to lie in harbor until they fall in Allied hands.

"Japan, on the other nand, continues to make free use of her cruisers and destroyers in the Pacific, undeterred by her heavy losses. The most serious of these was the destruction in the battle of Midway of the aircraft carriers Akagi, Kaga, Hiryū and Soryu. This blow, added to the previous sinking of the Ryukaku, has imposed a handicap which in the long run may well prove to be fatal to Japan's naval aspirations."

U. S. Navy Expands

Of the United States naval program, Jane's says:

"Though full details are not available of the enormous expansion of the United States Navy, 'Fighting Ships' has been able to secure sufficient data to show the rapid strides that are being made with its war construction programs. All six ships of the Washington class are now in service and the 45,000 ton Iowa and New Jersey are to be commissioned in 1943.

"x x x x Every exertion is being made to press on with the many new aircraft carriers that are in hand.

"So far four carriers of the Essex class (25,000 tons) and six of the Independence class (10,000 tons) have been launched, and several of them are believed to be in commission. The progress on new cruisers, destroyers, submarine and smaller vessels is scarcely less remarkable."

JUL 11 1943

Substantial Losses

The war loss section of the new book compared with the 1941 volume shows substantial losses by all belligerents. In most cases, the book points out, the losses charged against enemy fleets are likely to be much lower than they actually are, since the publication pursues a conservative policy in listing losses.

Where the 1941 volume showed Japanese losses of one battleship, no aircraft carriers, seven cruisers, 11 destroyers and six submarines, this one gives two battleships, five aircraft carriers, 28 cruisers (plus seven more torpedoed) 57 destroyers and 18 submarines, exclusive of "midgets."

The 1941 issue listed the battleship Haruna among the Japanese losses, but the new volume carries a note saying that "the American Army claim to have destroyed the battleship Haruna by air attack on Dec. 10, 1941, cannot be substantiated."

The list of losses of the United States is also lengthened beyond anything yet experienced in that nation's naval history. No more capital ships have been added to the two lost at Pearl Harbor, but the aircraft carrier category went from none to four, cruisers from none to eight, destroyers from four to 27, submarines from one to six, and miscellaneous craft from five to 46.

Britain Chief Loser

Britain, however, continued to be the top loser of all the nations.

There was no increase in the toll of five capital ships, but the loss of the Eagle and the Hermes pushed the carrier listings to five, although it is possible that the Indomitable and others of her class may have gone into service to restore the carrier strength. Cruiser losses rose from 13 to 25, destroyers from 63 to 100, submarines from 35 to 50 and miscellaneous craft from 232 to 314.

Illustrative of the conservatism shown by the reference work are the figures on German submarine losses, which are given as 47 as against 11 in the previous volume. German destroyer losses are up from 13 to 30, but the cruiser Leipzig, previously listed as sunk, was removed from the loss list.

Of German U-boats "Fighting Ships" says, a "notable feature of the recent German submarine design is that the double-hull form which was used in the larger U-boats in 1914-1918 has been discarded in favor of the single-hull type. x x x x This simplifies and accelerates construction, although it increases the U-boat's vulnerability to depth charge attack. Spare torpedoes are carried on the deck as well as in the torpedo compartment forward. There is no basis for reports of engines of a novel design having been adopted."

Canterbury Says Morals Of British Are Alarming

Charges Spread of 'Sexual Sin' and Dishonesty

LONDON, July 10 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. William Temple, today called British morale "magnificent" in endurance, mutual helpfulness and constancy, but said there was "really an alarming collapse in the respect of honesty and sexual morality."

"Sexual sin is not the only sort of sin," he told a meeting of men. "The supreme sin and fountainhead of all others is pride, not lust.

"But if we let this function be used for our pleasure and amusement, we are spoiling one of the most splendid things in the world."

He asserted that Britons were united in a determination to win the war, "but people are not conscious of injuring the war effort by dishonesty or by sexual indulgence," and added that the only cure was "a return to the first principles."

Armed Prisoner Hunted In England

London, July 10 (AP)—An armed Italian prisoner of war who killed a guard, wounded a woman and escaped from a prison camp today was the object of a widespread hunt by troops, Ho[illegible]rds and police in the home c[illegible]ties.

All motorists over a large area were being stopped, and drivers were given the description of the fugitive. Police rode through villages on bicycles advising residents to bolt doors and windows.

The Italian killed the guard with a pruning knife, and with the guard's gun shot a woman who had seen him escaping.

Nazis Claim Eight Ships.

London, July 10 (A .P.).—A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press reported today that German submarines had sunk eight ships totaling 51,000 tons in attacks on Allied convoys in the Atlantic, mostly off the Brazilian coast.

As usual, the Germans failed to specify the period.

There have been no recent reports from Allied sources concerning any convoy battles off the Brazilian coast.

Raids on Japan Expected

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—The German radio, quoting Japanese dispatches, said today there were "various signs" that the American air force in China was planning a new attack on the Japanese mainland.

The broadcast, heard by the Ministry of Information here, said it was reported that American air bases at some points in China had been reinforced with planes, gasoline and supplies and that United States forces had abandoned "guerrilla warfare tactics."

[illegible]ood Of Flare-Up in Balkans

Nazis Said To Be Reinforcing Islands in Aegean Sea

ANKARA, Turkey, July 9 (Delayed) (AP).—Reports pieced together in this neutral capital indicated today a strong possibility that this week end may see a new flare-up of activity in the Balkans.

That the Germans fear the approaching storm is indicated by well substantiated reports that most of the Balkan countries and strategic islands of the Aegean Sea have been reinforced during the last two weeks.

A dependable military source who cannot be identified reported that the Allied air offensive had completely halted daylight supply shipping for island garrisons in the Aegean.

German authorities in Crete were said to be taking new and sterner precautions in an effort to insure themselves against an outbreak of guerrilla fighting in support of any additional raids on the island.

Radio in Italy Tells People to Desert Duce

Algiers, July 10 (A. P.).—In a broadcast coinciding with the Allied invasion of Sicily, a clandestine Italian station, Radio Italo Balbo, called on Italians today to abandon Premier Mussolini.

The statement, heard in North Africa, declared: "Action has begun. Ev viva Italo Balbo. The hour is serious, more serious than we thought yesterday and more serious than we can imagine. This is a moment for plain speaking. We cannot hesitate in the face of peril when decisions are in the hands of a few people. The greatness of the ideals and purity of action of our chief, (the late) Italo Balbo, should serve as our example."

FRENCHMEN SEEK NO RECOGNITION

Algiers, July 10 (A. P.).—Official French informants here asserted today that the French Committee of National Liberation never had envisioned itself as the Government of France.

The statement was made in comment on remarks that President Roosevelt made yesterday at a press conference in Washington indicating that as long as the French people were dominated by Germany the United States could not recognize the committee or any other organization as France's governing power.

The committee hopes to be recognized as a trustee government for the French empire and as a power directing the French war effort, informed quarters said.

One authoritative informant said that committee leaders have declared both publicly and privately that the final choice for the government must be postponed until the people of metropolitan France are able to express their will freely.

Allies Win Maungdaw, Hold Several Hours

JUL 11 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, July 10—British and Indian troops, staging a major raid deep into Japanese territory on the western coast of Burma, seized Maungdaw Thursday and held the enemy stronghold several hours before withdrawing "as planned," a British communique said today.

"They inflicted casualties on the enemy, gained valuable information, and captured some equipment" in the expedition to the town, about fifty miles north of Akyab, a major Japanese base on the coast, the communique added.

Stiff Opposition Met

Akyab was a prime objective of the British drive during the winter and spring that penetrated into Burma but was turned back after difficult jungle fighting.

Describing the Maungdaw raid, the communique said "in the first stages of the operation our units had to overcome some stiff enemy opposition in taking up positions at different points outside town.

"The enemy was driven out of Maungdaw itself Thursday afternoon, July 8, after a machine-gun position had been stormed and its crew wiped out," the communique continued.

Casualties Are Light

"Our troops held the town several hours and finally withdrew as planned. . . . Our own casualties were very light."

In far-ranging air actions yesterday, the bulletin added, RAF Vengeances started fires among customs sheds at Maungdaw, Blenheims knocked out motor vehicles along Taungup river farther south, and a fighter patrol along the Irrawaddy river and south of Akyab set fire to three river boats, damaging sixteen others.

One British plane was listed as missing.

U. S. Raids Haiphong.

With American Liberators Over Haiphong, French Indo China, July 8 (Delayed), (A. P.).—Four waves of American Liberators, the largest display of strength by China - based heavy bombers to date, rained tons of high explosives today on Haiphong, important Japanese-held seaport on the Gulf of Tongkin, sinking an 8,000-ton freighter and probably a smaller vessel, obliterating a large section of the dock area along the Red River and scoring many direct hits on a cement factory.

It was the first heavy bomber raid of the war on Haiphong and the first raid staged by Liberators in a month. Bad weather has been keeping the Liberators on the ground, but today was perfect for bombing. The Liberators took their time and did the job up brown, spending half an hour over Haiphong.

The Japanese sent up no Zeros. Anti-aircraft fire was heavy but inaccurate. Two Liberators were slightly damaged by flak, but all planes and crews returned safely.

Lieut. Arthur (Red) Karp, 25 years old, of New York city, and his crew had three close shaves. They hit a road roller on the take-off, twisting the nose wheel assembly, but getting safely into the air. It took two hours to get the assembly loose.

CHINA'S FI[illegible] LADY ESCAPES CAPTURE

Pilot's Hunch Averted Landing on Jap Air Base in Burma.

CHUNGKING, July 10. — (AP) Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek said today her plane strayed on one leg of her journey home from America a week ago and, but for a hunch of the pilot, "we would today have been the state guests of the Imperial Japanese government."

The petite first lady of China told a press conference the aircraft accidentally picked up the radio beam of a Japanese air field in Burma while it was groping toward a base in India and almost landed on enemy-occupied territory.

But the pilot suddenly decided something was wrong and pulled away.

Mme. Chiang said seven hours of flying at 24,000 feet had her in such a state she didn't care at the time where she landed.

"I was so ill I couldn't move," she said.

JAP WARSHIPS HIT BY U. S. BOMBERS

JUL 11 1943

Squadrons of Cruisers, Destroyers Sneaking Up to New Georgia.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, July 11. — (AP) American planes bombed Japanese cruisers and destroyers attempting to sneak up in the pre-dawn darkness Saturday to the aid of the enemy's imperiled Munda air base, now cut off by American troops from its supply port above it on New Georgia Island.

Two 500-pound bombs scored hits on the enemy ships approaching New Georgia. What damage they dealt could not be observed and since then the whereabouts of the enemy force has not been reported.

Roadblock Cuts Off Japs

On New Georgia itself, where United States forces have tightened a pincers since making landings July 5, official reports from Admiral William F. Halsey's command said our troops had built a fortified roadblock, cutting the eight-mile-long communication line between the main Japanese holdings at Munda and enemy posts at Bairoko on the Kula gulf.

The Japanese lost no time in attempting to force a passage. The first two groups to make the attempt were thrown back with 60 of their number killed.

While one American force was establishing and holding the roadblock, other elements which landed at Rice anchorage near Bairoko pushed south three miles to secure positions at Enogai inlet above Munda. On the other end of the pincers, Americans consolidated positions three miles east of Munda.

Operations in the past 48 hours may have isolated the Japanese still holding out in the Bairoko harbor sector and brought the Americans with artillery close to the outer perimeter of Munda's defenses.

Japs Bomb Gun Posts

The only attempt of the Japanese yesterday to loosen the Americans'

...da was an in- ... of their planes ... positions several miles to the east of the base.

A Catalina flying boat on patrol first detected and attacked the force of Japanese cruisers and destroyers as they were steaming southeastward near Choiseul island late Friday night. Some time later, a force of big four-engined Liberators dropped 500-pound bombs, of which two were seen to score direct hits. But the returning airmen were unable to report positive results because of darkness and bad weather.

When last seen, the ships were east of Kolombangara island at the mouth of the Kula gulf where the first enemy naval attempt to run the gauntlet to New Georgia was smashed before dawn July 6 by American naval guns which sank at least nine Japanese cruisers and destroyers.

Jap Camp Bombed

Continuing to pound the New Georgia area, the American command yesterday sent over strong formations of Avenger torpedo and Dauntless divebombers which unloaded 67 tons of high explosives on ground batteries, camp and supply installation areas.

The Japanese air force apparently made no attempt to counter the crushing attack.

Continuing the job of cleaning up after the Kula gulf battle, Mitchells bombed and strafed a Japanese destroyer found beached off the coast of Kolombangara island.

Reports indicated static ground operations in the Salamaua sector of New Guinea but Mitchell bombers of Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's Fifth airforce again were on the job. They dropped 46 tons of missiles on supply lines and ground installations while Boston attack planes made 21 strafing raids over enemy positions.

Americans and Australians in New Guinea Attack—British Strike Foe in Burma.

JUL 11 1943

By Associated Press.

American warships, planes and artillery were reported thundering destruction on the key Japanese stronghold at Munda today as American troops pressed a two-way "squeeze" within three miles of that fortified base on New Georgia Island in the central Solomons. Dispatches from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said that American naval gunners violently bombarded the enemy citadel while more than 100 bombers rocked the fortress with 2,000-pound blockbusters.

More than seventy tons of explosives were rained on the Japanese bivouacs and supply dumps in the Munda defense area in the heaviest aerial attack yet to fall upon that much-bombed air base.

Meanwhile, on the western flank of the 700-mile Allied offensive arc, American bombers renewed the assault on Japanese troops on Bobdubi Ridge, only five miles below the big enemy base at Salamaua, New Guinea. There were no reports of land fighting in this area, where combined American and Australian troops are driving through the jungles within less than twelve miles of Salamaua.

British Smash into Burma.

On the Burma front, British and Indian troops carried out a spectacular raid deep into Japanese territory on the west coast of Burma, seized the enemy stronghold at Maungdaw and held the town for several hours before withdrawing "as planned." Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Japanese, British headquarters announced, adding: "The enemy was driven out of Maungdaw itself on Thursday afternoon, July 8, after a machine-gun position had been stormed and its crew wiped out. Our casualties were very light.

Maungdaw is fifty miles north of the major Japanese base at Akyab on the Bay of Bengal coast.

While all these concurrent operations were in progress Axis broadcasts reported "various signs" that the Fourteenth American Air force in China was preparing a new attack on the Japanese mainland. The enemy said that reinforcements of planes, gasoline and supplies had arrived at American air bases at undisclosed points in China and that the United States had abandoned guerrilla warfare tactics.

Japs Raise the Score.

Late this afternoon a Japanese Imperial Headquarters communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio, claimed the sinking of six United States warships in Kula Gulf, in the Solomons, last Sunday and Monday, including a cruiser of the Helena class and a destroyer of the Strong class.

The United States Navy has acknowledged the loss of one warship, the cruiser Helena, in a battle in which nine Japanese warships were sunk. The destroyer Stronf was sunk earlier in the present Solomons campaign.

Tokio boosted its claim of American losses. It said that a light cruiser of the Santa Fe class, a destroyer of the Strong class and an unidentified warship were sunk on Sunday, and a cruiser of the Helena type, an unidentified light cruiser and an auxiliary cruiser on Monday. Japanese losses were not mentioned. The cruiser Santa Fe is one of thirty-two ships of the Cleveland class, displacing 10,000 tons, carrying four airplanes and having twelve six-inch guns.

Pulverizing Munda.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 10 (A. P.).—The reduction of Munda's defenses by pulverizing blows from warships, bombers and artillery of American invasion forces is now under way.

Japan's air base on New Georgia Island—the key to conquest of the central Solomons—was raked yesterday by naval guns, rocked by 2,000-pound bombs dropped from more than one hundred Avenger torpedo and Dauntless dive bombers and blasted by bursting shells of artillery on near-by Rendova Island.

The powerful three-way bombardment, reported in today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, presumably is the prelude to a land assault.

The more than seventy tons of bombs concentrated on bivouacs and supply dumps in the Munda defense area yesterday were said by a spokesman for Gen. MacArthur to constitute the heaviest air blow yet to fall on that much-bombed air base, and without opposition from a single Japanese plane. The Japanese fired anti-aircraft batteries, but some of these were silenced both by bombers and Rendova's artillerymen.

Prior to the daylight air raid, United States destroyers moved into treacherous waters just off Munda before dawn yesterday and poured deadly accurate shells on the target area.

Bairoko was attacked yesterday by some of the swarms of dive bombers. Marines and Army units landed at Rice Anchorage, four miles from Bairoko, last Monday.

The Japanese, who haxe expended nearly 200 planes trying to check the Solomons offensive, sent forty-five Zeros over Rendova yesterday, but they were dispersed by our fighter planes. Four Zeros were shot down. One American fighter was reported missing.

Four hundred miles northwest of Australia across the Timor Sea, our medium bombers fired the area where planes are dispersed on the enemy airdrome of Dili and the runway at Cape Chater on Portuguese Timor.

Vicious Jap Air Blow Hit At Rendova Force

(The fierce Japanese reaction, in the form of an air counter-attack, to the American invasion of central Solomons is described in this account which was delayed in the confusion incident to the initial landings.)

By J. Norman Lodge

With American Occupation Forces on Rendova Island, July 2 (Delayed)—A terrific, concentrated air raid by twenty-six Mitsui bombers caught invading American troops shortly after noon today, but they quickly rallied to their leader's command: "We have a mission to carry out and we will continue."

After the long parallel lines of bombers had passed over, the newly-occupied Rendova position was raked by fire from escorting Japanese Zero fighters.

Heaviest Opposition

It was the largest-scale opposition the invading troops had met.

The first bombs came from the sky shortly after the cry of "Condition red!" had come from a hilltop lookout.

So concentrated was the bombing that the detonations sounded like a million elephants amuck in the canebrake.

The planes came in from Barieta

Such anti-aircraft guns as we had fired until they were outranged by the raiders and managed to knock down two bombers, which came over so low they were endangered by the blast of their own bombs.

Attack Is Brief

I have experienced bombings in London, Finland, Norway, Coventry, Dover and Guadalcanal—some in which hundreds of planes attacked. This was the most concentrated of any.

Luckily the attack was as brief as it was intense.

Bombs demolished the field kitchen, but another soon was set up and coffee was prepared.

The general commanding the Rendova force inspired his troops by example. After directing the evacuation of the wounded, he stood before his men tonight and reiterated the confident assertion: "We have a mission to carry out and we will continue."

Japanese Prepare Defenses on Kiska Island, Anticipating Landing by American Forces

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, July 3—(Delayed)—(AP) There is every indication that the Japanese are working desperately to fend off an expected attack on Kiska.

American aerial raiders reported recently a feverish activity. Gun positions were changed; extensive building programs were underway, and there were other indications that the Japanese were doing all they could, while the summer fogs were giving them partial protection from bombings, to prepare for the day when they expect aerial raids will be replaced by invasion forces on Kiska beaches.

Japanese now are preparing new defenses against aerial, amphibious and sea attacks, and are attempting to set up land defenses which might embarrass any naval vessels which again shell the island as they did in the fall of 1942.

(A naval communique today announced bombardment of Kiska by a light surface unit on Friday following a bombardment of the island by a U. S. naval task force on Tuesday).

No reports have given any indication the Japanese are planning to give up Kiska without a vicious battle.

Kiska's anti-aircraft fire remains very strong, although the Japanese long since learned to conserve ammunition. They shoot only when there is a good chance they can hit attacking planes, which, even now, slip in at every opportunity to see the bombing targets, although raids have been drastically reduced recently by weather.

Fliers who do get over the target report they still meet anti-aircraft fire concentrated on the edge of the clouds, forming a barrage through which a plane must fly to reach the target. Obviously, the Japanese know a plane is in the cloud and are ready for it to come out, knowing approximately where it will do so.

Since Attu, the Americans have been busy applying lessons learned in that minor but bloody campaign—how to equip troops; how to attack beaches; how to supply fighters; how to adapt the best of the Japanese methods and correlate them with our own military knowledge.

Similarly, raids over Kiska indicate the Japanese on that island now are feverishly attempting to plan their defenses so the costly errors which resulted in partial starvation and eventual destruction of the Japanese force on Attu be avoided on Kiska—when and if the Americans set out to establish beachheads there.

These preparations include outposts, artillery, anti-aircraft guns, foxholes and all the military craft which the Japanese have been studying for generations.

COLOGNE HONORS DEAD

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The citizenry of bomb-blasted Cologne assembled on the haymarket side of the center of the city yesterday to honor their dead and hear the funeral march from Wagner's Goetterdaemmerung, the Berlin radio said.

A minute's silence was observed after which anti-aircraft guns were fired and the still-remaining church bells were rung in tribute to victims of recent bombings, added the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Surging forward at long last from their hard won North African springboards, American, Canadian and British troops are locked in crucial battle with their foes on Sicily—stabbing savagely at the soft underbelly of the Axis in Europe.

The Allied assault across the central Mediterranean narrows climaxed a week already filled with crisis for the ill-omened German, Italian, Japanese war fellowship. North, south, east and west, around the world, the roaring guns of freedom have been loosed in a mighty and ever-swelling chorus.

Afloat, ashore and in the air the story of that red-letter week of the war which began with a drowsy sabbath Fourth of July for Americans at home is the same. The Axis is being brought to book at last for its crimes. The "end of the beginning" that Prime Minister Churchill noted last fall has become "the beginning of the end" in President Roosevelt's phrase.

Everywhere but in still monsoon-drenched Burma the anti-Axis legions are on the move, closing in for the kill. In Russia and in China, in the far south Pacific, and from the frigid, fog-bound Aleutians to the U-boat infested Atlantic defeat is stalking the foe, and tomorrow or tomorrows tomorrow may see new Allied attack fronts open.

But even the thrill of Allied landings in Sicily to begin the business of building that first long dreamed of second front in Europe can not the fact that the crux of the struggle still is in Russia. And there, after six days of transcendent battle around the Kursk bulge, Russian armies, bloodied but unbowed, seem holding, as they held before Moscow two years ago and at Stalingrad last year, against a frenzied, eleventh hour Nazi mass attack born of desperation.

It is still too soon to appraise the progress of the battle in Sicily. Its tactical aspects are as yet unrevealed; but its strategy and ultimate goal, its place in the rapidly unfolding Allied pattern of victory, are quite clear.

And first among major objectives at this stage must stand the aid to valiant Russia that the developing southern second-front operation affords. Anglo-American troops are carving their way ashore in blood, sweat and valor on the big island off the toe of the Italian boot not only ultimately to free France and other Nazi conquered continental peoples, but to take weight now off Russia. Their success could bring final disaster upon Hitler in the east before snow flies again in Russia.

There are other things of crucial importance at stake now in Sicily. There on a greater scale than in Tunisia, the team-work of General Eisenhower's command, American, British and French, ground, sea and air, is being tested.

From results now in the making in Sicily will come the formula that one day will govern even greater Allied attacks upon the continent from the west across the narrower waters of the English channel and the North sea. Nor can Berlin rest easy that a third-front Allied action, aimed at the Nazi heart of the Axis itself, may not open within weeks if Sicily succumbs quickly and brings tottering Italy to the brink of collapse.

Guarded by Air Fleets

This much is certain. The Sicilian landings were covered by the wings of the mightiest air force yet mobilized. The timing of the invasion tends to explain a brief lull in the Anglo-American air pounding of German and continental targets from Britain. It goes without saying that those days were used to groom British and American air fleets for stepped-up action from the west to pin Nazi defensive armada to that front and keep them out of action over Sicily.

Mainland Axis air bases in northern and, even central Italy can be reached by long range Allied bombers from England as well as from Africa. An overlapping air attack to destroy Axis planes and fields or minimize Axis capacity for air intervention in Sicily is expectable.

Events in Russia, in the Mediterranean and in the far north and south Pacific tended to distract attention somewhat from developments of this all-important war week on another front—perhaps even more significant. It was disclosed that in June a new low was recorded in the Atlantic for Nazi U-boat depredations since the United States entered the war. To that was added a new heavy toll by American submarines against Japanese combat and cargo shipping.

Seapower, air power and land power all fortell Axis doom soon or late on all fronts.

SHORE BATTERIES GIVE WEAK REPLY TO NAVAL ATTACK

JUL 11 1943

Enemy Forced to Reveal Positions Along Island's Coast.

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) Blasting shells from an American warship, pounding onto Kiska for several hours, have forced the Japanese to reveal location of at least some of their shore batteries.

This, naval sources said, should help prepare the way for the anticipated landing of American ground troops to drive the enemy from that Aleutian island base.

It was disclosed today in meager reports of the bombardment, carried out during the early morning hours of Friday when a light surface vessel moved into the waters off the southeastern shore of Kiska.

Standing off shore, the warship, not identified by type but presumably a light cruiser or destroyer, sent shell after shell screaming toward enemy positions in the Gertrude cove area.

Then the Japanese opened up with shore-based artillery, apparently unable to take the pounding without attempted retaliation, but their fire was ineffective.

The Navy reported that shells of the shore batteries "caused no damage."

Three days earlier a naval task force had bombarded Kiska without encountering any enemy fire. It was presumed then that orders had been given by the Japanese to refrain firing upon the warships in an attempt to conceal gun positions.

Such an order—to take a bombardment without firing upon the warships—could indicate that the Japanese desired to hold the shore batteries in reserve for use against an invading force.

KISKA IS SHELLED BY U. S. WARSHIPS

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—For the second time in three days, the Navy reported today, American surface units have bombarded Jap positions on Kiska Island in the Aleutians.

Shells whistled into the Gertrude Cove area on the southeastern coast of the Aleutian island during the early morning hours Friday. Some batteries of the enemy returned the fire but caused no damage, the Navy said.

Last Tuesday a Navy task force hit hard at Kiska and at that time enemy shore batteries did not return the fire, presumably attempting to conceal their positions.

The fact that the shore batteries fired in the second engagement, and the phrasing of the Navy communique, which said "A. U. S. light surface unit" conducted the bombardment, indicated that the naval force was small, possibly not more than one destroyer or cruiser.

Gertrude Cove on the southeast shore of Kiska is across the hilly Island from Kiska proper, where the principal Jap installations are located.

'BABY FLAT-TOP' USED IN CAMPAIGN TO CONQUER ATTU

JUL 11 1943

Auxiliary Aircraft Carrier's Planes Hammered Japs on Aleutian Isle.

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) A "baby-flat-top" was a vital factor in driving the Japanese from Attu in the Aleutians.

This was disclosed tonight by the Navy in telling of the tiny auxiliary aircraft carrier's campaign which, on occasions when fog had closed in, "single-handedly provided our aerial offensive against the Japs."

The story of carrier "A," the Navy added, proved the value of the little auxiliary carriers being built by the scores to carry fighting planes into battle against the Axis.

Commander In Action

Time after time the fliers, led by Lieut. Commander Lloyd K. Greenamyer, Corpus Christi, Tex., now listed as missing, answered calls of ground troops for strafing and bombing the Japanese in their dugouts and cave dwellings.

"The weather was always bad," the Navy related. "Ceilings were low, yet the response of the carrier's Wildcats (fighter planes) to requests for air support from beach control parties and combat units ashore was so prompt as to be startling.

"Her Wildcats would take off, pull up into the low fog, spot enemy positions through holes, dive out of the overcast, strafe and bomb Jap dugouts, fox holes and machinegun nests and then swoop back into the fog, often before the Japs had time to return their fire. In the clouds the planes would fly out to sea a short distance then turn and come back for another attack, repeating this maneuver until they were low on gas."

Jap Barges Sunk

On one occasion, Japanese barges, protected by the fog, landed in the rear of American forces on the west arm of Holtz bay, placing ground troops between two fires and threatening American supplies. The "baby's" planes were summoned. Their .50 caliber machineguns sank the barges and mowed down enemy soldiers, driving them from behind sheltering rocks.

Eight of the carrier's planes crashed, forced down at sea, in collisions with mountains, or shot down by Japanese anti-aircraft fire. Five pilots are listed as killed or missing. Those missing are Commander Greenamyer; Lieut. (j.g.) Francis R. Register, Bismarck, N. D.; Ensign Ernest Jackson, Oakland, Calif.; and Lieut. (j.g.) Frederick B. Sleyster, Mexico, Mo. Lieut. Douglas Henderson, Fresno, Calif., is listed as killed.

ALLIES BEAT U-BOATS

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—The war on U-boats has been so successful that Allied convoys are crossing the Atlantic practically unmolested and British-American warships are steaming into Axis home waters in search of the undersea raiders.

This disclosure yesterday in a joint British-American statement bore out encouraging reports of success against the submarine force Hitler once hoped would be able to blockade England.

The statement issued in Washington said Allied ship losses to U-boats were lower in June than any other time in the last year and a half..

Later, London put out an announcement which said President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had agreed henceforth to make public details of the war on submarines only on the tenth of each month. A tight clamp on other announcements will be enforced, it was said.

Navy Planes Halt U-Boat, Destroyers Send It to Bottom

Enemy Raider Sunk in South Atlantic, Survivors Picked Up.

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) Navy planes diving on a submarine in the south Atlantic bombed and strafed the undersea boat, then left it crippled on the surface until destroyers could move in to complete the kill, the Navy reported today.

The sinking was accomplished "some time ago" the Navy said in telling of the attack by two patrol bombers commanded by Lieut. Howland S. Davis, Baltimore, Md., and Lieut. (j.g.) Harold C. Carey, Oceanview, Norfolk, Va.

Bombs Straddle U-Boat

Lieut. Davis' plane, the Navy related, dived on the submarine and depth bombs released by Eugene L. Richoz, pilot first class, Pensacola, Fla., straddled the U-boat.

As the plane pulled out of its dive the submarine began to surface again, and then Lieut. Carey's plane roared down, dropping its load of bombs. The explosion enveloped the submarine.

"Then," the Navy continued, "with the U-boat damaged and fully surfaced, the two planes executed a series of strafing runs. First one, then the other, would dive on the crippled U-boat with bow and waist guns blazing and tail guns getting in a burst a split second after each plane passed the sub.

"The U-boat, smoking heavily, moved forward slowly. It was down by the stern and its bow planes were jammed."

With the submarine disabled, the planes led two destroyers to the scene and five direct hits from guns on the Jouett commanded by Commander Jesse C. Sowell, Lancaster, S. C. and the Moffett under command of Commander Fondville L. Tedder, Shelby, N. C., sent the raider to the bottom.

Life rafts, the Navy said, were dropped from the patrol planes and survivors of the German crew were picked up by the destroyers.

WARSHIPS, PLANES ADDED TO U.S. NAVY

Many Landing Craft Built in First Half of 1943.

JUL 11 1943

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) More than 6,000 naval craft and 9,000 airplanes were added to the naval forces in the first half of 1943, the Navy reported today.

Landing craft accounted for substantially more than half of the added vessels. However, there was a greater tonnage of newly-completed combatant ships—battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines.

"For every three warships in the fleet on January 1, 1943," the Navy announced, "the Navy completed one additional fighting ship during the first half of the year."

The 9,000 planes did not represent a net increase in combat air strength of that amount, for the total included some trainers and utility planes. The Navy said some combat planes were transferred to the Army or lend-lease to foreign governments.

"In spite of these offsets," the Navy said, "for every dozen combat planes in the Navy's air arm on December 31, 1942, there now are more than a score."

It added that "70 per cent of the Navy planes produced in June were combat types—fighters or bombers."

Over all construction of naval craft increased 250 per cent over the same period of 1942. "These vessels," the Navy said, "had an aggregate cost of approximately $2,500,000,000. Their combined tonnage exceeded one million standard displacement tons."

DEFECTS REVEALED IN PLANE ENGINES BY SENATE PROBE

Curtiss-Wright Firm Accused of Negligence in Its Inspection Practices.

P-40 TO BE ABANDONED

Army Fighter Obsolete, Will Be Used Only for Training.

JUL 11 1943

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP) In a report charging delivery of defective airplane engines to the Army and Navy, the Senate's Truman committee today called the Curtiss-Wright corporation "guilty of gross negligence" about inspection practices designed for the safety of airmen.

Terming Curtiss-Wright's P-40 fighter "at best a second choice" plane among American and Allied Fliers, the report said it was "relatively obsolete" when American entered the war but that the Army continued to order P-40's. But now, it said:

Discontinues Production

"The Army has decided to discontinue all production of fighters except for replacements and trainers, and most of the dive bombers now produced at Curtiss-Wright and have it concentrate primarily on the C-46 (Commando) cargo plane, which has proved successful."

The committee said the defective engines came from the Lockland, Ohio, plant of the Wright Aeronautical corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Curtiss-Wright, and it said the responsibility for "not ascertaining the correcting" the situation rested with the parent firm.

Had Huge Contracts

Curtiss-Wright, the report set out, has received more war contracts ($4,717,500,000 from June 1, 1940 through March 1, 1943) than any other firm except General Motors.

Expressing disappointment at "the over-all performance of Curtiss-Wright," the report continued:

"It (the committee) believes that through the excessive ability and zeal of its salesmen and the extent and nature of the relations it had built up with the War and Navy departments through the years preceding the war, it received too many contracts with the result that its engineering departments and skilled personnel were spread too thin."

The committee had this recommendation next:

"That the Army and Navy officials interest themselves more earnestly in the procurement of quality material for our fighting services than in trying to bolster up the production at the expense of quality of plants that fail in this respect, regardless of the long past history of the parent corporation."

Protected Company

Touching on the mechanics of its investigation, the committee complained that some Army inspectors "too often seemed to be motivated by a desire to protect the company and its interests." It said these officials "apparently led by Lieut.-Col. Frank C. Gruelich" made "specific and material misrepresentations" and "misstatements under oath." Col Gruelich, it said, is chief inspector of the Army Air forces.

After recounting evidence which it said indicates that engines were built at the Lockland plant and sold to the government which were leaking gasoline, and charging forging and skipping of inspection operations, the Senate group which is investigating the nation's war program assured the public that "extensive steps" have been taken to obtain proper inspection and make certain that defective parts will not be placed in engines.

Plane Production Unequalled

The 30-page printed report dealt comprehensively with American war plane production which, on the whole, was described as "unequalled anywhere else in the world."

Predicting a vast increase over the output of 64,000 planes in the year ended June 30, the committee declared:

"Our enemies have not yet felt the full weight of our airpower . . . coming months will bring an ever-increasing flood of destruction."

Nevertheless the committee was critical of several aspects.

"Many tens of millions of dollars have been wasted," the report declared, in production of the Helldiver dive bomber for the Navy at Curtiss-Wright plants. To date, the committee said, Curtiss-Wright has not been able to build a single one which the Navy considers to be usable as a combat airplane.

Further, the report continued, the Army has virtually written off dive bombers as a modern weapon against land forces, but the Navy still believes they may have substantial uses and wants to buy many more of them. The committee said it is a fact that the present type dive bomber may soon become obsolete.

Other highlights of the report and recommendations:

The number of models should be reduced and production concentrated on proven models.

Censures Navy on Helicopter

The Navy "should be censured" for its "official indifference" to the helicopter, which the committee praised as a valuable new device with vast possibilities as a military and naval adjunct.

The B-26 Martin Marauder, two-engine Army bomber, has "unsafe" landing and takeoff characteristics and its production will be tapered off.

The Army is "not enthusiastic" about gliders, and the program has been cut back.

Fully half of the lengthy report was filled with allegations of shortcomings of Curtiss-Wright and its subsidiary at Lockland.

Senator Wallgren, who submitted the report on behalf of the committee, said in his statement:

"Although the committee is disappointed in the over-all performance of the Curtiss-Wright corporation and the difficulties which it has encountered with respect to the Helldiver and the 1820 engine at the Lockland, Ohio plant, the committee realized that Curtiss-Wright corporation has made signal contributions to the war effort.

"It has produced hundreds of millions of dollars of war goods, including engines, airplanes and propellers which have been of great value at the fighting front. Some of its products have been exceptionally good and its performance, taken as a whole, has been creditable."

The Truman committee began receiving complaints about the Lockland plant last January, but held back its investigation until both the company and the Army had a chance to look into the situation. Both said they found nothing irregular which needed correction.

Six Days of Hearings

But the Senate group, unsatisfied, held six days of hearings, here and at Dayton and Cincinnati, Ohio, taking 1,286 pages of sworn testimony.

"The committee found," the report said, "that the company was producing and causing the government to accept defective and substandard material. This was accomplished in the following ways:

"1. By the falsification of tests.

"2. By destruction of records.

"3. By improperly recording results of tests.

"4. By forging inspection reports.

"5. By failing to segregate substandard and defective material.

"6. By failing to promptly destroy or mutilate such defective and substandard material.

"7. By orally changing tolerances allowed on parts.

"8. By circumventing the salvage committee set up to pass on the usability of parts outside tolerances.

"9. By allowing production to override the inspection force, thereby destroying morale of both company and Army inspectors.

"10. By skipping inspection operations."

The plant, making air-cooled engines, for many months held an "A" inspection rating which meant that the company had the prime responsibility for inspecting the output. It employed 2,400 inspectors, while the Army had 70 over all three shifts.

"Most of the representatives of the Army inspection service who appeared before the committee," the report said, "displayed an undue regard for the well-being of the Wright Aeronautical corporation and too often seemed to be motivated by a desire to protect the company and its interests. It was found that the feeling was deliberately fostered among the air force inspectors that they must be cooperative with the company if they were to get along well in their jobs."

Grimly listing alleged defects of the material put out at Lockland, the Senate group declared that its evidence indicates, besides gasoline-leaking engines being sold to the government, that:

Unsafe Material Used

Unsafe material has been discovered in completed engines ready for shipment the company's own field representatives indicated that parts failed in a number of cases.

A "substantial number" of planes using engines made in the Lockland factory have had crashes in which engine failures were involved. However, the committee added that "this is also true of other engines, some of which have had higher accident records."

More than 25 per cent of the engines built at the plant failed in one or more major parts during three-hour test runs none has successfully completed a 150-hour quality test.

Spare parts were shipped without proper inspection.

Claiming it had received evidence that the air force inspection personnel at Lockland "abetted" the company in its practices, the committee asserted:

Citizens Chief Inspector

"These officials, apparently led by the chief inspector for the Army Air forces, Lt. Col. Frank C. Greulich, made specific and material misrepresentations to the committee, attempted to intimidate witnesses, introduced evidence prepared specially for the purpose, designed to discredit witnesses, made misstatements under oath, and otherwise attempted to impede the committee's investigation.

JUL 11 1943

"Colonel Greulich specifically told the committee that one report had been made orally, and not in writing, and that another report which he admitted was made in writing had never been seen by him. Both reports, in writing, had been seen by Colonel Greulich and bore very importantly on the conditions at the plant. Both referred to vigorous and detailed complaints which had been made by inspectors on duty there.

"Colonel Greulich specifically told the committee that the author of one of these reports, a Maj. Walter A. Ryan, would be found in Detroit at a time when Colonel Greulich well knew that Major Ryan was with him in Washington and immediately available to appear before the committee. Colonel Greulich intercepted the author of another of these reports when he came to see the committee at Cincinnati, and actually took the report from the person carrying it before it could be delivered to the committee."

Gave Data to Army

Following the committee's probe, it turned the testimony over to the Army so that corrective measures could be taken. In its later investigation, the Army reported "there is no question but that careless inspection existed throughout the plant."

Saying that corrective measures have been put into effect, the committee added:

"They should assure that the defects are caught before the lives of aircraft crews are imperilled. Engines in storage are being thoroughly checked before they are used. These were designed to provide additional guarantees of quality production.

In addition, the Army Air forces has undertaken to trace every engine which was shipped from the plant during the period in which the Army Air forces believes the unsatisfactory conditions existed. The location and examination of these engines should go far to minimize the possibility of defective engines getting into service."

The report called the Lockland plant "a glaring example of the concentration of contracts in large plants with inexperienced management trying to get out a large production on a fixed price contract and ruthlessly slashing quality to maintain production and schedules in the face of excessive production costs caused by poor management."

At one time, the committee said, the Army ordered the substitution of the Republic P-47 for the P-40 in the Curtiss-Wright plant at Buffalo, N. Y., "But after work in that direction had been commenced, ordered the continued production of Curtiss P-40's."

"The later decision may have been necessary, but the committee regrets the earlier decisions which concentrated so large a portion of our production on a plane which, although usable, is regarded by the Russian, English, and American forces as at best a second choice."

Corsair Production Record Criticized in Truman Report

Gruman Building New Fighter Plane for Navy Use.

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) The Truman committee lifted today some of the secrecy surrounding America's newest warplanes, and at the same time made a critical appraisal of older types, finding some excellent, some inferior. Generally the verdict was favorable.

In a 30-page report in aircraft, the committee discussed several planes heretofore in the hush-hush category, and told of revisions in others to improve their battle performance.

New Grumann Fighter

The committee unveiled a new Navy fighter "capable of exceptional performance" in the Grumann F6F, known as the Hellcat, and presumably the successor to the famed F4F, called the Wildcat.

In telling of the Hellcat, the committee mentioned the Vought-Sikorsky F4U (Corsair) which has been in action in the Pacific for some time. The committee called the Corsair "a fine naval fighter," but said Vought-Sikorsky had not made as good a production record as Grumann. (The Corsair now is built by Chance-Vought.)

New Army planes mentioned by the committee included:

The Douglas A-26, "an improved version" of the Douglas A-20 (Havoc), versatile enough to perform manifold tasks, including night fighting, low-level bombing, and strafing. The Havoc, as a night fighter, helped win the battle of Britain. With different equipment, the same plane becomes the Boston, and has been widely used for cross-channel bombing missions, and in many other parts of the world.

The Northrop P-61, a two-engine fighter, intended for use at night. The committee noted, however, that progress on this plane has been slow and it is far behind schedule.

While hinting of bigger and better bombers, the committee said that for reasons of security it could not refer in a public report to "matters with respect to four-engine bombers and improvements thereon."

This recalled a recent statement by Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production board, that a super-bomber is on the way. Mr. Wilson likewise gave no details.

The Truman group found no fault with the Boeing B-17 (Flying Fortress) and the Consolidated Liberator (B-24), the Army's present four-engine bombers, remarking that their performance "is well known."

Among the single-engine Army fighters, the committee called the North American P-51 (Mustang) superior to either the Curtiss-Wright P-40 (Warhawk) and the Bell Airacobra (P-39), but disclosed that an improved version of the Airacobra is under construction, while the Warhawk will be discontinued except for replacements and trainers.

The Republic P-47 (Thunderbolt), which recently has seen considerable action over Europe, was called "a good fighting plane, especially at high altitudes," and the report added:

"The Army was slow to recognize the value of this plane, because of the Army's primary interest in low-altitude planes, such as the P-40. After belated recognition was obtained, difficulties were experienced in perfecting it for production, which have now been overcome. It has been used in the past several months in England against German fighters, and the committee is informed its performance is good."

The two-engine Lockheed P-38 (Lightning), which has seen action on many fronts, won the committee's full approval: "It has proved to be a very fine plane."

Turning to two-engine bombers, the committee found the North American B-25 (Mitchell) "a valuable plane, and the rate of production is very substantial," and disclosed that the Army plans to taper off the production of its running mate in the medium bomber field, the Martin B-26 (Marauder) at Martin plants in Baltimore and Omaha in order to use facilities "to produce other types of planes."

The committee said the Marauder had accomplished many important missions, but "difficulties with the plane and the high cost of production and maintenance" led to the decision to taper off production. Because of "unusual difficulties" in landing and take-off, the committee said, it had been necessary to especially train pilots to fly the Marauder.

Engine Changed

Another disclosure was that the P-51 is being equipped with a Packard-built Rolls-Royce two-stage engine, and with this power plant is "a good medium-altitude pursuit plane." The Mustang, when equipped with an Allison engine, was called a good low-altitude reconnaissance fighter and bomber.

Complaining that greater emphasis had not been placed on the Mustang, the committee mentioned that it had been characterized by both the British and the Army Air forces "as the most aerodynamically perfect pursuit plane in existence."

"Although this plane was a more recent plane than the Curtiss P-40," the committee remarked, "it was in production in 1941. In the opinion of the committee, it would have been preferable to increase the production of Mustangs and decrease the production of Curtiss Warhawks."

The committee said the Russian, English and American forces regarded the P-40 "as at best a second choice," and deplored the fact that earlier Army decisions concentrated so large a portion of this country's production on the plane.

The committee reported the Douglas SBD (Dauntless) as the only Navy dive bomber that has been successfully used in large quantities, and disclosed that an improved version, the SB2D, is being built.

A new Vought-Sikorsky bomber, the TBV, will be built by Consolidated Vultee at Allentown, Pa.

COX COMMITTEE BARES ADMIRAL'S CRITICISM OF FLY

JUL 11 1943

Charge Made FCC Head Balked Wire-Tapping Before Pearl Harbor.

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) The special House committee investigating the Federal Communications commission made public today criticism from a naval officer of FCC Chairman James L. Fly for pre-war opposition to wiretapping and to banning Japanese language broadcasts in Hawaii—two moves, the officer added, which might have prevented the Pearl Harbor disaster.

The criticism was contained in a memorandum prepared by Rear Admiral Stanford C. Hooper, now retired, in May, 1942, while he was a naval intelligence executive. Hooper was setting forth reasons why he thought Fly should not be chairman of the Defense Communications board.

Placed in Record

The House committee's release said the memorandum was submitted to Secretary of the Navy Knox, but did not say whether or not Knox approved it. It was placed in the record by Eugene L. Garey, committee counsel, at the direction of Chairman Cox (D.-Ga.)

(Authority to tap communications wires in conducting defense investigations was asked by then Attorney General Robert H. Jackson in January, 1941, but was not approved by Congress until after Pearl Harbor.)

Hooper was one of a group of Army and Navy officers whom the committee proposed to call as witnesses. Both service departments notified the committee yesterday that President Roosevelt had ruled it would be against the "public interest" for the officers to testify, and hence they would not be permittted to appear.

How the committee came into possession of Hooper's memorandum was not disclosed.

"The functioning of the Defense Communications commission has been unsatisfactory" to the Navy department "to the extent that it believes the successful prosecution of the war is being jeopardized thereby," the memorandum read.

Fly issued a statement saying "the documents made public today are but irresponsible charges which the Cox committee has handed out in a bid for publicity."

Fly said he would plead guilty to opposition to extending monopolies and to regarding the C.I.O., along with the A.F.L., as patriotic, and added'

"As to the rest of the charges collected by the committee's staff in star chamber sessions, the public should know that they are utterly without foundation."

Lists 13 Charges

Hooper made 13 charges. Among them were:

The FCC "has refused to turn over its file of fingerprints and confidential information bearing on the loyalty of commercial communications companies to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, without restrictions which would render the work of the latter agency ineffective."

Fly "has frequently taken it upon himself to speak for national defense, thereby exposing his ignorance of the subject," and has "shown that his primary interest is in keeping the support of the C.I.O. communications union, which has constantly opposed our interests, and not national defense."

Fly has "devoted too much of the time and energy" of the FCC "to trust-busting, to the detriment of its other duties," and has opposed legislation permitting wiretapping "which would have permitted checking of the telephone to Japan before Pearl Harbor, and might have prevented the disaster."

Fly "opposed stopping Japanese language broadcasts in Hawaii, a factor which led to the disaster" of Pearl Harbor, and has "consistently opposed any move to assure the loyalty of personnel in communications."

Garey also made public a document entitled "a resume made by the War department" of Hooper's statements, asserting that "in a great number of examples Admiral Hooper is correct, and testimony under oath by any others connected with these matters can only substantiate his story."

LEHMAN'S DAUGHTER BEGINS WAC TRAINING

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) The War department announced today that Mrs. Hilda Lehman de Vadetzky, daughter of former Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York, has enrolled in the Women's Army corps and is receiving her basic training at the Fourth WAC training center at Fort Devens, Mass.

Her husband, Sgt. Boris de Vadetzky, is with the Signal corps in England, and her two brothers also are in the Army—Flight Officer Peter Lehman, who served with the Royal Canadian Air force before transferring to the U. S. Air force and is now stationed in England and Capt. John Lehman of the Armored force stationed at Camp Bowie, Tex.

Wind Blew Hard in Greenland

7 Army Men, Back After 9-Month Weather Detail, Endured 170-Mile Gales.

JUL 11 1943

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Back from nine months on a Greenland icecap where they maintained a weather station, seven Army men told today of Arctic storms so furious that they had to tie themselves together to avoid being swept away.

"At times the wind blew at 170 miles an hour," said Second Lieut. Randolph P. Eddy of Boston, commanding officer of the group. "For long stretches every few hours we had to go out and shovel snow away from the tents to keep from being buried alive."

The detachment had two chances to aid crews of planes forced down on Greenland. Once Lieut. Eddy said, his men fought their way through snow and ice to within eleven miles of a crashed plane, then were blocked by deep crevasses. The plane's crew subsequently was rescued by other flyers.

"The second effort," he reported, "proved useless because the entire crew had been killed."

Many Dogs Perished.

All but seven of the thirty sled dogs placed on the ice cap with the weather crew were lost or frozen to death during the lonely assignment in which the only entertainment was provided by War Department radio broadcasts.

"Word came, finally," Lieut. Eddy continued, "that our entire outfit was to be evacuated by plane. When the plane finally arrived the ice was very thick and we advised the pilot not to try to land in the water.

"That seemed funny—after nine months—refusing to leave the cap. The pilot merely replied: 'Keep your shirts on. I'm coming down.' He made it okay."

Members of the detachment, praised by Lieut. Eddy for their discipline and morale, included Sergt. Simon Karatas of 1040 Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, and Staff Sergt. Charles Howes of Stamford.

RELIEF PLANS MADE FOR AIDING EUROPE

Lehman Says Freed Territories Will Be Given Speedy Assistance.

WASHINGTON, July 10 — (AP) Director Herbert H. Lehman said today the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation will be ready to rush seed and agricultural machinery to Europe, as well as emergency relief supplies, when the conquered lands are freed from the Nazis.

In an address over CBS, Mr. Lehman said a relief program without a simultaneous program for economic rehabilitation would be "comparable to attempting to bail out a leaky boat without plugging the leak."

"Almost simultaneously with the first emergency measures," he continued, "we must assist the people in the liberated areas to revive their agriculture and thus give these people an opportunity to help themselves."

Rehabilitation of agriculture in Tunisia and Algeria, he said, has proceeded so well that by fall they may have a surplus of cereals and vegetable oils.

THE FOUR 'M'S' OF MILITARISM STILL WIN WARS

JUL 11 1943

Manpower, Machinepower, Mobility and Morale Are All Needed.

By PAUL FIELD

Associated Press of Great Britain

NEW YORK, July 10 — (AP) You've known Joe Doakes only ten minutes. But Joe looks intelligent—the sort who will undestand your master plan to force the Brenner Pass, take Germany from the rear and win the war in three months.

So you spread your newspaper map over the bar . . . . .

Joe's eyes lightup with an Ancient Mariner gleam.He inches forward, impales Europe with an eager forefinger. "Look, friend," he croaks, "you want to know how I'd end this war in a hurry?. . . . the strategy is simple."

Joe's right, of course.

Strategy is, was and always will be, simple. To outflank, infiltrate or encircle the enemy is as good strategy today as it was ten thousand years ago when men first began turning their talents toward devising bigger and better methods of extermination.

It's when they come to tactics, the art of maneuvering men and machines to achieve strategy, that most armchair Eisenhowers come a cropper.

But tactics are easy—on paper.

The Four M's All Powerful

No matter when, where or how men fight, four basic military considerations control their tactics on the battlefield. By a convenient alliterative arrangement these four considerations might be called the "Four m's"—manpower, machinepower, mobility and morale. Simple, in the same way that higher mathematics are merely a matter of numbers.

Ever since Cal, the caveman, using a drum for his time signal and a conch horn as his microphone, first began to commentate the local news, so called "experts" have tried to fit the four m's into a dogmatic, tactical equation.

It can't be done. No two of them are ever alike in quantity, quality or in relation to the time factor.

Manpower, for example, may mean any force from a squad to an army corps—and at a critical turn in a battle a squad at the right time and in the right place may mean more than an army corps. Machinepower can mean any engine of war from a Bolo knife to a bank of railway guns; mobility, any speed from ten mile a day gait of the ancient roman centurion to the ground-eating pace of a modern armored unit; morale, any state of mind from the defiance of an Ethiopian shaking his fist at a strafing Italian aviator to the irresistible will - to - win of an eighth army.

Tactics, in many respects, can be compared to bridge.

A bridge deck is made up of four basic suits,—(the four m's)—each varying in power from the deuce to the ace. But from these basic suits and powers you can form any number of winning—or losing—combinations, depending upon how well or how poorly you play your hand.

The average armchair strategist is inclined to overlook this fact.

47,000 Defeated a Million

At Arbela in 331 B.C. the Persian King, Darius, seemed to hold all the tactical trumps. His army numbered almost a million; he had elephants, war chariots and the brute courage that passes for morale in closely packed ranks. To oppose this army, Alexander lined up a boy scout troop of 47,000.

But Alexander's strength lay in one vital suit—mobility—and he knew it.

When Darius' elephants advanced, Alexander's agile soldiers merely stepped aside and prodded them in the rear with their spears. The unhappy beasts quickly decided that this was no quarrel of theirs. They fled. Alexander repeated the dose for the chariots. The horses proved to be equally unreceptive pincushions.

With elephants and chariots disposed of, Alexander hurled the full power of his fast stepping phalanx against the slow-weapon-burdened Persian foot. The Persians broke and ran.

After Arbela, manpower never would be so vital. The tacticians of the time began to concentrate on speedy, lightly armored foot and horse that could hit and run and live to fight another day.

As the years rolled on, other ...ical M's were to influence the ...cter of warfare. But change ... slowly. In fact, 1600 years ... pass before machinepower ...ed a decisive role in battle.

Crecy in 1346, the French out... ...ard, th... nglish ... suit — ... of the longbow, a new, easily adjusted, quickly reloaded weapon that would penetrate four inches of oak or pierce a knight's armor. The French held to the traditional crossbow, much slower, clumsier and cantankerous.

When the battle opened the French crossbowmen discovered that the English could "fire" three times as many arrows as they; when the French knights charged across the plain, the whooping English longbowmen picked them off like sitting ducks.

Crecy proved the curtain-raiser for a new age of tactics.

Yank Troops Girdle Globe

NEW YORK, July 10 — (AP) From east to west, and from north to south, the world has become a giant fighting front for American troops. There are more than forty announced localities in which the 2,000,000 troops now abroad have been operating, in addition to Sicily.

JUL 11 1943

They are:

Aden	Brazil	Canada
Alaska	Liberia	Iceland
Aleutians	Libya	Newfoundland
Australia	Tunisia	Greenland
New Zealand	Algeria	England
New Guinea	Morocco	Scotland
New Caledonia	Egypt	Ireland (Northern)
Solomons	Eritrea	Bahamas
Fiji Islands	Iraq	Bermuda
Hawaiian Islands	Iran	Trinidad

	Capetown, So. Africa	Guatemala

ATLANTA, July 10 — (AP) Private Blaine D. Hall probably is the only parachutist ever to plummet 700 feet from an airplane under an unopened 'chute, hit the ground, and live.

Authenticated records just released by Army officials reveal that Hall, participating in a routine jump at Fort Benning, Ga., last October, left the plane at an altitude of 700 feet. When his main chute failed to open he pulled the emergency chute ripcord but that chute also failed to function and he hit the ground at a speed computed at 140 miles per hour.

When a crash ambulance arrived less than a minute later, Hall was still conscious. Physicians found he had numerous fractures, the most serious a broken back.

After several months in a cast, he recently was dismissed from the hospital and Major M. F. Tackoff, his commanding officer, says Hall is doing the same kind of work as any other man might do at the Fourth Service command motor pool here.

Hall says he wants to rejoin the paratroopers if they'll let him, "just so I can turn in that old chute for a new one."

Big Convoy Leaves Gibraltar

The Berlin radio said in a dispatch from Algeçiras, Spain, yesterday that a convoy of 30 merchant ships left Gibraltar during the day in the direction of the Mediterranean. There were eighteen 10,000-ton British vessels and eight American and four Netherland ships of 5,000 tons each, the broadcast said, adding that the ships were fully laden. Four American destroyers left in the same direction shortly afterward. The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press in New York.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID AN OCEAN SWELL WAS ENCOUNTERED OFF THE SICILIAN COAST, BUT IT DECLARED FLATLY THAT THE INITIAL PHASE OF THE HUGE OPERATION WAS A SUCCESS.

COL.SAMUEL J.GORMLEY, JR., (112 ALHAMBRA RD) OF ALHAMBRA, CALIF., ONE OF THE AERIAL GROUP COMMANDERS SAID:

"THE COASTAL WATERS OF SICILY WERE BLACK WITH INVASION BARGES AND SUPPORTING NAVAL CRAFT, AND ALL WATER BETWEEN SICILY AND TUNISIA WAS FULL OF CRAFT SHUTTLING BACK AND FORTH LIKE SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS."

JUL 11 1943

ANOTHER GROUP COMMANDER, LIEUT.COL.JOSEPH THOMAS (512 MCKINLEY AVE) OF POMONA, CALIF., DECLARED THAT "EVERYTHING SEEMED TO BE COORDINATED AND GOING ALONG SMOOTHLY OVER THERE."

IT WAS HIS 50TH COMBAT MISSION.

JUL 11 1943

DESCRIBING THE ACTUAL LANDINGS, ONE PILOT, ROSCOE JOHNSON, (707 NORTH PINE ST) OF CHICAGO, SAID:

"IT LOOKED LIKE A MILLION FLIES CRAWLING UP THE BEACHES. IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT."

SECOND LIEUT.DONALD JUSTIER, OF ST.ALBANS, N.Y., ANOTHER AIRMAN, SAID:

JUL 11 1943

"THE SHIPS CAME ROLLING UP IN WAVES AND OUR BOYS WERE SIMPLY POURING OVER THE BEACHES. IT'S HARD TO SEE HOW THE ITALIANS COULD DO MUCH FIGHTING WITH SO MANY PLANES POUNDING THEM FROM ABOVE."

THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN ENEMY BETWEEN THEM REPORTED THAT THE ALLIES LANDED BOTH IN SOUTHEASTERN AND EASTERN SICILY, THUS INDICATI THAT AT LEAST THREE MAIN AREAS HAD BEEN ATTACKED SINCE THE ALLIED-CONTROLLED ALGIERS RADIO ANNOUNCED THAT ALLIED TROOPS HAD GONE IN ON THE ROCKY WESTERN TIP OF THE ISLAND NEAR THE LONG-BOMBED PORT OF TRAPANI.

(UNOFFICIAL ESTIMATES IN ALLIED QUARTERS OF GERMAN AND ITALIAN STRENGTH ON SICILY RAN UP TO 400,000 MEN; GERMAN PROPAGANDA HAS ASSERTED THAT THE ALLIES HAD PERHAPS 450,000 MEN IN THE THEATER BEARING ON SICILY, ALONG WITH 4,000 PLANES.)

ALL WAS COORDINATED, ALL WORKED TOGETHER IN THE STUPENDOUS ENTERPRISE. AS THE NAVAL JOB WAS DIVIDED, THE BRITISH CARRYING THE MAIN BURDEN OF TRANSPORTING TROOPS AND HOLDING THE SUPPLY LINES BUT AMERICAN MEN OF WAR TAKING THEIR ASSIGNED PART, SO EISENHOWER WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE CALLED UPON BOTH BRITISH AND AMERICAN VETERANS OF THE TUNISIAN VICTORY TO SHARE IN THE INVADING FORCE.

THE PRESENCE OF CANADIANS I[illegible] FORCE PRE[illegible]Y SURPRISED THE AXIS, FOR THEY HAD BEEN IN ENGLAND.

(THE AMERICAN PARTICIPANTS IN TUNISIA WERE THE 1ST, 9TH AND 34TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS AND THE 1ST ARMORED DIVISION; THE BRITISH WERE THE FIRST AND EIGHTH ARMIES. THE SUPPOSITION IN LONDON WAS THAT THE BRITISH EIGHTH WAS NOT NOW ENGAGED NOR WAS THE BULK OF THE U.S FIFTH ARMY.)

JUL 11 1943

GENERAL EISENHOWER'S FIRST COMMUNIQUE TODAY MADE NO DIRECT MENTION OF THE GREAT ASSAULT, TELLING INSTEAD OF THE CRUSHING ATTACKS ON SICILIAN AIRDROMES AND OTHER POINTS IN THE ISLAND'S ARC OF DEFENSE, ONE OF WHICH BASHED WHAT WAS CALLED BY THE COOPERATING CAIRO HEADQUARTERS THE VERY "NERVE CENTER OF AXIS SICILIAN DEFENSE FORCES" AT TAORMINA. THERE, AT A POINT ON THE MESSINA STRAIT SEPARATING SICILY FROM THE ITALIAN MAINLAND IN A BAND OF WATER IN SOME PLACES NO MORE THAN TWO MILES WIDE, AXIS MILITARY HEADQUARTERS WAS BLASTED TO SPLINTERS AND THE WHOLE OF THE TARGET AREA TORN APART AND LEFT IN FIRE AND SMOKE.

IN THE LAST SERIES OF AIR ATTACKS BEFORE THE ULTIMATE BLOW FELL UPON SICILY ITSELF, 20 AXIS PLANES WENT DOWN IN FLAMES WHILE 11 ALLIE CRAFT WERE BEING LOST.

TONIGHT, EXQUISITE SUSPENSE, AND THE SENSE THAT DESTINY WAS UNFOLDING, HUNG OVER THIS HEADQUARTERS. GENERAL EISENHOWER, WHO WAS WELL ALONG IN HIS PLANS EVEN BEFORE THE COMPLETION OF HIS TUNISIAN TRIUMPH ON JUNE 10, HAD REALIZED THAT AMPHIBIOUS ASSAULT WAS ONE OF TH HARD, TREMENDOUS GAMBLES OF ALL WARFARE--BUT IN THIS CASE THE WEATHER WAS ALLIED WITH HIM.

JUL 11 1943

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5883

HIS DISCLOSURE THAT THE GREAT ATTEMPT HAD BEGUN WAS ISSUED BY HIS HEADQUARTERS IN THIS SPARE, SHARP AND SINGLE SENTENCE:

"ALLIED FORCES BEGAN LANDING OPERATIONS."

JUL 11 1943

THIS WAS "D" DAY--THE DAY THAT EISENHOWER HAD PROMISED PRIVATELY AS EARLY AS THE MIDDLE OF JUNE--WHEN, IN ONE OF THE GREATEST CONFIDENCES EVER ENTRUSTED TO REPORTERS, HE DECLARED CALMLY THAT HE WAS GOING AFTER SICILY EVEN THOUGH HE MIGHT BE "RIDING FOR A BLOODY NOSE."

(WHETHER "D" DAY MIGHT INVOLVE SOMETHING MORE THAN SICILY, GREAT AS IS THAT CAMPAIGN, WAS NOT YET KNOWN. DELAYED DISPATCHES FROM NEUTRAL TURKEY, WRITTEN ON FRIDAY, TOLD OF PERSISTENT REPORTS THAT THE WEEK-END MIGHT SEE ACTIVITY IN THE BALKANS AS WELL.)

AS IN THE CASE OF PANTELLERIA--A MUCH SMALLER AND MUCH SOFTER TARGET, OF COURSE, AND ONE THAT FELL BEFORE A LANDING WAS NECESSARY--AN ALLIED AIR OFFENSIVE ALWAYS VAST AND RISING AT LAST TO A FEARFUL POWER OPENED THE LAST GREAT DRAMA OF THE STRUGGLE FOR SICILY.

THESE WERE SATURATION RAIDS IN THE FULL MEANING OF THAT TERM--RAIDS THAT BEGAN IN EARNEST SHORTLY AFTER PANTELLERIA HAD FALLEN AND WENT ON AND ON IN VOLUME AND IN SCOPE UNTIL, DURING THE LAST WEEK, THERE WAS SCARCELY AN HOUR THAT ALLIED BOMBERS OR FIGHTERS WERE NOT SNARLING SOMEWHERE OVER THAT TENSE AND SHAKING ISLAND.

YESTERDAY AND LAST NIGHT THE END OF THE AIR PHASE MERGED THUNDEROUSLY WITH THE BEGINNING OF THE LAST PHASE--THE HOUR OF THE FRONTAL ASSAULT WITH THE GUN AND THE RAW BAYONET IN THE HANDS OF CHARGING MEN.

JUL 11 1943

WHILE LIBERATOR BOMBERS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST COMMAND BASED ON CAIRO WERE POURING IT DOWN ON TAORMINA AND TEARING APART ONE OF THEIR FAVORITE TARGETS, THE COMISO AIRDROME IN SICILY, PLANES OF THE NORTHWEST AFRICA AIR FORCE WERE SWEEPING WIDELY OVER OTHER CENTERS OF ENEMY POWER.

JUL 11 1943

THE ITALIANS AND GERMANS, PERHAPS SENSING WHAT WAS COMING, OFFERED WHAT GENERAL EISENHOWER'S COMMUNIQUE CALLED RESISTANCE "ON A SLIGHTLY INCREASED SCALE," BUT NEVERTHELESS A GOOD MANY OF THEIR PLANES BURST APART UNDER EXPLODING ALLIED BOMBS. UNABLE EVEN TO GET OFF THE GROUND THESE AND ALL THE OTHER SUCCESSFUL ALLIED AIR ATTACKS, HOWEVER, GREAT AND DAMAGING AS THEY WERE, WERE NOT BELIEVED HERE TO HAVE MATERIALLY REDUCED THE FIGHTING EFFICIENCY OF THE NAZI AND FASCIST DIVISIONS STANDING NOW AGAINST A STORM FOR THE FIRST TIME BLOWING DIRECTLY AT THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE.

GENERAL EISENHOWER, ALTHOUGH INFORMATION FROM HIS HEADQUARTERS WAS CHARACTERISTICALLY BRIEF AND RESTRAINED, INDICATED HIS CALM CONFIDENCE IN THE ISSUE IN A MESSAGE SENT TO ALL THE FRENCH OF THE WORLD.

"THE UNITED NATIONS ARMED FORCES," HE ADDRESSED THEM, "HAVE TODAY LAUNCHED AN OFFENSIVE AGAINST SICILY.

"IT IS THE FIRST STAGE OF THE LIBERATION OF THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT.

"I CALL ON THE FRENCH PEOPLE TO REMAIN CALM AND NOT TO ALLOW THEMSELVES TO BE DECEIVED BY FALSE RUMORS WHICH THE ENEMY MIGHT CIRCULATE.

"THE ALLIED RADIO WILL KEEP YOU INFORMED ON MILITARY DEVELOPMENTS.

"I COUNT ON YOUR SANGFROID AND ON YOUR SENSE OF DISCIPLINE. DO NOT BE RASH, FOR THE ENEMY IS WATCHING.

"KEEP ON LISTENING TO THE ALLIED RADIO AND NEVER HEED RUMORS.

JUL 11 1943

VERIFY CAREFULLY THE NEWS YOU RECEIVE. BY REMAINING CALM AND BY NOT EXPOSING YOURSELVES TO REPRISALS THROUGH PREMATURE ACTION YOU WILL BE HELPING US EFFECTIVELY.

JUL 11 1943

"WHEN THE HOUR OF ACTION STRIKES WE WILL LET YOU KNOW. UNTIL THEN HELP US BY FOLLOWING OUR INSTRUCTIONS. THAT IS TO SAY, BE CALM, KEEP CALM, CONSERVE YOUR STRENGTH.

"WE REPEAT: WHEN THE HOUR OF ACTION STRIKES WE'LL LET YOU KNOW."

CAPT.JOSEPH A.BLOOMER OF LAMBERTVILLE, N.J., AND FLIGHT OFFICER OTIS PREVATT OF PALATKA, FLA., EACH SHOT DOWN ONE MESSERSCHMITT AS THE WARHAWKS EMERGED UNSCATHED.

THE OTHER TWO PILOTS WHO SAFELY FOUGHT THROUGH THE MELEE WERE LIEUT.LEONARD R.GEIER OF WESTMORELAND CITY, PA., AND LIEUT.RONALD G. DOVE OF 6351 MARCHAND ST., PITTSBURGH, PA, STILL ANOTHER FORMATION OF WARHAWKS WHICH WAS ABOUT TO COVER DIRECTLY A LANDING POINT SPOTTED A JUNKERS-88 TRYING TO STRAFE TROOPS. CAPT.L.L.KRAUSE OF BURTON, OHIO, QUICKLY DESTROYED IT.

LIEUT.-COL.ROBERT C.PAUL OF LAKE CITY, FLA., GROUP COMMANDER OF THE A-36 FIGHTER-BOMBERS, SAID HE SAW BARGES RUN AGROUND AND AMERICAN TROOPS OVER THE STERN DEPLOYING READY FOR ACTION. APPARENTLY THEY MET NO ENEMY INFANTRY AT THAT POINT, HOWEVER, HE SAID. THERE WERE NO SIGNS OF AXIS GUNFIRE IN THE VICINITY. "THEN, AFTER A BRIEF PAUSE, THEY MOVED ON AHEAD," HE CONCLUDED.

JUL 11 1943

THE FLIERS SAW SCORES OF LANDING CRAFT ALONG THE BEACH AND OTHERS COMING IN. STILL MORE WERE LYING OFF SHORE COVERED BY WARSHIPS. OTHER VESSELS WERE SEEN HEADED BACK TOWARD AFRICA. THEIR JOB WAS APPARENTLY DONE.

JUL 11 1943

THE ONLY GUNFIRE SEEN ORIGINATED FIVE MILES AWAY FROM WHERE TROOPS AND ARTILLERY WERE DISEMBARKING.

MAJ.JAMES H.DEERING OF 2010 NORTH VENTURA AVE., VENTURA, CALIF., RETURNING FROM A RECONNAISSANCE FLIGHT, SAID, "I WAS OVER A STRIP OF THE BEACH AT 6 A.M.AND ALTHOUGH 15 OR 20 BARGES WERE COMING IN THERE WAS ABSOLUTELY NO ACTIVITY ON THE ROADS LEADING TO THE SECTOR. THE WARSHIPS DIDN'T SEEM TO BE DOING ANYTHING. IT APPEARED TO BE A SWELL AIR COVER BECAUSE SPITFIRES CAME DOWN AND JUMPED ME THE MINUTE I GOT NEAR. THE LACK OF RESISTANCE AMAZES ME. YOU'D EXPECT TO SEE SOME SIGN OF FIGHT BUT TH[illegible] WASN'T ANY."

LONDON, JULY 10-(AP)-ALLIED LANDINGS ON SICILY WERE ASSURED OF SUCCESS ONLY A FEW SHORT HOURS AFTER THE DAWN ATTACK TODAY WHICH SENT ASSAULT FORCES ONTO BEACHES STRETCHING FOR MORE THAN 100 MILES, ACCORDING TO AN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST TONIGHT BY THE ALGIERS RADIO.

[illegible] FIRST LEAD INVASION [illegible]

A TERSE ANNOUNCEMENT FROM GENERAL EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS SAID THE LANDING OPERATIONS BEGAN "EARLY THIS MORNING" (NORTH AFRICAN TIME) THE ATTACK WAS LAUNCHED BY MOONLIGHT.

(PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WAS NOTIFIED OF THE LANDINGS AT A WHITE HOUSE DINNER FOR GEN. HENRI [illegible] ABOUT 9 P.M. EASTERN WAR TIME LAST NIGHT (3 A.M. NORTH AFRICAN TIME), IT WAS DISCLOSED IN WASHINGTON. THUS THE ACTUAL INVASION BEGAN SOMETIME BETWEEN MIDNIGHT AND 3 A.M.

JUL 11 1943

LONDON--FRI.

ENEMY OPPOSITION WAS COUNTERED BY 6 A.M., THE BROADCAST SAID, UNDER "HEAVY FIRE OF A COVERING FORCE OF CRUISERS, DESTROYERS AND GUNBOATS AND OTHER NAVAL UNITS" AND "THE SUCCESS OF OUR LANDING WAS ALREADY ASSURED."

"BY ABOUT 7:30 A.M. OUR TROOPS WERE ADVANCING AND OUR ARTILLERY WAS BEING PUT ASHORE.

JUL 11 1943

"FIGHTING CONTINUES AND MORE TROOPS WITH THEIR GUNS, VEHICLES, STORES AND EQUIPMENT ARE BEING LANDED BY THE ROYAL AND U.S. NAVIES

"UNITS FROM THE ROYAL, INDIAN, DUTCH, POLISH AND GREEK NAVIES ARE PARTICIPATING IN THE NAVAL OPERATIONS."

BY 7:30 A.M. THE COMBINED AMERICAN-BRITISH-CANADIAN FORCES "WERE ADVANCING AND OUR ARTILLERY WAS BEING PUT ASHORE," THE COMMUNIQUE, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SAID.

IT WAS ALSO DISCLOSED FOR THE FIRST TIME THAT UNITS FROM THE ROYAL INDIAN AND DUTCH, POLISH AND GREEK NAVIES WERE PARTICIPATING IN THE NAVAL OPERATIONS.

JUL 11 1943

FIGHTING CONTINUES AND MORE TROOPS WITH EQUIPMENT ARE BEING LANDED, THE ANNOUNCEMENT ADDED.

WHILE THE ASSAULT WENT FORWARD, HEAVY, MEDIUM AND FIGHTER BOMBERS ATTACKED ROADS AND COMMUNICATIONS THROUGHOUT SICILY AS WELL AS BOMBARDING "THE FEW AERDROMES STILL BEING USED BY THE ENEMY."

THE TEXT OF THE COMMUNIQUE:

"IN SPITE OF UNFAVORABLE WEATHER AND A SWELL OFF THE SOXXX OFF THE SICILIAN CHANNEL, THE ALLIED LANDING IN SICILY STARTED BEFORE DAWN AND IS PROCEEDING ACCORDING TO PLAN.

JUL 11 1943

"MANY BEACHES AND LANDING PLACES USED FOR THESE FIRST ASSAULTS EXTENDED OVER ABOUT 100 MILES.

"BY ABOUT 6 A.M. THIS MORNING, UNDER HEAVY FIRE FROM A COVERING FORCE OF CRUISERS, DESTROYERS, GUNBOATS AND OTHER NAVAL UNITS, ENEMY OPPOSITION HAD BEEN COUNTERED AND THE SUCCESS OF OUR LANDING WAS ALREADY ASSURED.

THE ALGIERS RADIO ALSO BROADCAST THIS AIR FORCES COMMUNIQUE ISSUE BY ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA:

"IN ADDITION TO ATTACKING THE FEW AIRDROMES STILL BEING USED BY THE ENEMY, OUR HEAVY, MEDIUM AND FIGHTER BOMBERS ATTACKED ROADS AND COMMUNICATIONS THROUGHOUT SICILY.

"AIR OPERATIONS ARE PROCEEDING ACCORDING TO PLAN."

LONDON JULY 11-(SUNDAY)-(AP)-THE ALGIERS RADIO SAID EA[illegible] TODAY IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS THAT GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS HAD REACHED SICILY A SHORT TIME AGO AND THE ANNOUNCER DECLARED THAT THEIR PRESENCE CAN NOT BE TAKEN LIGHTLY.

THE BROADCA[illegible] ELABORATE UPON THIS STATEMENT.

IN GENERAL, HE DID [illegible] DECLARED, THE ALLIED INVASION OPERATIONS IN CILY ARE PROGRESSING FAVORABLY.

BY JOSEPH MORTON

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER, JULY 10-(AP)-MONTHS OF PATIENT AND SYSTEMATIC SOFTENING UP FROM THE AIR OPENED THE WAY FOR THE INVASION OF SICILY.

JUL 11 1943

STARTING AS EARLY AS LAST DECEMBER, LONG BEFORE THE END OF THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN WAS IN SIGHT, ALLIED BOMBERS HAVE BEEN BATTERING CAREFULLY CHOSEN OBJECTIVES WITH A TEMPO STEADILY INCREASING.

AIR SQUADRONS BASED IN NORTHWEST AFRICA, PANTELLERIA, MALTA, LIBYA AND THE MIDDLE EAST ALL HAD A PART IN THE POUNDING OF ITALY'S MOST IMPORTANT ISLAND BASTION.

THE FINAL PUSH BEGAN JULY 3. TWELVE DIFFERENT TYPES OF PLANES--LIBERATORS, FLYING FORTRESSES, MITCHELLS, MARAUDERS, BOSTONS, BALTIMORES, WELLINGTONS, BEAUFIGHTERS, A-36 FIGHTER-BOMBERS, SPITFIRES LIGHTNINGS AND WARHAWKS--ATTACKED THAT DAY, STRIKING AXIS AIR FORCE INSTALLATIONS ON SOUTHERN AND EASTERN PARTS OF THE ISLAND.

FIGHTERS AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS, IN ADDITION, RANGED FAR AND WIDE TO BOMB AND SHOOT UP RADIO STATIONS, BARRACKS, BRIDGES, TUNNELS, DEPOTS, POWER STATIONS, LOCOMOTIVES AND OTHER OBJECTIVES.

AIR FIELDS WERE COVERED WITH FRAGMENTATION BOMBS, EQUALLY EFFECTIVE AGAINST PARKED AIRCRAFT AND PERSONNEL. THEN DEMOLITION BOMBS, INCLUDING TWO-TON BLOCKBUSTERS, WERE LOOSED AGAINST BUILDINGS AND OTHER SOLID TARGETS.

MORE THAN TWO DOZEN SPECIFIC AREAS OF SICILY HAVE BEEN BOMBED.

THE FIRST TARGETS WERE THE MAJOR PORTS.

JUL 11 1943

THE BOMBARDMENT OF PALERMO, TRAPANI AND MARSALA, IN THE WESTERN SECTION OF SICILY, GREATLY CURTAILED THEIR USEFULNESS IN SUPPLYING TROOPS THEN FIGHTING IN TUNISIA.

CATANIA'S SHIPPING INSTALLATIONS ALSO WERE HIT HARD IN THE FIRST STAGES AND TRAIN FERRIES CROSSING MESSINA STRAIT FROM THE MAINLAND WERE PARTICULARLY SOUGHT OUT FOR ALLIED ATTACKS.

EVERY AIRPORT ON THE WESTERN HALF OF THE ISLAND RECEIVED REPEATED VISITS FROM BOMBERS, FORCING THE SHIFTING OF ENEMY PLANES TO OTHER BASES. SOME WESTERN FIELDS WERE RENDERED PARTIALLY UNSERVICEABLE. OPERATIONS AT OTHERS WERE CUT DOWN.

JUL 11 1943

AIR SUPERIORITY WAS HELD BY THE RAIDERS FROM THE BEGINNING, WITH THE RESULT THAT THE AXIS SUFFERED HEAVY LOSSES OF FIGHTER PLANES.

UNOFFICIAL OBSERVERS, ON THE BASIS OF VERIFIED RESULTS OF THE SPECIFIED CAMPAIGN, SAID THAT THE ENEMY MIGHT HAVE LOST MANY HUNDREDS OF AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND IN SICILY.

MORE THAN 30 WERE SHOT DOWN IN COMBAT THIS WEEK.

BY RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JULY 10-(AP)-VETERAN MILITARY OBSERVERS RECEIVED THE NEWS OF THE SUCCESSFUL ALLIED LANDINGS IN SICILY WITH UNCONCEALED SATISFACTION TONIGHT, BUT THEY SAID "IT'S MUCH TOO EARLY FOR UNLIMITED OPTIMISM."

DECISIVE DAYS ARE STILL AHEAD, THEY SAID.

THESE OBSERVERS CITED ONE OF WAR'S OLD AXIOMS---THE CRITICAL MOMENT APPEARS WHEN THE ENEMY COUNTERATTACKS. UNTIL A LATE HOUR TONIGHT, NEARLY 24 HOURS AFTER THE FIRST AMERICAN, BRITISH AND CANADIAN FOOT SOLDIERS SET FOOT ON SICILY, THERE WAS NO NEWS OF AN AXIS COUNTERASSAULT.

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5887

IT IS EXPECTED AT ALMOST ANY MOMENT, HOWEVER.

WHEN IT DEVELOPS, AT LEAST ONE OR MORE SECTORS WHERE THE INVASION FORCES ARE ATTEMPTING TO CONSOLIDATE BRIDGEHEADS WILL GET A SUPREME TEST. THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS WILL LAUNCH THEIR ASSAULT FROM FIXED AND PREPARED POSITIONS, WITH LINES OF COMMUNICATION WELL PROTECTED IF NOT COMPLETELY ASSURED. THEY ALSO WILL HAVE AN ADVANTAGE IN A FIRST-HAND KNOWLEDGE OF THE TERRAIN AND MAY IN SOME AREAS ENJOY NUMERICAL SUPERIORITY.

JUL 11 1943

ALLIED COMMENTATORS SAID THAT THE FIRST THREE DAYS, RATHER THAN THE FIRST FEW HOURS, ARE LIKELY TO TIP THE SCALES ONE WAY OR ANOTHER.

NEVERTHELESS THE OFFICERS THEMSELVES HAD DIFFICULTY IN RESTRAINING THEIR EXCITEMENT WHEN INFORMATION ARRIVED INDICATING THAT THE INVADERS HAD PUNCHED THEIR WAY ACROSS THE BEACHES WITHOUT BEING MATERIALLY DELAYED AT ANY ONE OF THE MANY DESIGNATED POINTS.

AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS ALWAYS ARE DANGEROUS. MODERN WARFARE SHOWS FEW INSTANCES OF LARGE-SCALE ONES THAT SUCCEEDED. THAT INCLUDES EVEN THE JAPANESE, WHO MADE THE MAJORITY OF THEIRS AGAINST WEAK SHORE OPPOSITION OR NONE AT ALL.

SO MILITARY QUARTERS WERE OPENLY EXCITED TONIGHT. BUT THEY SAID THE MOMENT OF CRISIS ON SICILY IS STILL AHEAD.

THE ALLIED COMMUNIQUE INDICATES THE OPERATION WAS UNDERTAKEN BY LAND, NAVAL AND AIR FORCES WORKING IN THE CLOSEST COLLABORATION. AN AMPHIBIOUS LANDING, ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT TASKS KNOWN IN WARFARE, DEMANDS MONTHS OF SCRUPULOUSLY DETAILED PREPARATION AND ARTICULATION.

SICILY LIES LIKE A GIGANTIC TRIANGULAR ROCK AT THE FOOT OF ITALY. IT DOMINATES THE CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN. IN ENEMY HANDS, IT IS AN OBSTACLE TO BOTH VERTICAL AND HORIZONTAL ROUTES OF THE MEDITERRANEAN. THE SICILIAN COASTLINE OF ROUGHLY 400 MILES IS PARTLY BEACH AND PARTLY RUGGED CLIFFS WITH MANY BAYS AND INDENTATIONS.

THE ATTACK ON SICILY IS A LOGICAL, ESSENTIAL STEP IN THE MASTER PLAN OF THE ALLIES TO BEAT GERMANY FIRST. THIS OPERATION IS THE BEGINNING OF THE UPWARD THRUST TOWARD THE HEART OF THE AXIS.

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, JULY 10-(AP)-IT IS SEEN AT GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS HERE THAT TWO POINTS NEED PROPER EMPHASIS FOR A FULL UNDERSTANDING OF THE BATTLE OF SICILY JUST OPENED SO AUSPICIOUSLY.

JUL 11 1943

LOOK BEYOND THE FIGHTING ON THE BEACHES AND THESE POINTS EMERGE AS THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF THIS BATTLE.

ONE IS THAT IT IS BEING DIRECTED BY A TRULY COORDINATED ALLIED COMMAND SO MELTED DOWN AND FUSED TOGETHER IT IS ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL WHAT IS BRITISH, WHAT IS AMERICAN AND WHAT BELONGS TO OTHER UNITED NATIONS.

THE OTHER IS THAT GEN. EISENHOWER AND HIS CLOSEST ASSOCIATES ARE IN THE HEARTIEST AGREEMENT ON THE POLICY LAID DOWN BY WASHINGTON AND LONDON THAT THE ONLY PRACTICABLE WAY TO CONDUCT THE WAR IS TO BEA GERMANY FIRST.

SICILY IS A STEP ON THE ROAD TO BERLIN.

JUL 11 1943

TAKE THE FIRST POINT FIRST. IT IS GEN. EISENHOWER'S DEAREST WISH THAT HE BE REGARDED AS THE LEADER AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF NOT OF THE VARIOUS BRITISH, AMERICAN AND OTHER MILITARY, NAVAL AND AERIAL ESTABLISHMENTS BUT OF A SINGLE, COORDINATED, UNITED AND ALLIED FORCE.

WHAT GIVES THIS AMERICAN GENERAL THE MOST PRIDE AND PLEASURE--AND HE IS ONE OF THE MOST GENUINELY MODEST MEN I HAVE EVER MET--IS THE DEGREE OF ACCOMPLISHMENT THIS ESSENTIAL UNITY AND SOLIDARITY HAS ALREADY REACHED.

JUL 11 1943

EISENHOWER IS SUPREME COMMANDER OF FIVE DISTINCT ENTITIES IN THIS THEATER OF THE AMERICAN ARMY WHICH INCLUDES THE AMERICAN AIRFORCE, THE AMERICAN NAVY, THE BRITISH ARMY, THE ROYAL NAVY AND THE RAF. THE IMMENSITY OF THE TASK OF CORRELATING AND SYNCHRONIZING THESE SEPARATE FORCES INTO ONE SMOOTHLY POLISHED AND OILED MACHINE LIFTS THE IMAGINATION. EISENHOWER'S OWN TACT, CANDOUR, FRESHNESS AND GENERAL EFFICIENCY HAS HAD A LOT TO DO WITH THIS ACHIEVEMENT. SO HAS THE GOOD HUMOR, GOOD MANNERS AND GOOD SENSE OF HIS BRITISH AND OTHER ALLIED COLLABORATORS. I'VE ROAMED AROUND THIS HEADQUARTERS MOST OF THE WEEK AND HAVE BEEN IN INCESSANT CONTACT BOTH WITH BRITISH AND AMERICAN OFFICERS OF ALL RANKS AND HAVE REACHED THE POINT WHERE THE QUESTION OF THE NATIONALITY OF ANYONE I MEET SCARCELY ARISES.

WHEN EISENHOWER WAS NAMED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE ALLIED FORCES LAST JULY HE WAS FAR OUT-RANKED BY SUCH A MAN AS ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM WHO IS AN ADMIRAL OF THE FLEET. EVEN AS A FULL GENERAL HE WAS OUT-RANKED.

THE BRITISH THEREUPON OBLIGINGLY DEVISED THE PLEASANT FICTION THAT ALL AMERICAN RANKS ARE ONE STEP HIGHER THAN BRITISH RANKS. SO EISENHOWER, A LIEUTENANT GENERAL, WAS CONSIDERED A FULL GENERAL. NOW THAT HE'S A FULL GENERAL THEY REGARD HIM AS THE EQUIVALENT TO A FIELD MARSHAL.

30.24-5884

EISENHOWER, WHO HAS THE SHREWD TANG OF KANSAS IN HIS VOICE, KNOWS PERFECTLY WELL THERE ARE ALWAYS POSSIBILITIES OF FRICTION IN ANY HIGH COMMAND. MOREOVER, PLENTY OF AMERICANS AND BRITISH HAVE A KIND OF ATAVISTIC DISLIKE OF EACH OTHER. HE HAS NEVER BLINDED HIMSELF TO THIS. ON THE CONTRARY HE HAS INSISTED ON KEEPING IT IN THE OPEN. HE DEMANDS THAT HIS OFFICERS FRANKLY TALK OUT ANY MINOR POINTS OF IRRITATION. ALSO, HE HAS TAKEN ACTIVE, CONSTRUCTIVE STEPS TO MINIMIZE FRICTION.

FOR INSTANCE, WHEN HIS ORGANIZATION WAS BUILT UP ONE OF HIS ESSENTIAL RULES WAS THAT EVERY SECTION OR UNIT, NO MATTER HOW SMALL MUST INCLUDE BOTH AMERICAN AND BRITISH OFFICERS. IN MOST SECTIONS THE BRITISH CONSIDERABLY OUTNUMBER THE AMERICANS. THIS PUTS BOTH SIDES ON THEIR METTLE AND EACH STRIVES TO OUTDO THE OTHER IN PLAYING THE GAME.

JUL 11 1943

TAKE THE AIRFORCE. EISENHOWER LIKES FOLKS TO REMEMBER THAT OUR AIRFORCE IS NOT, AS SOME BRITISH FOLK THINK, SUBORDINATE TO THE ARMY GROUND FORCES. WHETHER A LAND GENERAL OR AN AIR GENERAL IS PUT IN CHARGE OF AN AREA OR AN OPERATION DEPENDS SIMPLY ON THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE JOB. THE WHOLE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF THE AIR IS UNDER THE COMMAND OF AIR MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR WILLIAM TEDDER, AN ENGLISHMAN, UNDER EISENHOWER. UNDER TEDDER IS THE NORTHWEST AFRICA AIRFORCE, UNDER LIEUT. GEN. CARL A. SPAATZ ARE BOMBER, FIGHTER AND COASTAL UNITS. THE PILOTS OPERATE NOT ON THE BASIS OF NATIONALITY BUT OF FUNCTION. THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH PERSONNEL IS SO INTERLARDED AND SO INTERMIXED IT IS ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL WHERE ONE BEGINS AND THE OTHER ENDS. IT IS TRULY A UNITED COMMAND, A TEAM.

JUL 11 1943

AS TO THE SECOND MAJOR POINT, THE BATTLE OF SICILY IS NOT AN ISOLATED CAMPAIGN NO MATTER WHAT ITS LOCAL SIGNIFICANCE. IT IS PART OF A MUCH LARGER SCHEME OF ALLIED STRATEGY. THE PROGRAM IS TO KEEP THE BALL ROLLING, TO GIVE THE ENEMY AS LITTLE REST AS POSSIBLE. THE MAJOR ENEMY IS AND NECESSARILY MUST BE GERMANY. THIS IS BECAUSE GERMANY IS THE ONLY ENEMY WHICH CAN SIMULTANEOUSLY BE ATTACKED BY BRITISH AIRPOWER, RUSSIAN LANDPOWER, GENERAL ALLIED BLOCKADE, AND SUCH THRUSTS AS THE SICILIAN OFFENSIVE REPRESENTS.

LONDON, JULY 10-(AP)-QUOTATIONS FROM BRITISH LEADERS TODAY ON THE SICILIAN INVASION:

HOME SECRETARY HERBERT MORRISON, AT LONDONDERRY: "IT MAY BE A LONG TIME" BEFORE HITLER'S DOMINION FALLS, BUT "TODAY THE AXE IS LAID TO THE ROOT OF THE TREE. TODAY IT BEGINS." THE ALLIES AIMED AT INFLICTING "THE HEAVIEST HAMMER BLOWS ON THE ENEMY AS A DIRECT RESULT OF OUR OWN OPERATIONS" AND ALSO TO BRING RELIEF TO THE RUSSIANS.

MAJOR ARTHUR HENDERSON, FINANCIAL SECRETARY TO THE WAR OFFICE, AT PORTSMOUTH: "WE ARE ON THE VERY THRESHOLD OF ONE OF THE MOMENTOUS PERIODS OF THE WAR," AND THE GERMAN ARMIES ARE "BEING DIRECTED BY GENERAL DESPERATION WHO SUCCEEDED HITLER'S MILITARY GENIUS, CORPORAL INTUITION."

LABORITE EMMANUEL SHINWELL, AT EASINGTON (DURHAM): "THE LANDING IN SICILY IS WELCOME AND THE EFFORTS OF OUR FORCES WILL BE WATCHED WITH KEEN APPRECIATION. BUT A SUBSTANTIAL VOLUME OF OPINION IN THIS COUNTRY EXPECTED THE RESUMPTION OF THE OFFENSIVE ON THE EASTERN FRONT WOULD HAVE BEEN THE SIGNAL FOR A BIG PUSH FORWARD ELSEWHERE BY THE ALLIES."

LONDON, LY 10-(AP)-THE GERMAN OVERSEAS RADIO ANNOUNCED THIS MORNING'S ALLIED INVASION OF SICILY AT 7:30 A.M. (1:30 A.M. NEW YORK TIME).

THE NAZI BROADCASTER, HEARD BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION, SAID:

"IT HAS JUST BEEN OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED IN LONDON THAT ALLIED FORCES BEGAN LANDING OPERATIONS IN SICILY THIS MORNING."

A FEW MINUTES LATER THE GERMANS BROADCAST A SECOND BULLETIN UNDER A WASHINGTON DATELINE. IT SAID SIMPLY:

"BRITISH, AMERICAN AND CANADIAN TROOPS HAVE LANDED IN SICILY."

COUNTLESS BOMBINGS OF KEY CITIES, AIR FIELDS AND FORTIFICATIONS SOFTENED SICILY FOR THE ASSAULT WHICH CARRIED ALLIED TROOPS TO THE FRONT DOOR OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND EARLY TODAY(SATURDAY).

FOR MONTHS HEAVY BOMBERS SHOWERED THE MOUNTAINOUS STRONGHOLD WITH HIGH EXPLOSIVES, SMASHED AT ITS NUMEROUS AIRFIELDS AND IN A THREE-~~DAY PERIOD HE HAT~~ THE SKIES ABOVE THE ISLAND WERE THE SCENE OF SOME OF THE MOST VIOLENT AIR FIGHTING OF THE WAR.

IN ONE DAY ALLIED AIRMEN KNOCKED DOWN OR DESTROYED ON THE GROUND 73 AXIS PLANES AND TWO DAYS LATER RAISED THAT MIGHTY SCORE TO 97. THE RAIDS GREW IN FEROCITY TO THE EXTENT THAT NEAR THE FIRST OF JUNE CIVILIA WERE REPORTED BEING EVACUATED FROM ~~XXXX~~ THE BATTERED ISLAND.

PROBABLY THE MOST HEAVILY POUNDED OF ALL SICILIAN CITIES WAS MESSINA, ON THE STRAIT SEPARATING SICILY FROM THE MAINLAND AND THE TERMINUS COMMUNICATIONS.

A MONTH AGO IN GREECE ONE REGION WAS SAID TO BE LIGHTLY DEFENDED BY ITALIAN FORCES. TODAY, IT WAS LEARNED HERE, AT LEAST ONE GERMAN MOTORIZED DIVISION HAS BEEN STATIONED IN THAT AREA.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF GERMAN OFFICERS, ITALIAN GARRISONS WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN MOVED TO NEW STRATEGIC POSITIONS ALONG THE SOUTH COAST OF GREECE.

THE STRONGEST DEFENSE POINT ON THE GREEK MAINLAND STILL IS THE MOUNT OLYMPUS LINE WHERE THE BRITISH AND GREEKS MADE A STAND IN THE SPRING OF 1941 AGAINST THE GERMAN INVASION FORCES AND WHICH TODAY HAS BEEN EXTENDED BOTH EAST AND WEST.

LONDON--FIRST ADD INVASION FORCES (BY LEWIS HAWKINS) X X X

NAVAL CONTRIBUTION.

IT WAS CONSIDERED NOTEWORTHY THAT THE ALLIED AERIAL BOMBARDMENT SEEMED TO FOLLOW A PATTERN OF CONCENTRATION ON AIRFIELDS AND COMMUNICATIONS--RATHER THAN ON A SMALL AREA OF THE COAST IN AN EFFORT TO DEMORALIZE THE DEFENSES AT THAT PARTICULAR SPOT TO BRING ABOUT AN UNOPPOSED LANDING SUCH AS AT PANTELLERIA.

JUL 11 1943

IT WAS WIDELY SUGGESTED AFTER THE UNIQUE VICTORY OVER PANTELLERIA THAT THERE WAS THE PATTERN FOR FUTURE ATTACKS, WITH BOMBS MAKING AN "ISLAND" OF ANY SELECTED STRIP OF COAST.

MOST MILITARY MEN, HOWEVER, SEEMED TO REGARD THIS AS IMPRACTICAL AGAINST A LARGE ISLAND OR CONTINENT BECAUSE THERE WOULD BE NO WAY TO PREVENT SWIFT REINFORCEMENT OF THE BOMBARDED AREA WHEN THE ATTACK CAME.

THE COMBINED BRITISH AND AMERICAN NAVAL STRENGTH IN THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS BELIEVED ADEQUATE TO DEAL WITH THE ITALIAN FLEET--EVEN IF THE MAIN UNITS ARE ABLE TO JOIN AND IN CASE PREMIER MUSSOLINI DECIDES TO GAMBLE.

THE BEST GUESSES IN LONDON WERE THAT HE WOULDN'T TAKE THE RISK AT THIS STAGE ALTHOUGH IT WAS CONSIDERED LIKELY HE WOULD USE E-BOATS, OF WHICH THE ITALIAN NAVY HAS PLENTY, AS A HARASSING FORCE BY NIGHT.

JUL 11 1943

IT WAS 1 P.M. WHEN THE ROME RADIO BROADCAST A BRIEF COMMUNIQUE TELLING THE ITALIAN PEOPLE THAT THE INVASION OF SICILY HAD BEGUN.

THE BULLETIN ANNOUNCED ONLY THAT "VIOLENT FIGHTING" WAS IN PROGRESS FOLLOWING AN ALLIED ATTACK IN SOUTHEAST SICILY BY AIR FORCES AND PARACHUTE TROOPS SUPPORTED BY NAVAL UNITS.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THIS BRIEF ANNOUNCEMENT THE ROME RADIO BEGAN BROADCASTING MUSIC.

AN EARLIER ROME BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, MADE NO MENTION OF THE SICILIAN LANDING AND ADVISED LISTENERS THAT "THE SECOND FRONT IS STILL A DREAM AND BBC IS INDULGING IN WISHFUL THINKING."

JUL 11 1943

STILL EARLIER, A ROME COMMENTATOR SAID IN A BREAKFAST TIME BROADCAST HEARD HERE BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION:

"WHEN THE ENEMY LANDS ON OUR SHORES WE SHALL MEET HIM MAN TO MAN. THE HARDER WE ARE HIT AND BOMBED THE HARDER SHALL WE RESIST, FIGHTING TOOTH AND NAIL. WE DO NOT UNDERESTIMATE THE ENEMY BUT HE WILL LEARN WHAT FIGHTING MEANS IF AND WHEN HE COMES."

"THE INVASION FORCES WERE IMMEDIATELY ENGAGED IN HEAVY FIGHTING WHICH PROVED EXTRAORDINARILY COSTLY FOR THEM," SAID RADIO BERLIN IN A BROADCAST QUOTING THE INTERNATIONAL BUREAU, GERMAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY.

"COASTAL BATTERIES AND AXIS BOMBERS SANK A NUMBER OF LANDING TRANSPORT MANNED WITH TROOPS AND LADEN WITH MATERIAL," THE BROADCAST WENT ON. "THIRTY-THREE ENEMY AIRCRAFT SO FAR HAVE BEEN BROUGHT DOWN IN AERIAL COMBATS. ENEMY PARACHUTISTS WHO BAILED OUT DURING THE DAWN WERE WIPED OUT."

IN ADDITIONAL BROADCASTS, RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, BERLIN TOLD THE GERMAN PEOPLE THAT "CONSIDERABLE FORCES" OF THE ALLIES LANDED IN THE SOUTHEASTERN PART OF SICILY WITH "THE SUPPORT OF STRONG NAVAL AND AIR FORCE FORMATIONS."

THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND WAS EVEN LESS INFORMATIVE. ITS COMMUNIQUE

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5893

SAID MERELY: "ON THE NIGHT OF JULY 9, THE ENEMY WITH THE SUPPORT OF STRONG NAVAL AND AIR FORCES BEGAN AN ATTACK ON SICILY. THE ENEMY IMMEDIATELY ENCOUNTERED STRONG DEFENSES ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR. FIGHTING IS STILL PROGRESSING."

JUL 11 1943

AS IF TO PRESENT AN ALIBI FAR IN ADVANCE IN CASE THE ISLANDS ARE LOST, THE NEWSPAPERS ADDED THAT THE AXIS WAS CONFIDENT OF GERMAN AND ITALIAN DEFENSES--"IF FIGHTING ON THE MAINLAND IS NOT AGAIN THROWN ONTO AN ENDANGERED SEA CONNECTION AS WAS THE CASE IN NORTH AFRICA."

THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE NEUE ZUERCHER ZEITUNG WROTE THAT THE GERMANS ARE CONFIDENT THEY CAN EQUAL THE ALLIES "PROVIDING THEY HAVE NORMAL TRANSPORT FACILITIES FOR SUPPLY LINES."

BERLIN BROADCASTS WENT ON THROUGHOUT THE DAY, GIVING FEW DETAILS, IF ANY, ABOUT THE INVASION BUT USIN TOUE ZSS

IF ANY, ABOUT THE INVASION BUT USING THOUSANDS OF WORDS TO TELL OF EVENTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND ON SICILY ITSELF IN RECENT DAYS.

AT LEAST TWO BROADCASTS, HOURS AFTER THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE INVASION, QUOTED DISPATCHES FROM GUENTHER WEBER, A CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRANSOCEAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY, WHO MADE VIRTUALLY NO MENTION OF ALLIED LANDINGS ALTHOUGH HE WROTE FROM SICILY WHERE HE WAS SAID TO HAVE GONE SEVERAL DAYS AGO.

JUL 11 1943

INSTEAD, WEBER'S DISPATCHES TOLD OF THE WELCOME WHICH THE ISLAND'S INHABITANTS GAVE GERMAN MOTORIZED DETACHMENTS AND TANK FORMATIONS AND OF THE DEFENSE PLANS WORKED OUT JOINTLY BY THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN STAFFS INHABITANTS GAVE GERMAN MOTORIZED DETACHMENTS AND TANK FORMATIONS AND OF THE DEFENSE PLANS WORKED OUT JOINTLY BY THE GERMAN AND ITALIAN STAFFS.

JUL 11 1943

"THE PEOPLE EVERYWHERE DEMONSTRATED THAT THEY ARE LOOKING FORWARD WITH CONFIDENCE INTO THE FUTURE AND THAT THEY ARE CONVINCED OF THE CERTAIN FAILURE OF THE ENEMY'S INVASION ATTEMPTS," WEBER WAS QUOTED AS WRITING. "THEY DO NOT DISGUISE THEIR HATRED OF THE ENEMY, CAUSED BY HIS TERROR ATTACKS ON THEIR VILLAGES AND TOWNS."

MOST OF THE BROADCASTS EMPHASIZED THAT THE ALLIED LANDING "IN NO WAY CAME AS A SURPRISE TO AXIS TROOPS." ONE COMMENTATOR SAID THE ITALIAN PEOPLE COULD NOT HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY SURPRISE BECAUSE THEY HAD BEEN "THOROUGHLY PREPARED FOR SUCH AN EVENTUALITY BY THE PRESS."

THE ONLY BROADCAST STATEMENT FROM THE WILHELMSTRASSE CAME FROM A SPOKESMAN WHO DECLARED THAT THE INVASION WAS ACCEPTED IN BERLIN WITH COOL HEADEDNESS AND TRANQUILLITY. BUT HE ADDED DRAMATICALLY: "LET WEAPONS SPEAK."

THERE WAS UNCERTAINTY HERE WHETHER THE GERMANS' FAILURE TO REINFORCE SICILY AND SOUTHERN ITALY MORE STRONGLY WAS DUE TO INABILITY OR LACK OF DESIRE. THERE HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLE SPECULATION THAT THE NAZIS WERE PREPARED TO LET ITALY DO MOST OF THE FIGHTING IN THE SOUTH, WITH GERMANY POSSIBLY HOLDING A DEFENSE LINE ACROSS THE PENINSULA NORTH OF ROME AND PROTECTING ITALY'S INDUSTRIAL CENTERS.

CONDITIONED BY FOUR YEARS OF WAR, WITH A LARGE SHARE OF DEFEATS AND DISAPPOINTMENTS, THE BRITISH PUBLIC AND PRESS TOOK A CAUTIOUS VIEW OF THE INVASION OF SICILY. TYPICAL WAS AN EDITORIAL IN THE EVENING NEWS:

JUL 11 1943

"FIGHTING IS CERTAIN TO BE BITTER. OUR LEADERS AND THEIR MEN ARE UNDER NO ILLUSIONS ON THAT SCORE. WE AT HOME DO NOT DOUBT THEIR ABILITY TO PREVAIL, BUT WE MUST TPOT UCI

A183

THE ALLIED ANNOUNCEMENT BROKE THE TENSION FOR MILLIONS ON THE BRITISH ISLES WHO HAD TAKEN EACH NEW REPORT OF GATHERING ALLIED STRENGTH AS AN IMMEDIATE PRELUDE TO INVASION.

AROUND THE GATHERING PLACES OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS THERE WAS NOT THE SAME JUBILATION AS AMONG THE BRITISH, WHO HAD BEEN WAITING SINCE DUNKERQUE FOR THIS MOMENT.

JUL 11 1943

IN NORTHERN IRELAND AN INTER-CAMP COMMUNICATIONS HOOKUP GAVE AMERICAN TROOPS A DETAILED BROADCAST OF INVASION NEWS. ELSEWHERE THE AMERICANS HEARD REPORTS FROM THE BBC AND FROM THEIR OWN RADIO CIRCUIT.

IT WAS BELIEVED HERE THAT AMERICAN UNITS FIGHTING IN SICILY TODAY PROBABLY WERE THE SAME ONES THAT GAINED THEIR SPURS IN THE FIERCE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN THAT ENDED JUST TWO MONTHS AGO--THE FIRST, NINTH AND 34TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS AND THE FIRST ARMORED DIVISION.

IT WAS ASSUMED, TOO, THAT THE AMERICAN NAVY WAS PLAYING A MORE IMPORTANT ROLE THAN PREVIOUSLY IN MEDITERRANEAN AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION.

THE ITALIAN NAVY, OF WHICH NOTHING HAD BEEN HEARD SO FAR, IS BUILT AROUND THREE MODERN BATTLESHIPS AND FOUR OLD BUT REBUILT BATTLESHIPS, PLUS PERHAPS TWO SURVIVING HEAVY CRUISERS, SIX TO EIGHT LIGHT CRUISERS, FEWER THAN 50 DESTROYERS AND PROBABLY BETWEEN 60 AND 80 SUBMARINES.

THERE WAS LITTLE DOUBT THAT THIS SCANTY FORCE COULD BE OVERWHELMED IN SHORT ORDER BY THE POWERFUL BRITISH-AMERICAN ARMADA NOW IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, AND IT WAS CONSIDERED IMPROBABLE HERE THAT THE ITALIAN NAVY WOULD JUMP INTO THE FIGHT.

JUL 11 1943

ADD LONDON — Aerial

THE STRENGTH OF THE BRITISH ATTACK ON THE RUHR, AND THE AMERICAN SWEEPS OVER FRANCE, INDICATED THE ALLIED AIR OFFENSIVE ON WESTERN EUROPE WOULD NOT BE DIMINISHED BY THE SOUTHERN ASSAULT ON SICILY.

HOME SECRETARY HERBERT MORRISON SAID, IN A SPEECH AT LONDONDERRY, THAT CONTINUOUS BRITISH AND AMERICAN BLOWS PERMITTED LESS THAN HALF THE GERMAN AIR POWER TO FACE THE RUSSIANS IN THE EAST, AND ITS REMAINING STRENGTH WAS SPREAD THINLY ELSEWHERE IN EUROPE.

HE ATTRIBUTED THE SPREADING TO THREATS OF MORE ALLIED ATTACKS, ANYWHERE FROM THE NORTH CAPE OF NORWAY TO THE GREEK ISLANDS, AND SAID: "TODAY THE AXE IS LAID TO THE ROOT OF THE TREE."

THE RELATIVELY LOW LOSS OF RAF BOMBERS LAST NIGHT INDICATED BRITISH PILOTS TOOK FULL ADVANTAGE OF WEATHER CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE FOR ENEMY NIGHT FIGHTERS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNERS, AS WELL AS SHOWING POSSIBLE WEAKENING OF GERMAN DEFENSES.

GELSENKIRCHEN, WAS HIT LAST NIGHT, BUT THE BRITISH CONFINED THEIR BRIEF COMMUNIQUE TO NAMING THE CENTRAL RUHR, INCLUDING GELSENKIRCHEN. BOTH CITIES WERE RAIDED HEAVILY JUNE 25. JUL 11 1943

THE AIR MINISTRY REPORTED THE RAF BOMBERS RAN THROUGH "ONE OF THE FIERCEST BARRAGES" OF THE LONG BATTLE OF THE RUHR, BUT THAT NIGHT FIGHTERS WERE "NOT NEARLY SO NUMEROUS AS USUAL."

HEAVY AND LIGHT GUNS OPENED FIRE, AS SOON AS THE BOMBING FLEET CROSSED THE RUHR BOUNDARIES, THE AIR MINISTRY SAID, AND THE AREA OF FLAK SPREAD FOR MILES. THICK CLOUDS, HOWEVER, MADE THE HUNDREDS OF SEARCHLIGHTS IN THIS AREA INEFFECTIVE.

BRITISH CREWS SAID THEY COULD SEE THE GLOW OF GREAT FIRES REFLECTED AGAINST THE CLOUDS AS THEY TURNED FOR HOME, BUT THE NIGHT WAS TOO DARK FOR FULL OBSERVATION OF THE BOMBING RESULTS.

THE GERMAN COMMAND, IN A COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST FROM BERLIN, CLAIME "FURTHER SUCCESSES" IN WHAT IT NOW CALLED "THE GREAT BATTLE OF BELGOROD AND OREL." IT ASSERTED THAT RUSSIAN TANK LOSSES HAD REACHE 1,227 AND DECLARED THAT DURING FRIDAY'S OPERATIONS ALONE 119 SOVIET PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN.

FORTY TANKS, 16 GUNS AND 70 TRUCKS WERE DESTROYED IN ONE SECTOR OF THE OREL-KURSK FRONT AND SOVIET GUNNERS NAILED "SEVERAL" 60-TON TIGER TANKS AND DISPERSED ABOUT TWO REGIMENTS OF GERMAN INFANTRY IN THE FIGHTING ON ANOTHER SALIENT OF THE SAME FRONT. JUL 11 1943

TYPICAL OF THE VIOLENCE AND STUBBORNNESS OF THE RUSSIAN DEFENSE WAS A REPORT ON A 12-HOUR BATTLE BY A SOVIET DETACHMENT WHICH WAS SURROUNDED BY TWO BATTALIONS OF GERMAN INFANTRY AND 15 TANKS BUT MANAGED TO BREAK OUT AND REESTABLISH ITS POSITIONS. FOUR HUNDRED GERMAN OFFICERS AND MEN WERE KILLED.

ON THE BELGOROD FRONT FRIDAY, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, 10 RUSSIAN TANKS ENGAGED GERMAN TANKS WHICH HAD WEDGED INTO THE SOVIET POSITIONS AND IN FIERCE FIGHTING DESTROYED 23 OF THE NAZI MACHINES. JUL 11 1943

SOVIET LONG RANGE BOMBERS CONTINUED TO HAMMER AT GERMAN TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT AND STRUCK BLOWS AT ENEMY AIRDROMES WHERE A "LARGE NUMBER OF ENEMY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED ON THE GROUND," A COMMUNIQUE SAID. TWO RUSSIAN PLANES FAILED TO RETURN.

THERE WERE EXCHANGES OF FIRE ON THE COMPARATIVELY QUIET VOLKHOV AND LENINGRAD FRONT, THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED, AND IN THE BLACK SEA SOVIET AIRCRAFT SANK A GERMAN SUBMARINE. IN AIR BATTLES OVER THE APPROACHES TO LENINGRAD RUSSIAN AIRMEN BROUGHT DOWN SIX GERMAN PLANES.

THE REPORT ALSO TOLD OF GUERRILLA ACTIVITIES IN THE KIEV REGION WHERE SOVIET PATRIOTS DISPERSED A LARGE COLUMN OF GERMAN TROOPS FROM AMBUSH. ANOTHER GUERRILLA DETACHMENT WAS SAID TO HAVE BLOWN UP A GERMAN ARRMORED TRAIN JUNE 24 IN THE UKRAINE.

ADD MOSCOW

THERE WAS LITTLE CHANGE IN THE SITUATION YESTERDAY, ACCORDING TO A SOVIET COMMUNIQUE, WHICH SAID THAT THE RED ARMY WAS CONTINUING TO BATTLE ENEMY TANKS WHICH PREVIOUSLY HAD PENETRATED THE RUSSIAN POSITIONS AT BELGOROD.

IN ONE ENGAGEMENT IN THE BELGOROD AREA YESTERDAY, THE BULLETIN SAID, 30 TO 160 ATTACKING GERMAN TANKS WERE DESTROYED.

(BERLIN BROADCASTS DECLARED THAT GERMAN FORCES HAD PENETRATED 36 MILES NORTHWARD TOWARD KURSK IN A THRUST FROM THE SOUTHERN ANCHOR OF THE BATTLE FRONT AT BELGOROD.)

JUL 11 1943

WHILE THE GERMAN ARMIES PUSHED HARD AGAINST THE RUSSIAN LINE FROM OREL TO BELGOROD, THE RED ARMY REPORTED THAT IT HAD HELD ITS OWN.

IN THE SKY BATTLE, THE RUSSIANS SAID, THE GERMAN AIRFORCE WAS PAYING HEAVILY IN PLANES FOR ITS ATTEMPT TO ROLL BACK THE RUSSIAN ARTILLERY TO CLEAR THE WAY FOR THE GROUND ADVANCE.

FROM FRONT LINE DISPATCHES IT APPEARED THAT IT WAS JUST SOUTH OF OREL, WHERE THE BATTLE LINE BENDS TO THE WEST, THAT THE NAZI ARMY WAS MAKING ITS GREATEST EFFORT.

JUL 11 1943

(THE GERMANS, IN A PROPAGANDA BROADCAST, TOLD OF "FEROCIOUS FIGHTING" IN THE OREL AREA AND SAID NAZI TROOPS "COULD GAIN GROUND ONLY INCH BY INCH.")

THE RUSSIANS SAID A GERMAN THRUST BY TANKS, AIR AND INFANTRY ALONG A NARROW FRONT ON THE OREL-KURSK FRONT HAD BEEN STOPPED DEAD, ALTHOUGH THE GERMANS HAD BROUGHT UP REINFORCEMENTS CONSISTING OF NINE DIVISIONS OF INFANTRY AND A TANK DIVISION. MEANWHILE, IT CLAIMED THAT ITS OWN AIRFORCE HAD RANGED FAR BEHIND THE GERMAN LINE TO BOMB GERMAN SUPPLY LINES AND TROOPS CONCENTRATIONS.

SOVIET AIR ACTIVITY, THE RUSSIANS SAID, HAD BEEN HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL, RED ARMY FLIERS ESCAPING WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A SINGLE PLANE FOR THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE NIGHT.

(A BERLIN BROADCAST SAID THE SOVIET AIRFORCE HAD LOST 1,000 PLANES. THE GERMAN BROADCAST ALSO CLAIMED THAT NAZI TROOPS HAD DESTROYED 1,100 RUSSIAN TANKS.)

JUL 11 1943

THE INTENSITY AND PERSISTENCE OF THE ATTACKING GERMAN COLUMNS WAS EMPHASIZED IN THE RUSSIAN MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID THAT IN ONE SECTOR OF THE OREL-KURSK FRONT THE RED ARMY HAD BEATEN 13 SEPARATE AND DISTINCT ATTEMPTS TO ADVANCE.

JUL 11 1943

THE GERMANS WERE USING THEIR NEW 60-TON TIGER TANKS AS THE SPEARHEAD OF EACH THRUST, FOLLOWING THEM WITH INFANTRY AND THE OLDER MARK III'S AND IV'S.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE ADMITTED PENETRATION AT THREE DIFFERENT POINTS IN THE BELGOROD SECTOR AND HAVE REPORTED THE GERMANS ARE BRINGING UP RESERVES TO BOLSTER THE DRIVE NORTH TOWARD KURSK.

LONDON, JULY 10-(AP)-WITH THE KNOWN DEAD ALREADY AT 12, RESCUE WORKERS CONTINUED TODAY TO DIG FEVERISHLY IN THE RUINS OF A MOTION PICTURE THEATER IN A SOUTHEAST COAST TOWN WHICH WAS DEMOLISHED BY A GERMAN HIT-RUN RAIDER YESTERDAY WHILE HUNDREDS OF CHILDREN WERE WITNESSING A COWBOY FILM.

IT WAS FEARED THAT ADDITIONAL VICTIMS--HOW MANY REMAINED UNCERTAIN--WERE BURIED IN THE DEBRIS, BUT AUTHORITIES HAD VIRTUALLY ABANDONED HOPE THAT ANY WOULD BE BROUGHT OUT ALIVE. ACOUSTIC EQUIPMENT EMPLOYED BY THE RESCUE SQUADS FAILED TO DETECT ANY SOUNDS COMING FROM THE WRECKAGE WHICH MIGHT INDICATE THAT THERE WAS ANY LIFE BENEATH THE HEAPS OF DEBRIS.

OFFICIALS SAID THAT THE ROOF OF THE BUILDING COLLAPSED WHEN A GERMAN RAIDER SWEPT LOW OVER THE TOWN AND SCORED TWO DIRECT HITS ON THE THEATER. PERSONS IN THE STREET AND IN NEARBY BUILDINGS WERE INJURED BY FLYING GLASS AND DEBRIS.

JUL 11 1943

THE PLANE DOVE DOWN UPON THE TOWN THROUGH A HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGE TO DROP ITS BOMBS, CIRCLE AND THEN RAKE THE STREETS AND A NEARBY RAILROAD STATION WITH MACHINEGUN FIRE.

CHILDREN IN THE THEATER WERE ATTENDING AN AFTER-SCHOOL PERFORMANCE. A 13-YEAR-OLD BOY WHO WAS SITTING IN THE FRONT ROW ESCAPED WITH MINOR INJURIES. HE SAID THAT HE DUCKED TO THE FLOOR WHEN HE FIRST SAW A CRACK RUNNING ALONG THE CEILING OF THE THEATER. DEBRIS FLEW THROUGH THE AIR AFTER THE SECOND EXPLOSION BUT HE MANAGED TO REACH STEPS LEADING TO THE OUTSIDE. HE DUCKED BACK INTO THE BUILDING WHEN HE HEARD MACHINEGUN FIRE.

THE DEAD INCLUDED A BABY WHO WAS SLEEPING IN A PERAMBULATOR JUST OUTSIDE THE THEATER. HER FATHER, WHO HAD WHEELED HER TO THE CINEMA, ALSO WAS KILLED.

A RESTAURANT IN THE SAME BUILDING WAS FULL OF CUSTOMERS AT THE TIME OF THE ATTACK AND ALTHOUGH SEVERAL PERSONS WERE CUT BY FLYING GLASS FROM A CHANDELIER NONE WAS KILLED.

A U.S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, JULY 10-(AP)-THE FLYING FORTRESS BOYS FROM THIS STATION PRAYED PARADOXICALLY "FOR JUST ONE LITTLE PIECE OF FLAK" OVER FRANCE TODAY.

JUL 11 1943

THERE WERE NO GERMAN FIGHTERS IN SIGHT TO SPEAK OF. THE CONTINENT WAS CLOUDED OVER SO THEY COULDN'T SEE TO DROP BOMBS AND UNLESS SOME FLAK WAS SHOT AT THEM THEIR BREAKFAST-TIME FORAY WOULD NOT COUNT AS A COMBAT MISSION.

THEN JUST AS THEY SWUNG ONTO THE TARGET--A NAZI FIGHTER AIRFIELD AT CAEN 15 MILES IN FROM THE COAST--A MIRACULOUS HOLE OPENED IN THE OVERCAST.

"THE CLOUDS WERE LIKE A BLANKET OF SNOW AND THAT HOLE LOOKED LIKE A BIG FOOTPRINT," SAID LIEUT.JOHN H.PERKINS,JR., CHICAGO PILOT OF THE FORTRESS "WINDY CITY CHALLENGER."

THE AIRFIELD "POPPED OUT FROM UNDER THAT CLOUD LIKE A NEW DIME LYING ON BLACK VELVET," SAID CAPT.CLARENCE R.WEBB,JR., SAN ANGELO,TEX., NAVIGATOR ON THE FORTRESS "WE THE PEOPLE," WHICH LE THE RAID.

JUL 11 1943

THE PILOT OF "WE THE PEOPLE," MAJOR JERRALD PRICE OF ESTES PARK,COLO., HELD HER ON THE CLOUD OPENING AND THE BOMBARDIER, LIEUT.WILLIAM BRINCOLL, HUNTSVILLE,TEX., PLOPPED THEIR BOMB LOAD RIGHT IN.

JUL 11 1943

"THERE WAS A REGULAR GROUP OF AIRPORT BUILDINGS--ADMINISTRATION, PERSONNEL, HANGARS AND ALL THAT--AND WE PUT BOMBS ALL AROUND IN THEM," SAID NAVIGATOR WEBB, COMPLETING HIS 25TH MISSION.

SERGT.CLAUDE R.LESLIE OF DAYTON,O., A BALL TURRET GUNNER, COMMENTED: "I NEVER SAW A GERMAN FIGHTER. THE FIGHTERS WE DID SEE WE WOULD HAVE HAD TO HAVE AN ADDING MACHINE TO COUNT. THEY WERE ALL P-47S."

JUL 11 1943

FIRST LIEUT.DUNSTAN ABEL OF SCRANTON, PA., NAVIGATOR ON THE LYING FORTRESS FERTILE MYRTLE SAID:

"TWO ME-109S CAME IN FOR A FRONTAL ATTACK. THEY WERE SHOOTING SO HARD AND FAST THE GUNS IN THEIR WINGS LOOKED LIKE BEACON LIGHTS. THEY WERE BLINKING LIKE HELL.

JUL 11 1943

"THEY KEPT COMING IN SO I LET THEM HAVE IT, HOLDING DOWN THE TRIGGER. ONE OF THEM FLEW INTO MY STREAM OF FIRE AND WENT DOWN NOSE FIRST AND SMOKING. ABOUT 1,000 FEET DOWN IT BURST INTO ORANGE FLAME. HE WAS FINISHED."

SGT.GEORGE D.STARKEBAUM OF CONCORDIA, MO., TOP TURRET GUNNER OF THE "HEAVENLY DAYS," SAID THAT "TWO FOCKE-WULF 190S CAME IN TOWARD THE NOSE ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF OUR SHIP. I FIRED AND THEY WENT ACROSS THE TIP OF OUR RIGHT WING. THEIR ENGINES CAUGHT FIRE."

FIRST LIEUT.EUGENE WILCOX OF MORAVIA, IOWA, PILOT OF THE "RAUNCHEE", SAID FOCKE-WULF 190S "CIRCLED ABOUT US BUT DIDN'T SHOW ANY FIGHT."

"IT LOOKED LIKE PRETTY GOOD BOMBING TO ME," COMMENTED LIEUT. ARTHUR L.BAILEY OF SAN LUIS OBISOP, CALIF., FORMER RADIO ANNOUNCER FOR STATION KVEC AND NOW NAVIGATOR OF THE FORTRESS "CASED ACE," PILOTED BY LIEUT.HARVEY B.RODGERS OF CLARKSDALE, MISS. "I SAW SOME OF OUR BOMBS GO RIGHT INTO A BUILDING THAT LOOKED LIKE AN ADMINISTRATION BUILDING."

JUL 11 1943

"ONE OF OUR BOMBS HIT WHAT LOOKED LIKE A RAILROAD TRACK. THE STUFF CAME UP 100 FEET HIGH," SAID SERGT.FRED RINGLE OF ABERDEEN, WASH., WAIST GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "SI77LES" PILOTED BY LIEUT. ERNEST A.SIKES, CASPER,WYO. "A BIG CONE OF BLACK SMOKE CAME UP JUST AS SMOOTH X X X X."

JUL 11 1943

PHOTOGRAPHS OF BOMB BURSTS AT CAEN BORE OUT THE FLIERS' MOST ENTHUSIASTIC REPORTS. THE BOMBS WERE CONCENTRATED IN A CLUSTER ABOUT THE MAIN AIRPORT BUILDINGS."

"I SAW ONLY TWO FIGHTERS ON THE WHOLE TRIP AND THEY WERE SO FAR AWAY YOU COULDN'T TELL WHAT THEY WERE AND SPITS FROM OUR ESCORT GOT THEM BEFORE THEY COULD DO ANYTHING," SAID SERGT.GEORGE WILLOUGHBY OF BOWLING GREEN,KY., BALL TURRET GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "SANDMAN THE THIRD" PILOTED BY LIEUT.SAM ELLENBERGER OF PENNSYLVANIA FURNACE,PA.

"I ONLY SAW ABOUT 50 BURSTS OF FLAK WAY BEHIND US ON THE WHOLE TRIP," SAID SERGT.DAYRELL BERGMAN OF LAWRENCE,KAN., TOP TURRET GUNNER OF "SI77LES." "THE BURSTS COMING UP THROUGH THE CLOUDS REALLY LOOKED PRETTY."

A SPITFIRE ESCORT PICKED THE FORTRESSES UP AGAIN ON THEIR WAY OUT OF FRANCE. THE "BOOMERANG BOYS" GROUP FROM THIS FIELD GOT BACK AGAIN WITHOUT A SCRATCH ON ANY PLANE.

"THE TRIP WAS EASIER THAN A LOT OF PRACTICE MISSIONS," COMMENTED SERGT.CHARLES B.COX, 1922 WESTBELL ST., HOUSTON,TEX., COMPLETING HIS FIRST RAID AS A RADIO GUNNER ON "WINDY CITY CHALLENGER."

"IT WAS A JOY RIDE," SAID SERGT.LEWIS FICKEN OF FAIRFAX,S.C., "SI77LES" WAIST GUNNER.

"IT WAS ONE OF THOSE DAYS WHEN THERE IS NOTHING TO DO."

JUL 11 1943

REMARKED LIEUT.SAM R.JOHNSTONE, SAN FRANCISCO, PILOT OF THE FORTRESS "LALLAH THE THIRD."

"THE WEATHER WAS THE ONLY TOUGH PART ABOUT IT--SWEATING OUT THE WEATHER."

JUL 11 1943

"THERE ISN'T ANY STORY ABOUT TODAY. NO FIGHTERS, VERY LITTLE FLAK AND WE REALLY HIT THE TARGET," SAID LIEUTENANT RODGERS

ANOTHER FORMATION OF FORTRESSES FOUND ITS TARGET OBSCURED BY DENSE CLOUDS AND RETURNED TO BASE WITHOUT DROPPING BOMBS FOR FEAR OF STRIKING NON-MILITARY OBJECTIVES AND INJURING FRENCH CIVILIANS.

THE RETURN TRIP WAS MADE IN THE FACE OF SHARP ATTACKS BY ABOUT 25 ENEMY FIGHTERS.

SERGT.LEROY BRADICK, 26, FREDERICKTOWN,OHIO, A BALL TURRET GUNNER, SAID "I OPENED FIRE ONE FOCKE-WULF AT 3 O'CLOCK (TO THE RIGHT) AND HE WENT DOWN IN FLAMES."

SERGT.NORMAN W.STONE, 26, OF OREGON CITY,ORE., WAIST GUNNER ON THE FORTRESS "HOUSE OF LORDS," SAID "I GOT ONE FOCKE-WULF OVER THE TARGET AREA. HE CAME IN LOW. I JUST HELD THE TRIGGER DOWN AND BLEW HIM TO HELL. IT WAS EASY."

WITH THIS RAID TWO VETERAN GUNNERS FLYING ON THE FORTRESS "FLAREPATH," PILOTED BY LIEUT.FRANK R.SPITZNAGEL, BUFFALO,N.Y., COMPLETED THEIR QUOTA OF OPERATIONS IN THIS THEATER.

JUL 11 1943

THE TWO, RIGHT WAIST GUNNER SERGT.HAROLD HAMBLETON, TIETON,WASH., AND LEFT WAIST GUNNER SERGT.RAY ARMSTRONG, CATONSVILLE,MD., FORMER GLENN MARTIN BOMBER PLANT DRAUGHTSMAN, BOTH WANT TO GO BACK TO THE UNITED STATES AND TAKE FLYING TRAINING TO BECOME FORTRESS PILOTS--BUT NOT OVER HERE.

"I WOULD SOONER GO OVER AND SHOOT JAPS A WHILE," SAID HAMBELTON. "JUST SHOW ME THE WAY TO GO HOME."

JUL 11 1943

ARMSTRONG, ONE OF THE CREW OF THE OLD FORTRESS "SOUTHERN COMFORT" WHO PARACHUTED SAFELY FROM THEIR FLAMING PLANE OVER ENGLAND LAST SPRING, SAID "THE FIRST THING I'M GOING TO DO IS GO BACK TO THE BARRACKS AND PACK. I HAVE MY PAPERS FOR FLYING SCHOOL ALL FILLED OUT. I AM STARTING TONIGHT TO GET READY TO GO BACK TO THE LAND OF MALTED MILKS--IF THEY STILL HAVE ANY. WHY DO I WANT TO FLY AGAINST THE JAPS INSTEAD OF HERE? BECAUSE IT'S EASIER."

SERGT.BUSTER COPP OF JUSTIN TEX., WAIST GUNNER ON "WE THE PEOPLE" ALSO WAS PLEASED OVER COMPLETING HIS FINAL MISSION.

GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE SO SCARCE TODAY THAT LIEUT.ARTHUR C. LEWIS OF RAY,ARIZ., THE REGULAR CO-PILOT ON "WE THE PEOPLE" WHO WENT ALONG AS TAIL GUNNER, SAID "I SHOULD HAVE STOOD IN BED."

"I SHOT FOUR ROUNDS TODAY. MY FINGER STAYED A LITTLE TOO LONG ON THE TRIGGER WHEN I WAS TESTING." LAUGHED SERGT.DEWITT D. JONES, FORMER ACROBAT FROM ST.GEORGE,UTAH, "SIZZLES" RADIO-GUNNER.

BY GLADWIN HILL

A U.S.BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, JULY 10-(AP)-CREWMEN OF THE FORTRESS "FLARE PATH" AVERRED TODAY THAT THEY HAD TO KEEP A LOOKOUT FOR U-BOATS ON A WAVE-SKIMMING FLIGHT THROUGH A FOG RECENTLY BECAUSE, ACCORDING TO THE INSTRUMENTS, THEY WERE FLYING 200 FEET BELOW SEA LEVEL.

IT HAPPENED WHILE THE BOMBER WAS RETURNING, SEVERELY DAMAGED, FROM THE NANTES ATTACK JULY 4.

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5901

THE NO. 1 ENGINE WAS HIT BY ENEMY FIRE AND STARTED "RUNNING AWAY." THE NO. 2 ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE. SHELL FRAGMENTS TORE COWLING FROM THE NO. 3 ENGINE. A FLYING CARTRIDGE FROM A BOMBER AHEAD PUT A HOLE IN THE OIL COOLER BETWEEN TWO ENGINES, WHICH STARTED TO SMOKE.

THE PILOT, LIEUT.FRANK R.SPITZNAGEL OF BUFFALO, N.Y., AND THE CO-PILOT, CAPT.MARTIN E.WILLSON OF 1101 HIGH COURT, BERKELEY, CALIF., MANAGED TO PUT OUT THE FIRE IN THE NO. 2 ENGINE AND TO KEEP NO. 3 RUNNING BUT THEY HAD TO SLOW DOWN TO KEEP THE NO. 1 PROPELLER FROM WHIRLING LOOSE AND SLICING OFF THE NOSE OF THE PLANE.

JUL 11 1943

"WE LOST THE MAIN GROUP BUT OUR SQUADRON STAYED WITH US. THEN JUST WHEN WE GOT THE FIRE OUT A FOCKE-WULF STARTED ANOTHER ATTACK," SAID THE BOMBARDIER, LIEUT.ROBERT METCALF OF 2211 23RD ST., SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

"THEY WERE SHOOTING FROM BEHIND US AND I COULDN'T COUNT ALL THE 20-MILLIMETER BURSTS OUT IN FRONT OF THE NOSE. I CALLED OUT TO THE TAIL: 'SOMEBODY GET THAT SON OF A GUN.' THE TAIL CALLED BACK THAT HE WAS OUT OF AMMUNITION AND THE TOP AND BALL TURRETS SAID THEY WERE, TOO."

"SPITZ USED HIS HEAD AND DIVED FOR THE CLOUDS. WE GOT LOST IN THEM AND STARTED COMING DOWN TO FIND OUT WHERE WE WERE. WE CAME DOWN TO ZERO ALTITUDE STILL FLYING ON INSTRUMENTS. BUT WE DIDN'T SEE ANY WATER. A LOW PRESSURE AREA HAD THROWN OUR ALTIMETER OFF.

"WHEN WE FINALLY BROKE THROUGH THE CLOUD IT REGISTERED 200 FEET BELOW SEA LEVEL. BY THAT TIME WE WERE LOOKING OUT FOR SUBMARINES. IT TURNED OUT WE WERE STILL ABOUT 15 FEET OFF THE WATER.

JUL 11 1943

"THEN THE REST OF THE SQUADRON--WE'D LOST THEM COMPLETELY--STARTED COMING THROUGH THE CLOUDS. IT WAS FUNNY""A RENDEZVOUS OF B-17S RIGHT THERE ON THE WATER.

"WHEN SPITZ TRIED TO GET ALTITUDE AGAIN HE WOULD LIFT THE NOSE AND WE'D GAIN A BIT BUT THEN OUR AIRSPEED WOULD DROP UNTIL WE ALMOST STALLED AND WE'D HAVE TO EASE OFF.

JUL 11 1943

"WE KEPT ON DOING THAT, TRYING TO GET HIGH ENOUGH BEFORE WE HIT THE COAST OF ENGLAND. THAT WAS THE FIRST TIME WE WERE EVER SWEATING OUT FIFTEEN-HUNDRED-FOOT MOUNTAINS--WHEN WE'D BEEN UP AT FIVE MILES HIGH A LITTLE WHILE BEFORE.

"WE ENDED UP COMING HOME FLYING DOWN VALLEYS AND PUSHING THE SHIP OVER THE HILLS."

THE NAVIGATOR WAS LIEUT.KARL H.BRAUER OF 1131 NORTH LA SALLE, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

OTHER CREW MEN MEMBERS WERE SERGEANTS TIMOTHY RIORDAN OF 63 PONTIAC STREET, ROXBURY, MASS., TOP TURRET GUNNER; JOHN L.GUMINEY OF 2037 WEST ELEVENTH, CLEVELAND, O., RADIO GUNNER; JESS M.POGUE OF 427 CUNNINGHAM STREET, JOPLIN, MO., BALL TURRET GUNNER; HAROLD HAMBLET OF TIETON, WASH., AND FRANK ROLLOW OF 921 NORTHWEST TWELFTH STREET, OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., WAIST GUNNERS; AND WILLIS G.ROSE OF 1802 CHICKASAW AVENUE, TOPEKA, KAS., TAIL GUNNER.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: ROSS MUNRO, CANADIAN PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WHO SAILED WITH THE CANADIAN FORCE FROM BRITAIN, LEFT THIS STORY WITH CANADIAN MILITARY AUTHORITIES TELLING OF THE DEPARTURE OF THE DOMINION FORCE WHICH TODAY INVADED SICILY.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, (DELAYED)--SECRETLY, QUIETLY AND IN ORDERLY FASHION, THIS GIGANTIC, COMBINED OPERATIONS FORCE--THEY TOLD US IT WAS AGAINST 'X3'--WAS MUSTERED ABOARD A MULTITUDE OF SHIPS IN GREAT INVASION ARMADAS AT ANCHOR IN A NUMBER OF BRITISH PORTS.

THOUSANDS AND THOUSANDS OF CANADIAN AND BRITISH TROOPS ROLLED TO THE DOCKSIDES IN TROOP TRAINS THAT CAME FROM ALL OVER THE UNITED KINGDOM. THERE WERE CANADIANS FROM SOUTHERN ENGLAND AND OTHERS FROM A DOZEN CAMPS IN OTHER PARTS OF THE ISLAND WHERE THEY HAD BEEN DOING SPECIAL TRAINING.

THERE WERE SCOTS FROM THE HIGHLANDS AND LOWLANDS, ENGLISH AND WELSH UNITS.

WE SAW ASSAULT INFANTRY COME ABOARD THIS SHIPS, LOADED DOWN WITH SMALL ARMS AND OTHER WEAPONS AND LOOKING HUSKY AND FIT.

THERE WAS AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF SPECIAL EQUIPMENT AND THERE WERE MANY DIVERSE UNITS ON THE BEACH AT THE BASE: SPECIAL ARTILLERY UNITS SUCH AS SELF-PROPELLED 25-POUNDER GUNS, A REGIMENT OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES, TANK CREWS, AIRFIELD CONSTRUCTION UNITS, MINE-CLEARING SAPPERS, ROAD CONSTRUCTION UNITS.

FT

THERE WERE ALSO SIGNAL AND SUPPLY AND ORDINANCE SERVICES AND ALL THE PANOPLY OF AN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE OF MAJOR IMPORTANCE.

I WAS AT THE PORT WHERE THERE WAS THE LARGEST CONCENTRATION OF SHIPPING AND IT WAS A GRAND SPECTACLE TO STAND ON THE TOP DECK OF OUR INFANTRY-LANDING SHIP AND LOOK OVER A HARBOR THICK WITH VESSELS.

THE INVASION FORCE WAS GATHERED AMID THE MOST CONFUSING AND WILDEST RUMORS ABOUT FUTURE OPERATIONS EVER HEARD IN BRITAIN SINCE THE START OF WAR. TALK WHICH WENT THE ROUNDS ABOUT A POSSIBLE GERMAN INVASION OF BRITAIN IN 1940 WAS NOTHING COMPARED TO WHAT COULD BE HEARD THIS TIME IN LONDON AND IN TOWNS AND PORTS OF ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND.

JUL 11 1943

ONLY A HANDFUL OF HIGH AUTHORITIES IN WHITEHALL KNEW THE FULL IMPORTANCE OF THE EXPEDITION--ITS TARGET AND ITS COMPOSITION. ONLY A FEW PEOPLE OUTSIDE THE ACTUAL FORCE KNEW IT WAS BEING COLLECTED.

YET THERE WAS A FEELING ABROAD IN BRITAIN--PEOPLE SENSED THIS WAS A VITAL SUMMER FOR ALLIED MILITARY OPERATIONS--THAT SOMETHING WAS ON THE CARDS AND THAT THE BRITISH ARMY WAS SOON GOING TO APPEAR ON SOME FOREIGN SOIL TO EXPLOIT THE POWER BUILT UP IN THE PAST THREE YEARS.

THERE IS NO BEST UNIT IN THE ARMY BUT THE INFANTRY ASSAULT FORCE WHICH I ACCOMPANIED CERTAINLY IS CONSIDERED IN THE TOP BRACKET OF INFANTRY BATTALIONS.

THE COMBINED OPERATIONS NATURE OF THIS OPERATION WAS EMPHASIZED ABOARD OUR INFANTRY LANDING SHIP WHICH HAD BEEN IN THE ORIGINAL NORTH AFRICA LANDINGS, WITH THE SKIPPER WINNING THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS FOR HANDLING THE SHIP WITH GALLANTRY AND SKILL EAST OF ALGIERS DURING AN INTENSE BOMBING.

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5903

ON THE DECKS WERE CANADIAN AND BRITISH SOLDIERS IN BATTLEDRESS (THEIR TROPICAL UNIFORMS WERE HIDDEN IN THEIR PACKS), AS WELL AS NAVAL RATINGS AND OFFICERS AND SOME R.A.F. OFFICERS.

ALONG THE SIDES OF THE SHIP WERE ASSAULT LANDING CRAFT SLUNG ON SPECIAL DAVITS. IT IS THESE SMALL CRAFT, 40 FEET LONG WITH A 10-FOOT BEAM, CARRYING 35 MEN IN ADDITION TO A CREW OF FOUR, WHICH CARRY ASSAULT INFANTRY TO THE SHORE.

JUL 11 1943

THE TROOPS WERE STOWING THEIR PACKS, WEBBING AND WEAPONS IN THEIR OWN MESS DECKS AND EXPERIMENTING WITH HAMMOCKS. THE CANADIANS WITH WHOM I WAS TRAVELLING HAD BEEN TO SEA A NUMBER OF TIMES ON COMBINED OPERATIONS. TRAINING AND HAMMOCKS WERE NO NOVELTY TO THEM. THEY HANDLED THEM LIKE SAILORS.

THE BRITISH AND CANADIAN TROOPS WERE SIDE BY SIDE IN THE MESS DECKS AND MOST OFFICERS WERE LUCKY ENOUGH TO GET CABINS, FOUR IN EACH.

THE FIRST NIGHT ABOARD SHIP IN PORT A MEETING OF ALL OFFICERS WAS CALLED.

THE MAJORITY WERE CANADIANS BUT THERE WERE SOME BRITISH OFFICERS TOO, ROYAL NAVY OFFICERS IN BLUE BATTLE DRESS WITH "R.N. COMMANDO" FLASHES AND AIR FORCE OFFICERS, AS WELL AS COMMANDERS OF SPECIAL SERVICE UNITS, EXPERTS IN COMBINED OPERATIONS.

A DUTCH OFFICER ABOARD THE SHIP MADE A MOVING SPEECH DIRECTED TO THE CANADIANS IN WHICH HE SPOKE WITH EMOTION OF THE GRATITUDE OF THE PEOPLE OF THE NETHERLANDS FOR THE HOSPITALITY CANADA HAD OFFERED "OUR PRINCESS AND HER CHILDREN."

JUL 11 1943

THEN HE SAID: "I HOPE THIS OPERATION WILL BRING GREAT GLORY TO CANADA, HOLLAND AND THE ALLIED NATIONS."

BY LEO BRANHAM

AT A FLYING FORTRESS BOMBER STATION, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, JUNE 29 (BY MAIL) -- (AP) SIPPING BEER AND "SHOOTING THE BULL", A GROUP OF FLIERS LOUNGED ABOUT THEIR OFFICERS' CLUB. THEY WERE "ON ALERT." NEXT MORNING -- JUNE 25 -- THEY WERE SCHEDULED TO BOMB TARGETS IN NORTHWESTERN GERMANY.

JUL 11 1943

THEIR TALK DRIFTED AROUND TO A CERTAIN CLASSIFICATION OF THE STATION'S GROUND OFFICERS WHO SOMETIMES RIDE THE BOMBERS AS OBSERVERS.

"SAY, IF YOU EVER GO ON A RAID, FLY WITH ME. YOU KNOW, I'M A LUCKY GUY," EXCLAIMED FIRST LIEUTENANT T. J. SIMONES, 23, OF LA CROSSE, WIS., FORTRESS PILOT WHO, WITH HIS CREW, HAD EMERGED UNSCATHED FROM SEVERAL TOUGH RAIDS, INCLUDING ONE IN WHICH HIS PLANE WAS BADLY SHOT UP.

HIS INVITATION WAS ADDRESSED TO CAPTAIN JOHN C. LANE, OF DETROIT, MICH.

AS AN AFTERTHOUGHT, SIMONES, KNOCKING ON WOOD, ADDED SOBERLY: "BUT THEN, MAYBE I WON'T BE SO LUCKY SOME TIME.".

THE CONVERSATION LAGGED. FINALLY, SIMONES BROKE THE SILENCE. "LOOKS LIKE A TOUGH ONE TOMORROW, DOESN'T IT FELLOWS?"

"I'M AFRAID SO," REPLIED LANE.

SIMONES GREW MORE THOUGHTFUL. HE STARED INTO SPACE. THEN .... "SAY, CAPTAIN," HE SAID QUIETLY, "IF I DON'T COME BACK TOMORROW, WILL YOU 4853 59 .6 .95834?"

"SURE I WILL, BOY," PROMISED LANE.

WAS THAT PREMONITION?...

JUL 11 1943

THERE'S A LETTER IN THE MAILS FOR SIMONE'S MOTHER. IT'S FROM CAPTAIN LANE.

HER SON'S CRIPPLED FORTRESS -- WITH A PACK OX FOCKE-WULF AND MESSERSCHMITT GERMAN FIGHTERS IN HOT PURSUIT -- WAS LAST SEEN GOING DOWN SOMEWHERE OVER CLOUD-COVERED NAZILAND -- STILL UNDER CONTROL AT APPROXIMATELY 15,000 FEET ALTITUDE.

JUL 11 1943

DOWN WITH HIM WENT THESE MEMBERS OF HIS CREW:

SECOND LIEUTENANT JACK N.SCHMITT, 22, DETROIT, MICH., CO-PILOT.

SECOND LIEUTENANT HAROLD W.AEBISCHER, 28, CHICAGO, NAVIGATOR.

SECOND LIEUTENANT THORNTON H. BAKER, NEW CASTLE, IND., BOMBARDIER.

SERGEANTS FRED POLCOVER, BROOKLYN, N.Y., TOP TURRET GUNNER.

GERALD D.METTME, 29, NEW BEDFORD, MASS., RADIO OPERATOR-GUNNER.

JOSEPH P. MOONAN, 22, GALVESTON, TEX., BALL TURRETT GUNNER.

NORMAN J.SCHOOLCRAFT, 23, YAKIMA WASH., A FORMER JOCKEY, TAIL-GUNNER.

FREDERICK B.HARTT (CORRECT), 29, PONTIAC, MICH., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER.

SERGEANT E. VAN VALKENBURG OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., LEFT WAIST GUNNER ABOARD ANOTHER FORTRESS, SAID HE WATCHED SIMONES' DAMAGED PLANE GO DOWN.

JUL 11 1943

"IT HAPPENED JUST BEFORE WE STARTED ON OUR BOMB RUN," VALKENBURG RECALLED. "I SAW SIMONES PEEL OFF FROM OUR FORMATION AT ABOUT A 45 DEGREE ANGLE. IMMEDIATELY FOUR FIGHTERS JUMPED HIM. THEIR 20-MILLI METER CANNON SHELLS WERE BURSTING ALL AROUND THE BOMBER'S TAIL IN BI FLASHES OF FIRE.

"THEN SIMONES DISAPPEARED IN A BIG CLOUD BANK--THERE WAS A LOT OF OVERCAST THAT DAY--AND THEN I SAW HIM COME OUT OF THE CLOUDS. THE FIGHTERS WERE STILL AFTER HIM.

JUL 11 1943

"BUT NOW THEY WERE ATTACKING FROM THREE DIRECTIONS AND RAKING THE BOMBER WITH CANNON AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. BUT THE PLANE STILL WAS UNDER CONTROL.

"WE WERE PRETTY BUSY ABOUT THAT TIME FIGHTING OFF THE JERRIES", VALKENBURG CONTINUED. "THE LAST TIME I SAW SIMONES HE WAS DOWN TO ABOUT 13,000 FEET AND FLYING A LEVEL COURSE."

MADRID JULY 10-(AP)-THREE OF MADRID'S FOUR EVENING NEWSPAPERS BROKE TONIGHT WITH THE PREVIOUSLY FREQUENT PRACTICE OF SUBORDINATING DISPATCHES FROM THE ALLIED CAMP TO BERLIN DISPATCHES THEY CARRIED LONDON, WASHINGTON AND ALGERIAN NEWS UNDER BANNER HEADLINES.

ONLY EL ALCAZAR FOLLOWED THE USUAL CUSTOM AND GAVE MOST PROMINENCE ON ITS FRONT PAGE TO A BERLIN REPORT OF A GERMAN ADVANCE ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

THE ONLY COMMENT ON THE NEWS, HOWEVER, WAS IN EL PUEBLO, WHOSE NAVAL WRITER, LUIS DE SALAZAR, SAID THE GREAT AERO-NAVAL FORCE THE UNITED NATIONS HAD CONCENTRATED SUGGESTED THAT THE ALLIED COMMAND HAD "OTHER MILITARY AND GEOGRAPHIC OBJECTIVES" IN VIEW IN ADDITION TO THE SICILIAN OPERATION.

HE SAID THE CORE OF THE UNITED NATIONS NAVAL FORCE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN CONSISTED OF AT LEAST SIX BATTLESHIPS AND FOUR PLANE CARRIERS. A VAST NUMBER OF TANK CARRIERS, TROOP TRANSPORTS AND DISEMBARKATION BARGES PASSED THROUGH THE STRAITS OF GIBRALTAR RECENTLY, HE ADDED, AND THEY MADE THE FLEET ONE CAPABLE OF FAR GREATER ACTION THAN A SICILIAN LANDING.

JUL 11 1943

JUL 11 1943

30.24-5905

"IT MIGHT INDICATE VARIOUS OPERATIONS OF WHICH PERHAPS THE LANDING IN SICILY IS NOT THE FIRST IN IMPORTANCE BUT THE FIRST IN TIME," HE WROTE.

JUL 11 1943

THE AXIS IS FAR OUTCLASSED IN NAVAL VESSELS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, HE SAID, AND IT AGAIN SHOWED ITALY'S ERROR IN FAILING TO BUILD CARRIERS ON THE THEORY THAT ITALY ITSELF FORMED AN "ANCHORED CARRIER" IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. HE EMPHASIZED THE FACT THAT THE UNITED NATIONS NOW HAD AIR COVER FOR THEIR BATTLE FLEET AND THAT THE ARMOR OF THE NEWEST UNITS HAD BEEN HEAVILY REINFORCED AGAINST AIR BOMBING ATTACK.

THE NEWSPAPER INFORMACIONES NOTED THAT SICILY CONTRIBUTED MORE ITALIAN TROOPS TO UNITS WHICH AIDED GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO IN THE CIVIL WAR THAN ANY OTHER ITALIAN REGION. IT CALLED THE SICILIANS "SMALL, AGILE AND VALIANT."

EDS--3RD LINE READ XXX BERLIN DISPATCHES. THEY CARRIED ETC

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JULY 10--(AP)--ITALY ACKNOWLEDGED TONIGHT THAT THE HOUR WHICH WILL DECIDE THE FATE OF FASCISM BEGAN WITH THE ALLIED LANDING IN SICILY.

THE COMMENT THAT CAME FROM ROME WAS CALMLY PHRASED. FASCIST PROPAGANDA AND PREPARATORY ALLIED BOMBS HAD WELL PREPARED THE NATION FOR THE OFFENSIVE. WEAKENING FASCIST PARTY MEMBERS AND THOSE SUSPECT WERE ARRESTED IN THE PAST FEW DAYS IN CONSIDERABLE NUMBERS. FASCISM HAS DONE WHAT IT COULD.

JUL 11 1943

THE EFFECT THAT COULD BE EXPECTED FROM THAT PREPARATION WAS FATALISTICALLY SUGGESTED BY THE ROME NEWSPAPER LA TRIBUNA WHICH SAID TONIGHT: "THE MOMENT IS DECISIVE FOR US AND FOR THE ANGLO-AMERICANS."

BOTH ALLIED AND AXIS SOURCES SPOKE OF THE FIERCE RESISTANCE SICILY'S DEFENDERS WERE MAKING, BUT DETAILS WERE AWAITED.

ROME COMMENT, HOWEVER, DID MAKE CLEAR THAT PROPAGANDA WOULD SEEK TO SHOW THAT THE ALLIES CHOSE THE EASIEST OBJECTIVE, WHICH WOULD FALL SHORT OF THE SECOND FRONT JOSEPH STALIN EXPECTED. THE AXIS APPEARED TO HAVE NO ILLUSION ABOUT ALLIED STRENGTH AND MADE NO EFFORT TO CLAIM THAT SICILY COULD BE HELD; THE AXIS WOULD SEEK INSTEAD TO CONVINCE THE WORLD THEY COULD REPULSE THE ALLIES EVEN AFTER SICILY WAS TAKEN.

JUL 11 1943

COMMENT ALSO INDICATED THAT ITALY HAD DROPPED ALL BUT THE OLD PHRASES CONCERNING FASCISM AND PLACED THE HOPES OF KEEPING BENITO MUSSOLINI AND HIS COHORTS IN THE SADDLE ONLY ON THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE THEMSELVES--IN ANSWER TO THE ALLIED APPEAL THAT THE PEOPLE OUST THEIR GOVERNMENT.

FOREIGN OBSERVERS CALLED THE ITALIAN ATTITUDE FATALISTIC.

TRIBUNA WROTE, FOR EXAMPLE, "BUT IN ADMITTING THAT THE FIRST OBSTACLE CAN BE SURMOUNTED, THE ENEMY WILL GO ON TO MEET A PEOPLE DETERMINED. BY COMMENCING THE ATTACK ON EUROPE THE ALLIES ARE NOW COURTING THE SAME DANGERS WE RAN DURING OUR THREE YEARS' CAMPAIGN IN AFRICA.

BOTH IL MESSAGERO AND IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA MILITARY WRITERS DEVOTED ARTICLES TO PRAISING ITALIAN TORPEDO AVIATION ATTACKS WITH CLAIMS OF "REMARKABLE" SUCCESS.

"THE ENEMY WILL SEE," DECLARED IL GIORNALE, THAT ITALIAN PREPARATIONS AGAINST THE ALLIED AIRFORCE ARE "SUPERIOR TO THOSE EXPECTED

AT AN ADVANCED AIRBASE IN NORTH AFRICA JULY 10-(AP)-TWENTY-FOUR YEAR OLD LIEUT. ROBERT EMILE ARMSTRONG OF KNOXVILLE, TENN., IS WEARING A BLACK EYE AND A SLIGHTLY CUT FOREHEAD AS THE ONLY SOUVENIRS OF HIS FOURTH AND MOST EXCITING VICTORY OVER ENEMY AIRCRAFT PLUS A 35,000-FOOT PARACHUTE JUMP WHICH PROBABLY SET A RECORD FOR THE NORTH AFRICAN THEATER.

JUL 11 1943

ARMSTRONG WAS FLYING A SPITFIRE WHEN HE ATTACKED A WELL-ARMED JUNKERS-86 RECONNAISSANCE PLANE AT 35,000 FEET. HIS CANNON JAMMED SO HE PURSUED HIS VICTIM AT SHORT RANGE FIRING MACHINEGUNS.

HE GOT IN A KILLING BLOW BUT NOT BEFORE A CANNON SHELL FROM THE JUNKERS HIT HIS CANOPY WINDSHIELD, KNOCKING OFF HIS OXYGEN MASK AND HELMET AND DISABLING THE SPITFIRE.

DAZED, BUT AWARE OF THE DANGER FROM THE LOSS OF OXYGEN, ARMSTRONG BAILED OUT AND DROPPED 10,000 FEET BEFORE PULLING THE RIPCORD TO OPEN HIS PARACHUTE.

"I HAD NO OXYGEN EQUIPMENT AND I DIDN'T WANT TO HANG AROUND IN THE UPPER ALTITUDES," HE EXPLAINED.

THEN HE LOST CONSCIOUSNESS BUT REGAINED HIS SENSES AT ABOUT 10,000 FEET ALTITUDE.

JUL 11 1943

THE WIND BEGAN TO BLOW HIM TOWARD A LAKE AND HE TRIED TO STEER AWAY BY SLIPPING HIS PARACHUTE BUT FAILED. THE WIND CHANGED, HOWEVER, AND ENABLED HIM TO LAND SAFELY. HE HIKED THREE MILES TO A HIGHWAY WHERE AN ARMY ENGINEERS DETACHMENT TOOK HIM TO A FIELD HOSPITAL FOR EXAMINATION. A FEW HOURS LATER HE REJOINED HIS SQUADRON.

THE PILOT OF THE JUNKERS, WHO WITH ANOTHER MEMBER OF ITS CREW ALSO BAILED OUT, WAS TAKEN TO THE SAME HOSPITAL. THE THIRD MEMBER OF ITS CREW APPARENTLY WAS KILLED BY ARMSTRONG'S BULLETS AND WENT DOWN WITH THE PLANE.

OUR BOMBARDIER, LIEUTENANT MAURICE LAIR, 26, OF EVANSTON, ILL., SCORED TWO HITS AND ONE NEAR MISS ON A FREIGHTER, ANYONE OF WHICH WAS CAPABLE OF SINKING THE VESSEL. IT WAS HER FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE SINCE HER RETURN TO CHUNGKING AFTER SEVEN AND A HALF MONTHS IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

SHE TOUCHED UPON TOPICS RANGING FROM AID FOR CHINA TO THE UNITED STATES' HAIRPIN SHORTAGE.

JUL 11 1943

"YOU HAVE NO IDEA HOW HARD IT IS TO GET SOME THINGS, FOR EXAMPLE HAIRPINS OR ELASTIC," SHE SAID.

"HOW ABOUT GIRDLES?" INQUIRED A WOMAN CORRESPONDENT.

"I DON'T WEAR ANY," MRS.CHIANG REPLIED.

THE WIFE OF CHINA'S GENERALISSIMO WAS ATTIRED IN A BLUE POLKA DOT DRESS AND WHITE SHOES WITH WHITE BOWS.

SHE REFERRED REPEATEDLY TO EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY FOR THE CHINESE PEOPLE BY AMERICANS.

"THEY ARE ALL FOR GIVING MORE AID TO CHINA," SHE SAID. "ALL AMERICANS, EVEN THE SO-CALLED ISOLATIONISTS, ARE FOR SENDING MORE HELP TO THE PACIFIC AND AGAIN AND AGAIN THEY TOLD ME HOW ASHAMED THEY FELT THAT CHINA WAS NOT GETTING MORE AID.

THE JAPANESE TROOPS DEFENDING MUNDA, REPORTED TO BE IN CONSIDERABLE NUMBERS AND PREPARED FOR A BLOODY LAST DITCH STAND, EXHIBITED REALIZATION OF THE PERIL POSED BY THE ROADBLOCK.

"DURING THE NIGHT OUR MEDIUM AND HEAVY BOMBERS ATTACKED AN ENEMY NAVAL FORCE OF LIGHT CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS APPROACHING NEW GEORGIA, SCORING TWO HITS WITH 500 POUNDS BOMBS. FURTHER RESULTS WERE UNOBSERVED."

(THE COMMUNIQUE DID NOT INDICATE THE PURPOSE OF THE JAPANESE SHIPS WHICH WELL MAY HAVE BEEN EITHER TO SHELL OUR POSITIONS OR TO CARRY AID BY SEA TO MUNDA INASMUCH AS AMERICAN LANDINGS ON NEW GEORGIA PRACTICALLY HAVE CUT OFF ALL OTHER MEANS OF SUPPLY AND REENFORCEMENT)

ABOVE NEW GEORGIA ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND, MUNDA'S SUPPLY DEPOT OF VILA WAS ATTACKED BY MEDIUM AMERICAN BOMBERS WITH A FIGHTER ESCORT. THESE PLANES STRAFED AN ENEMY DESTROYER BEACHED ON THE SOUTH-EAST COAST OF KILOMBANGARA.

(THIS DESTROYER VERY LIKELY WAS ONE OF THE ENEMY SHIPS DAMAGED IN THE JULY 6 (CORRECT) BATTLE IN THE KULA GULF)

BEFORE SALAMAUA, ON WHICH AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN PATROLS HAVE BEEN PRESSING FROM THREE SIDES, ALLIED PLANES CONTINUED TO BLAST A PATH THROUGH JUNGLE DEFENSE POSITIONS OF THE ENEMY.

IN THE LATEST ACTION REPORTED IN TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE, 46 TONS OF BOMBS WERE AIMED AT MALOLO, KELA, SALAMAUA ISTHMUS, LOGUI AND KOMIATUM. JAPANESE JUNGLE FIGHTERS ALSO WERE SUBJECTED TO MACHINEGUNNING BY THE PLANES.

JUL 11 1943

THE AERIAL POUNDING OF THE JAPANESE MUNDA DEFENSES WAS THE SECOND STRAIGHT DAY OF SUCH INTENSIFIED ACTION. YESTERDAY'S COMMUNIQUE TOLD OF MORE THAN 100 PLANES DROPPING MORE THAN 70 TONS OF BOMBS.

THE AIR RAIDERS WERE SUPPORTED ON FRIDAY BY THE BLAZING GUNS OF UNITED STATES NAVAL UNITS AND BY ARTILLERY FIRE FROM NEARBY RENDOVA ISLAND, WHICH THE AMERICANS CAPTURED AT THE START OF THE OFENSIVE ON JUNE 30. THE BOMBINGS WERE THE HEAVIEST YET TO HIT THE MUNDA BASE THE JAPANESE COUNTERED WITH ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE BUT SOME OF THEIR BATTERIES WERE SILENCED BY BURSTING BOMBS AND SHELLS.

THE ACTIONS WERE EXPECTED TO BE FOLLOWED BY A LAND ATTACK BY AMERICAN TROOPS ALREADY ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND BOTH THREE MILES TO THE EAST OF MUNDA AND NORTH OF THE BASE. JUL 11 1943

UNITED STATES FORCES ON RENDOVA WERE RAIDED BY 45 JAPANESE ZEROS WHICH WERE DISPERSED BY OUR FIGHTER PLANES. FOUR ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN TO BRING TO NEARLY 200 THE NUMBER OF PLANES THE ENEMY HAS LOST IN EFFORTS TO CHECK THE SOLOMONS ACTION. ONE AMERICAN FIGHTER WAS LOST OVER RENDOVA.

SEVEN HUNDRED MILES TO THE SOUTHWEST IN THE BATTLE AGAINST THE ENEMY AIR BASE AT SALAMAUA, NORTHEAST NEW GUINEA, ALLIED BOMBERS ATTACKED BOBDUBI RIDGE FIVE MILES FROM SALAMAUA, STARTING FIRES. OTHER NEARBY VILLAGES WERE BOMBED.

THE SATURDAY COMMUNIQUE FROM THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ALSO REPORTED AN INEFFECTUAL ATTEMPT OF THREE JAPANESE DIVE-BOMBERS TO ATTACK NASSAU BAY, 12 MILES SOUTH OF SALAMAUA, WHERE THE AMERICANS LANDED ON JUNE 30.

JUL 11 1943

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

AS THE FIRST SMOKE OF THE GREAT BATTLE OF SICILY BEGINS TO LIFT WE CAN SEE THAT WHAT REALLY MATTERS IS THAT AT LONG LAST THE ALLIES HAVE FLUNG THEMSELVES BOLDLY INTO WHAT COMMANDER IN CHIEF EISENHOWER DESCRIBES AS "THE FIRST STAGE IN THE LIBERATION OF THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT"--AN OBJECTIVE WHICH THE TENSE GERMANS THIS MORNING CHARACTERIZED AS THE BIGGEST ENTERPRISE IN HISTORY.

SICILY IS THE FIRST STRIDE IN OUR NEW SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS. BEYOND THAT CRAGGY ISLAND LIE VAST REACHES OF STRONGLY HELD ENEMY TERRITORY. HISTORY RECORDS NOTHING LIKE THE AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS WHICH WE MUST CARRY OUT IN ORDER TO ACHIEVE OUR GOAL.

THE INVASION WHICH WAS INAUGURATED IN THE EARLY HOURS TODAY, WHEN FINELY TRAINED AMERICAN-CANADIAN-ENGLISH TROOPS STORMED THEIR WAY

JUL 11 1943

30.24-3911

ONTO THE ROCKY SHORES OF SICILY IN THE FACE OF BLAZING RESISTANCE, MARK THE GRAND OPENING OF THE CRUCIAL PERIOD OF THE HITLERIAN CONFLICT. A FEW WEEKS FROM NOW WE MAY KNOW PRETTY WELL HOW LONG IT'S GOING TO TAKE TO SMASH THE NAZI FUEHRER.

MIND YOU, WHILE THIS INAUGURATES THE CONTINENTAL OFFENSIVE IN A GENERAL SENSE, WE SHOULDN'T JUMP TO THE CONCLUSION THAT THE ALLIES ARE GOING TO RACE FROM SICILY TO THE BIGGER PHASES IMMEDIATELY. THERE MAY BE SOME OTHER TIDYING UP OPERATIONS AMONG THE MEDITERRANEAN ISLANDS FIRST. WE AREN'T LIKELY TO CLAMBER ABOARD THE CONTINENT TOMORROW.

JUL 11 1943

STILL, THE CONQUEST OF POWERFULLY HELD SICILY WILL IN ITSELF BE A MAJOR TRIUMPH. THIS IS A MOMENT OF EXULTATION, THOUGH I THINK WE SHOULDN'T LET THIS MAKE US OVERLOOK THAT OUR JOY IS LIKELY TO BE TEMPERED WITH SOME TEARS. THIS JOB IS GOING TO BE COSTLY, YOU KNOW.

GENERAL EISENHOWER TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE IN NORTH AFRICA IN JUNE THAT THE ALLIES MIGHT BE "RIDING FOR A BLOODY NOSE," BUT HE THOUGHT THE JOB COULD BE DONE. EARLY REPORTS TODAY INDICATED THAT THE INVASION FORCES WERE ENCOUNTERING HEAVY RESISTANCE.

SICILY HAD BEEN SURROUNDED BY MINE FIELDS, SUBMARINES LURKED ALL ABOUT IT, AND STRONG COASTAL BATTERIES HAD BEEN SET UP TO MEET THE IMPENDING INVASION. LAST NIGHT HEAVY GERMAN AND ITALIAN REINFORCEMENTS WERE RUSHED FROM THE MAINLAND TO THE ISLAND. IT WAS NO BOY'S JOB WHICH THE ALLIED MEN TACKLED AS THEY RACED ASHORE FROM THEIR BARGES AND CLAMBERED OVER THE TERRORIZING BARBED WIRE IN THE FACE OF HEAVY FIRE.

JUL 11 1943

A111

STILL, THEY ARE AS FIT AND WELL PREPARED FOR THEIR BLOODY TASK AS ANY MEN COULD BE. MANY OF THEM--PERHAPS ALL--ARE EITHER COMMANDO TRAINED OR HAVE UNDERGONE A SIMILAR FIERCE PREPARATION OVER A LONG PERIOD. THE CANADIANS, FOR INSTANCE, HAVE BEEN UNDERGOING INTENSIVE TRAINING FOR INVASION FOR THREE YEARS.

JUL 11 1943

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT LESSONS WHICH THUSFAR HAVE COME TO US FROM THIS OFFENSIVE IS THAT AIR POWER CAN INDEED RENDER LARGE AREAS OF HEAVILY FORTIFIED TERRITORY SUFFICIENTLY IMPOTENT SO THAT AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS CAN BE CARRIED OUT. SUCH LANDING OF TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT FROM THE SEA IS PERHAPS THE MOST DIFFICULT OF ALL MILITARY OPERATIONS.

WE HAVE MANY OF THESE BLOODY LANDINGS AHEAD OF US BEFORE WE BEAT THE BOCHE. WE HAVE NO FOOTHOLD ON THE CONTINENT AT ALL, EXCEPTING THROUGH THE RUSSIANS IN THE EAST. THE LAST WORLD WAR WAS CHILD'S PLAY AS COMPARED WITH THIS.

AND SO IT'S GRAND TO FINE THAT BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WAS RIGHT WHEN HE SAID THE EXPERIMENT OF TRYING TO KNOCK THE ENEMY OUT BY BOMBING WAS WORTH WHILE. WE CAN SEE NOW THAT AIR POWER IS GOING TO OPEN UP THE CONTINENT TO US.

ALL THIS IS SAID, OF COURSE, WITHOUT FORGETTING THAT THE BATTLE OF SICILY IS STILL YOUNG AS THIS IS WRITTEN. WE HAVE TO WIN THIS ENGAGEMENT BEFORE WE CAN GO AHEAD WITH OTHERS.

Americans Capture Two Airdromes Near Gela on South Shore.

Casualties Reported Slight as Allied Fighters Expand Gains.

NEW EQUIPMENT LANDED

Major Enemy Counterattack Expected Momentarily by Invasion Commanders.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 11.—(AP) Three airfields have fallen to the Allied invasion forces, including the American parachutists and British glider troops, which tonight still were striking inland without major resistance after solidly establishing a 100-mile bridgehead in southeastern Sicily.

The latest official reports in the opening battle for Europe gave this picture of the campaign tonight:

Smudge-faced American parachutists who dropped on the big island Friday night had made a contact with American infantrymen who landed later in assault barges—capturing two airfields in the Gela area, about 55 miles west of the southeastern tip of Sicily. The booted, toughly-trained parachutists had suffered "negligible losses" in gaining these objectives on their first large scale assault.

Tank Column Battered

The Americans had collided with an enemy tank column when they landed near Gela, but easily mastered it with the aid of a barrage of shells hurled ashore from guardian warships.

British and Canadian troops to the southeast joined ranks across the narrow Cape Passero, capturing a third airfield at Pachino on the cape's tip after hard fighting.

Casualties were believed to have been slight in all these operations, a communique said.

With piles of guns, vehicles, and supplies pouring ashore behind them, the Allies were fanning out and striking inland. The big ships of the American and British navies continued to shunt more and more equipment ashore, while a dominating air force guarded the skies and raked Axis concentration points all over the island.

(An Algiers radio broadcast recorded in London said the Allies already had set up regimental and divisional headquarters in Sicily.

(Axis reports relayed through Stockholm also said that Allied troops had landed at seven points, including Licata, 15 miles west of Gela, and at Canicatti, 15 miles north and inland from Licata. The latter city probably was a parachutist objective.)

More Canadian reinforcements have reached North Africa from Britain, presumably to swell the "invasion sea trains" sweeping across toward Sicily.

Counterattack Awaited

The fact that the major German-Italian counterattack has not yet developed indicates that the Allied High Command won an important tactical victory, completely surprising the defenders with the massive flow of ships and men to southeastern Sicily.

Military sources said that a full Axis counterattack still is to come. It is expected at any moment. Such resistance as was encountered by the Allied troops probably was offered by Italians alone, semi-static units of the Sicilian coastal defense.

Nevertheless an Italian army radio broadcast heard here said that "severe fighting" had broken out, apparently referring to the engagements at Gela and Cape Passero. These actions were described here as relatively unimportant compared to what is expected from the enemy.

Planes Provide Barrage

The capture of the three airfields was a development of major importance. But it has not yet been announced whether Allied planes are using these advanced bases in their thus far excellent Sicilian operations which have afforded a "rolling barrage" paving the way for steady Allied ground advances.

(Berlin reports to Sweden said German military observers had acknowledged that Allied air power was playing a big part in initial landing operations, not only blocking sea transport between Sicily and the mainland but also smashing cable and telephone communications so vital for the deployment of defending Axis troops.)

The Americans, British, and Canadians now have established positions where the sea is on both flanks—the Ionian sea to the east below the Messina strait, and the Mediterranean on the west.

Observers emphasized that a concerted Axis counter-offensive could be expected as soon as the German and Italian generals could decide whether the southeast coast landings constituted an Allied feint to cover a real invasion from another point or were in fact the real thing.

Beaches Held Firmly

"With our beaches firmly held and our troops advancing, the Allied navies' most important task during the day was the landing of further troops with their vehicles, guns, fuel, equipment and stores," said a headquarters communique.

At Gela, a vital port and road junction on the Gulf of Gela, the Americans established their beach objectives in three hours after the pre-dawn landing Saturday, fanning out to the right and left to contact other forces on thier flanks. Gela was the first city to be disclosed officially as a point attacked in the invasion of the island, 300 square miles larger than Vermont.

As the American troops waded ashore, Allied warships caught sight of an enemy tank column rumbling toward Gela and opened up on it with a shattered artillery barrage.

The identity of the Axis armored unit which attempted unsuccessfully to drive the American landing party back into the sea was not diclosed but it was believed to have been German.

Allied Troops Advance

"Although few details have yet come in, it is clear our operations against Sicily continue to go according to plan," the Allied communique said. "During the course of the day's fighting good progress has been made and the advance continues. Information in regard to casualties is not yet available but it is believed they have been slight."

There was no suggestion that any of the many American, British and Canadian thrusts made in the early morning hours yesterday had been halted or turned back.

(Axis broadcasts recorded in London said Americans were advancing into the mountains north of Licata, and the Vichy radio, relaying Axis reports, said "This is a difficult hour for us.")

Although few details were contained in today's communiques, they served to round out the picture of the gigantic operation in which synchronized land, sea and air forces carried out their tasks with the precision of a fine watch.

BRIDGE OF SHIPS

While this operation gathered momentum, a bridge of ships was stretching out from the African coast toward Sicily.

It was composed of invasion craft, transports, freighters and probably tankers. Warships formed steel sides for the long columns of ships. Somewhere up ahead minesweepers were at work clearing the waters where the landings were scheduled to take place.

At the same time, hundreds of Allied airmen hovered in the darkness above the ships, pounded known strong points along the coast and roared inland to bomb airfields, railroads and highways wherever Axis forces would attempt to reach points to be invaded.

Twenty-eight Allied planes were listed officially as lost during the invasion operations and 22 enemy planes were shot down.

The powerful new A-36 fighter-bombers were employed lavishly in the attacks against those enemy airfields "which are still in operation," an air force communique said.

HEAVIEST AIR LOSS

It was the first time since the beginning of the Allied aerial thrust against Sicily that the attacking forces lost more planes than the Axis. This fact, it was pointed out, indicated the size and intensity of the operations that shielded the ground forces.

Cairo dispatches said aerial reconnaissance yesterday showed that several important Sicilian airfields had been made unserviceable by the heavy pounding of U. S. air units.

(The German high command, in a communique broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said heavy fighting was in progress Sunday on the southeast coast of Sicily and declared that 64 Allied planes had been shot down over the island and surrounding waters.

(The Germans said Italian torpedo planes sank three Allied vessels, including two 13,000-ton transports, and in a joint attack with German air units they "damaged three enemy cruisers and numerous large and medium sized transports as well as many landing boats."

(In a communique broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press the Italians declared that 31 Allied planes had been shot down over Sicily and reported that Italian and German troops were "energetically" engaging the Allied forces and had held them.

(One Berlin broadcast quoted Virginio Gayda, Italian editor who often speaks for Premier Mussolini, as saying the "the first movements of Allied landing troops on Sicily have been paralyzed by the immediate action of Axis forces. At several points the enemy was surrounded and annihilated.")

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 11 — (AP) American and British airborne troops, striking back at the Axis in the same manner in which Germany once terrorized her foes, landed in Sicily by parachute and glider hours before the invasion by Allied ground forces it, was disclosed officially today.

ican and British paratroopers and towing troop-filled British gliders roared over the island, reaching the vicinity of their objectives before being spotted by anti-aircraft gunners.

Planes Drive Through Flak

Despite the flak barrages, the transport command pilots maneuvered their big planes to their targets. The gliders were cut loose and they soared to objectives in the eastern sector of the invasion zone. The parachute troops bailed out over targets to the west.

There the airborne units, some of which had been used early in the North African campaign and all of which had been specially trained for at least a year, moved swiftly to consolidate positions behind the enemy's beach defenses.

An official announcement today said these aerial forces achieved success with "negligible losses."

It was the largest operation of its kind since the German capture of Crete, but far less costly than the Nazi aerial invasion of two years ago.

Losses Are Minor

While the Friday night assault resulted in insignificant losses to the Allies, the Crete operation cost the Germans 100 transport planes and the lives of thousands of specialized troops.

It was the second large scale attack for the American troop transport command, which made its first big flight from England to Algeria last November.

As the seaborne ground units smashed ashore in landing barges, Allied warplanes maintained what was described by a headquarters communique as "vigilant patrols" over Sicily, covering not only the invasion areas but striking at the enemy's coast strong points and inland communications lines.

22 Axis Planes Downed

They shot down 22 Axis aircraft during the widespread operations and a total of 28 Allied planes failed to return to their bases.

At the same time, American Liberator bombers from the Middle East pounded railroad yards at Catania, on the eastern shore of Sicily, and other 9th U. S. air force units attacked the airdrome at Vibo Valentia on the Italian mainland.

Aerial reconnaissance showed that several of the most important Sicilian airfields had been made unserviceable by American bombings. Widespread damage was reported at Catania, where 150,000 pounds of explosives were dumped. At Vibo Valentia bombs struck the center of the landing field and set ground-ed aircraft afire.

R.A.F. and Australian Halifaxes and Liberators kept up the attacks last night, further aiding the advancing tide of Allied invasion forces.

An air force communique said the fliers covering the Sicilian landings protected shipping and the beaches where the troops came ashore and also hammered enemy transport convoys and railways in the interior. Heavy bombers and powerful new A-36 fighter-bombers was used lavishly in the attacks against those enemy air fields "still in operation," the bulletin said.

All Planes in Action

It was stated officially that the entire strategic and tactical air forces were employed in the furious aerial campaign.

The A-36s went on more than 100 sorties over Sicily. They raided troops, motor transport, bridges, railway yards, locomotives and barracks in roaring low-level attacks.

The pilots reported having caused numerous fires and considerable destruction.

During the morning the anti-aircraft fire was described as light but it became more intense later in the day and there was some fire from enemy small arms when the fighter-bomber pilots came down to treetop level in their attacks on ground forces.

However, some units of American A-36s went into southern and central Sicily during every hour of the day from early morning until dusk without meeting opposition of any kind.

Their mission was to attack Axis rail and highway communications but some found the convoys more scarce than they had been for several days. They destroyed two locomotives, however, bringing the total to seven for one A-36 formation alone during the past few days.

Freight Train Bombed

Another group of the fighter-bombers hit a long freight train in a railway siding with 21 bombs.

"After that we could see those freight cars rolling over like ninepins," said Capt. J. C. Gunnison, 22, of San Rafael, Calif. "They'll have a hell of a time using that railroad again."

Many pilots of the A-36s and P-38 Lightnings flew two and three missions on the same day, racing back and forth across the Mediterranean to their bases, loading up with more gasoline, bombs and ammunition and then returning to their devastating attack.

They left a blazing trail across Sicily.

Groups of Lightnings and fighter-bombers spotted a long convoy of trucks rushing Axis troops toward the forward areas. One pilot said the whole formation peeled off and roared in low over the road with machineguns and cannons blazing. He saw some trucks hit and was positive he saw casualties among the troops.

A convoy of German armored vehicles was caught in the same way near the town of Augusta on the east coast. Some were destroyed and others set afire. Then the fliers went out to sea to strafe five small boats hiding in the outer harbor.

Town Blasted

The town of San Pietro also was bombed and machinegunned. The fire was concentrated effectively on the railroad station.

Allied Armada Of 2,000 Took Part in Landing

Record Ship Concentration More Than Doubled Fleet in North Africa Invasion

JUL 12 1943

By Edward Gilling

For the combined British press
(Distributed by The Associated Press)

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 11.—There were more than 2,000 vessels involved in the landing in Sicily.

[The Allied armada invading Sicily thus became the greatest in history, more than doubling the 850 warships and merchantmen which comprised the invasion fleet for North Africa last fall.]

It was a stupendous task to take these great convoys through one of the narrowest channels to their destination, so that each ship should arrive at its scheduled landing beach at the right minute.

Weather made the task even a more grueling one for the personnel of the landing craft, most of whom were young and inexperienced. It was an outstanding performance to get such a force ashore without any real mishaps.

An American naval force covered the landing of American troops, and on the beaches where the Americans landed there was a very heavy swell, but their assault troops all were put ashore on time.

It is now confirmed that no contact was made with enemy surface vessels. The only thing seen by our ships was a small group of Italian E-boats, which promptly made off at high speed when they saw the Allied navies.

"Like a Spithead Review"

"It was like a Spithead review" was the way a naval officer described the scene off the Sicilian coast as Allied troops began their landing operations.

Long lines of ships of all types and all sizes were lying off the beaches, the only thing missing being the bunting. Landing craft were fussing back and forth between beaches and ships which were crowded with troops, and naval beach parties were supervising the unloading of equipment, guns and tanks which went on steadily throughout the day without interruption.

After enemy coastal batteries had been silenced and our troops had broken through the beach defenses there was very little sign that we had landed on enemy territory.

Cruisers and destroyers silenced many coastal batteries which opened fire on our assault boats as they went into the beaches. One of these batteries, whose code name was "P for Peter," after being silenced by warships began to fire again but only spasmodically. Its shells never fell within the range of our ships but it apparently annoyed the British admiral who sent out the signal: "If P for Peter opens his mouth again, give him the works."

Cunningham in Command

Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham Mediterranean Fleet commander in chief, was afloat during Saturday afternoon, visiting in turn all the naval forces off the Sicilian coast and naval forces working on the beaches.

By this time the swell had died down and it was a lovely summer afternoon. As he passed through the long line of ships he saw big transports unloading tanks into landing craft and watched the troops being taken ashore without any interference from the enemy.

On Friday Admiral Cunningham sent the following message to all ships taking part in the operations:

"1. We are about to embark on the most momentous enterprise of the war—striking for the first time at the enemy in his own land.

"2. Success means the opening of the second front with all that implies and the first move toward rapid and decisive defeat of our enemies.

"3. Our object is clear and our primary duty is to place this vast expedition ashore in minimum time and subsequently to maintain our military and air forces as they drive relentlessly forward into enemy territory.

"4. In the light of this duty great risks must be and are to be accepted. The safety of our own ships and all distracting considerations are to be relegated to second place or disregarded as the accomplishment of our primary duty may require.

"5. On every commanding officer and rating rests the individual and personal duty of insuring that no flinching in determination or failure of effort on his own part will hamper this great enterprise.

"I rest confident in the resolution, skill and endurance of you all towhom this momentous enterprise is intrusted."

Eisenhower Praises Work Of Allied Navies at Sicily

Calls U. S. and British Operation 'Successfully Executed'

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 11 (Distributed by The Associated Press).—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander of the forces invading Sicily, paid tribute today to the work of the Allied navies in the landings.

"In the Sicilian operations, the United States and Royal Navies have again proved that even while engaged in operations covering the seven seas, they can plan and successfully execute vast and intricate movements in support of land operations, and can do this despite obstacles and distance, weather and enemy opposition," he said.

"In this theater the skill of the Allied naval commanders and the staffs under the leadership of Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew B. Cunningham and his principal lieutenants — American Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt and British Admiral Bertram Ramsay—are reflected in the precise timing and perfect technique displayed on the beaches of Sicily, where there were landed hundreds of ships and boats whose ports of origin were scattered over half a world.

"Their comrades of the air and ground forces unite in an enthusiastic and grateful 'well done.'"

TROOPS IN GLIDERS OPEN ASSAULT ON SICILIAN AIRFIELDS

JUL 12 1943

Airborne Force Battles Fierce Winds to Reach Objective.

Representing The Combined United States Press
(Distributed By The Associated Press)

ADVANCED BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, July 10—(Delayed) British glider troops defying a fierce whistling wind opened the assault against Sicily last night (Friday) and four hours later the Royal navy overcame severe handicaps and a heavy swell to put troops ashore on the beaches on the southeastern shores of the island.

Meagre preliminary reports so far available show the forces assaulting the beaches already have seized vital hills 2,500 yards from them and about a mile and a half inland.

Resistance Overcome

Reports indicate the opening phases of the assault have gone extremely well, with the beach landing forces overwhelming scattered resistance from coastal defenses and numerous snipers.

Heavy naval and air bombardments pounded several coastal defense batteries into quick submission.

And while glider troops drifted out of the starry night sky, assault landing troops plunged through rough shallow water on the beaches of the southeastern side of the island.

Canadians also are pushing inland. They reported the early capture of an important strong point with guns about 2,000 yards inland. Other British troops landed on the Beaches.

Airfields Bombed

The glider-borne landing was under cover of a heavy aerial bombardment of airfields in order to prevent as much as possible interference from German and Italian night fighters. The attackers reported some Junkers 88s in the air but they apparently were concentrating chiefly against bombers and had not interfered seriously with the planes towing the gliders or with the gliders themselves.

All the towing planes returned to their bases safely.

A high wind which swept the central Mediterranean most of yesterday (Thursday) and last night seemed to threaten the efficiency with which the land, sea and air forces were trained to carry out the combined assault in accordance with a carefully planned time table.

But the hard training and battle experience which the troops had in the North African fighting carried them through the most hazardous and difficult of assaults.

AN ALLIED COMMAND POST IN SICILY, July 11.—The beaches of southern Sicily are ours and our troops are moving in. Casualties on the beaches have been extremely light.

After a night of spectacular air activity which our vast armada watched off the Sicilian coast, assault troops rushed the beaches in the face of machine-gun fire and some shelling.

Above this Allied command post dogfights are going on. Occasional attempts are being made to strafe us.

The troops are almost in holiday spirit. Several men even found time for bathing off this beautiful coast.

The first message from shore at 5 a. m. said: "Landing successful." This was followed quickly by flare signals announcing the taking of one beach.

Naval support has been on a tremendous scale and as far as the eye can see there are ships.

An Allied command post cruiser near us silenced a gun battery with a single salvo. Naval guns still are heard but the major resistance has been overcome.

A number of prisoners have been taken.

The element of surprise figured largely in the initial operation. The perfect timing in the combined operations has set a new high in the standard of co-operation.

We saw several searchlights fingering the sea, but before they could cause any harm we had extinguished them.

The general feeling was ex-

MORE CANADIANS ARRIVE IN AFRICA IN ALLIED CONVOY

Reinforcements from British Training Camps Disembark as Invasion Starts.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 11—(AP) Several thousand Canadian reinforcements landed in North Africa within 24 hours of the start of the Allied invasion of Sicily, it was disclosed tonight.

A substantial troop convoy which carried the additional troops from training camps in England to the Mediterranean theater followed behind the ships bearing the Canadian assault force.

The troopships also carried medical personnel, nursing sisters and British troops. The trip from England took several peaceful days of calm sunny weather.

The convoy had constant protection of warships, but the navy watchdogs had no enemy interference to cope with. Canadian gunners manning the anti-aircraft guns of the troop ships likewise fired nothing but practice rounds.

The reinforcements convoy slipped from a British port at dusk one evening and pushed to sea in a haze until the rugged North African coastline rose above the horizon. Neither officers nor men were aware of their destinations.

Issue of tropical medicine aboard ship only served to increase the number of rumors which spread over the decks. The troops were nearing their destination when the news of the Sicilian invasion was broken over the public address system, along with the fact that Canadian brothers-in-arms were taking part.

There was a stir of excitement followed by cheers.

Chaplains Win Confidence of Men by Taking Same Risks in Leaps.

AT AN INVASION CENTER IN NORTH AFRICA, July 5—(Delayed)—(AP) Four jumping padres are ready to carry the cross with the parachute troops on the invasion thrust.

They don't have to go with the paratroopers. They've elected to go voluntarily to give the troops spiritual aid and comfort in their first combat mission. Their altar might be in an ambulance, a tent, an abandoned building or under the open sky. But the men will know their padres, as the soldiers call their chaplains, will be with them.

They are Capt. Matthew J. Connelly, O.S.B., Denver, Colo., (Catholic); Lieut. George E. B. Wood, Austin, Minn., (Episcopal); Lieut. Edwin J. Kozak, Baltimore, Md., (Catholic), and Lieut. Delbert Kuehl, Hopkins, Minn., (Episcopal).

"The parents of these boys have nothing to worry about," Lieut. Kozak said. "Their sons are well taken care of wherever they are, even if we have to fly to them and jump from a plane to reach them. If they can't come to us, we go to them."

The priests will take with them a special kit which fits over their shoulders and contains everything needed for mass so that regardless of where they go, mass can be said for the boys on the spot.

Father Kozak was the first Catholic priest to become a qualified parachutist, and has nine jumps to his credit since going to Fort Benning, Ga., last fall.

Father Connelly, who was at the monastery of the Holy Cross in Canon City, Colo., before entering army service, has had eight jumps.

"Being with these boys has been a wonderful experience," he said. "They like to think they're tough, and they are—physically. But inside, they aren't as tough as they think they are."

Lieut. Kuehl, 26, and the youngest of the jumping padres, has 12 jumps to his record. When he went up for his first jump, the troops looked with surprise at the cross on his jump-jacket.

"Is he gonna jump?" one trooper whispered.

"Naw," another said. "Chaplain's don't jump. He's just goin' along for the ride."

But when the troops poured out of the door, Lieut. Kuehl was right with them.

His First Jump

"And they didn't know," he chuckled. "That it was my first jump."

The chaplains agree the only way they can win and keep the paratroopers' confidence and respect is to jump with them and take part in their daily activities.

Lieut. Wood, who has jumped five times, believes there is more religion among the paratroopers than is expressed in formal services. As he put it:

"One cannot jump out of a plane unhesitatingly into the clear blue air without confidence in God. I know because I have done it. When a man loses that confidence he loses the physical power to go out that door. To stand in a plane and prepare to jump is a deeply spiritual experience. When the jumpmaster says stand up and hook up, the plane takes on an almost religious atmosphere. You can sense it as you stand there. This is a serious business. It is a moment for prayer. And whether or not the man has been to church on Sunday morning makes little difference, for he is praying now, his lips sometimes forming the words, his hands sometimes making the sign of the cross—a prayer that is surely acceptable to Almighty God."

And for the troops with whom he works, Lieut. Wood composed a paratroopers' prayer.

'Jumping Padres' Travel With Parachute Troops

American Glider Troops Made Their Debut in Sicily Invasion

By Don Whitehead

For the combined American press

AN AMERICAN ARMY INVASION CENTER IN NORTH AFRICA, July 5 (Delayed) (AP).—The forthcoming Allied assault on Sicily by land, sea and air is just the chance the American high command has wanted to test the striking power and combat effectiveness of one of the Army's newest surprise weapons — glider - borne troops.

Towed by troop-carrying transport planes across the Mediterranean within gliding distance of their objective, the motorless craft will cut loose from their planes and swoop in swiftly and silently to disgorge men behind the Axis coastal defenses.

The move was planned to be coordinated with attacks by parachute troopers—the first time the American Army has used its airborne weapons.

The German Army used glider-borne troops to overrun Crete and proved that water and distance are no barriers to invasion. But the American Army has improved on the technique in what promises to be one of the boldest and most spectacular thrusts to be made in the war.

Practiced for Weeks

Like great hawks, the gliders laden with troops, have been soaring through African skies for weeks, practicing for this latest development in Allied offensive strategy.

These aircraft are marvels of American aeronautical engineering, and American glider pilots assert they are the best developed of any nation.

Gliders are expendable. They are designed theoretically for use only once. They are necessarily built of light materials not expected to stand up under shocks of repeated landings with heavy loads. But scores of them were used over and over again in maneuvers and were still in good condition for assault flight.

They carry pilot and co-pilot and troops sitting on benches on either side of the cabin. They carry pounds of cargo and under normal conditions will glide about fifteen feet for each foot of altitude. Thus a glider released from a tow plane at an altitude of two miles has a gliding range of thirty miles.

The gliders are hooked to the tails of the planes by a long tow cable. In early trials it was found that the secret of successful glider towing was in the tow rope. The first cables used were not satisfactary because they snapped frequently in take-offs or during flights. However, a tow rope was developed which was elastic and able to stand the strain of tow shocks.

Landing Gear Dropped

The glider takes off on wheels but the landing gear is usually dropped once the craft is in flight, and so in landing it skids along on its belly.

"Hell, we can set 'em down on a dime" one glider pilot said. "We've got wing flaps to slow landing speed to about sixty miles on hour. Then when we land we tilt the glider forward on its nose and this acts as a brake."

Many glider pilots were picked from the ranks of the infantry and had no previous flying experience, but soon became proficient and developed amazing teamwork with plane pilots after weeks of working together. The light craft is highly maneuverable but when in tow it cuts the plane's normal cruising speed.

Glider troops have certain advantages over parachute infantry in getting into action. Not only are they able to carry equipment which cannot be landed by parachute but once on the ground they do not have to recover from landing shock or lose precious minutes getting out of parachute harness. Also, they come out of gliders grouped for action while parachute troops, scattered in jumps, have to regroup and assemble equipment.
